ARMORED FORCES SPAN TWO RIVERS IN DASH FOR SEA

GOTHA SURRENDERS

Ninth Army Plunges to Weser River, Threatens Hannover.

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, Thursday, April 5. —(AP) U. S. Third army tank forces, breaking into the open Thuringian Plain, captured Kassel, Gotha and Suhl yesterday and closed in on Erfurt, 130 miles southwest of Berlin, in their swift race to split the dying Reich.

In the north, British armored forces hurdled two major river barriers, the lower Weser and Ems rivers, and plunged on toward the great German North sea ports of Bremen and Emden.

One force pushing into Lingen, 55 miles south of Emden, and sweeping onward, was only 45 miles from cutting the last Nazi escape route out of all Holland, and Canadian troops on the western flank were overrunning V-bomb sites.

NIGHT

Karlsruhe, capital of Baden on the upper Rhine, fell to the French First army at the extreme southern end of the front, a French communique announced. The adjoining U. S. 7th army pushed to Uffenheim, 34 miles northwest of Nuernberg, Nazi convention city and key road city controlling the Berlin-Brenner pass routes into Italy. The Americans and French also were threatening Stuttgart, big south German city.

Nazis Losing Heavily

All Allied armies were pounding ahead in a swelling tide that overran underground Nazi factories, vital airfields, and other war plants. The Nazis were losing more than two divisions daily in prisoners alone.

Field Marshal Montgomery's British 11th Armored division swept around Osnabrueck, where the last bitter German resisters were being slain, and crossed the Weser river, one of the last two water barriers before Berlin, in an apparent double strike aimed at Hannover and Bremen.

Although the exact point of the crossing was not divulged in a late front dispatch, it apparently occurred above Minden, which is 53 miles south of Bremen and 32 miles west of Hannover.

The British "plunged beyond against light opposition," said a dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent William Frye.

The American Third army, pacing the Allied drive in the center, ran through surrendered Gotha and moved on toward Erfurt, 11 miles beyond, astride the Frankfurt-Dresden military superhighway. The Germans said 40 Allied gliders set down troops, fuel, and munitions to aid the capture of ancient Gotha.

The American Ninth army charged up to the 240-foot Weser river, next to last barrier on the high road to Berlin, 170 miles away. Reaching the river at Bad Oeynhausen, the Americans menaced the large Prussian communications center of Hannover, 38 miles from Ninth army tanks. The naval base of Bremen lay 57 miles to the north.

The Ninth pressed down from the north on the shrinking Ruhr trap where up to 150,000 Germans faced surrender or annihilation. Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, supreme Nazi commander in the west, was in the doomed pocket, a dispatch from the Ninth army front said. Advancing infantry moved within five miles of Dortmund on two sides.

Street fighting erupted through the rubbled streets of Wuerzburg Heilbronn, Hamm and Zutphen, all of which were falling on a curving 400-mile front as the Allies ripped through hastily erected resistance nests.

The Canadians moved up to Arnhem and were less than 20 miles from the Zuder Zee in Holland. Once they reach that great body of water they will have cut off part of the 90,000 Germans originally anchored in western Holland.

Gotha Surrenders

Gotha fell without a shot being fired. Germans broke out white flags a half-hour before the U. S. Third army's Fourth Armored (break-through) division commander, Brig. Gen. William Hoge, of Lexington, Mo., was scheduled to attack.

"If you don't surrender we'll blow your houses down," Hoge had told Gotha's residents. Two thousand German troops fled during the night.

The Third army at Gotha was 140 miles southwest of Berlin and was fighting beyond Gotha to the southwest, charging down the last 55 miles to the great rail center of Plauen, the fall of which would bisect Germany.

The Russian armies on the east were at last reports 160 miles from

APR 5 1945

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's men.

At the nearest reported approach, the Third army was 58 miles from Czechoslovakia and 110 from Pilsen, where the great Skoda munitions works are turning out some of Hitler's last weapons.

Germans Work as We March In

The fall of Kassel at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday deprived the Germans of one of their major production centers for planes and tanks, of factories that still worked while 80th division troops cut through the city.

The last hours of battle were marked by utter confusion in which German reinforcements rolled into the city, assigned to their first combat commands. They rode into the waiting arms of the Americans and surrendered before firing a shot.

Patton's tanks had negotiated the wooded Thuringian barriers onto ideal tank country. They were hammering down the last 35 miles to Jena, where Napoleon won a great victory.

It was on this flatland and in adjacent Saxony that American and Russian armor seemed most likely to pinch the Reich in two.

Captured Suhl is 22 miles south of Gotha. The Germans said the Third army had driven even farther east—into Arnstadt, 70 miles from Leipzig and 133 from Dresden, leading cities of Saxony.

The creeping paralysis of the German army was accentuated by the surrender of at least 26,567 troops during the day, with only five of the nine attacking Allied armies reporting. The Ninth took 13,000; the First 3,771; the Third 6,796; The British 1,800 and the French 1,200.

The British Second army was sweeping so swiftly toward the North sea and its prized ports of Wilhelmshaven, Emden and Hamburg that Field Marshal Montgomery imposed a partial security blackout, but it was known that the British were 55 miles or less from Bremen.

The British would trap German army group H in Holland by reaching the sea. The original 90,000 men of Field Marshal Johannes Blaskowitz's command have been fleeing the threatened trap, however, for three days under a protective cloud and rain cover which kept most Allied planes in their hangars. Improving weather found Allied fighters and fighter-bombers smashing German troop and supply columns.

The Canadian First army was fashioning a trap within the larger British trap in Holland. Reaching the Zuider Zee, they would seal off the V-bomb bases and make German positions untenable in the greatest Dutch cities such as Amsterdam, Rotterdam, the Hague, Utrecht and Haarlem.

These were the outstanding achievements of the day along the curving 400-mile front from north to south:

The Canadian First army closed up to the Rhine opposite Arnhem and reached the tributary Issel along a 20-mile front facing the Zuider Zee. Hengelo (pop.: 40,000) fell and Zutphen (21,500) was entered.

Capture Rail Center

The British Second army captured Osnabrueck (100,000), meeting place of virtually all north German rail lines leading to Holland and north from the trapped Ruhr, and fought at least six miles to the north. They reached the Ems river 45 miles to the northwest and were within 77 miles of Wilhelmshaven when the blackout was imposed. The Ems-Weser canal was crossed. One British column headed toward Hannover.

The Ninth army at the Weser menaced Hannover (472,527), and fought inside the sprawling rail yards of Hamm. (50,000). The river was reached at a point 103 miles from Hamburg, (1,682,000). The central German city of Brunswick (201,306, was 72 miles distant.

On the northern side of the Ruhr, far to the rear of the Weser, where Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's engineers already were reported at work, at least four Ninth army divisions were ploughing into the mass of pocketed Germans. One of the places taken was Ickern, 17 miles northeast of Essen. At Waldrop the 75th division seized a huge aluminum plant intact and captured 5,000 tons of ore.

The 83rd division reported stiffening resistance inside Hamm and southeast of Muenster. In one small German counter-attack most of 200 infantrymen and three self-propelled guns were destroyed.

In breaking up the last German resistance on Muenster an American sergeant shot four Germans and stabbed the fifth.

The American First army tightened its hold on the Ruhr from the south and southeast, capturing Sie-gen (32,000 pop.), widened their bridgehead over the Sieg river to 13 miles, and advanced three miles to the north to the vicinity of Klafeld. Villages cleared included Netphen, just east of Siegen, Benfe, 10 miles northeast of Siegen, and Mudersbach, five southwest of Siegen.

Another link between the Ninth and First armies was made at Westereiden, seven miles southeast of Lippstadt, on the eastern side of the Ruhr pocket. It was at Lippstadt where the two armies first joined last Sunday.

Kellinghausen and Osteribein, 17 miles southwest of Paterborn on this eastern side of the Ruhr also were taken during the day.

Enemy Resistance Is Stiffening on Road to Berlin

BULLETIN.

PARIS (AP).—The French announced the Capture of Karlsruhe today.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 4.—British troops today reached the Ems River, 48 miles from the North Sea, in a drive to trap up to 90,000 Germans in Holland, and American 9th Army tanks pulled up to the Weser, next to last important stream on the high road to Berlin. The Elbe River is the last big natural barrier before the German capital.

A stiffening of German resistance as the Americans neared the Weser River suggested that the enemy was trying to form a line behind that barrier. There was no indication that the foe had been able to salvage the strength for a major stand.

The American 3d Army fought down the last 58 miles toward Czechoslovakia and for the city of Gotha, 140 miles southwest of Berlin. The Germans said Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's troops had reached Arnstadt, 70 miles from Leipzig and 110 miles from the Czech city of Pilsen, where the great Skoda munitions works—Hitler's last major arsenal—are located. Arnstadt is 13 miles southeast of Gotha.

Engineers Move Up.

The 5th Armored Division of Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's 9th Army reached the Weser at Bad Oeynhousen, 183 miles from Berlin, 57 miles south of Bremen and 103 miles southwest of Hamburg. A battalion of engineers rode along to bridge the river.

The north German towns of Salzufien, Dienhide and Hollinde were captured on the way.

The Germans said the Canadian 1st Army had crossed the Waal Rhine, presumably at Arnhem, in a drive toward the Zuider Zee—less than 20 miles from Gen. Henry Crerar's vanguards.

(The Luxembourg radio asserted that German divisions were being shifted from the Russian to the disintegrating western front. The 9th Army was said to have encountered the SS Viking Panzer Division, which arrived without tanks.)

The French 1st Army entered Karlsruhe, capital of Baden and an important communications and industrial center of 189,000 near the upper Rhine.

The 9th Army's 2d Armored Division fought past tightly hemmed Bielefeld into Detmold, 47 miles southwest of Hannover.

The American 7th Army battled to the heart of the Bavarian city of Wuerzbach and closed to within 34 miles of Nuernberg on the front beyond the Main River. German resistance there was hardening.

Perimeter of Trap Reduced.

Combined blows by the 1st and 9th Armies closed down the perimeter of the Ruhr trap to 190 miles and Gen. Omar N. Bradley's headquarters raised the estimate on doomed German troops in the annihilation zone to between 120,000 and 150,000.

Little more than the width of Indiana separated Gen. Patton's 3d Army from Russian front lines. The forces were last reported 160 miles apart nearly a day ago.

The Canadian 1st Army, in its advance to within less than 20 miles of the Zuider Zee, cut more communications to the rocket coast of the Netherlands from which the Nazis have bombarded England.

Important cities fell; others were falling; others were imminently menaced.

The important cities taken included:

Muenster, capital of Westphalia and a burned-out old cathedral town. The communications center of 143,748 fell to the United States 17th Air-borne Division and the British 6th Guards Tank Brigade.

British Take Osnabrueck.

Osnabrueck, a communications center of 100,000 about 60 miles southwest of Bremen, toppled to the British 11th Armored Division, which drove 8 miles north of the city.

Aschaffenburg (32,000) and Fulda, German Catholic center of 27,000, fell to the American 7th and 9th Armies.

Allied troops stormed into Wuerzburg (108,617), Heilbronn (60,000), Hamm (50,000), Kassel (217,085), Gotha (48,000) and the Dutch city of Hengelo (40,000).

Bielefeld, Eisenach and all the great industrial cities of the Ruhr were by-passed and marked for conquest in detail at the decision of Gen. Eisenhower's nine armies.

The nearest British approach to the North Sea was north of captured Nordhorn. An armored division, advancing a minimum of 9 miles overnight, reached the Ems at a point 45 miles northwest of Osnabrueck.

Canadians cleared out all the area between the Maas (Meuse) River and the Waal Rhine and stood facing Arnhem across the Rhine.

Showers drenched the front, giving the Germans in Holland a third successive day in which to flee without the maximum lashing of Allied air power. The Germans were doing just that; they had massed barges on shores of the Zuider Zee, perhaps for an attempted water escape.

Bitter house fighting continued in Kassel, 165 miles southwest of Berlin, where masses of German planes and tanks and locomotives have helped power German armies for the whole war. The 80th Division of the 3d Army won most of the southern half of the city and fought down the Wilhelmoehoe, Kassel's main street, through the heart of the city from the west and east. This cut Kassel in two.

Gotha was the easternmost penetration of the 3d Army, Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball reported. On the left, the 6th Armored Division speared to Diedorf, 15 miles north of by-passed Eisenach, 7 miles from Mulhausen and 145 miles from Berlin. The 3d Army liquidated 2,000 Elite SS troops in a pocket northeast of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, long since passed.

This was the 300th day after the first invasion boats touched the beaches of Normandy, and Gen. Eisenhower declared in another demand for German surrender:

"The end is not far off."

Menace Increasing Hourly.

British tanks were more than halfway from the Rhine to the German North Sea ports and hourly increasing the menace to such naval bases as Bremen, about 50 miles away; Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg.

A partial news blackout was again clamped on in the north by Field Marshal Montgomery, portending victorious developments.

Gen. Patton's 3d Army also encountered more resolute opposition. All the Allied armies, scores of miles beyond the Rhine, had supply problems.

The 7th Army's capture of Aschaffenburg and the entry into Wuersburg, capital of Lower Franconia, opened the path to Nuernberg.

Nazis Lose 150 Airports.

Since the Rhine crossing March 7, the Germans have lost 150 airports, Associated Press Correspondent Tom Yarbrough reported from Gen. Bardley's headquarters. The Russions have taken 80, Gen. Eisenhower's armies 70.

"German rail traffic yesterday was almost at a standstill, reflecting the cumulative results of persistent bombings of bridges, rails, locomotives and freight cars," the dispatch added.

The encircled Germans in the Ruhr are estimated at between 10 to 21 divisions, some in fairly good strength but, with few tanks. The Germans still have not concentrated anywhere on the rim of the trap for a major breakthrough attempt, Mr. Yarbrough said. The increased estimate showed that a great number of the trapped men were the ill-trained Volksturm.

Fleets of C-47 transport planes were easing the 3d Army's supply problem, now that the 3d is 215 miles inside Germany. Yesterday, for instance, the transports brought in all Gen. Patton's gasoline requirements and rations for one meal for his whole army.

One column of the 6th Armored Division pushed along the west bank of the Frieda River to Heldra, 12 miles northwest of Eisenach, important road and chemical city in Thuringia. Eisenach, 16 miles west of Gotha, was bypassed.

10-Mile Advance.

The 65th Division, identified for the first time in battles east of the Rhine, advanced 10 miles to a point 14 northwest of Eisenach. The 4th Armored (Breakthrough) Division gained 7 miles eastward to near Oberhof, 16 miles south of Gotha.

Pressure from the Germans trapped in the Ruhr eased along the 1st Army's left flank. The 9th Division advanced 2 miles northward to Oberkirchen, 7 miles southwest of Winterberg, where the enemy offered his only strong overnight attack.

While formal resistance decreased on the 1st Army sector, there was an annoying increase of sniping by civilians.

The 1st Army widened its Sieg River bridehead at the southeast corner of the Ruhr pocket to 14 miles, capturing Siegen. The troops moved 2 miles northward to Klafeld. Other villages cleared included Nepthen, Benfe and Mudersbach.

Another link was forged with the 9th Army at Westereiden, 7 miles southeast of Lippstadt. Some 3,771 prisoners surrendered to Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' troops in the last 24 hours.

The 75th Division of the 9th Army crossed the Dortmund-Ems Canal and reached Waltrop in the Muenster district.

Battle Through Forest.

The 9th Army's 2d Armored (Hell on Wheels) Division fought clear through the Teutoberger Wald in six places and moved toward the Weser to join the 5th Armored Division.

The French Army captured the important rail town of Bruchsal, 12 miles northeast of Karlsruhe before entering the larger city. The French took 1,200 prisoners, liberated several hundred Allied captives and destroyed 50 antitank guns in a single action.

The Americans captured Kellinghausen and Ostereiben, 17 miles southwest of Paderborn, in squeezing down the Ruhr pocket. At Blankenrode, near Paderborn, a four-man American patrol captured 84 German soldiers, mostly boys of 16 or 17 who had fought as long as any SS troops stayed to keep an eye on them.

Reds Take Bratislava by Storm, Slash into Suburbs of Vienna

Last of Nazis Driven from Hungary as Assault Gains Momentum.

LONDON, Thursday, April 5. — (AP) The Russians took Bratislava by storm, hurled the last Germans from Hungary, and slashed into the suburbs of Vienna yesterday through the hinge of the enemy's principal defense line.

Announcing these successes in an order of the day by Premier Stalin and in the nightly communique, Moscow also disclosed that the reeling Germans were being driven back along the Mura river valley in northeastern Yugoslavia within 48 miles of Zagreb and that a great two-army pincers was clamping down on the last Nazi positions in Hitler's puppet state of Slovakia.

Premier Stalin announced the capture of Bratislava, capital of Slovakia and key Danube river stronghold of 160,000 population, less than 24 hours after Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army had laid siege to the city.

While Malinovsky's men, ashore and afloat in river gunboats, were storming the city, others of his great army group advanced eight to ten miles north and west along a 100-mile-long front in Slovakia and spread through the Little Carpathian mountains, where the Germans vainly sought to hold a redoubt, the broadcast Moscow communique disclosed.

Nazis Lose Thousands

The Germans in the little Carpathians alone lost 4,600 men captured Tuesday, Moscow announced.

Simultaneously, it announced, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian forces seized more than 30 communities south and southwest of Vienna, including Zwoelfaxing, only a mile and a half from the southern city limits and seven and a half from the 450-foot tower of historic St. Stephen's Cathedral in the very heart of the Austrian capital.

In this advance, Tolbukhin smashed straight through Himberg, a mile and a half southwest of Zwoelfaxing and the point at which previous Moscow dispatches said the Germans had anchored their strongest line of anti-tank guns.

The last-ditch defense of Vienna, which the Nazis had proclaimed, was at hand.

Free Hungary's Soil

Some 100 miles almost due south of Vienna the Russians announced they had thrust the last of the Germans off Hungarian soil and were pressing their liberating invasion of Yugoslavia with the aid of Bulgarian troops. The German high command said this Russian force already was in the area between Graz and Maribor, the latter being 36 miles inside Yugoslavia and only 78miles east of the Italian frontier.

The Moscow communique said 9,000 Germans were captured on that front Tuesday and that ten Yugoslav towns were taken Wednesday.

In northwest Slovakia, Czechoslovak forces and the Russian Fourth Ukrainian army pushed southwestward and captured more than 60 places.

This resumed offensive by Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukrainians was apparently the long-expected push to team up with Malinovsky's northern units and put the squeeze on the German held remainder of Slovakia.

Another more significant linkup was indicated in Malinovsky's capture of Bratislava. This laid open the traditional invasion gate to Austria and promised early union with the Tolbukhin forces that already were in Vienna's southern suburbs.

The stage was set for another Malinovsky-Tolbukhin joint operation, similar to that which captured Budapest.

Berlin, taking cognizance of the imminent consolidation of Red forces, said that advances by the Soviets made it necessary to move back the German front in Slovakia to a shortened line.

The victory was celebrated in Moscow with 20 salvos from 224 guns.

Reds Use Ships

The swift capture upset German plans to hold the strongpoint as a shield against encirclement of Vienna. Moscow reported ships and units of the Red Banner Danube flotilla participated in the victory.

Bratislava, a large river port 22 miles east of Vienna on the Danube, is a big manufacturing center that has supplied the Germans with important ammunition and chemicals.

Meanwhile, to the north new offensives seemed impending along the Neisse and Oder rivers. The Germans said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, peer of Red field commanders, was ready to roll his First White Russian army against Berlin and toward a junction with the Americans in the west. Official silence in Moscow shrouded developments in this area, but dispatches said the Russian offensive—perhaps the last of the war—was near.

Tolbukhin's push on Vienna moved to the north of Baden. His troops were attacking traffic junctions within six miles of the Austrian capital. Columns of Red tanks and motor-borne infantry fought forward over a flat plain thickly veined with railways and roads, tightly crammed with suburban villages.

Reds Six Miles From Limits of Vienna Proper

Wiener Neustadt Taken, Bratislava Closely Pressed

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 4.—Powerful Soviet tank and infantry forces, surging through the administrative district of greater Vienna, smashed today to within 6 miles of the city proper, now within easy reach of Soviet artillery.

Two massive Russian Armies already had deprived the defenders of Vienna of the great bastion of Wiener Neustadt, 22 miles to the south, and were closely pressing Bratislava, 24 miles east of the Austrian capital's city limits.

(The Stockholm newspaper Morgontidningen said civil war was reported to have broken out n Vienna.)

Wiener Neustadt, one of the biggest aircraft production centers in all Europe, fell to Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army, which drove on 16 miles to the southwest, capturing Neunkirchen and Gloggnitz. The Russians cut the Main Vienna-Venice railroad and a trans-Alpine highway connecting the war arsenals of Austria and Czechoslovakia with German troops in Italy.

137 Miles from Berchtesgaden.

At Gloggnitz the Russians were within 7 miles of the 3,215-foot Semmering Pass and were 137 miles east of Adolf Hitler's mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden.

In the drive on Vienna another wing of Marshal Tolbukhin's army capitalized on a crossing of the Leitha River and dashed 17 miles through a web of highways and railroads, each an enemy defense line. The Russians by-passed the sulphur spa of Baden and captured Velm, within the boundaries of Vienna set by the Nazi party and only 6 miles south of the metropolitan limits.

Meanwhile, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army hurled a 20-mile siege arc around Bratislava, capital of the puppet state of Slovakia, and drove within three-quarters of a mile of the city itself with the capture of the suburb of Prjevoz. Bratislava was outflanked on the south bank of the Danube River.

11 Miles From Juncture.

Marshal Malinovsky's forces were within 11 miles of a juncture with Marshal Tolbukhin's troops as the two Soviet armies squeezed the German defenders of the Bratislava gap.

Marshal Malinovsky's units drove up the east shore of the Neusiedler See (lake) and captured Parndorf, 4 miles east of Bruck and 16 miles east of Vienna. Simultaneously, Marshal Tolbukhin's men broke across the 1,575-foot Leitha Mountains and advanced along the west shore of the Neusiedler See to positions within 8 miles southwest of Bruck, a fortress city in the Bratislava Gap.

Extending its active front to 128 miles the 2d Ukrainian Army captured Kremnica, 10 miles west of Banska Bystrica in Central Slovakia, and was threatening the key junction of Zilina, 35 miles to the north.

Moscow announced that the 2d and 3d Ukrainian Armies had captured 23,000 prisoners yesterday, boosting to 75,150 the number taken in Austria, Hungary and Slovakia in three days.

Baruch Predicts Jobs Aplenty For Veterans, Business Boom

London, Thursday, April 5 (AP)—Looking confidently into the future, Bernard Baruch, adviser to President Roosevelt, asserted in an interview published today that American service men would not have anything to worry about when they got home, that "there will be more work in the United States than there will be hands with which to do it."

This wave of prosperity, he told a reporter for the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, would carry over for five to seven years after the war "no matter what is done or not done."

Reluctant To Talk

The 75-year-old financier, who has held several conferences with Prime Minister Churchill, was reluctant to talk about the exact nature of his mission to London. But he spoke freely in expressing confidence in the immediate future, and added:

"What happens after those five or seven years depends on the peace the big boys are preparing for us now."

Baruch's interview was given to A. Victor Lasky, Stars and Stripes staff writer. As originally prepared for publication it quoted Baruch as saying at this point:

"And one reason I am over here is to hold the big stick over the big boys to make damn sure they're not going to foul up the peace.

Deindustrialize Axis

"We've got to so deindustrialize Germany and Japan—at least for a generation—so they won't go to war again. Also we've got to see that those subsidized slave labor countries do not again flood the world with their cheap products, lowering the standards of living of the United Nations."

After Lasky's version of the story had been put into type and an abstract had been transmitted by the Associated Press to the United States, where it was widely published, Baruch's secretary asked that it be withheld from publication. However, after deletion of the two foregoing paragraphs it was published by Stars and Stripes.

Brushes Churchill Off

Lasky said that during the interview, in Baruch's suite in the Claridge, the telephone rang and Baruch's secretary told him the Prime Minister was calling. Baruch, Lasky said, gave Churchill a mild brushoff to continue his talk with the soldier reporter.

"Hello, Winston, this is Bernie," Baruch said into the phone, according to Lasky. "Look, Winston, I'm busy this afternoon. I'll drop over later." Lasky's account of this incident also was deleted from the final version carried by Stars and Stripes.

In the published interview Baruch said that one thing that should be more effective than at present was the "GI bill of rights."

Should Be Told Rights

"When a veteran is discharged he should be told his rights—rights which are not charity dispensed by a beneficent community but rights which he earned," Baruch said. "He should be protected from supersalesmanship designed to sell him everything from a piece of useless property to a used car.

"He should be advised authoritatively what he can do with the money he borrows. He should have definite assurance—not some vague provision—that he can get his old job back or a better one, and he should be given enough time to make his decisions.

"These jobs must be the kind of work to give a man a decent standard of living and that means good food, clothing, housing, education, medical care and a certain amount of amusement and leisure."

Baruch added that "the President himself is checking into rehabilitation plans and hospital facilities for veterans."

During his visit here the President's adviser has talked with American soldiers to get their opinions.

in the United Nations."

Predictions of Prosperity.

Baruch predicted that there would be such a wave of prosperity in the United States after the war that no service man overseas would have to worry about a job.

"No matter what is done for the next five or seven years," he said, "after the war ceases, there will be more work in the United States than there will be minds or hands with which to do it." What happens after those five or seven years depends on the peace the big boys are preparing for us now."

Brushoff for Churchill.

During the interview, in the 75-year-old financier's suite in the Claridge, the telephone rang and Baruch's secretary told him that the Prime Minister was calling.

"Hello Winston, this is Bernie," Baruch said. "Look, Winston, I'm busy this afternoon. I'll drop over later."

Baruch had spent the morning just "chewing the fat" with some soldiers on a bench in Hyde Park. He said that when he returned to the United States, he was going to investigate charges that rehabilitation plans in hospitals for veterans were inadequate.

G. I. Bill of Rights.

"I'm going to straighten out that situation," he said. "The G. I. bill of rights has to be made more effective than it is at present. When a [illegible] is discharged, he should be told his rights — rights which aren't charity, dispensed by a beneficent community, but rights which he has earned.

"He should be protected from super-salesmanship, designed to sell him everything from a piece of useless property to a used car. He should be advised authoritatively what he can do with the money he borrows. He should have definite assurance — not some vague provision—that he can get his old job back, or a better one, and he should be given enough time to make his decisions.

"In other words, when a veteran returns to the United States, he should have at least one place to which he can go in dignity. There is too much shunting around at present. That is my hope and determination."

Baruch Wields 'Big Stick'

Says He's in London to Make Sure 'Big Boys' Don't 'Foul Up the Peace.'

London, April 4 (A. P.).—Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to President Roosevelt, said today that "one reason I'm over here is to hold the big stick over the big boys to make damn sure they're not going to foul up the peace."

Baruch, who has found a park bench—this time in Hyde Park—to hold forth with American soldiers, mildly brushed off a call from Prime Minister Winston Churchill to give an interview to a Stars and Stripes reporter. Baruch said in an interview with Victor Lasky, the Army newspaper reporter: "We've got to see that those subsidized slave-labor countries do not again flood the world with their cheap products, lowering the standard of living

3,000 PLANES POUND REICH

Sub Yards And Airfields In North Attacked

London, April 4 (AP)—The Allies hurled 3,000 planes against the dwindling targets of shrunken Germany today, including 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators which blasted submarine building yards at Kiel and Hamburg and airfields throughout the northwestern Reich.

The American attacks were driven home despite stiff opposition from fromations of jet-propelled ME-262's. Nine bombers and four fighters were missing, but the Swedish radio said one of the bombers landed safely at Malmoe airport in Sweden.

Returning crewmen reported good results at Kiel.

Eleven Jet Planes Bagged

At least eleven of the twin-jet interceptors and four other enemy fighters were shot down by Mustangs which made up part of the 850-plane escort.

But the ME-262's, closing to short range in formations of four and eight planes, knocked down several American bombers in attacks concentrated chiefly on a force of Liberators assigned to targets at Hamburg.

Many of the American fighters carried out widespread strafing raids against German airfields which are becoming more congested daily as the enemy is forced to evacuate his fields in the west, 70 of which already have been lost.

In these sweeps at least eight planes were destroyed on the ground. One group of about 45 Mustangs encountered 12 jet planes. One was shot down; the other 11 were damaged.

Total Bag Is 42

Fighter-bombers of the United States 9th Air Force, some operating from former enemy airfields east of the Rhine, boosted the day's total of German aircraft destroyed by American pilots to at least 42. They brought down sixteen in combat and caught three bombers on the ground.

While American heavies were continuing their port-busting campaign—it was the second straight raid on Kiel, and the third on naval installations and U-boat yards in six days—the RAF sent some 750 Lancasters with Mustangs and Spitfires to attack troop concentrations at Nordhausen, 60 miles northeast of Kassel.

After flying through solid clouds the British formations found a clear patch over the target and dropped their bombs with good results. This second successive daylight assault in support of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army raised to about 3,000 tons the weight of fire bombs and high explosives rained on the German barracks and command posts.

About 500 of the 8th Air Force heavies attacked Kiel, where three submarine building yards were blasted Tuesday, while 200 more went to Hamburg, damaged heavily in a raid last Friday. It was this formation which lost several planes to attack by the jets. At both ports bombing generally was done through clouds.

Rostock Field Hit

The rest of the task force swept over a series of airfields extending east as far as Rostock, almost due north of Berlin.

More than 350 light and medium bombers of the 9th Air Force ranged over southern Germany, concentrating chiefly on an oil-storage depot at Ebrach, 24 miles east of Wuerzburg; a rail yard and barracks at Crailsheim, 46 miles northeast of Stuttgart, and a supply depot in the same general area.

Essen was one of the objectives in the Ruhr pocket hit by fighter bombers.

The day's operations followed up night-long attacks by RAF Mosquitos which hit Berlin in two separate waves 90 minutes apart, bombed the industrial city of Plauen near the Czechoslovak border, and made widespread attacks on airfields.

RAF Pounds 2 Oil Centers; Yanks Rip Kiel

London, Thursday, April 5 (AP).—A great armada of RAF heavy bombers attacked synthetic oil plants at Hamburg and Merseburg last night while Mosquitos struck again at Berlin, the Air Ministry announced today. The attacks on Hamburg and Merseburg were carried out "in very great strength"—a phrase frequently used by the Air Ministry to denote a striking force of 1,000 or more planes.

The Allies hurled 3,000 planes against the dwindling targets of shrunken Germany yesterday, including 1,000 B-17 Fortresses and B-24 Liberators which blasted submarine building yards at Kiel and Hamburg and airfields throughout the northwestern Reich.

The American attacks were driven home despite stiff opposition from formations of jet-propelled ME-262s. Nine bombers and four fighters were missing, but the Swedish radio said one of the bombers landed safely at Malmoe airport in Sweden.

Report Good Results.

Returning crewman reported good results at Kiel.

At least 11 of the twin-jet interceptors and four other enemy fighters were shot down by P-51 Mustangs which made up part of the 850-plane escort.

Many of the American fighters carried out widespread strafing raids against German airfields which are becoming more congested daily as the enemy is forced to evacuate his fields in the west, 70 of which already have been lost.

In these sweeps at least eight planes were destroyed on the ground. One group of about 45 Mustangs encountered 12 jet planes. One was shot down; the other 11 were damaged.

BRITONS ON STRIKE IN 11 PLANE PLANTS

London, April 4 (A. P.).—A two-day token strike was voted today by 30,000 workers of eight Avro aircraft plants, as a series of walkouts developed in Britain's war industries. Ten thousand workers of three other aircraft factories already were away from their jobs, seeking increased pay and bonuses.

The Avro stoppage will begin tomorrow and a mass demonstration has been set for Friday, at Manchester. Another strike left Sunderland, a city of 190,000, without bus transportation, forcing shipyard and factory employees to walk to work.

In Belgium, coal miners in the Liege district have gone on strike for higher wages, increased food rations and lower rents, a dispatch from Brussels said. The Belgian National Mines Commission sought to settle the dispute.

NAZI RADIO SAYS WEREWOLVES KILL YANKEE OFFICERS

LONDON, April 4.—(AP) German military commentators contended tonight that the Allies were overreaching themselves, while the Nazi radio boasted that the "werewolf" terrorist organization had wiped out an American headquarters and slain a number of Americans at various points behind the lines.

Radio speakers suggested that the speed and scope of the Allied advance "might have the effect of a giant sponge, soaking up the war potential of the enemy and paralyzing his offensive strength," and opined "the temptation to attempt too much is great."

The Germans acknowledged, however that "the situation is by no means stabilized."

Commentator Max K. Rull asserted: "The Wehrmacht has not been brought to its knees. The encircled Ruhr army resumed active defense yesterday in full strength."

He described the Allied strategy as a "spiderweb" system "sending out tentacles over Germany," but contended the objectives still were sufficiently distant that "the war cannot be concluded either in a fortnight or by the date of the San Francisco conference," April 25.

A German radio station calling itself the "Werewolf Sender" meanwhile appealed to German women to join the organization.

One Werewolf broadcast claimed "an American staff headquarters in Schweinheim was wiped out last night" and "all Americans, including several high officers, were killed." There are two Schweinheims, one a suburb of Aschaffenburg, the other in the Cologne area. The broadcast did not specify which it meant, but added a 16-year-old boy in Cologne had "shot down a member of the U. S. blood tribunal the night of March 25 in revenge for killing 12 of his comrades by court martial."

In Mainz, the Werewolf station said, "three drunken American officers" were killed by Werewolves after they had fired into windows "in order to tell inhabitants to put out the lights."

Thousands Quit Jobs

Despite the Germans' bold radio front, other news items indicated continuing disintegration. The Stockholm paper Morgontidningen said that "as if by silent agreement" hundreds of thousands of workers throughout Germany had stayed away from work since the Easter holiday.

Three German planes landed in Sweden during the night. All contained Germans fleeing their homeland, including six non-commissioned air force officers.

The mayor of American-captured Gotha said the German high command had fled to Hitler's Berchtesgaden headquarters on March 31.

P-38 IS REVEALED AS DROOP-SNOOTER

London, April 4 (A. P.).—After hounding the Germans with off-the-record attacks for nearly a year, the American "Droop-Snoot" bomber—a modified P-38 Lightning fighter with a bombardier's compartment added—has been taken off the secret list. Its job is leading formations of standard P-38s in fast, high altitude precision bombing assaults.

The "droop-snooter" is fitted with an aluminum alloy nose incorporating a bombardier-navigator compartment in front of the pilot's cockpit. The bombardier directs the bombing and does the navigating for the entire formation.

The planes have been used successfully by both the United States Eighth and Ninth Air Forces. It carries the regular Norden bombsight and is capable of bombing accurately at speeds at least 50 per cent faster than the operational speeds of the heavy bombers. The greater speed did away with the necessity for additional fighter protection.

Experimental models were designed by Col. Cass S. Hough, Plymouth, Mich., and Col. Don S. Ostrander, Stockbridge, Mich., armament and ordnance specialists with the Eighth Air Force.

"The Droop-snooters" received their first combat test last May in an attack led by Hough and Ostrander on a German air field in France. In normal operations each plane carries two 1,000-pound bombs.

SIGHT 4,000 NAZIS SEEKING TO SURRENDER

LONDON, April 4 — (AP) The Luxemburg radio said tonight Allied aircraft flying over the Ruhr today sighted about 4,000 Germans displaying the white flag near Hagen, 10 miles south of Dortmund inside the Ruhr resistance pocket.

SWISS FRONTIER WITH ITALY SHUT

London, April 4 (A. P.).—The Swiss-Italian frontier will be closed, beginning today, because of anticipated important events, the Paris and Brussels radios reported in almost simultaneous broadcasts.

The Brussels radio further explained that "very important events are taking shape in northern Italy and new developments must be expected in the very near future."

Heads G. I. 'School for Brides'

LONDON, April 4 (UP).—Miss Elsie Celli, a Red Cross worker from Boston, took over one of the toughest jobs in London today when she was named head of the "G. I. School for Brides" at the Red Cross Club in Piccadilly Circus. To her monthly classes some 300 British brides and brides-to-be of American servicemen will come to find out about life in the United States.

Armistice Role Held Unlikely

London, April 4 (AP)—The Paris radio today quoted Vatican circles as saying the Holy See would "take no part in any political maneuvers" in relation to any German negotiations for an armistice.

Nazi Official Shot in Copenhagen

LONDON, April 4 (AP). — The Swedish radio said tonight that Max Clausen, secretary of the German Chamber of Commerce in Copenhagen, had been shot in his apartment last night, probably by Gestapo agents, because he had arranged to escape to Sweden.

Nazis Claim Terrorists Killed AMG Official

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 4.—Nazi Werewolf terrorists broadcast last night that they had kidnaped and slain an American military Government official and ambushed and killed American soldiers in Aachen and other occupied towns.

None of the statements had any Allied substantiation, but during the day Allied transmitters repeatedly broadcast Gen. Eisenhower's warning that any German caught attacking Allied personnel behind the lines would be "arrested, tried and shot" according to international law.

Surrender Appeal By Vatican Reported

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 4.—The Luxembourg radio reported yesterday that the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano had "launched an emphatic appeal to the German nation to cease this slaughter."

The broadcast quoted the Vatican paper as declaring "even the German propaganda service admitted Germany has lost the war and yet Germany continues this slaughter.

"The ultimate result will be the destruction of the nation's youth and strength. * * * From a political, humane, Christian point of view

VATICAN DECRIES NAZI WEREWOLVES

London, April 4 (A. P.).—The Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, sees the German Werewolf terrorist organization as the war's "epilogue of hate." In an article, yesterday, Rome dispatches said, the official Vatican organ commented that the name Werewolf could not have been better chosen, because "under pathology such a name means 'a nervous disease producing the howls of a wolf.'"

The Luxembourg radio declared that the Osservatore Romano has "launched an emphatic appeal to the German nation to cease this slaughter."

King Receives Churchill

LONDON, April 4 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill was received by King George VI today just before the opening of the Dominions conference. It was the third time the Prime Minister has been received by the king within a week.

30,000 Aircraft Workers In Britain Vote to Strike

Manchester 'Token' Walkout to Last for Two Days

LONDON, April 4 (AP).—Thirty thousand employees of eight Avro aircraft plants today voted a two-day "token" strike, starting tomorrow and winding up with a mass demonstration Friday in Manchester, as a series of walkouts developed in Britain's war industries.

Three other aircraft factories in northwest England remained tied up by a strike of 10,000 workers seeking increased pay and bonuses.

Another strike left Sunderland, a North Sea town of 190,000 people, without bus transportation, forcing its shipyard and engineering plant workers to walk to their jobs.

In Belgium, coal miners in the Liege district have gone on strike for higher wages, increased food rations and lower rents, a dispatch from Brussels said. The Belgian National Mines Commission sought to settle the dispute.

HOPE WON'T DOWN

London, April 4. (A. P.).—In a strictly speculators market, German Government bonds have soared to wartime peaks in brisk trading on the London Stock Exchange. German 5 per cent Dawes loan bonds, floated in 1924 and then issued to British investors under official auspices, have been the favorites. These bonds, which fell in 1939 from above $160 a $100 bond to $16, bounced up another point today to $76.

Market observers said buyers hoped Germany soon would be forced to resume interest payments on these loans. The theory was that if Germany sends timber or other commodities to Great Britain as reparations, the British treasury, after selling these products, will have sterling to meet the claims of holders of German sterling loans.

Conservative financial quarters viewed this strictly as a long shot proposition, reasoning that there would be big claims on Germany from other countries, and that for anything Great Britain gets from Germany there would be other claimants besides the bondholders.

Rosenman Back in London.

London, April 4 (A. P.).—Judge Samuel N. Rosenman, studying the non-military supply problems of western Europe, returned to London today after three weeks in France and Belgium. He expects to leave in ten days to report to President Roosevelt.

London Parley to Discuss Empire Economic Solidarity

LONDON, April 4 (AP).—Britain mustered diplomatic representatives from her dominions for an exploratory meeting opening today to weld empire solidarity—particularly on economic problems—in preparation for the San Francisco Conference.

The meeting, with no public discussions planned, will begin in an atmosphere of uncertainty over whether possible war developments may delay the April 25 world security assembly.

Talk that V-E day might come before April's end was increased by the presence here of White House advisors Bernard Baruch and Edward J. Flynn, both on secret missions. London police were known to have been placed on one-hour call for victory celebration work and an authoritative British source said "it's only common sense to realize that things may happen which will necessitate its (the world conference's) postponement."

RAF Birthplace Grows

Scotland-U. S. Flights On Post-War Schedule

PRESTWICK, Scotland, April 4 (AP).—Regular day and night flights between Scotland and North America are included in a post-war schedule announced tonight by Scottish Aviation, Ltd.

The night sleeper plane leaving Prestwick at 8:30 p. m. will reach New York at 2 p. m. the next day, according to the schedule, which lists the sleeper fare at $168. The day fare is $160.

SPIRIT IN GERMANY SEEN AT LOW EBB

Nazis' Effort To Spur People Rely On 'Atrocity' Stories

Mr. Anderson, an Associated Press war correspondent, was freed from a German prison camp last week.

By GODFREY H. P. ANDERSON

Paris, April 4 (AP)—The greatest mystery among many surrounding Nazi Germany today is why the Germans continue to fight at all.

The fanatical Kampfgeist, or fighting spirit, carefully built up by the leaders, showed signs of being sadly bent in recent weeks and the crudest forms of threats are now being applied to bludgeon the war-weary populace into continuing resistance.

Again and again the propaganda edifice so painstakingly erected by Goebbels has been shattered.

Now he has to rely entirely on stories of alleged atrocities in an attempt to persuade both troops and civilians that any fate is better than falling into Allied hands.

Some Soldiers Believe Stories

Some believe such stories. I saw a wounded German soldier behind the Nazi lines, who had just had his leg amputated, being trundled away on a wheelbarrow by a Red Cross nurse at the cost of incredible suffering because no ambulance was available and he feared being taken prisoner. But such instances were increasingly rare.

During my last days in Germany any soldier behind the lines who could not produce papers showing he was attached to a local unit was immediately seized and whisked away on the first truck toward the front. If he proved to be a deserter he was taken to the nearest wall and shot without a court-martial. "Why, they even are shooting German officers—German officers," one soldier told me breathlessly.

EISENHOWER SAYS END NOT FAR OFF

PARIS, April 4 — (AP) Gen. Eisenhower declared tonight "the end is not far off" in a statement broadcast to Urban residents of western Germany, warning them to flee at once from factories, mines and rail centers and hide until the Allies arrived.

The Supreme Allied commander, in another of the series of instructions being broadcast to town dwellers in western Germany, said:

"Cease working. Take refuge with your family in the safest place you can find. Factories, mines and rail centers are death traps. Act at once. Delay may mean death.

"Avoid at all costs being enrolled into the Volkssturm. Untrained and ill armed, for you the Volkssturm will mean a last minute death.

"As the Allied armies approach the area in which you have taken refuge, follow carefully the instructions in radio and leaflets of the Allied high command. After the arrival of the Allies, follow carefully the instructions of the Allied military government.

"Town dwellers: Stay out of factories, away from railroads and main highways. Hide yourselves and your families. The end is not far off."

States had sent 258,000 tons of relief food into France, and Britain had sent almost 13,000 tons. It also outlined the measures the army had taken to improve food shipments into Paris and other large cities such as supplying trucks, gasoline and other facilities, including airplanes.

Supreme headquarters conceded Paris was underfed during the winter and that despite efforts to relieve the situation there was "hunger and privation."

The food situation in Paris remains extremely bad. There is widespread dissatisfaction in the capital, especially among the workers.

The unfounded rumors of the food shortage resulting from Allied presence were born of this unrest among the workers though generally the French have blamed their own government rather than the Allies for the situation.

HITLER PROMISES COUNTER OFFENSIVE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Adolf Hitler was quoted by a west German radio station last (Wednesday) night as promising an Army unit on the Eastern front that a Nazi "counter-offensive" was "no longer far off."

The domestic broadcast, reported by the FCC, said Hitler told his troops it was necessary to hold the attackers only until "our offensive army is ready for a counter-offensive."

The remark was made, the broadcast said, during a visit by Hitler to the Eastern front where he decorated a unit commander.

Osnabruck, first reported taken, was the scene of savage street fighting by the Sixth Airborne division which struggled to clear the vital highway, rail and water junction.

Other units swung past the city's southern edge and pushed six miles east in a thrust paralleling the armored drive above this heavily defended communications center.

The Seventh Armored division has all but eliminated bitter resistance about a mile south of Ibbenbueren where cadets of a non-commissioned officers school made a fight to hold a bridgehead across the Dortmund-Ems canal.

Another British armored division to the west was fighting in Bentheim, but cleared the woods to the north of that place and crossed the Ems river northeast of Lingen. Fighting continued in Lingen.

WUERZBURG HALF CLEARED

Other 7th Army Forces Enter Heilbronn From 2 Sides

APR 5 1945

With U.S. 7th Army, April 4 (AP).—Wuerzburg was half cleared tonight and artillery was raining shells on the northeastern section while other American forces battled into Heilbronn from the west and north on both sides of the Neckar River.

The 42d (Rainbow) Division had cleared at least 35 city blocks in Wuerzburg by this afternoon and had knocked out some enemy armor in the process.

Fighting was stiff, but was not described as as fanatical as the Americans encountered at Aschaffenburg.

The Germans were hurling a force of SS (Elite Guard) Panzer Grenadiers in the path of the 12th Armored Division's advance on Nuernberg, however, and the Americans were reported involved in bitter combat around the Uffenheim-Herrnberchtein area — 34 miles from the Nazi party shrine.

Enemy Artillery Up

Although advances continued on most of the 7th Army's front, reports indicated the enemy finally has been able to bring artillery to bear on American forward positions to curtain German troops from the rampaging spearheads.

It was generally conceded tonight that heavy fighting is ahead before such cities as Nuernberg, Stuttgart and Schweinfurt are put out of the way.

Stuttgart was being menaced by French forces not more than 24 miles away in the Karlsruhe area.

100th Division At Heilbronn

The assault of Heilbronn found the 100th Division drilling in from the north and west, while the 10th Armored Division cleaned up Eisenheim and Gemmingem above the city. Farther north the 63d Infantry Division crossed the Neckar and pushed 4 miles ahead and into Stein and Kocher.

The 3d and 46th Infantry divisions and the 14th Armored Division rammed their way east and north from Aschaffenburg, crossing the Sinn and Main rivers in stride.

A recapitulation tonight showed the 45th Division had inflicted 4,600 casualties on the Germans in the fierce fighting for Aschaffenburg before it was captured yesterday.

NAZIS MAKE TANKS BENEATH BATTLE

Kassel, Germany, April 4 (A. P.).—American doughboys slugging their way through Kassel house by house yesterday were assigned to clean out vast underground tank and airplane factories which were still turning out their weapons though fighting was going on in the streets overhead.

Sergt. Helmut Wildermann of Jersey City, N. J., referring to a string of tanks that the Germans moved into the fighting direct from the assembly line, said they looked like they were out on a shakedown run, they were so new and shiny.

Although Wildermann grew up in Germany and saw the United States for the first time in 1938, he said: "I am non-Jewish and didn't have to leave Germany. I left because I wanted to and I am fighting Germans now because I want to."

His father went to the United States in 1923 and became naturalized, but his mother stayed in Stuttgart and is still a German citizen.

'POLISH HANGMAN' CAPTURED BY REDS

LONDON, April 4—(AP) Gauleiter Arthur Greiser, whose grim rule in Poland earned for him such names "the bloody butcher of Poland" and "hangman of the Polish people," has been captured in Poznan by the Red army, it was reported today by the Soviet war news, a publication of the Russian Embassy here.

Greiser was one of the first Nazi leaders whose European activities brought on the war. President of the Senate of the free city of Danzig, Greiser organized the campaign for Danzig's Nazification. He helped terrorize the city and told the people Hitler was determined to annex it.

When the war started Greiser was appointed Polish gauleiter. Boasting "there will be no Pole in my district in five years," he proceeded to carry out the threat by mass murder, deportation and other means.

The Soviet war news said Greiser always traveled with a bodyguard. When he made official visits, the streets were roped off and traffic diverted.

The publication said the most fearful crime in which Greiser was involved was the mass execution at Zgerz in 1942.

A Polish soldier had been accused by Germans of concealing weapons. The Pole admitted it and offered to reveal the cache. The Germans sent an escort of two Nazis with him. The Pole shot both and escaped.

Greiser arrested 150 of the most eminent citizens in the Poznan district as hostages, the Soviet publication said, and later executed 100 political prisoners. The prisoners first dug their own graves. The German police shot them in the backs at close range, then the next victims buried those previously shot.

SEIZED NAZI TANK HAS 155-MM. GUN

With the United States Ninth Army, April 4 (A. P.).—Troops of the Second Armored Division, in their plunge through the Teutoburger Forest, have captured an experimental testing ground for German tanks—and its discovery may add fuel to the current controversy over the relative merits of Allied and enemy tanks. On the testing field the Ninth Army tankmen found a new Super-Tiger tank, mounting a 155-mm. rifle twenty feet long.

With tracks three feet wide, the tank is twelve feet high. The largest gun previously mounted on the behemoths of battle was the 90-mm., on the newest American tank.

The Germans fought a new type of battle just east of the Teutoburger Forest, holding up the Second Armored Division twenty-four hours. Lacking artillery, they resorted to firing anti-tank rockets in barrages of fifty or more. Though the rocket projector is highly inaccurate, it is fired easily and is formidable in cities.

GERMANS LEAVING MEN TO TRICK AMG

With American Troops in Germany, March 31 (Delayed) (A. P.).—German troops fleeing before the American drive are leaving behind some Nazi party officoals they can trust, apparently in the hope that the AMG unknowingly will retain these officials in key posts. The policy had been outlined as long ago as last September in a secret order circulated by the Gauleiter of the Coblenz area, Gustave Simeon.

Simeon wrote to his district officials as follows:

"All secret documents are to be destroyed prior to the arrival of the enemy. To protect the population subsequent to occupation, suitable officials are to remain in positions of authority."

The directive stated that "Officials and civil servants who have exposed themselves through their activities in the party or in the State are not to be left behind.

"They are to be replaced," it said, "primarily by elder officials who have not especially come to the front in political respects."

The order specifically forbade any Germans other than those selected by the party to hold public office.

1st Finds Art Treasures in German Tunnel

Rembrandts and VanGoghs in Cache Unearthed by G. I.s in Raid Shelter

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY, April 4 (AP).—Art treasures from Germany and France have been found in a dark tunnel used by German civilians near the front as an air-raid shelter.

Works of Rembrandt, Reubens, Van Gogh and Vandyke; the famous jeweled and gold sarcophagus from the Cathedral of Cologne; sculptures and other treasures from museums, cathedrals and private collections were found. They had been moved from one hiding place to another by the Germans until 1st Army soldiers in the Siegen area overran an enemy position and discovered the cache.

An inventory will be made to determine the value of the collection and to find out how much was German and how much from occupied countries.

In the fetid air of the cavern civilians slept next to a painting by the great Rembrandt or curled up beside a magnificent carved door from the Cologne Cathedral. Russian and French slave laborers made their homes hard by the bones of Charlemagne, brought to the cave from their resting place in Aachen's cathedral.

There were 500 original scores in the handwriting of the composer Beethoven, taken from his birthplace at Bonn. There were paintings by Holbein. Rembrandt's celebrated self-portrait and Reubens's self-portrait and his famous Madonna were there.

The sarcophagus from the Cologne Cathedral probably was the most valuable item of all. Virtually all the treasures of that cathedral were moved two years ago when Allied air forces began pounding Rhineland industrial cities.

The cache in the cave was under the care of an aged man who once was the curator of the Aachen Museum. His care could not save the paintings from being somewhat affected by the dampness of the underground passage.

Yank Describes Pleas To 'Movielike' Nazi Major to Surrender

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES 9th ARMY, Germany, April 4.—It was just like a movie, with all sorts of salutes, heel-clicking and heil Hitlers, but the bemedaled Nazi commandant refused to surrender Duisburg to Second Lt. Christopher M. Gooch, jr., of Tennessee.

Lt. Gooch and two Doughboys of the 79th Division rowed across the Rhine-Herne Canal Monday after a "behind-the-hand" invitation from the Germans.

French Shortage of Food Not Due to Allied Armies

PARIS, April 4—(AP) France was told today by the French government and Supreme headquarters its food shortage was not due to the presence of Allied troops.

The government issued a formal denial to spike widespread reports that Allied troops were requisitioning food to the same extent the Germans did. Allied troops are taking only fruits, vegetables and alcoholic beverages and the French army is partly provisioned by Allied food, the statement said.

Simultaneously, Supreme headquarters issued a report on the vast program of Allied aid given France, pointing out that the American army in France has imported all but two per cent of its food and that this two per cent comes from articles classed by the French government as surplus.

The Supreme headquarters report said that up to March 1 the United

BRITISH CONTINUE ADVANCE IN NORTH

By WILLIAM FRYE

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, April 4—(AP) Spearheads of the British 11th Armored division have crossed the Weser river and plunged beyond against light opposition northeast of Osnabrueck.

The exact extent of their thrust cannot be disclosed for security reasons.

(A crossing of the important Weser river, "northeast" of Osnabrueck presumably would be somewhere on a 50-mile line between Minden and Bremen and would place the British little more than 30 miles from Hannover.)

An encouraging delegation met them, blindfolded them and took them before the German commandant, a snappy major.

Lt. Gooch told the German that Duisburg and the whole Ruhr were hopelessly encircled and he might as well surrender.

"We have no other choice but to fight on in the name of our fuehrer and the fatherland," the German said.

Aided by his interpreter, Joseph Enderp of New York, who was promoted from private to sergeant for the day's efforts, Lt. Gooch spent four hours arguing with the German major.

Among other things he asked the German if he knew what a bad situation his country was in, especially the Ruhr.

"I can tell you the name of every American outfit around us and where they are," the major responded and was equally stony to all persuasion.

Finally Lt. Gooch gave up and left along with Enderp and Pvt. William C. Andrews of Gallatan, Tenn.

Lt. Gooch had been authorized to accept the surrender of any Germans.

"They were agreeable enough at company and at battalion headquarters," he said, "but at the top this character who was right off a Hollywood set wouldn't play."

Lt. Gooch and his men said the Germans who had greeted them happily when they touched shore seemed sad when they left, possibly because this was the second time surrender had been rejected.

Most were from units overrun by the German Ardennes breakthrough which began last Dec. 16. All were privates except for a handful of officers. Most of the officers were moved from Bad Orb weeks ago. The noncoms were taken to Ziegenhain recently and liberated there last week by units of Lt. Gen. George Patton's Third army.

The hungry, hollow-cheeked Americans, many of them little more than skin and bones, said their prison diet had consisted of "grass soup," whose ingredients they described as dehydrated carrots, cabbage, and sticks and stones.

Two dozen white crosses marked the graves of Yanks who had died while held at Bad Orb.

Most Of V-Bombs Fell Short, Report

HOLDNESS

With Canadians in Holland, April 4 (AP) — Dutch citizens told Canadian troops who captured a V-bomb base at Huize Zelleuin, northeast Holaind, today that the Germans had boasted that these terroristic weapons would be launched on America soon from Japan and Holland.

But, the citizens added, in actual performance, 50 per cent of the V-1 bombs aimed at London and Allied bases on the Continent fell to the ground within a few miles of their launching sites, apparently as a result of mechanical defects.

These they said, rarely exploded, but bombs falling farther away exploded, damaging villages and killing many people.

Cleverly Camouflaged

The Canadians, driving toward the Zuider Zee, found their first V-1 depot site on a baronial estate between Hengelo and Ruurlo. The buzz bombs were secreted in hundreds of cleverly camouflaged sites along a secondary road leading to the estate, and from which civilians were barred. This depot fed launching sites just north of the Twente Canal in numerous woodlands.

One Hollander said that both V-1 and V-2 weapons were operating until last week.

"German V-bomb warfare was one of their closest guarded secrets," this informant said. "All movements were made during the night to escape detection by Allied aircraft and to hide the movements from members of the underground."

Many Freed Americans Too Weak From Hunger to Leave Bunks

By EDWARD D. BALL

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY IN GERMANY, April 4 — (AP) Some of the 3,400 American soldiers set free when U. S. Third Army troops broke into their prison camp near Bad Orb, northeast of Hanau, were removed to France today in C-47 transport planes which landed on a former German airfield east of the Rhine.

But many of the Americans were too weak from hunger and excitement to leave their bunks when the air evacuation began.

The captive doughboys — gaunt, emaciated and deliriously happy—had been imprisoned since the battle of the Belgian bulge. They were among 6,500 prisoners of virtually all nationalities at war with Germany, including a Russian general and his staff, who were crowded into the filthy, stinking barracks of a Stalag camp on a hill three miles outside of town.

Brutal Major Forced Germans To Hold Out at Aschaffenburg

By HOWARD COWAN,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ASCHAFFENBURG, April 4.—The die-hard Nazi garrison in this German barracks city on the banks of the Main River surrendered yesterday to the 45th Infantry Division of the American 7th Army after a fierce week-long battle in which both German civilians and soldiers fought the Americans.

Shortly after 9 a.m. the ruthless German Maj. von Lambert, who had hanged two of his officers in the streets of Aschaffenburg during the peak of the fighting, led his troops in a white-flag parade from the old four-towered castle in the heart of the city.

And here, in the flaming, smoking rubble heaps of a city that once had sheltered 40,000 Germans, the GIs found an answer to the oft-repeated question, "Why do these guys keep on fighting?"

It was not, as some had guessed, those 40,000 cases of cognac and liqueurs stored in a big German Army warehouse down by the Main River. The fancy potables had been stolen from the French and some of the cases still were labeled for New York importers.

It was not because of the German Army's supply dump, with its more than 1,000,000 food rations. The Germans kept on fighting after both these prizes had fallent into American hands.

APR 5 1945

Answer Is Found.

The real answer was found in the heart of the business district—at No. 5 Herstallstrasse, to be exact.

There in front of a wineshop hung the body of a young German lieutenant. His hands were tied, but he was not blindfolded. He swung from a rope twisted tightly around his neck, with the other end of the rope tied to a steel support for a sign.

Civilians said he was hanged on the orders of Von Lambert, who had dictated this text of a garishly painted placard tacked to the front of the wineshop:

"Cowards and traitors hang!

"Yesterday—An officer candidate from Alsace-Lorraine died a hero's death in destroying an enemy tank. He lives on.

"Today—Here hangs a coward in officer's garb because he betrayed the fuehrer and the people. He is dead forever."

Surrender Suggested.

The hanged officer had dared to suggest the prudence of surrender when the full fury of American dive-bombers and heavy artillery fell on the city.

German women who crowded before the body prevailed on some soldiers to cut it down.

All over town prisoners kept coming in by ones and twos. Pfc. Donald Garner of Denton, N. C., who took charge of two who wanted to surrender to me, said that by mistake he almost went to bed with one Monday night in a cellar but cleared out when the German complained there wasn't enough room for two sleepers.

"We took over a thousand prisoners yesterday by ourselves," said Maj. Gus Heilman of Charlottesville, Va., commanding the 2d Battalion of the 157th Regiment, "and we got another 250 today."

(Col. Walter P. O'Brien of 3133 Connecticut avenue N.W. is commanding officer of the 157th Regiment.)

"The German commandant said he hadn't surrendered sooner because he couldn't find a ladder long enough to run a white flag up on the castle," Maj. Heilman said.

Lt. Irvin Block of Cleveland said he and his platoon of 18 men had got into a fire fight in a barracks, with the Americans at one end of the building and the Germans barricaded in the other.

Girl Leads Surrender.

"There was a wounded German out in the yard near our end of the barracks," he said, "and a big blond German girl wearing a Red Cross came out of the German end of the building and asked if she could take care of him.

"We told her sure and asked if the others at the other end of the building wouldn't like to surrender.

"She started back to see, after asking us not to shoot, and in about five minutes she came out with a white flag leading 250 German soldiers. Besides that there was a cellar full of wounded, so we left her to stay and take care of them."

"A lot of the troops here were convalescent wounded in the first place," said Maj. Heilman, but this German major made them report to him for defense assignments anyway. One air force captain didn't show up and the major had him hanged."

In their defense here the Germans used two American M-4 tanks on which they had whitewashed Nazi crosses. American artillery knocked out one of them and a tank destroyer team destroyed the other.

Yanks Take Hideout Used by Hitler

WITH THE UNITED STATES 80th DIVISION IN GERMANY, April 4.—A mountain hideout of 1,000 air-conditioned rooms, where Hitler master-minded the conquest of France and Field Marshal von Rundstedt plotted his Ardennes offensive, has been captured by the Americans.

In a class with Berchtesgaden, the rock-hewn retreat called the Alderhorst is at Zandenhim, west of the famed resort center of Bad Nauheim. Hitler spent much of his time there in 1940, accompanied by other Nazi bigwigs. The latest high-ranking occupant was Field Marshal Kesselring, who succeeded Von Rundstedt as German Western Front commander.

The rooms and their 3-mile long connecting corridors were hewn from solid rock near the top of a mountain, on which rests the remains of the ancient Siegenhain Castle. Huge power-operated steel doors in innocent-looking log cabins barred the entrance to the retreat.

Hitler's quarters and those of other Nazi leaders were built around the rim of the underground city, giving them outside exposure and rustic terraces invisible from the air or the countryside below.

Eisenhower Gets Letters From All Over World

APR 5 1945

People Write for Autographs and Photos and Send Him Many Strange Presents.

By JULES B. GRAD,
Stars and Stripes Staff Writer for the Combined American Press.

The Supreme Commander's Headquarters, April 4 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower receives almost as many letters as Frank Sinatra. From every corner of the free world people write him for autographs and pictures.

One little boy asked for a "genuwine Tiger tank." Hundreds of letters pour into his headquarters every week, coming by airmail and V-mail.

Personal Attention.

Scores are rain-drenched and caked with mud from frontline troops in Germany; some are penny postcards; others are written on expensive linen stationery with engraved letterheads, but they all get the same personal attention. The Supreme Commander takes time off from the important job of running a war to answer each one, even if it means working an extra hour at night.

The General has many steady correspondents, such as Mary Louise Koehnen of 2441 Auburn avenue, Dayton, Ohio, who is one of his favorites. The little girl has been writing to him since 1942, when she made a strange request: "I read in the papers where we should adopt boys in the service. I would like to adopt you."

The General then was neck-deep in logistics. The invasion of Africa was almost set, but he took a few minutes off to write back that he was flattered. He asked his "adopted mother"—age 13—to keep writing. And so Mary wrote, first once a week, then twice weekly.

General Meets Major.

In one letter she told the General that her father was somewhere in the European theater. One February day, Major Koehnen walked into the Commander's office, Gen. Eisenhower later wrote Mary:

"Last week I met your father. He came into my headquarters and we had a nice chat. We talked a lot about you. Your father was in fine form and I am delighted that we met. I am afraid this must be a short note, as I haven't much time for myself these days."

As proud as a peacock, Mary wrote back about her school work and what she was doing in a civic salvage campaign.

Gen. Eisenhower decided that he would send autographs to any one in the armed forces who requested them, but only to civilians who were actively helping to win the war. A second lieutenant and a staff sergeant handle the mail by putting in nine-hour days, seven days a week.

Windfalls for Hospitals.

"Requests come mostly for autographs, SHAEF patches, pictures of the general and official letterheads," said Second Lieut. Kay Summersby, Gen. Eisenhower's secretary-aid. Some ask for the general's battle-jacket, a five-star cluster, his necktie, campaign ribbons and decorations (all three rows).

Former cop-and-robber youngsters who now play "Nazis-and-Americans," write for German souvenirs such as helmets, uniforms and Luger pistols, but the general replies that he cannot send such enemy material, because it's the property of the Government. The Supreme Commander, said Sergt. Sue Sarafian of Detroit, probably receives more gifts from well wishers than any general in the world.

A few weeks later hominy The packages usually contain cigars, cigarettes, gum, toothbrushes and paste and homemade gingerbread. All these articles except those of a personal nature, or from old friends, are turned over to hospitals for combat casualties.

Namesake in Egypt.

Mrs. Martha Selicki of Plainfield, N. J., regularly mails packages to the Supreme Commander, but they all go by special messenger to hospital wards with a note describing who sent it and her address.

One surprising present came from Egypt. A teacher at the Kishk secondary school, in Tefta, wrote that his latest son had been christened Dwight David Eisenhower Elashmawy.

Gen. Eisenhower still chuckles about his request for hominy. When Bing Crosbyvisited the Supreme Commander in Normandy last September, he asked the General if he'd like anything sent back from the States.

Torrents of Hominy.

"Golly, Bing," replied the General, "I sure would like some hominy for Christmas." When Crosby returned to Hollywood, he casually mentioned the request during a broadcast.

A few week a later hominy started raining—or whatever hominy does—on to Supreme Headquarters. It came in cigarette cartons and huge crates, in small paper boxes and wooden containers. The General and his worried staff looked around for a place to move SHAEF but the matter soon was remedied. The hospital patients never lacked hominy.

Another time the General's office started turning green. For some strange reason, people were sending him four-leaf clovers by the acre. Then there was the coin period, when a reporter noted that Gen. Eisenhower carried good-luck coins. A gold pocket piece even found its way here from an Armenian antique dealer in Mexico.

Kassel Factories Underground

KASSEL, Germany, April 4 (AP).—American doughboys slugging their way through Kassel house by house yesterday, were assigned to clean out vast underground tank and airplane factories which were still turning out their weapons though fighting was going on in the streets overhead.

modations. The Fourth Armored Division overran a huge underground airplane factory in woods two miles northeast of Gotha and found many bombers and fighters in various stages of construction.

It was reported that the homes of Goethe and Schiller were destroyed by aerial bombardment of Weimar, twenty-six miles east of Gotha.

FRANKFURT ON MAIN IS CITY OF RUBBLE

LOCHNER

Frankfurt-on-the-Main, April 4 (A. P.).—This former tourist center appears to be 80 per cent knocked out and travelers from all over the world will look in vain thereafter for some of its historic buildings. Three sights which have disappeared are the house where Germany's greatest poet, Goethe, was born in 1749 and lived throughout his youth; the home from which the Rothschild banking dynasty stemmed and St. Paul's Church, meeting place of the 1848 National Assembly which attempted vainly to set up a German republic.

The Goethe and Rothschild dwellings are unrecognizable rubble, as are whole streets, surrounding them. Of St. Paul's Protestant Church, only the walls remain. Even the cross which used to surmount the steeple hangs inverted, apparently ready to drop at any time.

The Roman Catholic Cathedral, the origins of which go back to 870 A.D., suffered heavy damage. Overgrown with grass, indicating that the bombings must have occurred at least a year ago, is the famed Roemerberg, literally the Romans' hill, a square where rejoicing crowds assembled whenever a new emperor was elected during the middle ages. He then showed himself to the multitude from the balcony of the city hall, as the fountain below began to spurt wine for everybody.

Of the city hall only the facade remains. Its sumptuous Kaisersaal (emperors' hall) has been burned out. Two other landmarks destroyed by bombings are the opera house and the palm garden, while all industry has been knocked out.

Plane and Tank Center of Kassel Taken; Gotha Falls to Americans Without a Shot

BALL — BA

WITH THE UNITED STATES THIRD ARMY, Germany, April 4 (AP)—Kassel fell late today, depriving the Germans of one of their great plane and tank manufacturing centers. The Fourth Armored Division also cleared out Gotha, while Suhl, twenty-two miles south of Gotha, also was cleared.

The last hours of the battle for Kassel were ones of utter confusion, in which German reinforcements assigned to their first combat rolled into the city right into the arms of the waiting Americans.

Gotha, on the northern slope of the Thuringian Forest, fell without a shot being fired. After an American ultimatum, white flags appeared in the famous German publishing, insurance and manufacturing city with a peacetime population of 48,000 only half an hour before Fourth Armored Division units commanded by Brig. Gen. William Koge of Lexington, Mo., were scheduled to attack.

The acting Buergermeister disclosed in an interview that the German High Command had arranged to transfer some of its officers from Berlin to Gotha and other places, but that the Americans' quick arrival had prevented them from ever using the Gotha accom-

Schuschnigg's Police Commissioner Is Freed

With U.S. 80th Division in Germany, April 4 (AP)—The 3d Army today liberated Dr. Michael Skubl, Austrian Secretary of Interior under Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Vienna police commissioner at the time of the 1938 Anschluss.

Dr. Skubl was found in the little town of Holzhausen, 8 miles south of Kassel. He said he was transferred in May, 1938, from Vienna to Kassel, where he was held under arrest until October, 1944, when he was permitted to go to Holzhausen.

Dr. Skubl said he did not know what had happened to Schuschnigg.

AIR-RAID NERVES FELL 400 GERMANS

With the United States Seventh Army, April 4 (A. P.).—Four more hospitals containing American and Allied patients were overrun in Wiesloch south of Heidelberg today and the patients were liberated. The hospitals included one of 1,500 beds which housed 400 German civilians suffering nervous disorders as a result of the repeated air raids on Mannheim.

A Russian major-general and his staff were found among the 6,538 Allied prisoners liberated yesterday by American cavalry which captured a prisoner of war camp at Bad Orb, southwest of Fulda.

Captured Nazi General Voices Hate for Hitler

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE 4th ARMORED DIVISION IN GERMANY, April 2 (Delayed).—Brig. Gen. Paul Steinbach, former German military commander of two Italian provinces, was captured today and immediately professed hatred for Hitler.

Eighth Regiment infantrymen caught him in a German hospital where he was recuperating after an operation.

"I sympathize with those who have made attempts on Hitler's life," he said. "It would be better for Germany if they succeeded."

Nazis Battle To Hold Communications Link

With Canadian Troops in Holland, April 4 (AP)—The Germans in Holland are fighting desperately against advancing Canadian and British troops to hold open a communications system the Dutch themselves have refused to touch since last September.

The Nazis have had to man the roads with their own personnel and locomotives since Queen Wilhelmina issued her appeal for all Dutch railroad employés to strike against the Germans.

Red General and Staff Freed

WITH UNITED STATES 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, April 4 (AP).—A Russian major general and his staff were found among 6,538 Allied prisoners liberated yesterday by 2d Cavalry ground forces which captured a prisoner-of-war camp at Bad Orb.

EIGHTH ARMY GAINS NEW ITALIAN GOAL

HEWITT-ERLING

Allied Air Force Knocking Increasing Number of Nazi Transports.

ROME, April 4—(AP) Eighth Army troops of Lt. Gen. Sir Richard L. McCreery had a firm new anchor for the eastern flank of their Italian line today as a result of the lineup of units which landed on both sides of the narrow spit of land separating shallow Valli di Comachio lagoon from the Adriatic.

McCreery's troops had mopped up almost all the area south of the canal which connects the lagoon and the Po di Primaro river, and engineers were cleaning out the minefields in this marshy ground. At a road junction south of Smarlacca, the Germans had to be dug out of a series of fortified houses and other strongpoints.

On the rest of the front even the customary patrol actions were lighter than usual, though there was increased German artillery fire in some sectors.

The Allied Air Forces were bagging a mounting toll of German transport as the enemy pulled out of Yugoslavia in the face of frontal attack by Marshal Tito's forces and the danger of having his line of escape cut off by the advancing Russians.

The Air force described its work as a "strangle operation" in the Austrian-Yugoslav border region.

Jack Foisie of San Francisco, Stars and Stripes reporter who made one of the landings on the Valli di Commachio with the Eighth Army troops, described the lagoon as a mere wading pond and said that "the amphibious attack threatened not to be amphibious at all—the men were forced to get out and push their craft through the silt and slime."

SWISS GUARD BORDER

ROME, April 4 — (AP) Swiss charge d'affaires Pierre de Salis said today "additional precautions" to guard the Swiss-Italian frontier had been taken during the past two weeks to prevent anyone's crossing the border "by force."

FOE FLEES YUGOSLAVIA

Rome, April 4. (A. P.)—German columns are struggling to escape from nothern Yugoslavia before the Russians close the back door into Austria, and the Allied air force in Italy is destroying more enemy transport than at any time since the drive north from Rome a year ago.

In the last two days alone Mustangs and Thunderbolts have destroyed 200 motor transports and seventy horse-drawn vehicles and damaged 350 motor vehicle and fifty-three locomotives serving Nazi units which had held out against Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans.

A train and most of its load of motor transport were wrecked yesterday and a few miles southeast of Dravaigrad under bombing and strafing by two formations of Thunderbolts.

PRAVDA DECLARES REDS BEAT NAZIS

Moscow, April 4 (A. P.).—Saying "there is no room for jealousy here," a Pravda article by Ilya Ehrenburg declared today the "fate of Germany was decided not on the Niemen or the Rhine, but on the Volga."

"The Germans are surrendering wholesale to the Americans," Ehrenburg wrote. "Probably the Fritzies think that, as they have not visited America, the inhabitants of the State of Nevada will receive them with more hospitality than the inhabitants of Belo (White) Russia."

The writer declared that "I sincerely admire the military operations of our allies" and "surely before being able to rush through Westphalia, Hessen and Bavaria they had to break through the enemy defenses.

"I only want to recall, in these days of dazzling harvest, other stern days and sowers of victory," he added. "Our English friends who went through Dunkirk realize what an army marched on Russia in the summer of 1941. We turned the conquerors of Narvik and Crete into those whining Fritzies who implore by telephone 'please do not shoot.'

"Why do the tankmen of the First or Third American armies meet with no opposition? Where are the Germans who should be defending Darmstadt, Mannheim and Frankfurt?

"They are in Russian soil. Our Allies occupy German towns and see there women, old men and children. The young men are decaying between the Volga and the Vistula."

Lehman's Kin Freed by Reds

MOSCOW, April 4 (AP).—Captain Richard M. Rossbach, a nephew of former Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York, left by plane for the United States today. He had been liberated by Russian troops from a German war prisoner camp in Poland.

NAZIS FLEE BY AIR

Stockholm, April 4 (A. P.).—The newspaper Expressen said today that three German planes, all of the Fiesler Storch type used by the Nazis for reconnaissance, landed with refugees last night at Ystad, on the southern tip of Sweden. There was no question of mistaken navigation and all the pilots surrendered "willingly" to authorities, the paper said.

The Swedish Minister of Justice declared yesterday that all unwanted German subjects will be denied entry by Sweden, said today in a broadcast received here by NBC.

Plane Attacks Swedish Train

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 4 (AP)—A Swedish freight train was reported attacked by "a foreign plane" early today near Skee about ten miles from the Norwegian border. The plane fired a single burst from a machine gun, slightly wounding the fireman.

German Planes Barred by Spain

Madrid, April 4 (A. P.).—German commercial planes have been forbidden to land in Spain, effective immediately, thus severing Germany's last authorized transportation link with this neutral country, German quarters said. German Lufthansa transports had been maintaining nightly service between Berlin and Madrid.

Pillage Of Cargoes Reported Tremendous

Sydney, Australia, April 4 (AP)—Shipping company executives report a sudden and tremendous increase in claims for pillage of cargoes recently consigned from New York.

One official said today when cargoes for the armed services accumulated at one point like New York it resulted in much congestion.

Not a single ship has arrived at Sydney from anywhere overseas in the last few months and discharged its cargo intact, he said. Claims for shortages range from a few pound to thousands.

YANKS GO ASHORE ON MASBATE ISLE

MacArthur Declares Blockade of Jap Life Line Now Complete.

By JAMES HUTCHESON

MANILA, Thursday, April 5. — (AP) Masbate island in the Central Philippines was invaded by Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's veteran 40th Infantry division Tuesday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today in a communique which proclaimed the American blockade of Japanese shipping "in complete operation."

MacArthur also reported that escorted heavy bombers scored their first concerted strike on the great shipping base at Hongkong, hitting the Kowloon and Taikoo dock areas with 126 tons of bombs. Innumerable fires and explosions dotted the target. Not a plane was lost.

Twenty-eight Japanese vessels, including a destroyer-escort, were sunk or damaged in the China sea and waters to the south.

MacArthur said the Eighth army Yanks invading Masbate, fairly large sugar island just west of Samar, on the main shipping lane through the central Philippines, were aided by guerrilla forces, and added:

"We are rapidly securing the entire island."

Masbate is the 36th Philippine island invaded.

MacArthur, in a lengthy summary of operations in his theater, said that Monday's seizure of Tawitawi harbor at the southern end of the Sulu archipelago "severs the so-called empire lifeline to the East Indies," cutting off Japan's shipping from her conquered holdings.

He said the blockade already had sunk many hundreds of thousands of tons of enemy shipping "and now with the acquisition of the Tawitawi base, is in complete operation."

MacArthur declared the entire Dutch East Indies now are isolated from Japan "not only for exploitation, but from enemy reinforcement and supply."

American forces control more than 1,000 miles from the northern end of Luzon to the southern tip of the Sulu archipelago with the seizure of strategic Tawitawi and the establishment of blockading airfields, General MacArthur announced in his communique today.

Summarizing the effectiveness of the campaign which in less than six months has brought recapture of the greater portion of the Philippines the communique said:

"Already our blockade has sunk many hundreds of thousands of tons of enemy shipping and with the acquisition of the Tawitawi base (blockade) it is now in complete operation."

Pointing out the difficulties Japan is encountering in shipping oil, rubber or other essentials from the southwest Pacific to the mainland past the chain of Allied air bastions, MacArthur said:

"The Dutch East Indies are now isolated not only for exploitation but from enemy reinforcements and supply. It is the culmination of one phase of the campaign."

While 40th division troops were taking Masbate other Eighth army forces captured the Japanese airbase of Silay on Negros while enemy foothill positions on Cebu near Cebu City were being reduced.

On the tail of Luzon, Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th regimental combat team moving northward on the Bicol peninsula destroyed an enemy garrison at Daraga and thrust forward along the main highway.

Far to the north, on Luzon, 32nd division troops scored a ten-mile advance northeast from Rosario in the rugged Caraballo mountains.

Borneo Menaced

The black gold of Borneo—oil—and the island's crude rubber production were brought within the American sphere of operations Monday when Gen. Douglas MacArthur sent veteran troops of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st "Sunset" division on a 200-mile amphibious invasion to within 30 miles of British North Borneo. The invasion armada sailed from Zamboanga, on southwestern Mindanao island.

The Yanks suffered little loss as they seized the important Japanese naval base at Tawitawi, on the southwestern end of the Sulu archipelago of the Philippines. The Doughboys, aided by guerrillas, took the two nearby islands of Sangasanga and Bongao and their airfields.

Borneo, the world's second largest island—306,906 square miles—, was seized by the Japanese in the early months of the Pacific war. Its northern and northwestern areas were under the British flag before the war. The remainder was under the Dutch flag.

Sunset division soldiers of the Eighth army quickly seized the big naval base, harbor and the adjoining islands after warships of the Seventh fleet blasted the region in coordination with plane attacks.

Yanks Take Tawitawi, Japs' Base in Sulus, 30 Miles Off Borneo

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, April 4.—Borneo and its great petroleum and rubber resources lay only 30 miles south of jungle-wise veterans of the American 8th Army today. They won strategic control of the Japanese naval base of Tawitawi at the southern tip of the Sulu Archipelago with hardly a fight Monday.

Elements of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st (Sunset) Division, aided by guerrillas, also captured two airfields on Sangasanga Island and took possession of neighboring Bongao Island with virtually no opposition, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

Warships of the 7th Fleet, boldly coursing through waters which once provided the Japanese with a major fleet anchorage and refueling depot, laid down a heavy bombardment before the landing, while Navy planes provided close support to the landing force.

Jap Position Jeopardized.

The daring thrust carried invading Doughboys 200 miles southwest of Mindanao. Gen. MacArthur said the strike "seriously jeopardizes the enemy's main position in the Sulu Archipelago at Jolo."

American losses were reported as small.

Gen. Doe's infantrymen, veterans of Biak, Wakde, New Guinea and the rapid-moving Zamboanga campaign, lost no time in taking possession of the Sanga Sanga airfields. One runway was 4,000 feet long, suitable for fighter planes and transports.

On Luzon, 14th Corps troops cleaning out the southern part of the island captured San Pablo, provincial capital of Laguna and rich coconut trading and processing center.

With San Pablo's capture only two large Philippine cities remain in Japanese hands—Bavao on Eastern Mindanao and Baguio in North Luzon.

The 158th Regimental Combat Team, which landed at Legaspi on Bicol Peninsula Sunday, pushed patrols 15 miles north and 21 miles northwest in two concentric movements. Some machinegun and rifle fire was encountered in cleaning out a band of Japs southwest of Legaspi town.

Mopping Up Continues.

Throughout the Visayas American invasion forces were rapidly mopping up the enemy. On Cebu troops of the American division destroyed 58 pillboxes in high ground near Lahog airdrome. Gen. MacArthur claimed control of all of the island except the foothills northwest of Cebu city. Likewise all of Negros Island was claimed except the northwestern tip from Silay to Fabrica and the isolated port town of Dumaguete on the southeast coast.

The island of Panay practically was cleared of the enemy, Gen. MacArthur reported.

Fifth Air Force bombers attacking Formosa's eastern coast pounded three airdromes, hitting fuel dumps and destroying some parked planes. Fighter bombers belabored railroads, factories and power plants. Navy search planes destroyed or damaged three small freighters and a river boat in the China Sea.

Navy patrol bombers bombed and left dead in the water a Japanese destroyer escort off Southwest Formosa and sank a 10,000-ton tanker off Hong Kong. The 13th Air Force smashed anew at Borneo airfield and fired a 7,000-ton freighter in Brunei Bay.

COOK JOINS NAVY JOCKEYS HIGGINS BOAT IN ATTACK

OKINAWA, April 4—(AP) Coxswain Simon William Taukus is 38 years old. He has been in the navy 15 months. He has been to Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Saipan, Guam and Eniwetok and now he is on Okinawa.

"What did you do before you got in the navy?" I asked Simon as he jockeyed his pitching, bucking Higgins boat through a heavy sea.

"I was a cook," declared Simon with vehemence. "I've been a cook for years. I'm a damn good cook and I belong to local 325 of the Cooks and Countermen's Union

"When I join the navy they offer me a cook's job but tell me I have to go to school to learn how to cook.

"I say to hell with that stuff—I'm already a damn good cook and besides I'm too old to go to school—me go to school—can you imagine it?

"And besides, I say let's forget cooking in this war. I want to see some action. Oh brother, what action I'm seeing! All day long and half the night I slam this bathtub around—transport to beach—beach to battleship—battleship to can (destroyer)—can to beach—beach to someplace all day long and half the night. I tell you I'm going nuts.

"They tell me I'm going to see plenty of action what with Jap planes and one thing and another. All I see is two lousy Jap planes—watta war.

"Somebody asks me when I sleep. Sleep? That's laugh. I don't get no sleep."

I timidly enquired "what do you think of the Dodgers" and Simon tells me—

"Them bums—them Dodgers—watta team." He beamed.

"Oh by the way, what is your home address?" I asked.

Simon tells me—"292 Hinsdale street where I gotta wife and a couple of kids and better I should be there."

Even before I asked him I put down Brooklyn as his home town. Every place I go its Brooklyn, always Brooklyn, them characters from Brooklyn.

Army Opens Post Office On Island Of Okinawa

Okinawa, April 4 (AP)—The No. 1 morale item among combat troops—mail from home—already is coming to men of the 7th Division in the wheat, cane and vegetable fields of Okinawa. The division claims the first post office established on the Yank-invaded island.

Lieut. Robert Leiss, Lebanon, Pa., division headquarters postal officer, and members of his staff are handing out mail today from a tent pitched amid the crack and roar of big guns in the distance. Leiss had a letter himself—from his brother, Walter, of Lebanon High School. It was airmailed March 12.

"We have two bags of mail for the 17th Infantry and a half bag for the 32d," said Leiss. "We were the first post office on Leyte and also the first on Kwajelein—though I read later that an army ground force which got in three weeks later claimed the first."

Foe Harried From Ryukus

Submarine Sunk, 6 U. S. Flyers Saved by Planes from Keramas

A UNITED STATES SEAPLANE BASE, Kerama Islands, Ruykyus, April 2 (Delayed) (AP).—Establishment of this advance seaplane base in the Ryukyu Islands paid dividends before the invasion of Okinawa, and the returns are increasing rapidly.

The first week's score for the Kerama seaplane base shows a large Japanese submarine and a small cargo vessel sunk, a larger vessel damaged and si xairmen rescued from death or capture.

The base is in full-scale operation, covering daily an area equal to two-thirds that of the United Statss.

Bicol Japs Hold Out

With 158th Regimental Combat Team, Legaspi, Luzon, April 3 [AP—Delayed]—Japanese mortars and rockets in the hills of the Bicol peninsula have prevented American use of captured airfields so far, but Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's doughboys gradually are clearing Japanese from wooded slopes of this "Little Bataan" on the southeastern tip of Luzon.

Enemy guns make the highway between Legaspi and Daraga perilous, but they have not stopped traffic.

So far, the fighting in this area has been on a small scale, with only 61 Japanese dead counted since the American landing at Legaspi April 1.

JAP OPPOSITION IS STILL MEAGER IN OKINAWA PUSH

Lt. Gen. Buckner's Army Makes Sensational Gains on Island.

APR 5 1945

PENINSULA OVERRUN

Japanese Civilians Giving Up by Droves as Advance Continues.

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

GUAM, Thursday, April 5—(AP) Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner's veteran Tenth army forces swept forward in sensational new gains over Okinawa yesterday and by nightfall of the fourth day of the virtually unopposed invasion had about 80 square miles—or one-sixth of the island—under their control.

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine amphibious corps on the north flank advanced quickly to a point 3,000 to 4,000 yards north of Ishikawa and threw a defense line across the neck of Okinawa's narrowest isthmus.

This section could be defended comparatively easy by the 60,000 or more Japanese troops on the island, only 325 miles south of Japan itself, but there still was no report of an engagement in force.

On the south Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce's 77th infantry division, with other units, pushed forward against virtually negligible resistance and held a line between Uchi Tomari on the west coast, Kamiyama in the center and Nakgusuku on the east coast.

Control Harbor

The Katchin peninsula on the east coast was overrun by the Marines. This gave the Yanks control of the entire eastern shoreline of Nakagusuku harbor, former Japanese fleet anchorage which soon may be put to American use.

Troops moving down the west coast were within approximately two miles of the Machinato airfield and four miles from Naha, capital city of Okinawa anl largest in the Ryukyus with a population of 66,000. They were about four miles from another airstrip, Yonbaru, which is incompleted.

Gains from two to four miles were registered in all sectors, and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communque today said the enemy still "offered scattered resistance to the advance of all troops."

The Yanks were many days ahead of schedule.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported that towns, villages and military objectives had been reduced to rubble. Airmen were complaining they were unable to find suitable targets.

Japanese civilians were giving themselves up in droves.

A carrier task force under Rear Adm. Frederick C. Sherman, attacked Ryukyu tarkets just north of Okinawa on Tuesday, inflicting heavy damage.

The American line now measures about 15 miles from north to south. The southern end projects into Japanese pillbox positions only four miles from the capital city of Naha, largest in the Ryukyus, and its large airdrome adjacent.

The first indications of opposition were found along a west coastal road above Naha. Japanese artillery fire and land mines slowed the 77th infantry advance, but the enemy withdrew under answering Yank field guns.

A small force of enemy planes raided American positions yesterday. Four were shot down.

An American carrier task force attacked aircraft and installations in the Amami group of the southern Ryukus on Tuesday, destroying or damaging 56 enemy planes and sinking or damaging 28 small ships. Fuel dumps and buildings were left ablaze.

Aerial reconnaissance warned the 7t7h infantry division moving down the west coast and the Seventh on the east coast of a line of enemy trenches and pillboxes protecting Naha and the Machinato and Yonabaru airfields.

But the scattered and ineffectual Japanese defense since the U. S. 10th army of Doughboy and Marine divisions landed on Okinawa Sunday has enabled the Americans to exceed their invasion schedule and pile up supplies and ammunition ashore to meet expected stiffening enemy resistance.

"The critical period of landing men and supplies is over," said Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., commanding general of the 10th army. "Army, Navy and Marine elements all functioned like clockwork."

While the 24th Army corps units push southward toward Naha, elements of the Third Marine amphibious corps on the northern edge of the widening American corridor across the island are thrusting north.

"We are out of the woods now," said Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, commander of the Marine force. His leathernecks captured 700-foot high Yontanzan hill from Japanese who employed only a small arms fire defense.

Clean Out Caves

The Marines cleaned minor groups of Japanese from caves as they progressed to the east coast near Ketchin peninsula.

The only important Japanese resistance early in the invasion of Okinawa, 325 miles from southern Japan, was staged in the interior by a force of about battalion strength, said Vern Haughland, Associated Press correspondent. Troops of the 24th Army corps cleaned up this pocket.

Brig. Gen. Smith Is Confident Of Continued Jap Stupidity

By FRED HAMPSON

ADVANCED PHILIPPINES AIRBASE, March 31—(Delayed)—(AP) "I have complete confidence in the stupidity of the Japanese."

That was Brig. Gen. Frederic Smith's reply when he was asked his opinion on Nippon's ability to bolster her toppling air force for the final American assault on Japan proper.

The youthful commander of the Fifth Air force fighters does not think the Japanese have either brains or ability to stage a comeback in the air.

"They have lost their potential to train personnel in the numbers needed, to build up the necessary reserve of aircraft, to fight off destruction of their aircraft factories," said Smith, a Virginia regular army man and a veteran of aerial combat in the P-51 Mustang.

"They never were very good and they're getting worse fast. When it comes to aircraft — production, organization, combat—the pace out here has been too fast for them since the tide of the war turned."

American aerial fighting tactics haven't changed much but due to lessening opposition, the high-powered fighter planes have gradually been turned to new duty—mostly close support of infantry. The "softening up" process of Corregidor ranks with the great air jobs of the Pacific, Smith thinks. In that campaign the fighter planes—with no Jap planes to shoot down—learned to launch bombs into cliff face tunnels without ramming themselves into the cliff. They also skip-bombed cliff caves with the fearsome firebombs.

There will be more Zeros from time to time and the fighters will occasionally return to their old-time job, he predicted, but he doubts that the Japanese ever again will be able to fight as furiously aloft as they did at Rabaul, Truk, Wewak or even Leyte.

"The pilots and ground crews they need are either dead or isolated back in the Gilberts, Marshalls, Carolines, Solomons and New Guinea," he said.

Smith, although a fighter pilot himself with the viewpoint of the man at the controls, hesitates to endorse the unofficial system of designating five-plane men as aces.

"It's all right, probably a valuable stimulant, up to a point, but it results in too much emphasis on the high scorers. When a man gets 18 or 20 kills he gets record conscious, abandons caution, accepts combat under unfavorable conditions, flies too many missions. The aces provoke the imagination and serve to dramatize the air war—but actually air battles have been and always will be won by the best teams. It's the squadron and group scores that really reflect true quality."

Twin American Drives Race Toward Naha, Okinawa Capital

First Major Jap Resistance Expected As Planes Spot Elaborate Defenses

By the Associated Press.

GUAM, April 4.—Twin American drives today moved swiftly southward toward Naha, capital of Okinawa, and possibly the first major resistance by the Japanese defenders since the Yanks landed four days ago.

Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent aboard Vice Admiral Richmond K. Turner's flagship off Okinawa, said air observers reported occasional bursts of Japanese fire as well as signs of an elaborate trench system bustling with activity across the southern end of the island near Naha.

He wrote that the possible defense line ran north of Machinato airstrip, 5 miles north of Naha and Tonabaru strip, 6 miles east of the capital.

Although the Yanks believe the Japanese fight still is to be faced, Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, jr., commander of the 10th Army said, "the crucial period of landing men and supplies is over * * * even without opposition an operation this complicated could have broken down."

Another Associated Press correspondent, James Lindsley, in the field on Okinawa with the Marine [illegible] Amphibious Corps, quoted Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, Marine commander, as saying the Okinawa operation developed so rapidly that a complete change of plans had to be made.

Naha, largest city in the Ryukyu chain with a population of 66,000, was only 6 miles from forward elements of the 77th Infantry Division moving down the west coast. Naha Airdrome is the best in the archipelago.

The advance was so swift and the situation so fluid that headquarters officers were unable to plot positions accurately on their maps. Scores of little towns were overrun in yesterday's sweeping advances all along the line, announced today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. The Yanks have overrun about 40 square miles.

A strong force of Gen. Geiger's Marines drove another wedge across the strategic island, 325 miles south of Japan itself, by reaching the east coast at the Katchin Peninsula, which was cut off.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's 7th Division Doughboys, who first bisected the island Monday, moved 8 miles down the shores of Nakagusuku Bay—one time Japanese fleet anchorage—to Kuba town.

"Resistance throughout the day was negligible," Admiral Nimitz reported.

This easiest major invasion of the Pacific war was progressing "far better than our wildest dreams," the 24th Corps commander, Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge, told Associated Press Correspondent Robbin Coons. He said the Japanese made the Yanks a present of South-Central Okinawa and "we are pleased to have it."

Opposition Confused.

The invasion was many days ahead of schedule. Opposition was confused because of the lightning speed of the American advance, but field officers said it was too good to last.

Observers expected that heavy fighting would begin, perhaps tomorrow, when the Japanese—there are an estimated 60,000 or more on the island—may be able to launch a counterattack.

The heaviest resistance offered yet was in the northern sector, where the 3d Marine Amphibious Corps met small-arms fire on the slopes of Yontanzan, a 700-foot height they seized in their drive to the east coast. Marine casualties were light.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson reported from Okinawa that Gen. Buckner's 10th Army "can strike with fierce weight of artillery at any position where the Japanese choose to make their first real defensive stand."

Holding Stand Expected.

He said the Japanese "soon can be expected to try a holding stand or strike with a counterattack against the fluid American front lines. The Japanese could mount a strong counterattack and might achieve a troublesome break-through."

The Okinawa Japanese commander so far has succeeded fairly well in concealing where he has concentrated his major troop strength.

Refugee centers have been established on Okinawa and Japanese civilians are pouring in by the hundreds. First fright vanishes when they receive food and treatment they say is much kinder than that they received from Japanese rulers.

Today's communique mentioned Gen. Arnold's 7th Division for the first time in the Okinawa campaign. This veteran outfit of battles from the Aleutians to the Philippines was in the bloody Leyte campaign with Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce's 77th (New York's Own), which also is on Okinawa. Gen. Arnold is an artillery specialist.

17 Jap Planes Downed.

Admiral Nimitz reported that Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier planes in sweeps of the Ryukyus last Friday and Saturday had poor hunting—testifying to the effectiveness of their earlier attacks.

They shot down 17 planes, destroyed 5 more on the ground and damaged 19. They were able to find and put out of action 38 small ships ranging from cargo vessels to luggers. Six submarine pens at Unten Bay on Okinawa were destroyed as well as barracks, bridges and military installations on the island.

Tokyo, meantime, revised upward its claims of damage inflicted on the 1,400-ship American invasion armada off Okinawa, claiming, totally without Allied confirmation, that 177 ships had been sunk or damaged by surface and air units. The Japanese box score yesterday claimed 146 ships.

Latest B-29 Raid Hit Plane Output

Guam, April 4 (AP)—Japanese aircraft production in the Tokyo area was hit by some 300 Superfortresses from the Marianas today (Tuesday, United States time) in a low-level demolition raid that left a smoke plume rising thousands of feet above one target area.

One plane was missing, the 20th Air Force announced in Washington, from the triple-threat foray that encountered but slight fighter plane opposition and moderate ground fire.

Targets were the Shizuoka aircraft plant at Shizuoka, 85 miles north of Tokyo; the Nakajima plant at Koizuma, 20 miles north of the capital, and the Tachikawa aircraft works at Tachikawa, 20 miles west of Tokyo. The smoke column was reported in the latter area.

Heavy clouds, obscuring the targets, made instrument bombing necessary.

Radio Tokyo admitted fires were set in some areas, said they were extinguished immediately and claimed three Superfortresses were shot down over the Tokyo Bay area.

300 Super Forts Hit Tokyo and Nearby Targets on Honshu

By the Associated Press.

GUAM, April 4.—Tokyo and surrounding areas were hammered today by more than 300 Super Fortresses in the first three-way demolition raid on the island of Honshu.

Specific objectives were not identified, although headquarters of the 21st Bomber Command said that in addition to Tokyo, Shizuoka, 85 miles south of the capital city; Tachikawa, 20 miles west, and Koizumi, 20 miles north, were in target areas.

Returning crewmen who raided Shizuoka said they encountered no flak and no fighter opposition.

Bombing was done by instrument since a thick cloud layer obscured targets. Some of the raiders went down for low-level strafing attacks.

The Tokyo radio claimed three Super Forts were shot down over the Tokyo Bay area, but this was not confirmed. The enemy admitted fires had been set in the Tokyo-Yokohama area and in sections north of Tokyo, but asserted concerted action extinguished them immediately.

Chinese Report Successes

CHUNGKING, April 4 (AP).—Fresh successes against a Japanese force estimated at 80,000 troops in southwestern Honan and northern Hupeh Provinces were reported today by the Chinese high command. In Honan a Chinese counter-attack regained the town of Sichwan and killed 800 Japanese. The enemy had captured Sichwan Monday.

Thirty miles southeast of Laohokow, former American air base in Hupeh, the Chinese attacked the enemy-held town of Siangyang, on the Han River, Monday. Three Japanese strongpoints were taken and more than 200 troops killed and wounded, the Chinese report said.

Don Bell in Chungking After Crash Off China

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, April 4.—Don Bell, Mutual Broadcasting System correspondent, arrived here yesterday after surviving the crash of a Philippines-based United States naval patrol bomber shot down by the Japanese off the China coast.

Mr. Bell, once interned in the Philippines by the Japanese, was traveling with a patrol and bombing mission when Japanese shellfire struck the ship. It crashed in flames into the China Sea. Six of the crew disappeared, but the other six and Mr. Bell reached safety, paddling ashore under fire in a rubber boat.

Shanghai Raids Toll 32.

Chungking, April 4 (A. P.).—Headquarters of the United States Forces in the China theater said today that results of the Fourteenth Air Force raids on Shanghai airdromes April 1 and 2 were incorrectly announced "due to errors in transmission from forward bases," and that Japanese planes destroyed totaled 32, not 92.

CHINESE TAKE TOWN

Chungking, April 4 (A. P.).—A strong Chinese bid to check further Japanese advances in Honan province was indicated last night by the High Command, which said counter-attacking Chinese troops had captured the highway town of Iyang, forty miles south of Loyang on the Lunghai railway. The Chinese were striking at several strategic points in Honan, including Lushan, one of the main enemy bases in the province.

NAVY IS BIDING TIME, JAP SAYS

Waits Hour For 'Decisive Battle,' Admiral Reports

San Francisco, April 4 (AP)—The Japanese Navy is awaiting the "true time for a decisive battle," a high Nipponese naval officer said today in cautioning his countrymen against "impatience" over American-British sea force action in Japan's home waters.

Tokyo radio, however, in a broadcast heard by the FCC, added to Nipponese impatience with a report that a big British naval force had passed through the Red Sea to mass strength in the Indian Ocean for amphibious operations against South Burma, Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies.

Impatience Brings Defeat

"Impatience will bring defeat," warned Vice Admiral Eijiro Kondo, retired Nipponese naval officer, in a home radio talk.

"There may be some people who will ask, 'what is the navy doing?' I would like for you to place your confidence in the bosom of the Navy Minister and wait for the true time for a decisive battle."

This appeal for "patience" and threat of a "decisive battle" at the time of the Japanese Navy's choosing has been broadcast before from Tokyo—when Americans invaded Luzon, in the Philippines, and Iwo Jima, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

But the enemy fleet remained at home. It has not yet appeared to challenge the American and British naval operations which began March 23 in support of last Sunday's Yank invasion of Okinawa, only 325 miles southwest of the Nipponese homeland.

Tokyo Admits Crossing

Tokyo also broadcast an imperial headquarters communiqué admission that the Americans on Okinawa had cut across the island to Awashi on the east coast. This and other successful penetrations to Okinawa's eastern shore were reported in a United States communiqué yesterday.

The Japanese radio, without American confirmation, added to the Nipponese claims of United States ships sunk or damaged off Okinawa. The enemy's latest report said thirteen more vessels were sunk or hit.

The enemy broadcasters also spoke of huge Allied convoys off Okinawa "ominously lying in wait to launch sudden landing operations."

Foe's Plane Losses 32, Not 92

CHUNGKING, April 4 (AP).—Headquarters of the United States forces in the China theater said today that results of the 14th Air Force raids on Shanghai airdromes on April 1 and 2 were incorrectly announced, "due to errors in transmission from Forward bases," and that Japanese planes destroyed totaled thirty-two, not ninety-two.

Big British Fleet Moving To Orient, Japs Say

By the Associated Press.

The Tokyo radio said today a huge force of British ships had passed through the Red Sea "to mass their naval strength in the Indian Ocean" in preparation for amphibious operations against Southern Burma, Malaya and the Netherland Indies.

Quoting a military commentator of the Japanese Domei agency, the English-language broadcast declared:

"With this fleet Britain intends primarily to invade the Irrawaddy delta (in Burma) from land and sea and force a coastal operation from Burma to Southern Thailand; secondly, to attack the Andaman and Nicobar Islands as a prelude to a landing on Malaya and Sumatra; thirdly, to land on the vast area of Northern Malaya to Southern Thailand, and, lastly, to invade Sumatra."

Bread From Sawdust Recommended By Nips

San Francisco, April 4 (AP)—Japan's Domei News Agency came forth today with a recipe for "delicious bread" made from sawdust—any kind of sawdust will do, although red pine "has 100 per cent nutrition value and is rich in hormones."

The broadcast said sawdust first must be placed in the sun for two or three days until it becomes crumbly.

Then it should be ground into a powder and "steamed or boiled" before it is made into bread.

Japs Admit Bisection.

San Francisco, April 4 (A. P.).—Japanese Imperial Headquarters admitted today that American forces have cut Okinawa in two. A communique, broadcast to occupied Asia and recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission, acknowledged that American troops had reached Okinawa's eastern coast south of Awashi.

In the meantime, Tokyo revised upward its claims of damage inflicted upon the 1,400-ship American invasion armada off Okinawa, claiming, totally without Allied confirmation, that 177 ships had been sunk or damaged by surface and air units. The Japanese box score yesterday claimed 146 ships.

Then it should be ground into a powder and "steamed or boiled" before it is made into bread.

WEST BURMA PORT SEIZED

British In Arakan Drive South Into Taungup

Calcutta, April 4 (AP)—A security blackout was lifted today from British operations in the Arakan sector of Burma with the announcement that an amphibious force which landed in the vicinity of Letpan March 13 now has driven south to enter Taungup, the main Japanese supply port for the west Burma coastal area.

Taungup is 125 miles down the coast from Akyab, 65 miles airline west of Prome, and only 195 miles northwest of Rangoon.

Helped By Air Support

The British landing at Letpan was opposed by infantry, but close air support helped eliminate Jap strong points and the push southward became a rout as the enemy commanders strived desperately to withdraw their forces eastward toward Prome. They are believed to have salvaged only a minimum of heavy equipment, for the Allied air forces had strafing patrols constantly over the Taungup-Prome road.

Entry of British troops into Taungup capped a successful coastal campaign which began last November with the capture of Buthidaung.

Lull In Central Burma

In central and northeast Burma, where the Japanese suffered their worst defeat in this entire sector, there was a lull in the ground fighting. Enemy survivors were trying to escape in straggling, disorganized bands and the Allied forces were regrouping to tackle enemy forces south and east of the Irrawaddy bend.

Direct and long-range air support continued in its usual pattern. In latest operations P-51's of the 2d Air Command shot up airfield installations in lower Burma.

Calcutta, April 4 (A. P.).—Fifteenth Indian Corps patrols have advanced forty-two miles south of their landing point on the west coast of Burma and entered Taungup, sixty-five miles west of the Irrawaddy River town of Prome and 195 northwest of Rangoon, the Southeast Asia Command announced today. The coastal landing was made on March 13.

In central Burma, where the battle to clear the Mandalay-Meiktila pocket of Japanese was virtually ended, Fourteenth Army troops continued to mop up remaining resistance.

7 REPRIEVED IN INDIA

Bombay, April 4 (A. P.).—A Nagpur court today ordered a stay of execution for seven prisoners whose death sentences for the 1942 riot slaying of a magistrate and policemen had created political tension resulting in a protest work stoppage here yesterday. Mohandas K. Gandhi has issued a statement deploring the scheduled hangings.

New Nazi Espionage Ring Unearthed In Montevideo

Montevideo, April 4 (AP)—Nine persons were arrested today as police announced they had discovered a new Nazi espionage ring which obtained information from United Nations sailors by using women as decoys.

The arrests were made in a series of raids by secret police and members of the Committee for Investigation of Anti-Uruguayan Activities.

Police said those arrested were Jacobo Rosenberg Korman, proprietor of a water-front bar; his wife and an employé, Enrique Naur, all Polish citizens; two brothers, Salvador Vendemia, an Argentine citizen, and Jose Vendemia, Italian; Werner Herson, German, who was a teacher at the German school in Montevideo; Irene Canepa de Halo, Uruguayan employé of the German firm of Rabe Brothers; Fritz Rabe, German, one of the partners in that firm, and Horacio Camejo Azzi, Uruguayan employed in the construction of a bridge near here.

Uruguay Jails Ten In Espionage Raids

Montevideo, Uruguay, April 4 (A. P.)—Secret police and members of a committee investigating anti-Uruguayan activities staged a series of raids today, and arrested about ten persons suspected of pro-Axis espionage. The raids followed the disclosure yesterday by police sources that co-operating Argentine police reported to them last July the landing of two Nazi agents in Argentina from a German submarine.

Buenos Aires, April 4 (A. P.).—The Argentine Supreme Court, in its first challenge to the military government which seized power in June, 1943 has declared three governmental decrees unconstitutional. In a ruling on an appeal by Federal Judge Dana Montaña of Santa Fe from a governmental decree ordering him to exchange posts with Federal Judge Luis Gonzalez of San Rafael, the court held that the transfer order violated a guaranty of immovability provided for judges in the constitution.

The Supreme Court also ruled that the government had exceeded its powers in decreeing the creation of a court of appeals in Resistencia, capital of the national territory of Chaco. In a third decision, the court declared that changes introduced in the expropriation law were illegal.

Chilean Volcano Active.

Santiago, Chile, April 4 (A. P.).—United States and Chilean Army officers who flew over the 10,000 foot Llaima Volcano 370 miles south of Santiago yesterday said that it was erupting lava, smoke and ashes from two craters. The smoke towered 1,000 feet or more and the lava was flowing into a forested and apparently uninhabited area.

No Newsprint, Cuba's No. 1 Paper Suspended

Havana, April 4 (AP)—Diario de la Marina, the largest newspaper in Cuba, announced it would have to suspend publication after tomorrow's edition for lack of newsprint.

The newspaper said newsprint for Cuba had been deposited more than a month ago in the port of New Orleans, but that shipment had not been made. Two other newspapers, Prensa Libre and Accion, have already suspended publication for lack of paper.

Canada's Fighting Against Japs Will Be on a Voluntary Basis

By HARRY T. MONTGOMERY

OTTAWA, April 4 — (AP) Canada's participation in the war against Japan after the defeat of Germany will be on a voluntary basis, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced today in the House of Commons.

King, whose government was nearly overthrown last November when it ordered partial conscription for the war in Europe, indicated that Canada's main role after victory over Germany would be to maintain her war industry, produce foodstuffs for the Allies and the liberated nations and work on reconstruction.

Canada's volunteer army forces in the Pacific will serve with the United States, her volunteer naval forces with the British Pacific fleet, and her air forces with the RCAF, King said.

Canadian forces taking part in the Pacific war, he declared, will be limited in size by the great distances of the Pacific theater, and the total number taking part will "necessarily be very much less" than those fighting in Europe.

The exact numbers of Canadians participating will be decided by Canadian, United Kingdom and United States officials after the end of the war in Europe in accordance with principles agreed upon at the Quebec conference, the prime minister added.

MONTREAL MAYOR DEFENDS ELECTION

MONTREAL, April 4—(AP) Legal objections raised by Mayor Camillien Houde to an action to declare his election last December invalid were dismissed today by Justice Fabre Surveyer, who directed that the Superior court case continue.

The main objection taken by Houde in the action of Leo Dore, Montreal truck driver, was that Dore did not have the funds to deposit the $1,000 with which he started proceedings and that, therefore, the money must have been provided by some other person.

Justice Surveyer ruled that the city charter provided merely that the money be deposited and did not concern itself with the origin of the funds.

3 British Food Contracts Are Signed In Canada

Ottawa, April 4 (AP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the House of Commons today that three British food contracts were signed in Ottawa yesterday by Col. J. J. Llewellin, British Minister of Food.

They were:

1. A contract to take all the bacon and hams Canada can deliver in 1946. There already is an agreement covering 1945 of the same effect.

2. An agreement to take all possible beef which can be delivered in 1946. An existing agreement covering 1945 involves a minimum of 50,000,000 pounds.

3. An agreement to take eggs in quantities somewhat greater than were delivered last year.

SPAIN SAYS GERMANS HAVE SECRET WEAPONS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A spanish radio station at Valladolid in a domestic broadcast last (Wednesday) night asserted that Nazi claims to possession of secret weapons capable of winning the war "cannot be doubted."

The broadcast, reported by the FCC, said existence of the weapons had been "confirmed by many signs and testimonies."

"The delay in the employment of those means," said the broadcast, "may be explained by several reasons. They have a destructive power so enormous that their employment can be justified only when there is no other way to save the life of the nation. It is a last resource and it would not be human to use it before all other means have failed. x x

"There's no reason to doubt that Germany posseses such weapons; German officials veracity cannot be doubted."

Vigilante Committee Thwarts Nazi Tactics Against Americas

By the Associated Press.

A Pan-American Vigilante Committee—really an experiment in international co-operation—has about completed its work and is looking for a new lease on life.

The committee, the Emergency Advisory Committee for Political Defense, keeps constant watch over Axis activities in this hemisphere and takes immediate steps to stop them.

It has its headquarters in Montevideo with lines stretching to every capital in the hemisphere through which it can "advise and recommend" action to block Axis maneuvers in any country.

After the war, the committee's labors no longer may be needed. But so effective has it been that a special committee of the Pan American Union has recommended that it be retained, at least in principle.

Acts for All Americas.

This was the first time that anybody with limited membership has been set up to represent and act for all the countries in this hemisphere. (Delegates from seven nations act for and represent all 21.) In the memory of international law experts here, it may be the first time in the world.

The committee was formed at the Rio conference of American Foreign Ministers held a month after Pearl Harbor with the idea of putting into practice the conference's political-defense policy against the Axis.

Delegates were appointed by Brazil, Chile, the United States, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela and they set to work immediately to:

1. Control dangerous aliens.
2. Prevent the abuse of citizenship.
3. Regulate the entry and exit and prevent the clandestine crossing of frontiers.
4. Prevent acts of political aggression, including sabotage and dissemination of Axis propaganda while protecting vital information through censorship controls.

Liaison Officers Named.

With this tremendous job ahead of it and with Nazi cells operating actively in practically every American country, the group organized a liaison officer in each capital and then had each government set up an interdepartmental committee through which it could operate.

Every bit of information on Axis activities in the hemisphere was sent to the committee which then compiled it and forwarded it through diplomatic channels to a liaison officer in the country where it wanted action.

Mixing politeness with firmness, the committee then visited each capital and went into a huddle with the government's interdepartmental committee. The Department of State bulletin, explaining the working of the group, says "usually at the first session the committee expressed the hope to 'get down to cases.'"

And when a national official talked in general terms on how his government was controlling Axis activities without "getting down to cases" the committee asked him to prove his assertion.

List Axis Activities.

Nor was this the end. The committee, when it got back to Montevideo, sent a "follow-up" memorandum listing those Axis activities which it felt should be stopped immediately. In each country the committee was specific and mentioned names, places and operations which it deemed dangerous to hemisphere security.

An outstanding instance of this occurred during the months of November, 1942, and January, 1943, when the group published the documents exposing a continental network of Axis agents operating from headquarters in Argentina and Chile.

The department's bulletin said the committee described in detail the key role of Axis "diplomats," named the party leaders and traced the communications system by courier and clandestine radio through which a constant two-way stream of information was moving between South America and Berlin. To top it off the committee also cited what this meant in terms of American lives and property.

Nazi Tactics Thwarted.

As the Nazis changed their tactics, so, too, did the committee. Obviously thwarted in working with their own agents and stacked embassies, the Nazis began to use native Nazi sympathizers and planned to break up the unity of the hemisphere by instigating and financing revolutions.

In December, 1943, when the Penaranda government of Bolivia was overthrown, the committee immediately recommended that no government established by force be recognized before all the governments discuss every fact surrounding the revolution.

Nineteen governments, including the United States, immediately accepted and for six months the revolutionary government of Gen. Villaroel stood before the bar until it promised and proved it would co-operate in blunting Axis activities. Since then the present Argentine government has been—and still is—isolated. But three others, Ecuador, Salvador and Guatemala, passed the examination of their sister republics.

Co-operative Principle Effective.

The committee feels it has proved the principle that, nations willing, a small group of official delegates representing all in an organization can work effectively without upsetting the principle of national sovereignty or ruffling those delicate intangibles—national pride and prestige.

Indeed, it considers it passed one of its toughest tests when, for instance, a Mexican on the committee can go to Mexico City and lay the cards on the table before his own government without arousing suspicion or resentment.

It took a lot of tact and diplomacy, the committee concedes, but the group feels it has contributed something worth while and established a principle that might well prove a precedent not only for future pan-American but world-wide international relations.

Army Food Demands To Increase 20 Pct. Over Current Orders

Grave Shortage of Pork Gives Nation Choice of Cut Now or in 1946

By the Associated Press.

The serious meat shortage may force an official decision soon on whether Americans are to have more pork now and less next year or less now and more in 1946.

The possibility that this country may have to slaughter breeding hogs in order to meet current needs was disclosed today as:

1. One Senator investigating food shortages expressed concern that any further cut in civilian supplies might spur black market operations;
2. The Army said it needs 20 per cent more food this year than last and that it will take 12 per cent of the available supply, estimated at 280,000,000,000 pounds, and
3. United Nations' representatives discussed ways of better sharing their food.

European Peace No Help.

The Army's food estimate figures were given by Undersecretary of War Patterson, who said "the possibility of early victory in Europe holds little hope" for a cut in its needs.

Mr. Patterson asserted the problem of feeding liberated and occupied areas "will increase tremendously" and that troops in Europe will require increasing quantities of such perishable foods as meats and fresh dairy products.

Taking note in his statement of Congressional criticism of Army food-buying activities and complaints of hoarding, the Undersecretary reiterated that "the Army has no stockpile of food."

It does, he said, carry "minimum working reserves, just as wholesalers and retailers do to assure a steady movement of food to the consumer."

Declaring the Army has altered its claims to avoid serious impact on civilian supplies, Mr. Patterson said it does not subscribe to the theory that "military requirements must invariably be given first priority."

Sow Slaughter Debated.

The question of diverting sows into slaughter pens to help satisfy current needs is figuring prominently in a debate within the War Food Administration over future livestock production programs.

Some officials within WFA are urging a fall pig production goal of 37,000,000 head, a 20 per cent increase over last fall's small crop. These pigs, however, would not be ready for market before the spring of 1946.

Such an increase would have an adverse effect on pork supplies this summer, because sows which otherwise could be sold for slaughter during the next few months would have to be held for breeding purposes.

Final decision on the fall pig production goal may hinge in part on the outcome of current discussions among the United Nations. These are seeking to determine whether available supplies are being so used as to meet military requirements and to provide a fair distribution among civilian groups.

High-ranking British food officials are among those taking part in the closed-door talks.

Estimates Exceed Supplies.

A major problem among the United Nations is the fact that estimates of their canned meats requirements are 15 per cent greater than proposed supplies. This situation may bring some reshuffling in the distribution of supplies originating in Canada and Argentina.

It is possible, for example, that a larger portion of Argentine canned meats may be diverted to the United Nations' military forces. British civilians then would get less Argentine canned meat but more cured and frozen meats from Canada. By thus increasing shipments to Britain, Canada would tend to bring its civilian consumption more nearly into line with this country and Great Britain.

Another question being debated within the WFA is whether the Government price support under hogs should be increased. The support price now is $12.50 a hundred pounds, Chicago basis, compared with $13.75 a year ago. WFA's Agricultural Adjustment Agency branch is urging an increase of 75 cents, contending it is essential if a further curtailment in hog production is to be averted.

Black Market Apprehension.

Senator Wherry, Republican, of Nebraska voiced the black market apprehension, particularly regarding meat, saying:

"It is obvious that the scarcer the product, the more chance for the black market."

The Nebraskan commented on testimony received by the Senate Agriculture Committee from Lt. Col. R. W. Olmstead, director of supply for the War Food Administration, that minimum lease-lend and relief food requirements cannot be met without further reduction of civilian consumption in the United States and Canada.

Col. Olmstead indicated his own concern over a possible increase in black marketing, saying the feasibility of further reductions is largely a matter of whether means can be devised for "a sufficiently equitable distribution of the reduced supply."

Senator Wherry told reporters that, as he understands Col. Olmstead's testimony, there is no certainty that civilians now are getting the amounts of meat estimated for them.

Housewives Can Judge.

As he understands the system, the Senator said, estimates are made of the total meat supply and allocations are made for civilians, the military, lease-lend and other claimants.

After these agencies buy their allocations, "only the American housewife can say whether the amount left is actually equal to the civilian allocation," Senator Wherry said. "I believe most of them would tell you it is not."

Col. Olmstead estimated that civilians received 147 pounds of meat (excluding hearts, livers and edible offal) per capita in 1944 and said the present allocation is 125.3 pounds per capita. It may fall to 115 pounds later this year, he added.

Another development yesterday was a Canadian statement that the United States had made no official request "for the importation of meat from Canada to the United States" except for dressed poultry.

Olmstead Cites Embargo.

The Canadian official who brought up the matter was G. R. Patterson, member of the United States-British-Canadian food board.

Col. Olmstead read a letter in which Mr. Paterson called "very misleading" an earlier statement by Col. Olmstead that the United States had been unable to obtain meat from Canada.

Mr. Paterson cited American protests last fall over the removal of an embargo on the shipment of live sheep and lambs to the United States.

He said also that a similar embargo on the movement of live cattle for slaughter "was originally placed at our request and in full agreement with your department, in order that we might ship as much meat as possible to the United Kingdom."

Senator Shipstead, Republican, of Minnesota asked Col. Olmstead, "Why don't you get meat from Canada?"

Col. Olmstead replied: "Mr. Paterson's letter indicates there is an embargo."

One purpose of the embargo, when it was laid down, was to protect American cattle producers from Canadian competition.

NAZI NAVAL STAFF CHIEF IS EXECUTED

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Luxembourg radio quoted a Moscow broadcast today as saying that Admiral Kurt Fricke, chief of the German naval staff, had been executed because of his failure to "save the German ships lying in Danzig harbor."

The German-language broadcast, recorded by the OWI, said Fricke had been sent to Danzig by Admiral Karl Doenitz, commander-in-chief of the German navy, to save the ships, but that "the attempt failed." Danzig was captured by Russian troops last Friday.

WEST FRONT DRIVES BY U. S. DIVISIONS

The following summary of action on the western front covers only those Associated Press reports in which divisions were specifically mentioned:

2d Armored—Fought clear through the Teutobergerwald in six places and moved toward the Weser to join the Fifth Armored.

4th Armored—Drove seven miles east to near Oberof, sixteen miles south of Gotha.

4th Infantry—Racing with Twelfth Armored Division for Nuernberg; last reported near Uffenheim.

5th Armored—Reached Weser at Bad Oeynhausen, 183 miles from Berlin and 103 southwest of Hamburg.

6th Armored—Pushed along west bank of Frieda River to Heldra, twelve miles north of Eisenach; reached Diedorf.

9th Infantry—Advanced two miles northward to Oberkirchen, seven miles southwest of Winterberg on the perimeter of the Ruhr trap.

10th Armored—Teamed with 100th Infantry Division inside Heilbronn on the Neckar River.

12th Armored—Racing for Nuernberg; reached Uffenheim, thirty-four miles from Nuernberg and southeast of Wuerzburg.

17th Airborne—Helped capture Muenster.

42d Infantry—Fought to the heart of Wuerzburg against flak, mortar and small arms fire described as "moderate." Troops were pouring across the Main River at Wuerzburg and at Ochenfurt, nine miles southeast, and at a point two miles north of Wuerzburg.

45th Infantry—Pressed beyond Aschaffenburg in a mop-up of the Spessart hills on the approaches to Czecho-Slovakia. They encountered mines, road blocks and some self-propelled guns.

65th Infantry—Revealed to be east of Rhine, advanced ten miles northwest of Eisenach in Third Army drive.

75th Infantry—Crossed the Dortmund-Ems Canal and reached Waltrop in the Muenster district.

80th Infantry—Captured Kassel.

100th Infantry—Teamed with Tenth Armored Division inside Heilbronn on the Neckar River.

Krug Predicts Flow Of Civilian Products Year After V-E Day

By the Associated Press.

The Capital climbed back on the reconversion bandwagon today—the one that stalled in December at Germany's Westwall.

Within a year after V-E day, the War Production Board now predicts, civilian goods will be coming out of factories at a pace reminiscent of 1939.

Every civilian product—including automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and radios, missing for three years—will be back in production. And most will have reached the market, WPB Chairman J. A. Krug predicted last night.

Not overlooking the possibility that Japan might fold quickly after her Axis partner does, Mr. Krug declared:

"I think the Government should get out of the way of industry on the day after that happens."

Tax Relief Pressure Starts.

Meanwhile, pressure on Congress developed for an immediate start on legislation to ease the postwar tax burden on business and thus encourage investments in expanded peacetime enterprises. This came in an unanimous resolution of the Civilian Advisory Panel—representing labor, management, agriculture and the public—of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

Reconversion will be slower-paced, at the start, than was planned last fall. Officials then spoke of days or weeks. Now it is months and quarter-years.

Mr. Krug cautioned in outlining WPB's reconversion program that the Japanese war would have first claim on the country's resources. He said it will impose a "tremendous strain on our productive capacity" and that many shortages will continue for months in clothing, leather, lumber, chemicals and some other lines.

But two additional developments bespoke complete official confidence that this time the rush toward V-E day could not be set in reverse by any prolonged stand by the Germans. These developments were:

Reconversion Conference.

The planned departure of WPB's top command for Detroit tomorrow to confer on reconversion and war production with automobile manufacturers. The motor industry presents the biggest reconversion problem of potential unemployment and plant shutdowns during the transition period. Mr. Krug and his chief of operations, Hyland G. Bacheller, will head the WPB group.

Creation within WPB of "COP"—the alphabetical symbol for "Committee on Period 1" (Period 1 is official jargon for the days when Japan is the only enemy still fighting). COP, with 11 subcommittees, will manage a relaxation of business controls while protecting arms production for the Pacific war. Its Chairman is J. B. Small, Mr. Krug's executive officer.

The call for "equitable" tax legislation by the OWMR Advisory Board said:

"Bold decisions must be made soon by investors and businessmen if they are to develop concrete plans for the largest peacetime private payrolls in our history.

"But the extent to which expansion is justified, and risks reasonable, must be determined partly in relation to tax policies which have not yet been established. Full knowledge of such policies is needed to provide a firm base for business planning."

DOUBT LABOR BILL CAN BE REVIVED

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt's request for compulsory man power controls lay buried today beneath the weight of a 46 to 29 Senate death blow. Some Senators questioned whether any man power bill now can emerge from the weeks of controversial deliberation in which the two houses have taken divergent views.

At the same time, there wasn't even a lingering prospect of fine-or-jail legislation to keep workers on war jobs. And there was little likelihood of compulsion on employers to abide by man power ceilings.

Senator Brewster (R.-Me.), co-author of the original work-or-jail bill following lines of a House-passed measure, attributed outcome to what he termed a lack of confidence in President Roosevelt "by his own party."

"It is difficult to see how there can be a resuscitation in view of what happened in the Senate," Mr. Brewster told a reporter, noting that only eighteen of a Democratic membership of fifty-five supported the President's appeal for passage of the compromise.

PRESIDENT SIGNS DEBT LIMIT BILL

Washington, April 4 (A. P.)—President Roosevelt has approved legislation increasing the public debt limit from $260,000,000,000 to $300,000,000,000. The White House said today that the President signed the measure yesterday.

The administration believes the $300,000,000,000 limit will be reached by about June 30, 1946. The present debt, in terms of "maturity value" (which is the basis on which the statutory limit is set) is about $243,000,000,000. This means the old limit of $260,000,000,000 would have been reached some time during the Seventh War Loan drive (May 14-June 30), if that drive proceeds anything like the $21,000,000,000 sales of the Sixth War Loan.

The present debt in terms of current redemption value, is $235,000,000,000. This is the way the debt is usually given.

Navy Halves May Draft Call; Further Reduction Due in June

Service Expects to Reach Peak Strength of 3,600,000 Men by July 1—Youths 17 Enlisting Faster Than Expected.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).The Navy has halved its May draft call and may ask for still fewer men in June. This will reduce overall selective service calls 12 per cent or more from the current rate of about 182,000 men a month. They had been scheduled to continue at that pace through June.

Halving of the Navy's requirements will put its May call at roughly 16,000 registrants.

Officials who know these things in advance of public announcements but who cannot be quoted by name added that this quota may be cut further in June and even more sharply thereafter, because the Navy expects to reach peak strength of about 3,600,000 men by July 1. After that calls will be solely on a replacement basis.

An official Navy statement disclosed the impending cut, but gave no details. It said:

"The Navy's calls on selective service have been and are being gradually reduced in order to conform to authorized strength, which is expected by July 1."

It was learned, however, that the first substantial cut is due next month. Two reasons are given for the reductions:

1. Enlistment of 17-year-olds in the Navy has been at a higher rate than expected.

2. Peak strength is being achieved more rapidly than anticipated, indicating casualties may not have been as numerous as calculated.

Although there has been some pressure on the Army to reduce its calls to salvage more men for industry, officials of that service thus far have stood firm in summoning 100,000 registrants a month through June.

Reduction of the Navy draft is expected to be reflected most in an easing of the call for men 30 through 33. Officials cautioned, however, that with enlistment of 17-year-olds apparently on the uptrend, fewer 18-year-olds are available for drafting. This means that monthly selective service quotas must be filled by dipping commensurately into the older age groups.

Selective service spokesmen are reluctant to predict how draft calls may be affected when Germany is defeated. They concede that any cut will ease the pressure first on men over 29, but they point out that the size of the draft will depend largely on the number of veterans released by the Army.

SUPPLY OF DAIRY PRODUCTS UP A BIT

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—The War Food Administration announced today that civilian allotments of butter, evaporated milk, condensed milk and cheese for the April-June quarter are about the same as for January-March.

Civilian supplies of fluid milk, cream, cottage cheese and ice cream are expected to be larger, in as much as this is the season in which milk production increases sharply.

The civilian butter supply for the three-month period will be 323,000,000 pounds compared with between 325,000,000 and 328,000,000 consumed during the first quarter.

American military and war services were allotted 152,800,000 pounds and Russia 5,000,000.

The allocation of evaporated milk for civilians remained at the first quarter figure of 435,000,000 pounds, while United States military and war services were allotted 654,000,000 pounds. Liberated areas were allotted 22,500,000 pounds.

The WFA also announced that civilians face a 30 per cent reduction in rice supplies because of urgent military and foreign relief requirements. Civilians have tentatively allocated 5,500,000 bags (100 pounds each) for 1945 compared with 7,900,000 bags consumed last year. This would average about 4.3 pounds per person compared with about 6 pounds consumed last year and with 5.7 pounds for the 1935-39 period.

Out of Germany Into Japan; G. I. Morale In for Freshening

By ELTON C. FAY and JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—The Army is counting on a movie to tell the G. I.'s finished with fighting in Europe why the battle isn't over—why many of them must still shoot it out with the Japanese.

When the troops headed off for the European front they saw motion pictures, heard lectures, read pamphlets by the sackful explaining the Nazi, his ideas of conquest and how he fought. The Japanese were mentioned more or less incidentally. Now the Army must educate those soldiers going directly from Europe to the Pacific to aim their hate at a new enemy. Furthermore, it must keep their spirits up for weeks or perhaps months until they can be moved to the Pacific area.

The biggest morale problem of the whole war looms in this interlude between victory in Europe and the launching of the final offensive in the Pacific. The Army hopes it has the answer to its own problem in an elaborate program. This program embraces training for the Pacific task—and travel, education and play besides. It is tailored to fit troops. The interest of the Army, however, must extend to the home front and the men and women who make munitions.

A great enemy—Germany—is about to be defeated. Many, perhaps most, of the G. I.s who have helped defeat the Germans feel they have done their part and should come home. Yet the top Army men are planning for a Pacific war, lasting eighteen months to two years after Germany goes down.

A Difficult Task.

The business of telling the G. I.s that most of them aren't through with the Army is going to be difficult. The Army intends to move swiftly. Copies of its "reorientation" film are ready for projection machines of every troop unit in Europe, to be shown to the soldiers at the moment they cease firing. The printed word will follow in the form most familiar to the G. I.—the pocket-size pamphlet. Lectures and round-table discussions will be encouraged. (And these the G. I.s don't like, having listened to them for upward of three years.)

There is in this project, as in all the others related to re-employment, a nice matter of timing. The reorientation can't be started too soon. Commanders in Europe want to keep the attention of their men riveted on beating Germany, until that chore is done. Afterward, however, there must be no time for worry or uncertainty over the future.

Many thousands of soldiers will spend several months in Europe and then be started out directly for the Pacific theater. They won't have the lift of a furlough at home, and they won't have the tension of battle to help them forget all else. Some will have to service and repair weapons for the Pacific. The military duties of most will include only the Army's housekeeping routine and training.

So the Army has arranged what is described as an "educational and recreational program." Directing that program is Major-Gen. Frederick H. Osborn, the Army's specialist on education and morale. The men will be able to take their pick of education university subjects, trade schools, historical courses, mathematics. All will be required to study something. Stacked in warehouses here and overseas are mountains of textbooks and material. Prerequisites for specific courses are drawn up. Instructions for company and division commanders to set up courses and assign teaching personnel are ready. Theater commanders have been given the authority to put the schools in operation.

If the G. I. wants to travel, that, too, will be arranged. Tours already mapped are intended to show the soldier a deal more of the Europe he has been fighting in than what he saw from a foxhole.

Sports Equipment Ready.

Does he want recreation? (In the Army they don't always ask you—they usually tell you.) Tons of sports equipment—football, baseball, basketball—are stockpiled for shipment to Europe. Nor have checkers, chess and table tennis equipment and material for amateur craftsmen been forgotten.

The Navy's situation is different and better. It set up its principal place of business in the Pacific at the start. Generally, it has no worry about its men losing their fighting edge. The naval war in the Pacific moves on in rising tempo, nor is this pitch expected to diminish while the land Army is being redeployed.

The soldiers and Marines, as well as the Navy's sailors in the Pacific no longer will mutter about being the orphans of the war effort, getting help on a shoestring. They can feel their war is big-time and their day of triumph and peace much closer.

The psychology of the fighting man is only half the picture. The other half, here on the home front, may very well pose the more difficult problem. War leaders see home-front morale as composed of two elements, the attitude of parents, wives and sweethearts, and the attitude of war-plant workers.

With the approach of victory in Europe, the Army began hearing things like this: "My boy has been overseas two years. Let some one else carry on in that war way out there in the Pacific. I need him to help out down here on the farm." The Army thinks those are good sound arguments. It has announced that it intends to do what it can about them. Soldiers will be discharged, but not now, nor all at once, nor until after most of them have seen service in the Pacific.

Of equal concern to the High Command is the psychology of the war plant worker and his boss. Military leaders say that if the management-worker team should decide the war effort no longer needs its full service, there would be no use in the Army's redeploying its fighting men in the Pacific. The war would indeed be over before victory—a Japanese victory. These leaders want the home front to feel what President Roosevelt has said: "America must be prepared for a long and costly struggle in the Pacific."

WFA Cuts Wheat Export Subsidy On Pacific Coast

Washington, April 4 (AP)—The War Food Administration announced today that the export subsidy on wheat shipped from Pacific Coast ports has been reduced from 30 to 26 cents a bushel.

The subsidy is designed to make American wheat competitive with foreign grain in world markets.

Hurley Expected To Visit Moscow

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Brig.-Gen. Patrick T. Hurley, United States Ambassador to China, probably will visit Moscow on his way back to Chungking, it waaslearned today.

Gen. Hurley has reached London on the return trip to his post after consultations in Washington.

Officials said his talks were strictly on the Far East and not connected with any political difficulties among the Allies centering on the San Francisco conference.

Byrd Asks Arms Research

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, proposed today a Research Board for National Security to develop new military weapons. The Army and Navy carry on such research in peacetime, and since the war a special National Council on Inventions has been established. Senator Byrd offered legislation to establish the research board as a permanent Government agency of up to forty members, to be appointed by the President from the Army and Navy, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, and civilian technicians and engineers. "We must recognize the fact," he told the Senate, "that our national security demands that we do not permit other nations to excel us in new methods of warfare which could be used to destroy us."

Senate Sends CCC Bill to Roosevelt

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Legislation increasing the Commodity Credit Corporation's borrowing power from $3,000,000,000 to $4,750,000,000 passed the Senate today and was sent to the White House. The legislature also extends the CCC's life, now due to expire June 30, to June 30, 1947, and authorizes continuation of its present subsidy programs.

9th Armored Division Likes O'Mahoney's Idea

Washington, April 4 (AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) received thanks from the 9th Armored Division today for his suggestion that a stamp picturing the Remagen bridge be issued to commemorate the Rhine crossing.

Capt. Charles Gillette, public relations officer, expressed the division's appreciation in a letter and proposed that the 9th's symbol be included on the stamp.

Senator O'Mahoney suggested that a picture made by William C. Allen, Associated Press photographer with the Wartime Still Picture Pool, be used as the central design for the stamp. The picture is an aerial view of the Remagen bridge after its capture.

Committee Approves Lend-lease to 1946

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved without change today a House measure extending lend-lease operations for one year from June 30.

Chairman Connally said that no amendments were offered to the measure, after assurances by Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economics Administrator, that lend-lease would not be used to finance post-war rehabilitation operations in other countries.

As approved by the committee, the bill carries a House amendment barring such use of the funds provided by Congress.

Under terms of the measure, lend-lease could contract up to July 1, 1946, for deliveries of items which would have to be completed by July 1, 1949.

Reconversion Plans Stand.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—The capital climbed back on the reconversion bandwagon today—the one that stalled in December at Germany's West Wall. Within a year after V-E day, the War Production Board now predicts, civilian goods will be coming out of factories at a clip reminiscent of 1939.

Every civilian product—including automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and radios, missing for three years—will be back in production. And most will have reached the market, WPB Chairman J. A. Krug predicted last night. Not overlooking the possibility that Japan might fold quickly after her Axis partner does, Krug declared:

"I think the Government should get out of the way of industry on the day after that happens."

Pressure on Congress developed, meanwhile, for an immediate start on legislation to ease the post-war tax burden on business and thus encourage investments in expanded peacetime enterprises. This came in a unanimous resolution of the civilian advisory panel—representing labor, management, agriculture and the public—of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

JAP NAVY'S DEAD SET AT 262,000

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—The OWI today estimated Japanese Navy dead at 262,000 officers and men since Pearl Harbor. This compares with total American naval casualties of 92,819, of whom 35,750 are dead, and, contrasted with more than 3,000,000 men in this country's sea arm, the OWI said that Japan's present naval personnel afloat and ashore totals 850,000.

Because the Nipponese do not let life-saving interfere with other operations, the OWI said that it is conservative to estimate that 75 per cent of the crews of Japanese warships sunk meet death.

VINSON CONFIRMED

Washington, April 4 (. P.).—Fred M. Vinson was confirmed by the Senate today as director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, succeeding James F. Byrnes, resigned. Approval came by a voice vote without a dissent.

The Kentuckian, elevated swiftly from stabilization director to Federal loan agent to mobilization chief, had been approved unanimously for the new assignment an hour earlier by the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Senator George (D.-Ga.).

Soldier Finds Photo Of Wife in Germany

9 STUDIOS FIRE ALL STRIKERS

Action Follows Meeting Of Film Producers

Hollywood, Cal., April 4 (AP)—Nine major film studios tonight mailed dismissal notices to all of their employés who have been on strike for the last 25 days.

This action, announced after a meeting of producers, came as the result of an ultimatum issued two days ago in which the approximately 14,000 studio workers were ordered to return to work today or lose their jobs.

"Picket Lines Are Firm"

Herbert K. Sorrell, president of the Conference of Studio Unions which is leading the walkout in the jurisdictional dispute between AFL unions over control of 77 set designers, declared:

"Our picket lines are firm, our members are still out. No new faces have crossed the picket lines at the studios today in reply to the producers' ultimatum."

A spokesman for the producers said Richard Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés, attended the producers' meeting and promised to aid in keeping the studios going.

Notices "Pave The Way"

The producers also announced that the dismissal notices "pave the way for obtaining the necessary workers from other sources" to keep the studios producing.

The brief dismissal notices sent to strikers said: "You are hereby notified that your employment is terminated. Such action is taken because of your failure to report for work and perform services in accordance with your obligation to do so."

HARD COAL UNION ASKS WAGE BOOST

25 Per Cent Increase and Royalty Sought—Soft Coal Work Lags.

WASHINGTON, April 4 — (AP) Hard coal miners asked a 25 per cent wage hike as contract negotiations opened today. In soft coal fields, work resumed slowly and production lagged markedly.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, presenting demands for the 72,000 anthracite miners, called for a 10-cents a ton royalty just as he did for the 400,000 bituminous workers.

Severance pay for suspensions, dismissals and layoffs was included also in the 30 proposals given representatives of 190 hard coal producers in eastern Pennsylvania as conferences opened in New York for a new contract. The present one expires April 30.

The bituminous miners returned to work today in fewer numbers than had been expected after widespread work interruptions.

Lewis said before the negotiations began that the hard coal miners had received "only a 15 per cent increase since 1923" and that they now deserved "a considerable increase" because "we know industry is prosperous."

At a press conference following the first negotiations session, UMW Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy said, "we believe there is enough leeway in our demands to keep within the little steel formula."

Kennedy also said there was no way at present to estimate the over-all cost of the demanded increases to the operators because of varying pay rates among miners.

Ralph E. Taggart, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company, said the operators would give "full consideration" to the demands, adding that they had received them only today and would need time to study them.

The negotiations were recessed until next Tuesday (2 p.m. E.W.T.) at which time the operators are expected to make a detailed statement.

Taggart said the anthracite miners were among the nation's highest paid workers, that they have a seven-hour basic work-day and that their average wage was $1.17 an hour.

The UMW said the royalty funds would be used to provide members with "modern medical and surgical service, hospitalization insurance, rehabilitation, and economic protection."

PRINTERS CUT ON DELIVERIES

Most Publications Affected By WPB Order

Washington, April 4 (AP) — The War Production Board today ruled that magazines and most commercial printers must take a thirteen per cent reduction in deliveries of printing paper in April, May and June.

No curtailment in the use of paper is required, but in order to use as much paper as in the past the publishers and printers will have to make up the difference out of their inventory supplies, WPB said.

The permitted deliveries will be held to 87 per cent of each firm's average quarterly consumption in 1944, but exemptions were made for smaller companies and for those with low inventories.

Some Magazines

Magazine publishers using less than 100 tons a year and others having less than twenty days' supply in inventory on April 1 may use up to 100 per cent of their 1944 average. Those whose inventories range from 21 to 32 days' supply may take delivery on quantities ranging from 99 to 88 per cent of the 1944 average.

WPB said the publishers exempted because of small usage and "dangerously low" supplies would account for only about four per cent of all paper used in the magazine industry.

The thirteen per cent cut for commercial printers will apply to all whose inventory was 32 days' supply or more on April 1, except those using 25 tons or less a quarter. Those having less than 20 days' supply, as well as those using less than 25 tons, may accept paper up to the 1944 average. The 50-day inventory ceiling also was imposed on the commercial shops, effective June 1.

Book Publishers

Book publishers were made subject to a 15 per cent cut in printing paper deliveries in the April-May-June quarter but, as in the case of magazines and commercial printers, no curtailment in usage was ordered.

The book amendment requires that all publishers who use more than 50 tons of paper annually must reduce their delivery orders to 85 per cent of the amount they accepted in the second quarter of 1944, or one-fourth per cent of their total 1944 consumption, whichever is greater.

The new action also provides that no publisher may have an inventory after June greater than his inventory on March 31.

CONFIRM WAESCHE AS FULL ADMIRAL

WASHINGTON, April 4—(AP) The Senate today confirmed the promotion of Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesche, commandant of the Coast Guard, to the rank of full admiral.

The appointment—raising a Coast Guard officer to four-star rank for the first time was made possible under legislation recently approved by Congress.

BOARD REJECTS POTOMAC RIVER DAMS PROJECT

Army Engineers Turn Down $235,000,000 Flood-Control Plan

Washington, April 4 (AP) — The Board of Army Engineers delivered a telling and possibly fatal blow today to the proposed $235,000,000 Potomac River Basin development.

The board, in an unusually speedy decision, rejected the district engineer's recommendation for construction of fourteen dams in the Potomac and its tributaries only a day after approximately 1,000 residents of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia urged such action.

"The board . . . has decided to submit an adverse report relative to the fourteen dams proposed by the District Engineer," said Brig.

Gen. John J. Kingman, senior member of the board.

Letter To Senator Byrd

He announced the decision in a letter to Senator Byrd (D., Va.), one of the principal opponents of the plan.

Senator Byrd had asked the board to hold additional hearings in the Shenandoah Valley, where two of the project sites are located, if the plan were to be given serious consideration.

"I am pleased to inform you that it will not be necessary to hold the desired hearings," General Kingman said.

The board held in abeyance its decision on other recommendations of the district and division engineers' reports. An aide said the full report probably will be completed within a week.

Projects Not Ruled On

The recommendations on which no decision has been reached are that a local flood-control project costing $1,431,000 be adopted for Waynesboro, Va.; that the Washington project be modified at a cost of $444,000, and that the Savage River Dam in Garrett county, Maryland, be completed at a cost of $930,000.

Senator Byrd was one of eight members of Congress who led opposition to the flood-control hydroelectric power project at yesterday's hearing before the board.

Since the report of the district and division engineers' offices recommending construction of the fourteen dams was made public early this year, a storm of protest has been generated in the area north and west of Washington, where approximately 176,000 acres would be flooded.

Because of the intense agitation, an aide of the engineers board said, the seven-man body adopted what he called a "most unusual" step of announcing its decision less than 24 hours after the conclusion of the hearing.

Technically Still Alive

With such overwhelming opposition among the residents and in Congress, there seems little chance the project will be realized, although technically it is still alive.

The board's report will be turned over to the chief of engineers, who may adopt it or reverse its findings. His final conclusions will be transmitted to Congress.

All three affected states have expressed disapproval in one form or another.

Only about half a dozen persons supported the dam proposal at the hearing, but an official of the board said other support had been filed by electric co-operatives which might purchase power from the proposed dams.

The Rural Electrification Administration, however, has taken no official position.

This particular project had its inception nearly nine years ago when Congress authorized army engineers to make studies of the Potomac with a view to flood control.

The district and division engineers found that dams for flood control alone were not economically feasible, and proposed the multiple-purpose reservoirs. Eleven of the dams would generate power; six would be exclusively power projects.

The annual output was estimated at 2,291,000,000 kilowatt hours, from which engineers predicted a return of $14,345,000 from the sale of power in Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and the Potomac basin.

Flood-control benefits were estimated at $253,000 of the average annual damage of $1,170,000.

Mayor to Testify In Support of Italy

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Representative Marcantonio (American Labor-N. Y.) said today that Mayor LaGuardia will appear before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on April 11 in support of legislation to recognize Italy as an ally and provide for the extension of lend-lease aid to Italy, which now is recognized only as a co-belligerent.

U. S. to Lift Trade Bans

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP).—Preparing to re-establish relations with Argentina, the State Department has decided to remove its special economic restrictions against that country, it was learned today. The original date set for lifting bans imposed during the year-long estrangement was April 9, but, since Argentina signed the act of Chapultepec in Mexico today, the move may come sooner.

A U. S. tanker is going to Argentina with petroleum and will pick up linseed oil there. The ban of United States ships going to Argentina 's set to be lifted before the tanker arrives.

Spruille Braden will probably be named American Ambassador at Buenos Aires. He is now Ambassador to Cuba.

NAVY DISCOURAGES ALL-STAR COMBINES

WASHINGTON, April 4.—(AP) The Navy apparently has decided to discourage the formation of all-star service teams in this country.

Navy officials were asked today about a report that Bob Feller, former Cleveland Indian star, will not be permitted to pitch for the Great Lakes team.

The officials said they had no direct knowledge of such a ruling on Feller but that there is a general practice to "break up all-star teams and get those boys into the war."

It was added that considerable criticism had been received from men overseas of "name" players being rounded up for baseball and football games, particularly in the last gridiron season.

How far the policy of discouraging this might be extended was not immediately indicated. Other former major league players are members of various Navy teams in this country.

There was no comment from the War department on its attitude.

U.S. To Lift Argentine Trade Bans

Washington, April 4 (AP)—Preparing to re-establish relations with Argentina, the State Department has decided to remove its special economic restrictions against that country, it was learned today.

The original date set for lifting bans imposed during the year-long estrangement was April 9, but since Argentina signed the Act of Chapultepec in Mexico today, the move may come soooner.

A United States tanker is going to Argentina with petroleum and will pick up linseed oil there.

Several months ago the War Shipping Administration prohibited American ships from calling at Argentine ports, giving the shipping shortage as its reason.

However, Argentina has been getting oil from Aruba and Curacao, West Indies ports, in her own boats during her diplomatic isolation.

Ban To End Soon

The ban on United States ships going to Argentina is set to be lifted before the tanker arrives.

Although straightforward sanctions were never clamped on Argentina, United States trade agencies have been giving far stricter treatment to commerce with that country than with others in the hemisphere.

Shipping licenses, export-import licenses and priorities were subject to tight controls which have been loosened up for other Latin-American states.

It was made almost impossible for Argentina to buy industrial goods or strategic materials from this country.

The new policy is to put Argentina on an equal footing with the rest of Latin America when it asks to buy something here. The sole test henceforth, it is said, will be whether the desired goods are available in sufficient quantities and whether transportation can be spared.

Normal Relations Expected

Recognition is expected in a few days, and, while the American countries are planning to act individually, it appears normal relations with Argentina will be established throughout the continent very quickly.

Spruille Braden will probably be named as American Ambassador to Buenos Aires at the same time or shortly after the United States announces it has gone back to normal in its diplomatic ties with Argentina. He is now United States Ambassador in Cuba.

The present tangle in Anglo-American negotiations with Russia, however, seems to leave Argentina only a hairline chance of getting invited to San Francisco.

The Soviet Union, which Argentina has never recognized, has a far-from-friendly attitude to that country.

Argentina Signs At Mexico City

Mexico City, April 4 (AP)—Argentina signed today the acts of the Inter-American Conference and thereby rejoined the Pan-American family.

Adolfo N. Calvo, Argentine chargé d'affaires, signed the original document in the presence of diplomats of the 21 American republics.

17 Ambassadors Watch

Mexico's Foreign Secretary, Ezequiel Padilla, and ambassadors of seventeen countries watched the ceremony.

Ambassadors from Argentina, Chile and Venezuela were missing. Both latter countries were represented by members of their embassy staffs in the temporary absence of the ambassadors from Mexico, and Calvo represented Argentina.

Among the ambassadors was George S. Messersmith, of the United States. He and others appeared pleased at the friendly termination of the long coolness between Argentina and her sister nations.

With Calvo came his military attache, Col. Luis E. Daneri, and two newly arrived attaches, Daniel H. Antokoletz and Manuel F. Duran.

United To Sign Pacts

Chile was represented by Luis Orzua Silva, first secretary, and Venezuela by Counsellor Fernando Paz Castillo.

Argentina's return to the Latin-American family was one of the main developments of the recent Inter-American Conference here.

The Argentine problem was the last item on the agenda and was to be discussed only after other matters had been disposed of.

Before and during the conference, however, informal talks and negotiations for a solution developed and it became evident early that the question could not be sidetracked.

In the fifty-ninth resolution, inviting Argentina to sign the Chapultepec agreements, she was asked to harmonize her policy with that of the other republics.

Roosevelt Signs Mexico Bills

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP).—President Roosevelt today signed legislation extending for two years from tomorrow the time for determination and payment of claims under a 1941 convention between the United States and Mexico. Under the convention agreements, Mexico is to pay approximately $40,000,000 in settlement of miscellaneous outstanding claims of each government against the other which arose between 1868 and 1943.

Bill To Raise Borrowing Power Of CCC Advances

Washington, April 4 (AP)—Legislation increasing the Commodity Credit Corporation's borrowing power from $3,000,000,000 to $4,750,000,000 passed the Senate today and was sent to the White House.

Approval came on a 46-to-32 roll call.

Senators Taft (R., Ohio) and Tobey (R., N.H.) forced the roll call after a futile fight to hold the figure to $4,500,000,000.

The legislation also extends the CCC's life, now due to expire next June 30, to June 30, 1947, and authorizes continuation of its present subsidy programs.

Sergeant Who Sacrificed Life Gets Highest Honor

Congressional Medal Awarded for Fatal Diversion

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP).—Staff Sergeant Jack J. Pendleton, who deliberately drew the fire of a German machine gun so that his company could advance, has received the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously.

The War Department, announcing the award today, said arrangements are being made to present the medal to the twenty-six-year-old soldier's mother, Mrs. Dora Pendleton, of Yakima, Wash.

Sergeant Pendleton, onetime timber worker, sacrificed his life during an attack by a company of the 120th Infantry Regiment on the German town of Bardenberg on Oct. 12.

About halfway through the town, the unit was pinned down by heavy machine-gun fire. Realizing that further attempts to advance would mean serious casualties, Sergeant Pendleton volunteered to lead his squad against a gun that had to be knocked out before the main machine-gun defenses could be seized.

365,437 Prisoners Of War Held In U.S.

Washington, April 4 (AP) — The War Department reported today that 365,437 Axis prisoners of war were held in this country as of April 1.

Included were 311,630 Germans, 50,540 Italians and 3,258 Japanese. They were held at 141 base camps and approximately 319 branch camps located near work projects.

Approximately 35,000 of the Italians are members of service units engaged in war work.

Of the remainder, more than 43,000 are working under contract and more than 150,000 at military installations.

SENATOR FLIES HOME TO AID IN PLANTING

WASHINGTON, April 4 — (AP) Senator Young (R.-N. D.) left by plane today for his 1,300-acre farm at Berlin, N. D., to help with the spring planting.

Young was seated in the Senate on March 19 after his appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Moses (D). Suddenness of the appointment left him insufficient time to arrange the affairs on his farm, the Senator said. He expects to spend about 10 days there.

Incidentally, Young believes he has a "good chance" of getting on the Senate Agriculture committee.

March Plane Output 3% Above Schedule

Washington, April 4 (AP)—March airplane production exceeded schedule by three per cent and increased twelve per cent over February.

Announcing a March production of 7,053 planes, J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production Board, today described the month's output as "consistently good" in all categories.

The month's schedule was 6,853 planes, the February output was 6,296 planes.

Bombers delivered in March totaled 2,544, two above schedule. Deliveries of other types were:

Fighters and naval reconnaissance, 3,329; schedule, 3,152; transports, 615; schedule, 620; trainers, 167, on schedule; communications and special purpose, 389; schedule, 373.

Hits Congress' Machinery

Brewster Says It's Too "Archaic" to Check On Government

WASHINGTON, April 4 (AP).—Senator Owen Brewster, Republican, of Maine, said today Congress is trying to keep tabs on a $100,000,000,000 government with "archaic and grotesque" machinery more in keeping with a billion-dollar government.

He and Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, told a joint committee considering Congressional reorganization that inadequate research assistance is the biggest handicap of the two houses.

Senator Taft suggested the Republican Senate minority conference receive additional experts to assemble factual data necessary to a better knowledge of legislation. Senator Brewster said he would put greater emphasis on more minority help of a technical level in the committees themselves.

MINERS GOING BACK TO WORK

But Contract Talks Bring No Settlement.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Soft coal miners were reported returning to the pits in increasing numbers today as indications grew that their wage contract dispute would go to the War Labor Board for settlement.

Reversing an earlier decision to stay here, John L. Lewis, union chieftain, left the negotiations with the bituminous operators today to attend anthracite contract negotiations opening in New York. His departure was interpreted as an indication that the soft coal negotiations were still stalemated and that the operator-miner negotiators might send the whole dispute to the WLB for settlement long before the Saturday deadline given them to reach a decision.

Reports from the field, meanwhile, indicated a growing back-to-work movement among the miners after layoffs yesterday that the Solid Fuels Administration estimated cut coal production to 60 per cent of normal.

21,000 Idle in Pennsylvania.

SFA offices in Pennsylvania reported that 12,584 still were idle at forty-six mines and estimated that an additional 9,000 still had not reported for work at mines which were operating. This compares, however, with 20,338 absentees at seventy-two idle mines and 10,000 absentees at working pits yesterday.

Reports from the West Virginia fields said that 85 to 90 per cent of the workers turned out today, although one mine in McDowell county did not operate when only forty-nine workers of a pay roll of 400 reported.

In Ohio, Ford Sampson, secretary of the Ohio Coal Operators Association, estimated that 40 per cent of the State's 16,000 miners were still idle and said that five large mines were shut down. Adolph Pacifico, vice-president of U. M. W. district 6, said, however, that he believed the absenteeism was due to a slow return from the Easter and Mitchell Day holidays and predicted a full force would be at work tomorrow. Only a small part of Indiana's 4,000 idle miners were reported back at work but most of them were expected to return tomorrow.

FRENCH - SOVIET PACT WILL NOT BE SUPERSEDED

Russian Bulletin States It Won't Be Nullified at San Francisco.

BACKS SPECIAL TREATIES

Article Says Parties Will Strike the First Blow at New German Aggression.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Any French fears that the international organization to be proposed at San Francisco might nullify the French-Soviet mutual-aid treaty were termed "groundless" today by the Soviet Information Bulletin.

It was such fears, the Bulletin suggested, that led the French Government to refuse to become a co-sponsor of the April 25 United Nations meeting.

Asserting that the French-Soviet treaty provides for automatic mutual assistance by the two Powers "under certain circumstances," the publication, in an article from War and the Working Class by M. Nikolayev, said:

"No objection can be raised to the French-Soviet treaty which, with respect to its automatic operation, is identical with the Soviet-Czecho-Slovak treaty."

Partial Text of Article.

Referring also to the Anglo-Soviet treaty, the article continued:

"Indeed, what inconsistency can possibly be detected between these treaties and the contemplated basis of the future international organization, which provides for the taking of measures 'for the prevention and removal of threats to peace and the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace?' Is this not the purpose of all the three above-mentioned treaties?

"If the Soviet Union, France, Britain and Czecho-Slovakia assume in advance a special obligation to combat German aggression irrespective of the decisions of the international organization, this can only be regarded as a special form of promotion of the organization's aims.

"The operation of the treaties by no means precludes the participation of other members of the new organization in the suppression of German aggression should they desire it, or should it be the decision of the organization. But the parties to the bilateral treaties, as it were, voluntarily obligate themselves to strike the first blow at a new act of German aggression."

Backs Bilateral Pacts.

As to an argument that bilateral treaties are superfluous, the publication said the countries involved "have suffered too much from the present war to found their security on hopes."

"They dare not neglect," it said, "any supplementary guarantees for their safety against future German aggression.

"Experience has shown that individual obligations of individual states, in respect to Allied assistance, are observed to a greater degree and more rapidly than obligations assumed under collective agreements."

If necessary, the bulletin suggested, a resolution might be moved at San Francisco "by which bilateral treaties previously concluded between countries most directly liable to the danger of German aggression will be taken cognizance of by the conference itself and considered to be consistent with the general trend of policy of the future organization."

SENATORS TOLD AMERICA WILL GET LESS SUGAR

They Also Hear Meat Won't Strike Balance Until After the War.

WORLD DEFICIT IS 15 P. C

Civilians Here May Not Have as Great a Supply of Sweets as the British.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Senate food investigators were told today that the sugar supply situation this year will be the most difficult of the war with American civilians getting possibly less than the British.

On the other hand, Lieut.-Col. R. W. Olmstead, chairman of the War Food Administration's allocations committee, estimated that world meat demand and supply may strike a balance one year after the European war ends.

He presented these figures on estimated sugar requirements for 1945:

United States—Per capita consumption of 83 pounds for civilians, a reduction of 7 per cent from 1944 and 14 per cent below 1935-39.

United Kingdom—Per capita consumption of 86 pounds, an increase of 23 per cent over 1944, but 17 per cent below 1934-38.

Canada—Per capita consumption of about 83 pounds, a reduction of 4 per cent from 1944 and 12 per cent below 1935-39.

Col. Olmstead emphasized that supply estimates are by no means firm, leaving open the question whether actual deliveries may not fall still shorter. It was brought out that the British can take from storage about half their estimated requirements and still have stocks of about pre-war level.

As to meat, Col. Olmstead testified that the present world deficit is 6,200,000,000 pounds, or 15 per cent of estimated requirements.

As to Horse Meat.

Senator Thomas (D.-Okla.), the chairman, asked the witness what possibility there was that horse meat might help ease the current meat shortage for civilians.

Col. Olmstead turned that question over to N. E. Dodd, an Agriculture Department aid, who said he thought that offered no real possibilities.

Col. Olmstead testified that the United Nations face their greatest shortage in canned meats. In many military operations, he said, it is not possible to depend on fresh meat because of lack of refrigeration facilities. And because of distribution problems, no fresh meat is sent to Russia which gets only cured or canned meats.

The total estimated requirement for canned meat this year is 7,100,000,000 pounds, he said, and the total prospective supplies amount to 4,037,000,000 pounds.

Potatoes Cooked in Pits.

"It doesn't appear anything can be done about it as canning lines are operating at capacity," he added.

Col. Olmstead related that a system now has been devised whereby surplus potatoes are buried in pits lined with steam pipes. When the potatoes are removed, he said, they have been cooked to about the proper stage for potato salad and are sold for cattle feed.

In an earlier discussion of spoilage, Col. Olmstead said that if the Atchison (Kan.) storage cave had been available at the time, it would not have been necessary to take losses on spoilage of 20,000,000 pounds of lard and millions of eggs, as happened last year.

"It is conceivable that there may be the necessity for two peace conferences—one to settle the war in Europe and the other to settle the war in the Pacific," he told a reporter.

Noting that Russia is not now a participant in the hostilities against Japan, the Texan said he felt time might be gained in placing in operation a proposed peace-keeping league if Europe's political problems are threshed out quickly.

The fate of Russia's bid for three votes in the general assembly of that league remained in doubt meanwhile following the State Department disclosure that the United States will seek only one while supporting the Soviet request.

Predictions were made freely on Capitol Hill that the Russian claim eventually will be denied. But members of the American delegation said they felt they were morally bound by President Roosevelt's promise to Premier Stalin at Yalta to support the Soviet position.

ANSWERS TAFT NOTE ON POLES

Stettinius Is Confident of a Fair Solution.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Stettinius wrote to Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) today that he is confident "a fair solution will be reached" by a three-nation commission on composition of a provisional Polish government.

Mr. Taft had written to the Secretary urging that this Government "refuse approval to any provisional government which is predominantly under the influence of the Russian Government or is not proportionately representative of the Polish people."

"It seems to me," the Senator said in his letter, "that the test of that government can be found in its treatment of the underground army and the Polish armies fighting with the United States in Italy and elsewhere."

He said that stories now are coming out of Poland "telling of the arrest of members of the Polish underground and their shipment to Russian concentration camps." "It would be a tragic error," he stated, "for the United States to recognize any government under whose rule the existing Polish armies would be unable or afraid to return to Poland."

Calls De 'sions 'Sound.'

Replying that he shared the concern which Senator Taft had expressed about the Polish situation, Mr. Stettinius said he was satisfied that the decisions reached at the Crimea conference between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin were "sound." At that meeting the Big Three agreed that their representatives would work out a basis for a provisional government which would include all Democratic elements.

"This Government is doing its utmost to implement those decisions fully and promptly," the Secretary said. "Because of the complexity of the problem and the many conflicting interests involved, however, progress has not been as rapid as we had hoped for, but I am still confident that a fair solution will be reached.

"I can assure you that the American member of the commission now meeting in Moscow is consistently and steadfastly working for the re-establishment of a Polish government that will be broadly representative of the Polish people and the creation of conditions in Poland that will permit the holding of a free and fair election."

The American representative on the commission is Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Two Sessions for Peace Seen

Connally Says First Meeting Will Be Held When War Ends in Europe.

Washington, April 4 (A. P.).—Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) suggested today that two peace conferences instead of one may draw the map of the future world.

Mr. Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a delegate to the San Francisco United Nations conference, said an early victory in Europe may hasten a peace meeting before the war against Japan is won.

Muzzled Dogs Face Seizure

Albany, April 4 (AP).—A muzzled dog off the leash loses its immunity from seizure in rabies-infected areas under a bill signed today by Gov. Dewey.

"Experience has shown," Dewey said, "that few dogs are properly muzzled. Moreover, muzzling of the dogs does not prevent spread of rabies. The rabid dog is apt to be unmuzzled. The muzzled, by being handicapped, is rendered defenseless to attack by the rabid dog and simply becomes an additional carrier of the disease . . ."

The bill strikes out a provision of the Public Health Law that excepted muzzled dogs from those liable to seizure and death if found at large in areas designated by the state health commissioner as infected.

Dogs actively immunized against rabies may remain at large, under prescribed conditions. If a dog is leashed or confined, immunization is not required.

ANTHRACITE MINERS ASK 25% PAY RISE

Ten Cents A Ton Royalty And Other Demands Given To Operators

New York, April 4 (AP)—The United Mine Workers today asked a 25 per cent salary increase for 72,000 workers in the hard-coal field.

The miners also demanded a royalty of 10 cents a ton, as they did in the bituminous negotiations, and asked severance pay for suspensions, dismissals and layoffs.

A set of 30 demands was presented by President John L. Lewis to the representatives of 190 hard-coal producers in eastern Pennsylvania as negotiations opened for a new contract to replace the one expiring April 30.

Lewis Calls Boost Deserving

Lewis said before the negotiations began that the miners had received "only a fifteen per cent increase since 1923" and that they now deserved "a considerable increase" because "we know industry is prosperous."

At a press conference following the first negotiations session, UMW Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy said: "We believe there is enough leeway in our demands to keep within the Little Steel formula."

Kennedy also said there was no way at present to estimate the over-all cost of the demanded increases to the operators because of varying pay rates among miners.

Operators To Consider

Ralph E. Taggart, president of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, said the operators would give "full consideration" to the demands, adding that they had received them only today and would need time to study them.

The negotiations were recessed until next Tuesday (2 P.M., E.W.T.) at which time the operators are expected to make a detailed statement.

Taggart said the anthracite miners were among the nation's highest paid workers, that they have a seven-hour basic work day and that their average wage was $1.17 an hour.

In the statement of demands, the miners urged elimination of the present six-day work week "when the war emergency ends," and called for time and one half or rate and one half pay for work beyond a seven-hour day and 35-hour week.

Nazi Secret Weapon Claims Impress Spain

New York, April 4 (AP)—A Spanish radio station at Valladolid in a domestic broadcast tonight asserted that Nazi claims to possession of secret weapons capable of winning the war "cannot be doubted."

The broadcast said existence of the weapons had been "confirmed by many signs and testimonies."

"The delay in the employment of those means," said the broadcast, "may be explained by several reasons. They have a destructive power so enormous that their employment can be justified only when there is no other way to save the life of the nation. It is a last resource, and it would not be human to use it before all other means have failed. . . .

"There's no reason to doubt that Germany possesses such weapons; German official veracity cannot be doubted."

AP Photographer Honored

New York, April 4 (AP)—Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer who took the picture of the Marines planting the American flag atop Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima, became today an honorary member of the Art Directors Club.

Counterdrive Promise By Hitler Announced

New York, April 4 (AP)—Adolf Hitler was quoted by a West German radio station tonight as promising an army unit on the Eastern front that a Nazi "counteroffensive" was "no longer far off."

The domestic broadcast said Hitler told his troops it was necessary to hold the attackers only until "our offensive army is ready for a counteroffensive."

The remark was made, the broadcast said, during a visit by Hitler to the Eastern front, where he decorated a unit commander.

PROBE TIE-IN SALES

NEW YORK, April 4.—(AP) The Regional OPA office said today that a large part of the "flying squad of OPA poultry price investigators" had been shifted to produce markets after receipt of an industry group protest against forced tie-in-sales.

PENICILLIN DANGER RELATED TO PUBLIC

NEW YORK, April 4 — (AP) A warning against giving the public penicillin in toothpaste, lozenges, chewing gum, shaving cream, first aid bandages and suppositories and jellies was given to the Hair Fashion Council of America here tonight.

The objections were stated by Dr. Herman Goodman, New York dermatologist, who said medical reports from Great Britain are given as the basis of expecting these penicillin preparations. He added that a few manufacturers had made preliminary announcement of availability of penicillin cosmetics and drugs.

Dr. Goodman said self-administration of penicillin is dangerous, because the public will be unable to recognize for sure when it has been cured.

Medical experience with penicillin, Dr. Goodman explained, already has shown that inadequate doses of the new drug reduce the signs of an illness to the point where a person appears to be cured but really is not.

Such false cures carry two dangers. One is to create an army of disease carriers. The other is that the inadequate dosage of penicillin may result in hiding some disease, more serious than the one for which the penicillin is taken.

Natural Gas Discovered In Fuel-Starved France

New York, April 4 (AP)—Sources of natural gas have been discovered in fuel-starved France, but the nation's industrial experts need some pointers for its development and utilization.

This was disclosed today in a letter from Paris received by the American Gas Association from the general secretary of the Union Syndicale de l'Industrie du Gaz en France, which said:

"We are looking forward to the sending of a mission to the United States to resume official contact with the American Gas Association and to see developments which you have made in America both from the viewpoint of manufacturing and that of utilization.

"We should, moreover, let you know that important sources of natural gas were discovered in France, and since you have had so much experience in its distribution and use, this would be most valuable to us."

Religious Pronouncements Urge San Francisco Meeting Success

NEW YORK, April 4 — (AP) Three prominent clergymen announced today, after a study of recent religious pronouncements on world organization, that Catholic, Jewish and Protestant groups were agreed it is "imperative that the San Francisco conference succeed."

The three men, analyzing statements made by agencies of the three religious bodies, delineated areas of agreement in reference to the United Nations organization and the San Francisco conference.

The study was made by the Rev. Richard M. Fagley, secretary of the commission on a just and durable peace, Federal council of Churches; Rabbi Ahron Opher, secretary of the Committee on Peace, Synagogue Council of America, and Rev. Edward A. Conway, S. J., Social Action department, National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Their nine recommendations for improvement of the United Nations charter called for:

1—A preamble to affirm subjection of states as well as individuals to moral principles. 2—Eventual universal membership. 3—Coficiation and development of international law. 4—Provision for "peaceful change" by providing explicit means for revising treaties and other agreements.

5—Assurance to small nations of "an adequate share" in policy-shaping. 6—Clear procedure for mutual disarmament. 7—Denial to any nation power to veto judgment in any dispute covered by international law. 8—Formulation of a world bill of human rights and establishment of implementing agencies. 9—Trusteeship commission for mandated territory and "to promote advancement of non-self-governing peoples toward economic well-being, cultural development and political responsibility."

The three men said the recommendations were based upon the following pronouncements:

"Pattern for peace," issued by Catholic, Jewish and Protestant leaders in 1943; statement of Catholic bishops in November, 1944; of Federal Council of Churches, December, 1944; of Synagogue Council in January, 1945, and of the Cleveland Church conference in the same month.

MAINTAIN BASES, FLEET, KING ASKS

Navy Chief Addresses Plea To Peace Organization

New York, April 4 (AP)—Asserting that the Pacific war so far has been "largely a battle for bases," Admiral Ernest J. King urged tonight that the United States maintain, after the war, overseas bases "implemented by an appropriate fleet ready for action."

Addressing a dinner meeting sponsored by the Academy of Political Science and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the fleet commander in chief asked:

"How long can the United States afford to continue a cycle of fighting and building and winning and giving away—only to fight and build and win and give away again?"

Marshall 'Off Record'

The other principal address, by Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, was off the record.

King declared that the success of international agreements after the war "will rest on world appreciation and recognition that these decisions can be and probably will be enforced." Sea power, he said, "will be an essential means to this end."

"Of all the elements of sea power, this nation suffered most at the war's outbreak from the lack of overseas bases," King said, "and the bases we did possess were not equipped with the requisite guns and planes and men to stem the enemy's initial onslaughts.

"It is well to remember that the mere ownership of outlying bases means little if these bases are not maintained and implemented by an appropriate fleet ready for action."

Homes In Postwar Era To Cost More

New York, April 4 (AP)—A new home will cost 20 to 25 per cent more right after the war than in 1940, but when new materials and new methods are introduced, costs should gravitate toward prewar levels, Harry D. Watts, president of James Stewart & Co., contractors, said today.

"The postwar period must be divided into an era of using older ideas while developing the new, and then an era of manufacturing and using the new products," Watts said.

Antiquated building codes and jurisdictional labor disputes as to "who will do what," he said, are the biggest factors in retarding the trend toward lower-cost housing.

Preassembled Units

"If preassembly is condoned by the building trades, it will be a godsend to the American housewife, because preassembled units are more easily cared for and cost less than those assembled on the spot," he declared.

Watts said building codes can be modernized to fit postwar conditions only through action of the American people in their home towns.

As for labor disputes, he said: "For speed and economy in home building, and for the introduction of new devedopments, we should have a national arbitration board with teeth in it—within labor itself—to decide who will do what in jurisdictional disputes." He added, however, that there has been no great problem as to wages or labor conditions in the building trades.

Jurisdictional Disputes

The only difficulties lie in the jurisdictional methods which such board, with authority to act promptly and decisively, could settle to the advantage of both labor and the home-building public, he said.

The changes are necessary to the entire building program, he added, because "as now set up, the building trades could not possibly cope with the unprecedented volume of new building which will be necessary in the postwar period."

Watts said both prefabrication and preassembly of portions of homes will be important factors in speeding up building and cutting costs.

Nazi War Prisoners Had Ham for Easter

BOSTON, April 4—(AP) Many of the thousands of German prisoners of war in this area ate ham for their evening meal on Easter Sunday, the First Service command disclosed today.

The Public Relations office confirmed a Boston Traveler article to the effect that ham, which was virtually unavailable to citizens in the Boston Metropolitan area on the Sabbath, had been served in virtually all prisoner of war camps here.

The Traveler drew a comparison between the food served the German prisoners, the reputedly "starvation diets" served American prisoners held by the Germans, and that which was available to the public.

"The Germans," the Traveler said, "ate ham for Easter Sunday—a luxury denied all but few citizens. The remainder of the meal was oranges, lettuce, potatoes, bread and oleomargarine, fruit salad and coffee."

The paper added that on at least one occasion during the week closing on Easter German prisoners were served beef twice in one day.

In confirming the Traveler's assertion that ham was served, the pro said that it was done under a recently established policy which entitles the prisoners to certain prescribed fares.

The menu, Army headquarters said, was arranged at Fort Devens where a number of prisoners are held.

Different Soldiers Have Used Same Eye

ST. JOSEPH, La., April 4 — (AP) John W. Amos' eye is doing duty in its second World War, but the eye is overseas and Amos is here.

He received a letter today from Frank Chabina of Hammond, La., a young man to whom he gave the uninjured retina of a blinded eye several years ago when the two became acquainted in a New Orleans hospital.

The letter said:

"Now, Pop, you can tell the people that your eye—I mean 'our' eye—is back in the fight again. It's remarkable, isn't it? You were in the last World war with your eye, and now I have that same eye in this war, and if luck stays with me I'm coming back with it. I hope I can visit you soon after my return to the good old U. S. A."

2 Escaped Nazis Found Asleep in Farm Truck

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., April 4.—Two German prisoners of war who escaped from Camp Picket March 25 were apprehended by a civilian at Burkeville yesterday, the Norfolk office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported.

Joseph Hall, who apprehended the prisoners, said he found them asleep in a truck in his apple orchard.

The FBI said the prisoners were Walter Mohr and Werner Mielenz. They had been sleeping in the woods and living on food they took from the camp, the FBI said.

Cleric Plans To Revive American Church In Paris

Cincinnati, April 4 (AP)—Resigning the pastorate of Seventh Presbyterian Church here, the Rev. Dr. Clayton E. Williams said tonight he had been invited by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to re-establsh the American Church in Paris which he served for fifteen years.

Dr. Williams said he expected to leave for France late this month. His wife, daughter, and two sons will join him later.

The American Church in Paris is nondenominational. Dr. Williams said he was informed that the building was almost intact, but its congregation nonexistent. His work first, he said, would be among American soldiers in the city, expanding as American civilians return to the French capital.

In Paris when the city fell on June 14, 1940, Dr. Williams helped evacuate refugees. The following month he brought his family to this country, returned to France with relief supplies and came back here in the Summer of 1941. He became pastor of the Cincinnati church in November of that year.

Sergeant Talked Entire Nazi Garrison into Surrendering

BALTIMORE, April 4 — (AP) First Sgt. Michael J. Lynch of Baltimore, a member of the 7th armored division which spearheaded the Third army's drive into France, sold 284 Germans on the idea of surrendering and thereby won a silver star.

His citation related this story of his conduct after he and four comrades were captured near Chartres:

He demanded the best treatment for himself and his buddies. Then he led the group in singing.

When the puzzled Germans asked why the prisoners were so spirited, Lynch described an imaginary storming of the city which he said would lead to liberation.

Alarmed, the Germans offered to release the prisoners in return for a safe conduct guarantee, but Lynch refused to accept anything less than capitulation of the entire garrison.

Then the garrison commander, a colonel, offered to surrender all troops except himself. Lynch was adamant.

The American sergeant was surprised when U. S. shells fell in the town the next morning, but not too surprised to accept the commander's surrender offer.

He arranged for an American lieutenant to come to the besieged town and the entire garrison of Chartres laid down arms.

NATION IS WARNED TO CONSERVE TIRES

Akron, Ohio, April 4 (A. P.).—J. J. Newman, vice-president of the B. F. Goodrich Company, declared today that "only the most conscientious practice of all tire-conserving methods can avert a serious breakdown in delivery of essential foods and war materials" throughout the United States.

"Isolation of important war plants from their labor and material sources and partial paralysis of vital city transit services and food deliveries from farms are now definite threats," he added, predicting the next three months will be "the most critical transportation period in the 'rubber-borne' history of this nation."

He said the Office of Defense Transportation recently reported that because of unprecedented military demands, civilian heavy-duty truck tire allocations for the second quarter of 1945 would be only half the number estimated as necessary to meet essential requirements. The situation in personal transportation, he added, is acute. Surveys show, he said, that approximately 46,000,000 passenger-car tires in need of either replacement or recapping "right now, but only 18,000,000 new tires are expected to be produced in all of this year for civilian use."

To emphasize the degree to which "commercial rubber-borne vehicles are vital to personal existence in this country," he said that more than half of Chicago's butter, eggs and live poultry is trucked in; trucks bring to Los Angeles more than four-fifths of its fruits and vegetables and more than nine-tenths of its eggs. In thirty-four American cities, ranging in population from 105,000 to 1,750,000, the entire milk supply comes in by truck, he declared, adding that more than 54,000 communities with a combined population of about seven millions are entirely dependent on automotive transportation.

Stettinius Stresses Hopes Of Eliminating War Causes

CHICAGO, April 4—(AP) Secretary of State Stettinius said tonight "we shall do all in our power" to convene a conference of the world's principal trading nations within the next year to consider commerce problems.

Stettinius emphasized government plans for the "removal of the political, economic and social causes of war" in a speech before the council on foreign relations.

The proposed trade conference, he said, "would also prepare the way for establishment of a permanent trade organization within the framework of the world organization, to deal with these problems on a continuing basis."

Hopeful of Conference

The secretary expressed "full confidence that we shall be able to resolve" the "temporary difficulties of a political nature that have arisen in connection with the San Francisco conference" on world organization opening April 25.

Saying he was unable to discuss the subject in detail "because the United States government is at this moment engaged in very active efforts to resolve these difficulties," he added:

"We are going right ahead with our plans for the San Francisco conference and we are resolved to make it the success that it must be. I ask you to remember: First that the United Nations have repeatedly overcome other difficulties far more serious in the past three years; second that the vital national interests of the United States and each of our Allies are bound up in maintaining and cementing in the peace our wartime partnership; third that the extent of our agreement is far wider and more fundamental than the extent of our differences."

He spoke with obvious references to recent Russian moves that have cast a shadow over the forthcoming San Francisco conference—a demand for representation for the Soviet-recognized Polish provisional government, a demand for three votes in the assembly of the world organization, and choice of ambassador to the U. S. Andrei Gromyko instead of Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov to head the Russian delegation to the meeting.

He told a news conference in Washington yesterday that he still hoped a merger could be achieved between the two Polish governments which would enable Poland to be represented at San Francisco.

The secretary said that "our foreign policy is based upon the hard facts that if we are to prevent the disaster of another war for the United States we must find the means to act effectively with other nations to prevent aggression anywhere in the world."

While he recognized the importance of present political knots in international relations, he chose to emphasize economic issues as the key to building a prosperous, peaceful world.

Stettinius said that to provide 60 million jobs, the U. S. must export at least ten billion dollars worth of goods each year. Wartime exports, apparently including lend-lease, were 14 billion last year, he said.

He put forward the administration's case for repeal of the Johnson act which bans loans to countries which defaulted on World War 1 debts, increase of the export-import bank's capital, approval of the Bretton Woods financial agreements, and amendment of the reciprocal trade agreements not to alow cuts of as much as 50 per cent in present tariffs.

"High tariffs today act as a depressing influence upon the living standard of the American people," Stettinius asserted.

"Only by calling a conference of the principal trading nations of the world," he said, can these and other problems of domestic and international economy be met. He assured that "we shall do all in our power to have such a conference convene during the next year."

Stettinius concluded with a plea to his countrymen to place the cause of a lasting peace above current problems.

"Believing in America as I do, I am confident that we will meet this greatest crisis in our modern history as we have met all the crises of our history before."

2500 Made Idle By Timken Strike

Detroit, April 4 (A. P.).—Approximately 2,500 workers in the Timken-Detroit Axle Company's main plant were sent home today following a strike of 400 repair, toolroom and maintenance men.

A company spokesman said that the strike started after the dismissal of a machine repairman for infraction of company rules. He added that the lack of repair and maintenance service probably would close the plant late today, making 5,000 employees idle.

War Output Scheduled Into '46

DETROIT, April 4 (AP).—Edward T. Gushee, chairman of the Detroit area production urgency committee, said today that the committee had approved $1,124,719,000 in war supply and facility contracts during the first quarter of 1945. This compares with $2,783,883,710 in contracts approved during all of 1944. "Much of this production is scheduled to start later in the year, and some of it extends into 1946," Mr. Gushee said. "Regardless of what happens in Europe in the next few days or weeks, it is to be assumed that much of this production will be required for the Japanese phase of the war."

Kaufmann Re-Elected Mayor Of St. Louis

St. Louis, April 4 (AP)—A. P. Kaufmann, Republican, was re-elected Mayor of St. Louis yesterday, defeating Henry F. Chadeayne, Democrat.

Kaufmann became Mayor when Mayor William Dee Becker was killed in a glider crash in August, 1943. He was elected for an unexpired mayoral term last November.

Non-Lawyer Defeated For Wisconsin Judge

Milwaukee, April 4 (AP) — Wisconsin voters yesterday for the second time in six years rejected the bid of a nonlawyer for a seat on the Supreme Court bench by giving Justice Elmer E. Barlow a plurality of nearly 75,000 votes over Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman.

With returns from 2,374 of the State's 3,109 precincts tabulated, Barlow, appointed by Gov. Julius P. Heil in 1942 to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Justice George B. Nelson, led by 178,735 to 103,769. Peter F. Leuch, Milwaukee attorney, ran far behind with 18,260. Barlow carried all except four of the State's 71 counties.

Ebployee Suit Against Northwest Asks $1,900,200

ST. PAUL, April 4 (AP).—A suit to recover $1,900,200 from Northwest Airlines under the time-and-one-half provisions of the fair labor standards act of 1938 was filed in Federal Court today in behalf of a former employee and approximately 3,00 others.

While the complaint named David J. Jackson, of St. Paul, as the chief plaintiff, it stated the suit 'is of common and general interest to all employees and former employees of the defendant."

The complaint asked damages "in excess of $100" for Mr. Jackson, alleging that he had worked as a time clerk for Northwest and was not paid time and one-half for overtime after forty hours of duty. Mr. Jackson left the company's employ on March 28.

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY ON THE TWENTE CANAL, HOLLAND, APRIL 4-(AP)-THE FIRST V-BOMB SITE TO FALL TO THE CANADIANS IN THEIR CURRENT OFFENSIVE IN NORTHERN HOLLAND WAS LOCATED ON AN ESTATE AT HUIZE ZELLE IN NORTH-EAST HOLLAND.

THE V-BOMBS WERE SECRETED IN HUNDREDS OF CLEVERLY CAMOUFLAGED SITES ALONG A SECONDARY ROAD LEADING BY THE ESTATE AND CIVILIANS WERE NOT ALLOWED TO USE THE ROAD. THIS DEPOT FED LAUNCHING SITES JUST NORTH OF THE TWENTE CANAL LOCATED IN NUMEROUS WOODLANDS.

AN UNDERGROUND LEADER SAID APPROXIMATELY 50 PER CENT OF THE V-1'S FELL TO THE GROUND WITHIN A FEW MILES OF THE LAUNCHING SITES, APPARENTLY DUE TO MECHANICAL DEFECTS.

MOSCOW, APRIL 4-(AP)-THE NEXT FEW HOURS MAY DISCLOSE WHETHER MARSHAL FEODOR I.TOLBUKHIN INTENDS TO STRIKE DIRECTLY INTO VIENNA IMMEDIATELY OR FIRST TO CUT THE SPRAWLING CITY OFF FROM COMMUNICATIONS UP THE DANUBE VALLEY.

THE MAIN ARMORED FORCE OF HIS THIRD UKRAINIAN ARMY ROLLED THROUGH VIENNA'S SUBURBS TODAY. GERMAN RESISTANCE INCREASED, BUT SOVIET TANKS AND MOTORBORNE INFANTRY FOUGHT FORWARD OVER A FLAT PLAIN THICKLY VEINED WITH RAILWAYS AND ROADS. NAZI PREPARATIONS WERE REPORTED FOR A FINAL STREET FIGHT INSIDE VIENNA.

TO THE EAST DISASTROUS CONFUSION WAS REPORTED AMONG GERMAN ARMY AND VOLKSSTRUM UNITS FALLING BACK FROM OVERRUN DEFENSES IN THE BRATISLAVA GAP AS TOLBUKHIN'S TROOPS AND MARSHAL RODION Y.MALINOVSKY'S SECOND UKRAINIAN ARMY ESTABLISHED CONTACT ON THEIR FRONTS NORTH OF THE NEUSIEDLER SEE (LAKE).

BRATISLAVA, SLOVAKIA'S PICTURESQUE CAPITAL 24 MILES EAST OF VIENNA'S CITY LIMITS, WAS HEMMED IN ON THREE SIDES BY MALINOVSKY'S FORCES. ITS COMPLETE ENCIRCLEMENT WAS BELIEVED TO BE ONLY A MATTER OF HOURS. MALINOVSKY APPEARED TO BE TAKING GREAT CARE TO AVOID UNNECESSARY BATTLE DAMAGE TO THE CITY.

THE NOISE OF BATTLE WAS AUDIBLE TO THE JITTERY RESIDENTS OF VIENNA. WHETHER THE AUSTRIAN CAPITAL, WHICH COVERS ABOUT 70 SQUARE MILES, WILL BE DEFENDED AS STUBBORNLY AS BUDAPEST OR BRESLAU SEEMED TO BE A QUESTION MAINLY OF GERMAN MORALE.

THE CITY HAS MANY STRONGLY CONSTRUCTED STONE BUILDINGS AND PROVIDES THOUSANDS OF POTENTIAL STRONGPOINTS.

ROME, APRIL 4-(AP)-IN RECOGNITION OF SERVICES TO THE ETERNAL CITY, COL.CHARLES POLETTI WILL BE AWARDED TOMORROW A SPECIAL MEDAL FROM THE CITY OF ROME BY MAYOR PRINCE DORIA IN CEREMONIES TO BE ATTENDED BY PREMIER IVANOE BONOMI AND OTHER ALLIED ITALIAN OFFICIALS.

COL.POLETTI IS PREPARING TO ASSUME THE POST OF REGIONAL ALLIED COMMISSIONER OF MILAN WHEN THE NORTH IS LIBERATED. HE PREVIOUSLY HELD THE SAME POST IN PALERMO, NAPLES AND CENTRAL ITALY.

FORMER PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON AND THE 19TH CENTURY GERMAN HISTORIAN MOMMSEN ARE THE ONLY TWO PERSONS WHO EVER HAVE BEEN AWARDED A SIMILAR MEDAL BY THE CITY OF ROME.

IN A FAREWELL BROADCAST TO ROMANS TONIGHT, COL.POLETTI REVIEWED ACTIVITIES OF THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT IN THE CAPITAL DURING THE MONTHS FOLLOWING LIBERATION AND CONCLUDED:

"THE WAY BACK TO PROSPERITY AND STRENGTH IS LONG AND DIFFICULT. WE WHO HAVE WORKED WITH YOU WILL FOLLOW THE STAGES OF YOUR DEVELOPMENT WITH SYMPATHY AND ARE CERTAIN THAT IF ITALIANS BELIEVE IN THEMSELVES, IF THEIR LEADERS HAVE FAITH IN THE PEOPLE AND IF EVERYBODY APPLIES HIMSELF TO THE WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION ITALY WILL ONCE MORE HAVE THE PLACE THAT AWAITS HER AMONG NATIONS."

ADD ROME XX FORCE

DE SALIS SAID HE HAD NO KNOWLEDGE, HOWEVER, OF REPORTS BROADCAST BY FOREIGN RADIOS THAT THE FRONTIER WOULD BE CLOSED TODAY BECAUSE OF ANTICIPATED IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IN NORTHERN ITALY. HE SAID VERY FEW VISAS TO CROSS THE BORDER HAD BEEN ISSUED LATELY TO ITALIANS.

THE ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTRY ALSO SAID IT HAD NO KNOWLEDGE OF REPORTS THE FRONTIER WOULD BE CLOSED.

THE POST, IN A PRIVATE HOUSE IN CEUTA PERCHED ON A HIGH CLIFF OVERLOOKING THE STRAIT, WAS SAID TO have been operated by Spanish FALANGIST AGENTS IN PAY OF THE GERMANS. IT WAS RAIDED BY AMERICAN OFFICIALS WITH SPANISH ASSISTANCE. A POWERFUL RADIO TRANSMITTER AND GERMAN CODE BOOKS WERE SEIZED.

EARLIER RAIDS AGAINST SUSPECTED NAZI ESPIONAGE POSTS IN SPANISH MOROCCO, OPPOSITE GIBRALTAR, WERE SAID TO HAVE FAILED. WITH THE APPROACH OF THE PRESIDENT'S CONVOY AMERICAN OFFICIALS IN TANGIER WENT TO TETUAN, SPANISH MOROCCO, WHERE SPANISH OFFICIALS, ALTHOUGH SKEPTICAL, AGREED TO SEND A SPANISH MILITARY OFFICER TO ESCORT THE AMERICAN RAIDING PARTY.

ABOARD ADM.TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, RYUKYU ISLANDS, APRIL 4-(AP)-OCCASIONAL BURSTS OF JAPANESE FIRE AND SIGNS OF AN ELABORATE TRENCH SYSTEM INDICATED AMERICAN TROOPS WHEELING SOUTH ON OKINAWA TOWARD ITS CAPITAL CITY OF NAHA MAY BE APPROACHING A STRONG DEFENSE LINE RUNNING ACROSS THE SOUTHERN END OF THE ISLAND.

AIR OBSERVERS REPORTED JAPANESE MILITARY TRUCKS MOVING BEHIND THE POSSIBLE DEFENSE LINE. THEY SPOTTED MANY FOX HOLES AND PILLBOXES ON HIGH GROUND IN GOOD DEFENSIVE POSITION.

SO FAR, THE ONLY NOTEWORTHY RESISTANCE WAS OFFERED IN THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND WHERE A FORCE OF JAPANESE, PERHAPS AN ENTIRE BATTALION, WAS ENCIRCLED BY THE 24TH CORPS MONDAY. IT WAS SPLIT UP AND REDUCED YESTERDAY, WHILE INFANTRYMEN AND MARINES OVERRAN ALL BUT A FEW ISOLATED AND REMOTE SECTORS OF A TEN-MILE SQUARE AREA.

THE POTENTIAL SOUTHERN DEFENSE LINE RUNS NORTH OF THE MACHINATO AND YONABARU AIR STRIPS. MACHINATO IS FIVE MILES NORTH OF NAHA AND YONABARU IS SIX MILES EAST OF THAT PORT CITY. YANK INFANTRYMEN ARE LESS THAN THREE MILES FROM EACH AIR STRIP.

IN THE FACE OF THIS POSSIBLE FIRST MEETING OF ORGANIZED RESISTANCE, LT.GEN.SIMON BOLIVAR BUCKNER, JR., SAID THE CRUCIAL PERIOD OF HIS TENTH ARMY'S INVASION DEFINITELY IS PAST.

"THE CRITICAL PERIOD OF LANDING MEN AND SUPPLIES IS OVER," BUCKNER SAID. "WHAT PLEASES ME IS THE WAY IT ALL WORKED LIKE A SET PIECE. ARMY, NAVY AND MARINE ELEMENTS ALL FUNCTIONED LIKE CLOCKWORK.

"EVEN WITHOUT OPPOSITION AN OPERATION THIS COMPLICATED COULD HAVE BROKEN DOWN. THERE IS A LOT OF MOVEMENT HERE AND EVERYONE KNOWS WHERE HE IS GOING."

WHILE THE ARMY TURNED SOUTH FROM A LINE RUNNING FROM THE WEST TO THE EAST COAST, THE THIRD MARINE AMPHIBIOUS CORPS TURNED NORTHWARD. SOME MARINES CROSSED TO THE EAST COAST, CUTTING OFF 2,000 YARD LONG KATSIREN PENINSULA.

THESE MARINES DROVE PAST OKINAWANS CALMLY PLOWING FIELDS AS THOUGH

NO WAR EXISTED. THE TIDE OF SURRENDERING CIVILIANS MOUNTED SWIFTLY. MARINES ALONE TOOK 3,115 INTO THEIR STOCKADES WITHIN A 14 HOUR PERIOD.

ELEVEN JAPANESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN YESTERDAY BY SHIP'S GUNS AND PROTECTING PLANES SCREENING AMPHIBIOUS CRAFT. FOR THE MOST PART ENEMY AIRCRAFT WAS UNABLE TO GET NEAR OKINAWA AND AS FAR AS THIS SHIP AND OTHERS WITHIN SIGHT ARE CONCERNED, IT HAS BEEN A PEACEFUL CRUISE WITH AN AIR ALERT USUALLY AT DUSK AND NOT MUCH BEFORE OR AFTER.

TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE DISCLOSED THE PRESENCE ON OKINAWA OF THE 7TH DIVISION. THE DIVISION'S 17TH AND 32D REGIMENTS HIT THE BEACHES SOUTH OF THE BISHAGAWA RIVER. THE 32D WENT ACROSS THE ISLAND TO THE EAST COAST. THE 7TH'S 184TH REGIMENT LANDED LATER AND IS NOW DRIVING SOUTHWARD.

YONTAN AIRFIELD, OKINAWA, APRIL 4-(AP)-THIS BUDDING AMERICAN AIRDROME, CAPTURED SUNDAY MORNING WHEN THE AMERICAN 10TH ARMY INVADED OKINAWA, ALREADY CONTAINS 24 SMALL YANK OBSERVATION PLANES AND THREE OPERATIONAL JAPANESE FIGHTERS.

IN ADDITION THERE IS THE WRECKAGE OF SOME 50 ENEMY AIRCRAFT CAUGHT IN THE AMERICAN NAVY'S SURFACE AND AIR PRE-INVASION BLASTS.

MEANWHILE PILOTS USING THIS FIELD SAID EVERY TOWN AND VILLAGE ON OKINAWA, INCLUDING THE CAPITAL CITY OF NAHA, HAS BEEN SO HARD HIT IT IS DIFFICULT TO FIND A TARGET.

"EVERY SIZABLE TOWN HAS BEEN REDUCED TO RUBBLE AND ASHES AND WE ARE UNABLE TO FIND SIGNIFICANT MILITARY ACTIVITY IN ANY OF THESE BOMBED AND BURNED-OUT AREAS," SAID 1ST LT.S.L.FRASER, PONTIAC, MICH., MEMBER OF A MARINE OBSERVATION UNIT.

FRASER'S UNIT IS COMMANDED BY CAPT.JOHN F.ROGERS, 106 LOEHR AVE., SYRACUSE, N.Y., AIR OFFICER FOR THE THIRD MARINE AMPHIBIOUS CORPS.

FIRST AMERICAN FLIERS TO LAND ON YONTAN WERE MARINE PILOTS 1ST LTS. FRANK MILLIKEN, MCALLEN, TEX., AND LARENCE STIEN, 939 TWENTY-FOURTH AVE., MINNEAPOLIS, IN THAT ORDER, MONDAY AFTERNOON. THEY FLEW TINY CORONADO SENTINEL PLANES.

THESE LITTLE SPOTTER PLANES HAD COME FROM CARRIERS TO START OPERATIONS FROM THIS EXCELLENT AIRDROME.

"THIS IS THE BEST JAPANESE AIRFIELD I'VE EVER SEEN, AND I WAS IN ON THE LEYTE (PHILIPPINES) SHOW," SAID NAVY LT.GEORGE HALL, MADISON, WIS.

YONTAN HAS THREE RUNWAYS, THE EAST-WEST ONE 5,100 FEET LONG. THE KATENA AIRSTRIP, TWO MILES TO THE SOUTH AND LIKEWISE IN AMERICAN HANDS, HAS 4,500-FOOT RUNWAY.

HALL AND HIS ASSISTANTS HAVE BEEN GOING OVER THE WRECKED JAPANESE PLANES ON THE FIELD. THEY ALSO APPROPRIATED THE NIPPONESE PLANE WHICH LANDED ON THE FIELD AFTER AMERICANS CAPTURED IT.

HALL AND HIS CREW FOUND A DUGOUT FILLED WITH NEW TOOLS AND DIE CASTINGS WHICH HE ESTIMATED WERE WORTH $150,000.

"THEY MUST HAVE BEEN GOING TO START A FACTORY HERE," HALL SAID.

YONTAN FIELD, ATOP A PLATEAU, IS WELL SURFACED AND HAS WELL-BUILT REVETMENTS AND DUGOUTS. OFF TO ONE SIDE IS A GRAVEYARD OF WRECKED ENEMY BOMBERS, FIGHTERS AND TRANSPORT PLANES.

A ROAD LEADS SOUTHWARD THROUGH RAMBLING FURUGAN VILLAGE, ACROSS A STONE BRIDGE OVER THE BISHAGAWA RIVER AND THROUGH CROWDED KATENA VILLAGE TO KATENA AIRFIELD, WHICH YANK ENGINEERS ARE BUSILY MODERNIZING.

KATENA FIELD HAS ONLY A FEW WRECKED JAPANESE PLANES, BUT IT ALSO HAS A DOZEN OR MORE FULL-SIZE DUMMY PLANES MADE OF WOVEN MATS.

OBSERVERS WHO HAVE LIVED IN THE ORIENT SAY OKINAWA'S HOUSES AND THE LARGEST CONCRETE HORSESHOE-SHAPED TOMBS PREVALENT EVERYWHERE ARE MORE SUGGESTIVE OF CHINA THAN OF JAPAN.

WE SAW A TOMB (A HORSEWHOE SHAPED ENCLOSURE WITH AN OPENING AT ONE END AND CONTAINING URNS WITH ASHES) AND LOOKED INSIDE. THE NEXT THINK I KNEW WILLIAMS JUMPED BACK AND POINTED HIS RIFLE AT THE ENTRANCE.

"'THERE'S JAPS IN THERE', HE CRIED. WE BOTH CREPT BACK AND LOOKED INSIDE.

"THERE WAS A WOMAN, HANDS HELD IN PRAYING POSITION, BOWING UP AND DOWN, ALMOST TO THE GROUND. BEHIND HER WERE THREE MEN AND TWO KIDS. I WENT BACK AND GOT A PATROL AND INTERPRETERS.

"A JAPANESE INTERPRETER WENT INTO THE TOMB AND TRIED TO GET THE PEOPLE TO COME OUT. HE SAID TO THE WOMAN;' LOOK, I AM JAPANESE AND I KNOW THE AMERICANS WON'T HURT YOU.' THE WOMAN TIMIDLY REACHED OUT, TILTED THE INTERPRETER'S HELMET UP AND SAW THAT HE WAS JAPANESE."

AFTER FIFTEEN MINUTES OF TALKING THE WOMAN STARTED TO COME OUT, BUT SAW DUBOIS' CAMERA AND THOUGHT IT WAS A GUN. DUBOIS POINTED THE CAMERA TO HIS OWN HEAD AND WHIRRED SOME FILM THROUGH. AS SOON AS THE WOMAN HEARD THE NOISE AND SAW THAT IT WAS NOT A GUN SHE SMILED AND CAME OUT. THEN THE REST CAME OUT.

"THEY TOLD THE INTERPRETER THEY HAD BEEN IN THE TOMBE FOR A WEEK." DUBOIS CONTINUED, "THE WOMAN SAID THERE WERE A LOT MORE CIVILIANS IN OTHER TOMBS AND CAVES, POINTING TO SOME NEARBY. BEFORE WE KNEW IT PEOPLE BEGAN STREAMING OUT ALL OVER THE PLACE. IN ONE CAVE THERE WERE TWO MEN AND A COW--THEY CAME OUT AND LEFT THE COW BEHIND. THE AMERICAN SOLDIERS GAVE CANDY AND CIGARETTES TO THE NOW SMILING PEOPLE. SOON THERE WERE 250 MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN. IT CERTAINLY WAS AN UNEXPECTED EXPERIENCE AND I SHOT 300 FEET OF FILM."

WINDSOR, ONT., APRIL 4-(AP)-TENTATIVELY APPROVED BY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS IN OTTAWA AND WASHINGTON, A PLAN TO ALLOW MALE WORKERS IN WINDSOR TO COMMUTE TO DETROIT FOR HIGH PRIORITY WAR EMPLOYMENT NOW IS IN ITS FINAL STAGES, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICIALS HERE SAID NO DETAILED INFORMATION ON HOW THE PLAN WILL OPERATE HAS YET BEEN RECEIVED AND THAT INSTRUCTIONS ARE BEING AWAITED FROM OTTAWA.

EDWARD L.CUSHMAN, MICHIGAN DIRECTOR OF THE WAR MANPOWER COMMISSION, SAID THE PLAN WAS FIRST CONCEIVED IN FEBRUARY AND THAT CONFERENCES ON THE MATTER HAVE BEEN HELD SINCE WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF N.S.S. AND AMERICAN IMMIGRATION SERVICES.

THE NEW PROPOSAL FOLLOWS COLLAPSE OF A SHORT-LIVED PLAN TO RECRUIT EXPERT TYPISTS AND STENOGRAPHERS FROM WINDSOR TO WORK FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY AND WAR AGENCIES IN DETROIT. THE PLAN FAILED BECAUSE THERE WERE NO UNEMPLOYED QUALIFIED TYPISTS OR STENOGRAPHERS IN WINDSOR.

UNDER THE NEW PLAN SKILLED, SEMI-SKILLED AND UNSKILLED WORKERS FROM WINDSOR ARE SOUGHT TO WORK IN DETROIT ON TANK, HEAVY TRUCK, RADAR AND ROCKET PROGRAMS.

CUSHMAN SAID THERE WERE 4,813 HIGH PRIORITY JOBS UNFILLED IN DETROIT FOR THE WEEK ENDED MARCH 29.

THE NEW PROGRAM HAS YET TO BE APPROVED BY THE U.S. BUREAU OF NATURALIZATION AND IMMIGRATION IN PHILADELPHIA.

OTTAWA APRIL 4-(AP)-THE ROLE TO BE PLAYED BY CANADA IN THE PACIFIC WAR GREW CLEARER TODAY WITH DISCLOSURE THAT THE DOMINION INTENDS TO SEND TWO CRUISERS, TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND A NUMBER OF DESTROYERS AND FRIGATES AGAINST JAPAN AFTER THE WAR WITH GERMANY HAS ENDED.

THE CANADIAN UNITS WILL COMPRISE "A GOOD DEAL MORE THAN A MERE TOKEN FORCE," NAVY MINISTER ANGUS MACDONALD TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS LAST NIGHT IN OUTLINING THE PLANS.

PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING WAS REPORTED READY TO ANNOUNCE LATE TODAY NEW DETAILS REGARDING CANADA'S AIR AND ARMY PARTICIPATION IN THE PACIFIC WAR, A SUBJECT RECEIVING INCREASING ATTENTION IN THE DOMINION AS THE WAR AGAINST GERMANY DRAWS TO A CLOSE.

CANADIANS GENERALLY FEEL THEY HAVE A STAKE IN THE POST-WAR DEVELOPMENT OF THE NORTH PACIFIC AND THE DOMINION HAS A GRUDGE TO SETTLE AGAINST JAPAN FOR THE WIPING OUT OF SOME 2,000 CANADIANS IN THE HONGKONG GARRISON AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE FAR EASTERN WAR.

A FEW FRENCH CANADIANS ARE OPPOSED TO CANADIAN PARTICIPATION IN THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN, HOWEVER, AND THERE ARE EVEN LARGER NUMBERS, INCLUDING SOME ENGLISH-SPEAKING CANADIANS, WHO ARE OPPOSED TO ANY FIGHTING WHICH THEY MIGHT REGARD AS MORE CONCERNED WITH RECOVERING COLONIES FOR BRITAIN THAN WITH DEFEATING JAPAN.

NAVY MINISTER MACDONALD, PROVIDING THE MOST DEFINITE INFORMATION TO DATE ON WHAT MAY BE EXPECTED OF CANADA IN NAVAL WARFARE IN THE PACIFIC, DISCLOSED THAT THE DOMINION'S ONLY CRUISER, THE UGANDA, WHICH WAS OBTAINED FROM BRITAIN, ALREADY WAS IN THE PACIFIC.

THE UGANDA WILL BE JOINED, HE SAID, BY THE CRUISER ONTARIO, BEING BUILT AT BELFAST AND TO BE COMMISSIONED "WITHIN A SHORT TIME."

IN ADDITION TO THESE TWO VESSELS, MACDONALD SAID, "WE INTEND TO SEND INTO THE PACIFIC TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS IF THE NECESSARY ARRANGEMENTS FOR THEIR ACQUISITION CAN BE MADE," AND OTHER SHIPS.

THE PRIME MINISTER, WHO WILL SEEK TO BE RETURNED TO OFFICE IN A GENERAL ELECTION THIS SUMMER, CAN HARDLY HAVE OVERLOOKED THE EFFECT HIS ANNOUNCEMENT WOULD HAVE IN ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONIST FRENCH CANADA, WHERE HIS LIBERAL PARTY TRADITIONALLY HAS HAD POWERFUL SUPPORT.

THE CANADIAN FORCES TAKING PART IN THE PACIFIC WAR, ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCE, WILL BE FORMED PARTLY FROM PERSONNEL NOW SERVING ABROAD AND PARTLY FROM PERSONNEL NOW TRAINING IN CANADA, KING SAID.

"IT IS NOT INTENDED TO DETAIL MEN FOR SERVICE IN THE PACIFIC," KING SAID. "THIS APPLIES TO GENERAL SERVICE PERSONNEL AS WELL AS TO ALL OTHERS.

"THE MEN TO MAKE UP WHATEVER MILITARYFORCE IS TO BE EMPLOYED AGAINST JAPAN WILL BE CHOSEN FROM THOSE WHO ELECT TO SERVE IN THE PACIFIC THEATER."

KING, WHOSE COMPROMISE CONSCRIPTION POLICY FOR THE WAR AGAINST GERMANY WAS ATTACKED BOTH BY FRENCH CANADA AND FROM ALL-OUT CONSCRIPTIONISTS CENTERED IN THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY, DREW FIRE IMMEDIATELY TODAY FROM THE LATTER GROUP.

GORDON GRAYDON, HOUSE LEADER OF THE OFFICIAL OPPOSITION, ASKED, "THERE WILL BE NO COMPULSION?"

"THERE WILL BE NO COMPULSION," KING REPLIED. "ONLY THOSE ELECTING TO SERVE WILL GO."

GRAYSON THEN PROTESTED THAT THIS SYSTEM WOULD PLACE AN UNFAIR BURDEN ON MEN WHO HAD ALREADY BORNE THE BRUNT OF THE WAR IN EUROPE.

KING DECLARED THAT CANADA WOULD BE "APPROPRIATELY REPRESENTED" IN THE ALLIED ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN EUROPE, BUT DID NOT ANSWER AN OPPOSITION QUESTION AS TO WHETHER ONLY VOLUNTEERS WOULD SERVE IN THIS FORCE.

IT APPEARED THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S PLATFORM FOR THE COMING ELECTION WOULD HAVE AS ONE OF ITS MAIN PLANKS THE POLICY OF VOLUNTEERS ONLY FOR THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN.

CANADA'S PART IN THE ARMY OF OCCUPATION WILL BE "MODEST," THE PRIME MINISTER SAID.

"IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES IN NORTHWEST EUROPE, PROGRESSIVE REDUCTION IN THE NUMBERS OF OUR SOLDIERS AND AIRMEN OVERSEAS WILL COMMENCE," KING CONTINUED.

CANADIAN NAVY ACTIVITIES, WHICH THROUGHOUT THE WAR HAVE BEEN PRINCIPALLY IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC, WILL CONTINUE TO BE REQUIRED THERE "FOR SOME TIME AFTER THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES WITH GERMANY," HE SAID.

Russia Voids Japan Pact, Tokyo Cabinet Falls; MacArthur, Nimitz to Lead U.S. War on Japan; Patton Gains on Leipzig, Dresden and Berlin

MOVE BY RUSSIANS CLEARS WAY FOR ENTRY INTO WAR

Koiso Government Falls in Midst of Great Allied Victories.

PACT LOSES 'MEANING'

Soviet Declaration Charges Japs with Giving Aid to Germany.

KHG

LONDON, April 5—(AP) Russia denounced her neutrality pact with Tokyo today, bluntly accusing Japan of helping Germany and possibly clearing the way for eventual Soviet entry into the Pacific war.

In a strongly-worded note Moscow linked the European and Pacific wars for the first time by declaring Japan had aided Germany and, "in addition Japan is fighting against [illegible] NIGHT and Great Britain, which are Allies of the Soviet Union." Moscow broadcast the announcement of its action to the world.

Question of War Unanswered

The question whether Russia will go to war against Japan was left unanswered. The denounced five-year neutrality pact does not expire until April 25, 1946—more than a year from now. But the note which Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov handed Japanese Ambassador Naotake Sato this afternoon in Moscow placed Japan squarely in the enemy's camp and stated Soviet Russia's opinion that Japan had violated the pact.

Shortly before Moscow acted, the government of Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso in Tokyo fell in the midst of a political and military crisis, and Emperor Hirohito summoned Adm. Baron Kantaro Suzuki, 77-year-old president of the privy council, to form a new government. Suzuki has been regarded as a moderate—aloof from previous military cliques ruling Japan—and his selection raised the possibility a Japanese "peace cabinet" might be installed.

The Japanese crisis was precipitated by the American invasion of Okinawa and perhaps also by strong prior indications of the ominous Soviet diplomatic blow.

Moscow's announcement said that Molotov told the Japanese ambassador that the neutrality agreement had "lost its meaning and continuance of this pact has become impossible."

Russia ratified the pact April 25, 1941, and it was to have been continued for another five years unless denounced a year before its expiration.

The note given Sato was reminiscent of the same line taken by Russia last September when Russia went to war against Bulgaria, accusing that Axis satellite of aiding Germany against Russia and declaring Bulgaria actually has been in a state of war with the Soviet Union for a long time."

Animosity has marked Soviet-Japanese relations for 50 years, and both countries have strong armies massed on the Soviet-Manchurian frontier, where border "skirmishes" amounting to large-scale battles were fought and largely overlooked by the rest of the world during the opening days of World War II in Europe.

Russia Given Free Hand

The repudiation of the pact gave Russia a free hand for joining in any joint action the United Nations might decide to take against Japan at the San Francisco conference opening April 25.

The main purpose of this meeting is to lay the foundation for an international security organization against aggressors — and Premier Stalin already has publicly branded Japan "a typical aggressor nation" — equally guilty with Germany.

British official circles here were silent on the possible implications of Russia's latest move, but the first comment from the British Press association's diplomatic correspondent said "it seems something more than coincidence that the resignation of the Japanese government should precede so shortly the Soviet announcement."

The first official reaction came from H. V. Evatt, Australian foreign minister here for a dominions conference, who said that the Molotov declaration "demonstrates that Russia will play a notable part in the future security and welfare of the peoples of the Pacific."

Describing the Moscow announcement as "characteristically direct and forthright," Evatt said "it shows that the Soviet despite its gigantic war effort in the west spurns the arch aggressor of the east."

Evatt said the denunciation of the treaty would be "hailed with the greatest satisfaction throughout the whole Pacific area."

MOSCOW SAYS JAPS HAVE HELPED NAZIS

Molotov Tells Sato Continued Neutrality Has Lost Its Meaning Since War With Britain and U. S. Began.

London, April 5 (A. P.).—Russia denounced its neutrality pact with Japan today, accusing Tokyo of helping Germany to fight Russia.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov informed the Japanese Ambassador that continuance of the compact was impossible, since Japan was fighting Russia's allies, the United States and Great Britain.

"In such a situation, the pact of neutrality between Japan and the U. S. S. R. has lost its meaning," Commissar Molotov said.

The note was handed to the Japanese Ambassador today at 3 P. M. in the midst of a new Japanese Cabinet crisis.

The treaty ordinarily would have run until April 1946. The denouncement becomes effective on April 13, just twelve days before the opening of the San Francisco conference.

[Russia's denunciation today may not free her immediately to join the fight against the Mikado's empire. If both parties stick to the letter of the compact they must maintain neutrality toward each other until the expiration of the treaty's five-year term on April 25, 1946. The pact, signed in Moscow on April 13, 1941, and ratified twelve days later, binds the two parties "to maintain peaceful and friendly relations between them" and "to observe neutrality throughout the duration" of any conflict in which either might be engaged with another power. However, the effect of denunciation must be to weaken the force of the obligation of neutrality on both sides. It remains to be seen whether both can keep the letter of the pact during the tense period ushered in by Moscow's action.]

Text of Announcement.

The text of the Moscow announcement follows:

"At 3 o'clock this afternoon the People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs of the U. S. S. R., Molotov, received the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Sato, and in the name of the Soviet Government, made the following statement to him:

"'The pact of neutrality between the Soviet Union and Japan was concluded on April 13, 1941—that is, before the attack by Germany on the U. S. S. R. and before the outbreak of the war between Japan, on the one hand and Great Britain and the United States of America on the other.

"'Since that time the situation has radically changed. Germany attacked the U. S. S. R. and Japan—Germany's ally—helped the latter in her war against the U. S. S. R.

"'In addition, Japan is fighting against the U. S. A. and Great Britain, which are the Allies of the Soviet Union. In such a situation, the pact of neutrality between Japan and the U. S. S. R. has lost its meaning and the continuance of this pact has become impossible.

"'On the strength of the aforesaid, and in accordance with Article III of the pact mentioned, which envisages the right of denunciation one year before the expiration of the five-year period of validity of the pact, the Soviet Government, by the present statement, announces to the Japanese Government its desire to denounce the pact of April 13, 1941.'

"The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Sato, promised to bring the declaration of the Soviet Government to the attention of the Japanese Government."

There was no indication in the Moscow announcement of Russia's intentions in future relations with Japan. However Premier Marshal Stalin has publicly described Japan as "an aggressive nation."

Move Not Unexpected.

Many have expected Russia all along to denounce the treaty if for no other reason than to gain a free hand in the San Francisco conference discussions of any problems concerning the Pacific war.

Up until the Crimea conference, however, Premier Stalin maintained extreme caution in making any move that would tend to antagonize the Japanese. In the previous meeting of the Big Three at Tehran Japanese phases were excluded and Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt held a prior meeting with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Cairo. At Yalta, however, Stalin agreed to sit with the Chinese delegates at the forthcoming Golden Gate meeting—something he had sidestepped in all previous conferences when the Pacific was up for discussion.

The pact with Japan was the second neutrality treaty that the Soviet has repudiated in recent days. In previously terminating the pact with Turkey, however, Russia indicated willingness to negotiate a new relationship. The note to Tokyo made it clear Stalin has no such intention toward the Japanese.

The neutrality pact was signed at the Kremlin four years ago by Molotov and Yosuke Matsuoka, then Japanese Foreign Minister.

Provision for Extension.

Article III provided that the instrument was to remain valid five years and: "In case neither of the contracting parties denounces the pact one year before expiration of the term, it will be considered automatically prolonged for the next five years."

The friendship and neutrality agreement was phrased in these words:

"Article I. Both contracting parties undertake to maintain peaceful and friendly relations between them and mutually respect the territorial integrity and inviolability of the other contracting party.

"Article II. Should one of the contracting parties become the object of hostilities on the part of one or several third Powers, the other contracting party will observe neutrality throughout the conflict."

Border disputes and disagreement over fishing rights had preceded the negotiations.

JAPAN TO GET NEW CABINET

Admiral Suzuki, A Moderate, Succeeds Koiso As Premier

San Francisco, April 5 (AP) — Racked by military defeats and a rising storm of criticism at home, Premier Kuniaki Koiso's Cabinet resigned en masse today and Emperor Hirohito called on an elder statesman, Admiral Baron Kanaro Suzuki, to form Japan's third wartime Government.

In facing the "gravity of the situation" which Tokyo said forced Koiso and his Ministers to step down, Japan turned to a 77-year-old veteran of public service who had been considered a "moderate" in prewar years. Suzuki, president of the Privy Council, has been looked upon as an opponent of the extreme army clique's program of conquest.

Military disasters in the field and on the seas which have harassed Koiso since he took over the reigns of Government from Premier General Hideki Tojo nearly nine months ago made certain his downfall was not far off. Close students of Japan predicted the succeeding Government would be a "moderate" one that might project peace feelers to the United States and her Allies.

Suzuki, who had been in semi-retirement since being wounded in the revolt by young Japanese Army officers in 1936, may fit into this picture as the "front man for a Japanese peace offensive," in the opinion of Glen Babb, who spent many years as a correspondent in Japan.

Beyond accepting the office of president of the Privy Council last August, Babb added, "Suzuki has given no public intimation of sympathy with the army extremists who have dominated the Government virtually ever since the 1936 attempt on his life."

"Wait For Full Cabinet"

Until the complexion of the Suzuki cabinet is known, however, Babb cautioned, "it may be too early to conclude that the shift presages a peace offensive." He continued:

"There remains the chance, of course, that Suzuki may fail to form a government, but the likelihood is that possibilities were thoroughly canvassed before he received the imperial nomination.

"If his cabinet includes several of his own kind, elders who were prominent before the Tojo era, the evidence would be strong that a new phase in Japan's war effort had begun. This would be a period of peace gestures and peace propaganda, calculated to strike at American determination to see the Japanese war through during the vulnerable period just after the collapse of Germany."

Victory Ministry Failed

Collapse of the Koiso regime had been staved off for a time by his promise, fulfilled only last week, of forming a new "sure victory" political party that would include leading figures from all of Japan. Koiso's downfall came at a time when Nippon is faced with the most critical war situation it has known.

Fall of Koiso was announced by the Japanese Board of Information "with earnest hopes for the materialization of an even more powerful Cabinet in view of the gravity of the war situation," said the Tokyo home broadcast recorded by FCC.

Marquis Koici Kido, lord keeper of the Privy Seal, recommended Suzuki to the Emperor as a new premier after a conference of senior statesmen. Shortly thereafter, the Emperor summond Suzuki "and commanded him to organize a Cabinet," said a Japanese broadcast.

Less than twelve hours elapsed between Koiso's resignation and the command of Suzuki.

KOISO CABINET FORCED OUT IN JAP CRISIS

APR 6 1945

Suzuki Chosen by Mikado to Take Over as Tokyo Premier.

LONG KNOWN AS MODERATE

His Selection Linked to Possible Peace Moves—Predecessor in Office Since July.

London, April 5 (A. P.).—The Japanese Government of Gen. Kuniaki Koiso fell today in the midst of the empire's grave military crisis and Emperor Hirohito called on Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki, 77-year-old president of the privy council, to form a new cabinet, Tokyo broadcasts announced.

Koiso and all his ministers stepped down, a communique said, "because of the gravity of the situation," a reference to the mounting series of disasters during their eight months in office which have reached a climax in the American invasion of Okinawa, on the doorstep of the homeland.

Although the resignation of Koiso was announced several hours before it was disclosed that Moscow had moved to discard the pact with Japan, the possibility remained that Tokyo had had advance information and that the two developments were connected.

The communique, broadcast by Domei Agency, said that "a far more powerful administration will be formed" and the choice fell on the aged Suzuki after the Emperor had consulted the elder statesmen of the empire.

Suzuki, has remained aloof from the previous military cliques ruling Japan in her career of conquest, and if he succeeds in forming a cabinet of like mind his elevation raises the possibility that Japanese peace feelers may be forthcoming shortly.

Suzuki had been in semi-retirement for eight years prior to his appointment as president of the Privy Council last August 10.

In pre-war years Admiral Suzuki was considered one of Japan's moderate statesmen and an opponent of the extreme Army clique's aggressive adventures. He was seriously wounded in the Tokyo Army revolt of February 26, 1936, when he held the post of Lord Chamberlain. The young officers who led that revolt held Suzuki was counseling moderation on the Emperor. Several invaded his home and he received several sword cuts, so severe that for a time his life was despaired of.

The German news agency DNB broke a routine transmission to flash news of the Japanese cabinet's resignation, indicating its importance within Germany.

Popularly known as "the Tiger," Koiso succeeded Hidaki Tojo as premier last July, when United Nations successes forced the saber-rattling war chieftain out.

Koiso was the strong, tough man of the Japanese Army's Kwantung clique as early as 1932, several years before Tojo—"The Razor"—rose to prominence in the same group. As chief of staff of the Kwantung army in 1932 Koiso played a prominent role in the conquest of Manchuria in defiance of the League of Nations and the Western Powers. Later he was identified with agitation for Japanese expansion in the South Seas, a program which led to war with Britain and the United States.

Koiso pledged a united national effort to bring a successful conclusion to the war when he was called to the premiership from the post of Governor-General at Korea. Growing success of the Allied military drive toward the homeland and increasing B-29 raids on Japan proper brought criticism in ever increasing volume from powerful forces within Nippon until last week a new totalitarian political party was formed to bring "sure victory." Koiso had meanwhile reshuffled his Cabinet at least four times, replacing and shifting some members and adding new persons to an advisory board.

Headed by Gen. Minami.

The new political party is headed by Gen. Jiro Minami and Koiso professed to give it his support. Gen. Minami, however, declared his group would not "hesitate to criticize the government" and he accused Koiso's regime with having failed to "make the fullest preparations for all eventualities vis-a-vis the foreign enemy."

Among better known cabinet members going out with Koiso were Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, minister of war; Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, minister of the navy, and Mamoru Shigemitsu, minister of foreign affairs and greater east Asia affairs. There were eleven members in the cabinet.

Japs and Russians Have Had Half Century of Animosities

By Associated Press.

Animosity has marked Russo-Japanese relations for fifty years. Russia's natural interest in an outlet on the Pacific via the seas of Okhotsk and Japan led her Czarist rulers to a head-on collision with Japanese imperialists which resulted in the war of 1904-1905.

Defeated, Imperial Russia had to cede to Japan her port rights at Dairen, and the important north-south railway in Manchuria. Fighting off revolution at home, the Czarist Government never made a comeback; had to watch Japan annex Korea and begin building an empire in Manchuria.

After the Soviet revolution Japanese troops intervened in Siberia along with American and British expeditionary forces. The Japanese did not leave Vladivostok until 1923.

Japs Take Manchuria.

In 1931 the Japanese took over Manchuria and soon set up the puppet State of Manchoukuo. The powerful Japanese garrison force, the Kwantung army, laid active plans for the invasion and conquest of eastern Siberia. But Tokyo hesitated. Hundreds of incidents occurred along the long and ill-defined Manchurian border.

Two incidents developed into serious fighting. At Changkufeng, on the eastern Manchurian-Korean-Siberian border, in 1938, hostilities went on for weeks. The following year at Nomonhan, on the western Manchurian-Outer Mongolian border, a serious engagement took place. The announced Japanese casualties were nearly 20,000 in an extended battle involving large forces of tanks and planes. After this incident, in which the Japanese took an impressive beating, relations were cool but correct.

Both Nations Had Troubles

Both nations had other things to think about. Stymied in China, Japan was toying with the idea of grabbing the rest of Asia while the western world was preoccupied with Germany. Premier Stalin of Russia was rushing preparations to meet the expected Nazi onslaught.

The result was the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact of April, 1941. Realistically shelving their mutual dislikes and fears, the Russians and Japanese agreed to remain neutral toward each other for five years regardless of what wars either Power got mixed up in.

When Germany assaulted Russia in June, the Soviet Union was thus able to meet the shock without having to watch Japan over her shoulder. Japan began plotting actively for Pearl Harbor.

Fighting for their national existence in Europe, the Russians said nothing which might provoke Japan to attack Siberia. The Russian press made two things plain from the first, however—that Russians considered Japan the aggressor in the Pacific and believed that Japan would lose the war. But the Russians had had to draw on Siberian reserves, altering their long-standing plan for an independent defense of Siberia manned and equipped by Siberians.

Turned to Siberia Defense.

After the Russian winter offensive of 1943 and heavy Anglo-American bombing of the Nazi war machine, it became apparent that Germany could not win. Russia was able to turn her attention once again to the defense of Siberia. The Kwantung Army, best and most fanatical of Japan's troops, still stood along the Manchurian border, eyeing the riches of Siberia and the strategic port of Vladivostok.

The Russians began to tighten up. They made the Japanese pay more for the annual renewal of fishing concessions in Soviet waters. They actually got the Japanese, in March, 1944, to hand back their oil and coal concessions on the Russian half of Sakhalim Island—and do it twenty-six years sooner than scheduled. The Russian press began to criticize Japanese strategy in the Pacific and to draw conclusions about Japan's chances of winning which galled the proud war lords of Tokyo.

The Soviet radio at Khabarovsk, Siberia, remarked casually—without mentioning the Japanese—that there were lots of rivers in eastern Asia and that Soviet troops there should learn how to force such water obstacles. Ghabarovsk is situated across the Amur River from Japan's once touchy, one trigger-happy Kwantung army. These former saber rattlers chose not to be listening.

Called Japan Aggressor.

Then, last November, Premier Stalin made official in a speech what Soviet papers had been saying all along—that Russia considered Japan the aggressor in East Asia. Tokyo reacted immediately. It explained that Stalin's remark really changed nothing in Soviet policy, that there was no danger of Russia's entering the Far Eastern war.

Early this year, as Russian might surged through Poland and drove Nazi armies back upon Berlin, fear grew in Japan that her turn might be next. Japan sent new, experienced diplomats to Moscow. A secret Diet session heard a special report on the situation from Foreign Minister Shigemitsu.

Japanese papers speculated guardedly upon Russia's intentions in the Far East, particularly with reference to the approaching date (April 24) for renewal or denunciation of the neutrality pact and its possible relationship to the April 25 date for the first United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Such speculation was handled like a basket of eggs in Tokyo. More outspoken was the propaganda station at Singapore, farthest removed from Tokyo and least likely to be picked up by Soviet monitors. It said that it "seemed' that there would be no change in Russia's neutrality, but admitted that "there is undoubtedly an element of danger in the situation."

Manchuria contains some of Japan's best war industry and is garrisoned by some of Japan's finest troops. They face well developed Siberian forces of equal if not superior strength. While the Russians enjoy strategic advantages in the air, Vladivostok and the Siberian maritime provinces are exposed to quick Japanese thrusts which might isolate them.

SUZUKI IS SEEN IN PEACE ROLE

Admiral May Be Front for Japanese Tenders.

By GLENN BABB.

Associated Press Foreign News Editor.

Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki may be the front man for a Japanese peace offensive. With military disasters mounting rapidly, to the climax of the Okinawa invasion, it has been apparent for some weeks that the Cabinet of Gen. Kuniaki Koiso was doomed.

Close students of Japanese affairs have believed that the new Government would be one of "moderate or liberal" guise which the Japanese might hope could gain a hearing for peace tenders to America and her allies. Admiral Suzuki, on the basis of his pre-war record, would fit into that picture. Though an active naval officer for nearly forty years, he was not identified with the cliques which led Japan into a program of conquest and war against the United States. In fact, he was marked as an enemy by those elements.

On February 26, 1936, army units of the Tokyo garrison, led by extreme nationalist young officers, revolted and attacked several of Japan's highest leaders, whom they called "the Emperor's evil counselors"—that is, men who advised Hirohito against aggressive military policies. Admiral Suzuki, then retired from active naval service, held the post of Grand Chamberlain, one of the officials nearest the throne.

He was attacked before dawn, in his Tokyo home, by a group of army officers and received wounds of such severity that for a time his death was expected. In the same series of assassination attempts, two former Premiers, Admiral Viscount Saito and Korekiyo Takahashi, were slain and the incumbent Premier, Admiral Okada, escaped only because the assassins slew his brother-in-law instead, mistaking their victim for Admiral Okada.

Admiral Suzuki lived in semi-retirement for eight years after that episode. He returned to public office only last August 10, when he became President of the Privy Council on the death of Dr. Yoshimichi Hara. Beyond acceptance of this high office, usually allotted to elder statesmen outside the main current of politics, Admiral Suzuki has given no public intimation of sympathy with the army extremists who have dominated the Government since the 1936 attempt on his life.

Certainly he has not been considered of the same stripe as the ruthless militarists who have been Japan's last two Premiers, Gen. Hideki Tojo, who took over in October, 1941, and led the empire into war against America, and Gen. Koiso, who supplanted Gen. Tojo last July 22, after the disastrous loss of Saipan. Until the make-up of the Suzuki Cabinet is known, it may be too early to conclude that the shift presages a peace offensive.

There remains the chance, of course, that Admiral Suzuki may fail to form a Government, but the likelihood is that possibilities were thoroughly canvassed before he received the imperial nomination. If his cabinet includes several of his own kind, elders who were prominent before the Tojo era, the evidence would be strong that a new phase in Japan's war effort had begun.

This would be a period of peace gestures and peace propaganda, calculated to strike at American determination to see the Japanese war through during the vulnerable period just after the collapse of Germany. It is possible that Russia's denunciation of her neutrality pact with Japan—an action which coincided very closely with Gen. Koiso's resignation—hastened the crisis.

Admiral Suzuki, now 77, was born on December 24, 1867, in Osaka. His naval career, begun in 1887, led him to the chief command of the fleet before his retirement.

TWO RED ARMIES SEEN PREPARED TO POUNCE ON JAPS

WASHINGTON, April 5 — (AP) If Russia goes to war with Japan, at least two Red armies, equipped with the finest modern military material, will be ready to join combat immediately in the Far East.

Behind them will be a string of brand-new air strips, swarming with fleets of fast, hard-hitting bombers and fighters.

U. S., British to Cooperate

With them will be large, well-organized United States and British military missions, prepared to cooperate with the Russians to whatever extent they permit in prosecution of their part of the campaign.

These are the highlights of the little that is known about the world's most mystery-shrouded military theater. The secrets of the Red army's Far Eastern military establishment have been so closely guarded that, in comparison, the Russian forces in Europe are wide open.

So tightly are those secrets held that even the identity of the Soviet commander in the Far East is not known. The former commander, General Apanasenko, was moved west and killed in the battle of Kursk in June, 1943.

Before Germany invaded the Soviet Union in 1941, the Russians had three Red-bannered armies in the Far East, one more than the usual standing force of two armies in that area.

One of those armies was reported unofficially but authoritatively to have been moved west during the battle of Moscow in 1941.

By now, it has probably returned to its old stamping ground, but in any case, the two original armies are in the field. Their quality has been attested by brief dispatches, reporting that they have paraded through Khabarovsk, showing the best in tanks, motorized troops, artillery and automatic arms.

A strong indication that even more than the First and Second Red-bannered armies are ready for action in the Far East can be seen from the fact that Siberian forces have not been reported prominently in action since the battle of Stalingrad in 1942.

During the battle of Moscow in 1941, the Siberians — Russians by race, most of them, who had pioneered or been brought up in the rugged Soviet east—played an important part in the last-ditch defense that threw the Wehrmacht back for the first time.

Again in the battle of Stalingrad, a year later, the Siberians figured prominently in the Soviet accounts of defense and counter-attack that crushed the German Sixth army and turned the course of the war in Europe.

Since then, the Siberians have dropped out of the picture—probably in preparation for today's denunciation by the Soviet Union of its neutrality pact with Japan.

Air Forces Secret

The aviation forces and facilities in the Soviet Far East are as secret as the ground forces. It is known, however, that new air bases have been built along the line from Alaska that Russian fliers use to bring Lend-Lease aircraft from the United States.

Soviet naval forces in the Far East are believed to be almost negligible, although Vladivostok once served as a base for some 80 submarines and a number of light ships, and large ship-building centers have been developed at Komsomolsk and other Far-Eastern cities.

Although the secrets of the Far East have not been unlocked generally for Americans, the United States maintains a consulate-general at Vladivostok, headed by a veteran in Far-Eastern affairs, white-bearded Angus Ward. Individual U. S. Naval officers have been permitted visits to the region.

The United States military mission in Moscow, under Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, has been built up in numbers, in preparation for possible expansion in the Far East. It has Army, Navy and Air sections.

It is no secret that the American air-bases set up last year in the Ukraine were more important as training-grounds for the future than for their immediate use in shuttle-bombing from Britain and Italy.

The Russians, too, have had their training in the Far East. Marshal Gregory Zhukov, leading the First White Russian army opposite Berlin, had his first test of tank battle at Khalkin Gol in 1939, when he dealt a stinging defeat to the Japanese, on the Manchurian border.

He must be looking back over his shoulder, now, at the Japanese again.

RED DENUNCIATION OF JAPANESE SEEN SPEEDING VICTORY

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP) Russia's denunciation of her neutrality pact with Japan sent a wave of jubilation through this capital today in the belief that it probably spells much swifter victory in the Pacific.

On all sides, the action was interpreted as a long step toward

Russian participation in the war against the Japanese, who would thus be caught in a gigantic squeeze and go down to their doom at a greatly reduced cost to the Allies.

Some More Restrained

Some were inclined to restrain their elation, on the ground that only time will tell whether Russia actually intends to strike in the near future. But the general opinion was that the diplomatic move was a forerunner to eventual hostilities.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the Senate Military committee, saw the development as certainly meaning "the eventual entry of Russia into the war with Japan."

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) foreign relations chairman, said "Japan and Germany are in an embrace of death; they chose that course and the stars will bring both to their doom."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), foreign relations committeeman and a minority leader in that field, said the Russian move is "undoubtedly a preview of vitally important things to come."

Most house spokesmen on foreign and military matters were out of town with that branch taking an informal holiday, but Rep. Eaton (R-N.J.) ranking Republican on the Foreign Affairs committee, said the development "ought to strengthen the peace movement throughout the world and hasten the end of this destructive war both in Europe and in Asia."

In response to inquiries the state department issued this comment: "The United States government, of course, welcomes this development."

If the diplomatic step proves to be a prelude to hostilities, the Pacific enemy will be completely surrounded by belligerent forces of overwhelming power. Her doom, already apparent to the rest of the world, may then become apparent to the Japanese people themselves.

Japs Change Cabinet

Perhaps it was anticipation of this situation as well as the steady American pounding to the south and east by sea and air and hand to hand fighting on Okinawa which prompted Tokyo's Premier Koiso to turn in the resignation of his entire cabinet today.

A Tokyo communique spoke of a formation of "a far more powerful administration," but official Washington saw no chance that any such changing of the guards could save any part of the empire.

Assuming the accuracy of the general interpretation given the Russian step, here is the situation in which Japan finds herself:

From the south she is threatened by advance American positions on the islands of Okinawa and Iwo Jima. Both offer a direct menace to the Tokyo area. In addition Okinawa seems to offer a forward base from which to operate ships and planes against the enemy's supply lines with Asia.

On the east Japan lies wide open to the sea for attack or invasion.

To the north her Kuriles island chain lies vulnerably open to assault from American forces in the Aleutians. She has lost all except a trickle of supplies from the Indies to the south and only in China are her armed forces still occasionally successful.

The one area where the Japanese have been free of active, organized fighting has been Manchuria-Korea.

It is the Manchurian sector which would burst into flaming warfare if the implications of Russia's denunciation of the neutrality pact are read accurately here. In event of hostilities in that section the United States airforce presumably would be afforded bases for raiding Japan from the north in the vicinity of the Russian port of Vladivostok.

Another tremendous advantage to the Allies already fighting Japan would be that the main Japanese armies in Asia would be immediately engaged.

MacArthur Named to Head Army In Pacific, Nimitz Leads Nav.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—(AP) General Douglas MacArthur drew the assignment today to command all American army forces in the final cleanup of Japan.

The joint chiefs of staff settled the much-discussed point by reassigning commands in the whole Pacific area, with MacArthur in charge on land and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz directing the United States drive at sea.

The new assignments were disclosed even as Japan reeled under the double blows of Russia's denunciation of a neutrality pact and the fall of the Japanese cabinet.

It was the close approach of American forces that toppled the Japanese politicos from power, and it was this same factor that made the realignment of American Army-Navy leadership necessary.

Heretofore the commands had been geographically separated, with sea forces in MacArthur's Southwest Pacific area coming under his command and land forces in Nimitz' Pacific ocean areas taking orders from the Admiral.

There had been much unofficial discussion whether MacArthur would go on with the job, or stop in the Philippines where he is now established, and leave the Japan and China campaigns to others.

MacArthur's forces, driving north and west to the Philippines, had been bending the geographical line. The Iwo Jima invasion was an all-Navy show, involving only Marines on land. But the more recent drive onto Okinawa, at Japan's doorstep and involving army forces, pointed up the need for realignment.

Nimitz has been in technical command at Okinawa. That sort of arrangement can be continued under the joint chiefs' provision that either of the top commanders might be assigned specific responsibility for a particular operation, with the other furnishing necessary aid.

MacArthur already had over-all command of Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific, including British Empire troops.

In effect, Nimitz had had much the same authority at sea, since the British Naval units recently assigned there had operated under his command.

What the shifts today might signify in the way of a permanent over-all Allied command was not officially indicated, but all along it has been largely taken for granted that the Pacific is an American show.

MacArthur and Nimitz will operate under the American joint chiefs of staff, as will General H. H. Arnold, head of the Army Air forces and commander of the B-29s which have been plastering Japan as units of the 20th Air Force.

The announcement said the joint chiefs of staff will continue to exercise strategic direction of the entire Pacific theater and will charge either General MacArthur or Admiral Nimitz with the over-all responsibility for conducting specific operations or campaigns.

Under this arrangement General MacArthur will be charged with the conduct of land campaigns and Admiral Nimitz with the conduct of sea campaigns.

The announcement said the joint chiefs of staff made modification in the command organization for the war against Japan "with a view to giving full effect to the application of our forces against the Japanese including the large forces to be redeployed from Europe, taking into account the changed conditions resulting from our progress in both the Southwest Pacific and the Pacific ocean areas."

The joint chiefs of staff is an all-United States group of high Army and Navy officials. It is differentiated from the combined chiefs of staff, a British-American strategic high command.

The new Pacific arrangement permits either commander in chief (MacArthur or Nimitz) to conduct operations or campaigns in any part of the entire theater as directed by the joint chiefs of staff.

PATTON STRIKES WITHIN 63 MILES OF DIVIDING REICH

Canadians Advance 12 Miles into Uelsen, Drive Toward North Sea.

NAZIS FLEE IN DISORDER

Two Yank Armies Compress Ruhr Pocket, Enemy Masses Tanks.

BERLIN BEAT

PARIS, Friday, April 6. — (AP) The U. S. Ninth army broke across the Weser river 157 miles west of Berlin yesterday and the British Second army in a 30-mile lunge swept up 39 miles south of the great shipbuilding city of Bremen as the enemy fled east along the north German plain.

Without losing a man, the Ninth army crossed the Weser with troops and tanks south of Hamelin, 23 miles southwest of Hannover.

Simultaneously, the U. S. Third army struck across Thuringia's hills 130 miles southwest of Berlin in a fanning push that lacked 63 miles of cutting the Reich in half, and the enemy was reported falling back south for the expected last stand in Bavaria's mountain fastnesses.

Allies Enter Uelsen

The Canadian First army shook loose an armored column on a 12-mile tear that ripped back into the German peninsula and into Uelsen, on the highway to Bremen and within 53 miles of an arm of the North sea.

This drive, sweeping northward parallel to the British armored push, increased the threat to two German armies, now in retreat toward the Elbe river.

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Canadian and British forces were battling north on a 100 mile front, and by capturing Stolzenau on the Weser river 39 miles from Bremen the British vanguards had traveled 120 miles from the Rhine. Minden also was seized.

One column on the west was also 40 miles from Bremen after fighting up within less than three miles of Diepholtz.

The battle of annihilation in the Ruhr basin rose in fury as both the U. S. First and Ninth armies pressed the assault on possibly 150,000 German troops, reported trapped there with Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, commander of all enemy armies on the Western front.

The Ninth army was knocking in the roof of the trap, advancing up to nine miles both east and west of pivotal Hamm, and was five miles from the Ruhr city of Dortmund. One robot bomb factory had been overrun.

Pilots said the enemy was massing tanks and self-propelled guns on the east side of the pocket, apparently to attempt a breakout.

On the southern end of the front, the U. S. Seventh army scored gains of 14 miles, battled into Kitzingen beyond the river Main, and severed the highway between toppling Wuerzburg and the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg, only 34 miles ahead of advanced American forces.

Smash Toward Stuttgart

The French First army farther south fought nearly two miles south of the captured city of Karlsruhe and the Paris radio said one column now was but 12 1-2 miles from the south German city of Stuttgart.

The U. S. Third army was striking across Thuringia's hills and was closest to the capital. One tank column roared due east to within 170 miles of a junction with the Russians and 66 miles from Plauen, while another was 63 miles from Czechoslovakia.

The fall of Plauen also would cut Germany in two, since it controls the last good highways and railways leading into Bavaria, and pilots said already considerable movement of enemy forces had been spotted moving southward along that route.

The Germans also were in flight toward the Elbe river—last river barrier 50 miles west of Berlin—after the U. S. Ninth army wound up a day of dazzling 28-mile gains by hurling troops and tanks across the Weser river without a single casualty.

The Second Armored and the 30th Infantry divisions crossed south of Folklore's Pied Piper city of Hamelin, 23 miles southwest of Hannover, and began pounding up the Hannover highway.

The British Second army after a 25-mile advance likewise reached the Weser, and the two armies held 48 miles of the west bank; with embattled Minden roughly in the center.

There was every indication the Germans had written off the Weser river line and were retreating as much as 120 miles eastward to the broader Elbe, which, while no Rhine, is a much more formidable military barrier than the Weser.

The fleeing convoys were hammered by hundreds of Allied warplanes defying the indifferent weather.

The U. S. Ninth army, under Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's command since the Ardennes breakthrough, was back under the command of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who thus became the first warrior in American history to command four field armies—a force of at least 1,000,000 fighting men.

26,000 More Prisoners Taken

Allied armies, capturing at least 26,600 additional prisoners Wednesday, were driving for the knockout all along the front.

The Germans said parachute troops were being rained down by Allied planes in the path of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army, which was pounding across Thuringia in a daring bid to cut Germany in two at the waist and balk any large-scale final stand in the Bavarian mountains.

The Sixth Armored division captured Muehlhausen, with a population of 36,000, and then roared on eight miles northeast to near Schlotheim, which is 132 miles southwest of Berlin.

Here the Third army was 72 miles from the great transit city of Leipzig and 170 miles from the Russian lines.

The Fourth Armored division to the south pushed four miles to the vicintiy of Muehlberg, 68 miles from the border of Czechoslovakia and about 175 miles from the Russian lines.

The Eleventh Armored division on the south flank overran 10 small arms factories as it speared within 63 miles of the Czech border, and pilots reported considerable southward enemy movement toward that Nazi-occupied country.

Sent reeling beyond the Weser by the furious American and British blows, the Germans blew all the bridges in the sector around Minden. The Ninth promptly brought up heavy pontoons, bridged the river near Tundern, and kept right on going.

British Shell Minden

The Ninth army was negotiating for the surrender of Minden, which would have given the Americans one bridge, when British tanks suddenly appeared on the north and began shelling the city.

Whereupon negotiations were terminated and the startled garrison sent the bridge tumbling into the Weser.

In the rush to the Weser, the converging British and American columns cut off the German 84th division and a number of smaller units in a pocket seven miles wide and 15 miles long, and veteran U. S. infantrymen hurried up to begin the mop-up.

The 30th Infantry division, following the hurrying treads of the Ninth army's tanks, drove the last Germans from the Tutobergerwald passes, through which the Ninth army burst to the Weser.

It was the Second Armored division that racked up 24-hour gains of 28 miles in hurtling through the mountains to the Weser opposite Hamelin, south of where the Fifth Armored division reached the stream Wednesday.

Using Hamm as a pivot, the Germans were believed forming a crescent-shaped defense line for the 21 divisions hopelessly cut off in the 3,700-square mile Ruhr pocket.

Ninth army troops battering to cave in the roof of this box ran into heavy fire inside Hamm, the eastern end of the pocket.

If Kesselring himself is caught in this steel trap, he will have a hard time getting out, for Allied warplanes rule the skies and the guns of two U. S. armies command all ground routes.

4-Mile 1st Army Gains

The United States 1st Army—hammering in from the east and south—slugged ahead as much as 4 miles during the day, driving back enemy foot soldiers and tanks.

Biggest gains came from the base of a 1st Army corridor which cuts off the Ruhr from the rest of the Reich. Here an American infantry column backed by tanks fought through light resistance to near Latrop, in the vicinity of

Berleburg, which is 55 miles southeast of Hamm.

Driving 3 miles northwest of Berleburg, the infantry ran into strongly manned road blocks, but smashed through them.

Two-mile gains were scored by other American columns which drove into Almert and Winkhausen, 9 miles northwest of Berleburg.

The British 2d Army, joining forces with the 9th at Minden, seized control of 15 miles of the western bank of the Weser River from that city northward after capturing three bridges over the Weser-Ems Canal.

Osnabrueck Falls

The British 11th Armored and the 6th Airborne divisions broke through in a 25-mile dash to reach the Weser.

The big communication center of Osnabrueck, 38 miles to the rear, was captured by British Commandos. More than 800 prisoners were taken in savage street fighting.

In its thrust from Osnabrueck, the 11th captured a battalion of enemy troops rushed down from Denmark so hurriedly that it had not yet been given arms when it was overwhelmed.

Lieut. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's northward thrust toward the North Sea still was checked at Lingen, where heavy fighting raged as the British strove to clear the enemy from this road and railway junction 50 miles from the sea.

No Holland Evacuation

On the east flank of this salient, thrust deep across escape routes from northern Holland, a bridgehead was enlarged over the Dortmund-Ems Canal northeast of the fallen enemy airbase at Rheine.

On the northwestern end of the front, the Canadian 1st Army in a 5-mile advance captured Almelo, 35 miles from the Zuider Zee, where it cut one of the main supply routes to the enemy V-bomb sites along the Dutch coast.

A senior officer squelched reports that there was any wholesale German evacuation of Holland, declaring that withdrawals were mainly garrison troops and operators of the V-bomb sites.

It was still possible the Germans would put up a hard fight in Holland, thus blighting hopes of the Dutch for the early liberation of their big cities of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague and Utrecht.

132 From Berlin

Paris, April 5 (AP)—The 3d Army advanced to within 132 miles of Berlin today in the Schlotheim area while other Allies closed up to the Weser River on a wide front 23 miles from Hannover. The Germans were retreating pellmell toward the Elbe, which flows within 50 miles of the capital.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 4th Armored Division captured the ancient Thuringian town of Muehlhausen and then moved 8 miles northeast the Schlotheim area, closest approach to Berlin.

The Germans appeared to be evacuating Hannover.

Ten Arms Plants Captured

At Schlotheim, the 3d Army was 72 miles from Leipzig and 170 miles from Russian siege lines and within 17 of the great German supply center of Nordhausen, frequently bombed in recent days.

Ten small arms factories were captured in 3d Army gains along a 100-mile front. One column reached Muehlberg, 7 miles southeast of Gotha, in a drive toward Czechoslovakia that would cut Germany in two. Considerable enemy traffic was seen moving toward the Czech border.

Ninth Army tanks and infantry crossed the Weser River today in the vicinity of Tuendern, south of Hamelin, and poked out onto the roads leading to Hannover.

9th Gains 28 Miles

The Weser was reached on a 48-mile front from 15 miles north of Minden to the Pied Piper town of Hamelin by four divisions of the American 9th and British 2d armies.

First Army troops opened fresh attacks to destroy up to 150,000 trapped Germans in the Ruhr, advancing 4 miles northwest from the eastern end of the encirclement.

Ninth Army divisions northeast of the Ruhr advanced as much as 28 miles and captured Hereford, Detmold, Bad Oeynhausen and Neheim and completely cleared the difficult Teutoburger passes near bypassed Bielefeld. Eleven hospitals were taken; one contained a general and the military administrator of Muenster, being treated for "mental fatigue."

Allied planes struck through rain at road-jamming columns of Nazis, in flight east to the Elbe, the last river before Berlin.

Hannover Threatened

Hannover itself, a rail and industrial center, was imminently threatened. The Germans, still too badly staggered to form an effective line along the 240-foot-wide Weser, were filling secondary roads particularly in their run for the Elbe, which flows into the North Sea above Hamburg, on the west side of the Danish peninsula.

Flyers said the traffic was heavy all the way from the Weser to well beyond Hannover and that the columns were streaming east.

The 7th Army was striking through hard resistance down the last 34 miles to Nuernberg, where the war-minded Reich transformed its toy shops into arsenals. The French were 20 miles from Stuttgart and curling around the Black Forest and that last intact section of the Siegfried Line.

The Two Big Allied Drives

While the clampdown upon the Ruhr continued, the eastward Allied onslaught was shaping into two mighty drives. One was toward Hannover, Brunswick and Berlin.

The other was across Thuringia toward Leipzig and a probable link-up with the Russians.

Both drives had terrific mobile strength. Already 55 divisions have been identified east of the Rhine and 19 of these are armored with up to 4,750 tanks.

Neither drive had encountered anything like enough resistance to block the momentum.

Minden Mishap

Against the Weser line, the British 2d and United States 9th had 55,000 men shoulder to shoulder, with more coming up. The Germans blew up all bridges in the American sector, one after the Nazi garrison at Minden had been offered a chance to surrender. While negotiations were under way, British tanks appeared and attacked the city from the north.

Shells from Churchill tanks whamming into the town disrupted arrangements for peaceful occupation of the town and the bridge site. The startled Germans blew up the last span and left American tanks and British Tommies high and dry on the Weser's west bank.

Mopup Above Muenster

Veteran 9th Army infantrymen behind the Weser vanguards began cleaning out a pocket from Muenster north and east to Osnabrueck where the German 84th Division and several smaller units were believed trapped by the American-British junction at Minden. The pocket was about 7 miles wide and 15 long.

Four armored divisions of the 3d Army were fingering out into the Thuringian plain after capturing Kassel, Gotha, Suhl and Zella-Mehlis.

Five of the nine attacking Allied armies took 29,938 prisoners yesterday—more than two divisions—increasing the toll for fifteen days to more than 300,000.

Armored spearheads of the American 3d Army beat down the last 55 miles toward the Saxony rail center of Plauen, near Czechoslovakia, in a drive to bisect Germany and join the Russian.

British Go 25 Miles In Day

The British, in the western outskirts of Minden, were 90 miles southwest of Hamburg and 47 south of the naval base of Bremen. They had made another breakthrough and swept 25 miles past Osnabrueck in a single day to reach the Weser.

[The British 7th Armored Division is within 38 miles of Bremen, a Reuter dispatch said.]

The 9th Army, sending four of its infantry divisions into a side campaign to crush in the northern side of the Ruhr box, fought into Soest and battled the last defend-

...mm. They moved a bare 5 ...om Dortmund on two sides. ...he last Germans were being beaten out of Wuerzburg and Heilbronn by the 7th Army, which fought less than 34 miles from Nuernberg. The French fought beyond captured Karlsruhe to within 20 miles of Stuttgart.

Hard Fight At Lingen

The British 52d Lowland Division fought heavily to clear the Ems River town of Lingen, 48 miles from an inlet of the North Sea. It appeared probable that much of German Army Group H in Holland had escaped the closing trap during the last four days, most of them too inclement for much flying.

The Canadian 1st Army imminently menaced the Dutch city of Arnhem and pressed on a broad front toward the Zuider Zee, to cut across supply routes to the V-bomb launching platforms between The Hague and Rotterdam.

Third Consolidating Gains

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's red hot 3d Army, more than 215 miles inside Germany, spent much of its energy consolidating gains of the past fourteen days, in which it has taken 63,406 prisoners.

The 4th Armored (Breakthrough) Division turned south from its latest conquest at Gotha, an airplane producing center, and cleared Ohrdruf, 7 miles below the city. The 6th Armored Division stabbed north into Muehlhausen, 38 miles northwest of Weimar. One column of the 6th drove 22 miles east to enter Muehlhausen from the north; another jabbed 4 miles northeast and entered the town from the other side. Both columns encountered only scattered resistance.

Altengottern Reached

The 65th Division, mopping up behind the tanks, pushed to Altengottern, five miles southeast of Muehlhausen. Other infantrymen gained 15 miles east to a point beyond Mihla, nine miles south of Muehlhausen.

One column of the 90th Division advanced 12 miles and entered Barchfeld, 11 south of Eisenach, and another spearhead fought into Echardthausen, four south of Eisenach. Eisenach itself—on the superhighway to Leipzig—was bypassed several days ago by armored divisions and entered only today by infantrymen who advanced three miles.

26th Goes 16 Miles

The 26th (Yankee) Division advanced up to 16 miles reaching the area 17 miles southwest of Gotha. The 80th (Blue Ridge) Division repulsed two counter-attacks and drove 6 miles northeast to reach a point 7 miles east of the fallen tank and aircraft manufacturing city of Kassel. Cavalry entered Meimbressen, 7 miles northwest of Kassel.

Bradley Directs Four Armies

Paris, April 5 (AP)—For current activities, operational control of the United States 9th Army and the 29th Tactical Air Command have been returned respectively to the United States 12th Army Group and the United States 9th Air Force, supreme headquarters announced today.

In addition to the 9th, Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army Group includes the United States 1st, 3d and 15th armies, making Bradley the first general in American history to command four field armies in one group.

His command consists of considerably more than 1,000,000 men.

Split At Ardennes

Control of the 12th Army Group was split at the time of the Germans' Ardennes offensive last December, when the 9th and part of the 1st were switched to Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group.

When the Ardennes bulge was flattened, Bradley got back the 1st Army elements, but the 9th was kept under Montgomery because it was to be used with his troops in the pincer cleanup west of the Rhine, and the initial thrust across the river.

Now the 9th Army is linked up with the 1st in throttling the Ruhr.

Report Of SS Murder Of Negro GI's Probed

With U.S. 3d Army, April 5 (AP)—The 3d Army is investigating a 5th Infantry Division report that several Negro members of an ordnance ammunition company were murdered by SS troops who captured their position.

A single bullet hole was found in the head of each of the Negroes. One witness said two SS guards forced a Negro to run through a field an dthen shot him.

The 3d Army also is investigating a report that the same SS men fired on the ambulances of a field hospital, killing a medical major and at least two aid men.

SNIPING RIFE IN WUERZBURG

42d Division's Squads Head For Prison Hospital

Wuerzburg, Germany, April 4 [AP—Delayed]—Picked squads of two 42d (Rainbow) Division regiments fought their way through the rubble of Wuerzburg tonight against continuous sniper fire.

Officers in headquarters on the west bank of the Main, spurred by the hope of freeing several hundred American and British prisoners reported in the Luitpold Hospital on a mountain east of the city, said the fight was going well.

Three battalions of the 222d Regiment started crossing the river in assault boats at 4.30 A.M. yesterday.

Rainbow Rangers from the 232d Regiment moved in this morning and the work of cleaning out snipers, building by building, continued through the day. Prisoners were brought to the quayside in batches of 50 and shunted across the river to prisoner cages.

Ghostly Ruins

This afternoon, tanks of the 12th Armored Division, which had led the dash up to Marienberg and Hoechberg, west-bank suburbs of Wuerzburg, rolled across a bridge built by Company A of the 119th Engineers.

Most of the area back from the quayside was a ghostly pile of ruins through which men stalked cautiously.

"They tell us the air force did all this in a twenty-minute raid," a soldier said.

The surprise of the crossing must have been complete. Around the corner leading off from a street running back from the river, Germans' bodies lay in contorted positions. One had been lighting a cigarette when a bullet caught him. Another had been looking at his paybook by candlelight.

'The Fuhrer Lives'

Testifying to the viciousness of the fighting, 100 yards farther east lay the body of an American medical sergeant, his garb clearly marked by a Red Cross, with a bullet through his back.

Ancient Wuerzburg, with a peacetime population of more than 100,000, was one of the most complete examples of baroque architecture. Tonight its serrated silhouette told of what air power can do to centuries of building.

Across the river on a height rising up from Marienberg stands the ruins of Marienberg fortress. Prisoners lined up on the quay could see a huge "Heil Hitler" sign painted on its walls as they turned to be marched off across a bridge on which were chalked the words, "believe, fight, win—the Führer lives—at Wuerzburg a stand will be made."

MUENSTER BISHOP IS SAFE IN SUBURB

Muenster, April 5 (A. P.).—Count Clemens von Galen, bishop of Muenster, world-renowned churchman who defied Nazi doctrines from the day Adolf Hitler became Chancellor, is safe in a suburb of Muenster, now well behind the Allied lines.

"When there is peace again, then I will speak," he said yesterday in an interview in which he reflected the spiritual quality which has placed him high above the war which flowed past him. Thoroughly German, for all his defiance of the Nazis, the Bishop barred any direct quotation except the statement that he would speak out again when the fighting stops.

He was hopeful that the restraint of Allied soldiers toward the German people would form a basis on which the Germans could rebuild a self-respecting political life. A priest who acted as interpreter suggested that the bishop had been concerned lest the Allies build a hate-fostering resentment by rape, plundering or drunkenness.

The Bishop indicated that he was anxious to return to bomb-flattened Muenster. His palace, like everything else in Muenster, is a heap of rubble and the ancient cathedral of Saint Paul, dating from the thirteenth century, is almost a total loss.

Freed Nazi Slaves Problem To Yanks

By Don Whitehead

With the U.S. 1st Army, April 5 (AP)—The first of Europe's scrambled millions to be liberated from the Nazi yoke have become a major problem for the advancing Americans.

The problem is growing daily as men, women and children who had been taken prisoner or forced from their homes in Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and other over-run lands and made to work as slaves begin the long road back.

Along the roads to the front you see them—walking across fields or in ditches or by the roadside, making their way toward rear areas and away from the Germans who held them captive. They plod along in small groups bound for home—or what once was home.

Live Off Country

Most of them wear uniforms given them by the Germans or worn all during their imprisonment. They carry only small bundles, and live off the countryside, remarkably little damaged by war.

Somewhere along the line they are taken into camps for displaced persons and processe dfor the return to their homelands. It is a strange and tragic procession along these roads winding through the hills of Westphalia, of wanderers trying to make their way back to families and friends and familiar scenes which they may never know again as they once knew them.

Sleep In Barns, Haystacks

They sleep in barns or in haystacks along the roads. Often doughboys toss them cans of C rations from passing trucks.

On the surface there is little evidence of hatred for the Germans but stories are beginning to be told of old hatreds flaring into violence. In one village which had several factories an owner lived in baronial splendor in an abode overlooking the town. He had more than 200 slave laborers working under him.

"They lived like pigs in little huts around the village," said Lieut. Ervin Hanse, of Lincoln, Nab. "It reminded you of stories of medieval times."

Factory Owner's Throat Cut

Fnally came the day when Americans entered the village and seized these factories producing war materiel for the Wehrmacht. The slave laborers were freed.

Next morning the factory owner was found with his throat slashed from ear to ear. Some say that a Russian finally got his revenge.

The first-hand observations of slave laborers living unwillingly behind the enemy lines can sometimes be turned to good account.

Maria From Ukraine

There was Maria from the Ukraine, with her straight, stringy, light-brown hair and molded features. She came to the American command post with Nicolai, who had been taken prisoner by the Germans in Latvia. Nicolai bared his shoulder to show an ugly scar where he had been hit by a piece of shrapnel. It almost had torn off his shoulder.

Maria was taken from Kiev by the Germans three years ago and sent back into Germany, where she became a maid for a farm family

Nazis Steal Keepsakes, From 10 Finery Captured Army Nurses

WITH THE U. S. FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, April 5—(AP) Getting ambushed was not what bothered the ten American nurses so much—it was losing their keepsakes and their Paris finery.

The score they have to settle is not so much with the Germans as with those American soldiers who passed uncomplimentary remarks about their kitchen policing during the nine hours they were in German custody.

It all happened this way:

The nurses were members of a hospital unit overrun and cut off by German SS troops in a column 25 miles north of Frankfurt last Sunday. Their outfit attached to the Fourth Armored Division, was held by the Germans until it was liberated at 6:30 p. m. the same day by American tanks.

"The first thing we knew there was a lot of shooting and we hit the ditch," said Lt. Helen Cosma, Toledo, Ohio. "It was the first time any of us had to do that, but we did not lose any time."

"After a while," said Lt. Lillian Clark, Mineral Wells, Tex., "I asked my driver if it was O. K. to get up. He looked around and said, 'Yes, it's all over now. The Germans got us.' The Germans then proceeded to take everything we had. What made me the maddest was the loss of a new nightgown I'd bought in Paris and never worn."

Lt. Marie Janes, South Boston, Mass., said she lost not only the things she bought in Paris, but also her prized wedding pictures. She was married in France to Capt. Ralph Janes of Albert Lea, Minn., who now is an Air Corps instructor at Stockton Field, Calif.

"Those Germans scattered everything from hell to here," added the pint-sized and fiery Lt. Janes.

Lt. Dorothy Pratt of Salem, Mass., brushed aside the German who poked a gun in her face, and retrieved her musette bag—the only such possession salvaged by any of the nurses.

"I pointed businesslike at my Red Cross brassard and told him he couldn't do that to me," she related.

"They got everything but my silk map—you know—the kind the paratroopers use, which is my prize war trophy," said Lt. Mildred Barnett, Galveston, Tex. "I saved it by stuffing it in my bosom."

The Germans told the nurses they were not captives, but were being held in custody until a tactical situation cleared, said Lt. Rosalou Freeland, Washington, adding, "but that didn't sound very convincing."

"What really burned us up," declared Lt. Lula Howard, Hollis, Okla., with a laugh, "was the way the GI's who were captured with us snickered and passed snide remarks at our kitchen policing. Our kitchen staff was cut off and somebody had to cook, so we turned to."

The voluntary kitchen help included Lt. Lola Dickenson, and Lt. Marjorie Rice, who peeled potatoes and made soup for everybody.

The most chagrined individual in the entire column was Lt. Col. Harold Cohen of Spartanburg, S. C., who is half of the Fourth Armored's famous spearheading team of Abrams and Cohen.

"I'd been to the rear for treatment of a minor ailment and was riding in the column after nine months of raising hell at the front in tanks and reconnaissance cars," Cohen said. "They knew who they had. When the German general commanding the SS outfit came up he said, 'ah, how glad we are to see you.' I gulped and said to myself, 'Cohen, you've had it.' Then he asked, 'How's your friend, Abrams, doing?' I told him Abrams, (West Newton, Mass.) was doing all right. I thought to myself the Germans knew better than me how he was doing.

"I don't know why they didn't shoot me on the spot, but at that, nobody knew just who was capturing whom, and I guess they just didn't think of it."

Riding with Cohen was Maj. Thomas Patinge, Atlantic City, N. J., medico. After marching the hospital staff 2 1-2 miles to the next town, the Germans permitted the Americans to set up a hospital at which both American and German wounded were treated.

Lt. Col. J. D. Hancock, Louisville, Ky., was taken before a German SS general, who wore a smoked glass monocle and had a duelling scar on his left cheek. The general told the Americans they could minister to all the wounded "except the American blacks." Hancock turned down the proposition.

Lt. Col. Luke A. Mulligan, Leonia, N. J., commander of the hospital of which the ambushed unit is a part, said the stay in German hands was ended as a result of a heroic dash through the German lines by Lt. Harms, a medical administrative officer from Sibley, Iowa; Cpl. George Flaherty, St. John's place, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pfc. Frank C. Digman, Baileyville, Ill. The lieutenant and two enlisted men rode through German positions in an ambulance and guided tanks to their rescue.

Captured German Diplomat Says Reich Won't Surrender

With U.S. 1st Army in Germany, April 5 (AP)—A captured member of the German Foreign Office said flatly today that "there will be no capitulation—you will have to occupy every town in Germany."

The German official, whose name was withheld, declared "you can't imagine or understand the German people. They are living in a completely different world, one of heroism and romanticism. The fact they have no manufacturing centers remaining doesn't make any difference to them."

The German, a handsome, dark-haired young man who left Berlin when Russian troops appeared likely to take it quickly, was taken into protective custody by Lieuts. Herbert C. Marcum, Mayfield, Ky., and Eric L. Weil, Westwood, N.J., when American troops entered the town in which the official was staying.

Eastern Threat Worst

"The threat from the east has been considered much worse than the threat from the west and as many troops as possible have been committed against it," the German said.

He added that the present "big four" of German politics and foreign policy is made up of Hitler, Heinrich Himmler, Paul Joseph Goebbels and Martin Bormann, who succeeded Rudolph Hess as the active leader of the Nazi party. He described Bormann as "extremely anti-Christian and a small man."

Himmler he pictured as a "true lover of the Führer despite his own growing importance and his power as leader of the SS (Elite Guard) and police organizations."

No Peace Feelers

Propaganda Minister Goebbels he dismissed as a "brain truster and adviser to Hitler, but without power himself."

"No one except this group could make a separate peace," the German official declared, "and this group has no intention of making peace offers. There is no other prospect except fighting to the last. These four men have no conception of compromise."

He insisted there was no doubt that when the German armies are defeated in the field the war would go underground, with the recently organized "Wefewolf" organization and German SS youths carrying on the fighting. And, he added, unless Germany's food supply and employment problems are quickly solved after the Reich's collapse, its armies and these underground organizations, "and communism," will be widely propagated.

Wonders He Is Living

The young Foreign Office official said the group represented by the "big four" had "lost its influence completely as compared to what it enjoyed in 1933, or the Summer of 1940-41, and many people feel it made an enormous mistake in following Hitlerism."

Somewhat critical of the Nazis—since his capture, at least—the German said the biggest difficulty facing Germany was the fact its bourgeoisie has become helpless because in the last twelve years leaders of the middle class and nobility who opposed Hitlerism had been killed.

"Life doesn't mean a thing. You are shot right away or hanged. The organization surpasses imagination. I wonder myself that I am living," he said.

"Hitler's group admires the East and now particularly Russia's efficiency. They would ask for peace immediately if Stalin would guarantee Hitler's regime. But it isn't feasible now. Too much blood has been shed. It would be a terrible thing, anyway, because it would mean the destruction of the whole German life."

Life Under The Earth

Questioned on Hess' flight to Britain, he said it was a prepared attempt "by a certain group" in Germany to come to an understanding with the West.

"Hess was afraid of the Russian campaign and tried to come to an agreement with some influential friends in England."

He painted a dark picture of existence in Berlin under Allied bombing attacks, saying the city had suffered inestimable damage with most ministries destroyed, whole quarters of the city wiped out and thousands forced to live in cellars and underground shelters.

"Life under the earth," he said with grim restraint, "is very difficult."

RUSSIAN FORCES THROW SIEGE ARC AROUND VIENNA

Tank-led Shock Troops Reach Southern City Limits of Austrian Capital.

SLASH SUPPLY LINES

Reds Advance in Carpathian Mountains, Smash Toward Zagreb.

LONDON, Friday, April 6—(AP) Tank-led Russian shock troops battled to the southern city limits of Vienna yesterday while other Red army veterans launched a drive to encircle the Austrian capital after slashing across two of its vital supply links with the war arsenals of Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Assault forces braille across two rivers, a canal and a network of suburban railroads and highways constituting a highly-fortified defense belt and captured the suburban towns of Ober-Laa and Unter-Laa, four and a half miles southeast of famed St. Stephen's church in mid-city, Moscow revealed.

Gain in Czechoslovakia

Simultaneously, other Soviet troops were rolling up a German bulge in Czechoslovakia's Carpathian mountains, captured industrial Zywiec in southwest Poland and battled closer to the Croatian puppet capital of Zagreb in northern Yugoslavia.

Capturing 6,500 prisoners in Yugoslavia, the Russians jumped to 63,500 the number of enemy troops taken in that sector and in southwestern Hungary in the past five days, while in the far north, Red army men hurled enemy remnants back into Danzig bay in a clean-up of coastal territory north of captured Gydnia.

While three Russian armies surged forward along a blazing 350-mile front stretching across Yugoslavia, Austria, Slovakia and Poland, Berlin said that a giant Red army offensive on the Oder river before the Reich capital was expect the next few days."

Two mighty armies were involved in the battle for Vienna. Southeast of the city, they were believed to have linked after the capture of the Bratislava gap fortress of Bruck, and together they extended a siege arc around the city of 83 miles. The arms of a developing pincer southwest and northeast of the city were 46 miles apart.

Reds Drive Into Greater Vienna

Nazis Rush Fresh Forces—Big Tank Battles Rage in Outskirts—2 Armies Close In.

EASISOHFG

London, April 6 (A. P.).—The Russians have fought into Greater Vienna, the Germans reported today, and Moscow dispatches said Russian forces were pouring over the Danube between captured Bratislava and the Austrian capital to join in the assault.

South of Vienna, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army battled to the city line in the face of violent Nazi artillery fire from the capital's parks and captured Ober-Laa and Unter-Laa, adjacent to the municipal boundary in a three-mile gain.

To take these points, Tolbukhin's troops broke across the Schwechat river, hurdled a highway and railroad defense line, crossed the Neustadter canal, and another railroad, and then smashed over the Liesing river. The entire defense position was fortified with concrete pillboxes and crisscross fire.

Enter Aircraft Center

While the Russians battled in the outskirts of industrial Schwechat, site of a big aircraft plant, four miles southeast other forces captured Rauchenwarth, one mile from the highway over which enemy troops were fleeing fallen Bruck.

Six miles south of Vienna, Tolbukhin's tankmen captured Laxenburg, site of the old imperial Austrian castle and one mile south of the big suburban town of Modling. In the same area, Guntramsdorf and Gumpolskirchen, seven and eight miles south of the capital, were taken.

Southwest of the city, Tolbukhin's men thrust a two to three-mile-wide wedge through the Vienna woods in a sweep around the capital that cut across the high-speed highway linking Vienna with Linz, 89 miles to the west, and with Munich.

Gaining five to six miles, the tank wedge swept up the villages of Breitenfurth and Hochrotherd, six and seven miles southwest of Vienna, and hammered to within three miles of the Vienna-Linz railroad running through St. Polten, 23 miles west of the advancing Russians.

These forces were within 13 miles south of the Danube town of Tulln, 10 miles northwest of Vienna, which, if captured, would sever all Vienna's westward communications along the south bank of the Danube and also the main railroad from Vienna to Prague.

Drive Along Danube

Southeast, east and northeast of Vienna Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army surged forward in gains of seven miles along the south and north banks of the Danube river.

Premier Stalin announced that Malinovsky's men had toppled the key defense bastion of Bruck, 12 miles southeast of Vienna, after hurdling the Leitha river and smashing completely the defenses of the Bratislava gap. Capturing Bruck, Malinovsky's forces linked with Tolbukhin's men north of the Neusiedler See and together the two armies pounded through enemy fortifications.

Stalin revealed also that Malinovsky's tankmen and Cossacks had overcome the small Carpathian mountains north of captured Bratislava and had swept into the Morava river valley to take Malacky, 27 miles northeast of Vienna.

Taking Malacky they severed the main railroad running along the east bank of the Morava, linking Vienna with Moravska-Ostrava in northern Czechoslovakia and indirectly with Dresden in Saxony.

They also were within six miles of the Morava river, protecting the northern approaches to Vienna, and had smashed downhill into the flat tank country which leads over a web of rivers, canals and railroads to the northern suburbs of the city.

At the same time, Malinovsky's army, in conjunction with the 4th Ukrainian army, was rapidly flattening a German bulge that had extended deep into eastern Slovakia.

Malinovsky's mountain fighters captured Banovce, 87 miles northeast of Vienna, and advanced up the Nitra River valley to take Previdza, 105 miles northeast of Vienna.

The 4th Ukrainian Army also was fighting its way across the northern ranges of the Carpathians under a new commander. Marshal Stalin revealed that Gen. Ivan I. Petrov had been succeeded by Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko, former commander of the 2d Baltic Army which last was reported operating in Latvia.

Rail Junction Captured

Yeremenko's troops captured the mountain road and rail junction of Ruzomberok, in the Vah River valley dividing the High and Little Tatra mountain ranges, and which lies on a supply railroad linking Bratislava with Lwow in Poland.

Yeremenko's troops were 25 miles north of Malinovsky's units at Banska Bystrica in the Hron River valley.

The Germans admitted that their troops were withdrawing from Slovakia under pressure.

Coliberator Of Riga

Yeremenko is regarded as one of the outstanding Red Army commanders. He helped direct the breakout from Stalingrad and participated in the Russian assault on Rostov. In the Baltic battles, he was a coliberator of Riga.

Stalin did not reveal where Petrov had been transferred, but he had won high distinction for his advances through the difficult mountainous terrain of Czechoslovakia during the past year.

APR 6 1945

southeast of the city, was under fire.

Big Tank Battles Rage.

Great tank battles were being fought in the suburbs of the city of 1,900,000, Moscow said. The famous Tiergarten, had been converted by the Germans into an artillery position from which heavy barrages fell upon Russian ranks.

Although one Moscow newspaper said high Nazis were

The Russians were battling to encircle the capital of Austria, which Hitler incorporated into Germany in 1938. While some forces fought to draw lines to the northeast of the capital, others battled to cross the maze of rivers and railways and attack from the southwest.

DAY

Already, Moscow dispatches said, they had captured two secondary airfields, one a few miles east of Baden, and the Schwechat field just south of Vienna, while a third, Zwoelfaxing field, just evacuating the city, most Soviet advices indicated that the Germans were determined to fight in Vienna as they fought in Budapest. King Tiger tanks and numerous types of self-propelled weapons were being rushed into the battle against the Russians, Moscow reported.

Already across the Wierbach River, southeast of Vienna, the Second and Third Ukrainian Armies of Marshals Rodion Malinovsky and Feodor Tolbukhin fought shoulder to shoulder against the German line along the Liesing River, which runs from west to east through the city's suburbs swinging just south of the beautiful deer park.

Tank fights were taking place in suburban Laae, Erlaa, Rodaun and Enzersdorf, four miles from the center of Vienna. A heavy struggle was in full swing in another suburb, Purchtoldsdorf, south of the Liesing, a junction vital to the defense of southern Vienna.

If Marshal Tolbukhin succeeded in forcing the Reiche River, which falls into the Liesing, just south of the Tiergarten, and then crossed the Liesing, he would be in position to launch an attack upon Vienna from the west, as well as the south and east.

The Germans said that the Russians were striking for St. Poelten, thirty miles due west of Vienna and sixty-two miles east of Linz, munitions center in northwestern Austria. The Paris radio said that the Russians already had succeeded in cutting the Vienna-Linz railway, but this was not confirmed either in Berlin or Moscow.

Bruck Is Taken.

East of Vienna, Marshal Joseph V. Stalin announced, in an order of the day, that the Russians captured Bruck, railway center twenty miles east of the Austrian capital in the eighteen-mile-wide Bratislava Gap, between Neusiedler Lake and the Danube. Northwest of Bratislava and north of the Danube, Marshal Malinovsky's men also captured Malacky, thirty miles northeast of Vienna.

Pressure on Vienna from the east was intensified by the fall of Bratislava, capital of puppet Slovakia, on the northern bank of the Danube, thirty miles east of the Austrian city.

The Russians who had swarmed ito Bratislava seized that city of 160,000 so quickly that there were indications that they may have won intact the bridge over the Danube there. The Russians had poured through the mountains north of Bratislava into the Morava (March) Valley and were streaming across both the Morava and Danube.

The fact that they were using boats at many places, Moscow dispatches said, may indicate that the traffic was too heavy for any bridges left standing. The Morava, which joins the Danube between Bratislava and Vienna, forms the boundary between northeastern Austria and Slovakia, and between Slovakia and the German protectorate of Moravia-Bohemia—the rump part of Czecho-Slovakia.

The Russians had reached the west of Bratislava, on the Danube side, before that city fell. North of Bratislava, Marshal Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian Army, also swung into action yesterday, capturing sixty places in conjunction with Czecho-Slovak units in northwestern Slovakia, the last corner of the puppet State under German control.

These units were moving rapidly west of the Polish border city of Zakopane toward Turciansky Svaety Martin, on the Turic River, sixty miles southeast of Moravska-Ostrava. These forces and Marshal Malinovsky's men in the Morava Valley were rapidly developing a threat to the rear door of the Morava Gap, already threatened by Marshal Ivan Konev's First Ukrainian Army around Batibor, in Silesia.

South of Vienna, the Germans said, Russian forces reached the Mura River, in the northern tip of Yugoslavia, apparently at a port about fifty-five miles north of Zagreb, capital of Croatia, Germany's last puppet State in southeastern Europe, and about 100 miles due east of the Italian border.

Striking from the south, Tolbukhin's army seized more than thirty communities in the vicinity of Vienna, including Zwoelfaxing, just seven and a half miles from the center of the capital. Tolbukhin smashed through the town of Himberg, collapsing strong anti-tank defenses and mounted an attack which seemed to support the Nazi admission that the last ditch defense of Vienna was at hand.

Hungary Cleared of Foe.

Almost 100 miles due south of Vienna, other Russian troops fighting shoulder to shoulder with Bulgarian units drove the last Germans off Hungarian soil and fought in the area between Graz and Maribor, thirty-six miles inside Yugoslavia and seventy-eight miles east of the Italian frontier. The Moscow communique said ten towns were taken yesterday in this drive, and 9,000 Germans were captured Tuesday.

Meanwhile, to the north the Berlin radio said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army was about to launch a powerful assault from Oder and Neisse River bases toward a junction with American forces striking at Berlin from the west. Official silence in Moscow shrouded developments in this area fronting on Berlin, but field dispatches said the big Russian offensive was near at hand.

5,000 PLANES RAID REICH

Attacks Pave Way For 3d And 7th Armies In South

CLAIM BERLIN

London, April 5 (AP)—United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators spilled 3,500 tons of explosives today on German targets along the likely routes of the United States 3d and 7th armies' drives eastward, rounding out a day in which nearly 5,000 Allied planes from Britain battered the Reich.

An American force of 1,800 planes—1,200 heavies and 600 fighters—struck at the Nazi "zero zone," the area of central Germany now being compressed by the Russians from the east and the Americans from the west. The attacks served the double purpose of supporting both fronts.

Nuernberg Attacked

NIGHT

The targets were located on a line forming a huge arc around the western part of Czechoslovakia. Striking ahead of American 7th Army spearheads, the bombers blasted the choked rail traffic at Nuernberg and an airfield at Unterschlauersbach, just to the southwest, believed to be a jet-plane base.

Other bombers wheeled southward and smashed at an ordnance depot at Inglostadt, between Nuernberg and Munich. Still others swung northeast ahead of 3d Army spearheads. These planes pounded rail bottlenecks at Bayreuth and at Plauen, near the Czechoslovak border, and hit an ordnance center at Grafenwohr.

Ack-Ack Intense

In the Nuernberg area, some formations met intense anti-aircraft fire and a few isolated attacks by enemy jet-propelled fighters. One jet plane was shot down by a Thunderbolt escort pilot. Seven parked two-engine fighters were destroyed in a strafing attack on an enemy airfield.

Figures on the American losses were not complete.

The Italy based United States 15th Air Force sent out Fortresses which showered fragmentation bombs on parked enemy aircraft on the Campoformido airfield near Udine, a fighter base, and Liberators attacked rail yards at Brewica and the Dravograd rail bridge in Yugoslavia.

American Lightnings dive-bombed a rail bridge 40 miles south of Klagenfurt, Austria, on the Zagreb-Villach rail line, a main German escape route from Yugoslavia.

In Germany 2d Tactical Air Force fighter-bombers knocked out 300 enemy vehicles in 450 sorties flown by late afternoon in operations limited by rain.

The U. S. strikes followed a night raid by 1,000 RAF heavies—the greatest force to be sent aloft at night since the start of the cross-Rhine offensive — on three oil plants.

Mosquito bombers gave Berlin another pummelling.

The Air ministry said 18 RAF bombers were missing.

Allies Tighten Bohemia Vise

London, April 5 (AP).—American and Soviet armies today were only a few miles from Bohemia-Moravia, the German protectorate in central Europe that was carved out of Czechoslovakia after Munich.

Marshal Stalin in an order of the day announced the capture of Prievidza, important railway center on the Nitra River 32 miles from Moravia.

Western front reports said the Americans were 58 miles from Bohemia. East to west, the protectorate is about 250 miles wide.

Bombers Blast Nuernberg Area

1200 Heavy Planes in Attacks—Also Hit Targets in Munich Zone.

APR 6 1945

London, April 5 (A. P.).—More than 1,200 Fortresses and Liberators attacked two large German ordnance depots, rail targets and airfields in the Munich and Neurnberg areas of southern Germany today.

The two ordnance depots were at Ingolstadt, forty miles northeast of Munich, and Grafenwohr, forty miles northeast of Nuernberg. Rail targets at Nuernberg, at Bayreuth, forty miles northeast of Nuernberg, and Plauen, near the Czecho-Slovak border, also were attacked and an airfield at Unterschlaudersbach, just southwest of Nuernberg, was hit.

The heavy bombers were accompanied by 600 Mustangs and Thunderbolts. The attacks followed the biggest night raids in over a month by more than 1,000 R. A. F. bombers striking in four waves.

Mosquitoes hit Berlin with two-ton bombs for the forty-eighth time in forty-four nights and strong forces of Lancasters and Halifaxes bombed three of Germany's most important synthetic oil plants and refineries near Leipzig and Hamburg.

The Air Ministry said incessant raids already had reduced the enemy's output of gasoline to a mere 10 per cent of the total of a year ago and the output of all oil products to about 18 per cent.

Last night's targets were the Lutzkendorf and Leuna plants at Merseberg, fifteen miles west of Leipzig and the Rhenania refinery at Harburg, just across the river from Hamburg. The Leuna works, one of the two largest German synthetic oil production centers, have been battered often before by both British and American planes, but through in forced labor the Nazis had managed to get them partly in operation again.

In all operations yesterday and last night the R. A. F. and American Eighth Air Force sent more than 3,250 bombers over Germany. Total Allied losses, including tactical aircraft, were twenty-seven bombers and eighteen fighters. The Eighth Air Force lost eight [illegible] heavy bombers and four fighters. Some of its groups were attacked by jet propelled Messerschmitt in packs of four to eight planes each. Altogether yesterday seventy German aircraft were destroyed by Allied fighters—thirty-seven in the air and thirty-three on the ground.

Eisenhower Sees Battle To Destroy Nazi Guerrillas

WASHINGTON, April 5 — (AP) General Dwight D. Eisenhower, convinced that "a clean cut military surrender" of Germany is not in the cards, foresees a bitter-end fight to wipe out bands of Nazi guerrillas.

"A very large number of troops" will be needed to run down and destroy them, he wrote President Roosevelt in a letter released by the White House today.

"Should Be Prepared"

"We should be prepared," he said, mentioning moves already planned to prevent bands of Nazis from slipping away to the mountains of southern Germany in a desperate determination to string out the agony of war.

Thus, to the Supreme Allied commander, there is no prospect of massed legions of the foe laying down their arms, nor of sudden quiet along the Western Front like that of the armistice in 1918.

His letter, dated March 31, said:

"The further this campaign progresses, the more probable it appears that there will never be a clean cut military surrender of the forces on the Western Front.

"Our experience to date is that when formations as small as a division are disrupted, their fragments continue to fight until surrounded."

Force or the threat of force, he said, will have to be applied particularly to Nazi paratroopers, panzer men and the swaggering storm troopers whom Adolf Hitler has fondly called his elite guard.

What the cost in American and Allied lives will be in cleaning them all out, or how long it will take, Eisenhower did not attempt to estimate.

"I am hopeful," he wrote, "of launching operations at the proper time that should partially prevent a guerrilla control of any large area, such as the southern mountain area."

These operations may be developing even now, in the drive to join Allied and Russian troops in the lower belt of the fighting across Germany.

Eisenhower spoke of the preventive moves after saying that he had appealed to the better sense of the German people. He said "our local propaganda stations are constantly pointing out to the Germans that they ought to be planting crops for next winter's food instead of fighting."

He mentioned only as secondary possibilities that a German government might surrender and that there suddenly might be in Germany a life-saving "upsurge of popular resentment against the war."

Eisenhower himself probably will be the man who decides when organized German resistance is at an end and V-E day has come, the White House said.

Come By Proclamation

The general did not say this on his own part, merely mentioning as most likely that "V-E day will come about only by a proclamation on our part."

So long as any of the "Hitler gang" can make any showing of political power, Eisenhower thinks, "the effort will be to continue resistance not only throughout Germany, but in all the outlying areas, including the Western port areas of France and Denmark and Norway."

This sentence brought up an often-overlooked fact—that there still are Germans in French ports. They were by-passed in the sweep across France.

Should there be any form of a national surrender — Eisenhower held out the bare possibility of some group taking over political control—"then all armed bodies remaining in the field would, in my opinion, occupy the status of brigands or pirates."

In such a position, the general said, "it is my conviction that, except for extreme fanatics, they would largely surrender."

These extremists could only expect the treatment historically given to pirates—or retribution in kind for the treatment the Nazis handed out to innocent people who could not defend themselves.

SMUTS DECLARES ALLIES LACKING IN SPIRIT OF PEACE

DO AHUE

LONDON, April 5—(AP) A warning that there are "serious" indications the Allies are lacking in the spirit necessary to make a successful peace organization was given the British Commonwealth conference by prime minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa.

Smuts predicted, in an address to the opening session of the conference yesterday but not released for publication until tonight, there would be a "colossal" Allied military victory soon, but added:

"There is a possibility there may not be cohesion which is absolutely necessary if we want to make a success of this further and greater task of peace that lies before us.

"There are many indications—some of them perhaps passing, some more serious—which show that there is not that spirit among the Allies which should make San Francisco as great and definite a certainty as victory in the war itself."

Touching on the ticklish question of the position of smaller nations in the international peace framework, Smuts said "some very considerable sacrifices will have to be made by some of the lesser powers."

"On the Big Five will rest a terrible responsibility for peace," he declared. "If they cannot keep together the position of the smaller nations who cannot defend themselves will be hopeless."

In that respect, he said, the Dumbarton Oaks plan "corresponds more to the realities of the situation" than did the League of Nations.

"We now have seen that they who wield the power must also carry a special responsibility. That is why the council now becomes something very different from the old council of the league. It no longer is a body for gate-crashing by smaller powers x x x and the great powers on it have heavy and special duties thrown on them such as they never had under the old league."

At the outset of the conference, called to lay plans for the San Francisco World Security conference and attended by representatives of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, Lord Cranborne, dominions secretary, stressed "the purpose of these talks is not to gang up against other nations or to obtain any sectional advantages for ourselves."

Canadian and Australian representatives joined in declaring their intention of proceeding independently at San Francisco without being bound by Empire policies.

bachter observed that "news from the western front, studded with the names of well known German towns dear to our hearts, is spreading alarm in Germany . . . but an alarm that we feel must result in every one's being at his post and organizing resistance."

"The situation is serious, very much so," said the home radio, "yet we simply must withstand the enemy. Determination and guts must win through. . . . Every German now casts an anxious eye on the map of Germany and is very much worried, but we cannot let ourselves be beaten by these enemies, either by words or by sword.

"Let us all bear in mind right now that it does not matter about this town or that German region; what we must and will stop is the enemy's devilish determination to break our will to resist."

German Workers Desert Jobs

Hundreds of Thousands Fail to Return to Work After Easter Holidays.

London, April 5 (A. P.).—Swedish news dispatches, reporting a continuing disintegration of Germany's war industries, said today that hundreds of thousands of workers throughout the Reich had stayed away from work since the Easter holidays.

The workers absented themselves from their benches "as if by silent agreement," the Stockholm newspaper Morgontidningen said.

Commenting on the "Werewolf" terrorist organization, which the Nazi radio boasted had wiped out an American headquarters and slain a number of Americans at various points behind the lines, the Swedish newspaper Handels-Och Sjoefartstidning of Goeteborg said: "It was only to be expected that the Nazis' 1,000-year Reich would develop into a grotesque witches' Sabbath."

A German radio station calling itself the "werewolf sender" broadcast a series of claims of terrorist successes and appealed to German women to join the organization.

Plea for Resistance.

Nazi Radio Commentator Max Krull contended that the Allies' objectives still were sufficiently distant so that "the war cannot be concluded either in a fortnight or by the date of the San Francisco (World Security) conference," April 25.

The German radio said today "the situation is serious . . . our hate-filled enemy simply must be stopped from rolling around our country." The Reich press joined the clamor for stiffened resistance.

Jean Sibelius Reported Facing Slow Starvation

London, April 5 (AP)—The Finnish composer, Jean Sibelius, who will be 80 next December, is slowly starving in his rustic home a few miles outside Helsinki, Walter Legge, founder of the Sibelius Society here, said today.

"Sibelius received a Finnish state pension equivalent to $1,200 a year," said Legge, "but with the devaluation of Finnish money that is now practically valueless even if the food were there," said Legge.

GERMAN CONVOY HIT

London, April 5 (A. P.).—A British destroyer force patrolling the Norwegian coast early yesterday torpedoed and sank one supply ship of a seven-ship German convoy and scored shell hits on a second supply ship and an escort vessel, the Admiralty announced today. A third supply ship was probably hit by a torpedo.

GERMAN CITIES 'BOMBED' INTO INFERNAL MESS

LONDON, April 5—(AP) One of Britain's top-ranking war chiefs said today that Allied aerial attacks had made an "infernal mess" of 63 German industrial cities and left transportation within the Reich in a "frightful" condition.

The statement of the official who declined use of his name came as the RAF bomber command reported that it alone had dropped 121,360 tons of bombs on 14 principal towns of the industrial Ruhr, making this area the most heavily bombed in the world.

Don Juan Reaches London

London, April 5 (AP)—Don Juan, claimant of the throne of Spain, who recently urged Generalissimo Francisco Franco to sweep away his Falangist regime in favor of a constitutional monarchy, arrived in London today.

Nazi Press Official Joins the Army

London, April 5 (A. P.).—Helmuth Suendermann has resigned as Reich deputy press chief and is going to the front as a soldier, the German transocean propaganda news agency announced today.

16 Fascist Aides To Die

London, April 5 (AP)—Sixteen persons were sentenced to death as Fascist collaborators last night after trials by a Bulgarian People's Court, the Sofia radio reported. Seventy others were sentenced to prison terms ranging from one year to life.

Nazi Troops Seek Word of Kin

LONDON, April 5 (AP).—The German radio, which formerly tried to trace Nazi soldiers for anxious relatives, has done an about face. With the war well inside the Reich, Berlin broadcasts are now helping Nazi soldiers seeking word from their families, many of whom have moved hurriedly from the war zone or have been evacuated.

Pope Thanks Eire For Gift

Dublin, April 5 (AP)—Prime Minister De Valera has received from Pope Pius XII a message thanking the Government and the people of Eire for a recent gift of about $400,000 to relieve distress in Italy. The Pontiff said the needs of the Italian people were unprecedented.

National Economy Head Resigns Post In France

Paris, April 5 (AP)—President de Gaulle accepted the resignation of Pierre Mendes-France, Minister of National Economy, today, and announced that the post had been given to Rene Pleven, who will continue to hold his portfolio as Finance Minister.

Mendes-France has disagreed with the rigid new tax program imposed by Pleven and with other governmental measures.

Control Of French Army Reported Transferred

Paris, April 5 (AP)—A severance, in part, of the French 1st Army from control of the 6th Army Group and supreme headquarters of the Allied expeditionary forces appeared today to have developed within the last few days.

It was reported unofficially that an order had been sent through the French War Ministry to Lieut. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, French commander, directing him to resume his reports through army group channels.

Since the French made their own crossing of the Rhine, the general apparently has been reporting directly and perhaps only to the French War Ministry.

PLOT IN PARIS IS MINIMIZED

Credited To Nazis In Attempt To Oust French State

Paris, April 5 (AP)—A reputed big-scale plot organized on German orders to overthrow the French state was widely and diversely reported tonight but the magistrate in charge of a judicial investigation of the case asserted the affair merely was a minor clean-up of collaborationist elements.

Reports of the alleged conspiracy, characterized by the magistrate as exaggerations, came from official as well as journalistic sources. The Ministry of Interior in a communiqué late today said an attempt by some former members of the pro-Nazi French Popular party to reorganize in France on an underground basis had been under investigation for several months.

17 Arrests Made

First arrests were made several weeks ago and it now is possible to state that almost all the leaders of this organization have been arrested.

Seventeen arrests have been effected in Paris and the provinces. The Interior Ministry said the inquiry was continuing in an effort to discover ramifications perhaps still existing in the provinces, and to learn of the means by which members of the alleged conspiracy had contact, or sought to have contact abroad.

Those arrested were being investigated for an attempt on the exterior security of the state, the Interior Ministry said.

Accounts Are Lurid

Late editions of afternoon papers, especially Leftist organs, carried more lurid accounts. One placed the number of arrests as high as 70, saying the conspirators had ramifications throughout France, clandestine radio transmitters and an arsenal. Other reports in Paris said their activities included plans to assassinate members of the Government.

Magistrate Goletty, in charge of the judicial investigation, told the Associated Press he believed not more than three of those arrested would be held for prosecution. He said they were former members of the Popular party, of no political prominence, who had sought to get in contact with other party members who fled into Germany.

The party's leader, Jacques Doriot, left for Germany in September and since has been reported killed in a Berlin air raid.

Arrests Crush Plot Against France

Paris, April 5 (AP)—Police announced today that a plot against the security of the state had been crushed by the arrest of seventeen leaders of an underground establishment of the pro-Nazi French Popular party.

The party was headed by Jacques Doriot, who collaborated with the Germans under the Vichy regime but who fled to Germany and reportedly met death from an Allied bombing of Berlin.

Members remaining behind were in contact with the Marshal Pétain's entourage at Sigmaringen in Germany and planned assassination of members of the de Gaulle Government as well as sabotage, police said.

Tells Her Story

Maria never learned to speak German, but she was observant, and as the Americans drew near the farm she noticed that fifteen or twenty soldiers would come to the farm house each day, stay overnight and then leave wearing civilian clothes.

The farm wife told her that when the Americans came and asked if there had been any German soldiers there she must say "no." But Maria, at the first opportunity, escaped with Nicolai and came straight to the Americans to tell them what was happening at this farm house.

PRISONERS MEET DEATH IN BOXCAR

Eisenhower Orders Inquiry Into Nazis' Suffocation

Paris, April 5 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has ordered an immediate investigation into the death of an undisclosed number of German prisoners of war during their movement by rail in the American zone of operations March 15 and 16.

An official SHAEF statement today disclosed the deaths, which occurred during movement from the forward area to prisoner-of-war camps in the rear, and said Eisenhower had informed the German high command of the incident and of steps taken to insure a proper investigation.

The Swiss Government as the protecting power for German interests has been invited by the supreme commander to designate an official to participate in the investigation.

Hot Weather Blamed

"The interim report which has now been rendered," the SHAEF statement said, "indicated the deaths were caused by suffocation resulting from insufficient ventilation in some of the new American type of boxcars used, aggravated by the higher temperatures prevailing at that date.

"Prior to this a large number of prisoners of war had been transported in the same type of cars without ill effects."

The statement said steps had been taken to prevent a recurrence and that "proper disciplinary action will be taken with respect to those responsible for the deaths."

Resistance Fiercer In Italy As Germans Dig In

Rome, April 5 (AP)—Royal Marines and other 8th Army forces stabbed northward today along a narrow isthmus between the Valli di Commacchio Lagoon and the Adriatic to threaten Porto Garibaldi, key harbor for the Po Valley industrial center of Ferrara.

Resistance became fiercer as the Germans dug in on terrain dried out by the recent good weather. A Nazi communiqué acknowledged German positions had been withdrawn north of the Canale Valetta, almost on the outskirts of Porto Garibaldi.

Rail Yards Attacked

Inland to the west, American artillery pounded enemy ammunition dumps and strong points opposite the 5th Army. Otherwise the rest of the front was limited to the usual patrolling.

[The DNB German news agency reported that United States 5th Army troops had attacked along the Ligurian coast early this morning after an artillery barrage lasting several hours.]

Flying Fortresses of the 15th Air Force showered fragmentation bombs on the Campo Formido airdrome near Udine, while Liberators attacked the Brescia railroad yards and the Dravograd rail bridge in Yugoslavia.

At the same time Lightnings dive-bombed the Radovljiva rail bridge, 40 miles south of Klagenfurt on the line from Zagreb to Villach in Austria—main escape route for German troops remaining in Yugoslavia.

Enemy coastal guns south of the La Spezia west coast naval base were bombed by United States 12th Air Force B-25's. Other B-25 formations attacked the Brenner Line railroad bridge at Matrei, south of Innsbruck, and other rail targets.

Allies In Italy Consolidate

Rome, April 5 (AP)—Eighth Army troops have consolidated positions in the narrow Italian coastal strip between Valli di Comacchio and the Adriatic and have stabbed northward close to Porto Garibaldi, Allied headquarters announced today.

The exact extent of the northward drive was not disclosed, but it was indicated that troops were already in the vicinity of Porto Garibaldi, which is nearly four miles north of last-reported positions on the Canale Valletta.

Enemy opposition increased as Allied troops crossed the canal near where 8th Army forces had made twin landings Monday and pushed northward.

Elsewhere on the front action was limited to patrolling.

United States 12th Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers struck in great strength at enemy road and rail movements in northern Italy, fuel and ammunition dumps, a factory and a number of battle area targets. Medium bombers concentrated most of their efforts against the Brenner Pass rail line bridges.

American 15th Air Force fighters strafed rail lines in the area of Munich, Regensberl, Pilsen and Linz, slashing at enemy communications back of the lines facing the Russians. Five enemy aircraft, and 25 locomotives were destroyed.

Baltimorean Helps Make Air History

Rome, April 5 (AP)—A United States 12th Air Force Mitchell bomber wing commanded by Brig. Gen. Robert D. Knapp, of Auburn, Ala., flew its 50,000th sortie in the Mediterranean theater today with an attack on the Merano synthetic fuel plant in the Italian Alps, northwest of Bolzano.

Lieut. Robert B. Thorpe, of Muncie, Ind., was the pilot of the B-25, which made Sortie No. 50,000. It was Thorpe's fifty-eighth mission.

Baltimorean Aboard

Members of Thorpe's crew were Lieut. Oscar A. Sipple, of 1413 West Thirty-seventh street, Baltimore, and Sergts. Joseph Lundy, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; William McLaurten, of Durham, N.C., and Arthur Cornwell, of Biddeford, Maine.

A large part of the Merano plant was burned by the attack and fires started by bombs threw columns of orange smoke and flame 5,000 feet in the air.

Pope Receives Taylor

Vatican City, April 5 (AP)—Pope Pius received Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the Vatican, for a 45-minute private audience today. The subject of the interview was not disclosed.

Pope Omits Offering Hand To Be Kissed

Vatican City, April 5 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, still showing signs of his recent illness, has omitted the practice of offering his hand to be kissed by Allied troops during general audiences, it was announced today.

Thousands of soldiers have attended the audiences since the Allied liberation of Rome.

Another measure to ease the strain on the Pontiff was announced. The audiences now will be held in the Clementine Hall, which is smaller than the hall formerly used and near to the Pope's private apartments.

The present practice is for the American attaché to the Vatican secretariat, Msgr. Walter Carroll, to speak the introductory words to the troops, telling them of the Pontiff's wish to bestow his blessing, not only upon those present, but also upon their homes and families. Thus the Pope is required only to perform the blessing and to say a few words in English.

GENERAL MISSING ON ITALIAN FRONT

With the Fifth Army in Italy, March 19 (Delayed by Censor) (A.P.).—Brig.-Gen. Gustav J. Braun, assistant division commander of the veteran Thirty-fourth Infantry Division, has been missing in action since being shot down in a small observation plane over the mountainous no-man's land south of Bologna on March 17. He was on an inspection flight over the front lines at the time.

The veteran of some thirty-five years in the Army and his pilot were flying at about 400 feet altitude when doughboys in the foxholes saw enemy anti-aircraft guns open up. Suddenly the small two-seated plane headed downward between the lines and some saw smoke pouring out.

Braun, who is 50 years old, had been assistant commander of the Thirty-fourth Division only a few months, and only recently was promoted to brigadier-general. A native of Buffalo, N. Y., the General listed Berkley, Cal., as his home. He has a wife and three children who live in Rochester, N. Y. Two other sons, Gustav Jr., 111, and Julius H., are second lieutenants in the Army overseas.

Pravda Assails Hoover As Foe Of Long Peace

Moscow, April 5 (AP)—A Pravda editorial writer contended today that Herbert Hoover "not only fears but does not desire a long peace."

Jacob Viktorov, in an article discussing plans for world security, called Hoover an enemy of the Soviet Union and said the former President's suggestions regarding the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and the forthcoming San Francisco world security conference were "among the most suspicious."

"Hoover calls for no haste in the formation of a security organization," Viktorov wrote, and he quoted the former President's articles as saying: "We must have time in order to cool off from the emotions of wartime. We cannot have simultaneously both peace and retribution."

"To Save War Criminals"

"His thoughts are clear," the Pravda editorial said. "Hoover does not need peace, but he needs rejection of retribution in order to save war criminals from punishment."

In New York, Hoover declined comment on the editorial. "I don't think I want to get into a controversy with them," he said.

Viktorov's article began:

"Among the security projects are many which undoubtedly are dictated by the desire to render auxiliary help to the United Nations. No few, however, are altogether suspicious prescriptions for strengthening 'peace and security.' Among the most suspicious, it is necessary to mention the projects advanced by Herbert Hoover, former President of the United States of America and a leading figure in the Republican party.

"The political physiognomy of Herbert Hoover is sufficiently well known. He heads the most reactionary wing of the Republican party. He spoke sharply against participation of the U.S.A. in the struggle against Hitler's banditry and imperialism. Hoover considered the invasion of the Continent unattainable and assured that the U.S.A. needed no less than ten years to prepare for war.

Criticism Of Oaks Plan

"Hoover now is appearing in the role of defender of the United Nations and protector of all powers. In four lengthy articles published in the New York Times he criticizes the projects worked out at Dumbarton Oaks and proposes to amend the Dumbarton Oaks decisions with additions in order thereby appreciably to strengthen the charter of peace.'

"What kind of 'spirit' does Hoover want to breathe into the Dumbarton Oaks project? His proposal presents itself despite all the author's efforts as if a badly camouflaged mine were inserted under the future security organization.

"Hoover not only fears but does not desire a long peace. He pours out tears because Poland, Finland and the Soviet Baltic republics were snatched from the chains of German imperialism. He, 'of course' does not think about war for 'securing their freedom.'

"Action Aims"

"Such are some of the aims of Hoover in perspective. But he pursues aims which are more actual, and one of them is to disrupt the possibility of quickly halting aggression in the case of its appearance.

"For this reason he opposes the idea that the U.S.A. delegation in the security council should have the right, in the name of the U.S.A., to enter into war. He proposes giving this right to the President of the United States, but with reservation. The President must receive in the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees a majority of votes on the question whether the decision must be adopted by all members of Congress."

British in Sweden Deny Meeting Nazi

Stockholm, April 5 (A. P.).—The British Legation today officially denied published rumors that Karl Schnurre, German economic negotiator who arrived in Stockholm a week ago, had either direct or indirect contact with the British here. Schnurre is in a Stockholm hospital recovering from an attack of bronchitis.

Himmler Paper Admits End Near

Stockholm, April 5 (AP) — Das Schwarze Korps, Nazi organ run by the Gestapo chief, Heinrich Himmler, said frankly today that Germany now is "only days or perhaps weeks from absolute collapse."

A Berlin dispatch to Dagens Nyheter, quoting one of the gloomiest predictions yet made by a top-ranking Nazi publication, said Das Schwarze Korps declared editorially that the German people were "in the remarkable situation of being forced to acknowledge it may be possible to defeat us militarily."

Under the title "People, Hear the Signals," the article declared our belief in the rightness of our cause hasn't changed by a single letter," Das Schwarze Korps insisted the Germans would fight on even if their military chances were even more decreased.

Yanks Advance on Okinawa, Casualties Extremely Low

U.S. Forces Meet Increasing Resistance in Drive Toward Naha.

GUAM, Friday, April 6 — (AP) Incredibly low American casualties for the first four days of the Okinawa invasion were reported by the Navy today in announcing a sweeping advance on the north end of the Tenth army line and increasing resistance in the south near the capital city of Naha.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said 175 U. S. soldiers and Marines had been killed and 798 wounded up to midnight Wednesday. This reflected the lightness of the opposition. He gave no figures for Naval casualties. A fleet of 1,400 ships aided the momentous invasion of the Ryukyu island only 325 miles south of Japan proper.

Jap Losses Higher

No Japanese casualty figures were announced, although they are considerably higher.

Marines at the north scored gains up to four and one-half miles along the narrow Ishikawa isthmus, still finding "ineffective" opposition, but 24th corps infantrymen moving on Naha, a city of 66,000 population, ran into increasingly stiff resistance among fixed defensive positions.

Their advance, previously measured in miles, was only about 3,000 yards. It appeared possible that the first big action of the campaign was building up.

Associated Press Correspondent Robbin Coons told how the Americans on the south end of the line could look ahead to rolling hills with sharp gullies and caves—ideal terrain for the Japanese type of defense.

Sixty-five planes were destroyed out of Japanese air fleets raiding American positions and shipping in the first five days, Nimitz reported.

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine amphibious corps secured the Ishikawa isthmus, narrowest of the 65-mile-long island — an area which could have been defended comparatively easily by the Japanese but was not.

Move Toward Naha

Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce's 77th division, moving down the west coast upon the capital city of Naha and its nearby airdrome, advanced about 3,000 yards into areas which Admiral Nimitz described as "organized for defense by the enemy."

"By nightfall," Nimitz reported, "resistance to the advance was increasing."

The Yanks were closely supported by Naval gunfire and carrier aircraft.

Allied military government for Okinawa has been established and Nimitz said it was functioning satisfactorily. About 9,000 Japanese civilians have surrendered so far. Considerable stocks of enemy foodstuffs have been captured.

The delay in Yank progress promised to be brief, however, for the hanks on Okinawa have the most powerful artillery support force ever available in their Pacific operations. Aside from land field pieces there are the big guns of U. S. Fifth fleet warships and the fire power of hundreds of carrier planes.

The Japanese apparently have a strong line north of Naha to defend the city and its neighboring airfields.

But 77th division troops on the west coast had pushed to within 3,000 yards of Machinato airfield, four miles north of Naha, yesterday while the 7th division on the east coast were driving for the Yonabaru area.

STIFFENING JAP OPPOSITION SLOWS ARMY ON OKINAWA

Marines Advance on North Shore of Island Still Is Virtually Unopposed.

Guam, April 5 (A. P.).—United States Army units driving toward the Okinawa island capital of Naha, have been slowed by stiffening Japanese resistance, while Marines, on the northern side of the American wedge, worked forward from three to five miles virtually unopposed. Heavy artillery and mortar fire, from well-organized Japanese units, put the brakes yesterday on the Twenty-fourth Army Corps drive toward Naha, limited gains on the southwestern coast to 2,000 yards, and stopped the Seventh Infantry Division's push on the southeastern coast, after an advance of only 500 yards.

The Twenty-fourth Corps units were within 3,000 yards of Machinato airstrip, and four miles from Naha. The southeastern drive reached the vicinity of Nakagusuku, after overrunning several entrenchments and fortified points.

Marine Third Amphibious Corps forces continued rapid extension of their northern lines for distance of from three and five miles, then took a brief respite to avoid an overextension of communications and supplies. American forces control more than eighty square miles, or one sixth of the island, and the operational timetable has had to be revised completely, Major-Gen. Roy S. Geiger, Marine field commander, said today.

Stiffer Fighting Foreseen.

He envisioned stiffer fighting when Army units meet Japanese forces in the southern line before Naha and the airdrome, largest in the Ryukyu chain. Wherever the Japanese choose to stand, they can be hit with the greatest American artillery force ever employed in a Pacific operation.

Indeed, today's communique from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported that concentrations of Japanese troops and vehicles in the southern end of Okinawa had been shelled by warships and bombed by carrier planes. This was the first official report of observation of Japanese troops in any strength since the campaign began on Easter morning.

The American advance is so rapid that ships have had little supporting firing to do, and occasionally the Yanks walk into an ambush. Near Sobe Village, a Marine chaplain, Capt. James Burke of 1729 49th street, Brooklyn, was preparing to bury five Marines when the squad was ambushed.

The Thirty-second Infantry Regiment of Major-Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh Infantry Division had difficulty taking a 165-foot hill in a ridge line north of Naha. The Japanese opened artillery shelling of roads on both the eastern and western coasts while their ground troops withdrew under answering American artillery fire.

Lieut-Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner's veteran Tenth Army troops already have secured valuable Nakagusuku harbor, on the eastern coast. That one-time anchorage for portions of the Japanese fleet soon may be put to American use.

Its inner harbor, near the captured town of Awashi, can be employed for expediting the unloading of supplies. A narrow gauge rail line, with horse-drawn cars, runs both north and south of Awashi.

In swift advances yesterday, still against only scattered opposition for the most part, Gen. Geiger's Marines threw a line across Okinawa's narrowest isthmus. Field commanders said this two-mile neck of land might prove ideal for the Japanese to defend, but there was no report of an engagement.

The Katchin peninsula, on the eastern coast, was overrun by the Marines, thus giving the Americans control of the entire inner shoreline of Nakagusuku harbor. All sectors saw gains of from two to four miles, in this speediest major invasion of the Pacific war—a mystifyingly swift invasion, considering Okinawa's extreme importance to the defence of the homeland.

HONG KONG RIPPED BY YANK BOMBERS

Start Huge Fires in Waterfront Area, Sink Nine Merchant Ships.

MANILA, Friday, April 6.—(AP) Philippines-based heavy bombers attacked the vital waterfront area of Hong Kong across the China sea on Wednesday, dropping 168 tons of bombs which set huge fires and sank nine merchant ships. Two other merchantmen and a destroyer were damaged.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, announcing this second successive strike at Hong Kong in his communique today, reported that the 1,000-pound bombs raked shipyards and waterfront installations as well as shipping in the vast harbor.

Oil Tanks Set Afire

Oil storage tanks were left burning, with smoke rising 7,000 feet.

Japanese fighters sought to intercept the American formation but were driven off after a running aerial battle. All the attacking planes returned.

Other American bombers blockading the China sea wrecked six small freighters from French Indo-China to Formosa and also bombed Indo-China coastal targets at the cost of one plane.

Liberators pounded Borneo, now only 30 miles away from MacArthur's latest invasion spot in the Sulu archipelago. Borneo's Miri airdrome was hit and fires were started in the Tarakan oil storage area.

Yanks continued their advance on all fronts in the Philippines, while Fifth Air force planes gave close support to ground operations.

American engineers were engaged in extensive reconstruction of Cebu City and other areas devastated by the enemy.

Accomplishment of one of the "primary strategic objectives" of the Southwest Pacific and Philippines campaigns—the isolation of the Japanese-held Dutch East Indies — was announced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in his Thursday communique.

East Indies Isolated

The communique declared: "The entire Dutch East Indies are now isolated not only for exploitation (of their rubber and oil) but from enemy reinforcement and supply.

"It is the culmination of one phase of the campaign which started from Milne bay (New Guinea) in June, 1943."

MacArthur said the South China sea now was blockaded by Philippine-based bombers in 1,000-mile depth from northern Luzon to newly-invaded Tawitawi, only 30 miles from Borneo.

Other Allied bases, the communique pointed out, extended another 1,000 miles to New Guinea and, with the Philippine bases, "cover the waters necessary for communication from Japan to Java, Borneo, Celebes, the Moluccas and all the other islands in the southwest Pacific."

The communique also disclosed that Philippine-based bombers had extended their blockade patrols north of daily-raided Formosa to the East China sea and Shanghai.

Eight Japanese freighters were sunk or "wrecked" in the latest patrol strikes and, in "the first concerted strike" at Hong Kong shipping, 126 tons of bombs were dropped on the Kowloon and Taikoo docks.

American troops of Maj. Gen. Rapp Bush's 40th division Tuesday invaded sugar-rich Masbate in the Central Philippines and quickly occupied the capital, Masbate city.

It was the 36th of the Philippines invaded by the liberating Americans.

The communique reported advances on other islands, including the destruction of the Japanese garrison at Daraga by the 158th regimental team which landed at Legaspi on southeastern Luzon Sunday.

36th Philippine Isle Invaded By Yanks

Manila, April 5 (AP)—Masbate, sugar-rich little central Philippine Island, was overrun Tuesday by elements of Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Division and its capital quickly liberated. At the same time Philippine-based bombers ravaged Japanese-occupied Hong Kong, across the China Sea.

Both actions were announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who declared Japan's lifeline to the East Indies was completely severed by a chain of American air bases stretching more than 1,000 miles from Luzon in the north to recently invaded Tawitawi, at the southern tip of the Sulu archipelago, only 30 miles from Borneo.

After seizing Masbate City, doughboys with the help of guerrilla forces moved rapidly to secure the entire island, the communiqué said. They met negligible opposition.

Thirty-Sixth Island

Masbate, strategically located in the inland sea, guards the western approach to San Bernardino Strait, between Luzon and Samar. It is the 36th island invaded in the archipelago.

Heavy bombers escorted by fighters spanned the China Sea to smash at the great shipping base at Hong Kong. Primary targets were identified as the Kowloon and Taikoo docks, where 126 tons of bombs left innumerable fires and large explosions.

Dutch Indies Isolated

Commenting on the aerial blockade of China Sea lanes as a result of liberation of the Philippines, General MacArthur said:

"For many weeks it has been difficult for Japan to ship oil, rubber or other essential military commodities from the Southwest Pacific to the homeland. As the air pressure of our blockade reaches its peak such traffic will become practically impossible.

"The entire Dutch East Indies are now isolated."

Eighth Army troops captured Silay airdrome on Negros. On Cebu, more Japanese strongholds in the hills were reduced.

The 158th Regimental Combat Team, which landed at Legaspi on the southeastern Luzon Sunday, destroyed the enemy garrison at Daraga. Field dispatches indicated the Japs were still troublesome in thickly wooded ridges, and were denying Americans the use of an airfield which was captured shortly after the landing.

Bombers pounded three Formosa targets, including an alcohol plant near Taiwan and the Kirun docks.

JAPS BAYONETED 300 IN PHILIPPINES

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters, April 5 (A. P.).—First Cavalry Division troops clearing rear areas in a drive through southern Luzon found in one small village the bayonetted, mutilated bodies of more than 300 women and children who had been murdered by fleeing Jap soldiers.

Filipino survivors, many of whom were mutilated, told officers the wholesale slaughter arose over disagreements between the Japanese and civilians over distribution of food and labor. They said the Japs were furious because residents of the village failed to contribute enough workers to maintain occupation troops.

B-29S STRUCK 3 PLANE SHOPS

Jap Objectives, Not Raided Before, Blasted.

Guam, April 5 (A. P.).—Three important Japanese aircraft plants, never before attacked, were hit heavily by B-29s in their low-level demolition strikes before dawn yesterday, the Bomber Command headquarters reported today. Included were the second largest airframe and assembly plant in the Japanese empire, the Nakajima works at Koizumi, fifteen miles west of Tokyo; the Tachikawa assembly plant, also in suburban Tokyo, and the new, important Mitsubishi engine plant at Shizuoka, some eighty miles southeast of Tokyo. Saipan-based crews also blasted Tokyo itself, and suburban Kawasaki, which lies between Tokyo and Yokohama.

Tokyo was a secondary target, as was Kawasaki. Both were blasted only by planes which found regular targets obscured by intermittent dense cloudiness. Others, such as Lieut. Charles Speith, airplane commander, of 4064 Bronx Boulevard, New York city, who hit Tachikawa, said, "Our element got a clear view of the aircraft factory. We saw our bombs hit the target."

Lieut. Speith was nicknamed the Neon Kid recently when all his plane lights went on when wiring was struck during a night attack on Nagoya. As the crews of other planes marveled at the target Lieut. Speith presented, he and his men tried to get the lights out. Unsuccessful, Lieut. Speith pulled his plane out of formation and circled alone, so the other ships would not be endangered. Finally, however, the lights were put out and the plane returned safely to its base.

Tunney Says Drugs Avert Tropic Fever

Canberra, April 5 (A. P.).—Commander Gene Tunney said in an interview here today that 100,000 cases of malaria and Dengue fever could have been averted if American forces in the Solomons Islands had had the preventive medicine and spray powders used later at Saipan. The former world's heavyweight boxing champion was here to report on the effectiveness of the United States Navy's physical fitness program in China and India.

Major Roosevelt In Chungking

Chungking, April 5 (AP)—Major Quentin Roosevelt, grandson of President Theodore Roosevelt, arrived here today for service with headquarters of United States forces in the China theater.

China Sees Jap Discontent In Shakeup

Chungking, April 5 (AP)—Chinese spokesmen here said today the resignation of Japanese Premier Kuniaki Koiso reflected the discontent and dissatisfaction of the Japanese with the conduct of the war.

There was speculation here that Japanese peace overtures might follow the resignation, but most thought here was that the time is not yet ripe for such a move.

May Strike Toward Sian

The overthrow of the enemy's Cabinet came amid reports that the Japanese were bolstering their positions west of their Peiping-Hankow rail corridor through China, with the intention of invading Shensi province and striking toward the vital Chinese bastion of Sian.

But at the same time the enemy was reported further strengthening his defenses on the East China coast in readiness for an American invasion. Chinese press dispatches said contingents of the Japanese crack Kwantung Army had arrived at Hangchow, southwest of Shanghai, and that the defenses of Amoy, Swatow and other occupied ports were being built up.

Shensi Province Threatened

Meanwhile, the fluid battle continued on the wide battlefront west of the Canton-Hankow railroad. The high command indirectly disclosed that the real threat of this drive of the Japanese was to Shensi province, deep in China's hinterland.

The disclosure was in the high command's report that Japanese remnants in an area 6 to 9 miles northwest of Sichwan had been cleared. Sichwan is in southwest Honan, only 37 miles from Shensi province.

PLANES POUND BURMA LINES

Fighter-Bombers Report 11 Bridges Destroyed In Day

Calcutta, April 5 (AP)—Fighter-bomber pilots of the 1st Air Commandos, striking after three days of inactivity because of weather conditions, have destroyed eleven bridges along Japanese lines of communication in lower Burma and western Thailand in the last 24 hours.

They also leveled a group of ten buildings believed to house an important Japanese base at Toungoo, midway between Meiktila and Rangoon.

Ground columns advancing from Allied positions at Meiktila took two villages in the area of Kandaung, 6 miles to the southeast, and were engaged in clearing the enemy from Bunkers, southward toward Pyawbe. To the west, African troops advancing down the west bank of the Irrawaddy entered Seikpyu.

Still farther west and southward, on the Bay of Bengal, British units fighting their way down from Akyab were reported straddling the coastal road 2 miles north of Taungup, with the city's fall believed imminent.

The Japanese were reported established in the wild, broken country east of Taungup with the evident intention of defending the all-weather road inland to the Irrawaddy River town of Prome, more than 150 miles south of Seikpyu.

ENEMY PREDICTS LANDING ON JAPAN

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5—(AP) Tokyo found time today, between news and comment on the Japanese cabinet turnover and Russia's neutrality break, to predict that Okinawa is a "curtain raiser" for American invasion of the main home islands.

The prediction by Domei news agency, whose American-aimed dispatch was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, quoted a spokesman for the naval press section of the Japanese Imperial headquarters.

He was further quoted as predicting "confidently" that "the day of annihilation of the joint Anglo-American invasion forces at the hands of the Japanese armed forces is near."

Domei said in another dispatch, beamed to the Orient, that the Okinawa battle lines Thursday "showed very little change from the night before." It made unconfirmed claim of one American transport set afire.

An unconfirmed dispatch, intended for America, claimed Japanese "special attack" surface units Tuesday night attacked U. S. warships off Okinawa and sank a destroyer, "instantaneously."

Tokyo radio told the homefolk that "it can be judged that the enemy is pouring his entire might into the current operation." The broadcast reported that Okinawa weather was "bad" Thursday and "attacks by the enemy's carrier planes, therefore, didn't amount to much."

Japs See Little Change.

San Francisco, April 5 (A. P.).—The Japanese Domei news agency asserted today that there was "very little change" in battle lines on Okinawa. Nipponese propagandists asserted that "the decisive battles of the Okinawas are becoming increasingly furious." They said that an American transport and destroyer were sunk by Japanese aircraft—two more ships in a long list of unconfirmed naval claims.

The Tokyo radio noted that the weather around Okinawa was bad and therefore that American carrier plane attacks "did not amount to much." Tokyo reported a shifting of American air power from the Philippines and the central Pacific to the Ryukyu Islands and the China Sea "in a frantic attempt to gain control of the air."

All the broadcasts were recorded by the FCC.

Latin Laborite D[illegible] D.C.

Mexico City, April [illegible] (AP)—Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Latin American Confederation of Labor, said today he planned to go to Washington to meet other labor leaders who attended the recent London Labor Congress before proceeding to the World Security Conference in San Francisco.

DUEL CALLED OFF

BUENOS AIRES, April 5—(AP) A duel between 74-year-old Cesar Ameghino, Argentine finance minister and acting foreign minister, and Matias Rodriguez, robust young army colonel, was called off today.

Ameghino's seconds accepted Rodriguez' apologies after the reserve officer withdrew charges that Ameghino, as a lawyer, has trafficked on his influence as a cabinet member.

Less than a fortnight ago Ameghino drew a similar apology from Mario Amadeo after the latter attacked his anti-Axis policies.

Argentine Minister Challenges Rodriguez

Buenos Aires, April 5 (AP)—Cesar Ameghino, Argentine Finance Minister and acting foreign minister, challenged Col. Matias Rodriguez to a duel today and temporarily resigned both his posts.

Ameghino hanged in his resignation to avoid complications because dueling is illegal.

He took umbrage to public charges made by Rodriguez that Ameghino, as a lawyer, had trafficked on the influence accumulated during his tenure.

Rodriguez withdrew the charges last night. Whether the duel actually takes place is now up to the seconds.

Belt Will Head Cuban Delegation

Havana, April 5 (A. P.).—The Govedrment announced today that Guillermo Belt, Ambassador to Washington, will head the Cuban delegation to the San Francisco world security conference.

The delegation also will include Ramiro Guerra, director of the newspaper Diario de la Marina; Ernest Dihigo, a professor at the University of Havana, and Francisco Aguirre, a labor leader.

The Government gave no explanation for the absence from the delegation of Foreign Minister Gustavo Cuerva Rubio, who headed the Cuban group at the recent Inter-American conference at Mexico City.

Eskimos Attend Army Services

Frobisher Bay, Baffin Island, Canada, April 5 (AP)—Every Sunday a small group of parka-covered Esquimos travel 10 miles to hear a sermon read by an officer of the AAF Air Transport Command here.

There is no chaplain permanently quartered at this isolated base off the far northeast coast of Canada. To keep Sunday holy and aid morale of the men stationed here, officers read a weekly sermon written and forwarded by Chaplain (Major) William V. Morgan, stationed at Manchester, N.H.

Eskimos rarely miss these Sunday services. Most of them don't understand a word but have learned the Lord's Prayer and fundamental religion from missionaries.

U.S. LANDING CRAFT IS LOST OFF IWO

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP) The landing craft gunboat 474 has been lost at Iwo Jima as a result of enemy action, the Navy announced today.

The announcement raised to 279 the total naval craft of all types lost from all causes since the start of the war. It was the second vessel announced lost in the Iwo Jima area. Loss of the escort carrier Bismarck was announced last week.

The Navy said the landing craft received a number of direct hits from shore-based batteries and was sunk by our own forces after she was determined to be a total loss and after all personnel surviving the gunfire had been removed.

The total casualties were not announced but the Navy said next of kin of all had been informed.

Skipper of the vessel, Lt. (J.G.) Matthew J. Reichel, 3250 Springfield avenue, Milwaukee, Wisc., was reported a survivor.

The LCI (G) 474 was built by the New Jersey Shipbuilding corporation, Barber, N. J., and commissioned October 5, 1943. She displaced 393 tons.

Normal complement of a vessel of the type was approximately 30.

STIMSON ACCLAIMS OKINAWA LANDINGS

Washington, April 5 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson declared today that American landings on Okinawa gave Japan "most unpleasant and incontrovertible proof" of American power. At his news conference, the Secretary attributed the light opposition encountered on Okinawa to the effectiveness of the preliminary softening up blows, the comparatively low state of Japanese air power and surprise in the choice of the landing spot.

"Also," he said, "Japanese generalship and the mobility of Japanese troops seem to be notably deficient."

Discussions To Be Held On Philippine Problems

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The problems of Philippine independence and rehabilitation will be discussed soon at a conference of Sergio Osmena, Commonwealth President, and Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior.

Ickes disclosed plans for the meeting at a news conference today.

In a prepared statement, Ickes said earlier in the day:

"There is need for a definitely favorable settlement of future trade relations between the United States and the Philippines. There are many factors involved, and these must be harmonized, somehow, with the prospective political relationships between the United States and the Philippines, and with general United States trade policy."

APR 6 1945

The Philippines Independence Act, as it is now on the books, calls for complete removal of United States sovereignty from the islands by July 4, 1946.

Legion Asks "Men, Materials Now"

Washington, April 5 (AP)—An industry demand for "some men and materials now" to start readying 55,000,000 postwar jobs was voiced today at the opening of the American Legion's Employment Conference.

More than 60 representatives of Government, the armed forces, business and labor were called together by the Legion's National Employment Committee to plot a course toward jobs for all, with emphasis on veterans.

George T. Trundle, Jr., president of the Trundle Engineering Company of Cleveland, Ohio, representative of the Association of Consulting Management Engineers, said business must be relieved of Government controls to do its part.

Expresses Confidence

He expressed confidence the Legion's 55,000,000 job goal can be attained, but said that in order to do it "we have to have some men and materials now."

Gustav Peck, of the War Production Board, rejoined:

"When you talk about Government getting off your backs, you must remember that the war production goal has to come first, and even after Germany surrenders there will have to be a waiting period until the armed forces decide what they need."

"But we know there are surpluses of material and manpower," Trundle insisted. "Let us take inventory to see if we can get a few things started now."

Arthur W. Page Named

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP).—The War Department announced today the appointment of Arthur W. Page, industrialist and financier, as "temporary special consultant to the Secretary of War." It was understood Mr. Page, recently returned from the European theater of operations would assist the department in presenting to the public the picture of the war as the emphasis shifts from Europe to the Pacific.

Miniature Jeeps Prizes In War-Loan Campaign

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Miniature jeeps will be given as prizes for the sale of bonds in the 7th War Loan drive.

The plan was announced today by the Veterans Administration.

The jeeps are being made by veterans in the Veterans Administration Facility at Kecoughtan, Va., and by soldiers recovering from wounds or illness in six army convalescent centers.

They will produce 3,500 jeeps for prizes to those selling the most bonds in the nation's 3,383 counties. The bond drive runs from May 14 through June 30.

Free Training for Veterans

ROCHESTER, April 5 (AP).—Establishment of a free six-week course in small business administration for war veterans was announced today by Ernest W. Veigel jr., president of Rochester Business Institute. Class lectures will be given by business men of the Rochester area on a volunteer basis, and the first class, limited to thirty veterans, will meet on April 25.

Much Early Turkey Set Aside For Yanks

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The Government today ordered a large portion of early turkey marketings set aside for service men's year-end holiday dinners.

As a result, civilian supplies of turkey meat will be reduced sharply until late fall.

All turkeys marketed after April 7 in 21 major producing states in the mid-West and Far West and in five counties in Virginia and four in West Virginia must be held for the military services.

Military needs have been estimated at about 120,000,000 pounds. Production this year is expected to total about 515,000,000 pounds.

More Shoes Coming

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The War Production Board moved today to increase production of non-rationed shoes in order to meet essential civilian needs.

The agency announced a special program designed to increase the output of shoe gabardine to partially offset decreased supplies of leather for civilian shoes during the remainder of the year.

The board's Office of Civilian Requirements hopes to obtain the manufacture of about 150,000,000 pairs of non-leather shoes.

DULLES TO BE ADVISOR TO SECURITY PARLEY

WASHINGTON, April 5 — (AP) John Foster Dulles, who counselled Thomas E. Dewey on international affairs during the presidential campaign, will be an official advisor to the United States delegation at San Francisco.

The State department released today a letter from Dulles accepting the appointment which, Dulles said, was "concurred in by the President."

Dulles, who was head of the committee on a just and durable peace of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, has made numerous speeches on the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world organization.

He has advocated the rights of small powers and principles of equality.

May 22 Is Designated National Maritime Day

Washington, April 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt called upon the American people today to observe May 22 as National Maritime Day.

The date commemorates the sailing from the United States in 1819 of the Savannah, which made the first successful trans-Atlantic trip by steam power.

ARMY REVEALS NEW THUNDERBOLT PLANE

WASHINGTON, April 5.—(AP) The Army disclosed today that a new Thunderbolt plane, with a combat radius of more than 1,900 miles and a speed in excess of 450 miles per hour, it now in production.

Just 56 days from the drawing board, the P-47N is designed primarily as an offensive fighter but can be used also as a fighter-bomber or as an escort plane on long-range bombing missions.

It is powered with a Pratt and Whitney engine. Armament includes eight .50 caliber machine guns, ten 5-inch high velocity rockets and two 500 pound bombs. The new model was developed by Republic Aviation Corporation and the Air Technical Service Command.

Public Members Of WLB Doubled

Washington, April 5 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt increased the number of public members of the War Labor Board today from four to eight, but did not change its voting line-up.

The President provided in an Executive order that no more than four public members should vote on any one matter. This preserves the voting ratio of four labor, four industry and four public members. Mr. Roosevelt made the change by giving four alternate public members the status of full public members. They are Edwin E. Witte, Dexter M. Keezer, Nathan P. Feinsinger and Lewis M. Gill.

The White House said the alternates had been doing virtually a full-time job with the WLB for some time.

Jap-American Attack Called 'Outrageous'

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson today denounced an attack on a Japanese-American soldier of the United States Army as "a dastardly outrage."

The Secretary was asked at a news conference about a published report that five shots had been fired at a home in Madera, Cal., where Corporal Y. A. Kawamoto was visiting his brother-in-law, a discharged service veteran.

"I have not seen the news report to which you refer," Stimson said, "but I will say this:

"Any attack at any time on a peaceable citizen is bad enough; but if such an attack as you mention was directed because of his ancestry against an American soldier who, like millions of others of many different racial backgrounds, has demonstrated his loyalty to his country, it was an inexcusable and dastardly outrage."

Seek Post-War Data in Europe

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP).—Representatives Francis E. Walter, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, and Eugene Worley, Democrat, of Texas, are on their way to Europe to inspect war equipment and supplies for a special House Post-War Planning and Policy Committee studying surplus property disposal problems. Named as a subcommittee for the trip, Representatives Walter and Worley expect to visit England, France, Italy and perhaps Germany.

INDUSTRY MAPS PLANS FOR POSTWAR JOBS

WASHINGTON, April 5.—(AP) An industry demand for "some men and materials now" to start readying 55,000,000 postwar jobs was voiced today at the opening of the American Legion's employment conference.

More than 60 representatives of government, the armed forces, business and labor were called together by the Legion's National Employment committee to plot a course toward jobs for all, with emphasis on veterans.

George T. Trundle, Jr., president of the Trundle Engineering company of Cleveland, Ohio, representative of the Association of Consulting Management Engineers, said business must be relieved of government controls to do its part.

He expressed confidence the Legion's 55,000,000 job goal can be attained, but said that in order to do it "we have to have some men and materials now."

U.S., Cuba Reach Pact On 1945 Sugar Crop

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The State Department announced today an agreement to purchase the bulk of Cuba's 1945 sugar crop at 3.10 cents per pound, f.o.b. Cuban ports.

The agreement was reached by the Cuban Sugar Stabilization Institute and the Commodity Credit Corporation. The purchases will be handled by the corporation.

Cuba will make available to the CCC all its 1945 sugar in excess of 400,000 tons, of which 150,000 are reserved for exporting to other countries, mostly American republics, and 250,000 for local use in Cuba.

In addition, the State Department said the Foreign Economic Administration had concluded an agreement for purchase of 70,000,000 gallons of black strap molasses at 13.6 cents f.o.b. Cuban ports for production of industrial alcohol.

Meat Points $6 A Thousand In N.Y., Wheeler Reports

Washington, April 5 (AP)—A report that red ration points are being sold freely in New York city for $6 a thousand was relayed to Senate food investigators today by Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.).

The Montanan said he had received information to this effect but did not give its source. He told the Agriculture Committee he had turned his data over to OPA.

In New York, Regional OPA Administrator Daniel P. Woolley denied that any red points being sold were obtained from OPA, which, he said, is pressing a campaign against "a gang of mobsters who have gone into counterfeiting red points on a large scale."

Reported Previously

Another OPA spokesman said the agency disclosed last February 21 that several butchers had admitted purchasing counterfeit points for $6 to $6.50 a thousand.

"What has apparetly reached the Senator," Woolley said, "is a garbled version of the drive OPA has made and is continuing to make against the mobsters."

Earlier in the current hearings, Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) said he had received reports that 90 per cent of the meat sold in New York is black market. House food investigators already have announced plans for an on-the-scene investigation of similar reports.

Maldistribution Cited

Expressing belief that maldistribution is the biggest difficulty as far as meat is concerned, Wheeler declared:

"The reason housewives who try to live up to the rules are not getting meat is because of the tremendous black market."

SOME DEAD SOLDIERS MAY BE BURIED IN REICH

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP) Some American soldiers killed in Germany may lie in Reich soil until the war is over.

This was made known at the War department today in response to inquiries about the burial of Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, commander of the Third Armored division, in an American military cemetery at Ittenbach, Germany.

Dispatches from the Western front, prior to the all-out assault along the Rhine, had said that no American would be buried in Germany. However, because of the deep penetration of Allied forces into the Reich, it has been impracticable to follow such a policy.

Under present plans, the dead will be buried temporarily in carefully marked cemeteries. Later, when transportation and operations permit, the bodies will be removed to permanent or semi-permanent cemeteries in France and Belgium.

A similar procedure was followed in North Africa where, at one time, American dead lay in 57 cemeteries. Now, they have been removed to 14 semi-permanent plots.

U.S. War Losses Mount To 892,909

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Army and navy casualties since the beginning of the war have reached 892,909.

Secretary of War Stimson today reported army losses of 798,383, while the Navy listed its casualties at 94,526. The total represented an increase of 20,047 since last week's announcement.

Stimson said the army casualties represented individual names compiled here through March 27 and reflected fighting up to the early part of March.

A breakdown on army casualties and figures for last week:

Killed, 156,471 and 153,791.
Wounded, 486,929 and 473,669.
Missing, 88,755 and 86,855.
Prisoners, 66,228 and 66,228.
Similar figures for the Navy:
Killed, 36,649 and 35,750.
Wounded, 42,988 and 42,202.
Missing, 10,623 and 10,500.
Prisoners, 4,266 and 4,267.

Stimson also estimated Japanese casualties in the Philippines at more than 311,000, including 187,799 counted dead, against total United States casualties of 36,981, including 8,138 killed.

Medal Honors Dead Clubber Of Japs

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The Congressional Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to a paratrooper who singlehandedly charged a Japanese position, taunted the enemy to "get up and fight" and clubbed four to death. He died in the action.

The War Department, announcing the award to Sergt. Ray E. Eubanks, of La Grange, N.C., said today the medal will be presented tomorrow at Fort Bragg, N.C., to Eubanks' father, Ezekiel Eubanks.

Won Medal In July

The 23-year-old soldier won the decoration last July 23 during an assault against a Japanese-held ridge on Noemfoor Island, Dutch New Guinea. One attack already had been thrown back when Eubanks's squad was ordered to advance with the first platoon.

Enemy fire pinned the platoon down 30 yards from the Japanese position. After scouting the area, Eubanks ordered most of his squad to remain in position and divert the enemy's attention while he and two scouts tried to close around the flank.

He And Rifle Hit

The Japanese, however, discovered the trio and opened fire. Eubanks told the scouts to stay where they were while he crawled forward to try to toss a grenade. He got within 15 yards, despite occasional bursts of enemy fire, and opened up with an automatic rifle. A Japanese bullet hit him and his rifle, breaking it.

Disregarding his wound, Eubanks got up and charged the Japanese, yelling, "Come on, get up. Get up and fight." Swinging the useless rifle as a club, he smashed four Japanese heads before he was killed.

His Men Carry On

"Sergeant Eubanks' heroic action, courage and example in leadership," the citation said, "so inspired his men that their advance was successful. They killed 45 of the enemy and drove the remainder from the position. . . ."

Eubanks was a native of Snow Hill, Greene county, N.C., and enlisted in the Army in June, 1939. He first served with a field artillery battalion at Fort Bragg and then volunteered for the parachute infantry. He went to the Pacific in December, 1942.

UNRRA CHARTS REPATRIATIONS

12 Million To Be Returned To Native Soil, Lehman Reveals

New York, April 5 (AP)—The program for the repatriation of twelve to fifteen million prisoners of war and labor conscripts emerging from under the Nazi heel is described in the May issue of the American magazine.

Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, writes that the UNRRA, in collaboration with supreme headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, and many European governments has worked out plans for repatriating the uprooted, as soon as the word is given by the military and the governments involved.

Reciprocal Arrangement

Multilateral agreements provide a reciprocal arrangement under which each government pledges itself to take care of the nationals of other governments found within its borders.

Lehman also announces an agreement with Allied headquarters under which UNRRA will provide 4,000 trained persons to operate 400 assembly centers for displaced civilians and refugees.

In the assembly centers the displaced persons will be registered, given physical examinations and freed of vermin.

They will be screened to weed out spies, saboteurs and others in the services of possible Nazi underground movements.

Transportation Included

For the stateless wayfarers more permanent quarters will be established. For others transportation will be provided as soon as possible by their own governments or by Allied armies.

Lehman sees it probable that prisoners of war will be cleared first, with skilled labor and professional men next, if their nations need their services, although women and children or mothers with babies might be removed first.

Picturing the vast problem, Lehman says:

"With the collapse of Germany, a migration of uprooted persons unprecedented in history will surge in several directions across Europe. . . . From Germany alone some 11,000,000 United Nations nationals, freed from factories, farms and barbed-wire compounds, will strike out for freedom. . . .

Half Present Problem

"Of the 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 persons who have been displaced from their homelands, half, it is probable, will be comparatively easily repatriated.

"The rest probably will present more or less difficult individual problems because of disease, lack of identification, loss of family and home.

"There has been some criticism of the UNRRA staff maintained in Europe before the cessation of hostilities. But it must be there, standing by, to meet the emergency when it comes."

IKE' FORESEES NO SURRENDER

Predicts Bitter Fight To Wipe Out Nazi Guerrillas

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, convinced that "a clean-cut military surrender" of Germany is not in the cards, foresees a bitter-end fight to wipe out bands of Nazi guerrillas.

"A very large number of troops" will be needed to run down and destroy them, he wrote President Roosevelt in a letter released by the White House today.

"We should be prepared," he said, mentioning moves already planned to prevent bands of Nazis from slipping away to the mountains of southern Germany in a desperate determination to string out the agony of war.

No Mass Surrender Seen

Thus, to the supreme Allied commander, there is no prospect of massed legions of the foe laying down their arms, nor of sudden quiet along the Western front like that of the armistice in 1918.

His letter, dated March 31, said:

"The further this campaign progresses, the more probable it appears that there will never be a clean-cut military surrender of the forces on the Western front.

"Our experience to date is that when formations as small as a division are disrupted, their fragments continue to fight until surrounded."

Force or the threat of force, he said, will have to be applied particularly to Nazi paratroopers, Panzer men and the swaggering Storm Troopers whom Adolf Hitler has fondly called his Elite Guard.

Hopes To Avert Guerrilla War

What the cost in lives will be in cleaning them all out, or how long it will take, Eisenhower did not attempt to estimate.

"I am hopeful," he wrote, "of launching operations at the proper time that should partially prevent a guerrilla control of any large area, such as the southern mountain area."

These operations may be developing even now, in the drive to join Allied and Russian troops in the lower belt of the fighting across Germany.

Eisenhower spoke of the preventive moves after saying that he had appealed to the better sense of the German people. He said "our local propaganda stations are constantly pointing out to the Germans that they ought to be planting crops for next winter's food instead of fighting."

Eisenhower To Name Day

He mentioned only as secondary possibilities that a German government might surrender and that there suddenly might be in Germany a life-saving "upsurge of popular resentment against the war."

Eisenhower himself probably will be the man who decides when organized German resistance is at an end and V-E day has come, the White House said.

The General did not say this on his own part, merely mentioning as most likely that "V-E day will come about only by a proclamation on our part."

So long as any of the "Hitler gang" can make any showing of political power, Eisenhower thinks, "the effort will be to continue resistance not only throughout Germany, but in all the outlying areas, including the western port areas of France and Denmark and Norway."

Brigands Or Pirates

Should there be any form of a national surrender — Eisenhower held out the bare possibility of some group taking over political control—"then all armed bodies remaining in the field would, in my opinion, occupy the status of brigands or pirates."

In such a position, the General said, "it is my conviction that, except for extreme fanatics, they would largely surrender."

These extremists could only expect the treatment historically given to pirates—or retribution in kind for the treatment the Nazis handed out to innocent people who could not defend themselves.

Roosevelt to Address Jefferson Day Dinners

Broadcast April 13 To Go to 350 Party Gatherings

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP).—The Democratic National Committee announced today that President Roosevelt will broadcast an address the night of April 13 to 350 Jefferson Day dinners throughout the country.

The dinners are being held to raise funds for the Congressional election campaign of 1946.

Mr. Roosevelt's message will conclude a thirty-minute program starting at 9:30 p. m. The program will begin on the National Broadcasting Company, with other networks to join in later for Mr. Roosevelt's talk. Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic National Chairman, said the Chief Executive's schedule would not allow him to attend the principal dinner in Washington. Also on the radio program will be addresses by Vice-President Harry S. Truman and James Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy.

"The keynote of our party's Jefferson Day dinners this year," Mr. Hannegan said, "will be one of hope and confidence in the work that now is going forward for a lasting peace."

He said "the importance of the 1946 elections stresses the necessity" for the policy of devoting dinner proceeds to the Congressional campaign.

Additional speakers at the dinner here will include Governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia, Governor Maurice J. Tobin of Massachusetts, and Fannie Hurst, author and playwright. Comedian Milton Berle also will be on the program.

Co-chairmen of the Washington dinner are Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, and Mrs. William H. Davis, wife of the Director of Economic Stabilization.

Navy Orders Star Athletes Sent Abroad After Normal Tour of Duty or Training

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP).—The Navy formally ordered today that its all-star athletic teams in this country be broken up for morale purposes with more emphasis on games in battle areas.

This new policy apparently means that some star players will be transferred to the Pacific area to give service men an opportunity to see first class baseball this summer and other sports later.

The order applies to all forms of athletics and rubs out a promising season for the Great Lakes team, coached by Bob Feller, Cleveland Indian pitching star. It also puts an end to such brilliant football successes as scored by the Bainbridge, Md., Training Station eleven.

The Navy said that it does not favor "deliberate concentration of professional or publicly known athletes within the continental United States for the purpose of exploiting their specialties in athletic team competition."

It added that the morale of the Navy will be enhanced by dispersal of well-known athletes in routine service with active units, and that "their concentration within continental limits is detrimental to general morale and incurs adverse criticism" from service people as well as civilians.

"In order to break up aggregations now formed it is directed that no person, either officer or enlisted, shall be retained beyond his normal period of duty or training in a particular command or locality and be permitted to coach, play or concern himself with competitive athletics."

Anti-Royalty Bill Referendum

Washington, April 5 (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce today asked its membership whether it wants to support pending legislation to outlaw royalty payments to unions.

A resolution adopted by the chamber's board of directors was put to a referendum vote.

It cited what it termed the "startling instance" of James C. Petrillo's recent successful demand for a 5-cent-a-record royalty payment to his AFL musicians union and John L. Lewis's pending request for a 10-cent-a-ton payment on coal.

Termed Extras

It added:

"These exactions are not wages" but extras going to union leaders or into union treasuries or trusts and not going to the employes direct or subject to their direct control.

"By the same logic the principle of royalty exaction could be applied to an infinite number of service or commodity units in other lines of activity, all at the expense of the consuming public and with possible disaster to our national economy.

"Such exactions, if tolerated, would represent in effect a scheme of private taxation—a scheme in which 'taxes' would be levied, collected and used not by Government but by private individuals."

Bailey Bill Indorsed

The resolution, which indorsed a bill by Senator Bailey (D., N.C.) to forbid royalty payments to unions, said "an emergency now exists that will not brook delay."

The chamber's members have twenty days to vote.

Vandenberg's Security Plans Gaining Support

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg's proposal that a projected new peace-keeping league have power to review wartime boundary and similar decisions appeared headed today for official American approval.

The Michigan Republican and other American delegates to San Francisco will start daily sessions Monday in search of a policy agreement on controversial questions likely to come before the United Nations conference April 25.

Along with amendments proposed by other nations to the Dumbarton Oaks formula for world security, the delegation is expected to take up suggestions filed with the State Department by Vandenberg.

Would Include Treaties

Among these he has suggested that the projected security council be authorized to investigate any dispute which may lead to international friction and, where it finds injustices, to recommend adjustments. These could include revision of treaties and prior decisions.

Discussion of this proposal has developed an apparent Administration willingness to accept at least a modified version of the Vandenberg plan. Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, reportedly, is prepared to back the principle within the delegation.

The delegates in the next two weeks probably will attempt to reach an American position on the small-nation complaints, as set forth in a memorandum from the Netherlands Government.

Russian Questions

Also before them will be questions raised by the Russian Government, although their stand on the Soviet proposal for multiple voting apparently was foreclosed by President Roosevelt's promise of support at Yalta.

Delegates generally believe the demand raised by Russia for a conference seat for the Lublin-Warsaw Polish Government may have been killed by British and American rejection.

Their feeling is that neither the Soviet-supported Warsaw Poles nor the London exile government will be represented at San Francisco unless unexpected progress is made by a three-nation commission at Moscow in forming a coalition provisional regime.

McMahon Has Proposal

In this connection, Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) wrote Secretary of State Stettinius today proposing that delegations from both the London and Warsaw governments be seated at the conference.

"I make this suggestion," the Connecticut Senator said, "in the hope that these two delegations having, for the first time, the opportunity to sit down at a conference table, could satisfactorily resolve this pressing and vital problem."

There were indications, meanwhile, that this Government might take some action soon in an effort to break the virtual deadlock in the Moscow Polish commission. It has been in session since shortly after the Yalta Big Three meeting.

Foresees Fair Solution

Stettinius said in a letter to Senator Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday that "progress has not been as rapid as we had hoped for, but I am still confident that a fair solution will be reached."

Taft had written the Secretary urging that the American representative on the commission, Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, be instructed to refuse approval of any provisional government "which is predominantly under the influence of the Russian Government or is not proportionately representative of the Polish people."

Addressing the Council on Foreign Relations in Chicago last night, Stettinius voiced "full con fidence that we shall be able t resolve" the "temporary difficultie of a political nature that have arisen in connection with the San Francisco conference."

BLACK MARKETS CUT SUPPLIES OF MEAT FOR ARMY

WASHINGTON, April 5—(AP) Senators heard testimony today that black markets in the United States and a drought in Australia were hampering efforts to stock up meat for the Army.

So far, however, there has been an ample flow of supplies, Maj. Gen. Carl A. Hardigg of the Quartermaster corps told the Agriculture committee.

Hardigg said dry weather in both Australia and New Zealand had made it much more difficult to get meat there. He told Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) that this would mean the Army would need more meat from the United States.

He agreed with Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) that black market operators in this country had contributed to Quartermaster corps troubles in stocking up as much meat as it desired.

(The War department has said that it does not have a stockpile of meat in the usual sense, but does try to keep sufficient reserves to keep supply lines flowing.)

General Hardigg said that the Army stopped feeding meat to liberated people three months ago because of the shortage in this country, and is now giving them cereals, beans dried eggs and sugar principally.

The Senate committee and a special House group both are at work to learn whether the civilian shortage is necessary.

Senators Wheeler and Thomas especially have blamed illegal sales, the latter commenting that "everywhere we turn we run into a black market."

Wheeler said today that he had heard red ration points for meat were being sold in New York for $6 a thousand. In New York regional officials of the Office of Price Administration commented that several butchers had admitted purchasing counterfeit points for $6 to $6.50 a thousand.

Mal-Distribution Seen

What most students of the meat situation agree on is that there has been a mal-distribution of meat—in other words, that some people are getting more than the average persons' share.

This point was brought up in a protest by Gov. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island that people in his state last year averaged but 109 pounds per ration book holder and recently averaged, on a yearly basis, only 80 pounds. These figures compare with war food administration estimates that the national per capita meat consumption last year was 147 pounds and now is at the rate of about 125 pounds.

WFA officials said this did not necessarily mean the national estimates are wrong they conceded that consumers in midwestern cattle producing areas last year had meat far in excess of the national average.

OPA now is developing a system designed to set a limit on the amount of livestock which may be handled by all slaughterers, the idea being to prevent unfair distribution among various areas of the country. John J. Madigan, formerly of Armour and company, Chicago, has been selected to manage it.

For the third year, the government set aside today a large part of early turkey marketings for the military services, thereby cutting the civilian supplies again.

List Budget Chief for Loan Job

High Officials Backing Harold Smith to Succeed Vinson as Administrator.

Washington, April 5 (A. P.).—Harold Smith, who has budgeted more billions of spending than any man in history, may become the new Federal Loan Administrator. Officials high in the Government are backing him for the job which Fred M. Vinson vacated to become Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, succeeding James F. Byrnes.

Names of half a dozen other men have figured in the conjectures about a successor to Vinson. One of the first to bob up was that of Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator. Others mentioned have included Edwin W. Pauley of California, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee; Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia and Emil Schram, former head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and now president of the New York Stock Exchange.

But supporters of Smith pointed to these qualifications for their man:

For six years he has culled over all Government plans for spending hundreds of billions of dollars. He has learned how to say "no" to requests for money which he considers unsound.

However, since Smith has had no banking experience, there was a distinct possibility he might prefer to remain as budget director.

Another barrier to his appointment as Loan Administrator would be the difficulty of finding some one else to run the budget bureau. Some officials suggested that if President Roosevelt wanted to promote some one on the bureau's staff, he might pick J. Weldon Jones, who has been Smith's assistant.

Smith has been a budgetary expert for fifteen years: Immediately before coming to Washington he was handling the same kind of chores for the State of Michigan. A chunky, bespectacled individual with sandy hair and mustache, Smith is nearly 47. He smokes a pipe most of the time.

STUDY SERIOUS TO VETERANS

University Finds Battle-Tested Scorn 'Joe College' Spirit

Bloomington, Ind., April 5 (AP)—Battle-tested veterans returning to school scorn the "Joe College" spirit of peacetime years.

That's the discovery of Indiana University, which has 350 veterans or eight per cent of the total student enrollment, now on its campus.

Wendell W. Wright, director of the office of veterans affairs, has made a thorough study of veterans who have come back. He says:

"Veterans regard certain traditional customs in organized houses (fraternity groups) as being infantile and naive. Those in private houses and university dormitories, on the other hand, are more satisfied with their surroundings."

Home Object To Segregation

Some veterans, Wright said, object to segregation and want to fit into the school system without undue attention.

"These individuals," he explained, "are the veterans who have really seen action.

"But we also find the exhibitionist type, the ones who call attention to the veterans as a group, who tend to segregate themselves and in the majority of cases have really not had military or naval experience comparable to the other type."

The average age of returned veterans is 23, compared with 20 for men students enrolled in the 1941-42 period. "This average age," Wright said, "will tend to increase for the next three years."

Veterans Shaky About Return

"The average veteran is very shaky about his ability to get back in the study habit," Wright continued. "He feels that he is at a great disadvantage with the student fresh out of high school."

The minimum time for a veteran to adapt himself to study is six weeks, although some may require a full semester to get their academic feet on the ground.

Wright said the scholastic record of veterans at Indiana is "very encouraging." During the third semester of 1943-44, veterans had a five per cent higher average than the general university average.

One of the biggest obstacles in handling of veterans is the reluctance of the Veterans Administration to release medical histories Wright said.

Volunteered Data Misleading

Veterans often volunteer information about themselves, Wright said, "but it cannot be considered as authentic. For example, one boy insisted that a parachute jump caused his nervousness, and it turned out to be incipient epilepsy.

"Another boy, who claimed an asthmatic condition, turned out to be a dementia praecox case.

"Veterans are very likely to run into difficult financial circumstances before the arrival of their benefit checks and they should be made aware of this fact before they undertake enrollment," he said.

Wright recommends that universities set up unsecured loan funds to help veterans over the hump.

He also suggests veterans carry a minimum scholastic load during their first semester back in college, and that physical examinations be required of all veterans entering or returning to college.

Courses for veterans, Wright emphasizes, also should include programs which have a definite therapeutic value.

WLB Warns Lewis Mine Strike Must End

Told Government Will Seize Those Properties Affected Unless He Acts Promptly

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The War Labor Board tonight warned John L. Lewis that unless work stoppages in approximately 200 bituminous coal mines ends promptly "the Government will have no alternative but to seize and operate the mines on strike."

WLB Chairman George W. Taylor addressed a telegram to Lewis as president of the United Mine Workers, and John J. O'Leary, UMWA vice president, saying mine strikes are interfering with production of steel and other war materials.

Steel Furnaces Closed

"The board calls upon the United Mine Workers of America at this critical stage of the war to take every step necessary to bring about the immediate termination of these work stoppages and the resumption of the production of coal," Dr. Taylor's telegram to Lewis said.

Taylor said that blast furnaces of some steel mills have been forced to close and that others probably would close down within the next 24 hours unless full bituminous production is resumed.

Soft coal operators and mine representatives have been bargaining here, so far without success, for a new contract to replace one that expired last Saturday. Lewis agreed to extend the contract 30 days, but nevertheless wildcat strikes have been widespread this week.

Ickes Urged Seizure

This morning Harold L. Ickes, [illegible] Interior, urged Secretary of the Interior, [illegible] quick Government seizure of the mines to head off "a serious interruption in the production of steel."

Ickes wanted such action today, but there were indications that it would be delayed at least until later in the week.

Text of Chairman Taylor's message to Lewis and O'Leary follows:

"Work stoppages in approximately 200 bituminous coal mines in Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky have occurred despite the extension of the contracts between the United Mine Workers of America and the national bituminous coal operators.

Metallurgical Coal Needed

"These work stoppages are interfering with the production of coal, particularly metallurgical coal which is essential to the continued operation of the steel industry. Blast furnaces of some of the steel mills have been forced to close for lack of metallurgical coal and reports indicate that other blast furnaces will also be compelled to close within the next 24 hours unless the production of coal is resumed.

"The board calls upon the United Mine Workers of America at this critical stage of the war to take every step necessary to bring about the immediate termination of these work stoppages and the resumption of the production of coal.

Seizure Only Alternative

"Unless these work stoppages are terminated promptly the Government will have no alternative but to seize and operate the mines on strike.

(Signed) George W. Taylor, chairman National War Labor Board."

Operators negotiating with the union sought an opportunity today to report lack of progress to the War Labor Board. But the board turned the plan down, pointing out that a report on the status of negotiations already had been set for Saturday.

Trying To Get Miners Back

With Lewis reported en route back from Washington to New York, O'Leary said when advised of the board's telegram that "I can't see how we can do any more than we are doing" to get the idle miners back to work.

O'Leary said district UMWA officials in western Pennsylvania decided at a meeting today to make fresh attempts to get miners in their area back to the pits. O'Leary renewed his statement that superintendents in some Southern mines are preventing men from returning to work in order to avoid payment of any retroactive wage increase.

Another Session Due Today

Another negotiations session is to be held tomorrow morning.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, said there had been "no progress in the last several days" and the operators wanted to know about "future procedure if no accord is reached here tomorrow."

John O'Leary, United Mine Workers vice president, said the miners "still have hopes of making an agreement."

The WLB had asked for a report by Saturday on the status of negotiations.

The whereabouts of John L. Lewis, UMW president, was uncertain here. He had left anthracite conferences in New York presumably to resume the soft-coal dealings here.

Ickes, solid fuels administrator for war, told his news conference that thirteen United States Steel Corporation blast furnaces have shut down and noon tomorrow will see twenty more cooling off.

Meanwhile, more bituminous miners in some areas heeded Lewis's call for work under an extension of the old wage contract, but others dropped their tools. Reports from the coal fields indicated at least 40,000 still idle.

Captive Mines Affected

The main increase in idleness was reported from Pennsylvania, where tabulations showed about 28,900 bituminous miners off the job, compared with 21,000 yesterday.

Principally affected were captive mines serving steel mills, with nine pits of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, United States Steel subsidiary, reported idle and the other two only partially active. Four Jones & Laughlin Steel Company mines and three of Republic Steel were idle.

West Virgina coal digging was called nearly normal, more than 50 per cent better than yesterday's record.

Ohio operations were reported virtually unchanged with about 40 per cent of the miners idle. One additional mine opened up but another shut down.

In Alabama about 8,000 of 20,000 miners were on the job, compared with 4,000 yesterday. Three steel plant mines went back in production, the first since last week. William Mitch, district UMW president, predicted an end to "all misunderstandings" this week and full production next week.

Plans for Transferring Armies From Europe to East Revealed

V-E Day Will See Start of Biggest Moving Job in History—Most Troops Will Pass Through This Country.

Washington, April 5 (A. P.).—The United States Army will begin history's biggest single moving job on V-E day. It will be bigger than the task of getting Eisenhower to Berlin. It will take months longer than the year required to move the A. E. F. home from Europe after world war I.

The Army in Europe is not just coming home. Most of it is going on, 13,000 miles from the battlefields of Germany, to finish up the war with Japan. It is not too much to say that the final round of the Japanese war will begin in Germany.

This is the core of what the American High Command calls its re-deployment problems, and at this point the problem ceases to be simple. Men and supplies cannot begin to leave Europe until Germany is completely defeated, and they cannot begin arriving in the Philippines (or wherever else they will go out there) until bases and camps are ready to receive them.

When the generals started making plans to close out business in Europe they came up against this still unanswered question: When and how will the war with Germany end?

War May Drag On.

A German surrender would give us a clean break in Europe. We would not need to leave men to mop up Nazi guerrillas. But the war may drag on through weary months of lessening enemy resistance. If this happens, the Allied Powers will have to decide somehow when they have won the war and proclaim that a certain day is V-E day.

At that time the American High Command will order into effect one of the various detailed plans for reorganizing its divisions in Europe and transporting them out of the theater, except those to be left in Germany.

Simultaneously, the generals and admirals will have to take into account the state of the war against Japan. If the Island of Luzon, in the Philippines, is the largest mass of land we then hold out there, most or all of the troops from Europe will go to Luzon. But if Japan or China has been invaded by then they might go more directly to those battle areas.

The routes by which they will go and the general time schedules can be told now:

The first troops out of Europe will be for the most part service units—men to build camps and airfields, roads, docks and the like. The first equipment will be the stuff they need to do these jobs.

No Furlough for First Troops.

Most of these troops will go directly from the ports of northern and western France, and of Belgium and Holland, across the Atlantic, through the Panama Canal and into the Pacific. It will be a long, tough trip, and it will mean that the men chosen for this assignment will not get a furlough home between wars.

Some early units will leave from Marseille and other Mediterranean ports and voyage east by way of the Suez Canal. Depending on where they are needed, some Air Force units will fly to India and points beyond by way of the Middle East. Gen. Arnold says that most of the Air Force will go directly to the Pacific.

After these first movements of service units, with possibly a few combat units included, the great stream of American soldiers in Europe will begin to flow across the Atlantic to New York and other big East coast ports.

Those coming home that way will include both men to be demobilized and men to be furloughed.

Here Are the Plans.

This is what will happen according to present plans:

1. From the ports where they disembark the men of both classes will be routed by train to a score of big Army "personnel centers" throughout the country. These are the camps used also for inducting men into the Army. Returning veterans will go to the camps nearest their homes, traveling in groups set up on a geographical basis. If a man is to be discharged, he will get his final papers there and transportation home. If he is to be furloughed, he will get transportation.

2. Each man on furlough will have about a month's leave. He must report back to the personnel center.

3. After further training, the veteran will be sent to Army ports destined for the Pacific. The probability is that he will have to go out to San Francisco or some other West Coast port. By this time those ports become too crowded, Atlantic or Gulf outlets will be used in addition.

Three Months to Move Man.

Under this system it will take about three months to move a man from Europe to the United States, give him leave, get him equipped and back into a combat unit and put him on board a ship.

How many men will be demobilized and how many will get furloughs? No competent authority in the War Department here would venture an on-the-record estimate. All who were asked said that too much depends on what is happening in the Pacific.

But it is possible to report why it will take so long to bring these men home.

It took two years to build up Britain the Army which invaded western Europe during much of that time was full of Atlantic ports and the North African and Italian campaigns pulled heavily on shipping.

Those conditions will not exist during re-deployment, but on the other hand everything will have to start from deep inside France, Belgium, Holland, Germany or Italy. The railroad systems of all those countries are inadequate. Port facilities are still sharply limited. Shipping must be used also to transport civilian supplies to liberated Europe and to feed the Pacific war at an ever mounting rate. Present plans call for making full use of both British shipping and captured German vessels as well as all available ships of other countries.

A Measurement for the Problem.

One way of measuring the problem is this:

It takes seventy-five trains, totaling 2,700 passenger and freight cars, to move a full armored division with its 10,000 men and 3,700 tanks, trucks, jeeps, &c. It takes twenty-nine passenger trains and four freight trains to move the 15,000 men of an infantry division and their equipment. (At least sixty-four divisions are known to be in Europe today.

It takes fifteen Liberty ships to transport overseas just the equipment of an armored division. A big liner like the Queen Mary may carry 15,000 men a trip, but the average troop transport can haul only 3,000 to 4,000. One of the jobs will be to convert some cargo carriers to troop ships.

Coming out of Europe, men and equipment will not move at the same rate. A few troops will start coming over the first month after V-E day. The trickle of men will swell into a heavy stream by the end of the third month, but much equipment will have to be reconditioned in Europe.

Eight Months to Peak.

Many of the more delicate instruments of war will have to be specially packaged against the Pacific climate. The peak flow of materials to the Pacific, therefore, will not start from Europe until six to eight months after V-E day.

Hauling the troops in this country will put a heavy new strain on American railroads. However, Army transportation authorities estimate at the moment that it will not be greater than it was at the peak period of transportation to East coast ports when preparations were under way for the invasion of Europe.

2 LABOR LEADERS GET UP TO 16 YEARS

Fay And Bove Sentenced For Conspiracy And Extortion

New York, April 5 (AP)—Labor Leaders Joseph S. Fay and James Bove were sentenced today to serve from eight and a half to sixteen years each in prison for conspiracy and extortion.

A special jury March 15 found the defendants, AFL building trades union executives, guilty of charges of extorting $62,000 and conspiracy to extort $280,000 from contractors on New York city's $300,000,000 Delaware water project.

Called Grasping Thieves

In opposing defense counsel pleas for leniency, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, who prosecuted the case, told the court:

"Well over $1,000,000 was paid on that aqueduct job. Both men are ruthless and grasping thieves, and their long conspiracy from 1936 to 1943 is a record full of overt acts."

Justice William H. Munson, who pronounced sentence, during the thirteen-day trial termed the defendants two of the nation's most powerful labor leaders.

The original indictment accused Fay and Bove of conspiring to extort $703,000 from the aqueduct contractors and extorting $62,000 from the Walsh Construction Company. They were acquitted of five counts alleging extortion.

Both Labor Leaders

Fay, 53, of Newark, N.J., is vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers while Bove, 45, of Long Island City, N.Y., is former vice president of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union.

John W. McGeehan, attorney for Fay, indicated an appeal would be taken in behalf of his client. Moses Polakoff, counsel for Bove, has said Bove would appeal.

President Urges Spiritual Revival

New York, April 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt called for a revival of the spirit of religion to solve the nation's problems in a message made public tonight at the centenary dinner of Congregation Emanu-El.

The President's message read:

"The gravity of the times which mark the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Congregation Emanu-El quickens in the hearts and souls of thinking men and women an appreciation of their dependence on the strength that can be found only in the everlasting reality of religion.

Would Rekindle Faith

"It seems, therefore, fitting that I should again declare that no greater thing could come to our land today than a revival of the spirit of religion — a revival that would stir the hearts of men and women of all faiths to a reassertion of their belief in God. I doubt if there is any problem that would not melt away before the fire of such a spiritual awakening.

"The great majority of Americans find religious unity in a common Biblical heritage—the heritage of the Old Testament. Whether our allegiance is to the tenets of Christian revelation or to the ancient teaching of Israel, we all hold to the inspiration of the Old Testament and accept the Ten Commandments as the fundamental law of God.

"It is well for us, therefore, in the face of global war and world upheaval, to emphasize the many essential things in which we, as a nation, can find unity as we seek solution of the momentous problems before us."

Greiser's Capture Denied

New York, April 5 (AP)—A Berlin broadcast tonight quoted "competent German quarters" as denying reports that Arthur Greiser, former gauleiter of Poland, had been captured by Soviet troops and also "the many reports concerning Reichsmarshal Goering." The broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Rail Coal Crisis Denied By Bituminous Institute

New York, April 5 (AP)—Harry M. Vawter, director of the Bituminous Coal Institute, said tonight a majority of the nation's railroads were operating with less than a fifteen-day coal supply, but that it "would be an unusual situation" if any of them were down to a one-day reserve.

Vawter's statement was made after an unnamed railroad official in Cincinnati said American railroads were operating on little more than a day-to-day fuel basis.

YANK FORCES RESCUE 14 POLISH GENERALS

NEW YORK, April 5 — (AP) Fourteen Polish generals, including a former chief-of-staff and the commander who defended Warsaw in 1939, have been rescued by the American Ninth armored division at Dossel, near Kassel, the Polish telegraph agency reported in a Paris dispatch today.

The generals were among 2,400 Polish officers freed from the German prison camp. The rescued former Polish chief-of-staff is Gen. Tadeusz Piskor, and liberated with him was Gen. Walerian Czuma who opposed the Germans when they besieged Warsaw. Also freed was Gen. Leon Barbecki, former inspector general of the Polish army.

The prisoners were all suffering from malnutrition, and there were 60 cases of tuberculosis.

Planes To Use Billion Gallons Of Gas Yearly

New York, April 5 (AP)—Commercial and private aircraft will use gasoline at the rate of 2,000 gallons a minute—or more than one billion gallons yearly—after the war, G. K. Brower of American Airlines, Incorporated, predicted today.

Brower told an aeronautical meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers that air transport operators alone probably would pay more than $70,000,000 annually for fuels and lubricants by 1954. Each penny change in fuel prices, he said, would make a total cost difference of about $5,000,000 yearly.

Brower added that airlines probably will be less interested in super-fuels after the war than in a limited number of grades of gasoline which will satisfy varying operating needs economically.

Army Aid to Wounded Praised

BUFFALO, April 5 (AP).—The life of a wounded American soldier is "practically guaranteed if he reaches a hospital," Milton D. Cohn, of Buffalo, national commander of Disabled American Veterans, said today. Mr. Cohn, just returned from a survey of handling of wounded men in the European area, said in an interview that American soldiers are receiving the best medical care "ever offered by any army."

STATE TO SHARE SNOW EXPENSES

Albany, April 5 (A. P.).—A State appropriation of $5,000,000 to be distributed to localities for extraordinary snow expenses was authorized today in a bill signed by Gov. Dewey.

The statute permits counties, cities, towns and villages to file with the State Superintendent of Public Works statements of their snow removal costs from last November 15 to April 15 and for the same period from 1939 through 1944. The municipalities then will be reimbursed the amount which the 1944-45 cost exceeded the average for the six-year period.

Gov. Dewey vetoed a bill which would have increased from 50 to 75 per cent the State's contribution toward local expenditures for snow removal and would have removed the maximum limit of $75 per mile.

Another bill signed by Gov. Dewey authorizes the public works superintendent or employees or contractors designated by him to enter lands to keep waters of streams within a channel to prevent encroachment on highways. They also would be permitted to remove any fence or obstruction which caused snow drifts and to erect fences to prevent snow drifts.

Earlier, he signed a bill authorizing the State Comptroller to receive payment from the Federal Government for municipalities' claims for repairing roads and bridges damaged by a Federal agency or contractor in connection with prosecution of the war or national defense.

Cornell Professor to China

ITHACA, N. Y., April 5 (AP).—Cornell University officials announced today that Knight Biggerstaff, associate professor of Chinese history, will leave soon for China on a special one-year assignment by the State Department. He will be assigned to the American Embassy in Chungking with the title of attache. Professor Biggerstaff has been on leave from Cornell for the last six months as a China specialist in the planning and research unit of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs in the State Department. Mrs. Biggerstaff will remain in Washington to continue her work as regional specialist in the China section of the Office of War Information.

SAYS JAPS SEEK CHINESE PEACE

Hamilton, N. Y., April 5 (A. P.).—T. Z. Koo, adviser to China's delegation to the World Security Conference at San Francisco on April 25, said today that "Japan has been flooding Chungking with emissaries in an effort to patch up a peace with China." Speaking at a Colgate University weekly assembly, Koo, an honorary alumnus, declared that the Japanese had lost much of their arrogance in recent years.

He described his contacts with the Japanese after his capture December 7, 1941, when they bombed Hongkong and destroyed the plane on which he was to fly to America. He escaped to Shanghai, where he became a superintendent of a maternity hospital. While there during 1942 and 1943, he said, the Japanese sent peace emissaries to see him.

"The first two who came," he related, "tried to intimidate me in an effort to compel me to cast my weight behind a 'co-prosperity circle' to be created by China and Japan. When I said there was no basis for such co-operation, they asked me what they could do to build a basis. I replied: 'Stop the war.' They said they would if they could withdraw into Mancuria, but I pointed out that that would be insufficient."

Koo said that another emissary, "whose name would be known to most Americans," visited him in 1944 but that "there was no arrogance this time."

"He admitted," said Koo, "that the war in the Pacific had reached a very critical stage for Japan and that Japan would like to unite with China for a 'co-prosperity circle.' I replied that the Chinese have never thought of peace in all those years we were fighting alone and there was no reason to stop now when we are getting help from the United Nations. . . . Since then Japan has been flooding Chungking with emissaries in an effort to patch up a peace with China."

Postwar Peril Seen In Nazi Cartels

Reading, Pa., April 5 (AP)—Nazi Germany, through its cartel agreements with many strategic American businesses, threatens to be the nation's No. 1 postwar troublemaker, according to Norman M. Littell, former Assistant United States Attorney General.

Speaking to the Kiwanis Club here last night, he said cartel agreements between German and American firms "almost defeated us in this war. We won't know exactly how close until the history of these eventful years is written."

3d Service Command's Sale

PHILADELPHIA, April 5 (AP).—Bids for 1,500,000 items of surplus property were opened today by the Army 3d Service Command. More than 1,000 wholesalers and retailers placed sealed bids earlier this week after viewing the items, but only twenty watched their opening

Halifax Urges Co-Operation

Harrisburg, April 5 (AP) — The Earl of Halifax pleaded tonight that there be no quitters on the United Nations' peace-keeping team no matter how "sore" individual nations may become.

No nation, he said, is going to be "able to dictate to the world."

In a speech before the Engineers Society of Pennsylvania, the British Ambassador said peace can be maintained in the future only by "the driving force of a common sentiment."

Prays For Conference

He reiterated Britain's pledge to see the Pacific war through to a victorious finish, and prayed for success of the San Francisco conference, on whose course, he said, "the future peace of the world will largely hang."

"This time we must not fail," he asserted.

Halifax insisted that economic co-operation must go hand in hand with political co-operation if world peace is to be insured.

Mistakes Expected

Economically, there must not be "a disorderly and selfish scramble," he added.

"Future war, if it comes, will spring . . . from some profound clash of ideas, which will be fighting desperately for survival."

He said there are bound to be mistakes made in the largely uncharted seas of international co-operation, "but none of these mistakes will be fatal provided we avoid the biggest mistake of all, of losing patience with the job and trying to pull out of it.

"We shall have our differences with each other; but we shall hold these in place if we remember that in a large and complicated partnership like ours no single partner is going always to have his own way about everything."

Not One To Dictate

"But all this will not matter too much so long as we do not let such differences poison our relations with each other, or lead us into questioning . . . motives or integrity."

The Beachbuster Tank In Production for Year

Borg-Warner Aid Describes Weapon Used at Okinawa

CHICAGO, April 5 (AP).—The Beachbuster, amphibious tank used in the Okinawa landings, has been produced in volume by Borg-Warner Corporation for almost a year, the company announced today.

R. C. Ingersoll, Borg-Warner vice-president and head of its Ingersoll Steel & Disc Division, revealed some details of production at the Ingersoll plant in Kalamazoo, Mich., after the Navy disclosed the Beachbusters were used on Okinawa. The Beachbuster is known officially as the LVT-3, and was designed especially to crack enemy shore defenses.

One of its outstanding features is a ramp door at the rear which permits quick unloading of men and supplies when it draws ashore. The rear ramp lessens the hazard from direct enemy small arms fire in landing operations.

Improvement Planned For Artificial Limbs

Chicago, April 5 (AP)—A committee "to incorporate new advances" into the making of artificial limbs and to bring about as much prosthetic standardization as possible was ready to begin its work today.

Formation of the committee was announced by the Journal of the American Medical Association, which said the group had been requested by the Army's surgeon general, the National Academy of Science and the National Research Council.

Dr. Paul E. Klopsteg, professor of applied science at Northwestern University, has been named chairman. Headquarters will be at the university.

Joseph Grew Taken Ill Playing Golf In Florida

Boca Raton, Fla., April 5 (AP)—Joseph G. Grew, Under Secretary of State, was taken ill while playing golf here last Monday and taken to the Army Air Forces Hospital, The Army revealed today.

Lieut. Col. Cleo M. Miller, of Nashville, Tenn., base surgeon, described Grew's condition as "rapidly improving" and said he would be discharged in a "day or two."

Ft. McClellan Under Polio Quarantine

Fort McClellan, Ala., April 5 (AP). Army authorities today placed a limited quarantine on the Fort McClellan post in an attempt to check an outbreak of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis).

The action was taken at the request of the State Health Department after sixteen cases—three of them fatal—developed on the reservation. The first case appeared March 22. Three developed yesterday.

All but one of the persons affected are soldiers.

The quarantine affects children up to 14 years old. Those on the post may not leave it and none may enter from the outside.

Officials said about "two busloads" of children live on the post and attend schools near by.

There are no other cases in the county.

Polio epidemics usually occur in the summer and fall. Last summer saw the most serious outbreak ever recorded in the United States, but it did not reach epidemic proportion in Alabama.

LEGION OF MERIT WON BY NEGRO SOLDIER

ATLANTA, April 5—(AP) First Sgt. Jerry B. Davis, 36, of Macon, Ga., today became the first Negro in the country to win the Legion of Merit—fourth highest Army decoration.

The medal was presented to Davis at a special ceremony here at Lawson General hospital, where he is a patient. Brig. Gen. William L. Sheep, commanding officer of the hospital, pinned the decoration on the soldier's blouse.

Davis led the best section in the 92nd all Negro division in Italy and was wounded bringing rations to his gun crews during a heavy enemy barrage at the battle of the Arno river.

3 Timken Plants Shut In Maintenance Strike

6,000 Idle in Detroit After Union Steward Is Laid Off

DETROIT, April 5 (AP). — The strike of maintenance workers of the Timken-Detroit Axle Company closed three of its plants today, making more than 6,000 workers idle.

The strike, involving 400 maintenance workers, began Tuesday after a union steward of Local 174, United Automobile Workers, Congress of Industrial Organizations affiliate, had been laid off for one week. The company charged he had checked into the plant on a morning shift and immediately slipped out with an outgoing group of workers.

NELSON TO HELP RECONVERSION OF AUTO INDUSTRY

DETROIT, April 5—(AP) The appointment of Henry P. Nelson to aid in the reconversion of the automotive industry to peacetime production was announced today by J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production board.

Nelson, who has been director of WPB's aircraft division, will retain that office, Krug said.

Krug came to Detroit today to consult with automotive men on the industry's reconversion problems and following an all afternoon session said, "we did not talk about automobile production at all. No new cars will be approved until the collapse of Germany and maybe for some time after that."

The WPB chairman said some time was spent in consideration of the various preliminaries, such as machine tool equipment, plant rearrangement and other technical questions that must be disposed of before automobile production can be resumed.

He said that a story, given considerable circulation today, to the effect that passenger automobiles would be in production next fall with the authorization of the WPB "is not true."

"We are using all the materials and manpower the country has to keep the war going and until that situation eases, it will not be possible to think of civilian car production," Krug said.

In announcing the appointment of the 37-year-old Nelson, Krug emphasized that his job would be that of coordinating the reconversion preliminaries. "He is in no sense to be a 'czar'," Krug said.

Krug is a dollar-a-year man on leave to WPB from the International Harvester company where he was manager of schedules and production for the company's 19 plants.

Top-ranking officials of the automotive industry attending the meeting at which Nelson's appointment was announced were the group including:

K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler corporation; Henry Ford II, executive vice president of Ford Motor company; C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors corporation; Paul G. Hoffman, president of Studebaker corporation; George T. Christopher, president of Packard Motor Car company; Ward M. Canaday, chairman of Willys-Overland; George M. Mason, president of Nash Kelvinator and a score of other car manufacturers, as well as representatives of the War Manpower commission and the armed services.

McNutt Favors Wiping Out Of All Japanese

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 5 (AP). Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission declared here today he was in favor of the "extermination of the Japanese—in toto."

He made the remark in a departure from his prepared text at a luncheon meeting of business, labor and civic leaders. Asked later by a reporter if he meant extermination of the Japanese Army or the people, he replied he referred to "the people."

"I know the Japanese people," he added.

McNutt expressed the opinion America would be able to meet the current labor shortage in her war factories "because our people want to see this thing through."

Oath Requirement Changed

SALT LAKE CITY, April 5 (AP). — Japanese - Americans are no long required to forswear allegiance to the emperor when being inducted into the United States Armed Forces, the national offices of the Japanese-American Citizens' League have announced. The oath administered now is exactly the same as for all other inductees. Alien Japanese, now acceptable in the Army as volunteers, must still forswear allegiance to Hirohito, the organization said.

THE HEAVY ATTACK WAS A FOLLOW-UP TO WEDNESDAY'S PLASTERING BY THE U.S.EIGHTH AIRFORCE OF KIEL AND HAMBURG AND AIRFIELDS IN NORTHWEST GERMANY BY NEARLY 2,000 PLANES. EIGHT BOMBERS AND FOUR FIGHTERS WERE LISTED AS MISSING FROM THAT OPERATION.

EXCEPT FOR THE ISOLATED JET PLANE ATTACKS, MOST OF THE U.S.BOMBERS WERE UNOPPOSED IN THE AIR TODAY. FLAK WAS MODERATE EXCEPT IN THE NUERNBERG AREA. AT NUERNBERG SOME CREWMEN REPORTED FLAK WITH A PURPLE FLASH INSTEAD OF THE USUAL RED.

THE ORDNANCE DEPOT AT INGOLSTADT WAS DESCRIBED BY AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE STAFF OFFICER AS "PROBABLY THE MOST ACTIVE CENTER IN SOUTHERN GERMANY."

DURING THE MORNING U.S.NINTH AIR FORCE PILOTS SWEEPING AHEAD OF AMERICAN BATTLEFRONT ARMIES, DESTROYED EIGHT GERMAN PLANES AND DAMAGED 29 OTHERS IN AN ATTACK ON NAZI AIRFIELDS NEAR WEIMAR. PILOTS FLYING OVER THE HANNOVER AREA REPORTED LARGE CONCENTRATIONS OF NAZI VEHICLES ON SECONDARY ROADS HEADING EASTWARD FROM THE WESER RIVER AREA. SOME 500 SORTIES WERE FLOWN.

AS THE GERMANS UNDER SS COL.GEN SEPP DIETRICH VOWED TO SACRIFICE VIENNA STREET BY STREET IF NECESSARY, MOSCOW DISPATCHES SAID THERE WAS NO INDICATION IN FRONT REPORTS THAT RUSSIAN GUNS HAD BEGUN TO SHELL THE GREAT CULTURAL CENTER OF EUROPE.

THE GERMANS, HOWEVER, WERE USING PARKS AS ARTILLERY POSITIONS, HURLING VOLLEYS AT THE SOVIETS MOVING THROUGH THE ENEMY'S PIERCED DEFENSE ZONE. THE RUSSIANS CAPTURED THREE AIRDROMES SOUTH OF THE CAPITAL AND WERE STORMING ANOTHER AT SCHWECHAT, ON THE SOUTHEASTERN OUTSKIRTS OF THE CITY, DISPATCHES SAID.

THE GERMANS RUSHED IN DOZENS OF FRESH, STRONG UNITS OF VETERAN INFANTRYMEN AND STORMTROOPERS AND POUNDED ADVANCING RUSSIAN TANKS WITH ARTILLERY, MACHINE GUNS AND EVERYTHING THEY HAD. MORTAR FIRE WAS DESCRIBED AS HEAVY AS ANYTHING EXPERIENCED ALMOST SINCE STALINGRAD.

ALTHOUGH THE RED ARMY HAD GOTTEN THROUGH THE FIRST DEFENSE RING BEFORE VIENNA, A GREAT BELT OF STRONGPOINTS IN WHICH MACHINE GUNS BRISTLE, BACKED UP BY ALL KINDS OF ARTILLERY AND ANTI-TANK WEAPONS, STILL WAS NOT YET BROKEN.

BERLIN GAVE ATTENTION TO THE CENTRAL AND NORTHERN SECTORS OF THE EASTERN FRONT, AND TRANSOCEAN'S WALTER PLATO SAID "THERE ARE MANY SIGNS THAT THE RUSSIAN COMMAND MAY LAUNCH A NEW MASS ASSAULT ON A BROAD FRONT IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS."

"THE BREAKTHROUGH ATTEMPT TO VIENNA MAY BE THE PRELUDE TO THIS MAJOR OPERATION. IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN HOW FAR THIS OFFENSIVE IS SYCHRONIZED WITH PLANS IN THE WEST," HE SAID.

PARIS, APRIL 5-(AP)-THERE IS AN AMERICAN LIEUTENANT COLONEL WHO HAS MORE GERMAN SOLDIERS UNDER HIS COMMAND NOW THAN FIELD MARSHAL ALBERT KESSELRING, NAZI COMMANDER ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

HE IS FREDERICK A.MOULTON, DEPUTY CHIEF OF THE PRISONERS OF WAR DIVISION, EUROPEAN THEATER OF OPERATIONS, PROVOST MARSHAL'S OFFICE, UNITED STATES ARMY.

UNDER HIS CONTROL THE LATEST TALLY SHOWS, ARE SOME 725,000 PRISONERS ON THE CONTINENT AND IN ENGLAND. THE NUMBER IS GROWING STEADILY--190,000 CAME IN FROM FRONTLINE PENS IN THE LAST 10 DAYS.

AND THE TROUBLE IS, NOBODY WANTS THEM--THAT IS, NOBODY BUT KESSELRING.

THERE ARE 350,000 IN ENCLOSURES. TWO HUNDRED AND TWENTY FIVE THOUSAND HAVE BEEN PUT TO LABOR. TWENTY FIVE THOUSAND ARE IN HOSPITALS. AND THERE ARE SOME 125,000 IN TRANSIT.

THAT DOESN'T COUNT PRISONERS TAKEN BY THE BRITISH, FRENCH OR OTHERS. IT DOESN'T COUNT ABOUT 1,500 WHO HAVE DIED, OR THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN SHIPPED OUT OF THIS THEATER.

A HUNDRED THOUSAND HAVE BEEN SENT TO CAMPS IN ENGLAND OR TO LABOR THERE. NEGOTIATIONS ARE IN PROGRESS FOR DELIVERING MORE, BUT A PROBLEM HAS ARISEN. ALTHOUGH ENGLAND NEEDS THE LABOR, HER SPACE AND FACILITIES ALREADY ARE STRAINED.

THE FRENCH HAVE BEEN GIVEN ABOUT 5,000, BUT TURNING THEM OVER TO THE FRENCH DOESN'T EASE THE PROBLEM. THE UNITED STATES ARMY STILL HAS TO PROVIDE ARMS AND EQUIPMENT TO GUARD THEM AND FOOD TO FEED THEM.

MOST OF THOSE TURNED OVER TO THE FRENCH HAVE BEEN PUT TO WORK DIGGING COAL AND HELPING GET IN SPRING CROPS.

ABOUT 100,000 HAVE BEEN SENT FROM HERE TO THE UNITED STATES, AND THERE WILL BE MORE WHEN SHIPPING SPACE IS PROVIDED.

NATIONALS OF ALLIED COUNTRIES ARE SORTED OUT FROM PRISONERS AND TURNED BACK TO THEIR OWN COUNTRIES AS FAST AS POSSIBLE. RUSSIANS FREED AFTER BEING USED BY GERMANS AS FORCED LABOR OR AS CONSCRIPT TROOPS ARE LODGED SEPARATELY UNDER TERMS OF THE YALTA AGREEMENT AS "LIBERATED SOVIET CITIZENS" AND ARE ACCORDED BETTER TREATMENT AND BETTER FACILITIES THAN PRISONERS.

ON THE WESER RIVER, GERMANY, APRIL 5-(AP)-DESPITE BLOWN UP BRIDGES, THE AMERICAN NINTH ARMY'S SECOND ARMORED DIVISION AND ELEMENTS OF THE 30TH INFANTRY DIVISION CROSSED THIS NEXT-TO-THE-LAST RIVER BARRIER ON THE ROAD TO BERLIN TODAY WITHOUT A SINGLE CASUALTY.

THE SECOND ARMORED COMBAT COMMAND UNDER BRIG.GEN.JOHN H.COLLIER, OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., DASHED 30 MILES BY ROAD YESTERDAY AND REACHED THE RIVER NEAR HAMELIN LAST NIGHT BUT FOUND THE BRIDGES BLOWN.

EARLY THIS MORNING THE 30TH INFANTRY, WITHOUT WAITING FOR ASSAULT BOATS, USED HEAVY PONTOONS OF THE 17TH ARMORED ENGINEERS TO PULL THEMSELVES ACROSS AND ATTACKED TOWARD HIGH GROUND SOUTH OF HAMELIN. THEY DID NOT EVEN ENCOUNTER MORTAR SHOT.

A BATTALION UNDER LT.COL.HAL D.MCCOWN, RUSTON, LA., TOOK 110 PRISONERS INCLUDING NINE OFFICERS, WHO GAVE UP WITHOUT A STRUGGLE AND WITHOUT CASUALTIES.

APR 6 1945

HAMELIN, SUPPOSED TO HAVE A CONSIDERABLE GERMAN GARRISON, OVERLOOKED THE OPERATION, BUT IN BROAD DAYLIGHT ENGINEERS OF THE 17TH QUICKLY THREW TOGETHER A 300-FOOT SPAN.

THE PRISONERS WERE THE BOTTOM OF ADOLF HITLER'S MANPOWER BARREL. ONE NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICER HAD ONLY ONE LEG. THE REST WERE A NONDESCRIPT BUNCH FROM A DOZEN DIFFERENT UNITS WITHOUT ANY FIGHT LEFT.

A COMIC TOUCH WAS ADDED WHEN 160 SMARTLY DRESSED HUNGARIAN SOLDIERS UNDER A SECOND LIEUTENANT WERE FOUND HIDING IN A SMALL VILLAGE WEST OF THE RIVER. THE WHOLE BUNCH ALONG WITH 31 GERMANS, INCLUDING A CAPTAIN, WERE TAKEN PRISONER BY FOUR ENGINEERS ARMED WITH RIFLES.

THE HUNGARIANS MARCHED OFF PROTESTING THEY ONLY HAD GUNS FOR "GUARD DUTY." THE YOUNG LIEUTENANT HAD A WIFE ALONG WITH HIM. HE WANTED TO BRING HER ALONG WITH TWO HORSES TO THE PRISONER OF WAR CAGE. ANOTHER WOMAN IN THE PARTY HAD TO BE PREVENTED FROM ACCOMPANYING THE HUNGARIANS, WHO ALSO WANTED TO BRING THEIR BICYCLES AND OTHER JUNK. THEIR ANTICS BROUGHT SMILES EVEN TO THE DOUR GERMAN FACES.

THERE COULD BE A MAJOR BATTLE SHAPING UP IN THE HILL COUNTRY AHEAD WHICH THE ENEMY MAY HAVE CHOSEN FOR ITS FIRST DEFENSE LINE SINCE THE LANDINGS EASTER SUNDAY. THE AREA IS FULL OF SHARP GULLIES, CAVES AND DOMINATING ELEVATIONS.

IT IS EXCELLENT DEFENSE COUNTRY, THOUGH NO BETTER THAN THAT FACING THE LANDING BEACHES WHERE THE JAPANESE SHOWED NO DESIRE TO FIGHT.

THE HILLS ARE DOTTED WITH LOW, SPREADING PINES--THE KIND SEEN IN MANY JAPANESE PRINTS. THIS IS THE FIRST CAMPAIGN SINCE ATTU THAT THE 7TH DIVISION HAS BEEN FIGHTING WITHOUT THE EVER-PRESENT PALM TREES OF THE TROPICS.

THE WEATHER, TOO, IS AN ABRUPT CHANGE FROM TROPICAL LEYTE AND THE MARSHALL ISLANDS--BUT STILL FAR FROM THE BLEAK ALEUTIAN CLIMATE.

LAST NIGHT THE BEACHING AREA WAS LIGHTED--AND THIS LESS THAN 400 MILES FROM JAPAN--WHILE LOADING PROGRESSED.

ABOARD ADMIRAL TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, RYUKYU ISLANDS, APRIL 5-(AP)-THE U.S. TENTH ARMY EXTENDED ITS OKINAWAN DOMAIN 500 TO 2,000 YARDS SOUTHWARD AGAINST INCREASING JAPANESE OPPOSITION YESTERDAY BUT PUSHED NORTHWARD THREE TO FIVE MILES ALMOST WITHOUT RESISTANCE.

THE 24TH CORPS ROLLING SOUTH TOWARD NAHA, ISLAND CAPITAL, AND THE MOST THICKLY POPULATED AND PRESUMABLY MOST HEAVILY DEFENDED AREAS RAN INTO HEAVY ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE ON THE SOUTHWESTERN COAST. THESE TROOPS WERE 3,000 YARDS FROM MACHINATO AIRSTRIP.

ABOUT 1,400 YARDS INLAND OTHER ARMY UNITS ENCIRCLED AND CLEANED OUT A STRONG JAPANESE MACHINEGUN, MORTAR AND ARTILLERY POSITION WHICH WAS ROUGHLY 1,500 YARDS IN DIAMETER.

ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST THE 7TH DIVISION MOVED 500 YARDS DOWN A RIDGE, OVERCOMING SEVERAL ENTRENCHMENTS AND STRONG POINTS. THEIR DRIVE WAS HALTED BY MORTARS FROM WELL-ORGANIZED ENEMY POSITIONS IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF THE TOWN OF NAKAGUSUKU.

MEANWHILE MARINES OF THE THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS ADVANCING NORTHWARD WERE OPPOSED ONLY OCCASIONALLY BY ISOLATED SQUADS IN CAVES.

THEY OCCUPIED NEARLY THE ENTIRE ISHIKAWA ISTHMUS, ROUGHLY THREE MILES WIDE AND FIVE MILES LONG, AND ITS TWO EAST COAST TOWNS--ISHIKAWA AND YAKA. THE ISTHMUS IS THE NARROWEST PART OF THE ISLAND AND THE JAPANESE LOST AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO DELAY THE AMERICANS BY FAILING TO DEFEND IT.

SOME SURRENDERING CIVILIANS SAID THE MARINES WOULD FIND FEW JAPANESE SOLDIERS ANYWHERE ON NORTHERN OKINAWA BUT AIRPLANE SPOTTERS REPORTED SOME ENEMY CONCENTRATIONS AHEAD OF THE MARINE FRONT LINE IN THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND.

THE JAPANESE CONTINUED TO SEND PLANES OVER SINGLY OR IN PAIRS OR THREES, BUT AS YET HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO DROP A SINGLE BOMB ON THE RAPIDLY EXPANDING AMERICAN-HELD AREA OF THE ISLAND, 325 MILES SOUTH OF JAPAN.

CANADA'S FIGHTING FORCES IN THE PACIFIC WAR WILL BE NUMERICALLY "VERY MUCH LESS" THAN THOSE EMPLOYED IN EUROPE, KING TOLD PARLIAMENT LATE YESTERDAY. HE SAID THE DOMINION'S EFFORTS AFTER THE DEFEAT OF GERMANY WOULD "TO A CONSIDERABLE EXTENT" BE TURNED TO PRODUCING FOOD-STUFFS AND WAR MATERIALS AND TO WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION, RELIEF AND

WILL SERVE WITH THE UNITED STATES AND THE NAVY AND AIR FORCES WITH BRITAIN, THE PRIME MINISTER ANNOUNCED. CANADA'S PRESENT OVERSEAS FORCES--INCLUDING ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCE--TOTAL ABOUT 750,000 MEN.

AFTER THE EUROPEAN WAR IS ENDED ALL CANADIAN SOLDIERS, SAILORS AND AIRMEN WILL HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY OF COMING HOME. THEN CANADA WILL FORM HER PACIFIC FORCES ONLY FROM MEN ELECTING TO FIGHT AGAINST JAPAN, KING SAID, REGROUPING THEM AND GIVING THEM SPECIALIZED TRAINING.

CANADA MEANWHILE WILL BE "APPROPRIATELY REPRESENTED" IN THE ALLIED FORCES OCCUPYING GERMANY, KING ANNOUNCED.

THE PRIME MINISTER'S ANNOUNCEMENT CANNOT FAIL TO HAVE A STRONG APPEAL IN FRENCH-SPEAKING CANADA, COMPRISING NEARLY ONE-THIRD OF THE COUNTRY AND BITTERLY OPPOSED TO CONSCRIPTION FOR FIGHTING OVERSEAS.

KING'S LIBERAL PARTY TRADITIONALLY HAS DRAWN POWERFUL SUPPORT FROM FRENCH CANADA, BUT LOST MUCH GROUND IN THE CONSCRIPTION CRISIS OF LAST FALL. THE PRIME MINISTER'S SUPPORTERS HOPE THIS WILL NOW BE REGAINED.

A9

THE DOMINION FOUGHT THE FIRST FIVE YEARS OF THE EUROPEAN WAR ON THE VOLUNTARY SYSTEM, TAKING INTO THE ARMED SERVICES NEARLY A MILLION RECRUITS BY THIS METHOD. THEN LAST NOVEMBER--AS IN THE CLOSING DAYS OF THE LAST WAR--THE GOVERNMENT WAS COMPELLED TO DRAFT MEN FOR OVERSEAS DUTY, CONSCRIPTING 16,000 TO FILL DEPLETED INFANTRY RANKS ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

CANADA'S PRESENT ARMED FORCES OVERSEAS ARE ALL VOLUNTEERS EXCEPT THE RELATIVE HANDFUL ORDERED DRAFTED LAST FALL.

KING'S ANNOUNCEMENT REGARDING THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN, MADE ON THE EVE OF CAMPAIGNING FOR A GENERAL ELECTION TO BE HELD PROBABLY IN LATE JUNE OR JULY, POSED THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVTIVE OPPOSITION WITH THE PROBLEM OF WHETHER TO HEW TO ITS FORMER LINE CALLING FOR ALL-OUT CONSCRIPTION OR TO FIGHT THE GOVERNMENT WITH EMPHASIS ON OTHER ISSUES.

CANADA GENERALLY, WHICH HAS BEEN AT WAR MORE THAN TWO YEARS LONGER THAN THE UNITED STATES, IS LESS INTERESTED IN FIGHTING JAPAN THAN GERMANY, AND THE OPPOSITION PARTY PROBABLY WOULD NOT FIND SUCH ENTHUSIASM FOR CONSCRIPTION AGAINST JAPAN AS IT FOUND FOR CONSCRIPTION TO FIGHT IN EUROPE.

CANADA'S ROLE IN THE PACIFIC WAR WAS AGREED UPON IN PRINCIPLE AT THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE, KING TOLD PARLIAMENT, WITH "THE ACTUAL FORM AND EXTENT OF THE CANADIAN FORCES TO BE ENGAGED" NOT TO BE FINALLY SETTLED UNTIL AFTER THE END OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

THEN, KING SAID, "THE APPROPRIATE CANADIAN CONTRIBUTION TO THE DEFEAT OF JAPAN WOULD BE DETERMINED WITH UNITED KINGDOM AND UNITED STATES AUTHORITIES IN THE LIGHT OF THE SITUATION THEN EXISTING."

UNDATED JAPANESE INTERPRETIVE
BY GLENN BABB
ASSOCIATED PRESS FOREIGN NEWS EDITOR

ADMIRAL BARON KANTARO SUZUKI MAY BE THE FRONT MAN FOR A JAPANESE, PEACE OFFENSIVE.

WITH MILITARY DISASTERS MOUNTING RAPIDLY TO THE CLIMAX OF THE OKINAWA INVASION, IT HAS BEEN APPARENT FOR SOME WEEKS THAT THE CABINET OF GENERAL KUNIAKI KOISO WAS DOOMED.

CLOSE STUDENTS OF JAPANESE AFFAIRS HAVE BELIEVED THAT THE NEW GOVERNMENT WOULD BE ONE OF "MODERATE" OR "LIBERAL" GUISE WHICH THE JAPANESE MIGHT HOPE COULD GAIN A HEARING FOR PEACE TENDERS TO AMERICA AND HER ALLIES.

SUZUKI, ON THE BASIS OF HIS PRE-WAR RECORD, WOULD FIT INTO THAT PICTURE. ALTHOUGH AN ACTIVE NAVAL OFFICER FOR NEARLY 40 YEARS, HE WAS NOT IDENTIFIED WITH THE CLIQUES WHICH LED JAPAN INTO A PROGRAM OF CONQUEST AND WAR AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

HE WAS, IN FACT, MARKED AS AN ENEMY BY THOSE ELEMENTS. ON FEBRUARY 26, 1936, ARMY UNITS OF THE TOKYO GARRISON, LED BY EXTREME NATIONALIST YOUNG OFFICERS, REVOLTED AND ATTACKED SEVERAL OF JAPAN'S HIGHEST LEADERS WHOM THEY CALLED "THE EMPEROR'S EVIL COUNSELLORS"--THAT IS, MEN WHO ADVISED HIROHITO AGAINST AGGRESSIVE MILITARY POLICIES.

SUZUKI, THEN RETIRED FROM ACTIVE NAVAL SERVICE, HELD THE POST OF GRAND CHAMBERLAIN, ONE OF THE OFFICIALS NEAREST THE THRONE. HE WAS ATTACKED BEFORE DAWN IN HIS TOKYO HOME BY A GROUP OF ARMY OFFICERS AND RECEIVED SWORD WOUNDS OF SUCH SEVERITY THAT FOR A TIME HIS DEATH WAS EXPECTED.

IN THE SAME SERIES OF ASSASSINATION ATTEMPTS TWO FORMER PREMIERS, ADMIRAL VISCOUNT SAITO AND KOREKIYO TAKAHASHI, WERE SLAIN AND THE INCUMBENT PREMIER, ADMIRAL OKADA, ESCAPED ONLY BECAUSE THE ASSASSINS SLEW HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW INSTEAD, MISTAKING THEIR VICTIM FOR OKADA.

SUZUKI LIVED IN SEMI-RETIREMENT FOR EIGHT YEARS AFTER THAT EPISODE. HE RETURNED TO PUBLIC OFFICE ONLY LAST AUGUST 10 WHEN HE BECAME PRESIDENT OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL ON THE DEATH OF DR.YOSHIMICHI HARA.

BEYOND ACCEPTANCE OF THIS HIGH OFFICE, USUALLY ALLOTTED TO ELDER STATESMEN OUTSIDE THE MAIN CURRENT OF POLITICS, SUZUKI HAS GIVEN NO PUBLIC INTIMATION OF SYMPATHY WITH THE ARMY EXTREMISTS WHO HAVE DOMINATED THE GOVERNMENT VIRTUALLY EVER SINCE THE 1936 ATTEMPT ON HIS LIFE.

CERTAINLY HE HAS NOT BEEN CONSIDERED OF THE SAME STRIPE AS THE RUTHLESS MILITARISTS WHO HAVE BEEN JAPAN'S LAST TWO PREMIERS, GENERAL HIDEKI TOJO, WHO TOOK OVER IN OCTOBER, 1941, AND LED THE EMPIRE INTO WAR AGAINST AMERICA, AND KOISO, WHO SUPPLANTED TOJO LAST JULY 22, AFTER THE DISASTROUS LOSS OF SAIPAN.

UNTIL THE MAKE-UP OF THE SUZUKI CABINET IS KNOWN IT MAY BE TOO EARLY TO CONCLUDE THAT THE SHIFT PRESAGES A PEACE OFFENSIVE. THERE REMAINS THE CHANCE, OF COURSE, THAT SUZUKI MAY FAIL TO FORM A GOVERN-MENT, BUT THE LIKELIHOOD IS THAT POSSIBILITIES WERE THOROUGHLY CANVASSED BEFORE HE RECEIVED THE IMPERIAL NOMINATION.

IF HIS CABINET INCLUDES SEVERAL OF HIS OWN KIND, ELDERS WHO WERE PROMINENT BEFORE THE TOJO ERA, THE EVIDENCE WOULD BE STRONG THAT A NEW PHASE IN JAPAN'S WAR EFFORT HAD BEGUN. THIS WOULD BE A PERIOD OF PEACE GESTURES AND PEACE PROPAGANDA, CALCULATED TO STRIKE AT AMERICAN DETERMINATION TO SEE THE JAPANESE WAR THROUGH DURING THE VULNERABLE PERIOD JUST AFTER THE COLLAPSE OF GERMANY.

IT IS POSSIBLE THAT INTIMATIONS OF RUSSIA'S INTENTION TO DENOUNCE HER NEUTRALITY PACT WITH JAPAN--AN ACTION WHICH COINCIDED VERY CLOSELY WITH KOISO'S RESIGNATION--HASTENED THE CRISIS.

SUZUKI, NOW 77 WAS BORN DEC. 24, 1867, IN OSAKA. HIS NAVAL CAREER, BEGUN IN 1887, LED HIM TO CHIEF COMMAND OF THE FLEET BEFORE HIS RETIREMENT.

RUSSIA'S DENUNCIATION TODAY OF HER NEUTRALITY TREATY WITH JAPAN DOES NOT NECESSARILY FREE HER IMMEDIATELY TO JOIN IN FIGHT AGAINST THE MIKADO'S EMPIRE.
IF BOTH PARTIES STICK TO THE LETTER OF THE COMPACT THEY MUST MAINTAIN NEUTRALITY TOWARD EACH OTHER UNTIL EXPIRATION OF THE TREATY'S FIVE-YEAR TERM, APRIL 25, 1946.
THE PACT, SIGNED IN MOSCOW APRIL 13, 1941, AND RATIFIED 12 DAYS LATER, BINDS THE TWO PARTIES "TO MAINTAIN PEACEFUL AND FRIENDLY RELATIONS BETWEEN THEM" AND "TO OBSERVE NEUTRALITY THROUGHOUT THE DURATION" OF ANY CONFLICT IN WHICH EITHER MIGHT BE ENGAGED WITH ANOTHER POWER.
THE CLAUSE SETTING THE TERM TO THIS OBLIGATION IS:
"ARTICLE III - THE PRESENT PACT COMES INTO FORCE FROM THE DAY OF ITS RATIFICATION BY BOTH CONTRACTING PARTIES AND REMAINS VALID FOR FIVE YEARS. IN CASE NEITHER OF THE CONTRACTING PARTIES DENOUNCES THE PACT ONE YEAR BEFORE EXPIRATION OF THE TERM IT WILL BE CONSIDERED AUTOMATICALLY PROLONGED FOR THE NEXT FIVE YEARS."
WHAT RUSSIA HAS DONE IS TO FORESTALL ANY OBLIGATION TO BE BOUND BY THE PACT BEYOND APRIL, 1946, TO GIVE NOTICE THAT SHE RECOVERS FULL FREEDOM OF ACTION AS REGARDS JAPAN FROM THAT TIME.
HOWEVER, THE EFFECT OF DENUNCIATION MUST BE TO WEAKEN THE FORCE OF THE OBLIGATION OF NEUTRALITY ON BOTH SIDES. IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN WHETHER BOTH CAN KEEP THE LETTER OF THE PACT DURING THE TENSE PERIOD USHERED IN BY MOSCOW'S ACTION.

TANKS, INFANTRY CRACK WESER LINE IN 40 MILE SPURT

Drive Within 18 Miles of Hannover, Threaten to Seal Off Holland.

YANKS REACH EISLEBEN

Allied Forces Sweep Toward North Sea, Approach Bremen Port.

BERLINER

PARIS, Saturday, April 7.—(AP) A relentless tide of Allied tanks and troops—sometimes sweeping ahead 40 to 60 miles—broke the Weser river line 18 miles from Hannover yesterday, all but sealed off Holland and her greatest cities, and engulfed Hamm and Wuerzburg.

A wholly unconfirmed German broadcast said U. S. Third army forces, coursing far in the van of the western advance, had suddenly spurted 40 miles east into NIGHT Luther's birthplace of Eisleben, in Saxony 90 miles southwest of Berlin, striking with airborne tanks.

The Weser river line—only the Elbe now stands between the Allies and Berlin—was ripped to shreds by multiple British Second and U. S. Ninth army crossings as the U. S. First army jumped into the swelling attack with a 22-mile push to the Weser 164 miles west of Berlin.

British Reach Diepholz

One of the British Second army's flying columns, some of which traveled 60 miles in 24 hours since breaking out on to the north German plain through the mountain passes, turned up abruptly in Diepholz, less than 35 miles south of the big German river port of Bremen.

Hamm, Germany's biggest railway center, fell with astonishing swiftness to the U. S. Ninth army, which with the powerful First army, began a broad-scale attack on 125,000 or more Germans trapped in the Ruhr.

Wuerzburg, 55 miles northwest of Nuernberg—where the Nazis in their heyday held their party rallies—was captured by the U. S. Seventh army which had one column within 39 miles of that Nazi shrine and had hurdled a bend in the river Main in the southeastward push. Wuerzburg had a normal population of 108,000.

The Canadian First army kept up the dazzling pace set by the U. S. First and Ninth and British Second armies, sending one steel-freighted column north to within 35 miles of the North sea and broke into the center of moat-girt stronghold of Zutphen, barring the last 20 miles to the Zuider Zee, in twin strokes designed to trap the enemy in Holland.

The British Second and U. S. Ninth armies deepened their bridgeheads over the Weser river to five miles but had not yet begun the assault on Hannover. (The British radio said without any other confirmation that the Allies were less than two miles from Hannover).

The U. S. First army in joining the assault fought through the Hessian gap, historic military gateway to inner Germany, in its drive to the Weser.

Drive to Cut Off Holland

The powerful offensive by this northern quartette of armies was swiftly weaving a pattern of destruction, hemming in or outflanking the big ports of Bremen and Emden, and cutting off escape of two German armies from Holland's rocket coast except by sea.

Germany's DNB agency declared without Allied confirmation that even greater peril was rising in the south, that the Third army had struck into the Saxon city of Eisleben with air-borne tanks, 90 miles southwest of Berlin and 132 miles from a union with the Russians in the east.

Field dispatches, reporting the Third army only 50 miles from the railway city of Plauen, whose seizure would cut Germany in half at the waist, placed the nearest armored columns 40 miles from Eisleben, just where they were the day before.

Against this background of Nazi broadcasts—which might be an attempt to learn where the much-feared Third army would strike next—were the confirmed reports that the Weser line had been shattered by combined British and American forces. The enemy now must stand on the Elbe, 50 miles from Berlin.

With the Second and Fifth armored and the 30th Infantry divisions already across the Weser Thursday, the Ninth army made several new crossings during the day with fresh infantry forces. These vanguards were at least five miles beyond the stream and probably 18 miles or less from Hannover.

The British Second army's 11th Armored and Sixth Airborne divisions farther north likewise drove five miles east of the Weser and were 25 miles or less from Hannover.

Mushrooming out over the north German plain, British armored columns also roared due north to within 35 miles of Bremen, big North sea port which was being outflanked by the river crossings.

Canadians Seize Coevorden

Farther west the Canadian First army took off on a 25-mile gallop that overran Coevorden, a Dutch communications center only 12 miles from the last German rail escape route from Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague and Utrecht.

Another parallel column raced 15 miles to the northeast into Meppen, 48 miles due south of Emden, and sent forces on nine miles within 35 miles of the North Sea.

The U. S. Ninth and First armies turned to the clean-up of the big Ruhr pocket with redoubled fury. The First army went over to the attack on a 70-mile front and the Ninth marched unopposed into Hamm, the Ruhr's giant railway center, indicating a German withdrawal.

On the southern end of the front, the U. S. Seventh army hammered closer to Nuernberg and still battled in Heilbronn, 25 miles north of Stuttgart, while the French First army cut in deeper behind the Black Forest on the route to that city.

As Allied armies completed counting 28,822 more prisoners into their cages, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, 12th army group commander, watched the American flag rise over German soil at Ehrenbreitstein across the Rhine from Coblenz, and declared:

"This time, we shall leave the German people with no illusions about who won the war—no legends about who lost the war.... until the German pride in conquest is mangled beneath our tanks, we shall not find peace."

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's U. S. Ninth army, first to break across the Weser river, was nosing through the foothills south of Hannover.

The Second Armored division was farthest east of the river, but the Fifth Armored division farther north likewise was enlarging its bridgehead.

Street fighting still raged in the Pied Piper city of Hamelin, between the crossings sites. The new crossings of the Weser were made in the morning by infantry units near captured Minden.

The drive from the north against the Ruhr pocket picked up momentum as the 83rd infantry division "walked unopposed" into the railroad yards of Hamm, where it had been held up only Thursday by the bitterest kind of resistance.

Farther west the Ninth Army was three miles from the Ruhr city of Dortmund.

Refreshed by five days of rest, Lieutenant General Courtney H. Hodges' powerful U. S. First Army once more surged eastward, joining the U. S. Ninth and the British Second Army in the assault on the Weser River line, and reaching it at Muenden, 45 miles southeast of the Ninth Army crossings.

Armored spearheads raced 22 miles east of Paderborn—where the First Army had outflanked the Ruhr—to near Bruchhausen, 164 miles west of Berlin.

INFANTRY SMASHES AHEAD

Farther south infantry and tanks smashed eight miles through Elite SS troops and bazooka-firing civilians to within half a mile of the river north of Muenden.

Fast Airborne Tanks Landed, Too, Germans Report

APR 7 1945 LONG

Paris, April 6 (AP)—The famous Hell on Wheels (2d) Armored Division fought 5 miles past the Weser River today, possibly to within 18 miles of Hannover, while the British Desert Rats of the 7th Tank Division closed to within 25 miles of that Prussian metropolis.

A wholly unconfirmed broadcast by the official German news agency, DNB, said other American troops had been reinforced in "the area of Eisleben," 90 miles from Berlin. This was 40 miles beyond last reported positions of the 3d Army at Schlotheim, 130 miles from the capital. There was no confirmation at supreme headquarters of the operation, which the Germans suggested was by airborne forces.

"Tanks Landed From Air"

"Light tanks have been landed from the air," the enemy agency said.

The tanks were said to be fanning out toward Arnstadt, Hamelin and Muehlhausen, 55 to 100 miles behind Eisleben.

The Germans, in their broadcast about the fast American airborne tanks operating in the Eisleben area, asserted:

"The main American thrusts are directed toward the east. They are aiming at capturing the road system farther east. The United States high command firmly believes that this can be accomplished by massed tank attacks. They have landed airborne tanks in this area lately."

Some Tanks Headed West

Eisleben is 11 miles west of Halle and 50 east of Muehlhausen. It is 37 miles northwest of Leipzig, 100 miles southeast of Hamelin, and 55 miles north-northeast of Arnstadt. The Germans said some tanks were fanning out west in the direction of Koenigssee. The enemy news agency quoted "well-informed Berlin circles."

The United States 9th Army fought through the streets of storied Hamelin, on the Weser, and walked at leisure through the vast rail yards of the Ruhr terminal city of Hamm, where resistance collapsed suddenly.

1st Goes 32 Miles

The American 1st Army launched a powerful new drive which carried a total distance of 32 miles eastward beyond the Ruhr pocket and smashed through the Hessian Gap—historic military gateway to the east which Napoleon once trod—to the upper reaches of the Weser River 10 miles northeast of Kassel.

The British on the north German plains posed an increasing threat to the great naval base and shipbuilding center of Bremen, less than 35 miles away. The Desert Rats, menacing both Bremen and Hannover, raced 54 miles in 24 hours past the Duemmer Lake to within 9 miles of the Weser in the general area between the cities.

The British radio said today that the Allies were "three kilometers"—less than two miles—from Hannover. The FCC recorded the broadcast in New York.

Canadians Go 25 Miles

The Canadian 1st Army, wheeling 25 miles northward in yet another breakthrough, moved within 12 miles of the last German land escape route from Holland—the Zwolle-Groeningen railroad—virtually trapping enemy troops remaining in that unhappy land.

The 2d Armored Division of the 9th Army was probing the foothills past the Weser for the shortest route to Berlin, 150 miles away. Half a dozen more bridgeheads had been thrown across the Weser as the Germans retreated toward the Elbe, last river barrier to Berlin.

28,822 Nazis Surrender

A minimum of 28,822 Germans surrendered yesterday.

Opposition to the 83d Division folded so swiftly in Hamm that the 9th Army suspected a Nazi trick. In Hamelin, where Browning wrote of the Pied Piper's great rat-extermination job, the 30th Division was having to fight for every inch of ground against heavy mortar and rifle fire.

The 1st Army was locked in battle on the banks of the upper Weser at Muenden. It had moved rapidly over land tilled by descendants of the mercenary Hessian troops who fought in the American Revolution. Half a dozen villages surrendered by telephone.

Threat To Hannover

The 9th Army thrust across the Weser south of Hamelin threatened to flank Hannover from the south.

One 3d Army column, from the 11th Armored Division, advanced to a point 23 miles southeast of Gotha and 58 northwest of the Czechoslovak border. At that position it was within 32 miles of Saxony and 50 of the big rail center of Plauen, the capture of which would cut Germany in two.

Hammelburg Reached

A team of the 3d Infantry and 14th Armored divisions of the 7th Army gained 9 miles in south Germany reaching Hammelburg, 16 miles northwest of the ballbearing center of Schweinfurt, where the United States 8th Air Force suffered its first heavy casualties of Flying Fortresses.

A drizzle sopped the north Holland flatlands, but the Canadian 4th Armored Division in a fresh breakthrough with the 12th Manitoba Dragoons raced up the diked road network to the outskirts of Coervorden and reached the point closest the final Zwolle-Groningen escape route.

The Canadians who mopped up a good section of the old buzzbomb coast of France had brought the battered London area near the end of its long trial by V-2 rockets. The Germans have fired a few or none in the last few days, but are believed to have a tail-end stock of rockets on hand.

The rested tank and infantry divisions of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's 1st Army drove both east and west. Columns striking eastward from Paderborn reached Bruchhausen, 4 miles west of the upper Weser and 164 miles from Berlin.

Driving Into Ruhr Trap

First Army troops which moved in the opposite direction drove into the Ruhr trap on a 70-mile front, seeking elimination of perhaps 150,000 Germans sealed off in the industrial basin for annihilation.

The 9th Army, like the 1st, was driving into the Ruhr trap as well as thrusting columns eastward into the heartland of the Reich. Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's troops fought within 3 miles of Dortmund in the Ruhr and also beat across the Hannovarian plain over a Weser crossing south of Hamelin.

The 1st Army advanced 9 miles west into the Ruhr trap beyond Winterberg, where the 21 trapped enemy divisions were offering their most violent resistance.

Patton's Drive

Farther south, other routed enemy troops were beating a retreat into Czechoslovakia before Patton's 3d Army.

Patton's troops, extended three fourths across Germany to within 70 miles of Leipzig, concentrated on consolidating gains and strengthening supply lines, mopping up such by-passed strongholds as Meiningen, reported defended by 8,000 Nazi tank and Hungarian troops.

Captured Cities Listed

Prized cities fell, including Bielefeld, historic old Minden on the Weser, venerable Muehlhausen on the approaches to Berlin and Leipzig, and the Dutch linen center of Almelo.

Also taken were Herford; Detmold, Bad Oeynhausen and Neheim.

The 7th Army cut the Nuernberg-Wuerzburg railroad and won all but a corner of Wuerzburg.

Street fighting also progressed in such places as Eisenach, Sutphen, Soest, Hamm, Heilbronn, Lingen, Luenen and Doesburg.

Canadians In Arnhem

Canadian patrols crossed the Neder Rhine into the Dutch city of Arnhem, where Allied hopes for an early victory were dashed last fall.

The British, reaching to within 48 miles of the North Sea, menaced Hamburg, second largest city, from positions 83 miles away. The 9th Army was within 55 miles of the central German industrial center of Brunswick.

The 30th (Old Hickory) Division fought into Hamelin, where legend says the rats were drowned in the Weser by the Pied Piper 700 years ago.

Hodges's 1st Army cracked forward both east and west after a five-day rest during which supplies were brought up to fuel the new onslaught.

22 Miles Gained In Day

The attack eastward opened southeast of Paderborn yesterday and spun 22 miles before halting overnight. The advance was resumed this morning against light resistance.

Two other columns advancing in parallel drives were delayed some by road blocks, but gained speed after overcoming the obstacles. One reached Willegassen, 7 miles northeast of Bonnenberg.

The tanks which pushed to Bruchhausen reached the Nethe River, tributary of the Weser.

Another 1st Army division pushed 7 miles south and captured Hofgeismar, 10 miles east of Warburg. Other 1st Army infantry on the right advanced to Muenden, 9 miles northeast of captured Kassel, after beating off two tanks and 150 attacking Nazi foot troops.

In powerful smashes along the extended front facing the east side of the Ruhr pocket, the 1st Army met fierce resistance at some points, particularly at Darwinkhausen, 9 miles west of Winterberg. The Nazis have been massing in this area for a possible attempt to break through. First Army troops pulled back slightly overnight before an intense rain of mortar and small arms fire, but renewed their attack at dawn.

Siedlinghausen Taken

Long-marching 9th Infantry Division troops captured Siedlinghausen, 5 miles northwest of Winterberg, and advanced 5 miles to Lutzel, 9 miles northeast of Siegen.

Because of the concentrated strength of the Nazis massed in the Ruhr trap, Hodges expects it to take several days to destroy or capture the foe. Some units were giving up after brief skirmishes, but others fought toward final defeat with all the dash of the elite Wehrmacht formations at their floodtide of victory.

Bridgeheads Widened

The British 11th Armored and 6th Airborne divisions fought across the Weser north of Minden, less than 30 miles from Hannover. They were on the 9th Army's left flank. The British had at least three crossings and the Americans as many.

A dispatch from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said the bridgeheads were widened and that more rapid gains were made along the whole British and Canadian front overnight.

Canal Crossed

Fighting continued at Ibbenburen and Drierwalde, where the Dortmund-Ems Canal was crossed.

From airports soon to be in British hands, American and British tactical fighter bombers will be able if needed to fly pin-point missions in front of Russian siege lines 30 odd miles from Berlin, Correspondent Robert Wilson reported.

The Canadians met heavy opposition along the 20 intervening miles between them and the Zuider Zee. They established a bridgehead across the Ems at Lingen. Their advance carried to within 52 miles of Emden, North Sea port.

Gen. Henry Crerar's divisions bypassed Uelsen and burst into the clear, reaching Coevorden beyond Almelo. Neuenhause and Emlicheim were occupied; Daarlerveen and Wierden were reached.

BRADLEY DEPICTS CRUSHING VICTORY

Says Germans Will Know This Time Who Won as Flag Is Raised at Ehrenbreitstein

YARBOROUGH

EHRENBREITSTEIN, Germany, April 6 (AP)—In the presence of a rare assembly of high-ranking American generals, Gen. Omar N. Bradley formally raised the Stars and Stripes today over the frowning fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, across the Rhine from Coblenz, and told the Germans that there would be no doubt about who won this war.

"This time we shall leave the German people with no illusions about who won the war—and no legends about who lost the war. They will know that the brutal Nazi creed they adopted has led them ingloriously to total defeat," said the commander of the Twelfth Army Group.

Ehrenbreitstein was the only place east of the Rhine where the United States flag was flown in World War I and the same flag—fourteen by twenty feet—was sent here from Washington for this ceremony exactly twenty-eight years after the United States entered World War I in 1917.

Among those present besides General Bradley were Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges of the First Army, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. of the Third Army, Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson of the Ninth Army and Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow of the Fifteenth Army.

Soldiers formed a square in the courtyard in the center of the fort as a special honor guard of the Sixty-ninth Infantry Division, which captured Ehrenbreitstein ten days ago, hauled the flag to the top of the staff, where it fluttered in a stiff breeze.

The Twenty-eighth Infantry Division band, some of its members using instruments captured from the Germans, played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

General Bradley, in his speech, said that "although forced into a war they did not want, the Allies have by their united efforts now assured the conquest of Germany. * * * Once more as a symbol not only of American, but of all Allied might, this very same flag that was drawn down in 1923 has been raised here today. * * *

"The war is not over—but victory is assured. After the defeat of Germany the struggle with Japan will continue to the same inevitable ending. * * * While victory is in view let us crush the German Armies—confront the German people with the enormity of their crimes. Until German pride in conquest is mangled beneath our tanks we shall not find peace."

GERMAN FORTRESS FALLS TO ALLIES

NEAR

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, April 6—(AP) The stubborn German strongpoint of Ibbenbueren fell today to a flamethrower attack and tonight Scots of this 52nd lowland division had driven a wedge through some of the most fanatical resistance on this front.

The bridgehead over the Dortmund-Ems canal now is firmly established despite an enemy counter-attack late yesterday which for awhile cut off two companies at Dreiernalde, northwest of Ibbenbueren.

The trapped Scots fought furiously and reinforcements rushed up from the Rhine restored the lines, laying the way for today's new advance northward.

Opposition is coming from three battalions of replacement troops of the skilled Gross Deutschland outfit, who had been shifted since January from the Russian front.

There also are units of the 15th Panzer Grenadier division, and they are making the most of the rain-soaked, marshy country.

The Gross Deutschland units are strung all through the general area down to the area of Ibbenbueren, where British troops also were battling picked troops from officers and non-commissioned officers' training schools.

The reason for the stubborn resistance in this area is not entirely clear. One purpose undoubtedly is to prevent use of the important air bases at Rheine, northwest of Ibbenbueren. The enemy also may be trying to delay the fall of such important U-boat bases as Bremen and Wilhelmshaven and hold on to robot bomb launching sites in Holland.

Americans Fighting Through Hessian Gap Call Up Burgomasters and Win Towns.

By HAL BOYLE.

Province of Hesse, Germany, April 6 (A. P.).—American soldiers, fighting through the Hessian Gap—historic military gateway to the east once trod by Napoleon—smashed forward ten miles today over land still tilled by descendants of the mercenary troops who fought on American soil during the War for Independence. Half a dozen villages have been captured by telephone.

"We just phoned the burgomaster and told him we were coming through and were ready to accept his surrender," said the colonel. The burgomasters knew the villages would be destroyed if German troops made a fight, so they gave up to us. We are picking up 300 to 400 prisoners a day in these villages and fifty to seventy-five former soldiers who had put on civilian clothing are surrendering each day."

Villages Taken By Phone.

Among the villages taken by telephone were Niedermeister, Ehrsten, Meimbressen and Weimer. The American forces were locked this afternoon with last-ditch defenders of Muenden, ten miles northeast of Kassel, on the Weser.

After the first few miles of easy progress, First Army infantrymen ran into stiffening resistance. Entering the narrow, ten-mile-long Hessian gap—it is only 200 feet wide in some places, and bordered by steep hills and woods—the vanguards ran into strong German positions. The Nazis threw high velocity fire at them from self-propelled guns and German infantry fought from scattered concrete pillboxes and hurriedly dug trenches.

Frightened 15-year-old German boys and civilians impressed into the Volkssturm only a few days before were tossed into the enemy line alongside Nazi veterans.

Teen-Age Prisoners.

"The first twelve prisoners taken had not reached the age of 16," said a colonel from Meridian, Miss. "They had been fighting only two days and had been picked by German officers from among town boys and made to fight. They had no formal military training."

All the boys appeared thoroughly frightened and gun-shy.

"We also have run into a number of older Volkssturmers," said the colonel, "but they fight only a few minutes and throw away their guns at the first chance."

Half of Regiment Gone.

The chief resistance in the Hessian gap area was furnished by a German tank-replacement regiment and remnants of a German infantry unit. The infantry unit was estimated to have lost 50 per cent of its strength.

"We have been meeting mostly Royal Tiger tanks," said the colonel, who pointed out that the Paderborn-Kassel area had been the chief training center for Adolf Hitler's armor. Even while doughboys were cleaning out the southern edge of Kassel two days ago, Tiger tanks were rolling off the assembly lines in a factory in the northern part of the city.

The German Army, however, has not enough troops in the area for prolonged defense.

AMERICANS CATCH NAZI GOLDBRICKS

With the Seventh Army in Germany, April 6 (A. P.).—Medical officers of the 100th Infantry Division said today that in making a routine check of a German military hospital near Heilbronn, they found a German colonel, two majors and a captain posing as patients, though they were neither injured nor ill. Brig.-Gen. Paul Steinbach, found in a hospital at Kleinfinderfeld by a group from the Eighth Infantry Regiment, Fourth Division, had an old leg injury as an excuse, but it was learned that he entered the hospital only on March 23, after a heavy bombing.

Prospecting for a forward press camp for the Sixth Army Group, Lieut.-Col. Frank Pelegrin of Washington, D. C., and Lieut. Art Milton, formerly with the New York Daily Mirror, entered a little hotel in a Tauber River town, and saw Green uniforms disappearing into another room. Pistols ready, they walked in, to be greeted by two husky Germans with "Heil Hitler."

They were members of the German Army police who had been hiding out in the hotel for the past week with American armor and infantry all around. Lieut. Milton marched them to the nearest intelligence officers and went back to make sure that no other Germans were hanging around in the hotel before the correspondents moved in.

CANADIANS CAPTURE ROBOT LAUNCHING SITE

WITH THE CANADIANS NEAR HOLTEN, April 6—(AP) The Canadian infantry captured a V-weapon launching site in northeast Holland today.

Civilians termed the projectiles "boomerang bombs" because so many did damage to the Nazi effort and personnel.

The site, located on the estate of Baron Van Welderen Rengers, on the outskirts of Laren, was the same type as that used in France to hurl robot bombs against England—a long concrete ramp and compressed air propelling tracks.

Civilians said there were many mobile V-weapon sites to the northeast of Laren and at least one V-two area to the north.

Baron Rengers, who is burgomaster of Laren, asserted that at least 30 per cent of the bombs launched fell within a mile of the ramp and that another 40 per cent fell within 10 kilometers.

But what infuriated the Germans most was to see the flying bombs turn back on them and explode. This happened many times—so often in fact that civilians chuckled gleefully among themselves and called them "boomerang bombs."

Bernhard's Mother Found by Yanks

With the United States Ninth Army, April 6 (A. P.).—When men of the Eighty-third Infantry Division took Driberg, they found Princess Armgard Zur Lippe Biesterfeld, mother of Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, living in the palace of Count Oeynhausen Sierstorpff. The doughboys hung the usual "off limits" sign over the front door.

"It seemed kind of funny hanging that off limits sign up there. But she's a German civilian just like the rest of them," said Lieut. Hamlin Welling, former Indianapolis Times photographer, who found the princess.

"The princess seemed in good health and very cordial to us," Welling said. "When we left she asked for an American cigarette."

ARMY MEDIC GETS MEDAL OF HONOR

APR 7 1945

With the Third Army in Germany, April 6 A. P.).—Private Harold Garman, 27 years old, of Albion, Ill., a medical litter bearer of the Fifth Infantry Division, has received the Medal of Honor for swimming the 150-yard-wide Seine River at Montereau, France, under machine-gun fire and pulling back three wounded soldiers in an assault boat, Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., pinned the medal on the 142-pound private, who performed the feat last August 25 while dressed in heavy shoes and clothing.

Garman passed it off, saying, "the current was slow and steady, just like the little Wabash," where he had learned to swim.

WOULD SURRENDER TOWN TO YANKS

With the United States Ninth Army, April 6 (A. P.).—An Army physician and his driver rounded a corner in Bielefeld looking for a place to set up a first aid station, and came face to face with six Germans manning a roadblock with machine pistols.

"Are you Russians, British or Americans?" a German lieutenant demanded.

He was told the Americans were taking over the town.

The Nazi officer replied: That is good."

3000 Nazi Slaves Freed From St. Die

MANNHEIM, Germany, April 6 (A. P.).—More than 3000 men of St. Die, France, brought here in a Gestapo roundup last November, are preparing to return home.

They said they had been put to work in war plants and fortifications after a foodless journey of three days to Mannheim. The men were driven from their quarters a week ago by the Gestapo and hid in the countryside, waiting for the Americans to clean up the area.

Yanks Overtake 'Aachen-in-Exile'

WITH THE SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION, April 6 (A. P.).—U. S. tanks have overrun their first Nazi "government-in-exile"—the city officials of Aachen, first large German city to fall to the Americans.

For six months 50 former municipal administration workers had been trying to carry on business as usual, pending the time when they expected the Nazi government to return to Aachen. They had moved more than 125 miles eastward, carting with them the municipal records.

LADY DUFF COOPER DIPS FRENCH FLAG

With the French First Army, April 6 (A. P.).—Lady Diana Duff Cooper, wife of the British Ambassador to France, last night symbolically dipped the flag of the 101st French Engineers in the Rhine from a pontoon bridge they had built near Speyer.

The midnight ceremony was applauded by Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, Lady Diana's host on an inspection tour of French-occupied German territory, including largely ruined Karlsruhe.

TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, in Germany, April 6 (AP)—The Allies now have nine more bridges across the Rhine than the Germans ever had. The exact number isn't being disclosed, but it includes all types, down to pontoon bridges of the smallest size.

RUSSIANS SEIZE 2 VIENNA SUBURBS IN SWIFT ADVANCE

Soviet Forces Clear South Banks of Danube in 10-Mile Gain.

BATTLE IN STREETS

Reds Gain in Slovakia, East Prussia; Mop Up on Vistula Delta.

LONDON, Saturday, April 7. — (AP) Russian shock troops captured four suburbs of Vienna on the city line yesterday, cleared the south bank of the Danube east of the city in a 10-mile advance and reached the Morava river barrier protecting Vienna's northeastern approaches on a 37-mile front.

Intensifying the blazing battle of tanks and infantrymen raging on a 98-mile siege arc around the old capital, the Russians reached or approached the southern and southeastern limits of the city on a five-mile front and battered through suburbs to within four miles of St Stephen's church in mid-city.

Street Fighting Rages

Just before midnight last night, the Vienna radio reported that violent street fighting had broken out in the city proper and that Russian tommygunners had penetrated the railroad defense line along the municipal boundary. The roar of guns was heard in the background and the broadcast asserted that Vienna had been under shell-fire "for several hours."

At the same time, Red army forces battered out new gains along a 350-mile front in southeastern Europe and were mopping up enemy remnants on the Vistula delta east of Danzig. Along the active front, 16,340 enemy troops were taken prisoner.

In Czechoslovakia, Soviet forces swept to a point 38 miles southeast of the big industrial city of Bruenn (Brno), while in Yugoslavia, Soviet cavalrymen slashed through enemy lines within 41 miles northeast of the Croat capital of Zagreb and 104 miles from the Italian border.

The free Yugoslav radio also announced that units of the Yugoslav army of national liberation had captured Sarajevo, Bosnian capital which was the scene of the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria which touched off the First World War.

Moscow's communiques revealed that a mass of Russian armor from two armies was converging on the southeastern approaches to Vienna.

Seize Aircraft Plant

A swift drive from Bruck in the Bratislava gap carried Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army into the twin industrial towns of Fischamend-Markt and Fischamend-Dorf, 12 and 13 miles southeast of the heart of Vienna. Simultaneously, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army captured the big aircraft assembly and testing center of Schwechat, on the city line six miles from the center of Vienna.

Tolbukhin's shock battalions surging forward under a hail of German mortar fire leveled from within the smoke-shrouded city, also captured Alt-Kettenhof, adjoining Schwechat, and on the southern border of the city won Rothneusiedl and Hennersdorf, one and a half miles to the south.

They were within a mile of the Nazi-controlled Vienna radio transmitter which asserted that Nazi units had halted a Soviet breakthrough west of the city through the Vienna woods. Moscow gave no report on these forces which had driven within 13 miles of the Danube in an encircling maneuver.

While Soviet veterans of Stalingrad and Budapest reportedly firmly entrenched themselves in southern Vienna, frontline reports said hundreds of Red air force Stormoviks and medium bombers droned overhead. Boring in close they blasted the Aspern airfield in northeastern Vienna—the one big airport left to the Germans in Vienna's vicinity—and machine-gunned the enemy's escape routes.

The biggest Russian guns, however, have not yet been turned on the city, and Moscow dispatches said it was unlikely the Russians would shell the beautiful capital until it had been completely surrounded and the Germans had refused a surrender ultimatum.

Russians Close In

Meanwhile, a second Soviet army closed in from the east and northeast. Cossacks and tankmen of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army were reported to have spanned the swift Morava river 20 miles east of the city and burst into the Marchfeld plain northeast of the capital in a drive to complete Vienna's encirclement.

The principal wedge driven into Vienna, dispatches said, apparently was into Wienerberg where the Russians were little more than a mile from the great gas and electric power plants in simmering district.

As the Russians pressed forward toward the isolation of the city, the German high command revealed that Soviet forces had smashed within 22 miles east southeast of Graz, second city of Austria, 90 miles to the southwest in the heart of the Austrian Alps.

The Germans claimed that Tolbukhin's troops had reached Feldbach and Fehring, 22 and 27 miles east-southeast of Graz, in a 17-mile advance along the Raba river valley from the Austrian frontier. The enemy communique claimed that the Germans had counter-attacked, recapturing Feldbach and Fehring.

The Moscow radio reported popular risings throughout Austria and the broadcast said the Gestapo was searching houses in Vienna after reports that an anti-Nazi organization was preparing to aid the Russians in the liberation of the Austrian capital.

Meanwhile, German broadcasts again reflected Nazi fear of an all-out offensive on the central sector of the Eastern front opposite Berlin, aimed at driving west to link with Anglo-American forces, reported by Berlin to be only 132 miles to the west.

Unter-Laa, 4½ miles southeast of famed St. Stephan's Church in the center of the city, were captured in the face of violent German artillery fire from the capital's parks.

The Russians also battled into the outskirts of the industrial suburb of Schwechat, site of a big aircraft plant, captured Laxenburg and thrust a 2-to-3 mile wide wedge through the famed Vienna woods. The old imperial Austrian castle is located in Laxenburg, 6 miles south of Vienna.

Gain On River's Both Sides

Southeast, east and northeast of Vienna, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army surged forward in gains of 7 miles along both banks of the Danube.

His troops took Hainburg, opposite the confluence of the Danube and Drava rivers. Malinovsky's units on the north bank pushed within 3 miles of the meeting point of the two rivers by taking Lamac, 4 miles northwest of captured Bratislava.

Slovakian Bulge Flattened

Elsewhere along the Eastern front, Soviet troops partially flattened a German bulge that had extended deep into eastern Slovakia, captured industrial Zywiec in southwestern Poland and seized Dolnja-Lendava, 56 miles north-northeast of the Croatian puppet capital of Zagreb in northern Yugoslavia.

Far to the north, other Russian forces hurled enemy remnants back into Danzig Bay in a cleanup of coastal territory north of the captured port of Gdynia.

General Antonov Promoted

Gen. Alexei Antonov is the new chief of staff of the Red Army, succeeding Marshal Alexander Vasilevsky, who was assigned to command the 3d White Russian Army after Gen. Ivan Cherniakovsky was killed in battle, the Moscow radio casually disclosed today.

The radio made no special announcement of the new appointment, but listed Antonov, "the Red Army's chief of staff," among prominent persons greeting Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia in Moscow.

Antonov formerly was deputy chief of staff. He attended the Big Three Conference at Yalta.

Reds Strive To Close Big Pincers On Vienna

London, April 6 (AP)—Two Russian armies sought to close a giant pincers around Vienna today as tank-led Soviet storm units, knifing through a Nazi defense belt at the southern city limits, drove within 4½ miles of the center of the Austrian capital.

Along an 83-mile siege arc, the Russians were within 46 miles of completely encircling Vienna. One wing seized positions 13 miles south of the Danube River town of Tullin, 10 miles northwest of Vienna. Capture of Tullin would sever all Vienna's westward communications along the south bank of the Danube and also the main Vienna-Prague railroad.

SOVIET TROOPS BATTLE NAZIS INSIDE VIENNA

Germans Are Making Stiff Fight to Halt Reds' Advancing Tanks.

CITY FACES ENCIRCLEMENT

Russian Forces Intrenched in Southern Section of Capital—Flames Sweep Buildings.

Moscow, April 6 (A. P.).—The Germans were fighting for every house in Vienna today, shooting from windows and rooftops from well-placed, street-corner barricades, but the Russians were entrenched in the southern district of the Austrian capital.

Soviet forces were driving toward the western and eastern sectors of the city threatening to surround Vienna with a ring of tanks, from which no German army has broken out in this war. Time and again from the battle of Stalingrad to the encirclement of Breslau and Budapest Russian armies have been succeeding with this maneuver.

The going was not easy for Soviet storm units—many of them veterans of Stalingrad and Budapest—for the Nazis were laying down a tremendous mortar fire.

A deep black canopy of smoke hung over Vienna. Numerous buildings in the southern and southeastern sectors of the city still blazed.

PLANES HAMMER LEIPZIG RAIL HUB

Allied Bombers Blast Targets in Van of Armored Spearheads.

LONDON, April 6—(AP) More than 1,250 U. S. Eighth air force planes attacked rail traffic choke points today at Leipzig and nearby Halle and Gera as hundreds of other Allied craft likewise smashed at targets ahead of onrushing American armored spearheads in southern Germany.

At the same time it was disclosed that at least 21 warships and freighters, including the 6,000-ton cruiser Koeln and 11 submarines, were sunk in last month's massive port-busting raids on Bremen, Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg.

Blast Leipzig Area

Today's attack on the three main Leipzig area railroad yards, the most important communications centers between the Americans near Erfurt and the Red army on the Neisse river, was made through clouds by 650 Flying Fortresses and Liberators and more than 600 fighters with no air opposition and little flak.

"A big concentration of military traffic was moving south in the area just south of Leipzig," observed Lt. Col. Jack Hayes, Jr., San Diego, Calif., a Mustang pilot.

The Leipzig yards, together with those of Halle 20 miles to the northwest and Gera 35 miles southwest, are key hubs for the movement of German troops and equipment through southern Germany for what some military men believe may be a desparate last ditch stand around Adolf Hitler's Bavarian Alpine hide-out at Berchtesgaden.

Tabulation of U. S. plane losses was reported not yet completed.

West of the Leipzig area American Ninth air force fighter bombers, limited by bad weather to some 200 sorties, pounded points immediately in front of the advancing U. S. columns, hitting road and rail traffic near Nordhausen and a freightyard there and tearing up an airdrome three miles west of Erfurt. Havoc light bombers made 110 sorties and blasted rail yards at Gottingen on the north flank of the spearhead. One ME-109 was shot down in a dogfight and two ME-111s were destroyed on the ground. No American craft are missing.

Verona Rail Yards Hit

Meanwhile, Italian-based heavy bombers of the Fifteenth Air force hammered the Verona rail yards and the Verona-Parona rail bridge and other communications targets in northern Italy below the Brenner pass.

Marauders dropped 5,000,000 copies of "Front Post," a German language newspaper prepared for enemy troops, on cities and towns within the Ruhr pocket.

An official announcement said reconnaissance photos taken in a survey of three German North Sea ports attacks last month showed the cruiser Koeln pierced by two direct hits and apparently resting on the bottom of the shallow harbor at Wilhelmshaven, where a minesweeper and other shipping also were sunk. The Koeln was built in 1928 as a "pocket" ship of the lightest available materials and high grade steel.

Wilhelmshaven was attacked by the Eighth Air force March 3, along with Bremen where, the survey showed, seven submarines ranging from 250 to 1,200 tons were sunk. Four other U-boats were sunk at Hamburg, attacked by the Eighth Air force on March 30 and by the RAF the next day. Heavy widespread damage was inflicted on submarine building yards and naval repair facilities in the three ports, and many additional ships were believed damaged.

A report on results of the Eighth's raids on Kiel April 3 and 4 was expected later when a survey is completed.

LEIPZIG DEPOT YANK TARGET

Traffic Center of Halle Is Also Hammered.

London, April 6 (A. P.).—A force of approximately 650 American heavy bombers escorted by more than 600 fighters today bombed railway yards at Halle and Leipzig, two main traffic centers on the link-up routes for the American and Russian armies. An Eighth Air Force announcement disclosing the assaults said that the main railway station at Leipzig, one oft he largest in Germany, was one of the prime objectives.

Other targets in Germany—not immediately identified in Allied announcements—also were attacked by Flying Fortresses and Liberators in their fourth straight daylight assault on the Reich. The German radio indicated these targets were in the Magdeburg, Dessau and Chemnitz areas.

There were no major raids on Germany last night, bad weather keeping even the R. A. F.'s Mosquitos from paying their nightly visit to Berlin. Yesterday, however, more than 2,000 Allied planes hammered the Reich during daylight hours.

Fighter bombers had another big day shooting up Nazi planes on the ground, destroying at least eighty-four and damaging fifty more. Eighteen enemy aircraft were shot down in combat. More than half the German planes wrecked on a dozen different airfields were jet propelled.

British pilots of the Second Tactical Air Force reported Allied ground forces moving so fast that bomblines given them before they took off often were out of date when they reached the target area.

Tempest pilots found a big concentration of German motor transport and twenty tanks waiting to be entrained west of Rotenburg. They strafed the area five times, wrecking many vehicles and then radioed for fighter bombers to come in and complete destruction of the tanks.

21 NAZI SHIPS SUNK IN 3 PORT ATTACKS

London, April 6 (A. P.).—At least twenty-one German warships and merchant vessels, including a cruiser and eight submarines, were sunk and many others were damaged in the recent Anglo-American air attacks on Bremen, Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven, Strategic Air Force headquarters announced here today. The light cruiser Koeln was listed as sunk in shallow Wilhelmshaven harbor.

Seven submarines, including one of 1,200 tons, were sunk at Bremen, and one 740-ton U-boat was sunk in the raids on Hamburg, the communique announced. Several other unidentified large warships were believed to have been damaged seriously.

Reconnaissance photographs showed widespread damage to submarine building yards and naval repair facilities at the three North Sea ports. Among the other U-boats were two of the 740-ton class, one of 500 tons and three 250-tonners.

21 Nazi Vessels Sunk, More Hit

London, April 6 (AP)—At least 21 German warships and merchant vessels, including a cruiser and eight submarines, were sunk and many others were damaged in the recent RAF and American air attacks on Bremen, Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven, United States Strategic Air Force headquarters announced today.

The light cruiser Koeln was listed as sunk in the shallow Wilhelmshaven harbor. Seven submarines, including one of 1,200 tons, were sunk at Bremen. One 740-ton U-boat was sunk in the raids on Hamburg, the communiqué announced.

The raids were carried out by fleets of planes numbering as many as 1,400 heavy bombers.

Other Warships Hit

Several other unidentified large warships were believed to have been damaged seriously.

Reconnaissance photos showed widespread damage to submarine building yards and naval repair facilities at the three North Sea ports. All three were attacked March 30 by Fortresses and Liberators, and Hamburg was blasted again in a follow-up raid by RAF Lancasters the next day.

NEW GOVERNMENT NAMED BY BENES

LONDON, Saturday, April 7—(AP) The Moscow radio said today President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia had named a new government headed by Premier Zdenek Firlinger, former Czechoslovak ambassador to Russia.

Benes returned to Czechoslovakia from Moscow Tuesday.

The broadcast, quoting a Tass agency dispatch from Kosice, Czechoslovakia, said Jan Sramek, who had been premier of the government-in-exile, was retained in the new cabinet as deputy premier.

The choice of Firlinger as premier was interpreted in London as indicating that the new cabinet was designed along lines friendly to Russia.

Also included in the new cabinet, the broadcast said, were Joseph David, Clement Gotwald, Vilem Siroki and Jan Ursini.

In the new government Jan Masaryk, son of Thomas Masaryk, founder of the Czechoslovak republic, was replaced as foreign minister by Vyacheslav Nosek. Masaryk was retained in the new cabinet, however, as minister of internal affairs.

Nazis Gearing Wehrmacht for Guerrilla War

Swiss Hear Plan Is to Split Army Into Small Units Under Command of S. S.

LONDON, April 6 (AP)—The Germans were reported today to be splitting up the Wehrmacht into practically autonomous army groups under S. S. (Elite Guard) control for last-ditch resistance and guerrilla warfare. The scheme is called "decentralized resistance," according to Swiss reports, which said it was adopted at a recent emergency military conference at Adolf Hitler's headquarters.

These reports followed General Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement that guerrilla warfare could be expected in Germany because of recent western-front experiences that "even when formations as small as divisions are disrupted, their fragments continue to fight until surrounded."

The Wehrmacht reshuffling was reported as the official German radio announced that full equality had been established between the Germany Army and the S. S. by a joint order of Heinrich Himmler.

"The essence of the reorganization," said a Geneva report broadcast by Moscow, "is the subdivision of existing army groups and a corresponding increase in the number of higher field headquarters with 'operational independence' empowered to deal with 'sudden critical situations' which demand broad initiative from commanders.

"Such individual powers of initiative are necessary especially when circumstances make it impossible to establish contact with higher military leadership when units are cut off.

"It is noteorthy also that the posts of commanders of the newly created army groups are given to generals of the S. S., while the professional army officers are attached to the mas advisers. It is also significant that the command of higher field headquarters has increased the number of Himmler agents charged with the organization of underground resistance on German territory occupied by Allied troops."

NAZI CLAIM GEN. ROSE KILLED BY WEREWOLVES

LONDON, April 6 — (AP) The Nazi Werewolves, clutching at propaganda straws to boost their new organization, declared today they had killed Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, commander of the U. S. Third armored division, in Paderborn.

The broadcast version of Rose's death said he was strolling along Paderborn's streets and: "Suddenly some Werewolves confronted him and five bullets struck him down forever. We swear no Jew should ever set foot in Germany."

Dispatches from the First Army front Tuesday said Rose was killed March 30 near Paderborn by a German tankman when the general started to surrender his arms upon being captured. His aide and other officers, who escaped, gave eyewitness accounts of the shooting.

DANES, NORWEGIANS TOLD FREEDOM NEAR

LONDON, April 6—(AP) Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Danes and Norwegians on the fifth anniversary of the German invasion of their countries today that their "hour of liberation is near" and praised their long struggle against Nazi occupation.

"Today Denmark's greatest hour is close at hand," Eden said in a message for publication in the weekly "Frit Denmark." "We are hastening to the relief of your beleaguered garrison, soon our two forces will join hands," he said.

In a similar message for publication in "Norsk Tidend," Eden told Norwegians that they must reckon still with dark hours "before your country is finally liberated." He added: "But we can say with certainty that the end of Norway's suffering is in sight."

Eden described the underground warfare in both countries as a "valuable contribution to the Allied cause" and said sabotage had had "remarkable results."

Red Army Names New Chief of Staff

LONDON, April 6 (A. P.).—General Alexei Antonov is the new Chief of Staff of the Red Army, succeeding Marshal Alexander Vasilevsky, who was assigned to command the Third White Russian Army after General Ivan Chernyakovsky was killed in battle, the Moscow radio disclosed today.

The radio made no special announcement of the new appointment, but listed General Antonov, "The Red Army's Chief of Staff," among prominent persons greeting Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz, of Jugoslavia, in Moscow. General Antonov formerly was deputy Chief of Staff. He attended the Big Three conference at Yalta.

Poles Say Reds Abduct 15 Aides

LONDON, April 6 (A. P.).—The Polish Telegraph Agency, connected with the London Polish Government, said today that 15 political leaders in Poland had disappeared after presenting themselves to a Soviet official on a Russian invitation to fly to London.

Those who disappeared included one who had been designated by the London Government as a deputy premier, the agency said. It added that the deputy could not be identified.

The last commander of the now-disbanded Polish Home Army and three Polish cabinet ministers were among the group, the agency said.

British Mining Asks Relief

London, April 6 (A. P.).—London mining interests protested in a note to the Chancellor of the Exchequer today that Britain's taxation system is slowly stifling British enterprise in overseas mining while the United States, Canada and other countries continue to foster the mining business.

The mining interests, represented by a committee headed by Lord Geddes, said the present income tax bill before the House of Commons contains proposals which should remedy some handicaps under which British business has been suffering in relation to foreign competitors.

The committee pointed out, however, that no allowance was made by the bill for depletion of mineral deposits as granted under United States and Canadian tax laws, nor for double taxation which now is in effect.

British Flag Over Rhine Twice

LONDON, April 6 (AP).—The first British flag carried across the Rhine in 1918 was also the first one across the river in 1945, it was disclosed tonight as the historic relic was returned to its shrine in the Royal Tank Regiment officers mess.

At the end of the last war the tank corps was accorded the honor of being the first British unit to cross the Hohenzollern Bridge at Cologne. On the night of last March 23 the corps flag was brought out and given to the Royal Tank Regiment's 4th Battalion, which undertook to repeat the feat in the Wesel crossing—and succeeded.

Nazis Term 'Ike's' Prediction A Tribute

London, April 6 (AP)—The German news agency DNB said today General Eisenhower's prediction that "there will never be a clear-cut military surrender" of the German Army is a great tribute to the Reich's war effort.

"General Eisenhower's statement by itself shows that our unshakable steadfastness has been worthwhile, that it has been the decisive factor in this war," said DNB, commenting upon a letter from the Allied commander to President Roosevelt which was made public yesterday.

"It manifests absolute justification of our uncompromising fight to the very last," the German broadcast added.

SS IS MADE EQUAL TO GERMAN ARMY

London, April 6 (A. P.).—Full equality between the German army and the SS forces has been established in a joint order issued by Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of the High Command, and Heinrich Himmler of the Gestapo, the German radio announced today. The broadcast said that the order was designed "to develop close and friendly relations, both on and off duty."

GERMANS TO GET TRUTH AFTER WAR

LONDON, April 6—(AP) A high Allied official who declines to be quoted by name said today that the Allied information policy inside Germany after victory would be based upon giving the German people "truth—not propaganda."

The German public will get the truth "even though they probably won't recognize it for a long period," this spokesman said.

In line with this policy, it was learned from similar sources that the German press, radio and screen would be supervised stringently—even to the actual operation—for an indefinite period.

The official, who is closely connected with psychological warfare work, suggested that Allied propaganda had failed to crack the hard crust of German arrogance and militarism superimposed by the Nazi regime. Lack of results was attributed largely to the willingness of the German people to follow a leader and, more lately, to the Gestapo's threats of swift punishment for attention to Allied propaganda.

Thus, it is anticipated here that the general information policy in Germany will be directed from control commission headquarters in Berlin. Newspapers are expected to be under the jurisdiction of representatives of the Allies in their respective zones of occupation.

The first non-Nazi postwar newspapers will be confined largely, it is believed, to printing official regulation and instructions, with an abbreviated news report supplied, in the American zone, by the Office of War Information.

A similar policy was expected for German radio stations.

Berlin Feels The Pinch

London, April 6 (AP)—The gas supply to all Berlin homes is to be cut off and electricity is to be drastically reduced because of a shortage of coal, a German radio announcement said today.

"Beginning next Monday, transport will be refused to all Berliners who have to travel less than two miles," the announcement added. "They will have to go by foot."

LONDON, April 6 (AP).—The German high command announced today a new thirty-two-letter decoration—"Tiefflliegerverniichtungsabzeichen," meaning "Decoration for the Bringing Down of Low-Flying Aircraft."

The award obviously was designed to encourage German troops to shoot back at Allied aircraft.

PARIS, April 6 (A. P.).—Two American soldiers were sentenced today by a military court to life imprisonment in connection with the theft of Army gasoline for which a French middleman was sentenced a month ago by a French civil court to serve four years in prison.

The soldiers' names were not immediately disclosed.

The case involved the theft of truckloads of gasoline valued at 5,000,000 francs ($100,000) which was sold through a French middleman, Charles LaFaite. Among the reported buyers were three Paris newspapers whose directors were summoned for trial but never appeared.

5th Army Gains In New Attack

HEINZERLING

ROME, April 6 (A. P.).—The American Fifth Army, outflanking 3000-foot Mt. Folgorito, has gained almost two miles since yesterday in a surprise attack southeast of Massa on heights dominating the Ligurian coastal highway in western Italy, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The smoldering Italian front flared into activity at both ends.

In the west the Americans attacking from Azzano, two miles inland, passed Mt. Folgorito, which overlooks the coastal shelf. An accompanying push from Strettoia, two miles from the sea, made initial gains also, but collided later with a German counter-thrust from Porta, a mile beyond.

SUPPORTED BY PLANES

No official indication was given as to whether the small-scale American attack might develop into a major action such as General Mark W. Clark, 15th Army Group commander, recently said could be expected "sooner or later."

The action, 19 miles at its nearest point from the naval base city of La Spezia and about four miles from the coastal road hub of Massa, received full-scale support of the U. S. 12th Air Force. Thunderbolts attacked enemy positions and bivouacs while Mitchells repeatedly bombed coastal batteries nearer La Spezia yesterday.

toia were driven back by a Nazi counterattack.

Mountain Flanked

[The German radio reported the launching of the American attack last night, saying it was preceded by an artillery barrage lasting several hours.]

Initial official accounts failed to indicate whether the American attack was on a major scale. The surprise advance enabled the Americans to capture some important terrain features.

From Strettoia, 2½ miles inland and 19 miles southeast of La Spezia, one American stab made limited initial gains until it ran into the German counterthrust near Porta, a mile beyond Strettoia. From Azzana, 6 miles inland in the same neighborhood, a 3,000-yard gain northwestward outflanked 3,000-foot Monte Folgorito.

Strongpoints Strafed

United States 12th Air Force medium and fighter-bombers gave full-scale support. Mitchell bombers made six attacks during the day on coastal gun positions near La Spezia, while Thunderbolts bombed enemy strongpoints and bivouac areas.

On the opposite end of the Italian front, British 8th Army troops swept enemy remnants off the narrow spit of land separating the Valli di Comacchio lagoon from the Adriatic as far north as the Valetta Canal adjacent to Porto Garibaldi, the seaport for Ferrara.

Islands Captured

In night landings, 8th Army units also seized four small islands near the center of the lagoon. Official reports said buildings on these dots of land—Casone Fossa di Porto, Casone Caldirolo, Casone de Fosse and Casone Agosta—had been valuable observation points for the Nazis.

Communications Lashed

Meanwhile, United States heavy bombers pounded Northern Italy's communications for the second consecutive day today, bombing the Verona railyards, crowded with military traffic, and the Verona-Parona rail bridge and other objectives.

The bridge is on the lower end of the Brenner Pass route.

Thunderbolts of the 12th Air Force shot up enemy troop areas and dumps near La Spezia, ahead of the 5th Army's forces attacking along the Ligurian coast.

5th Army Opens Drive In Italy, Gains 2 Miles

Rome, April 6 (AP)—American 5th Army troops, attacking through the mountains near the Italian west coast, have gained almost 2 miles in a swift advance north of Azzana, Allied headquarters announced today.

The announcement said the drive began yesterday and heavy fighting was continuing as the Germans met the onslaught with strong mortar fire.

Vatican City, April 6 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today received the United States communication delegation now in Italy after visiting Britain and France.

The group included Ray C. Wakefield, a member of the Communications Commission; Harvey B. Otterman, assistant telecommunications chief for the State Department; Col. Orla St. Clair, of the Army Signal Corps, and Marion Woodward, chief of the FCC's international division.

CRISIS FOR GREEK REGIME

Letter Laid to Premier Told of Bid for German Mediation

KING

ATHENS, April 6 (AP)—Premier Nicholas Plastiras' Government faced imminent collapse tonight following publication by the Rightist press of a letter that General Plastiras was said to have written in 1941 complaining that the Greek Government had refused German mediation to halt the Greek-Italian war.

The letter, printed in Ellinicon Aima, said:

"I have done everything possible so that Greece might take advantage of the opportunity [of German intervention], but the hostile attitude toward me both on the part of the legation and the regime in general has made my personal action impossible." The letter was addressed to the Greek Minister at Vichy.

General Plastiras did not deny having written the letter but told news men "a section of the press and a number of politicians have organized against me."

Other sections of the press denounced publication of the letter as low politics, but said that it would end the Premier's usefulness.

Nazi Money at New Low.

Madrid, April 6 (A. P.).—The value of German money has slumped into new low ground. Giving evidence to the current Nazi military situation, the reichsmark here is being peddled for 50 centimos each, compared with three pesetas and 50 centimos each last January. There were no takers whatsoever. In United States money this would mean the reichsmark now is offered in Madrid at slightly less than 5 cents, compared with approximately 23 cents in January and about 40 cents when Germany marched off to war.

Legally the reichsmark is quoted at 4.24 by the Spanish Institute Exchange Control but nobody in Spain, including the institute, is giving four pesetas or even 50 centimos for the mark despite the quotation.

3 NAZI PILOTS FLEE TO LISBON

MADRID, April 6—(AP) Three of Goering's Luftwaffe pilots landed at the Lisbon, Portugal, airport today after a flight from Germany in the latest model Junkers 183 Bi-motor fighter bomber and told Portuguese authorities "we have fled because we are tired of fighting."

A German air attache and other legation officials were hastily summoned to the airport sought to interview the pilots, two of whom were dressed in Luftwaffe uniforms, but the trio refused to have anything to do with them.

(Another German plane, also on a flight from Germany, was damaged when it landed at Barcelona, Spain, in a heavy fog. Those aboard were not injured and their names were not disclosed).

The bomber roared low over the airport at 2 p. m., to the amazement of Portuguese officials, and landed on the edge of the field just before both motors ran out of gasoline.

The three Germans jumped from the plane, smiling, and nonchalantly lit English cigarettes. They asked Portuguese police officials, who declined to release their names, to intern them and this was done.

The two pilots in uniform changed to civilian clothes which they had brought with them, but before doffing the uniforms they tore off the Luftwaffe insignia and stamped upon it.

Nazis Admit Collapse Is Near

Himmler's Newspaper Sees End Is Matter of Only Days or Weeks.

Stockholm, April 6 (A. P.).—The Schwarze Korps, Nazi organ run by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, said frankly today that Germany is "only days or perhaps weeks from absolute collapse."

A Berlin dispatch to Dagens Nyheter quoting one of the gloomiest predictions yet made by a top-ranking Nazi publication said that the Schwarze Korps declared editorially that the German people are "in the remarkable situation of being forced to acknowledge it may be possible to defeat us militarily."

Berlin's residents went without bread last week and only workers engaged in heavy labor were given a ration of eight and a half ounces of meat, a neutral informant who arrived in Sweden by plane from the Reich capital said today. He added that Germans in Berlin are existing on potatoes and carrots at present.

MALMOE, Sweden, April 6 (AP)—The German cruiser Leipzig has arrived at Aarhus in Jutland in a crippled condition, a reliable source reported today. The warship was said to have been struck by a torpedo in the Baltic. The report said 1,000 wounded German soldiers were aboard.

SWEDEN RESUMES CZECHO-SLOVAK TIE

Stockholm, April 6 (A. P.).—The Swedish Government announced today it was formally resuming diplomatic relations with President Eduard Benes's Czecho-Slovak Government, which recently returned to its homeland from London. At the same time Sweden announced she would terminate relations with the German puppet state of Slovakia.

There have been no relations between Czecho-Slovakia and Sweden since the German occupation of Czecho-Slovakia. The former Czecho-Slovak Minister, Dr. Vladimir Kucera, remained in Stockholm and now will resume his diplomatic post, the Swedish Foreign Office said.

Sweden proposes to petition the Benes government for permission to send a representative to Czecho-Slovakia.

MOSCOW SILENT ON SCRAPPING PACT

GILMORE

MOSCOW, April 6.—(AP) The Soviet press printed without comment today the official announcement which denounced the neutrality pact with Japan and accused that nation of actively aiding Germany against Russia. Thus the Japanese were left guessing about Russian intentions.

Technically the pact has another year to run, but Russia's flat statement that Japan had helped Axis Germany—Russia's mortal enemy—suggested that the entire spirit of the agreement had disappeared at the same time it was repudiated.

(Tokyo broadcasts quoted Japanese officials as contending that the pact still has a year to run, until April 25, 1946, but also as saying that Japan "is fully prepared to meet any abrupt change in existing Japanese-Soviet relations.")

There was no official comment here although some may be forthcoming soon. The Soviet action still is the biggest topic in the capital. The thousands who gobbled up today's papers, expecting to find an expansion of Soviet views regarding Japan, saw instead about 35 per cent of the paper devoted to a decree dealing with stepping-up horse, goat, sheep, hog, chicken and rabbit production on state collective farms.

Many persons in foreign diplomatic quarters here were asking one another how far the Soviet Union was prepared to go in this reversed diplomatic situation between Japan and Russia.

The Soviet note appeared to have closed any road whereby the Japanese could propose another pact because it was plain that inasmuch as Japan was accused of helping the German military machine against Russia that was a prime reason for denunciation of the 1941 agreement.

Russia, as she has pointed out to the Japanese before, was well aware that Tokyo took advantage of Hitler's invasion of the Soviet Union, and, as the Russians have reminded the Japanese, many of the Tokyo military leaders have felt Hitler would win.

Tokyo Left Up In Air By Red Pact Action

GILMORE

Moscow, April 6 (AP)—Soviet Russia's renunciation of her five-year non-aggression pact with Japan unquestionably has dealt a terrific blow to the sagging Japanese, who were left today in the position of not knowing precisely what the Russian action means.

The Japanese know this, however: that the Russians seldom, if ever, act without good reason, and they know the Russians believe they have a good reason for ending the pact.

The Russians made this clear in renouncing the treaty, declaring bluntly that Japan not only is an ally of the Soviet Union's greatest enemy—Adolf Hitler—but is helping Germany in her war against the U.S.S.R.

No Official Comment

All Soviet newspapers printed the official announcement of the denunciation, but none speculated on the future course of events.

Technically, the pact has another year to run, but when one government tells another that such a pact has lost its meaning and that to continue it is meaningless, one would hesitate to say that the spirit of the pact had existed.

There was a lack of official comment, although some may be forthcoming.

"Conditions" Changed

This much, however, stands out: Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov's note told the Japanese flatly that they were an ally of Hitlerite Germany—the most hated thing on earth to the Russians.

In the opinion of some foreign observers here, the Russians only signed the pact with Japan in an effort to avoid a two-front war, being fearful of Hitler's intentions from the beginning.

However, as the note which Molotov handed Japanese Ambassador Sato yesterday emphasized, conditions have "changed radically" since the treaty was signed.

Japanese Stunned

News of the Soviet action, given to the Russian people by the Moscow radio four hours after Sato was summoned to Molotov's office, created an electric effect throughout the Russian capital.

It was plain the Russian bombshell had caused the greatest excitement in Japanese diplomatic quarters in Moscow since Japan went to war.

Japanese newspaper men were summoned hurriedly from their quarters in the Hotel Metropole to hear the news, and for several hours there was considerable traffic between the Japanese Embassy and the Soviet post office.

Whether the Japanese had expected the Russian action at this time was a matter of speculation. Foreign diplomats in Moscow recalled that Sato was rumored to be making plans to return to Tokyo early in March to report to his Government, and speculated he might have delayed in order to be on hand in the event of a development such as that which has just taken place.

How Pact Door Closed

The Soviet note appeared not to have left the Japanese any road open for proposing another pact.

Russia, as she has pointed out to the Japanese before, is well aware that Tokyo took full advantage of Hitler's invasion of the Soviet Union, and as the Russians have reminded the Japanese, many of her (Japan's) military leaders felt Hitler would win.

Many persons in foreign diplomatic quarters today asked one another how far the Soviet Union was prepared to go in this reversed diplomatic picture.

Not Played Up In Press

The thousands who studied today's Moscow papers expecting to find there the first official reaction to the renunciation of the pact saw, instead, about 35 per cent of each paper devoted to a council decree dealing with the stepping-up production of horses, goats, sheep, dogs, chickens and rabbits.

The statement which was first given to the world by the Moscow radio at 7 P.M. last night was surrounded by hundreds of words of this new decree and comments on it.

HIROHITO GIVEN REPORT ON JAP FOREIGN AFFAIRS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6—(AP) The troubled state of Japan's foreign affairs was presented personally to Emperor Hirohito today, Tokyo reported after insisting Russia was "bound" to maintain neutrality for another year despite Soviet denunciation of its non-aggression pact with Nippon.

Tokyo radio said in a broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, that the Emperor received Mamoru Shigemitsu, holding over as foreign minister until newly-named Premier Kantaro Suzuki ca form his cabinet.

These were the first Nipponese reactions to the announcement by Russia yesterday denouncing the neutrality pact and declaring Japan an ally of enemy Germany.

Domei, Japanese news agency, quoted "foreign office circles" as declaring "the Japanese government intends to continue its efforts for the maintenance of neutrality with the Soviet Union."

Shigemitsu's audience with the emperor shows the seriousness with which Japan regards the situation. The Tokyo broadcast said merely that he submitted "his replies to inquiries" and then "retired from the Imperial presence."

Sadao Iguchi of the Japanese information office reflected fear the neutrality break might mean war with Russia by declaring the April, 1946, expiration date of the pact still stood. He said the Soviet action was merely notice to terminate the pact on the 1946 date.

Tokyo radio reported further that Yuan Cheng-Toa, foreign minister of Japanese occupied Manchuria, claimed the pact would run another year and that "for the present, at least" there will be no change in relations with Russia.

Turning its attention to the American invasion of Okinawa, Domei said U. S. Minesweepers were clearing the former Japanese naval anchorage in Nakagusuku bay, on the southeast coast.

Tokyo reported the posthumous promotions of Lt. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi and Rear Adm. Toshinosuke Ichimaru, killed in the Iwo Jima battle, and of Maj. Gens. Conjiro Murai and Isao Shigemi. This brought to 123 the number of admirals and to 43 the number of generals whose deaths have been announced since May, 1944.

existence of the pact, the Japanese Government intends to continue its efforts for the maintenance of neutrality with the Soviet Union."

"Under the present circumstances," the Domei dispatch said, ". . . and particularly in view of the very grave crisis with which the Japanese nation is now confronted, these quarters declared that it goes without saying that the Japanese Government is in full preparedness and readiness to cope with any and all situations that may arise in the future."

peace overtures to the Allies in the near future is not entirely discounted in London," the Mail added.

The German radio, meanwhile, expressed belief that the Russian action would bring no political or military change in so far as Japan is concerned. On the other hand, said the DNB news agency, the Soviet move brings the Russians "into the balance of power field in the Pacific and is turning the balance against the United States, which would like to be sole master in this area."

An Associated Press story from Washington by John Hightower reached Latin-American newspapers minus some portions which referred to congressional speculation that the Russian action was a forerunner to hostilities against Japan.

In London, it was said at the censorship office that no embargo on speculation had been issued for the British press. An official asserted he had no knowledge of any inten-

Russian Pact-Break Report Believed Given Hirohito

San Francisco, April 6 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito today received a personal report from Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu on "matters within the jurisdiction," presumably including Russia's denunciation of the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact, the Tokyo radio announced.

The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, came shortly after the Japanese Domei news agency quoted "Foreign Office circles" as pledging efforts for continued neutrality with the Soviet Union, despite Moscow's announcement yesterday abrogating the treaty.

"Another Year At Least"

Shigemitsu is continuing in his post pending the naming of a new Cabinet by Premier-designate Kantaro Suzuki.

Earlier, the Foreign Office formally acknowledged the Russian action and a Government spokesman said "both parties are bound to maintain the neutrality for another year at least."

The Domei broadcast reported the Foreign Office action after declaring "Relations between Japan and the Soviet Union may see a swift change."

No Comment On Text

The Foreign Office released the text of the official Soviet statement without comment, Domei said in the English-language broadcast.

Previously, Sadao Iguchi, of the Japanese Information Board, had said: "Notification by the Soviet Government will not make the pact void immediately. It will remain in force for another year."

Iguchi referred to the fact that expiration date of the pact was set for April, 1946, and being atuomatically renewed unless denounced by either party at the end of four years.

Foreign Office circles were reported by Domei as saying that "regardless of the existence or non-

London, April 6 (AP)—Russia's actio.. in denouncing her non-aggression pact with Japan gave rise to widespread speculation in the British press today concerning Moscow's intentions with respect to the Pacific war.

The Yorkshire Post said editorially that the move "leaves our Russian allies free, if they so decide, to come into the war against Japan."

"We shall be wise not to let our expectations run beyond events," the Post added, "but it is natural that our thoughts should turn at this time to the powerful assistance Soviet Russia is in a position to give her Western allies in the Far Eastern struggle.

The Daily Sketch, in a front-page story, reported that Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov had informed the Japanese Ambassador that, "failing a Japanese admission of defeat, Russia may be compelled to join her Allies to secure her eastern frontier from future aggression."

Several papers expressed belief the Russian action was discussed in advance by the Big Three. The Daily Mail's diplomatic correspondent said "usually well-informed circles" felt the development was "part of a prearranged plan which may have been discussed at one of the Big Three meetings."

Outgoing News on Russian Move Censored in America

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All nations were free yesterday to tell the world how they reacted to the Russo-Japanese situation—except the United States.

The Office of Censorship blocked transmission from this country of congressional and editorial comment on Russia's denunciation of her neutrality treaty with Japan.

Such stories were allowed to be sent freely from other countries, were received here without change and were published and broadcast widely within this country.

American censors applied the ban on outgoing news under a cautionary memorandum issued Thursday by Byron Price, director of the Office of Censorship. This memo cautioned against publication or broadcast of speculation "regarding the probable intentions of Soviet Russia toward Japan."

Censors in New York deleted parts of some stories the Associated Press had filed for use abroad in its world service. They suppressed, but later let go through, two stories. One of these dealt with the memorandum itself—which Price had issued for publication if desired. The other contained American newspapers' editorial comment on the Russo-Japanese situation.

Though these two stories were finally passed, it was made clear that the "speculative embargo" had not been lifted. This fact left the United States in the position of not being able to send abroad views which had been expressed or published in the United States although no such embargo was applied anywhere else, so far as could tion to issue such a directive. "I can't see why," he said:

Nor was there any such directive in Moscow or Chungking.

Price's memo of Thursday gave as an example of things to be guarded against:

"Published or broadcast speculation or statements regarding the probable intentions of Soviet Russia toward Japan, however erroneous they might prove to be, could possibly lead to a Japanese attack on Russia. Whether such a speculation or prediction were true or false, the military interests of the United States would be damaged and the war's sacrifice of American life might be prolonged."

Price said yesterday his office has received a considerable number of inquiries and "a few protests" against his memorandum. He said:

"The language of yesterday's note seems quite plain. It contains no request that anyone refrain from discussing the Russian developments. It does point out the dangers and asks that editors and broadcasters weigh the consequences and consult censorship. I believe most editors and broadcasters will be thankful for having their attention directed to the importance and dangers of the situation."

Price was asked whether his memorandum also tightened the rules governing censorship of news filed for export from the United States. He replied:

"We're going to be pretty careful what we permit to go out."

He said he felt that "the original memorandum must speak for itself."

Censorship Embargo Remains On Speculation About Soviet

Washington, April 6 (A. P.).—Director Byron Price said today that the Office of Censorship has received "a few protests," and "a considerable number of inquiries" about his memorandum to the press and radio relating to speculation on Russia's intentions toward Japan.

In this memorandum issued last night, Price said that the "success of voluntary censorship depends on continued vigilance" and added:

"Reports or discussion of expectations or probabilities involving future war plans may be of great value to the enemy. For example, published or broadcast speculations or statements regarding the probable intentions of Soviet Russia toward Japan, however erroneous they might prove to be, could possibly lead to a Japanese attack on Russia. Whether such a speculation or prediction were true or false, the military interests of the United States would be damaged and the wars sacrifice of American life might be prolonged.

Memorandum Brought Inquiries.

"Please weigh the consequences and consult the Office of Censorship."

Coming late in a day of momentous news relating to the Pacific war—Russia's denunciation of her non-aggression pact with Japan, the fall of the Tokyo cabinet and realignment of the American military command in the Pacific—Price's note immediately brought inquiries from editors throughout the country which indicated puzzlement over exactly what censorship preferred not to have printed or broadcast.

Questioned today, Price said he felt that "the original memorandum must speak for itself."

Then he added:

"The language of yesterday's note seems quite plain. It contains no request that any one refrain from discussing the Russian development. It does point out the dangers and asks that editors and broadcasters weigh the consequences and consult censorship. I believe most editors and broadcasters will be thankful for having their attention directed to the importance and dangers of the situation."

Comparison of Price's note with the codes by which the press and radio voluntarily subscribe to domestic wartime censorship gave rise to unofficial interpretations that:

Members of Congress, as in the past, are appropriate authorities ofr any statements they care to make.

News stories received in the United States from abroad through normal channels may be used without question.

Price's admonition to editors and broadcasters to "weigh the consequences and consult the Office of Censorship' appeared consequently aimed to prevent disclosure of the position or expectations of the United States Government toward the war in the Pacific, unless such disclosure comes officially from a quotable Government source.

Asked whether his memorandum also tightened the rules governing censorship of news filed ofr export from the United States Price replied, "We're going to be pretty careful what we permit to go out."

Naval censors in New York, operating under directives from the Office of Censorship, last night and today embargoed export of speculative references in news stories, quoting congressional opinion on the possible participation of Russia in the war against Japan. Quotations from editorial comment also were stopped from being dispatched overseas, despite the fact no similar ban applied to incoming comment or speculation from London Moscow and Chungking.

Directive Story Suppressed.

Censorship then suppressed, for export, a story about the censorship directive, which was issued yesterday for both publication and broadcast in this country. This dispatch referred to New York newspaper headlines on the censorship story and cited the requests made for clarification.

Later, naval censors in New York lifted the export embargo previously applied to two stories for the Associated Press world service, one dealing with the censorship directive itself and the other quoting American editorial comment on the Russo-Japanese situation. It was made clear, however, that the so-called "speculative embargo" had not been lifted, at least in its entirety, thereby leaving the United States in the position of not being able to export publicly expressed or published views on Russo-Japanese affairs at a time when no similar embargo applied to expressions in any other nation, Allied or enemy.

Command Move Linked To Red Pacific Step

APR 7 1945

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur had his "On to Tokyo" marching orders today, hard on the heels of Russia's denunciation of her neutrality treaty with Japan.

With the Pacific war thus portending possible new and startling developments, Allied military leaders were in agreement on the quickest way to end the fighting in Europe:

Kill or capture Hitler.

Capitol Hill, quick to speculate that the Moscow decision is a forerunner to Soviet participation in the Pacific conflict once formal Nazi resistance ends, at the same time read diplomatic implications into the Russian action.

Developments Pile Up

In brief, this was the picture in this war capital today as developments tumbled one upon another:

1. The joint chiefs of staff assigned MacArthur, together with Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, to command the final massive offensives against Japan.

2. Disclosure that Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, told the Senate Military Committee that death or capture of Hitler would contribute tremendously to a collapse of the already faltering Nazi military machine.

3. General belief among lawmakers that President Roosevelt had extracted from Premier Stalin at the Yalta meeting a promise that the neutrality treaty would be denounced and that Russia would enter the war against Japan.

4. Belief, too, that Russia's action may smooth some of the rough spots out of the path to the United Nations conference at San Francisco, April 25.

Choice For Commands

The joint staff, composed of the top uniformed men of the War and Navy departments, decided that turning the full offensive power of the United States on Japan was a job to be directed by two men. Accordingly, they announced last night that:

1. MacArthur will command all army forces in the Pacific theater.

2. Nimitz will command all naval forces.

3. Strategic direction (the broad plans for the war) will be retained by the joint chiefs of staff. The nature of a specific operation (whether essentially sea or land) will determine which man directs it.

The command assignments came in an announcement that spoke of "the large forces to be redeployed from Europe" and the "rapid advances" up through the Southwest and Central Pacific "which have brought us into close proximity with the Japanese homeland and the China coast."

One effect of the directive apparently was to remove the Navy from MacArthur's sphere of command. Nimitz now appears to have direct command of all that is afloat, including British naval units now in the Pacific.

Arnold's Air Command

Gen. H. H. Arnold retains exclusive control of his 20th Air Force, operating agency of the growing B-29 fleets. The other units of Arnold's air forces, however, are left under the field command of MacArthur.

The Moscow announcement did not make clear immediately whether the U.S.S.R. considers its treaty with Japan ended now or whether the nonaggression pact runs for another full year to its original maturity date. In any event, many in official circles believed the Russians would strike when they felt the situation most militarily propitious. That time, these circles suggested, undoubtedly would await the end of serious resistance in Germany.

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) foresaw the closing of an Allied pincers on Japan, with the possibility the Russian announcement might push the new Japanese government — relatively "moderate" compared with its predecessors—toward a peace bid that might bring a speedier end to hostilities in the Pacific than in Europe.

Two-Pronged Drive Seen

Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) talked enthusiastically about a two-pronged attack on the Japanese home islands. Russia could move from Siberia, he said, while the United States leap-frogged from the Aleutian chain.

While the military prospects attracted the greatest attention, legislators did not overlook the diplomatic side.

Sharing the belief that Mr. Roosevelt extracted a twin promise from Stalin at Yalta, Administration supporters advanced this as a probable reason why the President promised, among other things, to back a Soviet demand for three votes in the proposed world peace league assembly.

It would explain, they said, the highly conciliatory attitude this Government appears to have taken on nearly all such proposals the Russians have advanced. These include the agreement that each of the Big Five members of the proposed security council shall have a veto on the use of force against aggressors.

Anti-Administration sources continued to wonder, nevertheless, if any additional commitments might have been made at Yalta. While Secretary of State Stettinius has said all of the diplomatic agreements of Yalta now are public property, there undoubtedly were military arrangements to be disclosed only as the war progresses.

There seemed little doubt that by denouncing the Japanese treaty the Russians had scored a propaganda strike here, where official and public opinion has shown irritation at the various issues they have raised in connection with the coming United Nations conference.

If Russia is to help beat the Japanese into submission, observers believe there possibly will be more charity in this country toward her demands for establishment of a Polish Government friendly to her views. Citizens of Polish extraction will continue to be divided on the issue, but its importance to others is likely to be diminished.

Parley Problem Ironed Out

The Soviets also will be able, now that they have said to Japan that continuance of the neutrality agreement "has become impossible," to sit down with the Chinese delegates at San Francisco.

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a conference delegate, remarked that "the prospects for a successful conference at San Francisco have been enhanced and advanced by the Russian move.

The State Department said:

"The United States Government, of course, welcomes this development."

James J. Caffrey Is Nominated By Roosevelt as S. E. C. Member

Regional Administrator at New York Is Chosen for Post Resigned byO'Brien

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP).—James J. Caffrey, of New York, was nominated today by President Roosevelt to be a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Mr. Caffrey served as administrator of the New York regional office of the commission since 1938. He is forty-seven years old and a native of Boston. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1918 and from Suffolk Law School, Boston, in 1923.

He joined the S. E. C. in 1936 as an attorney in the general counsel's office and for a year was administrator of the Boston regional office. Prior to his S. E. C. connection he was with the National Recovery Administration for a brief period. He was a lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps in World War I.

Wickard Wins Control Of Surplus Farm Land

Property Board Transfer Job of Disposal From R. F. C.

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP).—Disposal of surplus farm and forest lands will be handled by the Agriculture Department instead of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Surplus Property Board announced today.

This represents a victory for Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, and leaders of several farm organiaztions. In additional, the Surplus Property Board assigned disposal of grazing and mineral lands to the Department of Interior.

Land owned by the government in connection with housing developments was assigned to the National Housing Agency, while all real property not otherwise classified went to the Federal Works Agency.

Will L. Clayton, while serving as Surplus Property Administrator, before the creation of the Surplus Property Board, had assigned to the R. F. C. the job of disposing of all real property. A number of farm leaders, with the support of Mr. Wickard, complained that this might lead to "uneconomic" farming.

The Agriculture Department contended that the land should be disposed of with a view of creating family-unit farms and that much submarginal land should not be returned to farming.

Ben Cohen Quits With Byrnes

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP).—Benjamin V. Cohen is leaving the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion along with James F. Byrnes. Mr. Cohen, one of the original Presidential "brain trusters," has been serving as O. W. M. R. counsel. He submitted his resignation last January, but Mr. Byrnes persuaded him to remain. However, when Mr. Byrnes resigned as director of the office, Mr. Cohen decided to step out also. His future plans were not disclosed.

Wild Welcome for President

MOSCOW, April 3 (Delayed) (AP).—President Benes returned to Czechoslovakia today, reaching Kosice with other members of the Government, and received a colorful welcome.

From Moscow, Dr. Benes and his party traveled by train to the railway station at Humenne, and thence through the mountainous countryside by automobile to Kosice.

The countryside was alive with early spring and an outpouring of Slovaks. Peasants all along the route halted Dr. Benes' automobile and proffered the traditional offering of bread and salt—ancient Slavic way of greeting friends and victorious armies.

At Humenne Dr. Benes was met by representatives of the Fourth Ukrainian Army and members of the Czechoslovakia Corps, which is fighting alongside the Red Army.

Bands played the Czechoslovak and Russian national anthems and flags fluttered from many broken and blasted buildings and from cottages.

In Kosice Dr. Benes went straight to a meeting at the People's Theatre, where he was greeted officially by Tomash Chvorozhek, representative of the National Council.

The returning President was accompanied to the theatre by Soviet Ambassador V. A. Zorin. Amid wild applause, Dr. Benes was presented to the gathering by another member of the National Council, Gustah Gusak.

General Svoboda, commander of the Czechoslovakia Corps, was the first speaker. He declared:

"Our President's arrival is a historic day. Our policy of firm and close friendship with the Soviet Union has brought rich results. We are glad we can greet you on liberated land and we want to continue our military alliance with the glorious Red Army, from which we can take many examples. Soon the sun of freedom will rise over all Czechoslovakia."

Benes Welcomed On Arrival At Kosice

Moscow, April 6 (AP)—President Eduard Benes returned to his homeland of Czechoslovakia Tuesday, arriving at Kosice, the temporary capital in Slovakia.

Soviet dispatches said he was greeted by an outpouring of Slovaks at Kosice when he arrived by train from Moscow, and that peasants along the route halted him and proffered bread and salt, the ancient Slavic way of greeting friends and victorious armies.

BURMA FOE YIELDS GROUND

Indians Break Up Meiktila Pocket, Seize 6 Villages

CALCUTTA, India, April 6 (AP)—British Indian armored columns broke up Japanese concentrations today in the central Burma pocket below Meiktila, occupying six villages and killing 200 Japanese.

On the west coast British troops attacking the seaport of Taungup, about a third of the way down the coast from Akyab toward Rangoon, captured hill positions dominating the town and airfield.

Along the eastern escape road from Thazi in central Burma to northern Thailand, over which the Fifteenth Japanese Division entered Burma in 1942, fighter bombers smashed bridges in the vicinity of Taungyi.

American medium bombers also sent hundreds of bombs crashing into Japanese concentrations near Loilem, still farther east, where the road forks into two branches, both of which eventually turn south to the Thai capital, Bangkok.

Other enemy concentrations were attacked east of Toungoo, on the Salween River near the border.

CHINESE TROOPS LAUNCH ATTACK

CHUNGKING, April 6 — (AP) Chinese troops in southwestern Honan province launched a major counteroffensive yesterday against Japanese troops battling toward Shensi province, northern gateway to China's war-time capital, the High command disclosed today.

An Army spokesman said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's forces wiped out an enemy battalion and encircled a number of strongpoints west of Neisiang on the Honan-Shensi highway, but lost contact with a garrison defending Nanyang, one of the primary Japanese objectives.

China's three-pronged drive, mounted against a double enemy attack, came after the Chinese annihilated more than 1,000 Japanese troops and destroyed nine enemy tanks about 31 miles from the Shensi border.

Thirty-seven miles from the border, the Chinese took the highway center of Sichwan for the second time and drove on to unite with other forces operating behind enemy lines.

The High command praised the U. S. 14th Air force for helping to slow the Japanese drive.

Meanwhile fighter planes of the 14th destroyed an enemy locomotive and damaged 71 vehicles in a sweep over Lunghai, Tatung-Puchow railroads and spur railroad from Sinsiang to Poai. The fighters also destroyed an enemy bridge over the Yellow river and a warehouse at Shihchiachwang, southwest of Peiping at a railroad junction.

The Army spokesman said Intelligence reports indicated the Japanese were preparing three separate drives in central China, one directed at China's rice bowl and two at U. S. Air bases at Chihkiang in western Hunan province and Poseh in western Kiangsi.

CHINESE LAUNCH NEW DRIVE AT JAPS

Chungking, April 6 (A. P.).—Chinese forces unleashed a large scale, three-pronged counter-offensive against Japanese troops striking toward Shensi province, guarding the northern approaches to China's capital, the High Command announced today, adding that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces pouring out of southwestern Honan encircled a number of strongholds west of Neisiang on the Honan-Shensi Highway. In fighting thirty-one miles from the Shensi border which preceded the counter-offensive more than 1,000 invaders were annihilated.

For the second time, Chinese troops occupied the highway center of Sichaan, 37 miles from the Shensi border, and drove ahead to form a junction with comrades operating behind Japanese lines.

Nanyang Fall Indicated

The army spokesman admitted contact had been lost with the garrison defending Nanyang, about 200 miles northwest of Hankow and one of the prized objectives of Japanese driving west from the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Intelligence reports, the spokesman said, indicated the Japanese were preparing for three separate drives in central China, two aimed at United States air bases at Chihkiang in western Hunan province and Poseh in western Kiangsi, and the third at China's rice bowl.

Chinese Hail Body Blows To Japan

Chungking, April 6 (AP)—The Chinese press today jubilantly hailed the downfall of Japan's Cabinet and Moscow's denunciation of the Russo-Japanese Neutrality Pact as two heavy body blows to Tokyo.

Chungking newspapers looked hopefully for Russian entrance in the Pacific war.

The editorials said nothing now stands in the way of full co-operation between the Big Four and urged Japan to realize the wisdom of early surrender.

Counteroffensive Urged

Takung Pao appealed to the Chinese to speed preparations for a counteroffensive and for a worthy contribution to the defeat of Japan, which, the newspaper predicted, would occur "earlier than popularly expected." It described as propitiable the choice of 77-year-old Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki as Premier.

The China Times declared that the Cabinet changes could not turn the tide of Japan's military reverses, and the Army paper Sao Tang Pao said it was possible Japan would continue to fight with all its strength, but at the same time seek peace terms.

Russian Arms In China Seen

Sao Tang Pao stressed the fact that Russia's Far Eastern army was at full strength and Japan could not now afford to deplete any further the Kwantung army force in Manchuria, but, on the contrary, might have to reinforce it by transfers from the China theater.

Some quarters saw the possibility of the dormant Russia-China highway being galvanized into an active supply line, with large quantities of Russian arms pouring into China after Germany's collapse. It was said that the only hindrance now is the presence of the insurgent Kazaks astride the highway in western Sinkiang province.

Bombers Blast Hong Kong, Sky Troops Seize Lucena

Liberators Set Off Huge Fires on Waterfront, Wreck Three Ships.

MANILA, Saturday, April 7—(AP) Fifty Liberators heavily bombed the Hong Kong waterfront for the third straight day Wednesday while in the Philippines, 11th Airborne paratroopers, landing in cub planes, seized Lucena, capital of southern Luzon's Tayabas province, and its two airfields.

The escorted four-engined bombers set off tremendous waterfront fires and wrecked three merchant ships in the harbor with a shower of 164 tons of bombs.

3 Jap Ships Smashed

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today the heavy bombers scored direct hits on a 10,000-ton freighter and two smaller vessels. Oil storage tanks were set ablaze and fuel fires sent smoke up 6,000 feet.

There was no interception.

Other Liberators dropped 72 tons of fragmentation bombs on Formosa's Tayohara airdrome, leaving many parked planes in flames, while Mitchell medium bombers sank or damaged three good-sized tankers and two small freighters in the Pescadores islands to the west.

Bombers patrolling the China Sea blockade destroyed a 10,000-ton freighter-transport with three direct hits east of Hong Kong and sent two smaller cargo ships to the bottom off the China coast.

Seventeen small Japanese cargo ships were sunk in waters to the south.

Northern Borneo, now only 30 miles away from MacArthur's latest invasion spot in the Sulu archipelago, was hit by bombers of all categories which set large fires in the Tarakan oil storage area.

Yanks Gain in Luzon

In the Philippine ground fighting the 11th Airborne division advanced 20 miles in small planes to seize Lucena, capital of Tayabas province, and its airfields, while the 158th regimental combat team, with guerrilla aid, charged the province of Sorsogon south of Manila.

In northern Luzon guerrillas captured Bangued, capital of Abra province, and were rapidly clearing the Japanese from the entire sector.

In the central area the 43rd division advanced 10 miles to Lumban along the east shore of Laguna De Bay to establish contact with the 14th corps in Santa Cruz on the south.

On Negros the 40th division captured the Silay airdrome and pushed patrols as far north as the Alicante airfield. Considerable Japanese war equipment was seized.

Several enemy infiltration attempts were repulsed on Cebu.

HIT HONGKONG A RECORD BLOW

M'Arthur Bombers Deliver Another Smash.

Manila, April 6 (A. P.).—Nearly fifty Philippines-based heavy bombers with fighter escort spanned the south China Sea for the second straight day to deliver the heaviest attack of the war on Hong Kong Tuesday, headquarters reported today.

The harbor and water-front area of the former British Crown colony, 700 miles northwest of Manila, absorbed 168 tons of bombs. Nine Japanese ships, including a 7,000-tonner, were sunk; a destroyer and two other merchantmen were damaged. In addition, six small freighters were sunk in the China Sea.

Hong Kong's shore installations, hard hit on the preceding day with 126 tons of explosives, received further damage. Burning oil storage tanks sent smoke columns 7,000 feet high.

Enemy fighter planes attempting to break up the formations of Liberators were driven off by Fifth Air Force fighters after a running fight. All the attacking planes returned.

Heavy neutralizing raids on Formosa continued with Liberators, Mitchells and Boston attack bombers bombing and strafing targets in the Kagi area, where many parked planes were destroyed on the ground. Low-level attacks damaged railroad installations and rolling stock while direct hits were obtained on fuel and alcohol plants along the east coast.

In the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's ground forces on southern Luzon cut the Japanese escape route to the east coast from the shores of Laguna de Bay. On Negros, Fortieth Division troops pushed to the Imbang River north of captured Silay, front line dispatches said.

The first liberty ships tying up at Cebu city docks found the concrete structures relatively undamaged, although warehouses on piers and moles suffered greatly when the Japanese razed the city.

Heavy bombers fired the great Tarakan oil storage area and pounded Miri airdrome on Borneo. Air patrols smashed sixteen craft off Celebes.

150 JAP AIRCRAFT DOWNED IN ATTACK ON RYUKYUS FLEET

Some U.S. Ships Receive Minor Damage But All Remain 'Operational'.

ADVANCE ON OKINAWA

Infantrymen Press Forward Toward Naha, Seize Kerema Islands.

GUAM, Saturday, April 7—(AP) Japanese planes belatedly attacked the American invasion fleet in the Ryukyus in force for the first time yesterday and by late afternoon an incomplete count showed 150 of the attackers shot down. There was every indication the raid was continuing.

A fleet communique today said some U. S. ships received minor damage but "all remained fully operational." An invasion armada of 1,400 ships was involved in the Okinawa island invasion last Sunday.

Yanks Make New Gains

In the Okinawa ground fighting, Marines on the north end of the American line scored advances up to 5,000 yards, still finding only "small, scattered groups of the enemy," while infantrymen pressing upon the capital city of Naha at the south fought deeper into fixed defense positions, fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz announced today.

Nimitz reported 539 Japanese were killed and 166 captured in seizing the Kerama islands off the southwest coast of Okinawa prior to the main invasion.

The count of 150 enemy planes shot down attempting to attack the U. S. invasion fleet was still "preliminary and incomplete," the communique said.

The carrier task groups were commanded by Rear Adm. Frederick C. Sherman and Rear Adm. J. J. (Jock) Clark. Some American ships received minor damage, but all remained fully operational.

The enemy air force already had lost 1,212 planes destroyed or damaged by American naval fliers since the start of the Okinawa operations March 17.

Location Not Disclosed

The comunique did not specify the location of surface ships under prolohged assault in this hottest air attack yet reported from Okinawa, but it evidently was off the Okinawa invasion beaches, for Yanks ashore were being hit also.

It was the first time since D-Day that no specific changes were reported in American ground positions at the southern end of the line. Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th corps infantrymen there still were reported under artillery fire about four miles north of Naha, where the enemy has prepared defense positions in caves, gullies and hilltops.

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine amphibious corpsmen were virtually unopposed, however, in their swift drive of 3,000 to 5,000 yards along the narrow Ishikawa isthmus in the middle of the 65-mile-long island.

The Yanks now control nearly one-fourth of the island only 325 miles south of Japan itself.

Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, commander of U. S. Carrier Task Force 58, reported to the Navy in Washington his fliers destroyed or damaged 954 enemy planes in the air or on the ground, and supporting forces accounted for 258 more.

Mitscher also said that 244 enemy ships have been destroyed since his fliers hit southern Japan March 17 and then moved into the Ryukyus for the Okinawa invasion, 325 miles south of Nippon.

Ashore on Okinawa, 10th army divisions continued their advance, meeting resistance from organized Japanese defenses on the south sector near the city of Naha, but only scattered enemy groups in the north where the Marines advanced 8,000 yards yesterday beyond Ishikawa isthmus.

Planes Attack U. S. Ships

Japanese planes made almost daylong attacks yesterday on U. S. ships supporting and supplying the American invasion forces which went ashore on the island last Sunday, said Grant MacDonald, Associated Press correspondent with the fleet.

MacDonald did not estimate the number of enemy planes which kept Yank ackack gunners busy meeting light to heavy attacks from morning to late afternoon, nor say what, if any, damage they did or how many were downed.

But the stepped-up raids indicated a major enemy effort to cripple the invasion force, with the next few days to tell the story of the Japanese air strength, MacDonald said.

Sixty-five Nipponese planes were shot down in the first five days of the invasion, an American communique reported yesterday.

Tokyo radio said American minesweepers were cleaning up Nakagusuku bay, off the Okinawa southeast coast, with the protection of a task force of about 30 warships, including 10 battleships and cruisers.

Nakagusuku bay was secured on the land side in the 7th infantry division sweep southward from Tobara. The bay, once a Japanese naval anchorage, would be useful to American supply ships which have been putting invasion stores and equipment ashore on the island's opposite shore.

SUPERFORTS HIT TOKYO, NAGOYA

Fighter Planes Take Part in Daylight Raid on Japan.

WASHINGTON, April 6—(AP) A very large force of B-29s attacked industrial targets in Tokyo and Nagoya (Saturday, Japanese time) the War department announced tonight.

Fighter planes of the 7th airforce participated in the mission, made in daylight.

Both Tokyo and Nagoya are located on the Japanese home island of Honshu.

At least 150 B-29s apparently participated in the attack, they flew from bases of Major Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's bombing command in the Marianas islands.

Headquarters of the 20th airforce said it had no additional information on the raid yet.

Japs Make Heaviest Air Raid On Okinawa Ships

Afloat off Okinawa, April 6 (AP)—Japanese planes today made their heaviest air assault on American invasion ships since soldiers and marines of the 10th Army went ashore on Okinawa April 1.

Increasing attacks started this morning and ranged from heavy to light into the late afternoon.

The tempo of the raids indicated the Japanese may be making a major effort to cripple the invasion force and the next few days may give an answer to what strength the enemy has.

Heavy American naval gunfire continued to support the advances ashore. The 24th Corps pushed roughly 500 yards southward against stiffening resistance. The troops reported finding some booby traps and expected more.

4 Miles From Naha

The 24th Corps had reached a line 4 miles north of Naha City.

Surface gunners of the mighty American fleet shot down several Japanese planes as they attempted to attack through a terrific fire barrage. The enemy pilots early this afternoon came in low over the Okinawa hills, but ran into a solid wall of fire and many were downed before doing any damage.

Battle In South Seen

Guam, Apr. 6 (AP)—Three main battle for Okinawa appeared today to be shaping up on the southern end of the island where the Japanese were putting up increasing resistance among fixed positions in caves, gullies and ridges four miles north of the capital city of Naha.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué today announcing continued American gains on all Okinawa fronts reported remarkably low United States casualties for the first four days of a campaign only 325 miles from Japan itself—175 soldiers and Marines killed, 798 wounded.

Fighting Stiffer

No figures were given for United States naval casualties. Nor were Japanese casualties listed, although they are known to be considerably higher.

On the south end of the American line Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Corps infantrymen ran into stiffer fighting as they moved ahead 3,000 yards.

Field officers said the Japanese commander evidently had pulled the bulk of his garrison—estimated at more than 60,000 troops—into the southern end of Okinawa around Naha. The capital airdrome is the largest in the entire Ryukyu chain.

In the north, however, Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d Marine Amphibious Corpsmen swept ahead 4½ miles to overrun the island's narrowest isthmus and invade tiny Yabuchi Island off the east coast.

Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley reported in a field dispatch that the Marines had advanced 8,000 yards northeast of the isthmus. He said they were capturing and, if necessary, killing Okinawans organized by the Japanese into home guardsmen and equipped with sticks, knives tied to poles and similar makeshift weapons.

Narrow Isthmus Cleared

The Marines still were meeting only scattered resistance. If the Japanese had chosen to stand on the 3-mile-wide neck of Ishikawa isthmus they could have made the Americans fight on short lines, but the Yanks drove well beyond that stretch of ground into the town of Kin through terrain growing increasingly rough and difficult.

Their advance was slowed only because of the necessity of establishing supply and communication lines behind them.

In five days the Yanks have overrun more than 100 square miles, or about one fifth of Okinawa.

Weather was stormy yesterday after four days of perfect calm. Strong swells almost halted unloading operations throughout the day, knocking some craft about, damaging several, flooding some supplies and wrecking some pontoon causeways.

The southern American line was practically straight across the island about 7,000 yards north of Naha.

ridge forming the backbone of the island.

Yanks Cut Off

Then the Japanese cut off the Yanks by heavy firing from pits and tunnels which the Americans built before the war when Caballo was a United States fort.

The pits are 30 feet square and 20 deep with a 12-foot thick concrete wall. Steel doors block tunnel entrances. Americans tried desperately for nine days to root out the Japanese. Alternately they showered the pits with grenades, mortars, dynamite charges and naval and land artillery fire. They poured burning chemical from fire bombs down the vents without apparent effect.

Oil Suggested

Technical experts desperately sought a solution. Finally an unidentified soldier suggested oil might work. The engineers picked up the idea. Before the equipment was ready yesterday Japanese charged the small American force. The Yanks killed 86 while suffering few casualties themselves.

A huge pump was rigged with 1,000 feet of semi-flexible pipe. It was run up Caballo's rocky face while infantrymen fired to keep the Japanese under cover.

The pump spewed a mixture of oil and gasoline into a pit. It gushed out through a drain in the side of the cliff. Soldiers set it afire with tracer bullets and phosphorous shells lit the oil in the pit, making a roaring inferno above and below.

Explosions In Tunnels

The heat from 2,400 gallons of flaming oil set off heavy explosions inside the tunnels. The heat treatment ended fire from that pit.

The ingenious long-range fire weapon was devised by Capt. Emory L. Williams, of Tulsa, Okla. It will be used against other enemy entrenchments on Caballo.

Dozens of Japanese were sealed up in caves by troops under Major Paul R. Lemasters, Shelbyville, Ind.

Boiling Oil Used To Get Japs In Pits On Caballo Island

Manila, April 6 (AP)—American engineers are burning Japanese from concrete pits and tunnels on rocky Caballo Island by a modern adaptation of the medieval techniqué of pouring boiling oil on the enemy from castle walls.

A small force of Brig. Gen. William C. Chase's 38th Division landed eleven days ago and quickly got a platoon atop the dominant

The platoon which was trapped atop the hill went for three days without a resupply of water or rations before a rope to establish a supply line up the island's rocky face.

BRITISH VESSELS DAMAGED BY JAPS

GUAM, Saturday, April 7.—(AP) Some major units of the British Pacific fleet, including possibly the battleships HMS King George V, were damaged slightly by a concerted attack of Japanese aircraft as the British force struck the Sakishima islands March 31 through April 2.

Five enemy aircraft made a concerted attack on the King George, a British naval observer, just returned from the battle, related today after U. S. Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in a press release that "some major units" of the British force were damaged slightly. The King George is a 35,000 ton batleship.

That particular group of planes were driven off, the British spokesman said as he related his eyewitness account. British fighters and ships' anti-aircraft gunners destroyed 22 enemy planes and damaged nine more in the three day engagement, which constituted the Japanese's first attack on the Allied force since it went into action against Sakishima, southernmost of the Ryukyu islands, two weeks ago.

The British were neutralizing airfields from which the Japanese might have sent warplanes to attack the U. S. Pacific fleet which was protecting the amphibious landinga on Okinawa.

"It was warm work while it lasted," the British observer said.

MacArthur Gets Word

MANILA, April 6 (AP).—An Associated Press dispatch to member newspapers in Manila today gave General MacArthur the first word that he had been chosen to command all ground operations against the Japanese. It had been rumored for days.

Colonel Lloyd Lehrbas, aide to the general, carried the dispatch to General MacArthur's office and emerged beaming. He reported: "The general said if The Associated Press says so it must be true."

There was no comment from Admiral Nimitz at Guam concerning his selection to head all naval forces.

Gunless Okinawa Guards Attack

By James Lindsley

U.S. Marine 3d Amphibious Corps Headquarters, Okinawa, April 6 (AP)—Ragged, untrained Okinawa home guardsmen, wielding "idiot sticks," bayonets or knives on ends of poles, have made several attacks on Marine positions, Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger reported today.

The 3d Corps' commander said his Marines captured these natives when possible, but were forced to kill some of them. There was no report of Marine casualties as a result of these ill-trained, uncoordinated assaults.

Abandoned By Officers

Geiger declared in an interview there was evidence that the Japanese organized able-bodied Okinawans into the home guard about a month ago and made some effort to train them. Now they have been abandoned by their Japanese officers and, without apparent leadership, are making their feeble attacks.

"All they are accomplishing," said Geiger, "is to get into the next world quicker, if that's what they want. They have no spirit and could do nothing with such weapons even if they had."

Advance 8,000 Yards

Geiger reported the Marine division in the north advanced 8,000 yards in the last 24 hours northeast of the Ishikawa Isthmus and was well into territory which the invasion plan hadn't called for occupation so soon.

British Damage Sakishimas

GUAM, Saturday, April 7 (AP)—British Pacific Fleet warships and planes caused "extensive damage" to ground installations in the Sakishima group of the southern Ryukyu Islands and put thirty-one Japanese planes out of action in a three-day attack March 31 to April 2, the Navy announced today.

A press release from Admiral Nimitz said "some major units" of the British Pacific fleet were damaged slightly by Japanese planes during the attacks, "but all major units remained fully operational."

The British force is cooperating with the American fleet as a self-contained group.

Lone Marine Survivor Of Two Photo Due Home

By The Associated Press.

PEARL HARBOR, April 6—Rene A. Gagnon of Manchester, N. H., is the only marine in Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal's famous Mt. Suribachi flag-raising picture to survive the battle of Iwo Island. He was homeward bound today to take part in a War Bond tour.

Young Gagnon, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Irene Gagnon in Manchester, said he would rather "face another operation than make a Bond tour," but there is an additional reason for his wanting to go home. The other reason is a girl.

There are six men in the historic photo—five marines and one Navy hospital corpsman. The Navy man later lost a leg in battle.

JAPS ADMIT LOSS OF LEADERS ON IWO

San Francisco, April 6 (A. P.).—The deaths of Lieut.-Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, commander of Japanese forces on Iwo Jima, and Rear Admiral Tohsinosuke Ichimaru, commander of Japanese naval air forces in the island sector, were announced today by the Japanese. Gen. Kuribayashi, the forty-first Japanese general reported by the Tokyo radio to have died since May, 1944, was posthumously promoted to full general, and Admiral Ichimaru, 123d admiral to die since last May, to vice-admiral.

The Federal Communications Commission recorded the broadcast, which said that Gen. Kuribayashi "died gallantly" leading his troops in a final charge, the customary Japanese obituary notice for generals dying in action.

GENERAL URGES QUICK DEFEAT OF JAPANESE

HONOLULU, April 6 — (AP) Speedy defeat of Japan, because time is on the side of the Nipponese, was urged today by Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Army commander in the Pacific ocean areas.

"Time now works for the enemy and against us," said the general in an Army day address. "The momentum of the offensive must not ease when hostilities cease in Europe.

"Both management and labor must realize that there can be no easing up when hostilities cease. That is the only patriotic attitude and the only decent one for any American."

Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, commanding the Fleet Marine force, sent an Army day message to Richardson in which he saluted Army forces in the Pacific "for a year well spent, a job well done." In Europe, he said, "they have reached the last lap of their long and arduous journey toward Berlin." He added they "have established supremacy and assured our ultimate victory in every theater of war."

BUENOS AIRES, April 6 (A. P.).—Failure of their seconds to agree on the point at issue resulted in the calling off last night of a duel between Cesar Ameghino, 73-year-old Argentine Finance Minister and Acting Foreign Minister, and Matias Rodriguez, a young army colonel.

Under the dueling code, a lack of agreement among the seconds automatically closes the incident. Rodriguez had charged Ameghino had trafficked as a lawyer on his influence as a cabinet member.

Suzuki Strives To Find Men for Japan's Cabinet

Premier-Designate May Have to Double Up Posts and Hold Over Ministers

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—Amid the most serious crisis in Japan's history, Premier-Designate Kantaro Suzuki strove today to form a Cabinet, and he was reported by the Tokyo radio to be making progress.

Selected to form Japan's third war-time government, the seventy-seven-year-old Suzuki obtained the co-operation of the army and navy, said the Japanese Domei news agency. A Tokyo report said selection of Cabinet members was under way and that it was expected that the Cabinet list would be completed by Saturday and submitted to Emperor Hirohito.

Although Suzuki is known as a moderate and out of step with his country's militarists, Japanese propagandists insisted today that the shake-up in the government at Tokyo did not presage a change in Japan's basic war policies.

Indicative of the difficulty of forming a unified government to replace the Koiso Cabinet, which resigned Wednesday, was a Tokyo statement that some ministers might hold more than one portfolio.

"Indications are that all ministerial posts will not be filled," said a broadcast beamed to Latin America, "and that in certain cases the services of the present Cabinet member will be asked."

This and other broadcasts intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission reflected the grave situation brought on by a rapid succession of military defeats and topped yesterday by Soviet Russia's denunciation of its neutrality pact with Japan.

One Tokyo broadcaster went so far as to say: "The people of Japan are in a bad state, but surely they will rise to the cause with the new Cabinet. All quarters called on Suzuki to form a "strong was Cabinet." One announcement, directed to the homeland, promised: "Persons of far-reaching abilities will be sought who can meet the exigencies of the present critical situation."

Suzuki was reported to be following the normal procedure in filling the various posts. This required conferences with the retiring war and navy ministers to obtain their recommendations as to their successors. No Cabinet can be named until their desires are made known. He also conferred with former Premiers, including General Kuniaki Koiso, to obtain their co-operation and support.

APR 7 1945

Suzuki Delays Naming New Jap Cabinet

San Francisco, April 6 (AP)—Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki failed today to name a list of ministers to the Cabinet that Emperor Hirohito called upon him to form after the fall of former Premier Kuinaki Koiso's Government yesterday.

A Domei dispatch, recorded here, said Suzuki had "succeeded in obtaining the co-operation of the army and navy" in his first day as Premier-designate and expects to take up naming of candidates for the war and navy portfolios and other ministers tomorrow.

Solicits Support

"The composition of the Cabinet is expected to be completed in the morning, and if possible, the investiture ceremony be held in the afternoon," Domei said.

Suzuki spent the afternoon calling on former premiers, soliciting their support and co-operation. Koiso was included in the group.

Meanwhile, the Japanese press and radio called on the new leader to form a "strong war Cabinet."

Domei said Suzuki conferred first with the former War and Navy ministers—Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama and Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai—to get their recommendations on their successors for Japan's third wartime Government.

Follows Custom

The Japanese Army and Navy name the War and Navy ministers, a prerequisite to the formation of each new Cabinet.

The news agency said that the fall of Koiso's government yesterday gave the military and the people an opportunity to "really unite and create a solid, strong wartime cabinet that is equal to the fierce war situation." "Real unity" was the persistent demand of critics of Koiso's Government.

"Today when the enemy is at our doorstep we earnestly hope for the creation of a strong war cabinet," Domei said. "In shouldering the destiny of our country, the new government must exert strong leadership.

Demands A "Fighting Cabinet"

"It must become a fighting cabinet and weld the spirit of the nation's 100,000,000 people into a powerful, determined unit. This is the only effective way to win victory."

Japanese propagandists insisted that the downfall of Koiso's cabinet did not mean a change in the nation's basic war policies.

"National Policy Unchanged"

However, authorities in the United States familiar with Japan have suggested that selection of Suzuki, a moderate, to head the new government may mean that Japan is prepared to put out peace feelers.

Tokyo radio said "the foundation of our nation has not been affected in the least. As was the case during the Tojo cabinet crisis (Premier General Hideki Tojo's cabinet fell last July), the national policy for the prosecution of the war remains unchanged."

A broadcast quoted the newspaper Asahi as editorializing, "the new administration must be carried out with the administrative authorities giving general co-operation to the military command, while the military command must have complete confidence in the power of the administration."

premier at the time of Pearl Harbor.

This account said Suzuki, who often had stood against Army and Navy extremists, had selected a cabinet studded with former premiers.

If the report was correct, then it was a strange mingling of political opinion in Japan, because it included moderates as well as militarists.

The lineup, none of whom was a member of the cabinet of former premier Kuniaki Koiso, included:

Price Fumitaka Konoye, premier just before Tojo took over for the surprise blow at Pearl Harbor.

Admiral Keisuke Okada, premier at the time of the bloody army revolt in 1936 in which he first was reported assassinated by the extremists, who found him too con-

Gen. Koko Hirota, former premier and foreign minister at the time the Japanese began their current war on China.

Gen. Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, long an advocate of a strong and militant Japan.

Gen Baron Waratsuhe and Marquiss Hiro, the latter former lord privy seal.

The broadcast did not say to what portfolios these men had been assigned.

The Office of War Information, recording the same DNB dispatch, said it might have been a garbled report, since there was nothing on the air waves from Tokyo in the way of substantiation.

It was possible DNB might have misinterpreted a previous Japanese announcement that the former premiers—Japanese elder statesmen—had met Thursday after Koiso resigned and recommended Suzuki form a new cabinet.

The latest direct word from Tokyo was that Suzuki was enraged Friday in selecting a cabinet and that it was believed some of the new ministers would hold two portfolios. The broadcast, beamed to Latin America, was recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

This and other broadcasts, intercepted by the FCC, reflected the grave situation brought on by a rapid succession of military defeats and topped yesterday by Soviet Russia's denunciation of its neutrality pact with Japan.

One broadcaster went so far as to say "the people of Japan are in a bad state, but surely they will rise to the cause with the new cabinet."

All quarters called on Baron Suzuki to form a "strong war cabinet." One announcement, directed to the homeland itself, promised that "persons of far-reaching abilities will be sought who can meet the exigencies of the present critical situation."

In his first day of effort to form Japan's third wartime government, the 77-year-old Suzuki obtained the cooperation of the Army and Navy, said the Japanese Domei news agency. Although he had not named any of his ministers by nightfall, a Tokyo report said selection of the men actually was under way, and it was expected the cabinet would be named by Saturday and submitted to the emperor.

Suzuki was reported as following the normal procedure in filling the various posts, which first required conferences with the retiring war and navy ministers to obtain their recommendations as to their successors. No cabinet can be named until their desires are made known. He also conferred with former premiers, including Kuniaki Koiso, to obtain their cooperation and support.

Although Suzuki is known as a moderate, out of step with his country's aggression-minded militarists, Japanese propagandists insisted the shakeup in the government did not presage a change in Japan's basic war policies.

Tojo Included in New Jap Cabinet, Nazis Report

LONDON, Saturday, April 7—(AP) The German agency DNB, quoting the Singapore radio, said today Premier Kantaro Suzuki had formed a new Japanese cabinet which included Gen. Hideki Tojo.

3 JAP GENERALS KILLED IN IWO JIMA BATTLE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6—(AP) Tokyo Radio today announced the deaths of Lt. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, commander of Japanese forces wiped out by American Marines on Iwo Jima, and two other generals and a rear admiral.

The 4 names went on the list of 123 admirals and 43 generals whose deaths have been announced by Tokyo since May, 1941.

The new names, announced in a broadcast monitored by the FCC, included Major Generals Gonijiro Murai and Isao Shigemi, and Rear Adm. Tcshinosuke Ichimaru, who commanded Japanese naval forces in the Iwo Jima area.

All three received posthumous promotion of one rank, said the broadcast which also related how Kuribayashi "died gallantly" leading his troops in a "final charge" against the American Marines.

Fighter Planes, B-29's Rip Tokio

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6 (A. P.).—Approximately 100 B-29's, escorted by nearly 40 P-51 fighter planes, raided the Tokio-Yokohama district at 9.30 A. M. Saturday morning, Japanese time (8.30 P. M., Friday, E. W. T.), Japanese Domei news agency said in a broadcast tonight.

Unconfirmed by Allied sources, it was the first report of land-based fighters attacking the Japanese homeland.

OTHER TARGETS LISTED

Domei said the P-51 Mustangs both bombed and strafed the western section of the Tokio-Yokohama section while Superfortresses attacked military objectives. Other B-29's conducted scattered raids on Tokio, Tokai and Chubu districts, said the broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Mustangs probably were from newly conquered Iwo Jima airfields, only 750 air miles from the Japanese capital.

FIRST SUCH ATTACK

Although carrier fighters have joined naval bomber and torpedo planes in attacking the Japanese homeland, never before have land-based fighters been reported over the heart of the enemy empire.

Domei claimed Japanese interceptors had scored "good results," but declared the exact number of planes destroyed or damaged was being "checked up."

"In the skies over Tokio," the broadcast said, "four or five enemy planes are reported to have been bagged."

JAPANESE PEERS PLAN FOR TWENTY YEAR WAR

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6—(AP) Japan's House of Peers heard today that the committee for a "20-year war" has "gained support among all classes of Japanese people."

The statement was attributed by Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by the FCC, to Incsuke Furuno, member of the House, president of the Japanese Domei news agency and member of the committee.

He was quoted further: "The idea of knuckling down for 20 years of all-out war is a far-reaching one. It should give just enough time for the Anglo-American war mongers to die off and the people to be restored to their senses."

U.S. Clearing Bay, Japs Report

San Francisco, April 6 (AP)—A Japanese Domei news agency dispatch reported today that American minesweepers are clearing Nakagusuku Bay, a former Nipponese naval anchorage on the southeast coast of Okinawa, 325 miles south of Japan.

The dispatch, intercepted here, said the minesweepers were supported by a task force of about 30 ships, including approximately ten battleships and cruisers.

Supply Base

American ships could use Nakagusuku Bay to supply 10th Army invasion forces on Okinawa and later to stage further blows against Japan.

Domei said the task force was bombarding Japanese positions on the island in support of the southward push by the 24th Corps. Domei said the Yanks were advancing "under cover of naval gunfire and strongly supported by tanks." The agency said 200 tanks supported 5,000 7th Division infantrymen moving down the shores of Nakagusuku Bay.

Ships Repulsed, Foe Says

A domestic broadcast said "a small group of enemy ships" was repulsed after bombarding three small islands in the Ryukyus yesterday. Two of the islands, Okinoerabu and Amami Shima, are north of Okinawa and the third, Kume, to the west.

Another broadcast claimed Japanese planes had scored direct torpedo hits on several large warships, including battleships and cruisers, in continuous attacks on "a large enemy surface force cruising in several groups" in Ryukyu waters. The attacks, which began April 3, are still continuing with mounting war results, it said.

Yugoslavs Report Capture Of Sarajevo

New York, April 6 (AP)—Sarajevo, the scene of the assassination that touched off World War I, has been "stormed and captured" by troops of the Yugoslav Army of National Liberation, the Free Yugoslav Telegraph Agency said today. The Yugoslav dispatch was reported here by the FCC.

Archduke Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated in Sarajevo on June 28, 1914, an act that precipitated the World War of 1914-18.

Sarajevo is an important industrial and communication center of Bosnia.

Any United Nation Is Able To Amend Dumbarton Oaks

WASHINGTON, April 6—(AP) The United States or any other member nation, great or small may seek to amend the Dumbarton Oaks world organization plan during the San Francisco conference, Secretary of State Stettinius disclosed today.

This wide open procedure evidently has been agreed upon by the Big Four sponsoring powers—this country, Russia, Britain and China—despite a recent suggestion in the Soviet press that the four countries, having jointly written the Dumbarton Oaks plan, were bound to defend it against change.

Published In Red Magazine

This suggestion was published in the Russian magazine, war and the working classes, and republished here in the Soviet embassy bulletin earlier this week. There was no proof however that it represented a fixed Soviet government view.

Shortly before Stettinius held his news conference today, he was designated by President Roosevelt to be temporary chairman of the San Francisco conference which opens April 25. He is slated then to be elected permanent chairman, which would make him chief officer of the conference. Such an office ordinarily goes to the representative of the host country.

There is still a good chance that former Secretary of State Cordell Hull may attend the conference despite his 73 years and his long hospitalization from illness and exhaustion. This was learned today when inquiry was made of Hull's closest associates as to whether a choice of Stettinius as temporary chairman meant Hull would not be able to go.

Hull, these informants said, is now getting along so well that he hopes more than ever that he will be able to make the trip.

Tells Newsmen

The subject of amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan came up when reporters asked Stettinius whether the conference would be a deliberative one, he said he certainly assumed it would be with a capital D. He was then asked what he took the word deliberative to mean and he said it meant that any country could make any suggestions it wanted to and there would be time to talk things over and think them through.

Then Stettinius was told the Russian publication had suggested that the big powers would have to defend rather than amend the Dumbarton Oaks plan and his reply was that the San Francisco conference will be a meeting of the United Nations to agree on a security organization, with the Dumbarton Oaks proposals placed on the table as the basis of discussions.

Asked specifically whether that meant that the United States and other nations would be able to suggest amendments he said yes, sure.

Stettinius reported that the first pre-conference session of the United nations would open here Monday with representatives from 30 countries meeting to work out plans for a world court. This tribunal may be either a new one or the old one remodeled. The 30 will include this country, Russia, Britain, China and France. Green Hackworth, legal advisor of the State department will be American representative.

Stettinius Says Yalta Decision On Poland Will Be Carried Out

NEW YORK, April 6.—(AP) Secretary of State Stettinius declared today that "nothing has happened to shake my belief that the Crimea agreement on Poland will be carried out."

The agreement provided for establishment of a new, democratic Polish government and consultations have been going on fruitlessly in Moscow for seven weeks among Britain, Russia and the United States.

Stettinius in a speech chided those who express concern over the prospects of the San Francisco United Nations conference because of this delay and because of the Russian request for three assembly votes.

New Problem to Arise

"If we based our course of action on that line of reasoning we would never have a conference, or a world organization," he said. "New problems of this nature will continue to arise."

He pointed out that for two years the major Allies have disagreed over Poland and that the Crimean decision is "only seven weeks old."

"The delay in carrying out the Crimea decision on Poland has been disappointing," Stettinius declared, "but in this perspective it has not been long."

He said "it is important that this new government be established in time to make it possible for Poland to be represented at San Francisco. The United States government is doing all in its power to bring this about."

Speaking before the Council on Foreign Relations, Stettinius said that the San Francisco conference "will be a decisive juncture in the history of America and of the world."

However, he pointed out that it has taken three and a half years of prodigious effort to bring United Nations forces to the heart of Germany and close to Japan.

"We can be sure," he said, "that winning the peace is going to take a good deal longer and that it will be just as difficult and challenging a task."

Stettinius reaffirmed the basic United States policy of respecting "the legitimate rights of small nations. x x x It is basic in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals."

United in Peace Effort

"The large nations, and all the United Nations," he asserted, "are firmly united in the purpose and in the necessity to create a new world organized for peace." He said that "this unity of purpose and this community of national interest is paramount to all the lesser differences among us."

Stettinius took issue with the idea expressed in some quarters that establishment of the United Nations organization before the peace is written would commit the United States in advance "to maintaining all these settlements in perpetuity whether they are good or bad."

"Just the contrary is true," he declared.

Creating the world organization first places it above the peace settlements and leaves it free to deal with any future threats to a tranquil world whether they arise from the windup of this war or any other cause, he said.

Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich.), expressing fear that the organization as proposed at Dumbarton Oaks would freeze the peace made after this war, including possibly unsatisfactory arrangements, has proposed an amendment to the plan to give it greater flexibility.

Stettinius Temporary Chairman At Frisco

Washington, April 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt today designated Secretary of State Stettinius temporary chairman of the United Nations conference opening in San Francisco April 25.

Alger Hiss, of Baltimore, was named permanent secretary general of the conference and will be in charge of all arrangements for the meeting. He is director of the State Department's office of special political affairs.

Duty Of U.S.

The White House explained that it is incumbent on the United States, as the host, to select these conference officials. Stettinius probably will preside over the opening session, serving until a permanent president is selected by the delegates themselves. This would not preclude his becoming the permanent president.

Others of the conference staff will be named by Stettinius.

Roosevelt Felicitates Benes

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today in a message to President Benes of Czechoslovakia:

"It is a source of great personal satisfaction to me to see your untiring efforts for the liberation of Czechoslovakia crowned by your return to its own soil. I know what joy your homecoming must mean both to you and to every other patriotic Czechoslovak, because it marks the restoration of your country to the dignity of independence and freedom from foreign oppression.

"Your homecoming also symbolizes to all Americans the turning of the whole world from the years of conquest and strife to an era of justice and co-operation in a community of free nations dedicated to those same principles of democratic integrity which are so characteristic of Czechoslovakia itself."

Canada A Problem In Feeding Allies

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Canada's wheat and meat stood out today as uncertainties in how the United Nations will divide available food this year.

In general, the picture as presented to the Senate Agriculture Committee shows food enough of one kind or another for everybody, despite serious shortages of meat, fats and oils, dairy products, sugar an rice.

Lieut. Col. R. W. Olmstead told the committee one of the unsettled problems is the question of "financing of Canadian wheat for relief purposes."

Civilian Feeding Setup

Olmstead, chairman of the War Food Administration's allocations committee, said Canada has no appropriation to permit military forces to extend relief to civilians of liberated countries. The American forces have such provision and 214,000,000 bushels of wheat for relief, chiefly by the military, have been "entered against" this country's stocks.

Olmstead said he understood the United Kingdom has set aside funds for that purpose, but noted that virtually all the wheat which has been sent to England has gone from Canada. The Canadians make such shipments without charge under their mutual aid (lend-lease) arrangement.

Wheat supplies, he told the committee, are more than ample, but current needs abroad are not being met because of internal transportation difficulties and inadequate milling facilities in this country.

CUT IN CANADA TO EQUAL OURS

Krug Orders Contracts Kept Proportionate.

Washington, April 6 (A. P.).—J. A. Krug, chief of the War Production Board, has directed that United States war contracts in Canada be cut back after Germany's fall at the same rate as contracts with domestic producers.

The policy is intended to "prevent criticism and confusion" which Mr. Krug said would result of Canada went into the manufacture of civilian goods ahead of this country and to head off dislocation and unemployment in the Dominion which might result if Canadian plants were shut down before peacetime materials and parts became available from the United States.

"Canada willingly accepts the principle of equality in sacrifice and seeks no advantage in the return to civilian population" said the WPB chairman in a memorandum to all WPB officers March 26 but not made public.

Followed Allied Talks.

The action followed discussions among British, Canadian and United States officials represented on the Combined Production and Resources Board. Canadian authorities expressed worry over the impact of sudden contract cancellations in the Dominion.

The policy adopted will govern direct United States war contracts, Mr. Krug noted, but subcontracts placed with Canadian firms by American companies cannot be brought under such general control. This leaves Canada still with the problem that its plants may lose a substantial part of their war work if American firms, in the face of falling war orders, pull in their sub-contracts in order to keep their own working forces busy.

A contractor country, Canada is doing about 60 per cent of her war work on American contracts, with the rest being about equally divided between Canadian and English contracts.

Jewish Group Asks Conference Hearing

Washington, April 6 (AP) — The American Jewish Conference said here it had asked that the Jewish people be granted a hearing at the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Declaring in a statement that it spoke for a majority of American Jews, the A.J.C. submitted to Secretary of State Stettinius a post-war "security program" for Jewish people, calling for these things:

Inclusion in the United Nations' charter of an international bill of rights; acceleration of the development of Palestine as a Jewish commonwealth; restoration of civil and political rights of European Jews; measures for their rehabilitation and resettlement, plus restoration of their property confiscated by the Nazis and punishment of those responsible for war crimes against Jewish people.

Army Urged to Take Over Shut Down Packing Plants

WASHINGTON, April 6—(AP) A House Food Investigating committee proposed today that the Army take over closed packing plants and process its own beef to help break a growing civilian meat shortage.

The suggestion was made at a closed meeting with high government officials and Chairman Anderson (D-N.M.) of the committee said most of them "were very favorable to the idea."

The same meeting produced suggestions for a boost in the guaranteed price on pork, holding ceiling prices steady meanwhile, and relaxation of the Army's high standards on federally-inspected beef.

U. S. Behind Quotas

Unless something is done, Anderson told a news conference late today, the United States will be more than a billion pounds short of its meat requirements after July and there will be virtually no meat for export—either through Lend-Lease, UNRRA or for Army use in liberated areas.

The committee held a three-hour session at the White House with War Mobilizer Fred M. Vinson, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, Economic Stabilization Director W. H. Davis, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles, UNRRA Director Herbert H. Lehman, Lend-Lease Administrator Leo Crowley, and other government officials.

Army representatives at the meeting said they would require time to study the proposed plant operations.

Anderson said the committee now is trying to determine whether federally inspected packing plants have closed because of price disputes or for other reasons. He mentioned three in Pueblo, Colo., Phoenix, Ariz., and El Paso, Tex.

Unless the volume of processed beef is increased quickly, he told reporters, "we are likely to have such a short supply that nothing can be done for the liberated areas—and that would be a tragedy.

"As the meat figures now stand there will be very, very little for export in the third quarter of this year. In fact the requirements as against supply, indicate now that there will be no balance for export."

All Facilities in Use

The suggestion for Army operation of closed plants developed because, Anderson said, cattlemen say there is a glut of range cattle but all facilities are not being used to process it.

In addition to the Army plan, the conference suggested that the War Food administration, "explore further incentives" to bring cattle in from the ranges, but did not specify them.

Anderson said WFA is turning over to the Office of Price Administration the job of allocating meat quotas.

It has been suggested, he continued, that the quotas to state-inspected packing plants be lowered and those to federally inspected plants be increased so more meat can move in interstate commerce. That would prevent spot meat shortages in areas served only by federally inspected plants.

The three hour conference produced the suggestion that the support price to hog raisers be increased from $12.50 to $13 and guaranteed at that level through September, 1946.

Anderson said that would help produce a steady flow of pork to market so that farmers would not dump their supply. Ceilings would be maintained at the present $14.75 and Anderson said the change would not increase the market counter price.

The committee, without going into details, suggested that the Army might ease off on the standards it applies in meat purchases for the troops, so that it might take a bit more commercial grade beef and leave more prime and choice grades for the public.

Anderson said OPA information indicates a "considerable black market operation" in meat but added:

"I don't personally think it is as large as has been represented."

He said the OPA has done much to shut off the supply of counterfeit ration stamps and "they have cured a good deal of it."

World War I Anniversary

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Today is the twenty-eighth anniversary of the United States' entry into World War I.

House approval of a war resolution by a 373-to-50 vote a few minutes after 3 o'clock on the morning of April 6, 1917, put the nation into that conflict. The Senate had adopted the resolution the night before by an 82-to-6 vote.

Germany's ruthless submarine warfare against American ships earlier had prompted this country to sever diplomatic relations with Berlin. Then, addressing Congress in a dramatic night session on April 2, President Woodrow Wilson said:

"I advise that the Congress declare the recent course of the imperial German Government to be in fact nothing less than war against the Government and the people of the United States. . . ."

FLEET CORRESPONDENT KILLED ABOARD SHIP

APR 7 1945

WASHINGTON, April 6 — (AP) The Navy announced today the death in action of the first Fleet enlisted correspondent.

Donald Walter Forsyth, Yeoman 1/c, was killed aboard his ship at sea March 19.

His next of kin is his brother, Eugene S. Forsyth, Pensacola, Fla.

The Navy's enlisted fleet correspondent program was inaugurated only recently with the first group of 100 men with newspaper experience being sent to Pearl Harbor for training and indoctrination. They are being assigned aboard ships of the fleet to write stories about Navy men for hometown newspapers, to assist civilian war correspondents, and to prepare historical narratives of their vessel's part in the war.

25 Billions O.K.'d In New Navy Bill

WASHINGTON, April 6 (A. P.).—A $25,000,000,000 appropriation bill to finance what is hoped will be the Navy's knockout punch against Japan will be ready for the House when it ends its informal Easter recess next week.

Barring unexpected last-minute changes by the Appropriations Committee, which applied finishing touches to the measure today, it will be within $5,000,000,000 of the record $29,305,000,000 given the sea forces during the fiscal year that ended last June 30.

140 BILLIONS IN ALL

It will boost to beyond $140,000,000,000 the money advanced to the Navy since July 1, 1940, when the task of building the largest fleet in the world's history began in earnest.

Largest single item in the Navy's latest budget is $7,021,402,000 for pay, subsistence and transportation of naval personnel, an increase of almost $1,500,000,000 over the current year appropriation.

With the forthcoming War Department supply bill, tentatively estimated to provide about $40,000,000,000, the new Navy measure will hike to approximately $389,000,000,000 the appropriations for the armed services since July 1, 1940.

Mitscher Forces' Score

1,212 Japanese Planes Blasted Since Okinawa Assault

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP).—Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier task force and supporting forces have shot down, destroyed on the ground and damaged a total of 1,212 Japanese planes since the Okinawa operation began on March 17, the Navy said today. The ask force accounted for 954, and supporting forces 258 of the total, a spokesman said.

A total of 244 surface vessels of all types including ships, junks, trawlers, schooners and small craft have been destroyed since the start of the operation, he said. In addition, 206 were damaged and forty-three probably sunk.

New Projectile Takes Heavy Toll of Nazi Tanks

Shell Within a Shell Used Since Last Summer

DETROIT, April 6 (AP).—Army officials here today disclosed that a new type of armor-piercing shell has taken a heavy toll of German Tiger and Panther tanks on the western front. Described as a "projectile within a projectile" by spokesmen for the Carboloy Company, Inc., which produces the cores for new anti-tank weapons, the shells have been in use by American forces since last summer.

Army public relations officers said front-line reports indicated that "German tanks have been stopped by a single shot up to 3,000 yards" and described the new shells as "an effective weapon with which to defeat these tanks." Carboloy spokesmen said the new type shell weighs only nine pounds, compared with fifteen for the old type, and has a muzzle velocity of 3,400 feet a second. The velocity of the old type is 2,800.

MARSHALL APPEALS TO PUBLIC PATIENCE

Army Day Audience Is Warned Against Intolerance Over Demobilization Delays

EASTWARD AFTER V-E DAY

General Says Redeployment Is Imperative to Save Lives in the Japanese Fighting

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP)—Army concern over the attitude of the soldier and his home folk during the redeployment of forces from Europe to the Pacific was voiced today by General George C. Marshall.

The Chief of Staff told an Army Day audience that the transfer of troops and equipment to the East would be one of the greatest problems in administration and supply in history, although he was confident that it would be carried out in "a thoroughly workmanlike manner."

That phase of the job, he declared, was not worrying the Army but the human element is. Once V-E Day comes, he said, this will be the general picture:

Every soldier in Europe will have an "overwhelming urge" to get home to his wife, family or girl friend. The soldier who learns that he is eligible for demobilization, but finds there is no room on ships going home, may become intolerant "even to the smirching of a fine and soldierly fighting record." Mail from home will be of no help because "protests will be more articulate on this side of the Atlantic from the wives and the families and the sweethearts."

The Army, General Marshall said, will not be able to meet those "very human desires" without the risk of higher casualties in the Orient and denying the fighters there the support they must have.

For these reasons, General Marshall added, the attitude of the people at home would be of the "utmost importance" to the Army's morale and fighting efficiency.

"They must be brought," he said emphatically, "to understand the urgent requirements of the situation. They must be persuaded to support us in a last great effort to hasten the end of this war."

Nine Armies Observe Day

In his talk General Marshall said:

"Army Day this year is being observed by nine American field armies simultaneously engaged with the enemy, and all successfully. It is being signalized by 26,000 American combat planes, daily, almost hourly engaged in strikes against the enemy. It is being celebrated by a million individual officers or soldiers in continental United States, each being trained as a replacement for the air or ground forces overseas, and it is being honored by a million more of officers and soldiers laboring here at home to meet the hourly demands of the gigantic operations now in progress for supplies, and men, and ships, and planes.

"The parades of other days are not possible. the combat troops are overseas, parading against our enemies. The last of our divisions and brigades left these shores months ago, so the citizen at home must find his stimulation in the reports of the victories which the sons and husbands of America are now winning for us with each succeeding day.

"When one turns back to the military poverty of four short year ago it is difficult to realize how vast and how successful our military forces are today, and it is almost inconceivable that they could have reached such heights of efficiency and power and have been deployed so far from home in such widely separated theatres. The American characteristics of leadership, energy, courage and determination, magnified a hundredfold by a feeling of outrage over the crimes of the Axis against the people and peace of the world, have made this possible.

"We have come to accept the general aspects of global war somewhat as a matter of course, and yet I recall being questioned by a committee of Congress as to where an American Army might be expected to fight. I named all the foreign shores on which it had fought in the past and was rather surprised myself to realize how far afield our military activities had previously taken us. But I am frank to confess I did not then anticipate that the time would shortly come when almost every reach of land on the globe, even within the Arctic Circle, would find American troops carrying out the purpose of our people to suppress the crimes and tyrannies of nations denying free Governments and individual liberty to unfortunate people throughout the world.

"These are momentous days for us. Our armies in Germany are at this moment fighting with astonishing success in probably the greatest battle of all time, and I hope the most decisive. Yet, paradoxical as it may seem, more critical days are soon to come. I refer to the great transfer of power from the European Continent to the Pacific, the redeployment as we term it, which must immediately follow the cessation of hostilities in Europe with the greatest possible speed.

"For more than a year the War Department has been working on the plans for this transfer which constitutes, I believe, the greatest problem in administration and logistics in history. We have constantly kept our plans up to date, we have been prepared to put them into action literally on an hour's notice whenever that hour strikes. The task will be one of great difficulties, but I am confident that it will be carried out in a thoroughly workmanlike manner. We are not worried over that phase of the redeployment.

Move to Orient Imperative

"The moment hostilities cease in Europe there will be an overwhelming urge in every man to rejoin his wife or his family or to see his girl, to leave the scenes of destruction and desolation in which he has fought and labored at such great risks to life and limb. Yet at that very moment it is imperative that we start the movement through the Suez and through the Panama Canal of the units needed in highest priority for the acceleration of the campaign in the Pacific. Any delay, any loss of momentum in that campaign means the unnecessary loss or mutilation of more young Americans. It is not merely a question of how long would be the delay in terms of days, but rather one of how much of reorganization for renewed resistance the Japanese would be able to effect by reason of that delay.

"The period of redeployment presents other very human reactions as well as international pressures. Consider the man who has been notified that he qualifies at the head of the list for demobilization and yet must be held in Europe for a time because of the lack of sufficient ocean shipping to get him home. His impatience will be intense, his attitude can easily become intolerant, even to the smirching of a fine and soldierly fighting record. Much of the mail from home will not help the situation because the protests will be more articulate on this side of the Atlantic from the wives and the families and the sweethearts.

Men in Pacific Await Aid

"Unless we are to accept an avoidable increase in our casualties, unless we are to leave our millions of young men in the far Pacific waiting for the final support they will so urgently need, we shall be unable to meet these very human desires.

"To a constantly increasing degree we shall have urgent requirements for food to feed the starving in Holland and to meet the stark necessities of other occupied areas, demands for raw material to get factories going and to put restless and poverty-stricken men to work. All of these involve ocean tonnage. The pressures from each area will be local to that area and quite naturally without much regard for purely military considerations in a distant part of the world. But we shall have our men undergoing the hazards of battle in the Pacific. That must not for a moment be forgotten.

"During this period of redeployment the attitude of the people at home will be of the utmost importance to the morale of the Army, which means its fighting efficiency. They must be brought to understand the urgent requirements of the situation, they must be persuaded to support us in a last great effort to hasten the end of this war.

"I know that each one of you who appreciates the situation will support us through this difficult period preliminary to the final victory."

SHARP INCREASE IN DISEASE RATES SEEN IN EUROPE

APR 7 1945

WASHINGTON, April 6—(AP) Reporting a startling wartime rise in European disease rates, UNRRA said today that serious epidemics are threatened and backed the statement with statistics.

"In several ways the outlook is darker than in 1918," when post-World War I outbreaks were building toward the disastrous proportions they reached in the next few years, the report said. It pointed out that the war-end conditions of bad housing, destroyed sanitation focilities, and floating populations promise to be reported on far greater scale.

Issued by UNRRA

The study was issued by the epidemiological information service of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, headed by Knud Stowman.

The most direct threat, the report said, is posed by the increasing incidence and wider spread of typhus, but nearly all common reportable diseases show rises to at least twice the prewar incidence and offer latent or active menace.

Using 1943 figures because 1944 data are not yet complete, the report showed the following increases for certain diseases in 12 continental European countries: Cerebrospinal meningitis 3.1 times the 1928-38 rate, poliomyelitis 2.5, typhoid fever 1.5, dysentery 2.1, diphtheria 3.0, scarlet fever 3.2.

It was emphasized that the tabulation covers mainly areas where public health services never have ceased to function, with the suggestion that the over-all figures, including those of the more desperately afflicted countries, probably would be much higher.

"Apart from the menace of typhus," the report said, "the most significant fact of the epidemic situation is that the incidence of all the common infectious diseases has doubled or trebled in that part of Europe for which statistics are available."

Typhus Seen as Dangerous

However, among the five pestilential diseases covered by the international sanitary convention, only louse borne typhus was reported as presenting "an immediate and grave danger to Europe."

Cholera, a serious problem in Asia, has not appeared in recent years west of India and Afghanistan. Yellow fever seems hardly to have spread during the war and has not appeared north of the North African desert. As far as UNRRA information goes plague has not been introduced into any European port but several large ports in North Africa and the Near East have been infected. Europe has been practically free of smallpox except for a 1944 outbreak in Sicily and southern Italy and an extension of the Near East epidemic into European Turkey and nearby parts of Greece.

The UNRRA study showed three main epidemic foci of typhus in southeastern Europe: Romanian, centering in Bessarabia and Eastern Moldavia; Subcarpathian, centering in Subcarpathian Ruthenia and extending into northern Hungary; Croatian, centering in Bosnia and probably reaching into Serbia. All these were in "rapid evolution" last spring and there have been recent increases which the study said amount to "the most serious epidemic outburst of any disease during the present war."

In Germany, where typhus formerly was unknown, the report said there were over 5,000 cases in 1943, reaching as far west as the Rhineland.

On a general Europe-wide basis, diphtheria was reported as "the leading epidemic disease of the war both as a cause of morbidity and of mortality." It was estimated that 1943 brought at least a million cases outside the U.S.S.R., with a mortality rate now not less than 5 per cent. Germany had 300,000 cases in 1943 with the rise continuing in 1944, and the increase in Norway and the Netherlands was called "explosive."

SOME RELEASES FROM ARMY SEEN AFTER NAZIS FALL

WASHINGTON, April 6 — (AP) An Army spokesman today told an American Legion conference that releases from Army service after V-E Day will total "the maximum number" which the Army feels can be spared.

The spokesman, Lt. Col. Edward F. Baumer, of the Intelligence division of the War department, added that it is "apparent that we won't need as many men after Germany is defeated."

Earlier, the national employment conference of the Legion heard the views of Robert J. Watt, international representative of the American Federation of Labor, on the assistance and preference which should be given to veterans seeking to enter private business. Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing company and former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, discussed the problems of wage and employment guarantees.

Watt said that although every assistance possible should be given the returned veterans, they should not be given job preferences on a scale which would result in extensive disemployment of other workers.

His contention was that such displacement would result in the veterans eventually being burdened with the support of those whom he has displaced, either directly or indirectly, through taxes.

Fuller said that although "there is merit" in many of the recently-proposed plans for a guaranteed annual wage and for guaranteed employment, "they must be developed gradually—we need evolution, not revolution."

He noted seasonal demands, new designs which necessitate plant change-over, the job or contract system prevalent in many industries, and the difficulty in standardizing operations, among the chief obstacles to be overcome in setting up guarantee plans.

He said "the efforts of industrial management have been directed primarily at the two chief factors that cause instability of employment—seasonal fluctuations and the swings in the business cycle."

Top War Honor To Sergeant

APR 7 1945

Washington, April 6 (AP)—A doughboy who pitched into four Germans with a trench knife, killing one before he himself was mortally wounded, won the Congressional Medal of Honor by his heroism.

He was Sergt. John J. McVeigh, Philadelphia infantryman, whose action was credited officially with turning back a German assault against an American platoon during fighting near Brest, France, last August 29.

Stood In Full View

The Germans opened their attack at dusk before the platoon, part of 23d Infantry Regiment, had a chance to dig in at a new position along a hedge. The American line sagged, leaving McVeigh's squad and its machine gun in danger of being overrun.

McVeigh, realizing the threat, stood in full view of the advancing Nazis, shouted instructions to his squad and at the same time emptied his rifle into the attackers.

He succeeded in halting the frontal assault, but four Germans started rushing in from the left.

Went Out To Meet Them

With a trench knife in his hand, McVeigh went out to meet them. He killed the nearest one and started closing in on the other three when they blasted him point-blank with their rifles.

Before the three Germans could renew their attack, the machine gun was put into action and they were killed.

Fire from this gun and another in the section gave the platoon a chance to reorganize and hold its line during the day.

The Congressional Medal, the nation's highest decoration, is the second award to McVeigh. He won the Bronze Star Medal last July 11 for helping to break up a German counterattack in Normandy.

Arrangements for presentation of the medal to McVeigh's widow, Mrs. Virginia McVeigh, of Philadelphia, have not been completed.

Anzio Hero Gets Congress Medal

BOSTON, April 6 (AP).—A Massachusetts infantryman who amputated his badly mangled leg at the Anzio beachhead after wiping out two enemy machine gun nests received the Congressional Medal of Honor as the highlight of Boston's Army Day observance.

Major General Sherman Miles, commanding the 1st Service Command, presented the nation's highest military award to Staff Sergeant George J. Hall, twenty-five years old, of Stoneham.

DENIES THE BRITISH RUN GREEK RELIEF

Washington, April 6 (A. P.).—An assertion by a wounded UNRRA worker that the British Army had taken over relief activities in Greece was contradicted today by Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the UNRRA.

Marie Berger, flown back here after being wounded during the fighting in Athens, said the British were interfering with the UNRRA's work and compromising its principles. She said the Greek government which was in power before the recent crisis there had lowered wages and raised prices so as to set up a fund from profits and repay Greek loans from Britain.

Mr. Lehman said in a statement, "No reports we have had from the field bear out the statements in Miss Berger's story regarding British activity involving UNRRA. Miss Berger's comments on the political and military situations are exclusively her personal views."

Army's Fire Raid Bomb Born of War on Grass

Harvard Professor Created Jelled Gas to Conquer Pest

BOSTON, April 6 (AP).—If a Harvard chemistry professor hadn't battled with the crab grass on the lawn of his suburban home, there might never have been the monster fire raids on Japan's great cities, an Army officer disclosed today.

It was the knowledge developed by Dr. Louis Fieser in his struggle to exterminate the lowly weed that was used in transforming ordinary gasoline into a viscous incendiary jelly, Colonel Lester W. Hurd, commanding officer of the Boston Chemical Warfare Procurement District, said.

The substance, resembling ordinary orange celatni, now is used not only in incendiary bombs, but in flame throwers.

Back in 1941, Dr. Feiser's private war against crab grass in his lawn wasn't going so well. He tried several unsuccessful experiments before he developed a substance that thickened the gasoline till it became a jell. This did the trick.

At the same time, the Chemical Warfare Service asked Mr. Fieser to develop a small incendiary that could be used to start camp fires with damp wood. His crab grass killer became the basis for the camp fire lighter and ultimately paved the way for the Army's M69 oil incendiary fire bomb.

COAL OPERATORS END NEGOTIATIONS

Claim Wage Talks Stalemated; Government Seizure Expected.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP) Soft coal wage negotiations broke down today. The next move is up to the War Labor Board and all signs pointed to government seizure of struck mines to prevent further harm to the war effort. John L. Lewis summoned his 250-man policy committee to determine the United Mine Workers' future course.

While the mine leader did not say for what specific purpose the committee was called in, it was understood that the various offers of the operators and the proposed contact advanced last week by Secretary of Labor Perkins will be placed before the group. Lewis had accepted the Perkins proposal but operators turned it down.

The committee scheduled to meet Monday would have to pass upon any new contract, as it did the original 18 demands of Lewis on February 26.

Operators to Report Stalemate

Meanwhile, the operators said they will not attend the scheduled resumption of negotiations Saturday morning. They arranged to report a stalemate to the War Labor board at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow, the hour fixed by the Board.

Lewis, who had indicated earlier he would not join in that report to the board, let it be known that he felt the board had taken notice of the fact that the negotiations still were formally underway at 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. Without committing himself, Lewis hinted that he would appear before the board, or send a representative, for the afternoon meeting with the WLB.

All indications pointed to government seizure of mines — at least those affected by wildcat strikes— to prevent further harm to the war effort.

Mine operators said they would report to the board tomorrow that they and John L. Lewis' United Mine workers are stalemated on Lewis' wage demands after five weeks of negotiations.

Lewis technically kept the negotiations alive by succeeding in defeating a motion to recess indefinitely. A Saturday morning session is thus on schedule but operators said they would not be there.

More than 100 soft coal mines were reported down today, one day after Chairman George W. Taylor of the WLB said formally that unless they reopen promptly the government will take over.

Agree To Extension

A week ago Lewis agreed to a 30-day extension, until May 1, of the expired working contract. But thousands of miners in the field decided instead to stay away from work.

K. C Adams, editor of the Union Journal, disclaimed all UMW responsibility for the idleness, saying:

"No work stoppage in any mine has been inspired by the UMW wherever the operators and management have agreed to meet the terms of the extended agreement.

"We are not responsible for differences which arise locally and become aggravated between management and men."

Adams said in defense of the thousands of miners away from work that they are just physically "tired out" after strenuous labor in breaking all production records in the last 18 months.

No accurate figure was available on the total number of men out, but it ran into the tens of thousands—28,347 in Pennsylvania alone.

In event of government seizure, Interior Secretary Ickes, as Solid Fuels administrator, probably would be chosen, as he was in 1943, to be the Federal Mine boss. He has stressed the importance of coal to war production and argued against any delay in the seizure.

The Republic Steel corporation said today it had banked one of its Cleveland, Ohio, blast furnaces and one at Gadsden, Ala., to conserve what coal it has. Other steel companies reported similar preparations.

The back-to-work situation was spotty. Some big mines reopened and some small ones shut down, resulting in Pennsylvania in an increase from Thursday to Friday of closed mines from 59 to 77. The number of Pennsylvania miners idle decreased in the same time from 28,900 to 28,347. It is in this state that absenteeism since Sunday has been most pronounced.

LONDON, APRIL 6--(AP)--A JAPANESE GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN, IN TOKYO'S FIRST OFFICIAL COMMENT ON RUSSIA'S DENUNCIATION OF HER NON-AGGRESSION PACT WITH JAPAN, EMPHASIZED TODAY THAT REGARDLESS OF MOSCOW'S ACTION THE TREATY STILL REMAINS IN EFFECT FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

A TOKYO BROADCAST QUOTED SADAO IGUCHI, HEAD OF THE GOVERNMENT INFORMATION BUREAU, AS SAYING:

"I CAN AT LEAST SAY THAT NOTIFICATION BY THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT WILL NOT MAKE THE PACT VOID IMMEDIATELY. IT WILL REMAIN IN FORCE FOR ANOTHER YEAR. BOTH PARTIES ARE BOUND TO MAINTAIN NEUTRALITY FOR ANOTHER YEAR AT LEAST."

IGUCHI REFERRED TO THE FACT THAT THE PACT, SIGNED IN APRIL, 1941, WAS FOR A FIVE-YEAR PERIOD. IT CARRIED A PROVISION THAT IT WOULD BE AUTOMATICALLY RENEWED FOR ANOTHER FIVE-YEAR PERIOD IF NOT DENOUNCED AT THE END OF FOUR YEARS -- A STEP THE RUSSIANS HAVE JUST TAKEN.

SOVIET SOURCES SO FAR HAVE NOT ELABORATED ON THE TERSE RUSSIAN NOTE DENOUNCING THE TREATY, GIVING NO INDICATION WHETHER THE CHARGE THAT JAPAN HAS BEEN HELPING GERMANY AGAINST THE U.S.S.R. CONSTITUTES IN MOSCOW'S EYES A VIOLATION OF THE EDGE TO REMAIN NEUTRAL.

THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY JOINED THE U.S. NINTH ARMY ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE WESER RIVER. THERE WERE INDICATIONS THAT THE GERMANS WERE IN FLIGHT TOWARD THE ELBE RIVER -- THE LAST WATER BARRIER 50 MILES WEST OF BERLIN.

A FRONT DISPATCH SAID THE BRITISH STRUCK ACROSS THE WESER IN THE AREA OF MINDEN AND NOW WERE WIDENING AND DEEPENING THEIR BRIDGEHEADS. THE AMERICAN CROSSING WAS MADE SOUTH OF HAMELIN, 23 MILES SOUTHWEST OF HANNOVER.

TO THE SOUTH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY'S 11TH ARMORED DIVISION CLEARED PREVIOUSLY BY-PASSED MEININGEN, 28 MILES SOUTHWEST OF GOTHA. IN A SIX MILE DRIVE TO THE EAST THEY ALSO REACHED POSITIONS 58 MILES FROM THE CZECH BORDER AND 23 SOUTHEAST OF GOTHA.

AT LAST REPORTS LT. GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON'S SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION WAS NEAR SCHLOTHEIM, 130 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN.

(FRONT DISPATCHES DID NOT LOCATE THE EXACT POSITION OF THE THIRD ARMY COLUMN WHICH PUNCHED TO POSITIONS 58 MILES FROM THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER, BUT APPARENTLY THIS FORCE WAS IN THE VICINITY OF RUDOLSTADT).

ON THE NORTHERN END OF THE FRONT CANADIAN FIRST ARMY TROOPS SENT PATROLS ACROSS THE NEDER RHINE EAST AND WEST OF THE DUTCH CITY OF ARNHEM, SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED.

AMERICAN NINTH ARMY UNITS, KNOCKING IN THE ROOF OF THE RUHR POCKET IN WHICH POSSIBLY 150,000 GERMAN TROOPS ARE TRAPPED, HAVE CAPTURED BRANBAUER, FOUR MILES NORTH OF DORTMUND, AND ARE ENGAGED IN FIERCE FIGHTING IN THE PIVOTAL CITY OF HAMM, HEADQUARTERS SAID.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, PARIS, APRIL 6-(AP)-SUPREME HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE NO. 363:

ALLIED PATROLS NORTH OF NIJMEGEN CROSSED THE NEDER RHINE WEST AND EAST OF ARNHEM. IN THE ZUTPHEN AREA FIERCE OPPOSITION WAS ENCOUNTERED AND THE TOWN IS STILL IN ENEMY HANDS.

NORTHWEST OF HENGELO WE CAPTURED ALMELO AND MADE GOOD GAINS TO THE NORTH AND EAST. FARTHER EAST THERE IS FIGHTING IN THE LINGEN AREA BUT THE TOWN IS NOT YET CLEAR. SOUTHEAST OF RHEINE, THE DORTMUND-EMS CANAL BRIDGEHEAD HAS BEEN FURTHER EXTENDED AND DRIERWALDE HAS BEEN CAPTURED.

IN THE IBBENDUREN AREA RESISTANCE REMAINS STRONG BUT ARMORED ELEMENTS BYPASSED THE TOWN TO THE SOUTH AND ADVANCED TO A POINT FIVE MILES SOUTH OF DIEPHOLZ. OSNABRUCK IS IN OUR HANDS. AND ARMORED UNITS, WHICH PREVIOUSLY BYPASSED THE TOWN, ADVANCED TO THE LINE OF THE WESER RIVER NORTH OF MINDEN. ANOTHER COLUMN REACHED THE WESER IN THE PETERHAGEN AREA AND VIRTUALLY CLEARED MINDEN.

WE HAVE CLEARED BIELEFELD, AND THE GARRISONS IN HERFORD AND BAD OEYNHAUSEN HAVE SURRENDERED. ARMORED ELEMENTS PUSHED TO WITHIN TWO MILES OF RINTELN. ANOTHER ARMORED SPEARHEAD ADVANCED TO THE WESER RIVER OPPOSITE HAMELIN. DETMOLD, AND VELDRON IN THE TEUTOBURGERWALD WERE CLEARED AND WE ARE FIGHTING IN ALTENBEKEN.

THE HARDEHAUSEN FOREST NORTHWEST OF WARBURG WAS CLEARED.

OUR UNITS ENTERED MEINBRESSEN, NORTHWEST OF KASSEL, AND PUSHED BEYOND NIEUHAGEN, EAST OF THE CITY. MULHAUSEN WAS CLEARED BY ARMORED ELEMENTS, WHICH PUSHED EIGHT MILES FARTHER NORTHEAST TO THE VICINITY OF SCHLOTHEIM.

OUR INFANTRY REACHED THE VICINITY OF ALLENGOTTERN NORTHEAST OF MAULHAUSEN, AND MIHLA, FARTHER SOUTHWEST. WE ENTERED THE SOUTHERN OUTSKIRTS OF EISENACH, AND REACHED POINTS SEVEN MILES WEST OF SCHMALHALDEN. ARMORED UNITS CLEARED ZELLA AND MEHLIS, CAPTURING THREE SMALL ARMS AMMUNITION FACTORIES. SEVEN SMALL ARMS FACTORIES WERE TAKEN IN SUHL.

OUR FORCES MADE FURTHER GAINS INTO THE RUHR POCKET FROM THE NORTH AND EAST. ON THE NORTH WE CAPTURED BRANBAUER, FOUR MILES NORTH OF DORTMUND. FIERCE FIGHTING IS IN PROGRESS IN HAMM. EAST OF THE CITY OUR UNITS CROSSED THE LIPPE RIVER AND REACHED THE HAMM-SOEST RAIL LINE. ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE POCKET, WE ARE IN THE VICINITY OF RUTHEN. SOUTHWEST OF WINTERBERG OUR FORCES REACHED POINTS NEAR WINKHAUSEN AND LATROP.

WE REPULSED NUMEROUS COUNTERATTACKS BETWEEN SIEGEN AND SIEGEBURG, ONE OF WHICH REACHED THE OUTSKIRTS OF SIEGEN BEFORE IT WAS REPELLED.

B36 (SEGQ)

FIGHTER BOMBERS ATTACKED TARGETS IN THE POCKET, INCLUDING A LARGE FORMATION OF ENEMY TROOPS ON A ROAD NEAR ARNSBERG.

SOUTH OF FULDA OUR ARMOR AND INFANTRY DROVE THROUGH SPESSART HILLS TO REACH SPEICHERZ AND BRUCKENAU. FARTHER SOUTH OF THE MAIN RIVER, EAST OF LOHR, WE REACHED WIESENFELD.

HEAVY FIGHTING IS IN PROGRESS IN WURZBURG AND MOST OF THE CITY HAS BEEN CLEARED.

AN ENEMY COUNTERATTACK FORCED UAS BACK IN THE NORTHERN PART OF THE CITY, BUT THE ATTACK WAS REPULSED AND THE LOST GROUND WAS REGAINED. MORE THAN 1,000 PRISONERS HAVE BEEN TAKEN IN THE CITY.

SUBSTANTIAL ADVANCES WERE MADE BY OUR ARMOR AND INFANTRY NORTHEAST AND SOUTHEAST OF OCHSENFURT. KITZENGEN, NORTHEAST OF OCHSENFURT, WAS CLEARED.

THE ENEMY IS FIGHTING STUBBORNLY TO HOLD THE LINE OF THE NEKAR AND JAGST RIVERS, AND IN FRONT OF HEILBRONN. WEST OF HEILBRONN WE CAPTURED A NUMBER OF VILLAGES. SCHWAIGERN WAS CLEARED.

ALLIED FORCES WHICH MADE THE LATEST RHINE CROSSINGS BELOW SPEYER AND CAPTURED KARLSRUHE REACHED THE NECKAR RIVER, MORE THAN 30 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.

ALLIED FORCES IN THE WEST CAPTURED 32,615 PRISONERS ON APRIL 4.

ENEMY TRANSPORT IN THE AREA OF PFORZHEIM, HEILBRONN, STUTTGART, LEIPZIG, NUREMBURG, AND GERA WAS ATTACKED BY FIGHTER BOMBERS. AN AMMUNITION STORE SOUTHEAST OF STUTTGART AND AN OIL STORAGE DEPOT AT GEISLINGEN, NORTHWEST OF ULM, WERE BOMBED BY MEDIUM BOMBERS.

ENEMY TRANSPORT, SUPPLY DUMPS, TROOPS AND STRONG POINTS IN THE DEVENTER, ZWOLLE AND GRONINGEN AREAS OF HOLLAND AND WIDE AREAS OF NORTH WESTERN GERMANY, INCLUDING BREMEN, MEPPEN, CELLE AND HANOVER WERE ATTACKED YESTERDAY BY FIGHTER BOMBERS.

AIRFIELDS IN THE WEIMAR AREA AND FARTHER SOUTH ALSO WERE ATTACKED BY FIGHTER BOMBERS. 71 ENEMY AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND AND MANY OTHERS WERE DAMAGED IN THE COURSE OF THESE ATTACKS.

MILITARY EQUIPMENT DEPOTS AT INGOLSTADT, NORTHEAST OF MUNICH, AT GRAFENWOHR SOUTHEAST OF BAYREUTH, AND AT FURTH; RAILWAY YARDS AT PLAUEN, BAYREUTH AND NUERNBURG--AND AN AIRFIELD SOUTHWEST OF NUERNBERG, WERE ATTACKED BY ESCORTED HEAVY BOMBERS IN VERY GREAT NUMBER. (END)

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY, APRIL 6-(AP)-THE ARMY USUALLY TAKES WHAT IT WANTS IN THE WAY OF QUARTERS TO BILLET AMERICAN TROOPS BUT AUTHORITIES DECIDED TONIGHT THEY COULD GET ALONG WITHOUT A BIG HOUSE AT 21 PHILOSOPHEN WEG.

THEY EVEN DECIDED THEY COULD SPARE SOME ARMY RATIONS SO THE OCCUPANTS, MRS. DORIS LAUFS AND TWO CURLY-HEADED YOUNGSTERS, ANITA, SIX, AND JEANNETTE, THREE, COULD HAVE A DECENT MEAL.

THIS SHOULD BE WELCOME NEWS TO MR. AND MRS. BURTON HAWORTH OF 359 PASADENA AVE., SOUTH PASADENA, CALIF. TWENTY-EIGHT YEAR OLD MRS. LAUFS IS THEIR DAUGHTER. SHE HAS NOT HEARD FROM THEM NOR BEEN ABLE TO COMMUNICATE WITH THEM FOR ALMOST FOUR YEARS.

MRS. LAUFS APPEALED TO THE MILITARY GOVERNOR, CAPT. E.K. HASKELL, YANKEE FARMS, SANTA BARBARA, CALIF., AFTER SHE WAS NOTIFIED TO VACATE THE PREMISES--THAT IT WAS TO BE USED TO BILLET AMERICAN SOLDIERS.

"I HAVE NO PLACE TO GO," SHE SAID. "IT HAS BEEN VERY HARD SINCE AMERICA GOT INTO THE WAR. PEOPLE HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH US. WE HAVE NO FRIENDS."

CAPT. HASKELL QUICKLY MADE OTHER ARRANGEMENTS AND SAW TO IT THAT ARMY FOOD WAS DELIVERED TO THE HOME WHEN IT WAS LEARNED THAT THE LARDER WAS NEARLY EMPTY. THIS SOLVED THE PROBLEM FOR THE MOMENT, BUT MANY OTHERS WILL HAVE TO BE HURDLED BEFORE THE YOUNG MOTHER FULFILLS HER DESIRE TO RETURN TO AMERICA WITH HER DAUGHTER AND HER HUSBAND, A CORPORAL IN THE GERMAN ARMY.

"HE DOESN'T FIGHT," MRS. LAUFS SAID. "HE'S ON LIMITED SERVICE BECAUSE HE GOT HIS KNEE HURT WHILE PLAYING FOOTBALL. HE DOES OFFICE WORK. I HAVEN'T SEEN HIM SINCE DECEMBER."

THE COUPLE MET IN CALIFORNIA IN 1937, MARRIED AND WENT TO GERMANY LATER THAT YEAR. LAUFS WAS TRAVELING FOR HIS FATHER, WHO HAS A PRINTING MACHINERY FIRM HERE.

THERE ARE A HANDFUL OF OTHER AMERICANS IN HEIDELBERG BUT THEY WERE NOT PERMITTED TO MIX UNDER NAZI RULE.

"YOU HAVE NO IDEA HOW WE WERE WATCHED," MRS. LAUFS SAID.

THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT HAS ASKED ALL AMERICAN CITIZENS TO REGISTER TOMORROW. SEVERAL ALREADY HAVE DROPPED INTO CALL ON CAPT. HASKELL.

ONE OF THEM, MRS. LYDIA MELLIAND OF STOCKTON, CALIF., WANTED PERMISSION TO START A NEWSPAPER. HER LATE HUSBAND WAS A PUBLISHER. ANOTHER WAS EDWARD BENDER OF SEATTLE, WASH., WHO, HASKELL SAID, WANTED TO KNOW HOW SOON HE COULD GET BACK TO THE STATES.

THE TRAPPED SCOTS FOUGHT FURIOUSLY AND REINFORCEMENTS RUSHED UP FROM THE RHINE RESTORED THE LINES, LAYING THE WAY FOR TODAY'S NEW ADVANCE NORTHWARD.

OPPOSITION IS COMING FROM THREE BATTALIONS OF REPLACEMENT TROOPS OF THE SKILLED GROSS DEUTSCHLAND OUTFIT, WHO HAD BEEN SHIFTED SINCE JANUARY FROM THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

THERE ALSO ARE UNITS OF THE 15TH PANZER GRENADIER DIVISION, AND THEY ARE MAKING THE MOST OF THE RAIN-SOAKED, MARSHY COUNTRY.

THE GROSS DEUTSCHLAND UNITS ARE STRUNG ALL THROUGH THE GENERAL AREA DOWN TO THE AREA OF IBBENBUEREN, WHERE BRITISH TROOPS ALSO WERE BATTLING PICKED TROOPS FROM OFFICERS AND NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS' TRAINING SCHOOLS.

THE REASON FOR THE STUBBORN RESISTANCE IN THIS AREA IS NOT ENTIRELY CLEAR. ONE PURPOSE UNDOUBTEDLY IS TO PREVENT USE OF THE IMPORTANT AIR BASES AT AJ

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, GERMANY, APRIL 6-(AP)-IN A LITTLE TOWN THROUGH WHICH AMERICAN TROOPS SWEPT SEVERAL DAYS AGO, A LARGE GERMAN PRISON STANDS IN EMPTY CONFUSION.

WHEN NAZI GUARDS FLED, THE INMATES WENT ON A RAMPAGE, SMASHING EVERYTHING THEY COULD, WRECKING DENTAL AND SURGICAL EQUIPMENT, SCATTERING PAPERS AND PLUNDERING STOCKS OF FOOD AND CLOTHING.

MILITARY GOVERNMENT DETACHMENTS UNDER LIEUT.EARL J.SHEEHAN, OF NORTHAMPTON, MASS., WITH DIFFICULTY RESCUED THE PRISON ROSTER SHOWING THE OFFENSES AND SENTENCES OF INMATES.

IT IS UNDERSTANDABLE THAT SUDDENLY LIBERATED PRISONERS SHOULD CELEBRATE THEIR LIBERATION RIOTOUSLY. NEVERTHELESS THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT NEEDS CAPTURED AND UNDAMAGED GERMAN INSTITUTIONS AND EQUIPMENT--PARTICULARLY MEDICAL AND DENTAL EQUIPMENT.

MANY MILITARY GOVERNMENT OFFICERS SAY THEIR MOST DISTURBING PROBLEM IS "HANDLING THE DEEPEES"--DEEPEE BEING THE SHORT ARMY TERM FOR DISPLACED PERSONS. IT IS ESTIMATED THERE ARE SOME 12,000,000 OF THESE DISPLACED PERONS--MOSTLY FOREIGN WORKERS--INSIDE GERMANY.

AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE AFTER AN AREA IS TAKEN BY AMERICAN TROOPS, THESE DEEPEES ARE DIRECTED TO EMERGENCY CAMPS WHERE AN ATTEMPT IS MADE TO FEED AND HOUSE THEM ADEQUATELY, KEEP THEM CONTENTED, AND PERSUADE THEM TO BE PATIENT UNTIL THEIR REPATRIATION CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED.

THE TENDENCY HAS BEEN TO LET THEM WANDER IN AND OUT BETWEEN MEALS AND AT THE SAME TIME DISCOURAGE THEM FROM CLUTTERING UP MILITARY ROADS BY UNDERTAKING A HOMEWARD HIKE INDEPENDENTLY.

MANY BECOME RESTLESS, OTHERS DISCONTENTED WITH FOOD OR CAMP MANAGEMENT. SOME WANDER OUT INTO THE NEAREST TOWN TO LOOK FOR CLOTHES AND SOUVENIRS. OFTEN THEY GET PISTOLS OR OTHER WEAPONS THAT WAY.

THEN OCCASIONALLY MILITARY GOVERNMENT OFFICERS RECEIVE COMPLAINTS FROM TERRIFIED GERMANS WHO SAY THEIR HOMES HAVE BEEN ENTERED. OFFICERS INTERRUPT SUCH FORAYS, DISARMING ANY DEEPEES THEY FIND CARRYING WEAPONS.

STOCKHOLM, APRIL 6-(AP)-SWEDEN AND OTHER NEUTRAL COUNTRIES ARE BEING BURIED UNDER A LANDSLIDE OF PROPAGANDA RUMORS THESE DAYS AS THE SITUATION INSIDE GERMANY GROWS MORE CONFUSED.

ALLIED PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE AIMED AT PANICKING THE GERMANS STARTS MANY RUMORS. OTHERS BEGIN IN BROADCASTS BY SO-CALLED GERMAN LANGUAGE "ILLEGAL SENDERS" WHICH ARE WIDELY HEARD HERE AND IN SWITZERLAND. ATLANTIC RADIO, ANTI-NAZI STATION, IS THE MOST POPULAR; IT INTERSPERSES DANCE MUSIC WITH PROPAGANDA INTENDED TO SPREAD CONFUSION AMONG THE GERMANS.

REFUGEES, NEUTRALS AND OTHER INFORMANTS COMING OUT OF GERMANY FREQUENTLY DESCRIBE HOW RUMORS STARTED BY SUCH BROADCASTING STATIONS SPREAD THROUGH THE REICH. THEY ARE TOLD AND RETOLD AND EMBROIDERED.

SOME SWEDISH NEWSPAPERS CARRY THE DATELINE "ATLANTIC RADIO" ON STORIES CONCERNING THE STATION'S BROADCASTS. OTHERS CAREFULLY NAME THE SOURCES OF SENSATIONAL REPORTS. STILL OTHERS MERELY LABEL THEM "SPECIAL." IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO CHECK ANY OF THESE RUMORS, AND IN THE MAIN THEY ARE CLEARLY WITHOUT FOUNDATION.

AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT CAN HAPPEN:

TWO DAYS AGO ATLANTIC RADIO RUMORED THAT THE GUARD AT HITLER'S BERCHTESGADEN HEADQUARTERS HAD BEEN DOUBLED OR TRIPLED BECAUSE OF FEAR OF A NEW OFFICERS' COUP.

YESTERDAY, SWEDISH PAPERS CARRIED THE SAME RUMOR FROM SWIZTERLAND WITH THE EMBELLISHMENT THAT THE ACTION WAS TAKEN BECAUSE OF A FEAR OF BRITISH PARACHUTISTS. THEY ADDED THAT HITLER HAD REMOVED "VICTORY MAPS" FROM HIS BERCHTESGADEN WORKROOM.

OBSERVERS SUGGESTED THAT THE JAPANESE MAY HAVE ABANDONED THE ENTIRE NORTHERN SECTION OF OKINAWA BECAUSE OF A SHORTAGE OF TROOPS, AS THEY DID THE EIGHT KERAMA ISLANDS 15 TO 25 MILES TO THE WEST WHICH WERE SEIZED BY THE 77TH DIVISION BEFORE THE OKINAWA INVASION.
ONE OFFICER WITH INVASION FORCES SUGGESTED THE JAPANESE MAY HAVE BEEN "CAUGHT BY SURPRISE AND DIDN'T HAVE NEARLY AS MANY TROOPS AS THEY CHOULD AND SHOULD HAVE." HIS ESTIMATE INVOLVEDK NO REDUCTION IN THE 60,000 OR MORE NIPPONESE SOLDIERS BELIEVED TO GARRISON THE ISLAND.

MANILA, SATURDAY, APRIL 7-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS USED BOILING OIL AND FIRE AGAINST ONE STUBBORN CENTER OF JAPANESE RESISTANCE TODAY AS NEW ADVANCES WERE MADE IN VARIOUS PHILIPPINE SECTORS.
THE OIL WAS POURED--IN A MODERN ADAPTATION OF THE MEDIEVAL CASTLE DEFENSE TECHNIQUE--ON THE HEADS OF JAPANESE HOLDING OUT IN PITS AND CAVES ON CABALLO ISLAND.
THEN, AS THE INFLAMMABLE LIQUID SEAPED THROUGH CLIFF CREVICES OF THE SMALL, ROCKY NEIGHBOR OF MANILA BAY'S FAMED CORREGIDOR, AMERICAN TRACER BULLETS AND PHOSPHOROUS SHELLS SET IT AFIRE.
JAPANESE RESISTANCE WAS THUS SNUFFED OUT IN PIT AFTER PIT AS THE NOVEL METHOD, DEVISED TO AID THE 38TH DIVISION'S 12-DAY BATTLE TO CLEAR THE ISLAND, WAS INAUGURATED YESTERDAY. ENGINEERS SAID IT WOULD BE USED UNTIL REMAINING JAPANESE SURRENDERED OR ARE WIPED OUT.
GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S FRIDAY COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED CONTINUED AMERICAN ADVANCES ON LUZON, NEGROS AND CEBU ISLANDS AND ALSO REPORTED THE SECOND CONSECUTIVE DAILY BOMBER ATTACK ON HONGKONG, TUESDAY BY PHILIPPINE-BASED PLANES.
THE NEARLY 50 FIGHTER-ESCORTED BOMBERS DROPPED 168 TONS OF 1,000 POUNDERS ON HONGKONG WATERFRONT INSTALLATIONS AND SHIPPING, BRINGING THE TOTAL FOR THE TWO DAYS TO 294 TONS. NINE MERCHANT SHIPS WERE SUNK TUESDAY AND TWO OTHERS AND A DESTROYER DAMAGED. OIL STORAGE TANKS WERE SET AFIRE. ALL THE PLANES RETURNED TO BASES.
IN THE CONTINUED AIR BLOCKADE OF THE CHINA SEA, FIVE MORE JAPANESE SHIPS WERE "WRECKED", THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED. THE BLOCKADE PLANES ALSO BOMBED RAILROAD BRIDGES ON THE INDO-CHINA COAST AND GUN POSITIONS ON NORTH HAINAN ISLAND. ONE PLANE WAS LOST.

OTHER BOMBERS KEPT UP THE DAILY RAIDS ON FORMOSA, BOMBING AND STRAFING GROUNDED ENEMY PLANES, ALCOHOL FACTORIES AND RAILROAD TARGETS IN THE KAGI AREA. NIGHT PATROL PLANES BOMBED KEELUNG AND SHINCHIKU.
AN AIR ATTACK ON BORNEO STARTED FIRES IN THE TARAKAN OIL STORAGE AREA AND 16 JAPANESE COASTAL CRAFT WERE WRECKED BY PATROL PLANES OFF THE CELEBES SOUTHERN COAST.
THE OIL-FIRE RIG ON CABALLO, CONSISTING OF A BIG PUMP AND 1,000 FEET OF FLEXIBLE PIPE, WAS DEVISED BY CAPT.EMORY L.WILLIAMS, TULSA, OKLA.

VICE ADMIRAL TURNER'S FLAGSHIP, OFF OKINAWA, APRIL 5-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE POSSIBILITY THAT JAPANESE HAVE LARGELY ABANDONED NORTHERN OKINAWA AS THEY DID THE KERAMA ISLANDS GREW TODAY AS MARINES OF THE THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS ROLLED FIVE TO EIGHT MILES NORTHWARD ALONG COASTAL ROADS WITH ONLY THE SPOTTIEST KIND OF RESISTANCE.

ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT, THE SEVENTH INFANTRY DIVISION ADVANCED UP TO 3,000 YARDS ON THE EAST COAST, DRAWING ABREAST OR AHEAD OF OTHER 24TH ARMY CORPS UNITS ALONG THE WEST COAST. SOME OF THE LATTER WITHDREW SLIGHTLY TO CONSOLIDATED BEFORE PLUNGING AHEAD INTO WHAT APPEARS TO BE A POSSIBLE STRONG DEFENSE LINE STRETCHED ACROSS THE APPROACHES TO MACHINATO AND YONABARU AIRSTRIPS.

ONE OBSERVER REMARKED THAT "MAYBE THE JAPANESE ABANDONED NORTHERN OKINAWA AS THEY DID THE KERAMA GROUP BECAUSE OF A SHORTAGE OF TROOPS. THERE IS AN INCREASING POSSIBILITY THE JAPANESE WERE CAUGHT BY SURPRISE AND DIDN'T HAVE NEARLY AS MANY TROOPS AS THEY COULD AND SHOULD HAVE."

NEVERTHELESS, THERE APPEARS TO BE NO DISPOSITION YET TO REDUCE THE UNOFFICIAL ESTIMATE OF 60,000 TO 80,000 ENEMY TROOPS HERE, MOSTLY IN THE SOUTH. AFTER ALL, THE JAPANESE HAD 20,000 IN AN AREA TWO BY FOUR MILES ON IWO JIMA AND IN SOUTHERN OKINAWA THEY HAVE AN AREA SIX BY TEN MILES.

MEANWHILE, BRIG. GEN. DAVID H. BLAKELOCK, LT. GEN. SIMON BOLIVAR BUCKNER'S ASSISTANT CHIEF OF STAFF FOR SUPPLY, DISCLOSED AMPHIBIOUS CRAFT HAVE BEEN DISCHARGING A TONNAGE OF SUPPLIES DAILY ACROSS THE REEF ONTO OKINAWA COMPARING FAVORABLY WITH THE NORMANDY OPERATION.

SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 6-(AP)-JAPANESE PRESS AND RADIO DISPATCHES CALLED ON ADM. BARON KANTARO SUZUKI, PREMIER-DESIGNATE OF JAPAN, TODAY TO FORM A "STRONG WAR CABINET". APR 7 1945

THE JAPANESE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY PREDICTED IN A DISPATCH RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION THAT BEFORE THE DAY IS OUT SUZUKI WOULD HAVE COMPLETED FORMATION OF A NEW CABINET TO SUCCEED THE FALLEN GOVERNMENT OF GEN. KUNIAKI KOISO.

DOMEI SAID ADMIRAL SUZUKI CONFERRED FIRST WITH THE FORMER WAR AND NAVY MINISTERS, FIELD MARSHAL GEN (CORRECT) SUGIYAMA AND ADM. MITSUMASA YONAI, TO GET THEIR RECOMMENDATIONS ON THEIR SUCCESSORS FOR JAPAN'S THIRD WARTIME GOVERNMENT. THE JAPANESE ARMY AND NAVY NAME THE WAR AND NAVY MINISTERS, A PREREQUISITE TO THE FORMATION OF EACH NEW CABINET.

THE NEWS AGENCY SAID THAT THE FALL OF KOISO'S GOVERNMENT YESTERDAY GAVE THE MILITARY AND THE PEOPLE AN OPPORTUNITY TO "REALLY UNITE AND CREATE A SOLID, STRONG WARTIME CABINET THAT IS EQUAL TO THE FIERCE WAR SITUATION." "REAL UNIT" WAS THE PERSISTENT DEMAND OF CRITICS OF KOISO'S GOVERNMENT.

"TODAY WHEN THE ENEMY IS AT OUR DOORSTEP WE EARNESTLY HOPE FOR THE CREATION OF A STRONG WAR CABINET," DOMEI SAID. "IN SHOULDERING THE DESTINY OF OUR COUNTRY, THE NEW GOVERNMENT MUST EXERT STRONG LEADERSHIP.

"IT MUST BECOME A FIGHTING CABINET AND WELD THE SPIRIT OF THE NATION'S 100,000,000 PEOPLE INTO A POWERFUL, DETERMINED UNIT. THIS IS THE ONLY EFFECTIVE WAY TO WIN VICTORY."

JAPANESE PROPAGANDISTS INSISTED THE DOWNFALL OF KOISO'S CABINET DID NOT MEAN A CHANGE IN THE NATION'S BASIC WAR POLICIES. HOWEVER, AUTHORITIES IN THE UNITED STATES FAMILIAR WITH JAPAN HAVE SUGGESTED THAT SELECTION OF SUZUKI, A MODERATE, TO HEAD THE NEW GOVERNMENT MAY MEAN THAT JAPAN IS PREPARED TO PUT OUT PEACE FEELERS IN THE HOPE OF NEGOTIATING AN END TO THE WAR.

RADIO TOKYO SAID "THE FOUNDATION OF OUR NATION HAS NOT BEEN EFFECTED IN THE LEAST, AS WAS THE CASE DURING THE TOJO CABINET CRISIS, (PREMIER GEN. HIDEKI TOJO'S CABINET FELL LAST JULY) THE NATIONAL POLICY FOR THE PROSECUTION OF THE WAR REMAINS UNCHANGED."

A BROADCAST QUOTED THE NEWSPAPER ASAHI AS EDITORIALIZING, "THE NEW ADMINISTRATION MUST BE CARRIED OUT WITH THE ADMINISTRATIVE AUTHORITIES GIVING GENERAL COOPERATION TO THE MILITARY COMMAND, WHILE THE MILITARY COMMAND MUST HAVE COMPLETE CONFIDENCE IN THE POWER OF THE ADMINISTRATION."

PARIS, April 7.—(AP) U. S. Ninth army tanks outflanked Hannover today in an 18-mile drive that swept across the Leine river 10 miles southeast of the city and roared down the direct road to Berlin—140 miles ahead.

On their south flank the U. S. First army crossed the Weser river at numerous points against [illegible] resistance and west of the stream was locked in a raging battle with German troops held in their battle positions by their pistol-pointing officers.

NIGHT

Smash Toward Bremen

On the north flank the British Second army drove on east of the Weser to a point 20 miles west of Hannover as its tanks speared northward to within 20 miles of the big port of Bremen.

The U. S. Third army struck the tottering Reich a resounding economic blow by capturing Germany's "Fort Knox," an underground storehouse in Thuringia containing 100 tons of bullion—said to be all the nation's gold reserve—and billions in currency and art treasures.

At the same time, the Third army shattered the first big counterblow aimed at its spearheads thurst within 130 miles of Berlin by knocking out 40 tanks in a melee west of Muelhausen.

Bled white by disasters east and west of the Rhine, the once-mighty German army seemed powerless to stem the big push on Berlin and a U. S. First army staff officer declared confidently:

"The German army no longer is capable of maintaining a cohesive front. We are entering the final mop-up stage."

From the salient thurst up near the North Sea southeastward for 300 miles to the Siegfried Line in the edge of the Black Forest, this was the front by front situation in what the Germans themselves called "the battle of decision":

The Canadian First army fanned out 35 miles south of the North Sea, cutting road after road on the diked lowlands of Holland which two hemmed-in German armies must have for attack or retreat.

Planes Hit Retreating Nazis

Allied planes clamped an aerial seal-off on the 19-mile lane of retreat running up around the Zuider Zee from Amsterdam and Rotterdam, roaring out of the clouds and pounding everything that moved.

The British Second army in gains up to 35 miles was quickly sealing the fate of Bremen, seat of Germany's once vast sea traffic, and was threatening to cut off the Danish peninsula and every enemy naval base on the North Sea.

Farther south, tough British parachute troops drove 12 miles beyond the Weser river to a point 20 miles west of Hannover, the city which gave them England's present royal dynasty.

The U. S. Ninth army, besides outflanking Hannover in a drive 140 miles west of Berlin, crashed 13 miles through the roof of the Ruhr pocket, knocking out Soest—a city 16 miles southeast of fallen Hamm which the 125,000 trapped Germans had converted into a keystone for their stand-and-die defense.

The U. S. First army, while knocking in the sides of the Ruhr pocket from the east and south, turned on its main power once more toward Berlin and crossed the Weser 160 miles west of the Reich's capital. It was swinging up to or across the Weser on a 35-mile front.

The U. S. Third army rammed a second armored spearhead 130 miles southwest of Berlin and from its menacing positions 165 miles of the Rhine was building power swiftly for renewed blows.

Its forces were in the best position to link up with the Russians—170 miles to the east—and to cut Germany in half by driving the last 58 miles to the border of Czechoslovakia.

Seventh Nears Nuernberg

The U. S. Seventh army was driving toward the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg from positions 34 miles to the northwest amid indications that the once-strong resistance was sagging on this front.

The French First army was clawing along the Siegfried Line south of Karlsruhe, driving the enemy from bunker to bunker.

The German armies were being sapped so swiftly—40,094 more prisoners being counted Friday—that it seemed highly unlikely they would even be able to stand on the broad Elbe river, 50 miles west of Berlin.

The pace of the advance had stretched communications so badly that Supreme headquarters told correspondents that there was a considerable time lag between their reports and the actual advance.

That means that nearly everywhere along the line, Americans, British, Canadians and French might be well beyond positions reported here.

Dashing 18 miles beyond the Weser, the Second Armored division of Lt. Gen. William H. Sampson's U. S. Ninth army hurdled the Leine river and was driving east at a point 10 miles south of Hannover after capturing Elze and Schulenberg.

Thus these troops were in a position to by-pass this city of 472,000—twelfth largest in the Reich—or wheel north and take it from the rear, since the Leine screens it on the west.

The Eighth Armored division swung its weight into the battle to crush the Ruhr pocket, driving 13 miles into the basin from the northeast.

Nazis Battle in Hamelin

Behind the Second Armored division, which was striking only spotty resistance, the Germans fought stubbornly in the fabled city of Hamelin and many an ancient building in this mecca of sightseers was being pounded into rubble.

The Second Armored division also was fighting through fields renowned for legend. Tanks overran the castle of Baron Muenchausen, originator of the tall tales that bore his name.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First army crossed the Weser northeast of Kassel. The Third Armored division, which outflanked the Ruhr, was once more spearheading the attack.

Infantry pushed seven miles eastward to a point 12 miles east of Kassel as blows were rained down on Hodges' 35-mile-wide front.

At one point the Americans fought out on a double-lane highway two and a half miles southeast of Muenden—at the eastern edge of the Hessian gap on the ancient invasion route to inner Germany.

Fifteen miles to the northwest, an armored column advanced nearly 5 miles to the vicinity of Trendelburg on the Diemel River.

The 7th Armored Division of the British 2d Army hammered within 20 miles of Bremen and drove into Buecken, 22 miles southeast of Bremen.

The 6th Airborne Division beyond the Weser drove 12 miles east from Petershagen to a point near Sachenhagen.

Keula Area Reached

The United States 3d Army's 6th Armored Division speared 7 miles northeast of Muehlhausen to the vicinity of Keula, about 130 miles from Berlin.

Fourteen miles southeast of Muehlhausen, the 65th Infantry Division cleared the enemy from the railway town of Langensalza.

The Canadian 1st Army fought into Dalen, but the Germans still fought bitterly in Zutphen.

On the eastern flank, the Canadians drove the Germans from the railway and highway center of Meppen.

Allies Only 12 Miles From Bremen, 10 From Hannover

APR 8 1945

With U.S. 1st Army, April 7 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's infantry crossed the Weser River northeast of Kassel today, the third Allied army to span this last major water obstacle before the Elbe. Tank columns thrust ahead 7 miles to Helmarshausen, 30 miles east of Paderborn.

Paris, April 7 (AP)—American tanks struck to within 10 miles of Hannover today in a breakout from their Weser bridgehead, and British armor fought less than 12 miles from the great port of Bremen.

DAY

Both Allied advances bearing down on the great northern German cities were still going strong this afternoon.

The United States 9th Army lashed out from Hamelin on the Weser River and careened 8 miles toward Hannover. The British plunge carried 35 miles, flanking Bremen and hitting to within 60 miles of Hamburg, Germany's third city.

Nazis Report Fierce Battle

The German high command declared a fierce battle was raging in the United States 3d Army territory east of Muehlhausen and within 130 miles or less of Berlin.

This is near the Eisleben area in which the Germans yesterday announced airborne operations within 90 miles of Berlin. Correspondents with 3d Army said they were unable to confirm or deny Eisleben area operations.

2d Armored Scores

The 9th Army's 2d Armored Division made the dash to a point 10 miles south of Hannover.

In the constricting Ruhr pocket, where thousands of Germans were being wiped out by the 1st and 9th armies, the 8th Armored Division, striking southward, gained 13 miles and cut the Dortmund-Soest highway. Hamm and Soest were cleared by the 9th Army.

Canadian armor shooting through Holland got within 9 miles of the last rail escape line for Germans in the great western Dutch cities, and within 19 miles of the Zuider Zee.

40,094 More Prisoners

Even as news of the latest swift advances by United States and British armor was received, supreme headquarters advised correspondents that the pace had so stretched communications and kept operational headquarters moving so much that a considerable time lag had developed between reported positions and actual advance points.

Allied forces took at least 40,094 prisoners yesterday. Reports were not yet in from three of the nine armies in the West.

British tanks in twin drives charged from Diepholz, 35 miles southwest of Bremen, on a beeline toward Hamburg, Germany's third city of 1,682,000. Armor reached an unidentified point a scant dozen miles from Bermen, and also Buecken, 22 miles southeast of the trans-Atlantic port, Buecken is a mile and a half from the Weser River, and 60 from Hamburg at the mouth of the Elbe, last natural barrier line left to the Germans short of Berlin.

Ruhr Pocket Squeezed In

Still farther south, American 1st Army troops pushed another 7 miles to a point 12 miles east of Kassel. Other 1st and 9th Army forces slowly compressed holdings of the 120,000 to 150,000 Germans trapped in the Ruhr.

The Canadian 1st Army drove 3 miles north of captured Coevorden into Dalen on the highway to Groningen in northern Holland. It was 9 miles from the Germans' sole remaining railway linking with Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague and Utrecht.

To the east, other Canadians fighting in Germany cleared Meppen, 48 miles south of Emden, and fought on at points 35 miles from the North Sea.

Still Fighting In Zutphen

Southwest of these actions, Canadian tanks battled a mile from Deventer, 16 miles from the Zuider Zee. Street fighting still raged in the moated city of Zutphen, 9 miles south of Deventer.

A Berlin broadcast declared a strong American force was advancing on Schweinfurt, site of heavily bombed bearing plants, from Gemuenden, on the Main 23 miles to the west.

American 7th Army troops were within 35 miles of Nuernberg on the northwest, and the Germans said 7th Army troops had reached Bartenstein, 53 miles west of the Nazi shrine city.

Bridgeheads Expanded

On the right flank of the British salient thrust at Bremen, the 11th Armored and 6th Airborne divisions expanded and deepened their Weser bridgeheads despite a counterattack led by seven Nazi tanks. Other British units to the west met moderately stiff resistance north of Rheine.

The United States 9th Army's 2d Armored Division was fighting in the streets of the Pied Piper town of Hamelin after throwing its wedge across the Weser.

The Canadian 4th Armored Division repulsed heavy German counterattacks supported by artillery before capturing Meppen, a vital communication center.

Fighting In Ruhr Pocket

First Army troops closing in on the Ruhr pocket cleared fanatical defenders from two factories and a barracks on the northern out skirts of Siegen and made adavnces of up to 5,000 yards against moderate to stiff resistance in the Siegen area.

The 1st Army has taken 7,243 prisoners in the last 24 hours.

In the 1st's eastward surge its tanks met determined opposition from enemy self-propelled guns and intrenched riflemen. Infantrymen to the south found the going easier. The Germans apparently are unable to man the long defense line beyond Kassel in strength.

35 And 70-Mile Fronts

Jumping off after dawn for the third consecutive day of the double directional attack—they have a 35-mile assault front to the east and a 70-mile fighting front along the Ruhr pocket—Hodges's men pushed ahead under clear skies suitable for strong air support.

Continuing the envelopment of [illegible] Weser River bis[illegible] Muenden on the Weser River, his infantrymen reached a double-line military highway 10 miles northeast of Kassel and 2½ miles southeast of Muenden.

To the north, an armored column took Buchne after a 2,000-yard gain and other tanks moved up 5,000 yards and captured Borgentreich. After the infantry had cleared Borgentreich, the armor moved 3 miles farther east to the vicinity of Trendelberg on the Diemel River.

Wingeshausen Taken

Increasing pressure on the Ruhr pocket, 1st Army infantry fought ahead almost 4 miles through stiff resistance to take Wingeshausen and Fleckenberg, the latter 2 miles southwest of Schmallenberg. German strong points in Siegen were cleared.

North of Schladern the 78th Infantry Division gained 2,000 yards before clashing with three companies of counterattacking German infantry supported by tanks.

Third Army troops, rushing up supplies for a last-lap drive, built up a striking force on the Thuringian Plain in an arc facing Erfurt and Jena.

Keula Area Reached

The 3d Army's 6th Armored Division advanced 7 miles northeast to the vicinity of Keula, 8 miles north of Muehlhausen, and the 65th Infantry cleared Langensalza, 10 miles north of Gotha.

A counterattack by 400 Germans at Struth, 5 miles west of Muehlhausen, at 5 A.M. today was repulsed by American tanks which recaptured the village.

Another German counterattack took place in the Badsooden area farther west and fighting was still going on.

Seventh Army Advances.

American Seventh Army troops were within thirty-five miles of Nuernberg on the northwest, and the Germans said Seventh Army troops had reached Bartenstein, fifty-three miles west of the Nazi shrine city.

A Berlin broadcast also declared a strong American force was advancing on Schweinfurt, site of heavily bombed bearing plants, from Gemuenden, on the Main, twenty-three miles to the west.

German prisoners continued to pour in at a rate which was sapping the Wehrmacht too thin to hold the Weser Line. There was little chance of a successful stand on the Elbe, the last river barrier before Berlin. In the first five days of April 146,723 Germans were captured on the broken western front and probably 20,000 more were killed or seriously wounded.

100 TONS OF GOLD FOUND HIDDEN IN SALT MINE VAULT

German Officials Claim Bullion Represents 'All the Gold in Germany'.

MOVED FROM BERLIN

Nazi Tanks Attack in Desperate Bid to Recapture Hitler's Treasure.

Ball & Werner

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, April 7—(AP) The golden treasure of Adolf Hitler's collapsing Reich—more than 100 tons of gold bullion, the currencies of many nations, and stacks of priceless art works—was captured today by the Third army in an underground vault that may shorten the war by robbing the German army of its payroll.

NIGHT

The stupendous cache, its full value as yet undetermined but possibly worth billions of dollars, was found in a hidden salt mine at Merkers, 18 miles southeast of Hersfeld, when two talkative German women spilled the secret to military police.

Represents "All Gold in Reich"

Reichsbank officials on the spot said the bullion represented "all the gold in Germany," and the German army gave some confirmation by trying desperately to get back into Merkers today with a heavy counterattack in the Mulhausen area 30 miles north, in which the U.S. Armored and 65th Infantry divisions knocked out 40 enemy tanks and smashed the attack.

Some 200 British prisoners of war who had been employed in the mine, which is called the Werks Kaiseroda, said they had seen 20 ten-ton truckloads of gold unloaded in the mine. This would mean 200 tons of gold, but the German bankers insisted that something over 100 tons was the correct amount.

The gold still is under seal in a huge subterranean vault, and Third army officers said its value would not be known until American finance officers break the seals and audit the hoard. They expressed belief, however, that the German bankers undoubtedly were telling the truth.

Going down into the mine in a big double-decker elevator, officers of the 90th Infantry division, which made the find, did inspect the vast quantities of German, U.S., British and other currencies and the great crates of painting and other art works.

One of the captured officials said the currency was particularly needed by the German army to meet payrolls and buy goods from Switzerland or Sweden and that it could not be replaced. Allied bombings had smashed German engraving plants.

Informed By 2 Women

The 90th's unusual haul came about in quaint fashion. The division entered the little salt-mining village Thursday, knowing nothing of the cache. Last night two German women were found on the street after curfew. They explained to military police that they were looking for a midwife for a friend who was having a baby. During the course of the conversation the women mentioned that something of great value had been stored recently in the mine.

The division already had found that Dr. Fritz Vieck, one of the eight directors of the Reichsbank, two other bank officials, and Dr. P. O. Rabe, curator of the German state museum were in Merkers. Division officers told the Germans to show up today at the mine for a treasure hunt. The Germans did so, and—once the secret was out—talked freely.

The booty in the mine comprised 100 tons of gold bullion (about $100,000,000); three billion German marks, two million dollars in American currency, one hundred million French francs, 110,000 British pounds, four million Norwegian crowns and lesser amounts in Turkish pounds, Spanish pesetas and Portuguese escudos.

The art treasure, assembled from Germany's national art galleries last February, included originals by Raphael, Van Dyke and Durer. There also were 120 cases of Goethe's original manuscripts.

The Germans started moving their gold reserve and currency from Berlin Feb. 11, Dr. Vieck said.

A few days ago, as Patton's troops pressed ever nearer the hiding place, the Germans started frantically to move the treasure from the salt mine, the bank official said. But their efforts were thwarted by blown-up bridges and they had to return it a few days ago to the 2,100-foot deep mine.

A German lawyer, captured with Vieck and who said he was one of the Reichsbank's counsels, said the German army tried at first to get everything out but the Americans were coming so fast that they just concentrated on the money. In the end they had to leave everything.

Patton ringed the golden salt mine—reputed to be one of the world's largest—with a circle of tanks.

The German officials said the gold was in a chamber 400 feet long by 70 feet wide and was stacked three feet high in bars weighing 35 pounds each. The currency was carefully done up in bags.

Examine Art Works

The American officers also examined many art works which the Germans insisted were only those belonging to German museums—none from countries previously occupied by German troops. The works included paintings, tapestries, statuary, engravings, coats of mail dating from Roman times and many Egyptian relics.

These included 400 paintings from the national museum, 300 cases of paintings from the Emperor Frederick galleries, 300 cases from the German Museum of Sculpture, an equal number from the Egyptian Museum, and 200 cases of etchings from the Kopperstech Museum.

Paintings were carefully identified by a lithographed copy on each side of their crates. In addition there were huge stacks of paintings which had not been packed at all.

Over the entrance to the treasure vault there still blazed a neon sign: "Heil Hitler."

Officials in Washington said the booty would be impounded and later turned over to the United Nations commission to decide what should be done.

Identifiable loot such as paintings would come under restitution plans and be sent back to the country from which it was stolen, those sources said.

Handling of the rest of the gold and money would depend on how the Germans got it. It might come either under the Allied Control commission which is to be set up to run Germany or the Allied Reparations commission.

While there are no accurate figures in Washington on Germany's exact store of gold now, officials are willing to believe the hundred million dollars probably represented by far the biggest chunk of Germany's reserves.

Last published holdings were those of the Reich Bank in 1938 which were $29,000,000. However, since then, Germany has captured considerable gold stocks in Czechoslovakia, Poland and other European countries.

Reichsbank Official, Also Seized, Says It Is All the Gold in Germany.

WORKS OF ART ALSO TAKEN

Millions of Dollars' Worth of American and British Currency Found.

With the Third Army, April 7 (A. P.).—German gold reserves estimated at 100 tons of bullion, plus vast amounts of currency and art treasures, have been found in a salt mine by the Third Army near Moeckers, twenty-five miles southwest of Gotha.

[With gold at $35 an ounce, the 100 tons of bullion is worth about $100,000,000.]

Dr. Fritz Vieck, Reichbank representative at the deposit, told officers the bullion represented "all the gold in Germany." He said it had been removed from Berlin over a period of five weeks beginning February 11. The bank official said the Germans started to move the treasure from the 2,100-foot deep salt mine a few days ago, but were thwarted by blown bridges.

Yanks Move Too Quick.

A German lawyer, who was one of the Reichsbank's attorneys, captured with Vieck, said the Nazi army tried at first to get out everything, but the Americans were coming so fast they concentrated on the currency. In the end, he said, they had to leave everything.

Besides the gold the booty included three billion marks in currency, $2,000,000 in American currency, 100,000,000 French francs, 110,000 British pounds, 4,000,000 Norwegian crowns and lesser amounts in Turkish, Spanish and Portuguese currency.

The art treasures, which the Germans began assembling in the mine from their national art galleries last February, include originals by Raphael, Rembrandt, Van Dyke and Duerer. There also were 120 cases of original manuscripts by Goethe.

Ninetieth Infantry Division troops who made the seizure captured three Reichbank officials, including Dr. Vieck, one of the bank's advisers, and Dr. P. O. Rabe, curator of the German State Museum and assistant director of the National Art Galleries in Berlin.

100 Royal Tiger Tanks Seized in Nazi Plant

KASSEL, Germany, April 7—(AP) One hundred Royal Tiger tanks under construction were captured by infantry in the vast plant where workmen kept the giant Nazi machines rolling off assembly lines even as American troops fought into Kassel, it was disclosed today.

Some Kassel-built tanks even now are fighting from dug-in positions northeast of Kassel, where they were trundled in such a hurry that workers had no time to paint over their bright red lead daubing.

They were turned out in one corner of the ruins of the huge Henschel plant, once reported to be the largest locomotive works in the world. Although the plant, had been badly damaged by a series of heavy RAF raids beginning in August 1942, it had been able to keep feeding a steady stream of tanks of the Nazi war machine.

Van Fleet Appointed 3d Corps Commander

U.S. 1st Army Headquarters, April 7 (AP)—Maj. Gen. James A. Van Fleet is now commanding the United States 3d Army Corps on the Western front, it was disclosed officially today.

Van Fleet, whose rise has been one of the most spectacular of the European campaign, landed on D-day last June as a colonel in command of the 8th Regiment of the 4th Infantry Division.

He performed so well in combat that his regiment won a Presidential citation and Van Fleet was promoted in turn to assistant commander of the 2d Infantry Division and then commander of the 90th Infantry Division. He is 53 years old and a native of Auburndale, Fla.

With the U.S. 3d Army, April 7 (AP)—The 3d Army's four hundred thousandth prisoner is scheduled to pass through its cages today. Lieut. George S. Patton's men have taken 388,873 since they went into action. Yesterday's bag was 14,343, for a total of 86,013 in the current 16-day-old operation.

Count Metternich's Slaves Rise And Take Over His Vast Estate

By Don Whitehead

FUERSTENBERG, Germany, April 7 (AP).—Triumphant foreign laborers liberated from the Nazi yoke by the eastward sweep of 1st Army infantry and armor have seized the broad, fertile acres of Count Metternich, Hitler's curator of arts, and set up the first little Communist community in western Germany.

Now the Russians and Czechs finally recalled against years of repression and took over the running of the rich fedual estate with the white-haired Count and Countess Metternich virtual prisoners in their own great castle.

It is another strange story out of many strange stories among these people who came to work for the "master race" and suddenly found themselves free again with no fear of the Gestapo hanging over them.

When war came, Metternich, professor of history and arts at the famed University of Bonn where the sons of German aristocracy automatically enrolled in former years, needed laborers to till the soil and carry on the work at his four huge estates near here.

Through the Nazi labor office he obtained approximately 1,000 men and women who were under the charge of overseers.

The count himself had little time to oversee his sprawling farms because of his duties as curator of all art treasures in German-occupied territory. One of these duties was superintending the moving of art treasures from the Louvre, such as the Mona Lisa and Venus de Milo.

If any worker became unruly all Metternich had to do was to call in the Gestapo and have him removed to a concentration camp. If the workers didn't like their filthy quarters in the barns or became sullen because the food they ate was not the rich fare enjoyed by the German overseers and workers, then that was too bad.

Those Russians and Poles and Czechs never forgot any brutality by the overseers and they remembered the pregnant woman who was beaten because she dared to steal milk.

Then the Americans came and 250 slaves on one 250-acre farm decided their lives should be changed and that they should enjoy some of the fruits of their labor.

The Russians' officer assumed the title of commissar and with his good friend, the Polish officer with one eye, they established a Communist center and demanded all keys from the bewildered and frightened overseer. The overseer managed to escape from the farm and came rushing in to Captain Erhard Dabringhaus, of Roseville, Mich.

"The Poles and Russians are going to kill us all," he cried.

Dabringhaus investigated and this is what he found:

Count Metternich's Westphalian estate had become a Communist center.

"For five years we watched them eat eggs," one Russian growled. "Now we eat eggs."

They were having steaks three times a day or as many times as they wished. There was plenty of milk to drink and the farm's stores of food had become community property.

"It was like a movie," Dabringhaus said. "There were steaks broiling all day long. Workers released from other farms have joined this community and the doors are not barred to any one who wants food and shelter."

The Russian and the Pole now were running the show—but the major difficulty was that no one wanted to go back to work. The overseer no longer had authority and the workers no longer feared the stick he carried. So the Russian and Dabringhaus sought to make them see the wisdom of returning to their jobs until such time as they could be returned to their homes.

The Russians confided to Dabringhaus, "I'm no more a commissar than you are, but they will listen to me if I call myself the commissar."

PATTON'S SON-IN-LAW LIBERATED IN REICH

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, Germany, April 7—(AP) Lt. Col. John K. Waters, son-in-law of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was among 5,000 Allied prisoners liberated yesterday by a column of the 14th Armored division southeast of Hannover.

Col. Waters had been a prisoner since his capture in North Africa early in 1943.

Among those freed were more than 100 sick or wounded American officers.

The camp, designated by the Germans as official quarters for American officers, was partly evacuated last week, the Germans moving an estimated 1,500 Americans deeper into the Reich.

The rescue column which reached there yesterday was led by Lt. Col. James P. Lann of Amory, Miss. It raced 20 miles through artillery and mortar fire and bazooka-firing German infantry.

Pied Piper Town Fails To Act Like Fairyland

G. I.s Find Hamelin Folk Drunk or Busy Looting

HAMELIN, Germany, April 7 (AP).—Americans of the 30th Division entered Hamelin today and found a good proportion of the population of the Pied Piper town drunk. Those not drunk were running around squealing on the local Nazis, looting [illegible]'s shattered homes or fawning on the Americans.

Also found in this picturesque town of fairy-tale fame were a dozen hospitals filled with German soldiers and a handful of Allied wounded.

Most of the important Nazis departed before the Americans arrived. When the Americans showed up the civilians immediately busied themselves trying to get the troops to arrest their enemies on charges of being Nazis.

One Nazi official taken by the 30th tried to hang himself, but was restrained. However, another blew his brains out when G.Is came to arrest him.

"Saved us a lot of trouble," remarked an officer.

One Bazooka Shot Helps Take Hamm

Hamm, Germany, April 7 (AP)—This rail center of Europe fell to the United States 9th Army after a bazooka shot exploded three truckloads of dynamite the Germans were rushing across the ten-rail bridge over the Dortmund-Ems Canal in a suicide effort to halt the American drive.

And now that the city is captured, German civilians say there has not been a train through here for more than a month. The yards, which once handled traffic on the main line from Paris to Berlin and freight bound in four directions, had become nothing more than a rusting, twisted mass of steel rails and broken rolling stock.

The walls of the station still stand, but they are windowless. The whole bomb-rubbled place would remind an American of a Western ghose town.

Hamm's green-uniformed police, a force of 126 men, stood at attention before the railroad station while a long line of liberated slave-laborers from all over Europe walked by, starting their long trudge homeward.

Munchausen Castle Falls

Americans Occupy Home of Tall-Tale Telling Baron

WITH THE UNITED STATES 2D ARMORED DIVISION, April 7 (AP).—The 2d Armored Division has captured Baron Munchausen's castle, where the legend of the Munchausen tales is said to have started.

The first book of Munchausen stories was written in 1785 by Rudolf Erich Raspe, who had become acquainted at Goettingen with Freiherr Von Munchausen, of Bodenwerder, a teller of amusing tales of his prowess as soldier and sportsman. Bodenwerder is twelve miles southeast of Hamelin.

Nazi Battle Seen In Mopup Stage

With U.S. 1st Army, April 7 (AP). A 1st Army staff officer said today that the German Army "no longer is capable of maintaining a cohesive Western front—we are entering the final mopup stage."

The officer described the remaining enemy resistance as the "final Götterdämmerung of the German Wehrmacht and the national suicide of the German people."

The only coherent German fighting force on the Western front, he said, was Army Group B, the German 5th Panzer and the 15th Infantry armies which are now hopelessly trapped in the Ruhr-Sieg river pocket.

Fruits Of Remagen

Other enemy army groups in the West are no longer able to present solid lines, he said, adding:

"We are now reaping the fruits of the Remagen bridgehead."

The officer said the seizure of the Ludendorff bridge in an audacious gamble by the American 9th Armored Division on March 7 had completely disorganized German plans to build a strong defense line east of the Rhine.

"It is now most important, he added, "to put the Nazi troops in the Ruhr pocket in their graves or in our prisoner pens."

Sergeants in a German Prison Saw Men Fight for Unfit Food

By DON WHITEHEAD.

At an American Evacuation Hospital Near the Rhine, March 28 (Delayed by Censor) (A. P.).—Two gaunt American soldiers who almost died of starvation in a German prison camp near Limburg told today of brutal treatment in Stalag 12—the first such camp for Allied prisoners to be seized east of the Rhine.

They are safe now in this Rhine Valley hospital and before long they will be on their way home as soon as they recover a little more from the effects of prison life. They said the men were so hungry they would fight for food—food which a sick man could hardly eat. The guards sold small-sized potatoes for 100 Belgian francs each and a cigarette brought 250 francs.

The tag at the foot of the bed occupied by Staff Sergt. Francis Holley of Rome, N. Y., read. "Malnutrition due to starvation. Dysentery."

The farm youth's arms were thin and his tired blue eyes had a look of suffering which was put there since the morning in February when he was captured near Helierath in a waist deep snow as he went forward with a mortar observation squad from H Company of the First Division's Eighteenth Infantry Regiment.

Sergt. Holley and his men were pinned down by machine-gun and mortar fire and there was nothing left to do but surrender after two of the five men were wounded.

Nazis Behaved Like Japs.

His captors at the front treated him pretty well, he said—treated him like a soldier should be treated. But it was different the further he went back. He said that by the time he reached Flamerscheid there was not much to choose between the way the Germans were treating prisoners and what he had heard about the Japanese.

It took just twenty days at Flamerscheid to make a hospital case out of Sergt. Holley. He was marched thirty-six miles to a hospital—a march which he said killed one man. At the hospital he did get a special diet of thick soup, jam and cheese.

After eight days he was released from the hospital and sent to Limburg prison.

"Maybe they couldn't help it because the hospital was overcrowded," Sergt. Holley said. "They didn't have enough medicine and if anybody had a bad leg it meant amputation. Badly wounded men were lucky if they got their bandages changed every five days. They washed out the bandages and used them over and over again. They always were wet."

At 1 A. M. two days before the Americans entered Limburg the guards waked up the prisoners and loaded them into boxcars. Sergt. Holley slipped away in the fog and hid until tanks of the United States Ninth Armored Division rumbled into town.

In the bed next to Sergt. Holley was Sergt. Edgar D. Garwood of Troy, Ohio, who was captured last December near Marche when Field Marshal von Rundstedt made his bid to smash the Allied armies in the west. Sergt. Garwood was with the Thirty-fifth Regiment of the Eighty-fourth Division.

He was taken to the same train with Sergt. Holley. The prisoners were loaded into cars which sat on a siding from Friday morning until the next Monday and each day they had only a small square of bread and a little cheese.

American planes came over and bombed and strafed the train and the guards fled, leaving the men locked inside. They broke out and identified themselves as prisoners by forming a large P-W. But fourteen were killed and twenty-six wounded in an air raid before the planes went away.

Shot for Delaying Work.

Sergt. Garwood was marched to a labor camp at Gerolstein. There his job was digging bodies from bomb wreckage or filling road craters from 7:30 A. M. to 5:30 P. M. daily. He said the prisoners were treated brutally.

"Five or six men died there every day," he said. "One of my buddies was in a bad shape and couldn't stand digging. He started to sink to the ground, but we knew if he fell he'd be clubbed by a guard. Another soldier and I tried to hold him up and we all went down.

"Then the guard kicked us and kept us there four more hours. We were cold and wet through when we got back to the camp and had to sleep without even a blanket. One of the men got frostbitten feet and they were so swollen he had trouble getting his shoes on. A guard got mad because he was delaying the working party and shot him through the neck and eyes."

A jeep picked Sergt. Garwood up and took him to a medical station after the Americans arrived.

"They were eating raisin bread," he said, "and I never saw anything more beautiful in my life."

More than 2,000 prisoners from Stalag 12 were taken back into Germany, he said.

REICH INDUSTRIALIST SEES QUICK RECOVERY

Frankfort

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, April 7 (AP)—Dr. Rudhard Duisberg, manager of Industrie und Handels Kammer, who now is cooperating with the Allied Military Government here, said today that German industry could make a quick recovery after the war if the Allies permitted it.

"The destruction undoubtedly is vast," he said, "but buildings can be replaced and German ideas and enterprise have not been destroyed."

The Germans, Dr. Duisberg said, are under no illusions, however, and expect the Allies to impose the strictest restraints on any German industry that could make tools for another war.

Dr. Duisberg estimated that 30 per cent of German industry had been destroyed by the war and said that, while "recovery will be a terrific task" it is "by no means impossible."

Although Frankfort is the center of German research and manufacture, no German hereabouts will admit knowledge anything about the making of robot or rocket bombs or of helping devise secret weapons.

W. C. Boehnert, an official of the vast I. G. Farben enterprises before the Americans captured the plant and who now advises the American Military Government, said German industry of late had become vastly complicated and deeply secret.

Great plants, he related, make only parts of various devices and the parts are assembled elsewhere under German Army supervision. The factory official said Farben consequently might have made some robot bombs or rocket parts without having been aware of it.

U.S. PLANES SMASH JAP NAVAL FORCE IN TWO-DAY FIGHT

Super-Battleship, 5 Other Warships Sunk in East China Sea.

391 AIRCRAFT BAGGED

Yanks Lose Three Destroyers, One Heavy Fleet Unit Damaged.

GUAM, Sunday, April 8.—(AP) U. S. Navy carrier aircraft smashed probably the last strong Japanese naval force, including the superbattleship Yamato, in the East China sea Saturday as the Nipponese steamed out apparently in a "banzai" effort to turn the tide of war.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced from his headquarters here that the battle was fought around noon Saturday, Japanese time, (11 p. m., Friday, Eastern War Time).

Six Warships Sunk

The communique reported six Japanese warships, including the Yamato, and 391 enemy planes were destroyed in Friday and Saturday sea and air actions.

In Washington an official Navy spokesman said "a good 25 per cent of the remaining Japanese major combat force" was lost or put out of action in the engagement.

U. S. Pacific fleet losses were listed as three destroyers sunk, several other destroyers and smaller craft damaged and seven carrier planes destroyed.

In a second communique, Nimitz said additionally that "one of our heavy fleet units suffered minor damage during an aircraft attack, but is fully operational." The heavy unit, presumably a battleship or large carrier, had participated in the naval battle.

The Japanese initiated the two days of desperate action in efforts to shatter the American amphibious force invading Okinawa island, some 325 miles south of the Nippon homeland.

A large force of Japanese aircraft attacked the invasion ships and Okinawa shore positions Friday. The communique said the desperate Japanese airmen succeeded in sinking the three destroyers and damaging the other warships. U.S. fighter planes and gunners brought down 116 Japanese planes.

The Japanese surface force—representing probably about all that remained of the Emperor's once proud combined fleets—was sighted heading into the East China sea from Nippon's inland sea bases by U. S. fleet air wing one search craft before noon Saturday.

Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher immediately sent his carrier task force to intercept the Japanese.

The carrier planes struck the Nippon force "during the middle of the day" only 50 miles southwest of Kyushu island, which is a part of the Japanese homeland.

No Air Opposition

There was no air opposition over the Japanese ships—even that close to the heart of Nippon's empire—indicating the Nipponese had used all available aircraft in the heavy attack on Okinawa the previous day.

Swarming in from all directions, despite heavy gunfire from the ships, the American planes sent their deadly torpedoes and bombs into the hulls and decks of the Japanese force.

The 45,000-ton Yamato — which the U. S. communique said was the "most powerful ship left in the Japanese Navy"—went down belching smoke and fire from at least eight torpedo and eight heavy bomb hits.

Also sunk were a light Agano class cruiser, one other small light cruiser or large destroyer and three destroyers. Three other destroyers were left burning.

"About three destroyers" the communique said, were all that escaped from the attack.

It added that in "minor contacts" prior to the main action, 10 Japanese planes were shot down. The U. S. carrier force aircraft had destroyed 245 enemy planes the previous day in resisting heavy Nipponese strikes along the Ryukyus.

Nimitz announced that units of Mitscher's carrier force in the Saturday battle were commanded by Rear Adms. F. C. Sherman, A. M. Radford, G. F. Bogan and J. J. Clark.

Japs Admit Okinawa Gains

A Japanese Imperial communique broadcast by Tokyo admitted the American troops advancing on Okinawa's captial of Naha had reached "a line south of Oyama, Shinoushi and Arakai" and declared: "At present the outlook of the war situation does not permit of any optimism whatsoever." It said American and British naval might was massed around Okinawa but made no mention of this disastrous sea-air battle off Kyushu.

A sister ship of the Yamato, the Musashi, was sunk in the battle of Leyte gulf in the Philippines last October. The Yamato was reported damaged last month in a U. S. carrier force raid on Japan's inland sea naval bases.

The Yamato was the fifth Japanese battleship definitely reported sunk in the war. It was 900 feet long and had a main battery of 16-inch guns.

This latest destructive blow brought to 85 the total of Japanese warships sunk or damaged in three sea-air actions in the last ten months.

Apparently the Japanese still have five older battleships afloat or in shipyards undergoing repairs.

In the battle of the Coral Sea in 1942, the Japanese lost one carrier, two cruisers and two destroyers.

45,000-TON YAMATO IS SENT TO BOTTOM

Sea Forces Meet 50 Miles Off Enemy Coast—Foe Also Loses 2 Cruisers, 3 Destroyers —Marines Gain on Okinawa.

Guam, April 7 (A. P.).—Six Japanese warships, including their largest remaining battleship—the 45,000-ton Yamato—and 391 enemy planes were destroyed in a two-day battle between planes and surface units of the two fleets yesterday and today, only fifty miles from Japan, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced.

Three United States destroyers were sunk, several others and some smaller craft damaged. Seven planes were lost.

Japanese fleet losses in addition to the battleship we one Agano class light cruiser, one other lighter cruis and three destroyers.

The battle opened yesterday afternoon when heavy forces of Japanese planes attacked United States ships and shore installations in the vicinity of Okinawa. Three destroyers were sunk and several damaged. One hundred and sixteen of the attacking planes were shot down.

No larger fleet units were hit.

Early today Navy search aircraft sighted an enemy surface force at a point about fifty miles southwest of Kyushu, southernmost Japanese Island. Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier force steamed toward the enemy and during the middle of the day brought the enemy under aerial attack. No air opposition was met but heavy anti-aircraft fire greeted Admiral Mitscher's airmen as they bored in to the attack.

Yamato Hit Earlier.

The Yamato, reported damaged last month in a carrier raid on Japan's Inland Sea and last October in the battle of Leyte Gulf when her sister ship, the Musashi, was sunk, went down after being hit by eight torpedoes and eight bombs.

The continuing attack finished off the light Agano class cruiser, the small cruiser and three destroyers. Three destroyers were left burning and about three others escaped the attack. All of the ships were strafed heavily with rockets and machine guns.

The Yamato was the pride of the Emperor's navy and up until the time she was sunk off Japan today, the most powerful ship left to Nippon's once proud fleet and one of the most powerful in the world, roughly equivalent to the American Iowa both in age and characteristics.

She was a 900 foot long, 45,000 ton battleship carrying 16-inch guns and capable of a speed of 30 knots.

Eight torpedoes and eight heavy bombs sent her to the bottom of the East China Sea.

Seven carrier aircraft were lost in this action.

The carrier aircraft had destroyed 245 other enemy aircraft in separate actions Friday and added thirty more in minor contacts today. The task groups participating were commanded by Rear Admirals F. C. Sherman, A. W. Radford, G. F. Bogan and J. J. Clark.

Action on Okinawa.

Ground action on Okinawa saw Third Amphibious Corps Marines continue their relatively easy progress to the north while strong enemy resistance developed on the southern front where Twenty-fourth Army corps soldiers are driving toward the island's largest city, Naha, and Machinato airstrip.

The Japanese fought from strong defense positions with machine guns, small arms, mortar and artillery fire, which was particularly heavy.

Troops along the east coast of this sector advanced about 2,000 yards during yesterday afternoon and occupied the town of Tsuwa. Heavy supporting artillery fire was brought to bear on the enemy.

Japanese planes launched a concerted attack earlier on the British Pacific fleet, operating as a self-contained group in support of the Okinawa campaign, as it shelled and bombed the southern Ryukyus March 31 through April 2. Some major units were slightly damaged, Admiral Nimitz reported in a special press release on the British action.

Britain's 35,000-ton battleship H .M. S. King George V was the target for five Japanese aircraft, which one British naval observer said were driven off. The British task force, which also includes the 23,000-ton aircraft carrier Illustrious, destroyed or damaged thirty-one enemy planes in the three-day strike against the Ryukyus.

What Tokyo Reported.

Tokyo radio reported, as usual, that Japanese flyers "already have succeeded in either sinking or damaging several enemy warships, including battleships, cruisers and other types." The enemy broadcaster claimed three United States aircraft carriers had been sunk or damaged.

Associated Press Correspondent Grant Macdonald wrote late yesterday that Japanese planes sneaked in low over northern Okinawa trying to hit shipping offshore but were stopped by a tremendous blast of anti-aircraft fire from ships and shore.

Vice-Admiral Mitscher reported to the Navy in Washington yesterday that his flyers and supporting forces destroyed or damaged 1,212 Japanese since or damaged 1,212 Japanese since the start of the Okinawa campaign.

Japs Short of Planes.

With Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Fleet, April 3 (Delayed) (A. P.).—What appeared to be obselete army bombers, flown into battle by the Japanese today, immediately aroused speculation as to whether the Nippon air forces are running short of planes available for use in this area. The old planes were identified as "Marys," slow, sluggish bombers not seen since early in the war but probably used since for training.

Of the score sighted heading south toward Okinawa, twelve were shot down by American carrier-based planes. They were intercepted near Kikai in the Amami group of islands at the northern end of the Ryukyu chain. Presumably they were en route to attack American forces moving steadily ahead in their conquest of Okinawa, largest island of the Ryukyus. Also shot down in the same general area were ten Japanese fighter planes which were engaged in a rough-and-tumble battle by Marine Corps fighters. Five of the enemy planes escaped.

Japs Claim Many Sinkings

San Francisco, April 7 (AP)—The Japanese radio filled Pacific waters today with sunken American ships, being much more successful than Nippon's aviators, while an imperial headquarters communiqué admitted ground losses on Okinawa Island's southern front.

Despite unsupported claims that 21 Allied vessels were sunk or damaged between April 1 and April 5 for a "phenomenal" total of 211 since March 23, the broadcasts recorded here said the "war situation does not permit of any optimism whatsoever."

Drive Toward Naha

Powerful tanks and artillery support backed up the American drive toward Naha, the Okinawa capital, imperial headquarters was quoted as saying, but Japanese forces were counterattacking.

In most recent actions, Japanese aviators were said to have sunk one cruiser, five "cruisers or destroyers," two undentified warships, one destroyer and two transports. Ships claimed damaged were one aircraft carrier, two "cruisers or destroyers," two unidentified warships and five transports.

118 Ship Toll Claimed

A breakdown of the March 23-April 5 claims listed 118 ships sunk, including four aircraft carriers and two battleships, nine sunk or damaged and 94 damaged.

The "fierce assault on the enemy vessels around Okinawa" is continuing, Tokyo said.

No mention was made of the six ships sunk by American airmen yesterday and today or the 391 planes shot down during the same period.

Loss of Yamato Leaves Foe With 5 Battleships

APR 8 1945

900-Foot, 45,000-Ton Craft Was Japan's Mightiest Since Musashi Was Sunk

GUAM, April 7 (AP).—The Japanese battleship Yamato was the pride of the Emperor's Navy and up until the time she was sunk fifty miles off Japan today, the most powerful ship left to the once-proud Japanese fleet.

She was 900 feet long, of 45,000 tons, carried 16-inch guns and was capable of a speed of thirty knots. Roughly equivalent to the American 45,000-ton Iowa, both in age and characteristics.

There had been two ships of that size in the Japanese Navy. Her sister ship, the Musashi, was sunk in the Second Battle of the Philippines Sea last October.

This latest destructive blow brought to eighty-five the total of Japanese warships sunk or damaged in three sea-air actions in the last ten months. Five battleships have been sunk, but apparently the Japanese still have five older battleships afloat or in shipwards, undergoing repairs.

In the Battle of the Coral Sea in May, 1942, the Japanese lost one carrier, two cruisers and two destroyers.

Other major battle losses were:

Midway, June 3-6, 1942—Four carriers, two cruisers, three destroyers and at least one transport sunk; three battleships, four cruisers, three transports and several destroyers damaged.

First Battle of the Philippine Sea, June 18-19, 1944—Two carriers, two destroyers, one tanker sunk; one carrier, one destroyer, one oiler probably sunk, and two or three carriers, one battleship, three cruisers, one destroyer and three tankers damaged.

Battle of Leyte Gulf (Second Battle of Philippine Sea), Oct. 22-27, 1944—Three battleships, four carriers, nine cruisers and nine destroyers sunk; five cruisers and seven destroyers probably sunk and six battleships, five cruisers and ten destroyers damaged.

The Japanese lost two battleships and other cruisers and smaller craft in South Pacific and Solomons Island engagements in 1942 and 1943.

A Tokyo broadcast mdae the entirely unsubstantiated assertion that twenty-one Allied ships had been sunk between April 1 and 5 for a "phenomenal" total of 211 since March 23.

AMERICAN FORCES CLOSING ON NAHA

Marines Continue Advances on Okinawa, Jap Lines Stiffen.

GUAM, Sunday, April 8—(AP) Marines of the Third Amphibious corps advanced 3,000 yards northward along both coasts of Okinawa yesterday morning against negligible resistance but 24th corps Army Doughboys ran into stiff resistance from heavily entrenched Japanese in their push toward Naha, island capital, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Carve Out New Gains

The Doughboys in the south were moving through hard terrain in which the enemy is fortified in extensive trenches, blockhouses and pillboxes the Admiral said. He made no mention of the extent of the soldiers' gains.

The Japanese made a small scale aerial attack on the ground troops yesterday. Twelve attackers were downed. Nothing was said as to whether they inflicted any damage.

Continuing their long-distance support of the Okinawa invasion forces, British carrier planes operating some 300 miles to the south hit airfields and other installations on Ishigati and Miyako in the Sakishima islands, southernmost of the Ryukyus. British pilots shot down five Japanese warplanes and destroyed three more on the ground.

Nimitz said new information discloses that American carrier pilots, in sweeps through the Ryukyus, sank four small cargo ships and many small craft and destroyed two Japanese airplanes caught on the ground.

The Marines, against "negligible resistance," continued their northward push on the Ishikawa isthmus throughout yesterday morning. By noon, they had advanced to the vicinity of Naga town on the west coast and to Ora bay on the east coast.

There were indications that the main battle on Okinawa may develop in the 24th Army sector, where the Japanese are resisting strongly with artillery, mortar and small arms fire.

JAPANESE EMPLOY TRICKS

Use Sod-Covered Trapdoors to Conceal Mortars on Okinawa

WITH THE TWENTY-FOURTH ARMY CORPS, Okinawa, Sunday, April 8 (AP)—Infantrymen supported by tanks and artillery and naval gunfire conquered strong Japanese hill positions today in their advance on southern Okinawa toward Naha, city and its airfields.

The doughboys' advance against artillery, mortar and machine-gun positions, some of them in natural caves on ridge tops, was slow and the veterans of other Pacific battlefronts were learning that the Japanese had some new tricks.

The Seventh Division's casualties so far have averaged about twenty Japanese killed to one American.

Okinawa Yanks Hit Jap Caves

With the 24th Army Corps, Okinawa, April 7 (AP)—The wrist-slapping phase of the Okinawa campaign appeared ended today as American troops ran into prepared Japanese positions, and the Nipponese air force struck at American shipping and beach installations.

The prepared Japanese positions, apparently constructed months ago, were in hilly, cave-pocked terrain, their defense facing north.

Advancing elements of this corps found the ground mined and in one instance mines were hid under cabbage heads in a field.

Chambers In Caves

Some captured caves had openings barely large enough for a man to squeeze through, but with large chambers inside, shored up with lumber.

Enemy positions were reported well supplied with ammunition. The Americans were drawing artillery fire—a considerable quantity of it by Japanese standards.

The American 7th Division, fighting south along the east coast, so far has had little contact with the enemy, but now is having a fight to get over the ridges.

Strongpoint Falls

The 7th took a strongpoint, including four stone blockhouses supported by a number of pillboxes.

Meanwhile, 3d Amphibious Corps Marines continue their relatively easy progress to the north.

Troops along the east coast advanced about 2,000 yards yesterday afternoon and occupied the town of Tsuwa. Heavy supporting artillery fire was brought to bear on the enemy.

VIENNA SIEGE ARC EXTENDED BY REDS

Russians Cut Escape Routes from City, Gain in Frontal Assault.

LONDON, Sunday, April 8—(AP) Red army tank columns, in a headlong 14-mile sweep around Western Vienna, three fourths encircled the Austrian capital yesterday, leaving the Nazi garrison a 24½-mile escape gap, as other shock troops gained in a frontal assault through the city's southeastern strets.

NIGHT

Reaching the Danube river northwest of the city, Russian troops sliced across six of Vienna's escape routes and left the imperiled capital with only seven of an original 22 major railroads and highways.

Narrow Escape Gap

Berlin reports said that the escape gap to the north already had been narrowed. Soviet cavalrymen were said to have forded the Morava river northeast of Vienna and to have established bridgeheads that threatened to close the enemy's last retreat roads.

At the same time, Berlin reported that tank spearheads had broken 23 miles through the Vienna woods west of the capital and were plunging westward within 125 miles of Hitler's mountains retreat at Berchtesgaden in Bavaria.

While Moscow officially confirmed that Soviet tommygunners had broken across the Vienna's southern city limits and were battling toward its cratered heart, Soviet troops elsewhere on the eastern front carved out new gains.

Cleaning out southwestern Poland, the Soviets moved within 12 miles of Cieszyn (Teschen), and in Czechoslovakia gained up to 10 miles on a 80-mile front. In Yugoslavia, other Russian units battered to within 100 miles of Italy at a point 42 miles northeast of the Croatian capitol of Zagreb.

As the Nazis defiantly cried that Vienna "will be defended to the last sewer," two Soviet armies extended the siege arc around Vienna to 112 miles on the west, south and east. Moscow reports said high Nazi officials already were fleeing over the last crowded roads out of the city.

The greater part of the city was encircled when Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army tank men battered 14 miles through the Vienna woods in a two-day advance, sweeping through the town of Pressbaum, seven miles west of the city, to reach the Danube at Klosternburg, one mile from Vienna's northwestern limits.

The swift surge that isolated southern Vienna, where 20 of the city's 21 districts are located, cut across the railroad and highway to Linz and Munich and the main railroad to Prague. Three other minor highways were severed.

Berlin indicated that the narrow wedge to the Danube northeast of Vienna was rapidly being expanded. Tolbukhin's tank spearheads, the enemy said, had thrust 23 miles from their last positions to reach the key rail junction of St. Poelten, 28 miles west of the capital.

St. Poelten lies on Vienna's severed trunk line to Linz, 60 miles to the west and the Russians apparently were driving toward Bavaria, potential mountain hide-out for Nazi leaders.

Simultaneously, Moscow announced that Tolbukhin's men had battled their way into the southern districts of Vienna proper. Berlin said bitter hand-to-hand fighting raged in Favoriten within four miles of St. Stephan's cathedral in mid-city. The Russians also were reported to have broken into the eastern district of Simmering, site of the city's main gas and power plants.

Soviets Capture Vienna Suburb Of Moedling

London, April 7 (AP)—Russian troops have captured Moelding, southern suburb of Vienna, after bloody house-to-house fighting and the fiercest combat inside the Austrian capital is raging in the eastern quarter, where most of the city's utility plants are located, a German broadcast said tonight.

Soviet veterans of Stalingrad and Budapest had battered to within 4 miles of St. Stephan's Church in the center of Vienna. They were battling hastily reinforced Germans, who resisted stubbornly.

Spearheads Claimed Wrecked

The Germans also declared the Russians had speared 30 miles west of Vienna and reached St. Poelten on the road to Linz. The penetrating spearheads were wiped out, DNB added.

The broadcast said several Russian bridgeheads thrown over the Morava River east of Vienna had been smashed, and that the Soviets also were attempting to cross the Danube between Vienna and Hainburg, 25 miles to the east.

Nazis Counterattack

Moscow announced that the Germans not only were fighting for every factory and stone building but also had thrown in a number of counterattacks which were repelled by Red shock troops in bitter fighting.

Soviet forces earlier had captured four other suburbs along the city line, cleared the south bank of the Danube River east of Vienna in a 10-mile advance and reached the Morava River barrier protecting the capital's northeastern approaches on a 37-mile front.

The big aircraft assembly and testing center of Schwechat and the suburban communities of Alt-Kettenhof, Rothneusiedl and Hannersdorf, all on or adjacent to Vienna's southern boundary, were taken by Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army.

Advancing swiftly from the Bratislava Gap, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army drove into the twin industrial towns of Fischamend-Markt and Fischamend-Dorf, 12 and 13 miles southeast of the heart of Vienna.

Gains In Other Areas

In Czechoslovakia, the Russians swept to a point 38 miles southeast of the big industrial city of Bruenn (Brno). In Yugoslavia, Soviet cavalrymen slashed through enemy lines within 41 miles northeast of the Croat capital of Zegrab and 104 miles from the Italian border.

According to the Free Yugoslav radio, units of the Yugoslav Army of National Liberation have captured Sarajevo, Bosnian capital. It was at Sarajevo that Archduke Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated—the spark which touched off World War I.

On the Baltic front, Russiah units were mopping up enemy remnants on the Vistula delta, east of Danzig.

REDS ARE DRIVING NAZIS FROM VIENNA IN FIERCE BATTLE

Enemy Must Withdraw or Face Encirclement by Advancing Russians.

APR 8 1945

Moscow, April 7 (A. P.).—The Red Army today commenced driving the Germans from Vienna, and there were good indications that the Nazis face the possibility of an early encirclement if they do not make a withdrawal. Soviet storm columns to the south and southeast pushed northward yesterday, some advance scouting groups presumably wresting positions inside the Austrian capital.

Mortar, machine-gun and sniping fire which the Germans have been laying down was as heavy as ever but Soviet pressure appeared to be too much for the defenders.

Russian troops, which severed the Vienna-Linz highway earlier in the fighting, fought their way eastward today toward the capital. Apparently this Russian wing captured places north of the deer park and was threatening to cut off Nazi artillery in the Vienna woods.

Battling in Suburbs.

Heavy battles were in progress for the western suburbs of Wadlingnau and Mariabrunn, an important junction for railway and highway traffic. Tanks and motorized infantry of this same Soviet wing appeared to be pushing into Hadersdorf, a northwestern suburb leading to heights overlooking Vienna. The bulk of the German artillery was located on these heights.

Russian infantry in large numbers was being moved up to the outer suburbs to back up the Soviet storm units which first battered into the city's defenses.

Aircraft Plant Taken.

Soviet forces captured four suburbs along the city line, cleared the south bank of the Danube River east of Vienna in a ten-mile advance and reached the Morava River barrier protecting the Austrian capital's northeastern approaches on a thirty-seven-mile front.

The big aircraft assembly and testing center of Schwechat and the suburban communities of Alt-Kettenhof, Rothneusiedl and Hannersdorf, all on or adjacent to Vienna's southern boundary, were taken by Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army.

Germans Frantically Attempt To Stop 1,300 Heavies

London, April 7 (AP)—American airmen shot down at least 87 German planes today in the greatest aerial battle over Europe in three months as the Nazis tried frantically to stop 1,300 American heavy bombers plowing an invasion path for Marshal Montgomery's drive on the North Sea ports.

The Germans downed included a large number of jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262's.

NIGHT

Following the big American daylight raids, the German radio reported Allied bombers were overhead during the night, indicating that the RAF was out again after a two-night layoff due to bad weather.

22 Yank Bombers Lost

In the day's air battles, American fighter pilots got 63 enemy planes while bomber gunners accounted for at least 24.

American losses were 22 bombers and 3 fighters, heaviest suffered by the 8th Air Force since the Rhine crossing of March 24.

The RAF in a side operation in daylight raided Ijmuiden on the German-held coast of north Holland, where there is a submarine works and power station, and also a suspected site of Nazi rocket guns.

The big fleet of Liberators and Fortresses, escorted by 850 fighters, raced more than 100 miles ahead of onrushing British and American armies and blasted four jet airfields, two rail yards, two ammunition and storage plants, an oil depot and an ordnance depot. Most of them were in the vicinity of Bremen, Kiel and Hamburg, three of Germany's greatest ports imperiled by Montgomery's drive.

Bombers Hit Oil Depot

Airfields were hit at Kohlenbissen, 50 miles east of Bremen; Wesendorf, south of Hamburg; Parchim, 70 miles east of Hamburg; and Kaltenkirchen, 25 miles north of Hamburg. All are nesting places for the deadly, swift jets.

Rail yard targets were at Lueneberg, near Hamburg and Neumuenster, south of Kiel. The bombers also hit an oil depot at Guestrow and ammunition plants at Duneber and Krummel near Hamburg.

Swarms of Nazi fighters rose to the defense of this strategic area and some broke through the screen of guardian fighters to get at the heavy bombers.

Jets Are Active

The first fighter pilots back at their bases said a large number of the enemy planes shot down were "squirts"—the airmen's nickname for the jets.

They reported one bomber formation was attacked by jets just as it was going over the target, then was jumped by the conventional ME-109's and FW-190's as it pulled off the bombing run.

The last major air battle over Germany was March 24, when 53 Nazis were shot down in scattered fights over the Western front. A total of 67 Germans were shot down February 2 when 1,200 bombers attacked railway centers at Dresden, Chemnitz and Magdeburg.

From the south the Nazis were hit by United States 15th Air Force heavies and 22d Tactical Air Command Thunderbolts attacked German communications, fuel and ammunition dumps in northern Italy.

44 NAZI PLANES ARE SHOT DOWN

DAY

London, April 7 (A. P.).—At least forty-four German planes were shot down today as the Nazis pressed jet attacks against 1,300 American heavy bombers and 850 fighters making a sweep of airfields, ammunition dumps and railyards ahead of Allied armies rolling across northern Germany.

The number of German planes destroyed was expected to mount considerably as the forty-four represented claims from only a part of the fighter groups and none from the bombers, a United States Air Force staff officer said. Heavy combat occurred within fifty miles of Hamburg, in the district where several of today's targets were situated.

At the same time Italian-based planes of the 15th Air Force attacked rail lines and other communications in northern Italy for the third straight day.

Objectives of the Britain-based bombers and fighters included four jet-propelled plane bases, three ordnance and ammunition storage depots, an oil storage depot at Hitzacker and railroad-marshaling yards at Luneburg, near Hamburg, and Neumuenster.

Other targets were airfields located at Kohlenbissen, fifty miles east of Bremen; Wesendorf, southeast of Bremen; Parchim and Kaltenkirchen, twenty-five miles north of Hamburg, and an ordnance plant at Gustrow.

Munitions storage plants at Duneberg and Krummel, also near Hamburg, were hit.

Sergeant Dunn Scores 100 Missions In Reich

A U.S. Bomber Base in England, April 7 (AP)—Master Sergeant Hewitt (Buck) Dunn, of Norfolk, Va., returned safely Friday from an attack on the railway yards at Leipzig and became the first bomber crewman in the American 8th Air Force to complete 100 combat missions over Germany.

There have been one or two others who have flown 100 missions or more, but not all over Germany or the occupied countries.

As a gunner on a Flying Fortress, Dunn, the father of a year-old daughter he has never seen, has participated in attacks on almost every major city in the Reich, including nine on Berlin.

DAY

Now he is ready to begin "my second hundred" battle flights.

"Sure I want to get home just like anybody else," he said, "but not until Germany is washed up."

Dunn wears the Silver Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with fourteen oakleaf clusters. In the last dozen or more attacks he has replaced an officer as bombardier.

STATE, NAZI OFFICES SPLIT

Drastic Hitler Decree Permits Party Men To Quit Posts

June

London, April 7 (AP)—Adolf Hitler decreed the splitting of state and Nazi party offices today in a drastic move enabling topflight Nazi leaders to abandon their posts in the path of Allied armies crushing Germany and take up underground station in the "werewolf war."

The action apparently is intended to relieve non-Nazi party "surrender stoogies" in the areas overrun by the Allies and it was interpreted here as another indication that the Reich was in its death throes.

"These Difficult Times"

A decree by Hitler and an order by the party Chancellor, Martin Bormann, as quoted by the German news agency DNB, said the move was made to facilitate "the freedom of movement" of functionaries in "these difficult times."

There have been previous reports that Nazi party leaders had been executed for fleeing their posts.

This reversed an opposite trend during twelve years of Nazi history in which province after province fell under the rule of Nazi party Gauleiters.

The move also occurred amid mounting reports of chaos and terrorism in crumbling Germany and reports of many Germans fleeing to neutral countries. Only yesterday German military planes landed at Lisbon and Barcelona, their crewmen asking to be interned since they no longer wanted to fight.

Offices To Be Separated

Hitler's order, broadcast shortly before the "werewolf" guerrilla station boasted of assassinating another German mayor who had prepared to surrender his village, said that "all party and state functions on the level of the Kreis (the administrative subdivision of a province), where they are held by the same person, shall be separated."

"Similarly," the decree con-

tinued, "where two party or administrative posts are at present held by the same person they shall also be separated."

DNB interpreted this thusly: "For instance, the personal union of the offices of mayor and Kreisleiter, or the holding of subordinate offices in the party or its affiliated organizations, or the leadership of several Kreis by one Kreisleiter, will be eliminated."

The German Reason

Bormann's order declared that Hitler's decree also applied to local levels and "accordingly the post of local party leader and burgomaster will not in the future be held by the same person."

"The reason for this measure," DNB continued, "must be sought in the fact that the tasks of human leadership falling upon the party at a time of the most difficult and manifold problems, would suffer if the party had to carry the additional burdens of state administration.

"Practical experience of warfare in the interior has clearly shown how little it is possible for a state duty and a party function to be filled by the same person without one or other or all of them suffering neglect.

Basis For Propaganda

"A double office is partciularly disadvantageous where the presence of the officeholder is required in two places at the same time.

"As a result of war conditions the tasks of state administration have grown so much and require such a high degree of freedom of movement that state offices call for complete attention.

"The close co-operation between party and state which has been often proved will, of colrse, not be changed."

A suggestion that the Nazis might be setting up a basis for a new postwar propaganda campaign was not overlooked in London. The Nazis contended that the German Army was not defeated in the first World War, but was "betrayed" by the appeal of President Wilson's fourteen points and a civilian revolt. This time they might try to claim the Nazis didn't lose the war but were "betrayed" by non-party members.

Berlin's Coal Canceled

In an order of the day to the SA (storm troopers), Wilhelm Scheppman, chief of staff, told his Brown Shirts that "the enemy stands far within the German fatherland." The Allies, he said, could be beaten "if we are not despondent but stem him with fierce determination and supreme individual effort."

Earlier the Transocean Agency had told Berliners that all coal rations for domestic heating in Berlin had been canceled, following up Friday's decree which ordered the cutting off of gas and a "further drastic reduction" of electricity.

Single Posts Only For Nazi Chiefs

London, April 7 (AP)—The German radio announced today a Hitler decree ordering Nazi party district leaders to give up their jobs in local governments.

"All personal union between the offices of the state and the Nazi party has to be split up," the decree said.

"The reason for the decree is that the tasks of the party are mainly to care for the population and in these difficult times, when quick decisions and sometimes moves have to be carried out at a moment's notice, it is not thought suitable that a party official should be burdened with the tasks of local administration and vice versa."

Combining Offices Forbidden

"It will no longer be possible to combine the office of Kreisleiter (district or county leader) and county councilor or lord mayor and no district leader can hold the same office in two or more districts at the same time.

"In the future, no village or town party leader can combine this office with that of mayor."

The order added that "close cooperation between the party and state will, however, still be safeguarded."

Escape Motive Sensed

The decree was interpreted here as a means of enabling Nazi party leaders in the provinces and towns to escape capture, leaving nonparty members behind as stooges to deal with the Allied conquerors.

At the same time the Nazis, who have announced the intention of fighting last-ditch guerrilla warfare, would be able to perpetuate the propaganda that German civilians surrendered while the Nazis continued to resist.

Berlin Cancels Home Coal Rations

London, April 7 (AP)—All coal rations for domestic heating in Berlin have been canceled, the German Transocean news agency announced in a broadcast today.

The decree followed yesterday's order cutting off the gas supply to the Reich capital's homes and instituting a "further drastic reduction" in electricity.

NORWAY APPEALS FOR SWEDISH AID

Fearing Last Desperate Stand by Foe in North, She Bids Stockholm End Neutrality

ECONOMIC DISASTER SEEN

200,000 Germans Preparing Fortifications Similar to Those in Bavarian Alps

LONDON, April 7 (AP)—The Norwegian Government, declaring that a German force of approximately 200,000 would make a "last desperate stand" in Norway, appealed today to Sweden to drop her neutrality and rescue "what can be saved" of Norway.

"The general feeling in Norway," a statement issued by the Royal Norwegian Government said, "seems to be that the war against the Germans has reached the stage where neutrality has become a mere empty word that both the Swedish people and the Government are in fact aware of their moral responsibilities and are prepared to assist in saving what can be saved."

A Swedish communiqué issued yesterday said a Swedish-Norwegian volunteer association had been granted permission to train 200 of its volunteers at Swedish military establishments. The communiqué gave no further details about the "Volunteers for Norway" movement.

The statement of the Norwegian Government said the Germans were bringing heavy guns and other war matériel into Norway, sending in ammunition by air, increasing the number of fortified U-boat pens, improving their airfields and stocking up supplies of gasoline.

The statement declared that Norway with her mountains and fjords was "easy to defend and fortification work is going on today in Norway on similar lines to those which have been reported from the Bavarian Alps. It is also known that the Germans all over the country have planned destruction on the most extensive scale."

The statement added that Norwegian economy already had suffered a hard blow in the loss of the greater part of its merchant navy and "if the Germans are allowed to carry out their plans—if electricity works are blown up, the fishing fleet stolen, factories destroyed and railway lines put out of service—the economic destruction of Norway will be practically irreparable."

The statement, which followed British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's message yesterday to Norway that her hour of liberation was nearing, contended that the approach of the end "seems in no way to have weakened the cruelty of the Gestapo."

"The number of arrests is increasing," the communiqué declared. "Never before have so many Norwegians been German prisoners as now and all reports also confirm that torture is being increased. There is also a growing fear that hostages are being taken to be used by the Germans as a means of bargaining.

POLISH FRISCO HOPES RECEDE

Efforts To Form A Coalition Government Deadlocked

London, April 7 (AP)—Hopes for Polish participation in the San Francisco world security conference all but vanished today as it was learned that attempts to establish a coalition Government had run into [illegible] fall.

A spokesman for the exiled Polish Government said flatly that "lack of good faith" on the part of Russia and the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw Administration was blocking formation of the proposed provisional regime.

Earlier the Polish Telegraph Agency—voice of the London Poles—said that fifteen Polish political leaders had disappeared after presenting themselves to Soviet authorities in accepting an invitation to fly to London.

Both Sides Stand Firm

Despite a statement last night by Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., United States Secretary of State, that it was highly important that a provisional government be established by the Poles in time for the San Francisco meeting later this month, it was learned authoritatively that no progress in that direction had been made recently.

Meanwhile, the United States and Britain remained firm in their decision that Poland could be represented at the conference only by the creation of a provisional government of national unity as agreed upon at the Yalta conference.

This stand was adopted in the face of equally firm Russian insistence that an invitation be extended to the Warsaw group if the [illegible] coalition ca[illegible] before the c[illegible]n-25.

Possible Collapse Of Japan Seen

London, April 7 (AP)—Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador to Japan from 1937 to 1941, said today that Japanese leaders may be found "who care for Japan and the Japanese people more than the Nazis care for Germany and the German people."

In an article in the London Daily Mail on Russia's denunciation of her neutrality pact with Japan, Craigie wrote: "Perhaps were Russia now to join the Allies, Admiral Suzuki may be found to be one of these."

May Seek Soft Spot

He added: "We may regard the fall of the Koiso Cabinet after only nine months of office as a measure of the Japanese consternation on receiving the news from Moscow. Clearly Japan does not feel she can rely on another year of tightrope dancing and she may be looking for a soft spot on which to fall."

Referring to a possible Japanese collapse, Craigie said he believed that "Japan, knowing that our answer will be 'unconditional surrender' will not do so until her situation becomes desperate; and her leaders must consider her situation desperate if and when the USSR joins in the struggle against her."

Russia's entry into the Pacific war, he said, would mean the "early destruction" of Japan.

'Red Act Will Save GI Lives'

London, April 7 (AP)—The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes said today in a story under a Washington dateline that "Russia's denunciation of her neutrality treaty with Japan was a big thing all over the United States . . . because it looked like the final step before Russia jumps into the Pacific war."

"And that is a big thing in America's estimation, for the reason that it means fewer American boys will get killed," the service paper added. It also quoted editorial and congressional comment on the Soviet decision.

'Izvestia' Cites Old Grievances Against Japan

Says Relations Have Been 'Unsatisfactory' 20 Years; Assails Help to Germany

LONDON, April 7 (AP).—The government newspaper "Izvestia" accused Japan today of strengthening ties with the German Reich even after she knew the Nazis were doomed, and asserted Japanese militarists had been looking for a "golden opportunity" to realize their hidden imperialistic plans.

Breaking a Russian silence on the Soviet Union's denunciation Thursday of its neutrality pact with Japan, the newspaper, in a front-page editorial, which was broadcast by the Moscow radio, said the action was a "direct consequence" of Japan's alliance with Germany and Tokyo's war against the United States and Great Britain.

The editorial gave no hint of Russia's future course, but, in a review of past events, said Soviet-Japanese relations had been "of an absolutely unsatisfactory character" for more than two decades.

The editorial not only reviewed the course of the war but recalled old Russian grievances against Japan, including "Japanese intervention" in the east in 1918-'22, during which time the Japanese Army landed at Vladivostok and occupied the Siberian coastal area; the occupation by Japan of northern Sakhalin Island and a number of border incidents.

Signing of the neutrality pact on April 13, 1941, eased tension between Japan and Russia, "Izvestia" said, but after Germany attacked the Soviet Union two months later, Adolf Hitler's initial successes "caused the heads of many Japanese politicians . . . to whirl" and "there ripened thoughts in leading political and military circles of Japan on the necessity of making use of this 'golden opportunity.'"

"During the most difficult times for the U. S. S. R., Japan continued to strengthen her collaboration with Germany, this having not only great political meaning but also substantial aid for Germany in her war against the Soviet Union," "Izvestia" said.

Meanwhile, in London, Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador to Japan from 1937 to 1941, said that if Russia entered the Pacific war it would mean the early destruction of Japan and her "inability to continue the struggle with any prospect of success or for any length of time in China, Manchuria and Korea after the game is up in Japan itself."

Writing in the London Daily Mail, Sir Robert also said that in such an event Admiral Kantaro Suzuki, new Japanese Premier, might be found to be among a group which cares "for Japan and the Japanese people more than the Nazis care for Germany and the German people."

Sir Robert attributed the fall of the Koiso Cabinet to "Japanese consternation on receiving the news from Moscow," and suggested Japan "may be looking for a soft spot on which to fall."

"Japan, knowing that our answer will be 'unconditional surrender,' will not do so until her situation becomes desperate," Sir Robert added, "and her leaders must consider her situation desperate if and when the U.S.S.R. joins in the struggle against her."

Russ Paper Accuses Tokyo

London, April 7 (AP)—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia charged today that the Japanese had been watching to take advantage of a "golden opportunity" in Asia and had strengthened their alliance with the Nazis, even when it became clear that Germany was doomed.

The newspaper's editorial, broadcast by the Moscow radio, broke a silence in Russia on the interpretation of the Soviet Union's denunciation of her neutrality pact with Japan.

Future Course In Doubt

The editorial still left in doubt Moscow's future course as a result of the denunciation, but said the Soviet Union took the step as a "direct result" of the fact that Japan was an ally of Germany and was at war with Britain and the United States.

Until the signing of the treaty in 1941, Izvestia said, relations between Russia and Japan had been "of an absolutely unsatisfactory character" for more than two decades. The newspaper added that after Hitler's temporary successes in his attack on Russia "many Japanese politicians prepared to stake their fate on Hitlerite cards."

Frontier Conflicts Cited

The newspaper referred to "Japanese intervention in the Far East in 1918 and 1922, numerous frontier conflicts and the final memorable events at Lake Khassan and at the River Khalkin Gol in 1938 and 1939."

"The facts prove," Izvestia said, "that the ruling circles in Japan for many years waged an aggressive policy against the Soviet Union which led more than once to sharp conflict between the two states."

British Reported Building Giant Bomber Like B-29

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, April 7—A British bomber of the same class as the American Superfortress is being built for Royal Air Force attacks on Japan, The London Daily Mail reported today.

The newspaper's air correspondent said the first news of the plane was given yesterday by Sir Roy Dobson, managing director of A. V. Roe, Ltd., makers of the Lancasters that now are dropping eleven-ton bombs on Germany. There was no comment on the report from British Air Ministry officials.

Reports British Aid To Soviet Red Cross

London, April 7 (A. P.)—British aid to the Soviet Red Cross has exceeded $36,000,000, the Moscow radio said today. The figure was revealed yesterday when Mrs. Winston Churchill attended a meeting of officers of the Union of Red Cross and Red Crescent societies in Moscow.

Dutch Rebuilding Fleet

London, April 7 (AP)—The Netherlands, which lost half of its 3,000,000-ton merchant fleet in the war, is placing orders for materials and machinery to rebuild to a pre-war level it was learned today. Most orders are being placed in Britain, Belgium Switzerland and Sweden.

London, April 7 (AP)—Movie Actor Jimmy Stewart, who enlisted in the Army Air Forces as a private, is now a full colonel.

He is serving as chief of staff for a United States 8th Air Force combat wing consisting of several bomber groups. He came to the European theater of operations eighteen months ago as a B-24 pilot with the rank of captain.

Stewart has flown in twenty combat missions, several of them as command pilot. He led a formation of 250 Liberators over Berlin the first time the Nazi capital was attacked in daylight by American bombers.

After twelve flights as a squadron commander, Stewart was taken off regular flying status and became a group operations officer.

REVERSE LEND-LEASE AIDS ARMY HOSPITALS

LONDON, April 7 (AP)—Three-fourths of the American Army's total medical requirements in Britain—items ranging from artificial eyes made of plastic to seventy-eight tons of bicarbonate of soda—were received from Britain under reverse lend-lease in a two-year period, it was announced today.

A report of the Ministry of Production summarized the orders filled for the Americans between July, 1942, and July, 1944. The supplies varied from the simplest everyday remedies—such as bicarbonate of soda and 20,000,000 aspirin tablets—to blood-transfusion sets for parachutists, enough bandages to go three times around the world, and the most delicate surgical instruments. Artificial plastic eyes, a British wartime invention, are one of the most remarkable items, the report said.

Short of trained technicians to produce the eyes in sufficient quantities, Britain put the technique and materials at the disposal of the United States Army, which set up a training scheme in England whereby its dental technicians could be schooled to make the plastic eyes.

NEW CZECH REGIME TIES IN WITH RUSSIA

Government Includes Four Communists—Masaryk Retains Old Position

LONDON, April 7 (AP)—The day-old Czechoslovak Government pledged itself today to maintain "practical" military, political, economical and cultural relations with Russia.

The declaration of policy was issued through its London press bureau soon after the formation of the new Government. Left Wing factions are represented in two key posts.

The announcement also said that the mobilization of a new Czechoslovak army would continue in the liberated areas of the country and residents of German-occupied areas would be roused to "an all-national struggle against the occupants."

The Government is headed by Premier Zdenek Fierlinger, former Ambassador to Russia, and includes a Communist, Vaclav Nosek, as Minister of the Interior.

"In matters of punishing Germany, in settling Germany's reparations obligations, in setting new frontiers and in organizing future peace, Czechoslovakia will stand as near as possible at the side of the Soviet Union and in one row with the other Slav and all democratic countries," it was said. The new regime also declared its intention of strengthening relations with Britain, the United States and France.

It made it clear that the regime regarded itself as a Provisional Government. It said that a new Cabinet would be formed after complete liberation to prepare for secret elections and the drafting of a new Constitution.

Benes Completes New Czech Cabinet

London, April 7 (AP)—President Eduard Benes announced today the formation of a new Czechoslovak Government, designed to obtain the strongest support from Moscow, and headed by Zdanko Fierlinger, former Ambassador to Russia, as Premier.

The Communist, Vaclav Nosek was given the post of Minister of Internal Affairs. Msgr. Jan Sramek, former Catholic premier-in-exile, was named Deputy Premier, and the veteran nonpartisan Jan Masaryk, son of the founder of the Czechoslovak republic, was retained as Foreign Minister.

First announcement of the new government came in a Moscow broadcast of a Tass agency dispatch from Kosice, temporary Czechoslovak capital.

Other Appointments Listed

Other ministers named by Benes, according to Tass, included:

Gen. Ludwig Svoboda, national defense; Hubert Ripka, foreign trade; Vavad Strobar, finance; Prof. Zdenek Nejedl, schools and education; Yaroslav Stanki, justice; Vyacheslav Kopecki, information; Julius Duibis, agriculture; Bohumil Lausman, industry; Ivan Pyetor, home trade; Gen. Antonin Gassal, railways; Frantisek Gassal, post office; Josif Soltes, labor and social insurance; Adolf Prochazka, health; Vyacheslav Mayer, supply.

Also in the Cabinet were Joseph David, Clement Gotwald, Vilem Sorki and Jan Ursini, the broadcast said. Their posts were not specified.

French Said to Oppose Any Colonial Trusteeship

Delegates to Big 5 Meeting Are Instructed Emphatically

PARIS, April 7 (AP).—French delegates to the proposed Big Five conference on colonial trusteeship have been instructed emphatically to oppose any suggestion for placing all colonies under international control, circles close to the Foreign Ministry indicated today.

The position was reported clearly stated in a communication sent by the Cabinet to Paul Emile Naggiar, France's alternate delegate to the San Francisco world security conference.

The United States suggested this week that representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia, China and France meet at Washington two weeks before the April 25 San Francisco meeting to work out an agreement on mandates.

U.S. Proposals Anticipated

There is widespread belief here that the Washington session may produce American proposals to establish an international administration for the colonial empires. Presumably the conference will confine itself to a discussion of the former League of Nation's mandates and questions of supervising factories wrested from the Nazis. An example of the mandate problem is that posed by the Marshall Islands in the Pacific.

The French see no difficulties on such points.

But they seem extremely worried over the possibility that the proposed trustee system might be extended to include colonies, especially in the Orient, which belonged to France, Holland and Britain and have since been overrun by the Japanese. French Indo-China is the focal point of this disquiet.

Great emphasis is now being placed on the present fighting between French resistance groups and the Japanese.

'Notable' Bomb Experiment Nears End

Paris, April 7 (AP)—The day of sky-darkening fleets of heavy bombers is passing from the fast-shrinking European battle theater and mass strategic bombing—the "notable experiment" which Prime Minister Churchill said was worth trying to knock out Germany—is coming to an end.

First, the heavy bombers have just about done their part of the job; second, the targets they once reached from England now have come within range of more economical bombing and rocket-firing attack by fast, low-flying fighter-bombers.

Fleets A Problem

What should be done with the British and American four-engined fleets has already become a question.

It can be assumed that some heavy bombing will be continued, probably policing Germany's shattered oil industry and plastering her ports.

So far as is known by correspondents in Paris, no decision has yet been reached on the disposition of four-engined bomber fleets.

Some Kept As Threat

Obviously a considerable force must be kept both as a threat and to fill spot needs.

If any heavy bombers are shifted to the Eastern theater they probably would be American Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

Because the big British bombers were designed to fit specific conditions in this theater, many airmen doubt that they would be as effective in the Pacific area.

It is very likely that many of the big bombers will be converted for the purpose of getting badly needed food, medical and other supplies into isolated sections of Europe.

Two Frenchmen Sentenced

Betrayed Four British 'Chutists for $40; Nazis Shot Three

VERSAILLES, France, April 7 (AP).—A French court sentenced today two Nazi sympathizers who betrayed four British parachute troopers for a small sum of money.

The Frenchmen spotted the British soldiers near a railroad station and notified the Germans, receiving $40 apiece after the Germans had shot three of the parachutists.

The Court of Justice sentenced one Frenchman to death and gave the other twenty years at hard labor.

YANKS SEIZE ITALY HEIGHT

British Also Gain On Other Sectors of Line

Rome, April 7 (AP)—American 5th Army troops have captured 3,000-foot Monte Folgorito, dominating the main west coast highway 1 mile southeast of Massa, in a drive putting them 19½ miles from the naval base of La Spezia, a communiqué announced today.

Two British destroyers, Marne and Lookout, and swarms of American fighter-bombers effectively supported the operation. The destroyers hurled shells into German artillery positions and silenced some batteries.

Reno River Crossed

At the eastern end of the Italian line, Gen. Mark W. Clark's British 8th Army troops drove across the Reno River northwest of San Alberto, near the southwest corner of Valli di Comacchio.

The two actions, anchoring more firmly the two sea flanks, already have brought in more than 2,000 prisoners, but there was no indication yet of any large-scale offensive such as Clark has promised.

Most of the prisoners were taken on the 8th Army front along the Valli di Comacchio, where a narrow finger of land between the Adriatic and Comacchio lagoon was cleared of the enemy and several islands in the lagoon itself captured.

Resistance in the Monte Folgorito area was described as "scattered." The Americans were compelled to withdraw slightly from newly won positions near Strettoia, just south of Monte Folgorito. Enemy shelling was particularly heavy in this area, but slightly northwest of Strettoia a German counterattack was thrown back.

Hold Around Bologna

In the central sector of the front the Germans held grimly to their prepared positions around Bologna. Allied patrols prodded them at every opportunity.

For the third straight day and despite bad weather, United States 15th Air Force heavy bombers attacked rail lines and other communications and targets in northern Italy. Thunderbolts of the 22d Tactical Air Command also went after German fuel and ammunition dumps in the same area.

Lightnings of the 15th Air Force dive-bombed a rail bridge at Tannach-Stein, where a secondary Austrian highway crosses the Drava River near the Yugoslav border.

Allies Capture Key Height In Italy

Rome, April 7 (AP)—American 5th Army troops, continuing their attack near the Ligurian coast in western Italy, have captured the dominating 3,000-foot Monte Folgorito, and are driving forward against scattered resistance, Allied headquarters announced today.

Monte Folgorito is 4½ miles from the sea coast and 19½ miles southeast of La Spezia.

Yanks Forced Back

North of Strettoia, half way between Monte Folgorito and the sea, the Americans were compelled to withdraw slightly from newly-won positions. The enemy put up a heavy fire in that sector. A small German counterattack northwest of the town was repulsed.

Two British destroyers, the Marne and Lookout, and swarms of American fighter bombers effectively supported the 5th Army operations in the Monte Folgorito area. The destroyers pumped shells into the German artillery positions. The Allied communiqué reported that some enemy guns were silenced and others were compelled to move.

Cross Reno River

On the eastern coastal sector British 8th Army troops, in what was described officially as a "local attack," drove across the Reno River northwest of San Alberto and near the southwest corner of Lake Comacchio. They took 60 prisoners.

Eighth Army headquarters disclosed that the recent successful clearing of the enemy from the spit of land separating Lake Comacchio from the Adriatic was carried out by the British 2d Commando Brigade, which captured nearly 1,000 prisoners.

Positions Improved

There was nothing in the official reports to indicate that either the 5th or 8th army thrusts were on a major scale. In both instances they were made on narrow sectors. While they improved forward positions, they had not made any important changes in the battle lines.

In the aerial warfare more than 2,000 Allied planes participated in a day-long attack on enemy areas in northern Italy yesterday, losing only four aircraft.

shalling yards and ordnance plants at Brescia and Verona, long-range fighters strafed rail targets in southern Germany.

United States 12th Air Force B-25's and many hundreds of Thunderbolts, Spitfires, Mustangs and other fighter-bombers of both the American and British air forces blasted gun posts, rail lines, fuel dumps and enemy strongholds from La Spezia across northern Italy to Yugoslavia and the Dalmatian Islands.

Pope Receives Gen. Morgan

Vatican City, April 7 (AP)—Pope Pius XII held an audience today with Brig. Gen. Hugh Morgan, consultant to the United States surgeon general. Morgan is touring the European war theater. The Pope received privately the Rev. Harold Stockman, Jesuit father who is chief chaplain for the United States Navy in Italy.

Greek Regent Ousts Plastiras; '41 Letter Cited

ATHENS, April 7 (AP).—Admiral Petros Voulgaris, head of the Greek Navy, was named by Regent Archbishop Damaskinos today to form a new government succeeding that of Premier Nicholas Plastiras, who was dismissed.

Earlier today Plastiras told a press conference he would refuse to resign, but the archbishop informed him by letter tonight that he had no use for Plastiras's services.

Dismissal of Plastiras climaxed a cabinet crisis which arose when a monarchist newspaper published a letter which, it said, Plastiras had written in 1941 favoring German intervention to halt the Greek-Italian war.

Admiral Voulgaris has been prominent in the Navy since the World War, when he joined forces with the Venizelos revolutionary movement in 1917. He is credited with having halted the Greek naval mutiny at Alexandria, Egypt, in 1944, when he boarded a mutinous destroyer.

While Plastiras had told reporters today that even if formally dismissed he would refuse to quit, there was little doubt of the reagent's power to oust him.

The Leftist press, which previously had attacked Plastiras for suppressive measures against the Leftist E. L. A. S. group, opposed his removal today and contended that publication of his 1941 letter was part of a monarchist plot to seize the government.

Berlin Issues Permits For Subway Travel

Stockholm, April 7 (A. P.).—Berliners will need special licenses to travel in subways during the rush hours beginning Monday, the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today. The decree reflected the strain on the Reich capital's much-bombed communications system.

British Destroy Foe's Army in Central Burma

Report Force of 50,000 In Mandalay Trap Erased; 2 Other Armies Mauled

CALCUTTA, April 7 (AP).—The Japanese 15th Army in central Burma, officially estimated three weeks ago as 50,000 men, "no longer exists as an effective fighting force," a Southeast Asia Command communique announced today, and a headquarters spokesman said two other enemy armies, the 27th and 28th, had been badly mauled attempting to rush relief.

"There are no organized Japanese forces" left inside the Mandalay-Meiktila pocket, the announcement said.

The communique, stating that the enemy 15th Army had been defeated decisively in one of the "greatest victories" for Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's command, declared that the British 14th Army had won complete mastery of the battlefield during the last few weeks in "an intensive killing match."

A headquarters announcement said 17,000 Japanese bodies had been counted on the central Burma battlefields from December 1 to March 31.

"What is left of the Japanese divisions which opposed our advance in central Burma," the spokesman said, "are attempting to withdraw at night through our lines toward the hills southeast of Mandalay and south of Meiktila. Our armored columns, which have been mopping up inside the central Burma pocket, reported a merry slaughter, and are retaining the initiative."

Jap Army In Burma 'Decisively' Defeated

Calcutta, April 7 (AP)—The Southeast Asia Command announced today that in the battle for central Burma and Mandalay "the Japanese 15th Army has been decisively defeated and no longer exists as an effective fighting force."

The announcement said the fighting inside the Mandalay-Meiktila pocket in central Burma led to one of the "greatest victories" in Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's command.

The communiqué, issued at Lieut. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's headquarters, said that in an "intensive killing match" with the Japanese in the past few weeks the 14th Army had gained complete mastery of the battlefield and "there are no Japanese organized forces inside the central Burma pocket."

Press Mission Acclaims Indian Editors' Support

Parting Message Also Lauds Government Officials' Stand

NEW DELHI, April 7 (AP).—The three members of the world-touring American Society of Newspaper Editors committee issued a farewell message to the Indian press today, acknowledging indorsement by Indian editors of the society's resolution "to permit the free flow of news in and out of all countries in the post-war world."

"Government officials also received the committee with complete freedom and courtesy," the statement said. "They agreed, as did the editors, in the principle of the plan and promised a thorough study of the best means of application, which is the problem in all nations."

The committee consists of Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Carl W. Ackerman, Columbia University dean of journalism.

Chinese Battle In 3 Provinces

Chungking, April 7 (AP) — The Chinese high command reported heavy fighting west of the Peiping-Hankow railroad today as Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault predicted Russia's denunciation of the Soviet-Japanese neutrality pact would result in changes in both Allied and Japanese strategy in the China theater.

Chennault, commander of the United States 14th Air Force, said in a press conference at Kunming that while the Japanese had gained much ground in China their communications were precarious and hundreds of thousands of men had been thrown into China battles who could have been put to much better use in the Pacific.

"We are grateful to the Japanese strategists for hastening the end of the war," he added.

The high command said Chinese forces were battling the enemy in three provinces west of the Peiping-Hankow railroad in an effort to smash the current Japanese offensive and at the same time to cut the vital Canton-Hankow railroad.

The communiqué said Chinese troops broke into Chenhsien, 80 miles north of Hengyang on the Canton-Hankow railroad, and killed 135 Japanese soldiers, but were forced to withdraw. Hard fighting continued in the vicinity.

In Honan province, the communiqué said, Chinese troops captured Iyang, 18 miles southwest of Loyang, Japanese base on the Lunghai railroad, and were driving toward Ichwan, 12 miles from Loyang. This success, if accurately represented, might mean the severance of one of Japan's main supply routes to the forces threatening Shensi province from Changsuichen on the Lo River.

Chennault Predicts Change In China War

Kunming, April 7 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of the United States 14th Air Force, said today he believed Russia's denunciation of the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact would cause an immediate readjustment of both Allied and Japanese strategy in the China theater.

Chennault, who visited the Yellow River area, said operations of the 14th Air Force in support of the Chinese had helped halt the Japanese offensive west of the Peiping-Hankow railroad and that the Japanese communications along the vital rail line had been almost totally disrupted.

During March, Chennault said, 29,000 tons of Japanese sea shipping were destroyed.

Chennault said the Japanese had occupied a great deal of territory in China but their communications were precarious and hundreds of thousands of men had been thrown into the China battles who could have been put to much better use in the Pacific.

"We are grateful to the Japanese strategists for hastening the end of the war," Chennault commented.

NEGROS YANKS GAIN 30 MILES

Southern Mindanao Conquest Virtually Completed

Manila, Sunday, April 8 (AP)—Doughboys of the 41st Division virtually have completed conquest of southern Mindanao, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today, while on Negros Island elements of the 40th Division advanced 30 miles, capturing two airfields in their sweep.

The Far Eastern Air Force, maintaining its daily devastation schedule, bombed Formosa's Kiirun shipping base with 114 tons of bombs and poured 87 more onto Hong Kong's Kowloon dock.

Clouds prevented estimates of damage at Kiirun, but at Kowloon bombs created explosions and fires in an electric power plant and a large building in the supply area.

Freighter Badly Damaged

Direct hits were reported on a tanker in Hong Kong harbor and at nearby Kaitan airdrome.

A 3,000-ton freighter and several smaller freighters were severely damaged by other bombers ranging the South China Sea. Other small vessels were sunk east of Formosa.

Medium bombers found a Japanese light cruiser in Soemba Strait in the Lesser Sundas and scored two direct hits. MacArthur said the warship was either sunk or heavily damaged.

Other Philippine-based aircraft strafed and bombed Nipponese shipping in the Macassar Straits and the Celebes.

2,297 Japanese Dead

On the ground, MacArthur reported that Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Division troops have counted 2,297 Japanese dead and taken 59 prisoners in their capture of Zamboanga sector of southern Luzon.

American casualties there were 131 killed, two missing and 533 wounded, MacArthur said.

Total Japanese casualties in the Philippines campaign thus were brought in official reports to 310,000, with American losses at slightly more than 30,000—a 10 to 1 ratio.

MacArthur said remnants of the Zamboanga Japanese "have been scattered and disintegrated into the mountains north of Moroc."

Many Towns Liberated

On Cebu, Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold's Americal Division continued its "systematic destruction" of Japanese prepared positions north of Guadalupe.

On southern Luzon, the 14th Corps liberated many towns and villages in a sweep and east of Laguna province and Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider's 158th Regimental Combat Team is maintaining pressure, with attritional artillery fire, and aerial bombing and strafing, on Japanese in stubbornly-held mountain positions.

Devoting slightly more space than his usual single sentence each to New Guinea and Solomons operations, MacArthur reported that Australian ground forces have killed 790 Japanese in the Wewak sector and that an additional 510 have been slain on Bougainville and New Britain.

Air Action Leads In Philippines

Manila, April 7 (AP)—Air operations are stealing the show in the Philippine theater.

This latest one-day record for planes was reported in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué today:

Heavily attacked Hong Kong a third consecutive day, wrecking three merchant ships with direct hits and starting tremendous fires along the waterfront.

Loosed 7[illegible] of fragmentation bombs on Toyohara airdrome, Formosa, firing many parked planes.

Sank or damaged three sizable tankers and two small freighters in the Pescadores, islands west of Formosa.

Sank seventeen small Japanese cargo ships south of Hong Kong.

Started large fires in Tarakan oil storage area of northern Borneo.

And, most sensational because of its very daring, troops of the 11th Airborne Division were ferried 20 miles in tiny, one-passenger cub planes to capture Lucena, capital of Tabayas province on southern Luzon, and Lucena's two airfields.

The Lucena attack was the strongest yet in the Southwest Pacific war. The tiny liaison planes which normally are used for short one-passenger hops or for reconnaissance flights, carried a small force of the Eleventh Airborne Division to unopposed landings on the two Lucena airstrips. Ground forces had advanced to within thirteen miles of Lucena from the north.

Another Philippines provincial capital, Bangued in Abra Province on northern Luzon, fell to guerrillas and two other airfields were seized to make a total of four dromes for the day. The fields were Alicante and Silay on Negros Island, which, along with quantities of enemy equipment, fell to Fortieth Division troops.

Guerrilla Leader Tells Of Holding Jap Admiral

By Richard Bergholz

Cebu, March 31 [AP—Delayed]. Tokyo radio wasn't kidding when it announced March 4 that Admiral Mineichi Koga, commander of the combined Japanese fleet, was killed in a plane crash.

But Tokyo didn't mention that the paunchy, balding admiral was captured by Filipino guerrillas and released near death only to stop Japanese troops from murdering natives en masse.

The remarkable story of Koga's last days were told to me here today by Lieut. Col. James Cushing, of Downey, Cal., who held him prisoner and had to decide to trade Koga's life for the lives of innocent civilians.

Transport Crashed

When Koga's big transport plane crashed off the coast of Cebu, the first people to get to the wreck were Filipinos.

"There were 27 passengers and crew members on the plane," Cushing said, "but only twelve survived. When they reached the beach the Filipinos met them. Ten were turned over to us but unfortunately two were taken to the local mayor who in turn gave them up to the Japs.

"One of our prisoners was Admiral Koga. He didn't tell us that. He mumbled something about being a general. But we got word who he was and the Japs later confirmed it.

"Anyway, we took our ten prisoners up into the mountains and started to make it to headquarters. Koga and three others were badly wounded. We had to carry them all the way.

Japs In Pursuit

"Immediately the Japs, who learned the story from the two survivors they had, started out after us in force. It was slow going for us. We had to carry these four patients.

APR 8 1945

"The Japs took it out on the civilians. In following us they passed through villages and barrios we had left. They were absolutely ruthless. They tortured and killed innocent people to gain information and often killed apparently just as an object lesson.

"In one village they killed more than 200 people because they wouldn't tell where we had taken Koga."

Cushing paused a moment, then told how the 58-year-old enemy admiral was given every medical attention possible by the under-equipped guerrillas.

"Finally," Cushing related, "I could see it was hopeless. The longer we held out the more innocent people the Japs killed. Besides Koga was a very sick man and it would do us no good if he died on our hands.

Agreed To Trade

"So I sent a note to the Jap commander of the Cebu garrison, I told him I would release Koga to him if he would promise to stop murdering Filipino civilians and if he would return to Cebu City and leave the country people in peace.

"Well, word came back almost immediately from the Jap commander agreeing to my terms and specifying the means of transfer. So we told Koga, but he was so weak I doubt if he understood very much.

"Two days after the Japs had him Koga died. But the Jap commander carried out his part of the deal. He took his forces back to their base. And for at least six months thereafter I don't think there was a single case—at least a flagrant one—of mistreatment of our people."

YANK RAIDERS BAG 173 JAP AIRCRAFT

GUAM, Sunday, April 8—(AP) American B-29s and their P-51 escorts destroyed or damaged 173 Japanese fighter planes in their 300-plane bombing of Tokyo and Nagoya yesterday, Air Force officials disclosed today.

The Superforts, planning into their greatest battle of their many strikes on Japan's war-important industrial centers, alone destroyed or damaged 136 enemy fighters.

The P-51 Mustangs, making the Army's first land-based fighter sweep over the Japanese homeland, accounted for 37 interceptors. Of these, 21 were shot down, six probably destroyed and ten damaged.

Five Superfortresses and two Mustangs were lost as the Americans ran into intense anti-aircraft fire as well as surprisingly heavy fighter opposition.

The Tokyo-Nagoya strike was the greatest land-based aerial attack of the war against the Japanese homeland.

300 B-29's Hit Tokyo And Nagoya

Guam, April 7 (AP)—A new phase in the aerial war against the Japanese homeland opened today as the war's greatest B-29 force attacked Tokyo and Nagoya, protected for the first time by land-based fighter planes.

Two of the P-51 Mustang fighters from newly captured Iwo Jima were lost as they shepherded the more than 300 Superforts delivering demolition bombs on two large aircraft factories. The fighter pilots were credited with shooting down 21 enemy interceptors, probably downing six others and damaging ten.

A flight of 1,500 miles was made by the Mustangs in the round-trip from Iwo to Tokyo.

In Clear Weather

The big bombers went in at medium altitude in clear weather, indicating visual bombing of their targets, the Nakajima-Musashino aircraft engine plant in western Tokyo and the Mitsubishi aircraft plant at Nagoya.

An imperial Japanese communiqué said 270 planes were in the raiding force, 120 over Tokyo and 150 at Nagoya.

No claim was made by the Japanese of any United States planes being downed, but a Domei agency dispatch said four or five "enemy" planes were downed over Tokyo.

7th Fighter Command

The Mustangs were units of the 7th Fighter Command, headed by Brig. Gen. Ernest H. Moore, who recently established headquarters on the islands 750 miles south of Tokyo.

"This is the first time Army Air Force fighters ever have been over Japan, and we had to go a long way to do it," General Moore said.

More Airlines Accept Parley Bids

Havana, Cuba, April 7 (AP)—Commercial airlines of Australia, Brazil, Denmark, Scotland and France have accepted invitations to send delegates to the first international air transport conference here April 16-21, bringing to 26 the number of nations which will be represented, it was announced today.

Planned during the international air conference in Chicago last November, the Havana meeting will complete organization of an international air transport association representing commercial airlines in postwar operations.

About 50 airline officials will be delegates to the conference.

Cuba Newsprint Pinch Eased

Havana, Cuba, April 7 (AP)—The newsprint shortage, which threatened publication of several Cuban newspapers, including the island's largest, Diario de la Marina, was alleviated today with arrival of a shipment of 605 rolls from New Orleans.

CANADA DRAFT FIGHT

Ottawa, April 7 (A. P.).—The Canadian Government's conscription policy was under sharp attack today as opposition members centered a parliamentary offensive against the fact that there are 18,000 troops absent without leave in Canada.

Debate was fiery in last night's session as John Diefenbaker, spearheading the opposition fight, stressed the fact that more than 50 per cent of troops drafted from Quebec went absent without leave.

Douglas Abbott, Parliamentary Secretary to Defense Minister Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, declared that he was sick and tired of having Canada called a nation of deserters and charged that the opposition was using the figures purely for political purposes. He said Canada, with an army of between 600,000 and 700,000, had no higher percentage of men absent without leave than other Allied countries.

May Curb Shopping Sprees

Ottawa Concerned at Publicity Given U. Purchases in Canada's Border Cities.

Ottawa, April 7 (A. P.).—Those shopping sprees by Americans who come to Canadian border cities to buy meat and other items rationed in the United States are illegal and steps may be taken to curb them.

It is against Canadian export regulations for any one to take into the United States goods which may be rationed there unless the purchaser obtains an export permit, and such permits may be granted only to Canadian citizens or Canadian firms.

This is the law, but in practice it is not observed by Canadian authorities. They do, however, try to enforce other regulations which limit to $5 worth the amount of food which may be exported without a permit.

Similar Limit in United States.

There is a similar $5 limit in the American import regulations, and in addition American ration points must be surrendered for American rationed foods, just as if they were purchased in the United States.

The laws of both countries are designed principally to control commercial traffic, and the individual purchaser is bound by as little red tape as possible.

Canadian authorities permit the export of small purchases, including the illegal export of American rationed items, in accordance with this theory and on the ground that enforcement is administratively impractical.

The shopping spree traffic is chiefly in meat and cheese, rationed in the United States but not in Canada, and in poultry, more plentiful in Canada. Butter is rationed in Canada and could not be obtained legally by an American without coupons.

Shopping Waves Cause Concern.

The current waves of such shopping which have been occurring on week ends in such cities as Windsor, across the border from Detroit, have been causing some concern.

The actual amounts of food involved are not regarded as important, but authorities are becoming concerned over the publicity given the shopping sprees because of its effect on American-Canadian relations.

This publicity is regarded as accentuating feeling in the United States that Canada is a relative "land of plenty," a feeling which is frequently based on misinformation or, at least, on lack of complete information regarding Canada's role in the Allied food picture.

Canadian authorities highly sensitive to American reaction, are quick to point out that the combined food board, on which the United States, Britain and Canada all are represented, governs what each of these nations does in fighting the war with food.

Here are the regulations on both sides of the border, as outlined by Canadian and American officials in Ottawa, which apply to the shopping spree buyers:

Canadian:

"Casual purchases by non-resident tourists of $100 or less in value of clothing, toilet articles, articles of personal adornment, souvenirs and similar articles, and other small consumer goods (except edible foodstuffs over $5 in value, bicycles, typewriters and goods under ration control in the country of import) are exempted from requiring an export permit, except as otherwise provided" in Canada's export regulations.

A pertinent example of the last exception is sugar in quantities of more than five pounds, maple sugar above two pounds and maple sirup over a gallon. (An American would need Canadian ration coupons for any amount of these items anyway.)

American:

Any goods up to $5 in value may be imported to the United States duty free regardless of the length of the purchasers' visit to Canada. This is provided in a 1938 amendment to 1930 tariff regulations allowing duty free imports up to $100 (all of which might be food) by travelers who had been in Canada more than forty-eight hours and who had not used the right in the preceding month.

OPA regulations provide that United States ration points be given on all meat, although if there is danger of spoilage meat may be taken in without points, providing the points are delivered within twenty days.

Quite apart from ration stamps and duty, any amount of meat over $20 in value would have to be inspected by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

An American who had been in Canada more than forty-eight hours could take into the United States more than $5 worth of food—providing he surrendered American ration points for rationed items—but in this case he would be likely to be held to the Canadian export regulations prohibiting it.

Suzuki Takes Top Positions As Japs' Cabinet Is Formed

San Francisco, April 7 (AP)—Premier Baron Kantaro Suzuki formed Japan's third war Cabinet today while Tokyo shuddered under the greatest Superfortress demolition raid in history and remnants of the Japanese fleet were fleeing a disastrous encounter with United States forces.

Domei, Japanese news agency, announced that Suzuki, successor to Premier General Kuniaki Koiso, whose Cabinet fell Thursday, personally took the portfolios of Foreign Minister and Greater East Asia Minister, two top-rank posts.

A shakeup in the Japanese army high command was announced by the War Ministry even while the Cabinet was being installed in the presence of Emperor Hirohito at the Imperial Palace.

Key Positions For Suzuki

Tokyo radio said Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama, War Minister in the Koiso Cabinet, and Field Marshal Shunroku Hata were appointed commanders of the army command and Gen. Masakuzu Kawabe commander of the air force.

Koiso's Cabinet resigned as the result of the "war situation," Tokyo said, and to make way for a "stronger" government. But Suzuki was internationally known as a moderate who often has opposed Japan's military extremists.

Suzuki's retention of the Foreign and Greater East Asia posts gives him the key positions should Japan, failing in war and faced with Russia's denunciation of the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact, make peace overtures, a movement which the Army and Navy Journal in Washington predicted today.

Bombing Causes Delay

Tokyo broadcasts said the new Government was completed at 8 P.M. Saturday, Japan time, after a slight delay when the Japanese capital and Nagoya were raided by more than 300 Superfortresses, which flew over Japan for the first time escorted by land-based fighter planes from Iwo Jima.

Suzuki, 77 years old and a retired admiral, reappointed Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai as Navy Minister. Yonai held that post on Koiso's Cabinet and also was copremier.

One of Yonai's first duties under the new government will be to receive the report that the Japanese Navy had sailed forth on a "banzai" attack on the powerful United States naval sea and air force in the Ryukyus, to lose six warships, including the 45,000-ton battleship Yamato, and 391 planes.

Matsuzaka To Continue

Suzuki appointed Gen. Korechika Anami as War Minister, Anami and Yonai represent their respective service cliques and had the approval of the powerful Japanese war lords. Anami recently was appointed director general of Army Aviation Headquarters.

Domei said that Hoshimasa Matsuzaka, Minister of Justice in the Koiso Cabinet, would continue in that post.

The Japanese agency listed the other new Cabinet members as follows:

Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, Minister of Munitions and also Minister of Transportation and Communications.

Toyosaku Hirose, Finance.

Genki Abe, Home Affairs.

Tadahiko Okada, Welfare.

Kozo Ota, Education.

Tadaatsu Ishiguro, Agriculture and Commerce.

Vice Admiral Seizo Sakonji and Hyogoro Sakurai, State Ministers.

Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, State Minister and president of the Board of Information.

Hisatsune Sakomizu, Chief Cabinet Secretary.

Chokkyo Murase, Chief of the Legislative Bureau.

SUZUKI FORMS NEW CABINET

Tokyo Admits B-29 Raids Delayed Final Action.

30.24-24559

APR 8 1945

San Francisco, April 7 (A. P.).—Japan's third War Cabinet was formed today amid the roar of demolition bombs bursting in Tokyo from the greatest land-based air raid ever mounted against Japan.

The Japanese Domei news agency announced that Premier Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki appointed himself Foreign Minister and Greater East Asia Minister, two of the most important posts in the Cabinet.

Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, was retained as Navy Minister although under his administration the Imperial Navy suffered two disastrous defeats in Philippines waters and lost more than 100 admirals.

Gen. Korechika Anami, recently appointed Director-General of Army Aviation Headquarters, was appointed War Minister. Both Yonai and Anami had the blessing of the controlling military cliques of their respective services.

Baron Suzuki's retention of the key non-military posts recalled speculation that, with his ok time reputation as a moderate, he may have been selected to lead efforts to arrive at a negotiated peace. The Cabinet positions he kept for himself are the ones that would be involved in any peace offensive.

Yonai Was Co-Premier.

Admiral Yonai was second man and originally Co-Premier in the Cabinet of Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso which fell last week under increasing demands for a strong war government.

It already had been announced that Hiromasa Matsuzaka, Justice Minister in the fallen Koiso Cabinet, would be retained in his post.

Others were listed by Domei as follows:

Toyosaku Hirose, Finance Minister; Teijiro Toyoda, Minister of Munitions and concurrently Minister of Transportation and Communications; Kozo Ota, Education Minister; Gen Ki Abe, Home Affairs Minister; Takeshige Ishiguro, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce; Hiroshi Shimomura, State Minister and concurrently president of the Board of Information; Seizo Sakonji and Hyogoro Sakurai, State Ministers; Hisatsune Sakomizu, Chief Cabinet Secretary; Tadahiko Okada, Welfare Minister, and Chokkyo Murase, Chief of the Legislative Bureau.

Raids Delay Action.

Superfortresses, credited with a large part in the fall of Japanese Premier Kuniaki Koiso's Cabinet Thursday, were instrumental in delaying formation of the new government, the Japanese admitted.

A Domei News Agency broadcast reported Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki's efforts to form a new Cabinet were delayed when Tokyo and Nagoya were raided by fighter-escorted B-29s, but after the attack was over Suzuki prevailed upon Hiromasa Matsuzaka, Minister of Justice under Koiso, the remain in that position.

Jap Army, Air Force Leaders Are Changed

San Francisco, April 7 (AP)—The Tokyo radio today reported a shakeup in the Japanese Army high command with the establishment of new over-all army and air force commands.

While Premier Baron Kontaro Suzuki's new Cabinet was at the Imperial Palace for installation ceremonies, the War Department, headed by Minister General Korechika Anami, announced the reorganization, said the broadcast heard by FCC.

Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama, War Minister in Kuniaki Koiso's Cabinet which resigned Thursday, and Field Marshal Shunroku Hata were appointed commanders of the army. Gen. Masakasu Kawabe was named commander of the air force.

Yanks' Victories 'Mortify' Suzuki

San Francisco, April 7 (AP)—Premier Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki today told his countrymen the war had reached a "crucial state" and expressed "deepest humiliation" over American victories.

"The very basis of our empire's existence will be threatened if the situation is allowed to pass as it has been," Suzuki was quoted in a Tokyo broadcast.

The 77-year-old Premier said he felt the "deepest humiliation and regret at the development of the situation that has allowed the enemy to take possession of an integral portion of the empire."

Brooklyn Lieutenant Gets The Congressional Medal

Fisher Eliminated 4 German Machine-Gun Nests

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—Second Lieutenant Almond E. Fisher, of Brooklyn, who eliminated four German machine-gun emplacements in giving the enemy "a fight he won't forget," has won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Lieutenant Fisher, thirty-four years old, will receive the medal in Europe when he has recovered from painful wounds in both feet, suffered in the series of heroic action, near Grammont, France, Sept. 12, which won for him the country's highest decoration.

Lieutenant Fisher was born at Hume, N. Y., and reared in Brooklyn. He enlisted in 1934 and was commissioned in 1943. His wife Mrs. Phoebe Fisher, and parents

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fisher, live in Brooklyn, the wife at 5611 Sixth Avenue and the parents at 320 Sixtieth Street.

HONOR MEDAL FOR DEAD MARINE HERO

Philadelphia, April 7 (A. P.).—Corporal Anthony P. Damato of Shenandoah, Pa., will be the twenty-sixth Marine in this war to be awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor in special ceremonies at Shenandoah Monday, the Marine Corps public relations office announced today.

Corporal Damato was killed in action at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands on the night of February 19-20, 1944. The presidential citation says he threw himself on a Japanese grenade to shield two companions in a foxhole. "Although instantly killed," the citation says, "he saved the lives of his two companions."

Only nine of the twenty-six Marines receiving the nation's highest honor in world war II were enlisted men and only two of these—Pfc. Richard K. Sorenson of Anoka, Minn., and Sergt. (now First Lieut.) Mitchell Paige of Dravosburg, Pa.—now are alive, the office said.

According to the citation, Corporal Damato lay in a foxhole with two other men and when a Japanese threw a hand grenade into the foxhole, Corporal Damato, "realizing the imminent peril to all three and [illegible] of the consequence [illegible] unhesitatingly flung h[illegible] the grenade. He gallantly [illegible] his life for his comrades."

His mother, Mrs. John Damato, will receive the award from Brig.-Gen. Maurice C. Gregory, commandant of the depot of supplies, Philadelphia.

GERMANS MAKE PEACE APPEAL

1,391 Prisoners Sign Petition Broadcast To Reich

Washington, April 7 (AP)—An appeal by German prisoners of war in the United States to German soldiers and people to "put down your weapons immediately" is being broadcast to the Reich.

The War Department made public the text of the message tonight, saying that the "petition was signed voluntarily by 1,391 of the 3,102 German prisoners of war" held at Camp Devens, Mass.

The message was forwarded to the camp commander for transmittal, and the War Department said arrangements had been made to broadcast it to the German people.

From Four Fighting Fronts

The peace appeal was addressed by the prisoners to "the German soldiers and workers, German men and women."

The message said that "at a moment when the severest fate has overtaken the German people as a result of Hitler's twelve years of political power, we, the German war prisoners in America, raise our voices. Voluntarily motivated by the anxiety for your destiny in the homeland and by the imperious necessity to be called to action, in order to enforce an immediate peace."

The signers of the petition said they were prisoners from the fighting fronts in Africa, Sicily, Italy and Normandy, and "we are your husbands, your brothers, your sons and fathers."

Partial Text

The message said in part:

"Listen to us, German brothers, comrades of the armed forces, women and workers. Be not blind facing the danger of a frightful end, about which Hitler is trying to deceive you by telling you tales of secret weapons. . . .

"Only recently Hitler made you promises of victories. Are you still believing anything like that? Only now, the Red Army is carrying its mightiest offensive into the heart of Germany. In the west Rundstedt's Belgian offensive is smashed and armies of the U.S.A. and Great Britain, restored, move on to overrun the West Wall. . . . Germany, our homeland, has now itself become just what its own armies made out of other countries: theaters of war operations. These are the conditions after twelve years of Hitler regime! . . .

"Put Down Your Weapons"

"Therefore, put down your weapone immediately! Stop the war, surrender! Do not let the SS chase you out of your dwellings. Let the battle roll on. Hide yourselves. . . .

"Listen to us! Germans are speaking who have gone through many battles: . . . We know that the Allied nations can well differentiate between the Nazis and the German people. . . .

"There is a future for us, but it must be without Hitler."

500 Captive Japanese In U.S. Renounce Home

'Walking Dead' to Kin, They See Future Without a Country

PRISONER-OF-WAR CAMP, Clarinda, Iowa, April 7 (AP).—Japan's "walking dead" in this prisoner-of-war camp in southwestern Iowa want to start living again after the war as men without a country.

But until the Allies decide what will be done with them Lieutenant Colonel George W. Ball, camp commandant, is seeing that they work—and work hard.

The prisoners are "walking dead" to relatives in Japan, to the Japanese government and to themselves. All have refused the privilege of writing home. Colonel Ball says he has learned many of them would like to inhabit some Allied-mandated island or province restricted exclusively to Japanese prisoners after the war.

He metes out strict discipline to his estimated 500 Japanese charges in this 273-acre camp. It and Camp McCoy, Wis., are the only two Japanese prisoner-of-war camps in the United States. Clarinda housed German prisoners until January.

Many of the prisoners are young and considered good J[illegible]se army and navy fighting me[illegible]no were either unconscious or [illegible]-lyzed when taken. Colonel [illegible]ll says if they had their wish [illegible]he time of capture they would [illegible]ve killed themselves, but, now [illegible]nat they have found the Americans are not ready to kill them they are willing to be prisoners. None has tried to commit hara-kiri at the camp.

Japs Reduced to a Task Force, U.S. Naval Spokesman Asserts

Washington, April 7 (A. P.).—A "good 25 per cent of the remaining Japanese major combat force" was lost or put out of action in the naval-air engagement announced by Fleet Admiral Nimitz, an official naval spokesman said today. The new losses, he added, leave the Japanese with "a task force that can be handled very easily by any of our major task forces."

Emergence of the Japanese force, the naval spokesman said, was presumably an offensive action since it was made up entirely of fast ships. The possibility remained, however, that it was merely an effort to escape to more tenable waters.

"Obviously," he said, "the Japanese fleet did not like its position in the Inland Sea which was becoming more and more untenable. Damage inflicted by our raiding air forces and observation from the air was very discouraging to them."

The spokesman speculated that there was a possibility the enemy was seeking to retire to more remote positions north of the home islands. American naval forces, he added, have been able to keep close watch of Japanese fleet movements for some time.

Inland Sea "Too Hot."

Asserting the Inland Sea was "getting hotter and hotter for them," he said: "They must have known they were going to lose them eventually anyway and the fact that it was a very fast force indicated they hoped they could get in a fast hit-and-run raid and get away."

In another discussion of the Pacific war an admiral today said that the giant aircraft carrier Midway, beggest warship afloat in the world, is a symbol of its future course. The 45,000-ton ship, launched last month at Newport News, Va., packs more punch and greater ability to take punishment than any other carrier in existence.

Two sister ships, the Coral Sea and another unnamed, will be along shortly, and no doubt there will be more.

Rear Admiral John H. Cassady, assistant deputy chief of naval operations for air, said today, the pattern of the Navy's future role in the Pacific obviously is one of encirclement and strangulation of the enemy.

Fleet Admiral Nimitz, Pacific Fleet commander, and others have made it plain that the effectiveness of the final assault against the heart of Japan is dependent to a great degree on the number of bases from which the assault can be mounted. Carrier-based aviation must carry the ball in the preliminary softening up process on new fronts before land forces secure an area from which land-based planes may operate. That is the role the Midway and her sisters are destined to fill.

A Carriers' Vulnerability.

Navy men have long recognized, Admiral Cassidy said, that the basic weakness of the carrier is its vulnerability to all forms of attack, particularly from the air, with big, open flight decks providing an excellent target for bombs.

The Navy's answer, incorporated in the Midway, was the heavily armored flight deck, capable of taking terrific punishment, a feature impossible of adoption in lighter ships because such great weight would make a lighter vessel topheavy. The Midway is also much more strongly amrored against any other type of attack and mounts much greater fire power, including anti-aircraft, to keep danger at a distance.

Thus, Admiral Cassady sa the Midway class vessels wil provide the equivalent of a landing strip on a small island, with the added advantage of maneuverability which can carry the battle to the close "infighting" stages.

"Some people," Admiral Cassady said, "are now saying that now that we have taken Iwo Jima and are in the process of taking Okinawa, why build carriers? Why not turn the job over to the Army?

What If the Enemy Hides.

"That would be all right if we wanted to prolong the war indefinitely. But the Navy's job is to destroy the enemy's sea and air power. If the enemy's planes refuse to come out and fight, then we must go in and destroy them on the ground. If the enemy's ships refuse to come out, we must go in and blast them out of their hiding place. If they seek refuge in northern waters, we must send carriers up and dig 'em out."

"A dozen — twenty — Midways could pay for themselves in the time they could shorten the war."

While no disclosure has been made of the giant carriers' capacity, they are reputedly able to carry 40 per cent more, plane for plane, than the Essex class, latest pre-Midway type, which are described as carrying "more than" eighty single engine fighters. It also can handle two-engine bombers.

Jobs For All Goal Of F.D.R.

Washington, April 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared today that victory must have in the United States both "the rich meaning of full employment" and assistance to other nations in their reconstruction.

The Chief Executive expressed this view in a letter to O. Max Gardner, chairman of the advisory board of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. Gardner had transmitted to the President a five-point board statement of faith in the future of America.

"Victory, without the use for abundance of the powers we have developed in production for war, would be, indeed, a hollow victory," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Security And Abundance

"We must plan security and abundance together. Such a stronger American economy will be essential to carry out the responsibilities that lie in plans made at Bretton Woods, Hot Springs and Dumbarton Oaks. Similarly, abundance at home depends upon organization for order and security in the world."

Mr. Roosevelt said he was sure that, "Americans who have done so much in the winning of the war have no doubt that we can give victory the rich meaning of full employment in the United States and of assistance to other nations in their reconstruction."

Five "Convictions" Listed

The five "firm convictions" stated by the advisory board on war mobilization are:

1. That full employment can and will be attained here in the United States.

2. That it can be achieved under our system of competitive free enterprise . . .

3. That the full use of our resources of materials and manpower can produce a national income which, properly distributed, will bring about sound and stable business and industrial activity, higher real wages, better health, housing, and education for all.

Security For Veterans

4. That the veterans returning when war is finally at an end will then find a respected and secure place in the economic life of the nation.

5. That this nation can and will in that way help the needy in devastated lands abroad to alleviate their misery and enable them again to provide for themselves.

The advisory board promised to serve with Fred Vinson, the new director of War Mobilization and Reconversion as it had with the resigned director, James F. Byrnes.

Peace Overture From Japan Predicted

APR 8 1945

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal predicts an official peace overture from the Suzuki Cabinet in Japan.

Writing before today's announcement that Baron Kantaro Suzuki had formed a Cabinet headed by himself as Foreign Minister, the unofficial service publication said:

"Around the throne are such men as Grand Chamberlain Matsudaira and Admiral Nomura, both of whom had been ambassadors to the United States and had opposed an attack upon our country. For years they have been helpless to arrest the ambitions of the Manchurian gang which had in fact taken over control of the Government.

Koiso Member Of Gang

"The latest member of this gang was Premier Koiso, and he and the army proved unable to stop the progress of the American forces, any more than was the navy which the military hated and blamed for our successful approach to the home islands. It followed that Koiso had to go. . . .

"Whether Suzuki will be able to form a ministry remains to be seen. Should he be successful, doubtless an attempt officially will be made to obtain peace terms. . . . Our answer to their overtures will be the same as in the case of Germany —unconditional surrender."

First Long Steps To War

Discussing Russia's denunciation of her neutrality treaty with Japan, the Journal said:

"Vitally concerned about the fate of Korea, Manchuria and, indeed, all of China, which would be determined by the United States and Britain unless Russia showed her community of interest by joining them, the Soviet Government seized this moment of Japanese weakness to take the first long step to war. . . .

"Thus a situation was produced that could mean to Japan only greater ruin, perhaps revolution, unless in some way or by some means a halt in the war could be effected."

Poles Ratify Air Pacts

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The State Department today received ratification by the exiled Polish Government in London of agreements concluded at the aviation conference at Chicago last year.

Yugoslavs Going To Frisco

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The State Department announced today that Yugoslavia has accepted an invitation to the United Nations conference at San Francisco April 25. A total of 44 acceptances have now been announced. Two others, from Syria and Lebanon, are expected.

U.S.-Mexico Water Treaty Vote Set

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Senate leaders sent word to absentee members today that a test vote on the controversial United States-Mexican water treaty is scheduled Monday.

Debate on the proposed treaty has spluttered sporadically over a three-weeks period. Often with no more than a dozen senators present. The treaty provides for a division of Colorado River and Rio Grande Waters.

MacLeish Says Vote Deal Was News to Him

Explains in Broadcast That San Francisco Delegates Were To Be Told First

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—Archibald MacLeish, Assistant Secretary of State, said tonight that he was as surprised as the public to learn about the Yalta agreement between Russia and the United States whereby each would ask for three votes in the proposed world assembly.

Mr. MacLeish was speaking on a State Department radio program. A month ago, on a similar program, he and other Department officials had discussed the point that each member of the world organization should have one vote each according to the plan outlined at Dumbarton Oaks. That was after the agreement at Yalta in February but prior to its disclosure here a week ago.

Edward R. Stettinius jr., Secretary of State, had been questioned about the statements made in the earlier radio program at recent news conferences, and the question had been raised as to whether responsible officials of the State Department actually did not know about the Yalta deal. Mr. Stettinius said specifically that he knew of it.

Tonight Mr. MacLeish said "It came as a complete surprise to a good many of us."

"However," he added, "there were reasons, as the Secretary has stated in a recent press release, for withholding the announcement. It was felt that the result of the conversations at this point should be communicated first to the American delegation, since the question of whether the United States would ask for additional assembly votes for itself was left open at Yalta.

"But that didn't make it any easier for those of us with an information program to worry about."

Secretary Stettinius has announced that President Roosevelt had decided not to ask for three votes for the United States.

SETTLEMENT SEEN IN COAL DISPUTE

Miners, Operators Tell WLB Agreement May Be Reached Monday.

WASHINGTON, April 7—(AP) Soft coal producers and miners agreed suddenly today that chances are good they can settle their wage dispute without government intervention.

Chairman Ezra Van Horn of the conference of operators and the united Mine workers told reporters "we have the belief" that a contract can be agreed to Monday. Van Horn is an operator.

Send Letter to WLB

The conference sent a letter to the War Labor board saying much the same thing as Van Horn's statement to the press. The letter spoke of a belief that "it may be possible by Monday night, April 9, to reach an agreement, at least in principle, on all controversial points."

It promised the WLB that the conference would advise "not later than Monday evening whether or not an agreement has been reached."

If the controversy is not settled soon, the WLB is prepared to move in on the dispute. Today's developments, however, took immediate emphasis off prospects that the government might seize idle coal mines. The Solid Fuels administration estimated that the wave of unauthorized strikes since Sunday has cost the country more than a million tons of coal in Pennsylvania alone.

The old contract expired a week ago tonight but Lewis agreed to a 30-day extension. For more than five weeks the operators and miners have been negotiating for a new one.

Interior Secretary Ickes, as Solid Fuels administrator, called in midweek for immediate seizure of the mines, without waiting to see whether the disputants can get together. He said the cost to the war effort permitted not one day's delay.

Today's developments followed the recent trend of up-and-down maneuvers.

The operators, after first deciding to stay away from this morning negotiations and to submit the case, as stalemated, to the WLB, changed their minds and attended. They decided to send a letter to the Board instead.

U.S. Considered Bar To Cartels

Philadelphia, April 7 (AP)—Attorney General Francis Biddle predicted today that world cartels will disappear if the United States retains a firm stand against the private trade agreements.

Biddle asserted in an address prepared for a luncheon meeting of Philadelphia's Foreign Policy Association that "today there is a well-recognized movement to get this country to adopt the cartel system," which, he said, would curtail necessary postwar industrial expansion.

Too Great To Be Harmed

Minimizing suggestions that cartels may become entrenched in other nations and place restrictions against trade with this country unless business firms here join up, the Attorney General said the United States was too vast a producer and consumer for that to happen.

"The problem, for a while at least, will not be that Europe will be excluding our goods, but whether we will be ready to accept hers," Biddle said. "The talk of Europe's excluding American trade, unless we agree to cartel restrictions, just doesn't make sense."

For some years to come, he declared, European nations will be clamoring for our goods.

"I sometimes doubt if the cartel advocates are doing Europe justice," Biddle said. "Why should a continent which was held in the grip of a giant monopolistic system be assumed to be an advocate of that system in the years to come?

Have Not Heard From People

"Of course some of the monopolists have not changed their minds. But we have not yet heard from the people, from the ordinary business man, from the men of vision who will reconstruct Europe with hope in new opportunities."

The cartelization of foreign trade depends largely on United States action in the matter, the Attorney General said.

"If we resolutely refuse to take part in it, cartelization will gradually disappear as a significant force from the international market," Biddle predicted.

6 Proposals To End Meat Shortage Made

Washington, April 7 (AP) — Convinced by investigation that there may be no meat for export—including lend-lease—after July, a special House food committee today proposed:

1. The Army take over closed packing plants and turn out its own beef to break the general supply shortage.

2. A cut in the meat quota allowed hotels and restaurants.

3. The army lower its standards so that it can use some of the lower grades of beef, increasing the prime supply generally.

4. The Government peg the price of pork to growers at $13 through September, 1946, to guarantee that a steady flow of hogs to market at ceiling prices would be unchanged.

5. The War Food Administration "explore further incentives" to bring the abundance of beef in from the ranges and start it to packers.

6. Army purchase of poultry "out in the regions where there is plenty of red meat and not in the area serving meat-deficit cities."

July 1 Shortage Forecast

The proposals developed yesterday at a White House meeting between the committee and top Government officials concerned with the domestic and world food supply.

Chairman Anderson (D., N.M.) emerged from the conference to report that after July 1 the United States might be 1,000,000,000 pounds short of its meat requirements for the Army, lend-lease, UNRRA, the home front and other purposes.

Unless something is done soon, he said, "we are likely to have such a short supply that nothing can be done for liberated areas" overseas.

Export Decrease Expected

"As the meat figures now stand there will be very, very little for export in the third quarter of this year," Anderson said.

"Requirements against supply indicate now that there may be no balance for export."

The Anderson committee met in a closed session with Mobilization Director Fred M. Vinson, Economic Stabilizer W. H. Davis, OPA Administrator Chester Bowles, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, Lend-Lease Director Leo Crowley, UNRRA Director Herbert Lehman and other Government officials.

Army Operation Favored

Most of them, he said, were "very favorable" to the suggestion that the Army take over Federally inspected packing plants that have been forced to close and operate them for the Army's own meat supply.

It also was proposed that quotas to state packers be lowered and those to Federally inspected packing plants be increased so that more meat can move in interstate commerce.

That would help break local meat shortages.

FBI Help Urged

Anderson said: "I don't personally think the black market is as bad as it has been represented," but Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he had reports of "red-point rings" in virtually all major cities.

Black markets operate "brazenly," Wheeler said, suggesting that the job of breaking them be turned over to the FBI, supplanting OPA's enforcement activities.

Stettinius's Speech on U. S. Foreign Policy

Following is the complete text of the address yesterday by Edward R. Stettinius jr., Secretary of State, before the Council on Foreign Relations:

In speaking here in New York this afternoon at the dedication of the building which is henceforth to be the headquarters of the Council on Foreign Relations, I come to bear witness, as has every Secretary of State during the last quarter of a century, to the great services and influence of this organization in spreading knowledge and understanding of the issues of United States foreign policy.

Certainly today—after two world wars in twenty-five years—there can be few Americans, whether they live in the East or the West or the South, who do not understand how directly and personally they are concerned in our relations with other nations.

Ever since Pearl Harbor the hopes and thoughts of the people of this country have been centered increasingly upon creating at last a world organization which would be endowed with the power and the will this time truly to maintain the peace.

And ever since Pearl Harbor intensive studies and preparatory discussions of such an organization have been carried on by this government—and by other governments. There were many plans and a multitude of variations in viewpoint which had to be weighed and analyzed and adjusted. This process took two years and a half.

By last summer we were ready for discussions with our principal allies—the Soviet Union, Great Britain and China. Out of these discussions, and all the preliminary work that had gone before, evolved the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

Since last October these proposals have been before the peoples and the governments of all the United Nations for further discussion and analysis.

Now—seven months later—all the United Nations are about to meet in San Francisco to write the charter of a world organization on the basis of these proposals.

Danger Not Over

I have briefly reviewed this bit of history for a reason.

It has taken three and a half years of the most prodigious and single-minded effort the world has ever seen to bring the fighting forces of the United Nations into the heart of Germany and close to the home islands of Japan.

We can be sure that winning the peace is going to take a good deal longer and that it will be just as difficult and challenging a task.

Early in the war, when the United States and other United Nations were in mortal danger from our enemies, we were steady and resolute, and we found the means to develop and strengthen that unity of action without which we could not win victory. This is, perhaps, more difficult, now that the immediate danger has passed.

But the danger has not really passed—the danger that we shall fail in rebuilding the world and in preventing what would be the greatest—and perhaps the fatal disaster of our history—another world war.

What is required above everything else today is the same steadiness and fixed resolution and clear understanding of our national interest with which we met the tests of war in 1942 and 1943 and 1944. Certainly we shall never succeed if every road-block or every land mine on the road to peace throws us into a panic and, conversely, if every hundred yards of clear going makes us think we have nothing more to worry about.

Objective of Parley

It is with this point in mind that I wish to talk briefly with you about the San Francisco conference and about some of the forebodings and difficulties that have arisen concerning it.

First of all, let us keep the San Francisco conference in its proper perspective. It is not a peace conference. It will not deal with boundaries or reparations or questions concerned with the disarmament and control of Germany and Japan. Its purpose is to prepare the charter of a world organization to preserve the peace in the future, which can be submitted to the member nations for adoption.

It will be a difficult task, a task as difficult as the writing of our own Constitution in 1787, for the conference at San Francisco, like the convention in Philadelphia, will be pioneering a new way. The charter will inevitably be the product of a series of adjustments just as our own Constitution was the product of a series of compromises between the North and the South, large states and small, the merchant interests and the agrarian interests. Without these adjustments of interest and viewpoint our Constitution could not have been written. Nor could it have been ratified by the thirteen original states.

Probably no charter that can be agreed upon at San Francisco will completely meet the wishes of any one of the United Nations. What we must do there is to create a framework for the world organization that can command the support of the great majority of the peoples of the world, that will be soundly based, and that will be open to improvement as we gain experience in the functioning of the organization after it is established.

Separate From Peace Pacts

I am reminded again of our Constitutional Convention. The delegates to that convention clearly foresaw the necessity for later adjustments and amendments and made provision for them. Indeed, the first ten amendments to our Constitution went into effect only four years after it was written.

I believe that it was a wise decision, indeed an essential one, that the establishment of the world organization should be kept entirely separate and apart from the settlements that will follow this war. It has been said that by joining in the world organization before the peace settlements are made, the United States and the other members would be committed in advance to maintaining all these settlements in perpetuity whether they are good or bad.

Just the contrary is true. By creating the world organization first, and separating its functions from the peace settlements, we place it above and apart from these settlements and leave it just as free to deal with threats to the peace of the world that may later arise from these settlements as from any other causes. The Dumbarton Oaks proposals, through their provisions for dealing with any situation that might endanger the peace, provide for the exercise of this responsibility by the world organization.

For this reason, as well as for others, the rapid approach of the end of the war in Europe, far from making postponement of the San Francisco conference advisable, makes it all the more important that the conference be held on schedule and that its work be completed at the earliest possible moment.

We have ahead of us many other tremendously difficult tasks with which the San Francisco conference will not be concerned. We shall not be able to accomplish these other tasks in a few weeks' or a few months' time. They will take years. We have to deal with the disarmament and control of Germany and Japan, after they have surrendered; with the tasks of repairing the disastrous damage done by the war to the world's economy, of assisting the liberated peoples to regain freedom and security, and of reaching the agreements on many other matters, social and economic, that are necessary to lasting peace.

The Polish Question

Concern is expressed over the prospects of the San Francisco conference because of the delays that have arisen over establishment of a new Polish provisional government of national unity, or because of the questions raised by the Soviet request for separate membership in the assembly of the world organization of two of the Soviet republics, or because of any other of the difficulties with which we are inevitably surrounded as we approach the end of the war.

I can assure you that if we based our course of action on that line of reasoning we would never have a conference or a world organization. New problems of this nature will continue to arise. The coming months and years will be, in fact, a continuous challenge to our good sense and our will to master the difficulties of peace.

I hope that all Americans will keep such temporary difficulties as the delay over the new Polish provisional government of national unity in perspective.

It is important that this new government be established in time to make it possible for Poland to be represented at San Francisco. The United States government is doing all in its power to bring this about. Poland is a United Nation and should be there.

But I ask you to remember that the agreement made at the Crimea Conference about Poland is only seven weeks old and that it was reached after two years of divergent views among the principal allies about the government of Poland. The delay in carrying out the Crimea decision on Poland has been disappointing, but in this perspective it has not been long.

Sees Yalta Pact Carried Out

I ask you also to remember that the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States have repeatedly reaffirmed and always agreed in their common determination to see established a strong, independent and democratic Poland after this war.

Nothing has happened to shake my belief that the Crimea agreement on Poland will be carried out. That agreement, you will recall, provides that the new Polish provisional government of national unity shall be formed by reorganizing the provisional government now functioning in Poland "on a broader democratic basis with the inclusion of democratic leaders from Poland itself and from Poles abroad"; and that this new government shall be pledged to holding free elections as soon as possible on the basis of universal suffrage and secret ballot, with all democratic and anti-Nazi parties having the right to take part.

Our participation in that agreement reflects the steadfast determination of the United States government to respect the legitimate rights of small nations. No nation in the world has shown greater interest than the United States in the independence of small countries and in their right to manage their own affairs. This principle is basic in our dealings with all nations. It is basic in our policy for the peace. It is basic in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

The freedom and independence of small nations cannot be maintained, however, unless, the large countries unite their power to preserve a peace in which the democratic rights of all nations can be upheld.

The only hope of the small countries, as of the large countries, lies in a world so organized for peace that the industrial and military power of the large nations is used lawfully for the general welfare of all nations. The alternative is a world in anarchy in which lawless power runs riot and small nations are the first to be trampled under foot.

The large nations, and all the United Nations, are firmly united in the purpose and in the necessity to create a new world organized for peace, because it is to the vital interest of each of them to do so. Let us never forget that this unity of purpose and this community of national interest is paramount to all the lesser differences among us in interests and in history, language and customs. Because of that paramount unity of purpose and community of interest these lesser differences can be and will be overcome, as they arise, through the hard and exacting day-to-day work of consultation, negotiation, and adjustment which are the essence of successful co-operation among free peoples.

Eight years ago my great predecessor, Cordell Hull, when speaking before the Council on Foreign Relations, called for "a world organized for peace and advancing civilization, rather than for war and degrading savagery."

Now, after the devastating war which he foresaw, the world has its chance. It has taken the sacrifice of millions of lives, the outpouring of our wealth and untold destruction and suffering, to bring us to this moment.

The San Francisco conference will be a decisive juncture in the history of America and of the world. But we are only at the beginning of the long road to lasting peace.

If we are to complete the journey, achievements have been fashioned by high vision and good common sense. With that power of vision to keep the goal we seek always before us, and that common sense to guide us, I know that America will not fail, either the world, or herself.

Text of Inflation Report to Roosevelt

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 7—Following is the text of the letter received by President Roosevelt from the heads of the Office of Economic Stabilization, the Office of Price Administration, the War Food Administration and the War Labor Board:

Dear Mr. President:

Tomorrow will be the second anniversary of your "hold-the-line" order. It directed the agencies concerned with stabilization of prices and wages to stand fast against the inflationary pressures which total war brings in its train.

A year ago we reported to you that the line had been held. Today, with another year of war behind us, we are happy to report that it is still being held. Notwithstanding the intense and accumulating strains of the greatest war production effort in history, the nation's cost of living index today stands little more than two per cent above its level of two years ago when the "hold-the-line" order was issued.

A large number of items entering into the cost of living have been held absolutely steady. Some items, chiefly in the food group, have declined. On the other hand, clothing prices have undergone a gradual, but unbroken, rise during the past two years. Thanks, however, to new programs the rise will soon be stopped, and plans are under way to roll back prices on essential clothing items.

Hourly Earnings Rise

Average straight-time hourly earnings are currently estimated to be 10 per cent above their level of two years ago, largely as a result of promotions and increased production. Wage costs have been kept relatively stable and have not contributed to any significant rises in the cost of living through pressures on production costs.

Stabilization has been effective not only for the cost of living and wages but for farm and industrial prices as well. During the past two years prices received by farmers and wholesale prices of industrial products have increased only about 2 per cent. The record is clear that throughout the price and wage structure essential stabilization has been achieved.

Stabilization is not an end in itself. As the Congress clearly recognized in the Emergency Price Control Act, stabilization is necessary to prevent conditions which would disrupt production and interfere with the prosecution of the war. We invite your attention to the fact that this two-year period of price and wage stability has also been a period of record industrial and farm production.

The stabilization agencies have, at all times, recognized that while stable prices and wages aid production, a rigid inflexibility might hamper it. The slight increases in the general levels of prices and wages reflect, for the greater part, adjustments found necessary to eliminate gross inequities in wage scales and to secure required production. The success of this policy is evidenced by the minor degree to which wages and prices have had to be adjusted and by the continuing flow of industrial and farm production.

Inflation Stresses Grow

In judging the record of stabilization, account must be taken of the inflationary pressures which have been built up and are still building up. The continued flow of Government war expenditures, totaling $245,000,000,000 at the end of 1944, has pushed national income to peak levels. Each successive year has seen an increase in the spread between disposable civilian income—the income remaining in people's pockets after taxes—and the supply of goods and services available for civilian use. But in spite of this the line has been held.

Because of continuing requirements for war, the supplies of many civilian goods are scarce, and will get even scarcer, until well after V-E Day. This tightness of supply, taken together with the further increase of excess purchasing power, may well result in greater difficulties than any we have yet experienced in preventing inflation.

The difficulties are likely to be further increased by the readjustments in the war program and in the economy that will follow victory in Europe. It may be that for a brief period there will be an apparent end to the upward pressure on prices and even a general sag in prices. If that occurs there will be voices raised to claim that the danger of inflation is over and that all controls should forthwith be lifted.

The American people and their Government must remember that it was just such a deceptive sag of prices after the last war that led us to abandon all semblance of price control. But that sag proved to be the prelude to a steep inflation almost equaling that which took place during the war itself—an inflation that ended in disastrous collapse a year and a half after the Armistice.

We are confident that the people of this country will beware of those who will call for an abrupt ending of controls. In this war, unlike the last, the American people are aware of the critical need for stabilization. Not only have they accepted wage and price controls. They have given active support to these safeguards against inflation.

The successful operation of rationing and price control, for example, depends not simply upon the day-to-day cooperation of housewives and business men but upon the activity of nearly 200,000 volunteer workers throughout the nation.

The Amercian people have contributed in numerous other ways to the success of stabilization. They have cheerfully accepted the heavy increases in taxes made necessary by war. And they have recognized that if they attempted to spend all their income in a period when goods are scarce, it would put the severest kind of pressure on prices. Over the past two and a half years they have saved close to 25 per cent of their income after taxes. This has both helped to hold prices down and contributed to the sound financing of the war. In 1944 alone individuals bought more than $15,000,000,000 of war bonds, increasing their total holdings to upward of $50,000,000,000. In addition, they have accumulated huge savings in other forms, such as bank deposits and life insurance policies, which have been fed into the war-bond program through institutional channels.

As we look forward to final victory, the stabilization task will gradually have to be adjusted to a new objective—defined in the original Price Control Act as that of preventing a post-war collapse of values. The prevention of wartime inflation will, in itself, have contributed to the achievement of this task; but more must be done. Wartime controls against inflationary pressures will have to be adapted to the stresses of transition—to the requirements the economy will face when the Government has largely withdrawn from the market.

A Blueprint for Industry

A fundamental requirement, at that time, will be the adoption, by industry, of price policies which are geared to large volume sales and which encourage mass buying through the narrowing of margins over production costs.

Wage policy, too, must be geared to the maintenance of mass markets. This calls for high wages—mass purchasing power is the indispensable basis of the prosperity we seek—but it also calls for high labor productivity, and the low unit cost of production necessary to support large wage payments.

Even this brief statement suggests the difficulty of the tasks which lie ahead. There is still the gravest danger of a runaway price rise, which would undo all that we have accomplished thus far, delay victory and cause untold personal suffering. But at the same time that we exert ourselves to prevent such a development we must prepare to deal with the deflationary tendencies which may appear in the transition period.

To maintain stability in the face of the dangers ahead will require the full support of yourself, Mr. President, the Congress and the American people.

As a nation, we do not like restrictions. But the whole war period shows that necessary, sensible and fair measures will be supported. We anticipate no letdown now.

We believe the American people will insist that the fight against runaway prices be continued until the danger is over, and will give that fight their full support. We believe they will insist that the problems of transition be attacked with boldness.

Fully aware of the difficulties ahead, we approach the future with confidence.

EAST OF VIENNA, THE DNB AGENCY SAID THAT MARSHAL RODION Y. MALINOVSKY'S SECOND UKRAINIAN ARMY HAD CROSSED THE MORAVA RIVER AT ITS CONFLUENCE WITH THE DANUBE 18 MILES FROM THE CAPITAL. COSSACK HORSEMEN, SPEARHEADING THE DRIVE ACROSS THE LAST BARRIER PROTECTING VIENNA'S NORTHEASTERN APPROACHES, WERE SAID TO HAVE SECURED SEVERAL BRIDGEHEADS.

THE ENEMY CLAIMED THAT GERMAN RESERVES HAD "SMASHED" THE FOOTHOLDS.

MALINOVSKY'S MEN, AIDED BY THE RED BANNER DANUBE NAVAL FLOTILLA, ALSO WERE REPORTED ATTEMPTING TO CROSS THE DANUBE FROM THE SOUTH TO THE NORTH BANKS BETWEEN THE CITY AND THE DANUBE-MORAVA JUNCTION. THEIR AIM APPARENTLY WAS TO LINK WITH THE BRIDGEHEADS ACROSS THE MORAVA AND TO SWEEP ACROSS THE FLAT MARCHFELD PLAIN LEADING DOWN TO FLORIDSDORF, VIENNA'S NORTHERN DISTRICT.

THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN AGENCY SAID THAT THE ENTIRE CENTRAL AND NORTHERN FRONTS FROM THE CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS TO STETTIN WAS EXPECTED TO ERUPT SHORTLY AND SAID THAT RED ARMY PREPARATIONS WERE ENTIRELY COMPLETE.

FROM INSIDE VIENNA, TRANSOCEAN'S HEINRICH KURSCHAT RADIOED A GRAPHIC REPORT OF THE BATTLE.

"THE CONTINUOUS RUMBLE OF GUNS IS HEARD IN THE CENTER OF THE CITY," HE SAID, "AS SILENT COLUMNS OF MEN IN WORKING CLOTHES--NEWLY-RECRUITED VOLKSSTURMERS ARMED WITH RIFLES AND BAZOOKAS--MARCH TO THE FRONT.

"PERSPIRING SOLDIERS ARE SEEN EVERYWHERE AND LONG COLUMNS OF WEHRMACHT TRUCKS ROLL TOWARD THE BATTLE. MEN OF THE SS (ELITE GUARD) ARE IN THE FOREFRONT AND BEAR THE MAIN BURDEN OF THE FIGHTING.

"A BIG BOMB CRATER YAWNS BESIDE ST. STEPHAN'S CATHEDRAL. THE STATE OPERA HOUSE IS BURNED OUT. BLOCKS OF APARTMENTS ARE FLATTENED AND THE PARKS ARE DOTTED WITH BOMB CRATERS. EVERYONE KNOWS THAT VIENNA'S ORDEAL HAS BEGUN."

A STOCKHOLM REPORT FROM THE NAZI-CONTROLLED STB AGENCY SAID VIENNA WAS SUFFERING THE SAME FATE AS WARSAW AND BUDAPEST WITH RUSSIAN SIEGE GUNS LEVELING SECTION AFTER SECTION OF THE CITY. THERE WAS, HOWEVER, NO CONFIRMATION FROM MOSCOW THAT THE RED ARMY HAD BEGUN SHELLING THE CITY SYSTEMATICALLY.

THE SWEDISH REPORT ADDED THAT MANY SHOW BUILDINGS AROUND VIENNA'S FAMED RING--INCLUDING THE OPERA HOUSE, THE PARLIAMENT, THE NATIONAL MUSEUM, THE TOWN HALL AND PRIVATE PALACES--HAD BEEN HEAVILY DAMAGED.

THE MOSCOW RADIO THUNDERED A WARNING FROM OFFICIAL PRAVDA THAT AUSTRIANS "MUST WORK THEIR PASSAGE TO FREEDOM." "THE AUSTRIAN PEOPLE MUST REALIZE," SAID PRAVDA "THAT THEIR RELATIONS WITH FREEDOM-LOVING PEOPLES IS DETERMINED AND WILL BE DETERMINED BY THEIR OWN PARTICIPATION IN THE STRUGGLE FOR THE LIBERATION OF AUSTRIA."

WHILE THE BATTLE FOR VIENNA HELD THE SPOTLIGHT, FAR TO THE NORTH IN EAST PRUSSIA, THE GERMANS REPORTED THAT THE RED ARMY HAD LAUNCHED AN ASSAULT TO REDUCE THE LONG-EMBATTLED FORTRESS OF KOENIGSBERG.

APR 8 1945

THE DNB AGENCY SAID THAT THE RUSSIANS WERE STORMING THE CITY FROM THE SOUTH AND NORTH WITH AN ESTIMATED 11 INFANTRY DIVISIONS--SOME 165,000 MEN--AND MORE THAN 100 TANKS AND HAD SCORED "MINOR BREACHES."

LONDON, APRIL 8-(AP)-A HIGH ALLIED OFFICIAL WHO DECLINED TO BE QUOTED BY NAME SAID TODAY THAT THE ALLIED INFORMATION POLICY INSIDE GERMANY AFTER VICTORY WOULD BE BASED UPON GIVING THE GERMAN PEOPLE "TRUTH--NOT PROPAGANDA."

THE GERMAN PUBLIC WILL GET THE TRUTH "EVEN THOUGH THEY PROBABLY WON'T RECOGNIZE IT FOR A LONG PERIOD," THIS SPOKESMAN SAID.

IN LINE WITH THIS POLICY, IT WAS LEARNED FROM SIMILAR SOURCES THAT THE GERMAN PRESS, RADIO AND SCREEN WOULD BE SUPERVISED STRINGENTLY--EVEN TO THE ACTUAL OPERATION--FOR AN INDEFINITE PERIOD.

THE OFFICIAL, WHO IS CLOSELY CONNECTED WITH PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE WORK, SUGGESTED THAT ALLIED PROPAGANDA HAD FAILED TO CRACK THE HARD CRUST OF GERMAN ARROGANCE AND MILITARISM SUPERIMPOSED BY THE NAZI REGIME. LACK OF RESULTS WAS ATTRIBUTED LARGELY TO THE WILLINGNESS OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE TO FOLLOW A LEADER AND, MORE LATELY, TO THE GESTAPO'S THREATS OF SWIFT PUNISHMENT FOR ATTENTION TO ALLIED PROPAGANDA.

THUS, IT IS ANTICIPATED HERE THAT THE GENERAL INFORMATION POLICY IN GERMANY WILL BE DIRECTED FROM CONTROL COMMISSION HEADQUARTERS IN BERLIN. NEWSPAPERS ARE EXPECTED TO BE UNDER THE JURISDICTION OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ALLIES IN THEIR RESPECTIVE ZONES OF OCCUPATION.

THE FIRST NON-NAZI POSTWAR NEWSPAPERS WILL BE CONFINED LARGELY, IT IS BELIEVED, TO PRINTING OFFICIAL REGULATIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS, WITH AN ABBREVIATED NEWS REPORTS SUPPLIED, IN THE AMERICAN ZONE, BY THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION.

THERE APPEARED LITTLE LIKELIHOOD THE DELEGATES WOULD GO FURTHER THAN A GENERAL RECOMMENDATION ON THE SUBJECT, BUT THOSE PRIVATELY ADVOCATING A SHIFT FROM GENEVA AND THE OLD WORLD ARGUED THAT:
1. ESTABLISHMENT OF AN INTERNATIONAL SEAT WITHIN THE UNITED STATES WOULD HELP GUARANTEE THAT COUNTRY'S CONTINUED INTEREST AND PARTICIPATION IN WORLD AFFAIRS AND WOULD HELP COUNTERACT ANY POSTWAR WAVE IF ISOLATIONISM.
2. SUCH A LOCATION WOULD BE GEOGRAPHICALLY ADVANTAGEOUS FOR THE FARFLUNG BRITISH DOMINIONS.

LONDON, APRIL 7-(AP)-THE GERMAN DNB AGENCY ANNOUNCED TONIGHT THAT GEN. FERDINAND SCHOERNER HAD BEEN PROMOTED TO FIELD MARSHAL AND APPOINTED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF ON THE EASTERN FRONT.

SCHOERNER, A DIE-HARD NAZI, WAS APPOINTED TO COMMAND AN ARMY GROUP ON THE EASTERN FRONT LAST APRIL, AND LAST WAS REPORTED IN ROMANIA LAST JULY, JUST BEFORE ROMANIA SWITCHED TO THE ALLIED SIDE.

MOSCOW BROADCASTS SINCE HAVE DESCRIBED SCHOERNER AS THE RUTHLESS COMMANDER IN THE COURLAND POCKET IN WESTERN LATVIA AND LATER AS AN ARMY GROUP COMMANDER IN SILESIA, ALL WITHOUT GERMAN CONFIRMATION.

THE GERMAN AGENCY DISCLOSED HIS APPOINTMENT AS COMMANDER IN CHIEF AGAINST THE RUSSIANS IN A LONG BROADCAST STRESSING "THE GERMAN WILL TO RESIST," BUT MADE NO MENTION OF HIS PREDECESSOR, HEINZ GUDERIAN. RECENT UNCONFIRMED CONTINENTAL BROADCASTS HAVE SAID THAT GUDERIAN WAS UNDER ARREST FOR "NEGLIGENCE IN DEALING WITH THE RUSSIAN BREAKTHROUGH TO THE ODER TOWARD BERLIN."

DNB SAID SCHOERNER WAS "AN OUTSTANDING REPRESENTATIVE OF GERMAN SOLDIER HEROISM" AND WAS "THE MAN WHO HAS CONTRIBUTED MOST TO TOUGHNESS OF THE EAST FRONT."

HAMM--FIRST ADD HAMM'S CAPTURE BY EUNSON XXXX TRUDGE HOMEWARD.

SOME 5,000 FOREIGN PRISONERS OF THE GERMANS WERE RELEASED WHEN THE AMERICANS, LED BY LT.COL.EWEL E.EUBANKS OF LIVERMORE, KY., CAPTURED HAMM. BUT THEY WOULD NOT BE HOLDING HAMM TONIGHT WERE IT NOT FOR PFC. GEORGE HYATT OF MIDLAND, TEX., AND HIS BAZOOKA.

EXPECTING A COUNTERATTACK, EUBANK HAD ORDERED THE SOUTHERN APPROACHES OF THE STEEL AND CONCRETE BRIDGE MINED. HE DEPLOYED C COMPANY'S THIRD PLATOON, LED BY FIRST LT.JACK N.BAIN, GREGORY, S.D., TO HOLD THE BRIDGE. THEY WERE DUG IN ALONG THE OUTER FRINGE OF THE DEFENSE PERIMETER WHEN THE GERMANS SENT THE THREE TRUCKLOADS OF DYNAMITE OVER THE BRIDGE, CONVOYED BY A GERMAN HALFTRACK AND A TANK, FIRING AS THEY CAME.

PFC. HANES HOWELL OF SPRING GARDEN, ALA., STARTED PICKING NAZIS OFF WITH HIS GARAND RIFLE, PEERING THROUGH HIS SIGHTS INTO THE BLACKNESS. HYATT GOT INTO THE FIGHT WITH HIS BAZOOKA. HE LAID ONE SHOT SQUARELY INTO THE HALF-TRACK, KNOCKING IT OUT, BEFORE HE DREW A BEAD ON THE LEAD TRUCK. HIS FIRST ROUND HIT THE VEHICLE AT THE SAME TIME THE TRUCK HIT A MINE.

NOW THERE IS NOTHING LEFT OF THE CONVOY BUT THREE HOLES IN THE COBBLESTONE STREET. HYATT SAID THE DEAFENING ROAR THAT FOLLOWED THE EXPLOSION WAS BEYOND DESCRIPTION.

THE BRIDGE WAS SAVED AND EUBANKS' MEN ROLLED OUT AT 5:45 A.M. TO ATTACK.

FOR THREE DAYS FIGHTERBOMBERS FROM THE 29TH TACTICAL AIR FORCE HAD STRUCK AT COLUMNS OF RETREATING GERMANS BEFORE EUBANKS' MEN MOVED IN. ON THE RIGHT FLANK CAPT. GEORGE B. LUNDBERG OF OLEAN, N.Y., LED A COMPANY WHILE THE LEFT FLANK WAS COVERED BY A COMPANY COMMANDED BY CAPT. JOE ANZINI, SAN FRANCISCO.

THE AMERICANS CLOSED IN, SHOOTING NAZIS WHO WANTED TO FIGHT AND CAPTURING THOSE WHO CAME TOWARDS THEM WITH THEIR HANDS UP.

"I AM A PIED PIPER," THE COLONEL SAID, "BUT I PLAY A DIFFERENT TUNE FROM WHAT THEY EXPECTED."

LT.ALFRED SHULL, ARLINGTON, TEX., SAID PRISONERS WERE TAKEN OUT OF ALMOST EVERY HOUSE AS THE CIVILIANS RUSHED ABOUT POINTING OUT WHERE GERMAN SOLDIERS HAD TAKEN HIDING.

RAIDS, HOWEVER, HAD ENDED PRODUCTION HERE OF LOCOMOTIVES FOR GERMANY'S HARD-HIT RAILLINES. HUNDREDS OF RUSTED LOCOMOTIVE WHEELS ARE STACKED ABOUT THE PLANT FLOORS AND YARDS LIKE GIGANTIC POKER CHIPS.

APR 8 1945

THE PLANT COVERED SEVERAL ACRES IN AREA AND WAS DEVASTATED PARTICULARLY BY TWO HEAVY RAF RAIDS IN OCTOBER, 1943, WHICH WIPED OUT AIRPLANE FACTORIES AND OTHER WARTIME INDUSTRIAL ESTABLISHMENTS AND GUTTED THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF KASSEL. BORDERING RESIDENTIAL NEIGHBORHOODS ALSO WERE GUTTED IN THE RAIDS.

THE NAZIS WERE ANXIOUS TO KEEP TANK PRODUCTION HERE BECAUSE FOR YEARS THEY HAD TRAINED PANZER CREWS IN THE ROLLING HILLS AND FLAT LANDS IN THE KASSEL-PADERBORN AREA AND WANTED TO MANUFACTURE THE VEHICLES AS NEARBY AS POSSIBLE TO SAVE TRANSPORTATION.

AFTER BOMBS TORE HOLES IN THE ROOF OF THE PLANT, WORKMEN COVERED THEM WITH THIN SHEET METAL. THEY KEPT PRODUCTION GOING UNTIL APRIL 1, WHEN AMERICAN SHELLS FORCED THEM FROM THE ASSEMBLY LINE. THEY LEFT HURRIEDLY; ABANDONED TOOLS STILL LITTER THE FLOOR.

ONE ROYAL TIGER TANK THAT TRUNDLED OUT OF THE HENSCHEL WORKS DURING THE SIEGE WAS CAPTURED SHORTLY AFTERWARD. ITS SPEEDOMETER SHOWED ONLY 19 MILES.

ANOTHER COMPLETED TIGER WITH EVERGREEN BRANCHES DRAPED OVER THE RED LEAD, STANDS OUTSIDE THE PLANT, UNDAMAGED AND AVAILABLE FOR USE AGAINST THE NAZIS, IF DESIRED.

SEIZURE OF THIS PANZER NEST ROBBED NAZI ARMORED FORCES OF ONE OF THEIR CHIEF SOURCES OF REPLACEMENTS AND SPEEDED THE DOWNFALL OF HITLER'S TIRING BLITZ WARRIORS WHO ONCE ROAMED WESTERN EUROPE UNCHECKED IN THE STEEL BATTLE-BUGGIES THAT POURED FROM KASSEL.

[illegible], APRIL 7-(AP)-A GERMAN OFFICER WALKED DOWN THE STREET AND NODDED TO THREE AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS GOING IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION.

IN A LINE OF VEHICLES AWAITING THE GO-AHEAD SIGNAL FROM AN AMERICAN M.P., THERE WAS A GERMAN HALF-TRACTOR DRIVEN BY A UNIFORMED GERMAN SOLDIER.

CIVILIANS AND SOLDIERS WALKED AROUND THE STREETS OF THIS PRETTY LITTLE TOWN AS IF THEY DIDN'T HEAR THE HEAVY ARTILLERY ROARING ONLY FOUR MILES AWAY. THE TOWN ITSELF HASN'T A SINGLE BUILDING DAMAGED BY SHELLFIRE.

THIS STRANGELY PEACEFUL SCENE AT THE FRONT IS DUE TO A GERMAN MEDICAL OFFICER, COL.PAUL ROSENBAUM. HE HAS A STAFF OF 160 GERMANS AND A HOSPITAL FULL OF MORE THAN 1,000 WOUNDED GERMAN SOLDIERS.

WHEN THE AMERICANS APPROACHED THIS TOWN, COL.ROSENBAUM REJECTED NAZI ORDERS TO MOVE HIS PATIENTS.

INSTEAD, HE POSTED SIGNS ON ALL THE OUTSKIRTS, PROCLAIMING THIS AN OPEN TOWN. HE LOCATED ALL GERMAN GUN POSITIONS AND ROAD BLOCKS AND NOTIFIED THEM OF HIS DECISION. HE HAD REACHED ALL BUT ONE GUN POSITION WHEN THE AMERICANS APPEARED. THE COLONEL WENT OUT TO MEET THE AMERICANS AND TOLD THEM AHLEN WAS THEIRS.

JUST THEN THE ONE GUN OPENED UP, BUT THE COLONEL DID SOME QUICK TALKING AND SOON STOPPED IT.

THEN HE TELEPHONED THE NEXT VILLAGE, BECKUM, AND ADVISED THE PEOPLE THERE TO FOLLOW HIS EXAMPLE. THEY DID. NOT A SHOT WAS FIRED.

THE COLONEL, HIS STAFF AND HIS GERMAN PATIENTS ARE PRISONERS OF WAR, BUT THE HOSPITAL ROUTINE CONTINUES WITHOUT INTERRUPTION.

IN ADDITION, AMERICAN WOUNDED HAVE BEEN BROUGHT HERE, OFTEN BY GERMAN LITTER-BEARERS, AND CARED FOR BY THE GERMAN DOCTORS UNDER A COOPERATIVE MEDICAL PLAN WORKED OUT BY MAJ.WILLIAM TWYMAN OF LOUISVILLE, KY., AND LT.COL.PATRICK J.HAND, A PHILADELPHIA SURGEON. NINTH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, APRIL 7-(AP)-GEN.H.H.ARNOLD, CHIEF OF AMERICAN AIR FORCES, SAID TODAY ALLIED PLANES "CAN NOW FLY OVER GERMANY AT ANY TIME AND IN ANY KIND OF WEATHER."

AT A PRESS CONFERENCE AFTER A WEEK'S INSPECTION TOUR OF THE WESTERN FRONT, ARNOLD SAID IT "LOOKS LIKE THE GERMAN AIR FORCE HAS LOST ITS WILL TO FIGHT AGGRESSIVELY. IT IS NO LONGER MOBILE BECAUSE OF THE LACK OF FUEL."

HE SAID THAT MARCH WAS OUR BIGGEST MONTH YET IN THE AIR WITH A DAILY AVERAGE OF MORE THAN 5,000 PLANES IN THE AIR, AND A TOTAL OF 168,000 SORTIES (INDIVIDUAL PLANE FLIGHTS) FOR THE MONTH.

FIVE HUNDRED FIFTY-FIVE GERMAN PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN IN THE AIR AND 664 MORE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND DURING MARCH. ALLIED PLANE LOSSES WERE 799.

ARNOLD SAID THAT MANY PEOPLE IN THE UNITED STATES WERE SKEPTICAL OF THE AIR FORCES' FIGURES ON DESTRUCTION OF THE GERMAN WAR MACHINE, BUT AFTER SEEING THE RESULTS HIMSELF HE SAID HE WAS CONVINCED THAT THE FIGURES WERE "TOO CONSERVATIVE."

IN THREE MONTHS, ARNOLD SAID, THE NINTH AIRFORCE ALONE HAD DESTROYED MORE THAN 21,000 MOTOR TRANSPORT VEHICLES, 1,700 TANKS AND ARMORED VEHICLES, 2,000 LOCOMOTIVES AND 24,000 RAILROAD CARS.

THE AIRFORCES COMMANDER TOLD NEWSMEN THAT "WE HAD JET PLANES BEFORE THE GERMANS DID" AND EXPLAINED WE DID NOT USE THEM BECAUSE OF THEIR SHORT RANGE. "THEY ARE A DEFENSIVE WEAPON," HE SAID, "NOT OFFENSIVE."

WITH THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP IN GERMANY, APRIL 7-(AP)-A COMBAT TEAM OF THE U.S. 10TH ARMORED DIVISION BROKE SOUTH FOR A 35-MILE DASH TODAY, CAPTURING CRAILSHEIM, 49 MILES SOUTHWEST OF NUERNBERG, IN A SPECTACULAR ADVANCE THAT TOPPED THE DAY'S GAINS BY BOTH ARMOR AND INFANTRY ALONG THE 7TH ARMY FRONT.

THE DASH CAME AS THE 100TH INFANTRY DIVISION, 36 MILES TO THE WEST, FOUGHT FROM HOUSE-TO-HOUSE TO CLEAR HEILBRONN, WHILE TO THE NORTH BOTH THE 12TH ARMORED AND ELEMENTS OF THE 42D INFANTRY DIVISION PUSHED TO HERGOLSHAUSEN, LESS THAN FIVE MILES FROM THE IMPORTANT MANUFACTURING CENTER OF SCHWEINFURT.

THE 45TH "THUNDERBIRD" DIVISION SCORED ONE OF THE BIGGEST ADVANCES OF THE DAY WHEN ITS 108TH REGIMENT PUSHED 12 MILES AGAINST LIGHT RESISTANCE, AND OTHER GAINS WERE REGISTERED ALONG THE DIVISIONAL 12-MILE FRONT.

RESISTANCE THAT HAD MARKED THE LINE SOUTHEAST OF BAD-MERGENTHEIM APPEARED TO HAVE CRUMBLED AND THERE WERE REPORTS IT WAS DUE TO AN AIR RAID TWO DAYS AGO THAT SMASHED AN AMMUNITION PLANT AT NEURNBERG, CAUSING A SHORTAGE WHICH FORCED THE GERMANS TO WITHDRAW.

DOUGHBOYS OF THE FAMED 42ND "RAINBOW" DIVISION, WHO BROKE OUT INTO THE PLAIN NORTHEAST OF WURZBURG EARLY THIS AFTERNOON, TAILING ON 12TH ARMORED DIVISION TANKS, MOPPED UP A HALF-DOZEN VILLAGES CLUSTERING ON THE PATH TO SCHWEINFURT.

THEY ARE NOT SURE WHAT THEY ARE GOING TO FIND IN THE INDUSTRIAL CITY THAT HAS BEEN POUNDED STEADILY FOR TWO YEARS BY THE U.S. 8TH AIR FORCE AND THE RAF, BUT IF IT IS ANYTHING LIKE WUERZBURG, WHICH THEY JUST CAME THROUGH, THEY EXPECT TO FIND IT FLATTENED. THE GERMANS LONG SINCE HAVE REMOVED ROLLER-BEARING FACTORIES IN SCHWEINFURT BECAUSE OF AIR RAIDS.

BACK IN WUERZBURG, AMERICANS STILL WERE DIGGING DEAD GERMAN SOLDIERS OUT OF RUBBLED BUILDINGS.

MEANWHILE, THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY FOUND CONTINUING RESISTANCE IN ITS DRIVE TOWARD RASTATT, SIMILAR TO THAT WHICH BLOCKED THE PATH TOWARD STUTTGART. THE U.S. 63RD DIVISION WAS FINDING LIKE RESISTANCE IN THE SAME GENERAL AREA FROM HITLER YOUTH BANDS HOLDING FOXHOLES UNDER HEAVY ATTACKS.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, APRIL 7-(AP)-FIERCE LOCAL ACTIONS FLAMED AT SEVERAL POINTS ON LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' DOUBLE DIRECTIONAL BATTLEFIELD TODAY.

ARMORED COLUMNS ROLLING EAST CRACKED UP AGAINST RESISTANCE WHERE UNWILLING SOLDIERS--BY THE ACCOUNT OF PRISONERS--WERE KEPT IN THEIR POSITIONS BY OFFICERS AT PISTOL POINT.

THE WESER RIVER WAS CROSSED BY DOUGHBOYS WHO PADDLED ACROSS AGAINST MEAGER RESISTANCE NORTHEAST OF KASSEL.

THEY PUSHED ACROSS UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS AND FOUND THE 300-FOOT WIDE RIVER--NORMALLY A TOUGH MILITARY OBSTACLE BECAUSE IT FLOWS BETWEEN HIGH HILLS--ALMOST UNDEFENDED BY THE DISORGANIZED GERMANS, WHO ARE SPREAD SO THIN THEY ARE UNABLE TO CONCENTRATE STRONG FORCES IN ANY ONE ZONE.

ON THE EASTERN PUSH, OPPOSITION CENTERED NEAR AMELUNXEN, AROUND A JUNCTION OF THE ENTHE AND WESER RIVERS.

AT THE RAILROAD CROSSING THERE, FORWARD TANKS RAN INTO STUBBORN ENEMY INFANTRY FIGHTING WITHOUT ARMORED SUPPORT.

ANOTHER ARMORED WEDGE PUSHED FOUR MILES TO THE WESER AT SEVERAL TO THE SOUTH, AND FOUND THE BRIDGE THERE BLOWN.

ADVANCED INFANTRY ELEMENTS AFTER CROSSING THE WESER PENETRATED TWO AND A HALF POINTS NORTHEAST OF KASSEL AT LAST REPORT HAD PENETRATED TWO AND A HALF MILES BEYOND THE RIVER AND WERE STILL ADVANCING.

TROOPS PUSHING THROUGH HISTORIC HESSIAN PASS--A NARROW 10-MILE CHANNEL FOLLOWED BY MANY CONQUERORS IN BY-GONE CENTURIES--PUSHED THROUGH MUENDEN AND REACHED THE WESER 10 MILES NORTHEAST OF KASSEL.

THEY WERE MORE THAN HALF WAY THROUGH THE TORTUOUS MOUNTAIN GORGE BEYOND WHOSE HILLS STRETCHES THE EXCELLENT TANK COUNTRY OF THE PLAINS.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, WHERE HODGES TROOPS ARE PRESSING AGAINST THE RUHR POCKET ON A 70-MILE FRONT, ARMORED ELEMENTS MET STIFF RESISTANCE IN THE AREA OF SCHMALLENBERG.

THEY TOOK 71 PRISONERS AND KNOCKED OUT ONE TANK AFTER THEY WERE ATTACKED AT DAWN BY 250 INFANTRYMEN AND SIX TIGER TANKS. THE GERMANS, WHOSE MISSION WAS TO RECAPTURE SCHMALLENBERG, DUG IN ON THE HILLS AND FOUGHT ALL DAY AFTER CALLING DOWN ARTILLERY FIRE TO THEIR AID.

AT SIEGEN, 200 PARATROOPERS WHO FOUGHT SAVAGELY TO HOLD TWO FACTORIES AND BARRACKS IN THE NORTHERN OUTSKIRTS, CAPITULATED AFTER THEY SAW AMERICAN ANTI-TANK GUNS BEING WHEELED INTO POSITION TO BLAST THEM OUT.

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY IN GERMANY, APRIL 7-(AP)-DRIVING EAST OF THE PETERSHAGEN BRIDGEHEAD OVER THE WESER RIVER, THE BRITISH SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION ADVANCED TEN MILES TODAY, REACHING POSITIONS ONLY 20 MILES WEST OF HANNOVER.

THE SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION SCORED NO IMPORTANT ADVANCES AFTER A SPECTACULAR 35-MILE THRUST WHICH PLACED A FORWARD SPEARHEAD AT BUCKEN, 20 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BREMEN.

THE SIXTH AIRBORNE'S ADVANCE TOOK SACHSENHAGEN AND PUSHED BEYOND SOUTH STEINHUDER LAKE 150 MILES FROM THE RHINE.

ONLY DEVELOPMENTS IN THE 15TH ARMORED DIVISION SECTOR WERE THE CAPTURE OF AN ENEMY AIRFIELD NORTH OF DEIPTOLZ AND THE SEIZURE OF 30 BUZZ-BOMBS AT STEYERBERG, NORTHWEST OF THE STOLZENAU BRIDGEHEAD OVER THE WESER.

ON THE BRITISH LEFT FLANK ARMORED UNITS EXTENDED THE LINGEN BRIDGEHEAD TO A DEPTH OF TEN MILES, REACHING THE OUTSKIRTS OF LENGERICH AND FREREN. THE FIGHTERS RAN INTO A SCREEN OF ANTI-TANK 88'S BUT AERIAL RECONNAISSANCE THIS AFTERNOON INDICATED THE ENEMY WAS PULLING OUT OF THIS AREA AND FALLING BACK HASTILY TOWARD BREMEN.

THE ARMORED UNITS CAPTURED A PRISON HOSPITAL AT THUINE, WEST OF LINGEN, FREEING 350 ALLIED WOUNDED, MOST OF THEM FRENCH. ALL WERE UNDER THE COMMAND OF A SERB GENERAL.

THERE HAS BEEN A LIMITED AMOUNT OF ENEMY AIR ACTIVITY OVER THE SECOND ARMY FRONT, PARTICULARLY OVER THE STOLZENAU BRIDGEHEAD ON THE WESER WHERE SEVEN PLANES, INCLUDING TWO OLD STUKAS, WERE SHOT DOWN IN ATTACKS LAST NIGHT AND THIS MORNING. THERE ALSO HAS BEEN SOME STRAFING OF BRITISH FORCES IN THE EMS SECTOR NORTH OF THE RHINE.

THERE IS STILL HEAVY FIGHTING IN THIS SECTOR OF THE FRONT ALTHOUGH IT IS NOW APPARENT THE ENEMY IS TRYING TO WITHDRAW THE BULK OF HIS FORCES TOWARD BREMEN. BRITISH RECONNAISSANCE PLANES DISCOVERED A COLUMN OF GERMAN TRANSPORT MOVING EASTWARD ON THE ROAD TO FARSTENAU.

THE GERMANS FIND HASTE SO NECESSARY THAT THEY ARE TRYING TO MOVE BY DAYLIGHT, WHEN THEY ARE SUBJECTED TO OVERWHELMING ALLIED AIR ATTACKS. THIS CAN ONLY MEAN THAT ALLIED PRESSURE IS DEVELOPING INTO A NEW BREAK-THROUGH THREAT NORTHEASTWARD FROM LINGEN ON THE RHINE LINE AND THE ENEMY IS TRYING TO ESCAPE THE TRAP.

APR8 1945

BRITISH PROGRESS BEYOND LINGEN, HOWEVER, IS STILL OPPOSED BY HARD FIGHTING FORCES EQUIPPED WITH LARGE NUMBERS OF GUNS.

THE BIGGEST TASK FACED AT PRESENT BY LT.COL.HOWARD CRISWELL OF WASHINGTON, D.C., MILITARY GOVERNOR OF THE CITY, IS CARING FOR THE THOUSANDS OF DISPLACED PERSONS WHO STREAM IN FROM THE FRONT AREAS.

CRISWELL HAS APPOINTED A GERMAN MAYOR AND COUNCIL TO AID IN GOVERNING THE CITY. THEY HAVE NO AUTHORITY BUT ADVISE CRISWELL, WHO ACTS ON THE SUGGESTIONS HE FINDS ACCEPTABLE.

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, APRIL 7-(AP)-AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN THE MOST ADVANCED POSITIONS ON THE WESTERN FRONT RECEIVED TODAY THE FIRST ISSUE OF THE ARMY NEWSPAPER, STARS AND STRIPES, TO BE PUBLISHED INSIDE GERMANY.

THE TOP HEADLINE READ: "THIRD CLEARS KASSEL AS FRENCH ENTER KARLSRUHE."

PUBLICATION OF THE PAPER, WHICH IS THE THIRTEENTH OF THE STARS AND STRIPES SERIES, WAS ARRANGED BY EDITOR LT.ROBERT L.MOORA, MONTCLAIR,N.J., FORMERLY WITH THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE.

BY A CURIOUS TWIST OF FATE, THE FIRST EDITION ROLLED OFF THE PRESSES IN THE PFUNGSTADT PLANT OF THE FRANKFURTER ZEITUNG, A NEW SHOP SET UP AFTER THE GERMAN NEWSPAPER WAS BOMBED OUT OF ITS FORMER PLANT. THE FRANKFURTER ZEITUNG NEVER USED ITS SUBSTITUTE SHOP. THE NEWSPAPER WAS SUPPRESSED BY THE NAZIS AS UNNECESSARY AND TOO MUCH ADDICTED TO IDEAS CONCERNING A FREE PRESS.

STARS AND STRIPES COMMENTED EDITORIALLY THAT IT HAD PUT OUT A FREE NEWSPAPER FOR A FREEDOM-LOVING ARMY, AND THAT JOHANN GUTENBERG, THE INVENTOR OF THE PRINTING PROCESS, "IS SMILING TODAY." GUTENBERG REPUTEDLY DEVELOPED HIS PRINTING PROCESS IN MAINZ, THROUGH WHICH THE THIRD ARMY ADVANCE HAD SURGED.

MOORE AND A SMALL STAFF CAME TO GERMANY IN A PLANE WHICH CARRIED A JEEP. THE FIRST TASK FOR THE JEEP-RIDING JOURNALISTS WAS TO FIND A PLANT. AT PFUNGSTADT THEY FOUND A SMALL STOCK OF PAPER AND GOOD MACHINERY, BUT IT HAD BEEN SABOTAGED IN A SUBTLE MANNER.

BY WHAT APPEARED TO BE A CAREFULLY ORGANIZED PLAN, A SMALL PART HAD BEEN REMOVED FROM EVERY TYPE-SETTING MACHINE THAT COULD BE FOUND IN ANY TOWN EAST OF THE RHINE. IN EACH CASE THE MISSING PART WAS THE MECHANISM CONTROLLING THE MOVEMENT OF THE ARM WHICH RETURNS MATRICES TO THE MAGAZINE.

SGT.MARTY HARRIS, AS MECHANICAL SUPERINTENDENT, HUNTED THE GADGET IN MANY TOWNS. FINALLY HE FOUND ONE, AND THE COPY WAS SET FOR THE PRESSES.

B47 (Q)

APR8 1945

THE FIRST ISSUE WAS PUT OUT ON A CATCH-AS-CATCH-CAN BASIS, FROM REPORTS CAUGHT BY THE STAFF FROM RADIO NEWS BROADCASTS, INCLUDING THE GERMAN.

THE LITTLE STAFF, INCLUDING SGTS.BENJAMIN F.PRICE, DES MOINES, IOWA, AND JOSEPH FLEMING OF NEW YORK, HAS EXTRAORDINARY DUTIES WHICH ORDINARILY DO NOT CONCERN EDITORS. IN THE FIRST HOURS OF THE OCCUPATION OF THE TOWN THEY VIRTUALLY HAD TO GOVERN PFUNGSTADT. ONE OF THE FIRST TASKS FOR THE REPORTERS WAS TO MANAGE THE FUNERAL OF A GERMAN CHILD KILLED IN A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT, AND TO ARRANGE WITH THE MILITARY POLICE FOR A MODEST PROCESSION.

GROSS SAID THE PRISONER'S MENTALITY, ETHICS AND STUPIDITY COULD BE JUDGED BY HIS ANSWERS TO THE FOLLOWING QUESTIONS:

Q-DO YOU BELIEVE GERMANY IS GOING TO WIN THE WAR?

A-YES.

Q-HOW?

A-I DON'T KNOW.

APR 8 1945

Q-WHAT WILL HITLER DO NOW?

A-HE WILL DO WHAT IS BEST FOR THE GERMAN PEOPLE.

Q-WHAT IS GOING TO BE THE FATE OF THE NAZI PARTY?

"THERE ARE IN AUSTRIAN CIRCLES WHICH, ALTHOUGH ADVERTISING IN WORDS THEIR NEUTRAL POSITION REGARDING GERMAN FASCIST RULE, AS A MATTER OF FACT SUPPORT THE GERMAN TERROR REGIME," THE ARTICLE DECLARED.

"IN THE FIRST PLACE, THIS APPLIES TO CATHOLIC CIRCLES...UNDER THE IDEOLOGICAL LEADERSHIP OF CARDINAL INNITZER, WHO HAS ACCLAIMED THE PROVOCATIVE CAMPAIGN OPENED BY THE GERMANS AGAINST THE SOVIET UKRAINE."

THE ARTICLE, BY PROF. PETYOR KISELEV, SAID THE AUSTRIAN PEOPLE MUST TAKE INTO ACCOUNT THAT THE ATTITUDE OF FREEDOM-LOVING PEOPLES TOWARD THEM IS BEING DETERMINED BY THEIR OWN PARTICIPATION IN THE STRUGGLE FOR THE LIBERATION OF AUSTRIA."

"THIS FACT," IT ADDED, "EXPRESSED IN THE MOSCOW DECLARATION, NOW TAKES ON SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE WHEN THE RED ARMY IS SMASHING THE GERMAN OCCUPANTS ON AUSTRIAN TERRITORY.

"THE FORMATION OF THE PATRIOTIC INTERNAL FRONT IS LESS ACTIVE IN AUSTRIA THAN HAS BEEN THE CASE IN SOME OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES ON THE EVE OF THEIR LIBERATION."

KISELEV'S ARTICLE SAID SOME EMIGRE CIRCLES IN NEW YORK, LONDON, ROME AND ANKARA ALREADY WERE PLANNING TO RETURN TO THEIR OLD PRIVILEGI AND "SOME SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC ELEMENTS IN LONDON ALREADY ARE PROPOSING THEIR SERVICES IN THE STRUGGLE FOR 'SUPPRESSING RUSSIAN INFLUENCE.'"

THE WRITER ASSERTED THE VATICAN HAD PLANS FOR FORMING A CATHOLIC STATE WHICH WOULD CONSIST OF AUSTRIA, BAVARIA, THE RHINELAND AND OTHER DISTRICTS.

AN IZVESTIA

MOSCOW,APRIL 7 (AP)--TEXT OF AN EDITORIAL IN IZVESTIA ON THE RUSSIAN DENUNCIATION OF THE SOVIET-JAPANESE PACT: (950)

RUSSO-JAPANESE PACT:

APR 8 1945

ON APRIL 13, 1941, THAT IS BEFORE THE ATTACK OF GERMANY ON THE U.S.S.R.AND BEFORE THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR BETWEEN JAPAN ON ONE SIDE AND THE UNITED STATES AND ENGLAND ON THE OTHER, IN MOSCOW THERE WAS SIGNED A TREATY OF NEUTRALITY BETWEEN THE SOVIET UNION AND JAPAN. THE CONCLUSION OF THIS PACT MARKED THE CROWNING STAGE IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF SOVIET AND JAPANESE RELATIONS.

DURING MORE THAN TWO DECADES BEGINNING FROM THE TIME OF

30.24-24573

THE GREAT OCTOBER SOCIALIST REVOLUTION AND THE FORMATION OF THE SOVIET STATE THESE RELATIONS BORE AN ALTOGETHER UNSATISFACTORY CHARACTER.

THERE WAS) JAPANESE INTERVENTION IN THE FAR EAST IN 1918-1922 DURING WHICH TIME THE JAPANESE ARMY LANDED IN VLADIVOSTOK AND OCCUPIED THE COASTAL AREA, OCCUPATION BY JAPAN OF NORTHERN SAKHALIN, A LARGE NUMBER OF BORDER CONFLICTS AND FINALLY THE MEMORABLE EVENTS AT LAKE KHASSAN AND ONKHALKIN GOL RIVER IN 1938-1939. APR 8 1945

SUCH IS FAR FROM BEING A FULL SUMMATION OF THE FACTS BEARING WITNESS THAT LEADING CIRCLES IN JAPAN DURING THE MANY YEARS CONDUCTED AGGRESSIVE POLITICS IN RELATIONS WITH THE SOVIET UNION WHICH LED MORE THAN ONCE TO SHARP CONFLICTS BETWEEN THE TWO STATES.

NO LITTLE TIME WAS NEEDED IN ORDER FOR THE LEADING JAPANESE CIRCLES TO COME TO THE CONCLUSION OF THE NECESSITY OF ESTABLISHING NORMAL RELATIONS WITH THEIR NEIGHBOR, THE SOVIET UNION, AND TO DESIST FROM THEIR POLITICS OF MILITARY PROVOCATIONS AND ADVENTURES IN THEIR RELATIONS WITH THE U.S.S.R.

THE CONCLUSION OF THE TREATY OF NEUTRALITY BETWEEN THE U.S.S.R. AND JAPAN ON APRIL 13,1941 COMPLETED THE BREAKING OFF OF SUCH WITNESSED THE BREAKING DOWN OF SUCH POLITICS ON THE PART OF JAPANESE LEADING CIRCLES AND IN THE END COMPELLED THEM TO ENTER UPON AND ONTO TO A PATH OF NORMAL RELATIONS WITH THE SOVIET UNION. APR 8 1945

THE NEUTRALITY OF APRIL 13,1941 PLAYED A HELPFUL ROLE IN REMOVING A SERIES OF MISUNDERSTANDING CONFLICTS WITH JAPAN WHICH WERE ESPECIALLY DANGEROUS IN A SITUATION WHEN GERMANY MORE AND MORE EXPOSED HER INTENTIONS TOWARDS NEW IMPERALISTIC OCCUPATIONS AND OPEN DENOMINATION OF EUROPE.

ON JUNE 22,1941 GERMANY, INTOXICATED BY HER EASY SUCCESSES IN WESTERN EUROPE, TREACHEROUSLY ATTACKED THE SOVIET UNION. THROWING HERSELF INTO A WAR OF ADVENTURE IN THE EAST GERMANY COUNTED ON MUCH THE SAME EASY SUCCESSES IN THE WAR AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION AND SEEMED CONVINCED OF HER MILITARY MIGHT AND DEPENDING ON THE ENORMOUS RESOURCES OF ALMOST ALL OF WESTERN EUROPE WHICH SHE HAD CAPTURED.

THE TEMPORARY SUCCESSES OF GERMANY DURING THE FIRST MONTHS OF THE WAR AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION WHICH RESULTED FROM THE SURPRISE

SCOUNDRELED ATTACK IS KNOWN TO HAVE CAUSED THE HEADS OF MANY JAPANESE POLITICIANS WHO WERE READY TO PLACE BETS ON HITLER'S CARDS TO WHIRL

BUT RESISTANCE OF THE RED ARMY TO THE IMPUDENT INVADER OF THE ERMIT AT THE WALLS OF MOSCOW AND A SERIES OF OTHER SECTORS ACTED AS A SOBERING INFLUENCE ON THE HOT HEADS IN JAPAN. HOWEVER, AT THIS TIME THERE RIPENED THOUGHTS IN LEADING POLITICAL AND MILITARY CIRCLES OF JAPAN ON THE NECESSITY OF MAKING USE OF THIS "GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY" AS WHEN THE MOST OPEN REPRESENTATIVES OF THE JAPANESE MILITARISTS OPENLY SPOKE OUT FOR THE BEGINNING OF THE REALIZATION OF THEIR HIDDEN IMPERIALISTIC PLANS IN THE SOUTH SEAS.

APR 8 1945

"FURTHER PROGRESS OF EVENTS IN THE PACIFIC, BEGINNING WITH THE JAPANESE ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR, DEC. 7, 1941, AND THE START OF THE WAR BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND GREAT BRITAIN ON ONE SIDE AND JAPAN ON THE OTHER SIDE IS KNOWN.

"DURING THE MOST DIFFICULT TIMES FOR THE U.S.S.R., JAPAN CONTINUED TO STRENGTHEN HER COLLABORATION WITH GERMANY, THIS HAVING NOT ONLY GREAT POLITICAL MEANING, BUT ALSO SUBSTANTIAL AID FOR GERMANY IN HER WAR AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION. IN THE COURSE OF THIS WAR WHICH GERMANY IMPOSED UPON THE SOVIET UNION THERE OCCURRED A RADICAL REDISPOSITION OF FORCES AS A RESULT OF WHICH THERE WAS CREATED A POWERFUL ANGLO-SOVIET-AMERICAN COALITION. AT THE SAME TIME, JAPAN WAGED WAR AGAINST THE U.S.S.R.'S ALLIES, THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND ENGLAND.

"FROM THE TIME WHEN THE NEUTRALITY PACT WAS CONCLUDED, THAT IS APRIL 13, 1941, THE SITUATION THEREFORE CHANGED FUNDAMENTALLY.

APR 8 1945

REGARDING THIS CHANGE, PEOPLES' COMMISSAR FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS MOLOTOV IN A STATEMENT APRIL 5, 1945, TO THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR, MR. SATO, SAID:

"GERMANY ATTACKEDTHE U.S.S.R. BUT JAPAN, AS AN ALLY OF GERMANY, HELPS THE LATTER IN HER WAR AGAINST THE U.S.S.R." BESIDES, JAPAN IS WARRING WITH THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND ENGLAND, WHICH ARE ALLIES OF THE SOVIET UNION. DURING ALL THIS WAR, EVEN WHEN IT BECAME FULLY OBVIOUS, SHE CONTINUED TO STRENGTHEN HER ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY AND RENDER SUPPORT TO ROBBER GERMAN IMPERIALISM. THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT ADMITTED THAT "UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS THE NEUTRALITY PACT BETWEEN JAPAN AND THE U.S.S.R. HAS LOST ITS MEANING AND EXTENSION OF THE PACT HAS BECOME IMPOSSIBLE."

"IN THIS CONNECTION, THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT INFORMED THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT ON APRIL 5, 1945, OF ITS DESIRE TO DENOUNCE THE PACT

WITH JAPAN.

"IN THIS STATEMENT, AS ITS KNOWN, THERE IS INCLUDED A RFERENCE TO ARTICLE III OF THE PACT OF NEUTRALITY IN WHICH IT IS SAID THAT SAID PACT RETAINS ITS FORCE DURING ~~XX~~ FIVE YEARS FROM THE DAY OF ITS RATIFICATION. ARTICLE III ALSO FORESAW AF NEITHER OF THE SIGNERS OF THE PACT FAILED TO DENOUNCE IT BEFORE EXPIRATION OF THE ~~XXXX~~ PERIOD OF ITS DURATION, THEN IT AUTOMATICALLY WAS EXTENDED FOR A SUCCEEDING FIVE YEARS/

APR 8 1945

"THE SIGNATORY SIDES OF THE PACT MUST PRECISELY AT THE PRESENT TIME UNDER ARTICLE III DECIDE THE QUESTION WHETHER THEY OUGHT TO EXTEND THE PACT FOR ANOTHER FIVE YEARS OR ANNOUNCE ITS DENUNCIATION.

AS IS KNOWN, THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT ADOPTED THE DECISION TO ANNOUNCE TO THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT ITS DESIRE TO DENOUNCE THE PACT OF APRIL 13,1941.

"THE STATEMENT OF THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT OF APRIL 5,1945.

CONCERNING THE DENUNCIATION OF THE PACT IS A DIRECT CONSEQUENCE OF THE FACT THAT JAPAN IS AN ALLY OF GERMANY WHICH IS WAGING A BANDITS' WAR AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION AND IN ADDITION IS WAGING WAR AGAINST THE U.S.S.R.'S ALLIES, THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND ENGLAND." (END)

OBSERVERS AGREED THAT THE PUBLICATIONOF A LETTER WRITTEN BY PLASTIRAS IN 1941 COMPLAINING THAT THE GREEK GOVERNMENT HAD REFUSED GERMAN MEDIATION TO HALT THE GREEK-ITALIAN WAR, PROBABLY WOULD FORCE THE PLASTIRAS GOVERNMENT OUT. THEY EXPECTED THAT THE REGENT, ARCHBISHOP DAMASKINOS, THEN WOULD CALL A NONPARTISAN FIGURE TO FORM A NEW GOVERNMENT.

PLASTIRAS DID NOT DENY AUTHORSHIP OF THE LETTER BUT SAID;

THE BROADCAST ASSERTED 14 PLANES, INCLUDING ONE P-51, WERE SHOT SHOT DOWN AND 40 DAMAGED OVER TOKYO AND 16 DOWNED AND 40 (CORRECT) DAMAGED OVER NAGOYA.
BRIG. GEN. ERNEST M. MOORE, CHIEF OF THE SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND AT IWO, SAID "THIS IS THE FIRST TIME ARMY AIR FORCE FIGHTERS EVER HAVE BEEN OVER JAPAN AND WE HAD TO GO A LONG WAY TO DO IT." TWO OF THE P-51S WERE LOST ON THE MISSION.
THE B-29S, FLYING OVER TARGETS AT MEDIUM ALTITUDE IN CLEAR

WEATHER, LASHED WITH INCENDIARY BOMBS THE NAKAJIMA-MUSASHINO AIRCRAFT ENGINE PLANT IN WESTERN TOKYO AND THE MITSUBISHI PLANE WORKS AT NAGOYA. THE RAIDERS WERE OVER TOKYO AND NAGOYA SHORTLY BEFORE THE NOON HOUR SATURDAY (11 P.M., FRIDAY EASTERN WAR TIME). THE TWIN BLOWS WERE STRUCK BY WHAT WAS OFFICIALLY DESCRIBED AS A "VERY LARGE TASK FORCE" OF SUPERFORTS.

THE FIGHTER-PROTECTED B-29 ATTACK MARKED A NEW PHASE IN AERIAL WARFARE AGAINST THE JAPANESE HOMELAND AND PRESAGED THE FUTURE STEADY USE OF MUSTANGS TO SHEPHERD THE MAMMOTH BOMBERS AS THEY REDUCE JAPANESE AIR INDUSTRIES.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE, BROADCAST BY RADIO TOKYO, SAID 270 PLANES WERE IN THE RAIDS--120 OVER TOKYO AND 170 OVER NAGOYA. THE NIPPON AGENCY DOMEI SAID 40 MUSTANGS PARTICIPATED IN THE TOKYO ASSAULT.

THE NIPPON HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCEMENT MADE NO MENTION OF AMERICAN PLANE LOSSES BUT DOMEI CLAIMED "FOUR OR FIVE" WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN BAGGED OVER TOKYO.

GUAM, SUNDAY, APRIL 8-(AP)-THE NEIGHBORLY PRESENCE OF IWO JIMA-BASED P-51 MUSTANGS ON THE B-29S' DEVASTATING STRIKES AT TOKYO AND NAGOYA SATURDAY WAS A REAL TONIC TO THE CREWS OF THE SUPERFORTS.

UNTIL RECONNAISSANCE PLANES HAVE TAKEN PICTURES OF THE DESTRUCTION WROUGHT ON THESE GREAT JAPANESE PLANTS THE BOMBER COMMAND IS NOT ATTEMPTING TO ASSESS THE AMOUNT OF DAMAGE. BUT THERE IS NO QUESTION ABOUT THE DIFFICULTY OF THE MISSION.

"IT WAS A TOUGH RUN," SAID LT. JAMES R. LOY, (510 BIRCHER AVE.) DAYTON, O. "WE HAD SEVERAL ATTACKS AND FLAK OVER THE TARGET WAS VERY INTENSE."

CAPT. FREDERICK SHAEFFER, NEW CUMBERLAND, PA., FOUND IWO JIMA A HANDY ISLAND AFTER HIS SUPERFORT WAS STRUCK BY A DIRECT HIT ON ONE OF ITS OUTBOARD ENGINES OVER NAGOYA. THE ENGINE BEGAN SMOKING AND HE WENT DOWN TO 300 FEET OVER THE WATER. THE CREW THREW OUT EVERYTHING POSSIBLE TO LIGHTEN THE BIG SHIP AND MADE IT TO IWO.

FIRST LT. GEORGE E. PERRIN, (801 HOOD PLACE) GREENSBORO, N.C., CALLED THE NAGOYA TARGET A "BOMBARDIER'S DREAM, WITH THE WEATHER AS CLEAR AS A BELL."

PERRIN FLEW 29 MISSIONS IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER. HE SAID THIS LATEST MISSION WAS AS GOOD AS HE EVER HAD SEEN.

SGT. THOMAS L. KLINGENSMITH, (309 IRIQUOIS AVE.) ARNOLD, PENNA., AND SGT. GILBERT C. STOCKINGER, (5904 MASTER) PHILADELPHIA, PENNA., PUT IN A JOINT CLAIM FOR HAVING DESTROYED A JAPANESE FIGHTER PLANE, AND SGT. WILLIAM RICHMYER, (6 GENESSEE ST.) HORNELL, N.Y., AND SGT. THOMAS W. MARPOLK OF TONN, N.C., EACH CLAIMED AN ENEMY FIGHTER.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S SATURDAY COMMUNIQUE DISCLOSED AIR BLOWS BY PHILIPPINE-BASED BOMBERS AGAINST FORMOSA, HONGKONG AND BORNEO. THEY PRECEDED MIGHTY AIR ATTACKS BY THE WAR'S GREATEST B-29 FIGHTER-ESCORTED MISSIONS AGAINST TOKYO AND NAGOYA.

THE RAIDS FROM THE PHILIPPINES HAD THESE RESULTS:

HONGKONG--THREE MERCHANT SHIPS WRECKED; TREMENDOUS FIRES STARTED IN WATERFRONT AREA.

SOUTH OF HONGKONG--17 SMALL CARGO SHIPS SUNK.

FORMOSA--TOYOHARA AIRDROME BLASTED WITH 72 TONS OF BOMBS, MANY PARKED PLANES LEFT IN FLAMES.

PESCADORES, WEST OF FORMOSA--THREE SIZEABLE TANKERS AND TWO SMALL FREIGHTERS SUNK OR DAMAGED.

NORTH BORNEO--STARTED LARGE FIRES IN TARAKAN OIL STORAGE REGION.

PHILIPPINE LAND OPERATIONS WERE MARKED BY ANOTHER AIR INVASION. TROOPS OF THE 11TH AIRBORNE DIVISION MADE A 20-MILE HOP IN SMALL PLANES TO TAKE LUCENA AND ITS TWO AIRFIELDS. THEY WERE UNOPPOSED. LUCENA IS CAPITAL OF TABAYAS PROVINCE, SOUTHERN LUZON.

TWO OTHER AIRFIELDS FELL INTO AMERICAN HANDS WHEN TROOPS OF THE 40TH DIVISION SEIZED THE ALICANTE AND SILAY DROMES ON NEGROS ISLAND.

IN NORTHWESTERN LUZON GUERRILLAS CAPTURED BANGUED, CAPITAL OF ABRA PROVINCE. THE GUERRILLAS NOW CONTROL MOST OF LUZON'S NORTHWEST COAST.

WITH THE SEVENTH DIVISION ON OKINAWA,APRIL 6-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS INFANTRY FORCE ON THE EAST COAST OF OKINAWA ENCOUNTERED ITS TOUGHEST FIGHTING ON THE ISLAND TODAY IN TAKING A 1,000-YARD STRIP OF A RIDGE 200 FEET HIGH, WITH FOUR NATURAL BLOCKHOUSES ON ITS CREST.

JAPANESE ARTILLERY, MORTARS AND MACHINEGUNS IN THE FORTIFIED RECESSES OPENED SUDDENLY ON THE ADVANCING 184TH REGIMENT, COMMANDED BY LT.COL.ROY A.GREEN, SACRAMENTO,CALIF.

INTENSE SUPPORTING ARTILLERY FIRE SOFTENED THE ENEMY POSITIONS FOR THE FIRST BATTALION, COMMANDED BY LT.COL.DANIEL C. MAYBURY, OAKLAND,CALIF.

WITH THE JAPANESE STILL FIRING, AMERICAN ANTITANK GUNS ROLLED IN CLOSE WHILE TANK DESTROYERS HURLED 75 MM SHELLS AT THE ENTRENCHMENTS. FLAMETHROWERS WERE FINALLY EMPLOYED BY THE YANKS.

ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE JAPANESE WERE KILLED IN THIS BATTLE 1,000 YARDS NORTHWEST OF THE VILLAGE OF MINAMIUE-BARU. NINETY WERE KILLED IN TWO BLOCKHOUSES.

THE NIPPONESE HAD TIED ANTIBOAT AND ANTIPERSONNEL MINES TO BARBED WIRE ENTANGLEMENTS ACROSS THE RIDGE. SOME OF THEM EXPLODED.

THE SEVENTH DIVISION'S CASUALTIES SO FAR HAVE AVERAGED ABOUT 20 JAPANESE KILLED TO ONE AMERICAN. THE DIVISION IS EXPECTED TO TAKE YONABARU AIRSTRIP SOON.

ALL AMERICAN UNITS ON THE SOUTHERN OKINAWA LINE ARE CONSTANTLY IN CONTACT WITH THE JAPANESE. THE CLEVERLY CAMOUFLAGED NIPPON POSITIONS INCLUDE SOD-COVERED TRAPDOORS LOWERED OVER MORTARS AFTER EACH FIRING. THESE ARE DIFFICULT TO DISCOVER, EVEN AT CLOSE QUARTER.

ONE MARINE UNIT REPORTED THE SURRENDER OF TWO JAPANESE SOLDIERS, ONE A SIX-FOOTER, WHO WALKED DOWN THE ROAD WITH THEIR HANDS IN THE AIR AND CALMLY GAVE THEMSELVES UP.

OKINAWA,APRIL 7-(AP)-IT'S A STIMULATING THING TO HEAR THE STRONG AMERICAN VOICE OF MILITARY POLICEMAN PFC.DONALD YOKER, OF CANANDAIGUA,N.Y., SOOTHE A BUNCH OF YAMMERING OKINAWA NATIVES BY SHOUTING: "ALL RIGHT, SIMMER DOWN, YOU GUYS."

YOKER AND CPL.JOSEPH J.MARTIN, OF (2150 45TH ST.) ASTORIA, LONG ISLAND,N.Y., ANOTHER SEVENTH DIVISION M.P., ARE DIRECTING TRAFFIC NEAR A CIVILIAN REFUGEE CAMP.

THEY HAVE TAKEN OVER AN ABANDONED HOUSE AS HANDY QUARTERS AND THEY HAVE COMPANY--TWO OLD WOMEN AND THREE OLD MEN SQUATTED ON STRAW MATS, WARMING TEA OVER A TINY CHARCOAL BOWL.

"WE CAMPED HERE AND THESE CHARACTERS MOVED IN WITH US," SAID MARTIN. "WE FOUND THAT OLD GUY TOTTERING ALONG THE ROAD NEARLY EXHAUSTED AND WE CARRIED HIM IN AND GAVE HIM SOME HOT COFFEE. THIS OTHER OLD GENT THOUGHT WE WERE GOOD PEOPLE AND WHEN WE STARTED CLEARING UP THIS PLACE HE WENT TO WORK FOR US. WE CALL HIM NUMBER ONE HOUSEBOY."

AS THE "OLD GENT" HEARD HIS NEWLY ACQUIRED NAME, HE STARTED BOWING AND BEAMING AND JABBERING.

THEN ALL THE REST STARTED JABBERING.

YOKER USED HIS SOOTHING TECHNIQUE. "SIMMER DOWN, YOU GUYS," HE SHOUTED. AND THEY DID.ET936PCW NM

U.S.SEVENTH DIVISION COMMAND POST,OKINAWA,APRIL 7-(AP)-ITS ONLY ON THE INLAND PLATEAUS AND TINY FERTILE VALLEYS OF OKINAWA THAT AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS SLOGGING TO THE FRONT SEE AND SMELL THE FRESHNESS OF SPRING. THE REST OF THE ISLAND STINKS.

ALL ALONG THE CROOKED AND INCREDIBLY DUSTY ROAD FROM THE BEACHHEADS TO THE SOUTHERN FRONT LINES, GRIME-CAKED TRUCKS, JEEPS, TANKS AND LONG LINES OF INFANTRY MOVE STEADILY.

BUT THE SMELLS PUT PERMANENT WRINKLES ON THE NOSES OF THE YANKS.

FILTHY NATIVES COME STAGGERING FROM CAVES WHERE THEY'VE HIDDEN SINCE THE INVASION STARTED LAST SUNDAY. THEY SMELL BAD.

THERE ARE DEAD HORSES, COWS AND PIGS, AND A SPRINKLING OF OKINAWANS CAUGHT IN THE GUNFIRE, LYING UNBURIED.

WHILE THE AMERICANS ADVANCED WITH SURPRISINGLY LIGHT OPPOSITION THE FIRST FEW DAYS OF THE INVASION, THEY'RE NOT KIDDING THEMSELVES ABOUT THE TOUGH FIGHT AHEAD BEFORE THEY TAKE NAHA, THE ISLAND'S CAPITAL CITY ON THE SOUTHWEST COAST.

WITH HEAVY MORTAR BURSTS SHOWERING AROUND THEM, THE MEN OF COL.JOHN MILTON FINN'S 32ND REGIMENT ARE TRYING TO SCALE STEEP CLIFFS TO CAPTURE CONCRETE BLOCKHOUSES ON THE TOP OF THE RIDGE.

ARTILLERY SHELLS SMASH INTO THE GROUND, HURLING DIRT AND ROCKS HIGH INTO THE AIR WHILE YANKS IN THE VICINITY DIVE FOR COVER. AMERICAN RIFLE AND TOMMYGUN FIRE ANSWER THE TACK-TACK-TACK OF JAPANESE LIGHT MACHINEGUNS.

THE EARTH TREMBLES AS AMERICAN ARTILLERY SENDS SHELLS HIGHBALLING INTO NIPPONESE POSITIONS BEYOND THE RIDGE.

AND ENEMY SNIPERS CONSTANTLY ARE BUSY, THE SHARP PING OF THEIR BULLETS PRODUCING SWIFT, INVOLUNTARY ATTEMPTS TO DIG A PROTECTIVE HOLE IN THE EARTH.

SGT.OTHO STOLLINGS, OF LOGAN, WEST VA., AND PFC.MILLARD ANDERSON, OF (3023 CHICAGO.) MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., WERE SITTING AGAINST A STONE WALL 300 YARDS BACK OF THE FRONT LINE WHERE MACHINE-GUN FIRE AND MORTAR BURSTS WERE RAKING THE TERRAIN.

SAID STOLLINGS: "BOY, THIS REALLY IS ROUGH. THOSE DAMNED JAPS HAVE BEEN GIVING US THIS ALL DAY LONG. WELL, HERE WE GO AGAIN."

WITH OTHER DOUGHBOYS, STOLLINGS AND ANDERSON DASHED FORWARD ACROSS AN OPEN SPACE AND THROUGH A SHELL-BLASTED HOLE IN A WALL. THEY RAN IN A ZIG-ZAGGING CROUCH.

A FORWARD COMPANY OF THE SECOND BATTALION, 32ND INFANTRY, HELD A POSITION IN A ROCKY DEFILE, NOT MORE THAN 200 YARDS FROM THE JAPANESE.

LT.WESLEY M.BREW, OF (50 ROCHESTER ST.) BERGEN, N.Y., SAID: "WE CAN'T MOVE. WE ARE PINNED DOWN HERE BY THAT MORTAR FIRE." MORTAR SHELLS AND MACHINE GUN BULLETS WERE WHAMING INTO THE ROCKS OVER-HEAD.

ON A LOW-LYING CANE FIELD, 150 YARDS TO THE LEFT, FOUR MEDICAL CORPSMEN BENT LOW AS THEY CARRIED A WOUNDED MAN ON A STRETCHER.

A JAPANESE NAMBU MACHINEGUN CHATTERED AND THE BULLETS SPATTERED DUST VICIOUSLY AROUND THE CORPS MEN. THEY DUCKED INTO HIGH CANE.

LT.HOWARD E.KILLION, OF (691 EAST ELEVENTH ST.) UPLAND, CALIF., CURSED THE MACHINE GUNNERS. HE LED A SQUAD UP THE DEFILE. A FEW MINUTES LATER THE NAMBU STOPPED ITS CHATTERING.

FARTHER BACK FROM THE FRONT, SGT.WILLIAM J.PAT, A 32ND MEDICAL CORPSMAN OF PARSONS, KANS., WAITED AT AN AID STATION. "IT LOOKS LIKE I'LL HAVE SOME BUSINESS SOON," HE SAID.

ABOARD ADM.TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, RYUKYU ISLANDS, APRIL 6-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN COMMANDERS ON OKINAWA WERE CAUTIONED TODAY TO PREPARE FOR STRONG JAPANESE COUNTERATTACKS IN THE WAKE OF THE FIRST HEAVY ENEMY AERIAL COUNTERATTACK IN WHICH 150 NIPPONESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN OVER THE RYUKYU ISLANDS.
LT.GEN. SIMON B. BUCKNER, JR., POINTED OUT TO THE CORPS COMMANDERS OF HIS TENTH ARMY THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE HAD TIME TO ORGANIZE FOR COUNTERASSAULTS, AND SO FAR HAVE BEEN CONSERVATIVE OF THEIR FORCES, ESTIMATED AT MORE THAN 60,000.

WITH EVENTS POINTING TO A GREATLY INCREASED TEMPO OF JAPANESE RESISTANCE, ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER AND VICE ADM. RICHMOND KELLY TURNER ARE WAITING FOR THE JAPANESE FLEET TO ACCEPT THEIR CHALLENGE AND COME OUT AND FIGHT.. THE AIR ATTACK CONTINUING THROUGH LAST NIGHT AND TODAY MAY BE INTENDED TO CLEAR THE WAY FOR SUCH A VENTURE.
MOST OF THE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN BY TWO FAST CARRIER TASK FORCES HAMMERING OTHER RYUKYU ISLANDS. EIGHTEEN WERE SHOT DOWN AROUND OKINAWA. ONE JAPANESE PLANE GOT THROUGH AND MADE THE FIRST ATTACK ON AMERICAN GROUND FORCES, STRAFING YONTAN AIRFIELD LAST NIGHT WITHOUT DAMAGE.
MARINES PUSHING NORTHWARD DROVE THROUGH FOUR VILLAGES AND BLASTED FIFTY CAVES ON THE ADJACENT ISLET OF YABUCHI.
THE 7TH ARMY DIVISION PUSHED SOUTH ALONG THE EAST COAST ABOUT 1,000 YARDS THROUGH WHAT WAS PLOTTED AS AN ENEMY STRONG POINT BUT MET ONLY MODERATE MORTAR AND ARTILLERY RESISTANCE. THE ADVANCE OVERRAN THE FIRST STRONG CONCRETE ENEMY PILLBOXES FOUND ON OKINAWA. THEY ALSO ENCOUNTERED SOME LOG ROADBLOCKS WITH MANY MORE FRESHLY HEWN LOGS THE JAPANESE HADN'T HAD TIME TO THROW INTO BARRICADES.
OTHER 24TH CORPS TROOPS MARKED TIME ON THE WEST COAST.
POSSIBLY 600 CIVILIANS HAVE BEEN KILLED IN THE OPERATION. ABOUT 300 OF THE 9,000 CIVILIAN REFUGEES ARE UNDER TREATMENT FOR WOUNDS. ALL OF THE OKINAWANS ARE STILL AMAZED THAT THE AMERICANS ARE NOT TORTURING THEM.

GUAM, APRIL 7-(AP)-EASTERN SUNDAY FOR THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET BEGAN AND ENDED WITH JAPANESE AIR ATTACKS.
"IT WAS WARM WORK WHILE IT LASTED," A BRITISH OBSERVER ABOARD ONE OF HIS MAJESTY'S WARSHIPS RELATED TODAY.
"OUR FIGHTERS ALREADY WERE PATROLLING AND THE SHIPS' COMPANIES WERE HAVING 'ACTION BREAKFASTS' (AT THEIR BATTLE STATIONS) WHEN THE FIRST ALERT WAS RECEIVED.
"FIVE JAPANESE AIRCRAFT MADE A CONCERTED ATTACK ON HMS KING GEORGE V, FLAGSHIP OF THE BRITISH TASK FORCE WHICH WAS ATTACKING SAKISHIMA GUNTO IN SUPPORT OF THE SIMULTANEOUS AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS INVASION OF OKINAWA ISLAND (SOME 300 MILES TO THE NORTH IN THE RYUKYU CHAIN.)
"THE JAPANESE PLANES WERE DRIVEN OFF."
THE KING GEORGE, A 35,000-TON BATTLESHIP, POSSIBLY WAS DAMAGED SLIGHTLY. JUST BEFORE THE BRITISH OFFICER TOLD HIS STORY, U.S. FLEET ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ ANNOUNCED THAT "SOME MAJOR UNITS" OF THE BRITISH FORCE "SUFFERED SLIGHT DAMAGE" IN A NUMBER OF JAPANESE ATTACKS EXTENDING FROM MARCH 31 THROUGH APRIL 2. ANOTHER MAJOR UNIT IN THE FORCE IS THE ILLUSTRIOUS, A 23,000 TON AIRCRAFT CARRIER. NIMITZ CREDITED THE BRITISH WITH DOWNING 22 JAPANESE PLANES AND DAMAGING NINE AND WITH INFLICTING CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE TO GROUND INSTALLATIONS IN THE SAKISHIMAS.
THE BRITISH OBSERVER SAID FURTHER:
"SO EAGER WERE THE GUN CREWS TO ENGAGE THE ENEMY THAT THEY FORGOT TO GRUMBLE ABOUT THE INTERRUPTION OF THEIR EASTER BREAKFAST."
"MEANWHILE, THREE MORE ENEMY PLANES HAD FLOWN OVERHEAD AND ALL AVAILABLE GUNS WERE BROUGHT TO BEAR, BUT THE JAPANESE WERE OUT OF RANGE. THEY COULDN'T BE ENGAGED.
"THE ATTACK WAS CONCLUDED IN ABOUT AN HOUR, A FRESH BREW OF TEA WAS ISSUED AND THE FLEET SETTLED DOWN TO ITS INTERRUPTED BREAKFAST.
"TWO HOURS LATER, EASTER HOLY COMMUNION WAS CELEBRATED.
"LATER, AFTER STRIKES BY OUR FLIERS ON MIYAKO AND ISHIGAKI AIRDROMES (ON THE SAKISHIMAS) OUR PILOTS REPORTED THEY DESTROYED 14 AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND AND DAMAGED SIX.
"LATER IN THE DAY, MORE JAPANESE SOUGHT TO COME IN BEHIND OUR PLANES RETURNING FROM STRIKES, BUT OUR GUN CREWS WEREN' TO BE CAUGHT THAT WA AND THEY PROMPTLY ENGAGED THE ENEMY.
"ONE AIRCRAFT WHICH SINGLED OUT ONE OF OUR CARRIERS AS A TARGET WAS SHOT DOWN AND SEEN TO CRASH INTO THE SEA."
SO ENDED EASTER SUNDAY FOR THE BRITISH PACIFIC TASK FORCE GIVIN LONG-RANGE ASSOCIATION TO THE OKINAWA INVASION.
DESPITE THESE PERSISTENT REPORTS, "ALL MAJOR UNITS OF THE BRITISH FORCE REMAINED OPERATIONAL," NIMITZ ASAID.

CAPT.HARRY C.CRIM, JR., OF MIAMI, FLA., WAS CREDITED WITH KNOCKING DOWN TWO OF THE JAPANESE PLANES.

LT.PAUL H.WINE OF (1164 FAIRPOINT AVE.) CLEVELAND, OHIO, DECLARED: "I SAW TWO ENEMY PLANES SHOT DOWN AND A JAP PILOT BAIL OUT OF ONE. ONE B-29 HAD TWO OF ITS FOUR ENGINES SHOT OUT RIGHT OVER THE TARGET. THERE WERE SOME OF OUR FIGHTERS AROUND AT THAT MOMENT AND I HEARD THE B-29 PILOT SAYING OVER THE RADIO 'BOYS, YOU CAN HAVE ANYTHING I'VE GOT.'"

STAFF SERGEANT FRANK DEVINE OF NEW YORK CITY, A MARINE CORPS COMBAT CORRESPONDENT, FORMERLY OF THE NEW YORK NEWS. DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

(ADVANCE) (WX)..IWO JIMA (DELAYED)..--IT IS LITTLE MORE THAN A MONTH SINCE THE FIRST MARINE SET FOOT ON IWO JIMA AND IN THE INTERVENING DAYS THE ISLAND HAS BECOME ALMOST AS AMERICAN AS A WAR BOOM TOWN IN THE U.S.

IWO JIMA ISN'T YET A FULL FLEDGED BASE BUT NEITHER IS IT THE DROWSY DEATH TRAP OF A MONTH AGO. CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS AND HUGE BOXES OF SUPPLIES ARE SCATTERED EVERYWHERE. CRAWLING CRANES AND STEAM SHOVELS BLOCK THE NEW ROADS. AND OVER EVERYTHING HAS SETTLED A PALL OF VOLCANIC SAND, CHURNED UP BY THE BUMPER-TO-BUMPER TRAFFIC ON THE ROADS THAT FRINGE THE ISLAND AND CROSS FROM COAST TO COAST.

THERE STILL ARE JAPS AND MARINES FIGHTING IN A GORGE AT THE EXTREME NORTHERN END OF THE ISLAND BUT THE WORK GOES ON. THE REMINDERS OF WAR ARE FEW ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE SOUTHERN END OF THE ISLAND--THE SCARRED FACE OF MOUNT SURIBACHI, A FEW BATTERED CONCRETE EMPLACEMENTS, AND THE VERY CROWDED, LITTLE GRAVEYARDS OF THE THIRD, FOURTH, AND FIFTH MARINE DIVISIONS.

SURIBACHI ITSELF HAS CHANGED. AT ITS BASE IS A PRISONER OF WAR CAMP; ON ITS TOP, INSTALLATIONS. SEABEES ARE DRIVING AN UNWILLING ROAD UP THE SHEER SIDE. THE VOLCANIC ROCK IS VERY SOFT AND CRUMBLES WITH HEARTBREAKING FREQUENCY. ONE JEEP MADE THE TOP BUT IT WAS PULLED BY A BULLDOZER.

THERE ISN'T MUCH THAT CAN BE SAID ABOUT THE AIRPORTS--THE MAIN PRIZE ON IWO JIMA--EXCEPT THAT THEY ARE BEING USED, AND ON A SCALE THAT SEEMED HARDLY POSSIBLE WHEN THE MARINES LANDED. MORE THAN 40 SUPERFORTS IN DISTRESS HAVE FOUND SAFETY ON THEM. BEFORE THE MARINES CAME THEY PROBABLY ALL WOULD HAVE BEEN LOST. SO IT CAN BE SAID THAT IWO JIMA IS BEGINNING TO PAY OFF THE FRIGHTFUL COST OF CAPTURING IT.

MEXICO CITY,APRIL 7 (AP)-RESUMPTION OF FULL DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS BETWEEN ARGENTINA AND OTHER LATIN-AMERICAN COUNTRIES IS STIMULATING BUSINESS INTERESTS TO EXPAND TRADE BUT TRADE EXPERTS HERE SAID THEY SAW LITTLE CHANCE FOR ANY HEAVY COMMERCIAL EXCHANGES BETWEEN MEXICO AND ARGENTINA DURING THE WAR.

MEXICO'S NEED FOR WHEAT AND CORN AND ARGENTINA'S DESIRE FOR MEXICAN OIL HAVE BEEN DISCUSSED OFTEN BUT SHIPPING SHORTAGE AND OTHER CONDITIONS STILL PREVENT SUCH AN EXCHANGE.

TRADE SPECIALISTS HERE SAID TODAY THAT THEY SAW NO PROSPECT OF MEXICO GETTING MUCH GRAIN FROM ARGENTINA BECAUSE THERE NEITHER IS SHIPPING AVAILABLE NOR HAS MEXICO RETURN CARGOES FOR FREIGHTERS THAT MIGHT COME. THEY SAID MEXICO COULD BUY WHEAT IN CANADA OR THE UNITED STATES MORE CHEAPLY BECAUSE TRANSPORTATION WOULD BE CHEAPER AND MEXICO COULD SEND FREIGHT BACK IN SHIPS OR CARS.

AS FOR OIL, THEY SAID, MEXICO HAS NO SURPLUS OF REFINED PRODUCTS AND ANY AVAILABLE CRUDE GOES TO THE UNITED STATES. CONSEQUENTLY, THEY ADDED, MEXICO WOULD NOT BE ABLE TO SEND OIL TO ARGENTINA EVEN IF THE EXPENSE OF THE LONG HAUL AND THE WASHING OF TANKERS, SO THEY COULD BRING GRAIN OR OTHER CARGO, WOULD BE PAID BY ARGENTINA WHO MIGHT GET OIL MORE CHEAPLY FROM VENEZUELA OR ELSEWHERE.

MEXICO CITY,APRIL 7 (AP)-CAPITAL AND LABOR MEET TODAY AROUND THE BANQUET TABLE TO OUTLINE A "PATRIOTIC ALLIANCE" TO INDUSTRIALIZE MEXICO.

VICENTE LOMBARDO TOLEDANO, HEAD OF THE MEXICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR AND DOMINGO LAVIN, PRESIDENT OF THE CHAMBER OF INDUSTRY, WILL SPEAK FOR THEIR FOLLOWERS. THERE WILL BE THIRTY UNION LEADERS AND THIRTY BUSINESS MEN AT THE TABLE.

THE BASIC PRINCIPLE OF HARMONIOUS ACTION IN SETTLING PROBLEMS IS TO BE ELABORATED INTO A PACT, SOME DETAILS OF WHICH MUST BE NEGOTIATED

FUNDAMENTALLY, THE PLAN IS TO AVOID THE MANY STRIKES WHICH HAVE WEIGHED HEAVILY ON INDUSTRY AND FRIGHTENED SOME INVESTORS BUT WITHOUT SACRIFICING LABOR'S RIGHTS UNDER MEXICO'S "REVOLUTION," A TERM USED TO COMPRISE THE WHOLE MODERNIZATION OF THE COUNTRY, ITS LABOR LAWS, LAND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM, SOCIAL PROGRESS AND BETTER GOVERNMENT.

THE NEWSPAPER DECLARED, "NOW IS THE TIME THAT THE SYSTEM FOR THE DECISIVE BATTLE SHOULD BE THOROUGHLY REORGANIZED."

YOMIURI ALSO REEMPHASIZED A POINT MADE YESTERDAY BY THE NEWSPAPER ASAHI ON THE NEED FOR UNITY AMONG JAPANESE ELEMENTS. IT SAID THE TOTAL STRENGTH OF THE PEOPLE MUST BE UNIFIED "FIRMLY."

THE RADIO REPORTS SAID SUZUKI CONFERRED WITH ADM. MITSUMASA YONAI, NAVY MINITERS UNDER PREMIER GEN. KUNIAKI KOISO, WHOSE GOVERNMENT RESIGNED EARLIER THIS WEEK AFTER RUSSIA ABROGATED HER NON-AGGRESSION TREATY WITH NIPPON, AND WITH GEN.KORECHIKA ANAMI, DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ARMY AVIATION HEADQUARTERS. THIS CONFERENCE PRESUMABLY WAS A TRADITIONAL PREREQUISITE TO THE FORMATION OF A NEW CABINET.

THE GERMAN NEWS AGENCY DNB, QUOTING THE SINGAPORE RADIO, SAID YESTERDAY THAT SUZUKI HAD FORMED A CABINET WHICH INCLUDED GEN. HIDEKI TOJO, WHO HEADED THE GOVERNMENT AT THE TIME OF PEARL HARBOR. THERE WAS NOTHING FROM TOKYO OR ELSEWHERE TO SUBSTANTIATE THIS.

IN THE PAST SUZUKI HAS BEEN A MODERATE AND HAS STOOD AGAINST ARMY AND NAVY EXTREMISTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 7-(AP)-FORMER FOREIGN MINISTER SHIGENORI TOGO, WHO HELPED FRAME THE RUSSO-JAPANESE NEUTRALITY PACT WHICH THE SOVIET UNION REPUDIATED THURSDAY, HAS BEEN REAPPOINTED TO THAT POST IN JAPAN'S THIRD WAR CABINET, TOKYO RADIO CONFIRMED LATE SATURDAY NIGHT.

THE CABINET, HEADED BY BARON KANTARO SUZUKI, WAS FORMED TODAY IN A SHOWER OF AMERICAN AIR BOMBS AND INSTALLED IN IMPERIAL PALACE CEREMONIES HELD UNDER A BLACK CLOUD OF NAVAL DEFEAT.

TOGO, ALSO NAMED TO THE POST OF GREATER EAST ASIA AFFAIRS MINISTER, WAS NOT PRESENT FOR THE RITES, HOWEVER. HE AND NAOTO KOHIYAMA, PRESIDENT OF THE SOUTH MANCHURIA RAILWAY WHO TOKYO SAID IS TO BE COME MINISTER OF TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATIONS, WERE ENROUTE TO TOKYO. PREVIOUS ANNOUNCEMENTS SAID THE TRANSPORTATION MINISTRY WOULD BE HEADED BY MUNITIONS MINISTER ADM. TEIJIRO TOYODA.

THE WAR MINISTRY STRAIGHTAWAY ANNOUNCED A RESHUFFLE OF THE JAPANESE ARMY HIGH COMMAND, SAID TOKYO RADIO IN FCC-MONITORED BROADCASTS, AND SUZUKI WARNED HIS COUNTRYMEN THE "VERY BASIS OF OUR EMPIRE'S EXISTENCE WILL BE THREATENED IF THE SITUATION IS ALLOWED TO PASS AS IT HAS BEEN."

UNDATED YAMATO (150)
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IN THE SINKING OF THE 45,000-TON YAMATO OFF KYUSHU, JAPAN HAS LOST MORE THAN A GREAT BATTLESHIP.

THE NAME YAMATO HAS A DEEP, ALMOST RELIGIOUS SIGNIFICANCE FOR THE JAPANESE.

JAPANESE BATTLESHIPS ARE NAMED FOR THE PROVINCES OF ANCIENT JAPAN. THESE NAMES DO NOT APPEAR ON MOST MAPS, SINCE THE OLD PROVINCES HAVE GIVEN WAY TO MODERN PREFECTURES. BUT THEY ARE TREASURED IN JAPANESE LITERATURE AND CULTURE.

YAMATO WAS IN THE PENINSULA JUST SOUTH OF OSAKA. IT WAS THERE, ACCORDING TO LEGEND, THAT THE FIRST EMPEROR, JIMMU, FOUNDED THE JAPANESE EMPIRE IN 660 B.C. FROM YAMATO THE ANCESTORS OF THE MODERN JAPANESE APPARENTLY SPREAD OUT TO CONQUER THE REST OF THE ISLANDS.

YAMATO THEREFORE IS THE ANCIENT NAME FOR JAPAN ITSELF. THE JAPANESE MARTIAL VIRTUES THEY BELIEVE THEMSELVES TO POSSESS. WHEN THE YAMATO'S LOSS IS KNOWN TO THE JAPANESE PEOPLE IT IS BOUND TO HAVE A GREAT DEPRESSING EFFECT.

SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 7-(AP)-JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS ADMITTED TODAY AMERICAN TROOPS ON OKINAWA WERE GAINING GROUND ON THEIR SOUTHWARD DRIVE TOWARD NAHA AIDED BY "POWERFUL TANKS AND SHELLING."

TOKYO RADIO BROADCAST THE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE WHICH SAID JAPANESE TROOPS WERE COUNTERATTACKING, BUT DID NOT CLAIM ANY SUCCESS.

THE COMMUNIQUE ALSO CLAIMED WITHOUT ALLIED SUBSTANTIATION THAT 21 SHIPS HAD BEEN EITHER SUNK OR DAMAGED BETWEEN APRIL 1 AND APRIL 5 IN CONTINUING ASSAULTS BY THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE AND SURFACE UNITS ON ALLIED VESSELS AROUND THE OKINAWA AREA.

LISTED AS SUNK WERE ONE CRUISER, FIVE "CRUISERS OR DESTROYERS," TWO UNIDENTIFIED WARSHIPS, ONE DESTROYER AND TWO TRANSPORTS.

SHIPS CLAIMED DAMAGED WERE ONE AIRCRAFT CARRIER, TWO "CRUISERS OR DESTROYERS," TWO UNIDENTIFIED WARSHIPS AND FIVE TRANSPORTS.

ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ REPORTED LAST NIGHT THAT UNITED STATES CARRIER BASED PLANES HAD SHOT DOWN ABOUT 150 ENEMY AIRCRAFT BY LATE AFTERNOON OF APRIL 6 AND SAID SOME SHIPS OF THE ALLIED FLEET HAD RECEIVED MINOR DAMAGES BUT ALL REMAINED IN OPERATION.

"IN THE SOVIET REORIENTATION OF ITS POLICY IN THE EAST," HE ADDED, "WILL DEPEND THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A STRONG AND STABLE PEACE OR CONQUEST AND TURMOIL FOR YEARS TO COME."

THE SPEAKER, IDENTIFIED AS TOSHIRO SHIMONOUCHI, WHOSE VOICE WAS RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, ASCRIBED RUSSIA'S ACTION TO ITS "MILITARY AND POLITICAL COMEBACK IN EUROPE".

SHIMONOUCHI SAID HE DOUBTED THE SOVIET'S ANNOUNCED REASONS: THAT "JAPAN IS AIDING GERMANY, RUSSIA'S ENEMY, AND FIGHTING AGAINST THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN, RUSSIA'S ALLIES."

"THESE REASONS," HE SAID, "CANNOT BUT BE REGARDED AS PURELY DIPLOMATIC AND NOT THE REAL REASONS. IF WE KNOW THE REAL REASON, THEN IT CAN BE SAID THAT SUCH A SITUATION HAS EXISTED FOR MORE THAN THREE YEARS--SINCE JAPAN ENTERED THE WAR IN DECEMBER 1941--AND THAT THE TREATY COULD HAVE BEEN SCRAPPED THEN AS BEING NO LONGER CONSISTENT WITH THE NEW DEVELOPMENTS. THE REAL REASONS, UNDOUBTEDLY, RUN DEEPER."

SHIMONOUCHI SAID THE DENUNCIATION OF THE PACT AND THE FALL OF GEN. KUNIAKI KOISO'S CABINET ON THURSDAY WERE "UNRELATED" AND "COINCIDENCE."

EMPHASIZING THAT THE PACT HAS A YEAR TO RUN, HE ADDED "ONLY FUTURE DEVELOPMENTS WILL TELL" WHETHER THE SOVIET UNION SUBSCRIBES TO THE SAME "ATTITUDE OF NEUTRALITY" THAT HE ATTRIBUTED TO JAPAN.

UNDATED JAPANESE INTERPRETIVE
BY GLENN BABB
ASSOCIATED PRESS FOREIGN NEWS EDITOR

JAPAN'S NEW PREMIER, ADM. BARON KANTARO SUZUKI, HAS PUT TOGETHER A CABINET OF VIRTUAL UNKNOWNS. BY COMPARISON WITH ITS PREDECESSORS, THE ARMY-DOMINATED TOJO AND KOISO GOVERNMENTS, IT IS A SINGULARLY UNWARLIKE GROUP.

THERE IS NOTHING IN THE MAKEUP OF THE MINISTRY ANNOUNCED SATURDAY IN TOKYO TO WEAKEN THE THESIS THAT SUZUKI HAS BEEN GIVEN THE THANKLESS ROLE OF FRONT MAN FOR A PEACE OFFENSIVE.

FAR MORE SIGNIFICANT THAN ANY OF THE NAMES IN THE LIST ARE THE OMISSIONS. NONE OF THE GREAT ARMY FIGURES WHO HAVE BEEN RUNNING THE COUNTRY FOR THE LAST FOUR YEARS IS INCLUDED. TOJO, KOISO, SUGIYAMA, MINAMI, ALL THE CHIEF PROPONENTS OF THE POLICY OF AGGRESSION THAT LED JAPAN INTO WAR AGAINST THE UNITED STATES AND INTO HER PRESENT DISASTROUS PLIGHT, ARE MISSING.

THIS INFERENCE IS INESCAPABLE: EITHER THESE MEN HAVE BEEN SO THOROUGHLY DISCREDITED BY THE CATASTROPHES THEY HAVE BROUGHT ON THE NATION THAT THEIR POWER HAS DRAINED AWAY OR THEY ARE TURNING AWAY FROM THE IGNOMINIOUS TASK OF TRYING TO SALVAGE SOMETHING FROM THE

Blank

APR 8 1945

WRECKAGE BY TENDERS OF PEACE.
THE ONLY GENERAL IN THE NEW CABINET IS THE WAR MINISTER, KORECHIKA ANAMI.
HE IS AS LITTLE KNOWN AS THE REST OF THE LIST. ONLY RECENTLY HAS HE COME TO THE HIGH COMMAND. APPARENTLY THE GENERALS OF LARGER REPUTATION WANTED NO PART OF THE JOB AHEAD. ONE ARMY MAN HAD TO BE INCLUDED, SINCE ONLY A GENERAL CAN BE WAR MINISTER. THE CIRCUMSTANCES SUGGEST THAT THE ARMY LEADERS ASSIGNED AN UNWELCOME JOB TO A COMPARATIVE JUNIOR.
BELIEF THAT THE SUZUKI GOVERNMENT IS GIVEN THE JOB OF TRYING TO END THE DISASTROUS WAR WOULD HAVE STRONGER SUPPORT IF IT INCLUDED SOME MORE DISTINGUISHED CIVILIANS, SOME OF THE BIG FINANCIERS AND INDUSTRIALISTS WHO HAVE PREWAR AMERICAN OR BRITISH CONTACTS OR SOME OF THE BETTER KNOWN DIPLOMATS SUCH AS THE RETIRING FOREIGN MINISTER, MAMORU SHIGEMITSU.
BUT THE BIG CIVILIANS, LIKE THE BIG WAR LORDS, APPARENTLY WANT TO ESCAPE THE IGNOMINY OF THE PATH THAT LIES AHEAD.
THERE SEEMS GOOD REASON TO BELIEVE THAT THAT JOB WILL INCLUDE PEACE TENDERS.
THESE PROBABLY WILL BE MOTIVATED PARTLY BY A GENUINE DESIRE TO AVERT UTTER DESTRUCTION OF THE EMPIRE. BUT THEY ALSO WILL BE PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE WEAPONS, DESIGNED TO DIVIDE JAPAN'S ENEMIES OR TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE ALLIES' STATE OF MIND IN THE PERIOD AFTER GERMANY'S COLLAPSE, WHEN THE JAPANESE HOPE THERE WILL BE A LET-DOWN IN THE ALLIED DETERMINATION TO SEE THE JOB THROUGH.
THE NEW CABINET IS AS FULL OF ADMIRALS AS IT IS EMPTY OF GENERALS. BUT THESE ARE NOT FIGHTING ADMIRALS. NONE HAS BEEN RECENTLY IN ACTIVE SERVICE. NONE BELONGS TO THE SWASHBUCKLING CLIQUE WHICH DOMINATED THE NAVY AT THE TIME OF PEARL HARBOR, EXEMPLIFIED BY THE LATE ADMIRAL ISOROKU YAMAMOTO, WHO BOASTED HE WOULD DICTATE THE PEACE IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

A201

IN ANY EVENT THE SHIFT FROM ARMY TO NAVY WOULD BE SIGNIFICANT SINCE THE NAVY TRADITIONALLY HAS BEEN LESS MILITARISTIC AND FANATICALLY NATIONALISTIC THAN THE OTHER SERVICE; ITS LEADERS HAVE HAD MORE EXPERIENCE OF THE WORLD AND BETTER KNOWLEDGE OF JAPAN'S STANDING THEREIN THAN THE ARMY OFFICERS.
ADMIRALS HOLD SIX PORTFOLIOS IN THE NEW CABINET. THREE, THE PREMIERSHIP, FOREIGN MINISTRY AND MINISTRY OF GREATER EAST ASIA, GO TO SUZUKI HIMSELF, THE 77-YEAR-OLD ELDER STATESMAN WHOM THE ARMY EXTREMISTS TRIED TO ASSASSINATE NINE YEARS AGO BECAUSE THEY CONSIDERED HIM ANTI-MILITARIST.
HIS ACTIVE NAVAL CAREER IS NEARLY 20 YEARS BEHIND HIM; OF RECENT YEARS HIS SERVICE HAS BEEN IN THE EMPEROR'S COURT AND THE PRIVY COUNCIL CHAMBER. THE OTHER ADMIRALS ARE YONAI, NAVY MINISTER; TOYODA, MUNITIONS; SAKONJI, WITHOUT PORTFOLIO.
THE OTHER MINISTERS ARE A THOROUGHLY UNDISTINGUISHED LOT, LESSER BUREAUCRATS AND POLITICIANS--NONE HAS ANY REPUTATION OF NOTE OUTSIDE JAPAN. THEIR NAMES HAVE LITTLE MEANING. IT IS THE MISSING NAMES THAT ARE SIGNIFICANT.

YANKS ON SUPERHIGHWAY, DRIVE FOR BERLIN; SKY TROOPS TRAP 2 NAZI ARMIES IN HOLLAND

BRITISH TROOPS HAMMER BREMEN WITH SIEGE GUNS

Hedges' Forces Swarm Across Weser, Ninth 128 Miles from Capital.

CRAILSHEIM FALLS

Americans Smash Within Five Miles of Hannover in Quick Thrust.

PARIS, Monday, April 9.—(AP) U. S. Ninth Army tanks roared unopposed along a superhighway toward Berlin yesterday and last were reported 128 miles from the capital as the U. S. First Army joined the race and the Allied First Airborne army threw a giant net around two German armies in Holland.

It was the Ninth Army's Second Armored division that surged out onto the autobahn within 20 miles of Brunswick. It was at least 15 miles ahead of the First army's Berlin-bound forces swarming across the Weser river.

Other U. S. Ninth army forces smashed within five miles of Hannover. The British Second army drove up within artillery range of Bremen and laid siege to that U-boat center.

British Approach Hannover

One British column approached within seven miles of Hannover, then wheeled northward and was reported 64 miles from Hamburg, Germany's second city and biggest port. The enemy said this was an ambitious attempt to seize Hamburg and seal off Denmark.

On the southern front, the 10th Armored division of the U. S. Seventh army captured Crailsheim after a startling 35-mile breakthrough and drove 10 miles beyond, where it was engaged in a bruising struggle possibly 85 miles from Munich, where Hitler launched the Nazi movement.

The Germans were striving desperately to bring an ordered line out of the chaos of defeat and columns of enemy troops were streaming westward toward the U. S. Third army front, where an American salient has been hammered within 130 miles of Berlin.

The U. S. First army north of this front was threatening to outflank these fresh forces even as they were struggling to get into position.

In an 18-mile thrust, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army tanks and troops swept up the ancient university city of Goettingen, captured 15,000 wounded German soldiers in hospitals there, and pressed unopposed two miles beyond, within 143 miles of Berlin.

Yanks Enter Dortmund

The battle of annihilation in the Ruhr pocket took a decision turn as the Ninth army fought into Dortmund and Gelsenkirchen, two of the basin's biggest cities, after taking 13,417 prisoners Saturday. The First army was driving in from the east and south, gaining four miles or more.

Allied airborne troops were dropped over a wide area of northern Holland Saturday night, and have established radio contact with Canadian First army armored columns driving for a junction.

The Canadians were but 11 miles from the Zuider Zee and less than a mile from the last good route of escape open to the Germans out of Rotterdam and Amsterdam after smashing to within three-fourths of a mile of the road and railway center of Meppel.

Another Canadian force hammered northward into Haren, 31 miles from the North sea and 42 miles from the big port of Emden.

The Canadians broke German resistance in the pivotal stronghold of Zulphen and were chasing the enemy across the Issel river, where the Nazis may stand to defend Rotterdam, Amsterdam and the robot bomb coast.

On the U. S. Third army front, a big tank battle roared into its second day and pilots said the Germans were hurrying up reinforcements from Weimar. The Third army took 10,000 more prisoners yesterday.

Farther south, the 10th armored division of the U. S. Seventh army after a startling 35-mile breakthrough captured Crailsheim, 95 miles northwest of Munich, where Hitler launched his Nazi movement.

Tanks and infantry of the Seventh army were four miles from the ball bearing manufacturing city of Schweinfurt.

On the south end of the front, the French First army seized the transmitter of the Stuttgart radio only 13 miles from that capital of Wuerttemberg province. With a population of 495,000, Stuttgart is one of the most important manufacturing cities of the Reich.

The French also captured the Black Forest city of Pforzheim.

Allied warplanes were once more out in force after knocking out 221 German planes who gave battle in strength yesterday for the first time in weeks.

Prisoners Mount

Allied armies counted 189,611 Germans into their prison pens in the first six days of April—more than three times the 63,079 captured by the Americans throughout the First World War—and in the same period probably killed or wounded 25,000 more.

It was the Second Armored division of Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's U. S. Ninth army that once more broke out into the open on the most direct route to Berlin after slowing down for two days to get across the Weser river.

One column which reached the autobahn had the highway in front of it all the way to Berlin. It last was reported 20 miles from Brunswick, 108 miles of Berlin.

One force rolled into Hildesheim, ancient Catholic city of 62,000 population 25 miles west of Brunswick.

The Second Armored division had by-passed Hannover after passing within 10 miles of the city and a front dispatch said there apparently was nothing in front of this racing force but the Elbe river—50 miles from Berlin.

But Hannover was not being overlooked as Simpson committed at least seven infantry and three armored divisions into his offensive.

The hard-charging 84th "Railsplitter" division, which led the Roer river breakthrough to the Rhine, raced 20 miles beyond the Weser river and was probably five or six miles from the city.

To the rear, the Ninth with the First army was pressing the clean-up of the Ruhr pocket, fighting into Dortmund, Germany's 11th largest city with a population of 537,000, and Gelsenkirchen, with a population of 313,000.

3d Army Frees 80 in German Murder Camp

4,000 European Prisoners Were Slain in 8 Months; Ashes of Victims Found

WITH THE UNITED STATES 3D ARMY, April 8 (AP).—An extermination center where, prisoners said, the Germans starved, clubbed or burned to death more than 4,000 European captives in the last eight months has been overrun by the 4th Armored Division. The Americans seized the camp near Ohrdruf, nine miles south of Gotha, on April 4.

Seventy-seven bodies of victims, said by prisoners to have been killed on April 2, the day before the Americans arrived, were found. They included one of a man who, prisoners said, was a naturalized American flyer of Polish extraction. He had been shot through the neck.

Ashes and arms and legs of other victims were found around a crude woodland crematory two miles from the concentration camp. Eighty prisoners were liberated. They said those killed by the German S. S. (Elite Guard) troops operating the camp included Poles, Czechs, Russians, Belgians, Frenchmen, German Jews and German political prisoners.

Civilians Taken on Tour

Twenty-eight German civilians from the area were taken on a tour of the camp site by Colonel Hayden A. Sears, of Boston, commander of the 4th Armored Combat Command "A," which captured Ohrdruf.

All denied knowledge of what had taken place at the camp. The burgomaster of the town and his wife were found slashed to death—apparently suicides—after a similar tour yesterday.

Liberated prisoners who had hidden in woods, said the last batch of victims, numbering 150, was executed less than twenty-four hours before the 4th Armored arrived. The bodies were stacked under a shed or left where they fell.

Major John Scotti, of Brooklyn, said the prisoners apparently had been starved and worked until they were unable to raise a hand, and then shot or beaten to death.

The captives had been forced to dig a cave for the German communications set-up in the Ohrdruf area after the high command had been forced by Allied bombings to disperse from Berlin.

Room-To-Room Battle Waged

Sixth Army Group Headquarters, April 8 (AP)—With heavy enemy artillery fire falling in Heilbronn, especially around the bridges across the Neckar, the 100th Division's 397th Regiment fought tonight in furious room-to-room battles and was reported making little progress in the drive to clean out that once-important rail center.

"Inhuman Treatment" Charged

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY, April 8 (AP)—Two United States Army lieutenants, who survived the horrors of the Gerolstein and Hammelburg prisoner-of-war camps in Germany, escaped in their fourth attempt and reached the American lines east of the Main River today, declaring they had been subjected to "utterly inhuman treatment" by their captors.

One, a young West Point graduate of the class of 1943, and the other, an Arlington, Va., youth, broke away from their guards on a forced march toward a new prison camp at Nuremberg as advancing American troops approached the older camps.

French slave laborers supplied them with food as they made their way to the American lines. The West Pointer punctuated his story with the grim state statement that the treatment they had received was "utterly inhuman" and he longed to get back into the lines to "kill Germans for what they did to our men."

Packages Used as Bribes

"The Germans even tried to use Red Cross packages addressed to us as bribes—holding them back from us, then offering us something from them to try to get us to talk. Not one American officer or man in any prison I have been in ever talked.

"The Germans put me in solitary confinement for thirteen days trying to make me tell them who I was. They had a suspicion who my dad was, and his outfit, on which they had all the information, but I refused to tell them anything. I lost forty pounds." The other lieutenant said he had lost thirty pounds.

The names of the two men could not be disclosed, but the father of one of them was described as a personal friend of Major General Harry Collins, commander of the 42d Division, who immediately sped word to the father.

"This is the happiest day of my life," the escaped lieutenant said. "But we can never forget the horrors of those prison camps. Gerolstein should go down in history as a blot of shame on humanity."

The other lieutenant said, "What left searing scars on both of us was knowledge of the way our wounded prisoners lay untreated in hospitals." Paper bandages but no drugs or antiseptics were used, both men said.

Westporter Directs Broadcasts By Captured Nazis to Troops

By TOM YARBROUGH

U. S. TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, April 8—(AP) Captured German officers are broadcasting to the 100,000 enemy troops trapped in the Ruhr pocket in the Americans' phychological warfare campaign.

Captives selected for higher intelligence are allowed to sit around a microphone and discuss the Germans' present problems in unrehearsed broadcasts of the "Chicago round table of the air."

NIGHT

"We've cracked German enlisted men as a whole," Maj. Patrick Dolan, of Westport, Conn., former Chicago newspaperman, said, "but not the officers. They are enforcing resistance."

Truth Used As Weapon

The truth is being used as a major weapon in the psychological war.

The basic idea is to let the Germans know their plight and tell them how to surrender—tell them by loudspeakers mounted on tanks and by millions of leaflets delivered in shells and from planes as well as by radio.

In Gen. Omar Bradley's armies the campaign is directed by Col. Clifford Powell, Delanco, N. J.

German prisoners say they have had a decreasing belief in their own radio reports ever since Normandy because they weren't given the essential truth about their battle situations.

The whole campaign is designed to provide the psychological punch to put the German "over the hump" when he is right on the verge of giving up.

Convinces Nazi Officer

One German officer, discussing his units' surrender, was strong on the point of honor.

"Have you some weapon," he asked, "against we have no defense?"

Yes, he was told—white phosphorous.

The American commander sent for a white phosphorous shell and fired it. The German saw the result, was convinced,—and gave up.

Yank Engineers Finish Rail Bridge Over Rhine

Wesel On the Rhine, April 8 (AP). The final span of the first railroad bridge constructed by United States Army engineers across the Rhine was raised into position here tonight.

The bridge, which will serve as the main source of supply for troops in Germany, was begun ten days ago and rushed to completion by day and night work four days ahead of schedule, which is considered by the engineers "phenomenal even by Army standards."

The main structure, plus a connecting canal bridge, totals 2,559 feet in length, of which 1,073 are over water at a height of 34 feet. Its weight is 2,149 tons, including the weight of tracks and all supporting parts, and it is designed to carry 8,000 pounds per foot.

Nazi 'Dead End Kids,' Aged 14 To 18, Battling 1st Army Tanks

Whitehead

Paderborn, Germany, April 8 (AP). Adolf Hitler has collected his toughest Nazi-indoctrinated youths of 14 to 18 and thrown them into battle against the United States 1st Army with the now familiar "do or die" orders to halt the Americans.

NIGHT

Although these German youths are not sufficiently trained to match the skill and stamina of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's tankmen, they are fighting hard and desperately.

"These youngsters are little city toughs—Dead End Kids," said Lieut. Col. Andrew Barr, of Urbana, Ill. "They are better than the average run of German soldiers and still are enthusiastic over Nazi ideas."

Trained In Tank Warfare

Only a short time before the Americans hammered their way from the Rhine with the 3d Armored Division spearheading Hodges's drive, these Nazi youths were brought into the great tank training center in Paderborn and trained to fight with the big Tigers.

They are from the same tough SS (Elite Guard) outfit which killed Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, who commanded the 3d Armored Division. After being taken prisoner the general was shot through the head by a young enemy tankman.

These teen-age German boys had only ten days to two weeks of training before they rushed out to meet the 1st Army's advance.

Even after these fanatical youths are captured they must be watched. Sergt. Edward L. Ellsworth, a veteran medical aid-man from Wyoming, was almost killed by a wounded young SS trooper he was attending.

Knife Blow Blocked

As the American turned to adjust a bottle of plasma the German grabbed a knife from a scabbard on the sergeant's belt. Capt. Edgar Crowe, of Mechanicsville, Va., blocked the blow, which would have plunged the knife into Ellsworth's back.

There were approximately 1,000 of these tough kids in the tank training school now in the hands of the 1st Army. The school is providing the Allies with valuable information of German tank training methods.

The school consisted of ten large three-storied barracks and an administration building over which flew a huge flag now being sent to the commandant at Fort Knox, Ky., the American tank training center as a souvenir.

Quarters Comfortable

The German tankmen lived in comfort at the center, even though the furnishings were cheap and crude. The rooms now are littered with clothing, torn mattresses, broken pictures, letters and all the odds and ends that soldiers carry.

"These people must have run out damned fast or they would never have left the things they did," said a British major with the Royal Armored Corps who is studying equipment and the layout at the school.

"The place is filled with Tiger parts, engine cylinder blocks, tank tracks and electrical equipment."

The major said he was not able to find anything unusual in the enemy's tank training methods, which were not as up to date as British and American methods.

Yanks Reach German Gold Hoard After Blasting Walls of Cache

By EDWARD D. BALL

MERKERS, Germany, April 8.—(AP) Nobody could find the key, so U. S. Third Army engineers blasted a hole through a thick brick wall today and exposed Hitler's fabulous horde of gold and money cached in the 2,100-foot Merkers salt mine.

More than 4,000 bags of gold bullion were counted, a total of 50 tons. Each bag weighed 25 pounds and was worth $10,000.

NIGHT

It was impossible to determine definitely today whether there was more or less gold than the 100-plus tons that Dr. Werner Vieck of the Reichsbank said were in the cache—but there some indications that it was more. Each ton is worth $1,000,000.

"This is it—Germany's entire gold reserve," said Dr. Vieck. "There isn't any more."

The sacks were stacked along the walls of a dim lit chamber 65 by 65 feet along with thousands of sacks of coins too heavy for an American soldier to lift.

Each sack bore a lead seal, a red or yellow tag and in black print "Reichsbank."

In addition to the sacks of gold bullion and coins there were hundreds of pasteboard cases of Reichsmarks.

Corridors leading to the "gold room" were lined with huge stacks of bags containing Reichsmarks and money of various other countries including perhaps $2,000,000 in American currency.

Start Inventory

Third Army officers began an inventory of the treasure trove which will require days to complete.

Besides the vast monetary horde the Germans had cached hundreds of priceless art works including a Titian Venus.

I counted 4,050 bags of 25-pound gold bars, each bar about the size of an ordinary building brick. In the gold room piled in orderly rows were 2,180 bags of coins and five rows of Reichsmarks in 150 boxes each containing 175,000 marks.

(Hitler and various other Nazi leaders including Goering, Goebbels and Himmler, have been reported to have millions of dollars in currency and securities cached in foreign countries under false names.)

Dr. Werner Rave, curator of the German State Museum and an assistant director of Berlin's National Art Galleries, who was present with Vieck, said two-thirds of the Reich's national treasures were stored in the cave. The other third, he said, was in another salt mine which has been overrun by the Americans.

To get to the chamber it was necessary to descend in a 15-man double-decker elevator operated by German civilian mine employes. In the oppressive air of the shaft combat engineers under Lt. Jack McFarlane, Hollywood, Calif., perspired as they planted the explosives.

Blast Hole in Wall

The engineers had to blast the brick wall because nobody seemed to have the keys to the massive steel door to the chamber. The first charge tore a hole in the wall big enough for a man to crawl through.

Resting on the floor, glistening with white salt, stack after stack of gold could be counted.

The coins were in bags about half the size of a regular potato sack and included many bags of gold coins.

While a colonel went about poking bags with a walking stick, the pop-eyed engineers looked on in amazement. "There's gold aplenty in this here mine," quipped Cpl. Joseph Aldridge, Columbus, Ohio.

Then, as Vieck pointed out the bags of gold, one was split open and a couple of high-ranking Third Army officers held up a 25-pound gold bar.

Rave, a pale thing-faced man, said he came from Berlin to Merkers with the art treasures without army guards, to avoid arousing curiosity. He said the paintings, sculpture and etchings all were crated and numbered and that he was not sure what works were here. He said definitely, however, that a Titian Venus was among them.

Tells of Hoard

Fifty-five-year-old Vieck, round faced and wearing tortoise-shell glasses, said he was Reichsbank director for the Erfurt district. He had been working with the Reichsbank for 33 years and formerly was associated closely with former Reichsbank President Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, but asserted he did not know where Schacht was at present.

Vieck observed:

"Gold means nothing to us since we cannot use it in foreign exchange. But the government was anxious to get it out to meet obligations. Your bombers destroyed bridges and made that impossible."

The natives, most of whom apparently did not know they were sitting on top of the nation's wealth, stood by watching the comings and goings in astonishment. Anybody approaching the cluster of sprawling brick buildings at the mine's entrance had to see a general or somebody to get near the place.

Another art haul was made late today by the Fifth division which unearthed 200 paintings by the artist Degas and hundreds of manuscripts. The works included some removed from Paris and other European capitals by the Nazis. One manuscript dealt with the family history of the Rothchilds.

GERMAN CHEMIST DIES

Dr. Mueller, Known as 'Dynamite King,' Has Heart Attack

IN GERMANY, April 8 (AP)—Dr. Paul Frederick Mueller, 69, known as Germany's "dynamite king," died at his home in Wurgendorf of a heart attack suffered April 4.

One of Germany's leading chemists, Dr. Mueller reportedly led in the development of his nation's extensive wartime plastic and synthetic industries.

He was general manager of Dynamite - Actien - Gesselschaft, formerly the Alfred Nobel Company. The firm is privately owned, and he also managed some new Government factories.

REDS STORM KOENIGSBERG, SEIZE 15,000

Russians 3 Miles Inside Vienna And Within 32 Of Graz

Wheeler

London, Monday, April 9 (AP)—Russian troops pushed 3 miles inside embattled Vienna yesterday, hastened the Austrian capital's encirclement by fording the Danube and Morava rivers east of the city and drove into the Austrian Alps to the south within 32 miles of Graz.

As Soviet tommygunners battered within a mile of Vienna's heart, Russian forces far to the north began storming the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, reencircled the fortress city and captured 15,000 prisoners.

The mop-up battle to reduce long-beleaguered Koenigsberg and thereby release Soviet troops for the impending battle for Berlin came as the German radio said the Red Army might already have begun that expected struggle.

Aid By Patriots Seen

The Nazi Transocean Agency reported: "Reconnaissance in force in the area of Frankfurt-on-Oder and Kuestrin (33 to 38 miles east of Berlin) suggests the beginning of the Russian offensive toward the Reich capital."

NIGHT

Soviet assault forces were moving through the rubble-strewn and smoke-clouded streets of Vienna at a far faster rate than they had moved in the prolonged struggle for Budapest. There were indications they were being aided by Austrian patriots as the Soviet high command and Government called on the Viennese to cut down the Nazis, prevent the great cultural center's destruction and "make a contribution to the liberation of Austria."

The Russian midnight communique reported Austrians were welcoming Red Army men as liberators, greeting them with demonstrations and exhibiting the Austrian and Soviet Union flags.

Vital Escape Route Cut

Another of Vienna's vital rail escape routes was cut when a Russian bridgehead across the Morava was built up at Angern, 18 miles northeast of the capital. The line linked the capital with the Czechoslovak war production center of Bruenn (Brno), 35 miles from other Russian spearheads.

While the battle for Vienna raged with increasing ferocity and its escape gap on the north was narrowed to 24 miles, Soviet troops west of the city struck along the Danube Valley and thrust out of the Vienna Woods to a point 75 miles east of the great city of Linz.

South of Vienna in the Austrian Alps, mountain fighters of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian

APR 9 1945

Army hammered into the 4,754-foot peaks to clear the Pinka River Valley on a 50-mile front. Driving 27 miles inside Austria to take Moenichwald, they smashed within 32 miles northeast of Austria's second city of Graz.

Main Arsenal Captured

Moscow disclosed that other soldiers of Tolbukhin's Army had driven 3 miles inside Vienna and captured the west railroad station, and that fighting was raging throughout the city's western districts.

Simultaneously, other units, battering 2¾ miles into the city from the south, captured the south and east stations, within a few hundred yards of each other and 1 mile from Vienna's famous Ringstrasse, marking the old city area. They were a mile and a half from St. Stephan's Cathedral in the center of the "ring."

The main arsenal, built and highly fortified almost 100 years ago, and 2 miles from St. Stephan's, also was captured.

Batter Toward Linz

Ten miles east of Vienna, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army crossed the Danube River on a 9-mile front between its confluence with the Morava and the village of Eckartsau. North of the Danube-Morava confluence, cavalrymen swept across the Morava on a 16-mile front.

Russians had narrowed to 24 miles the escape gap north of Vienna and were thrusting across the flat Marchfeld plain, seeking to bypass Vienna on the north and complete the encirclement.

West of Vienna, other units of Tolbukhin's Army battered toward Linz, capturing Neulengebach, 12 miles east of the key junction of St. Poelten. In that area and in Vienna, 5,000 enemy troops were taken prisoner.

Spearheading the frontal assault were picked storm battalions of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army. These veterans of street fighting at Stalingrad and Budapest also pushed into the city from the northwest.

Battering forward against German mortar fire and heavy sniping that was laying the old and beautiful cultural center of Europe in ruins, these forces drove into the city from captured Klostern Euburg on the Danube, and the suburban areas of Josefsdorf, Leopoldsberg and Kahlenberg — all within the city limits and four and a half miles from St. Stephan's—apparently were in Russian hands, dispatches said.

Nazi heavy artillery positions on the heights in this area were overrun. These guns overlooking the city were to have pounded the Russians infiltrating southern Vienna. Tolbukhin's swift, surprise sweep to the Danube northwest of the city forced the Germans to turn the remaining artillery pieces against the attack from the northwest.

Fanatical SS troops, aided by the Wehrmacht and the Volkssturm, fought bitterly through the streets to prevent deeper Red army penetration of the city, shrouded by dirty smoke billowing from flaming buildings.

Claim Nazi Leader Killed

Front reports to Moscow claimed that Col. Gen. Sepp Dietrich, commander of the Vienna garrison and former chief of Hitler's bodyguard, had been assassinated Friday by seven pistol shots fired at point-blank range.

The front dispatches reported frantic efforts of Nazis and important Germans to flee the Austrian capital over the crowded remaining roads to the north—jammed with official cars and last-minute reserves being hurried to the metropolis.

Both Pravda and the Moscow newspaper Bolshevik said the battles resemble those for Belgrade and Budapest with confusion rising. No food was coming in. Thousands of women were standing in lines from dawn to dusk trying to buy scraps of food.

The Germans, dispatches said, flew in transports Saturday night and apparently took out some frightened Nazis, but many were unable to get away and it appeared that some would be trapped in the growing Russian threat of encirclement.

Red Army troops in East Prussia began storming the fortress capital of Koenigsberg, re-encircling the city and taking 15,000 prisoners. Moscow's nightly war bulletin announced that Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky's 3d White Russian Army had smashed the enemy's perimeter defense line based on a circular railroad and had captured the city's main rail station and port.

The German radio said that the Red Army also might be starting its long-expected attack on Berlin. The Nazi Transocean agency said: "Reconnaissance in force in the area of Frankfurt and Kuestrin (thirty-three to thirty-eight miles east of Berlin) suggests the beginning of the Russian offensive toward the Reich capital."

The Transocean agency also reported that Soviet forces which had attempted to break through the Moravian Gap were moving north. Transocean said that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army was being shifted to the Neisse River sector on the road to Dresden, and added: "Bohemia and Moravia are objectives of Russian attacks in southeastern Germany, and Russian regrouping operations in Silesia as well indicate that the Soviets intend to launch an encircling drive in the direction of Prague."

BIG BOMBERS RIP REICH DEFENSES

Smash Enemy Battleline; 221 Nazi Planes Lost in Week-End Battle.

LONDON, Monday, April 9.—(AP) More than 1,200 U. S. heavy bombers, convoyed by 750 fighters, ranged unchallenged over central Germany yesterday and attacked 11 targets. The Berlin radio went off the air last night, indicating that British planes were following up the strike.

The German air force staggered by the loss of 221 planes when it accepted battle Saturday, turned its attention Sunday to swarms of Allied medium and fighterbombers pounding the enemy battlelines and lost 57 more aircraft, 30 of them in aerial combat.

First reports said two American planes were missing in this battle while 10 bombers and one fighter of the U. S. Eighth air force were lost from the big force which tackled targets between Berlin and Nuernberg.

Pilots returning from the heavy bomber raids said the enemy did not send up a single plane and that anti-aircraft fire was meager.

The 15th Air Force—left with few targets farther north as the result of Allied advances from east and west—concentrated on Brenner Pass targets for the third consecutive day.

Over 200-Mile Stretch

The 8th Air Force flew over a 200-mile stretch of the narrowing section of the Reich still in German hands and dropped explosives and fire bombs on at least five airfields used by jet propelled planes. The fields were located at Schastadt, southwest of Dessau; Unterslaurersbach, just outside Nuernberg; Roth, 70 miles from Berlin; Hof, 15 miles southwest of Plauen, and Eger, 40 miles southeast of Plauen.

Two ordnance plants, one at Bayreuth, 40 miles northeast of Nuernberg, and the other at Grafenwohr, 20 miles southwest of Bayreuth, were bombed.

The Dreben oil depot, 55 miles west of Berlin, was plastered with explosives and a jet plane repair center at Furth on Nuernberg's outskirts took a pounding.

Four railyards in the same areas were hit.

The United States Ninth Air Force, flying 1,798 sorties today with a loss of two planes, sent fighter-bombers against eight German airfields at Erfurt, Halle, Nordhausen, Merseburg, Hof, Dessau and Naumburg; highway and rail traffic near Magdeburg, Leipzig, Nordhausen and Coburg, and other targets ahead of the American armies.

They encountered German planes in formations of as many as fifty and shot down thirty-two, got two probables and damaged thirteen in combat. They destroyed thirty-six, got three probables and damaged fifty-seven on the ground.

More than 500 Ninth Air Force bombers attacked oil storage tanks at Munchebernsdorf, forty miles southwest of Leipzig; a refinery northeast of Hanover, rail yards at Celle and the communications center of Sonderhausen, twenty-two miles northeast of Muelhausen.

Fighter-bombers and mediums bombers of the First Tactical Air Force flew 900 sorties without a loss against rail yards, strong points and eight airfields in the Nuremberg area ahead of the Sixth Army Group.

YANKS RAID 11 REICH TARGETS

Heavy Bombers Unchallenged By German Fighters

London, April 8 (AP)—Swiss fighters forced two American bombers to land at Duebendorf and anti-aircraft fire hit another, causing the crew to bail out, a broadcast Swiss communique said tonight.

The announcement said an unidentified foreign plane dropped six bombs east of the Swiss town of Muenster shortly after noon today. Several houses were damaged, but no one was hurt.

New British Air Board Director

LONDON, April 8 (AP)—Hor Hindley, director of organization of the British Air Ministry, has been named to succeed Sir Richard Fairey as deputy general of the British Air Commission, unit in the United States of the Ministry of Aircraft Production, The Financial News said today.

United States Honors British Airborne Heroes

London, April 8 (AP)—The Government of the United States paid official tribute today to British airborne heroes of the battle of Arnhem.

Lieut. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the 1st Allied Airborne Army, decorated 33 heroes of the September battle at an investiture attended by 200 of their comrades. By direction of President Roosevelt and on citations signed by General Eisenhower, ten officers and men received the Distinguished Service Cross, ten the Silver Star and thirteen the Bronze Star. Two other Bronze Stars were awarded posthumously to glider pilots since killed in action.

A lance corporal stood between two brigadier generals to receive his medal.

V-Bomb Danger Over, British Official Asserts

Raids, Beginning June 15, Killed 8,436 and Injured 2,510

LONDON, April 8 (AP).—The Germans "cannot now send V bombs" against Great Britain, a Home Security official said today as the Security Office reported 8,436 persons had been killed and 25,101 had been injured seriously since V-bombing began last June 15.

As Allied armies fought today to clean up the rocket coast, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, the Security Office's Parliamentary secretary, said at Newcastle that the flying-bombs' range would have to be lengthened "considerably" for another attack.

"This would mean carrying extra fuel and so reducing the warhead as to make them ineffective as weapons of retaliation," she said.

MOSCOW PLEDGES AID FOR AUSTRIA

Russia Promises Independence of Country, Disavows Territorial Aims.

LONDON, April 8 — (AP) The Moscow radio broadcast tonight a declaration by the Soviet Government that Russia regarded the Austrian people as friends and that the Soviet Union had no intention of acquiring Austrian territory or of changing the Austrian social system.

The declaration said, "smashing the German Fascist armies and pursuing them, the Red army entered Austria and has besieged its capital."

"In distinction from the Germans in Germany," the Soviet statement said, "the Austrian population is resisting the evacuation carried out by the Germans, is remaining in its places and meeting with joy the Red army as liberators of Austria from the yoke of the Hitlerities.

"The Soviet government is not pursuing the aim of acquiring any part of Austrian territory or of changing the social system in Austria. The Soviet government stands on the point of view of the Allied-Moscow declaration on the independence of Austria. It will carry out this declaration. It will facilitate the liquidation of the regime of the German Fascist invaders and the restoration of a democratic order and institutions in Austria.

"The supreme command of the Red army has given an order to Soviet troops to assist the Austrian population in this work."

The Moscow radio followed this declaration with a proclamation by Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin, commander of the Third Ukrainian army, to the people of Vienna. It contained substantially the same text and pledged that the Red army would guarantee the independence of Austria and would facilitate the restoration of order existing in Austria before the Nazi Anschluss.

"The Red army is fighting the German invaders and not the population of Austria, which can carry on its peaceful labors in tranquillity," said Tolbukhin's declaration.

"Rumors spread by the Hitlerities that the Red army is wiping out all members of the National Socialist party are lies the party of National Socialists will be dissolved, but the rank and file members will not be touched if they show loyalty in relation to Soviet troops," Tolbukhin said.

The proclamation continued: "The hour of liberation of Vienna from German domination has come. The retreating Fascist troops want to make Vienna a battlefield as they did Budapest. This threatens Vienna with the same destruction and horrors of wars as was inflicted on Budapest and its population by the Germans."

Asks People To Aid

Tolbukhin made three proposals to "preserve the capital of Austria and its historic monuments, culture and arts."

He suggested that the population should not evacuate the city—"since when the Germans are cleared from Vienna you will be freed from the horror of war and those who evacuate will be driven by the Germans to their destruction"—and also that the population should not permit the Nazis to mine Vienna. He urged then not to let the Germans blow up its five bridges or to turn houses into fortifications.

Thirdly, Tolbukhin called for organized struggle against the Germans for the defense of the city and against its destruction by the Germans.

"All Viennese should actively prevent the Germans from taking industrial equipment, goods or food from Vienna and prevent them from plundering the citizens of Vienna," he said.

"Citizens of Vienna!—help the Red army liberate Vienna. Make your contribution to the liberation of Austria from the Fascist yoke," he concluded.

NAZI WAR AREA STILLED

'Not a Thing Moving for Hitler,' Reports a Staten Island Flier

LONDON, April 8 (AP)—United States Eighth Air Force fliers returning from today's "mop up" attacks over Germany reported a strange absence of moving vehicles in some of the target areas through which much war supply for the Nazi front-line troops might be expected to be moving.

"There was no flak, no enemy aircraft and no trains—not a thing moving for Hitler," said Maj. Donal C. McGhee of 31 Melrose Ave., Staten Island, N. Y., a Mustang squadron leader.

POLISH CARDINAL FREED FROM NAZIS

PARIS, April 8—(AP) Liberated by American troops, August Cardinal Hlond, primate of Poland, arrived at a Paris airfield today from Germany. He had been a prisoner of the Gestapo for 14 months.

The Cardinal declined to describe his treatment by the Gestapo on the ground it was "a personal matter of the past." He said he had been confined in a convent where the Germans "at least permitted mass to be said every day."

The convent was near Paderborn. The Cardinal indicated the liberating Ninth army troops overran the area Easter Sunday morning almost without warning.

He said the first American he met was Father Stephen Paul Kenney, Boston priest, chaplain from New Jersey.

"The Americans freed me, the first outsider I met was an American and American General (William H.) Simpson, Ninth army commander sent me to Paris in his own plane," the Cardinal said.

He asked correspondents to convey his blessings to all Americans.

Gen. Simpson's personal pilot, Capt. William Fadler of Joplin, Mo., brought the prelate to Paris.

Col. Anthony Biddle, U. S. ambassador to Poland in 1939, was on hand to welcome the Cardinal. The last time they saw each other was when they took shelter together behind a tree on a highway being strafed by the Germans in their smash into Poland.

Cardinal Hlond was forced to flee Poland in 1939. He reached Rome and then came to France. He was living in Lourdes when the Nazis occupied France.

Gestapo plainclothesmen took him to Paris and held him prisoner in a small apartment. Fourteen months ago he was taken to Paderborn.

The Cardinal's future plans were not announced.

Private Enterprise Urged

Paris, April 8 (AP)—Rene Pleven, Minister of National Economy, today advocated more private enterprise in French commerce and industry, and declared there was no necessity for further Government control in solving problems in the nation's economic recovery.

Belgian Correspondent Killed In Jeep Accident

Paris, April 8 (AP)—Rene Jauniaux, war correspondent for the Belgian newspaper Le Peuple, has been killed in a jeep accident while covering operations in the United States 3d Army area, Allied supreme headquarters announced tonight.

Jauniaux, son of a Brussels senator, was the first Belgian correspondent to become a casualty, the announcement said.

YANKS CAPTURE DOMINANT PEAK

Japanese-American Troops Drive Within 2 Miles Of Massa

Rome, April 8 (AP)—Japanese-American infantry, spearheading the United States 5th Army's drive on the western flank of the newly active Italian battlefront, have captured 3,000-foot Monte Belvedere and driven within 2 miles of Massa, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Nazi grip on Massa and near-by Carrara, centers of the world famous Italian marble quarrying industry, was threatened by the 5th Army's surge near the Ligurinan coast. An apparent objective is the naval base of La Spezia, 14½ miles northwest of Massa.

The Americans of Japanese ancestry, members of the 442d Infantry Regiment, gained 4 miles in 48 hours, wiped out one company of Germans and virtually destroyed two others and took more than 100 prisoners.

Secret Trail Revealed

With the aid of Italian patriots the Japanese-Americans discovered a secret mountain trail the Germans had been using to send spies to 5th Army positions, AP Correspondent Sid Feder reported from the front.

Monte Belvedere's cloud-covered peak was taken after a battle of several hours. Other elements of the 442d Regiment stormed Cerreta Ridge southeast of captured Monte Folgorito. Fifth Army headquarters said the troops were meeting increasing resistance from enemy artillery and mortar positions.

Big enemy coastal guns on Ponte Bianca—a promontory jutting into the Ligurian Sea 8½ miles west and slightly north of Massa—also have opened up against the Americans. American aircraft and the British destroyers Mahratta and Lookout were countering this fire. A naval communiqué said the warships shelled enemy troop concentrations, tanks and positions.

Sharp Fighting Continues

The latest gains gave the 5th Army control of dominating high ground to the south and east of Massa. The sharpest fighting continued in the zone northwest of Strettoia, where advance American elements earlier were driven back. There the attacking force hammered its way onto high ground overlooking the village of Porta and reached points 3 miles south of Massa, where sharp German resistance was encountered both frontally and on the flanks.

On the eastern end of the Italian front British 8th Army troops continued advancing near the southwestern corner of the Valli Di Comacchio lagoon. North of the Reno River 8th Army units cleared a number of German strong points and took 200 prisoners. A German raid on one of the tiny islands in the lagoon, seized by the 8th Army last Wednesday night, was beaten off.

Despite unfavorable weather, Allied aircraft flew more than 2,000 sorties yesterday aimed mostly at battle area targets and enemy communications in northern Italy and southern Austria. United States 15th Air Force Flying Fortresses knocked out a Brenner route highway bridge 25 miles south of Bolzano and cut the approaches to the Verone-Parona railway bridge. The Brenner Pass route was attacked again today.

Bomb Brenner Pass Again

ROME, April 8 (AP).—United States 15th Air Force heavy bombers left with few targets farther north as a result of Allied advances from the east and west into Germany and Austria — bombed the Brenner Pass route today for the third consecutive day.

300 Girls And 80 Nuns Are Addressed By Pope

Vatican City, April 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, at an audience for 300 girls and 80 nuns of the Institute of the Good Shepherd in Rome, spoke today of dangers which "prey upon honor and virtue especially in these troubled times."

The institute for girls has 306 branches throughout the world.

The Pontiff told the girls to place their trust in God, and to acquire strength necessary for the day when they will face the world.

U.S. Fourth Corps Gets Flag It Used In Last War

Rome, April 8 (AP)—The flag which flew over the United States Army's 4th Corps near Coblenz, Germany, in the first World War, was presented today to Maj. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger of Indiana, its present commander, at the command post in the northern Apennines.

Col. Thomas J. Wells, Honolulu, presented the flag at ceremonies coinciding with the corps' 300th consecutive day of action on the Italian front, and representing his father, who was the corps' chief of staff in the last war.

Duke of Aosta Is Ousted As Italian Navy Admiral

Relieved for Criticising Court's Handling of Pro-Fascists

ROME, April 8 (AP). — Prince Umberto today relieved his cousin, Aimone Di Savoia, Duke of Acosta, of his command as navy admiral. The duke had been accused of criticizing the High Court of Justice for punishment of Fascist crimes.

The duke was quoted as saying, "I would have them all shot" when asked his opinion of the high court's trial of General Mario Roatta, after Roatta's escape March 5 from a Rome hospital.

Prince Humberto is lieutenant general of the realm, took action on the recommendation of Navy Minister Raffaele De Courten, after High Court President Mario Berlinguer and Judge Lorenzo Maroni protested to Premier Ivanoe Bonomi about the duke's reported statement.

The newspaper "Avanti" said that Mrs. Sylvia Sprigge, a correspondent of "The Manchester Guardian," had attributed the statement to the duke after attending a private dinner at Taranto. Mrs. Sprigge declined comment tonight beyond stating she had protested to "Avanti" against the publication of "a private dinner conversation."

Nazis Protest Vatican Editorial

Vatican City, April 8 (AP)—A German protest was reported made today against a recent Osservatore Romano editorial which could be interpreted as calling on Germans to lay down their arms to avoid further bloodshed.

The Vatican secretariat would neither confirm nor deny the report which said the protest was submitted by Baron Ernst von Weizsacker, German Ambassador to the Holy See, and concerned a passage in the editorial asserting that reasons of "honor" could not justify prolonging an unequal struggle.

Voulgaris' Aids Sworn In New Greek Cabinet

New Premier Also Becomes Marine and Air Minister

ATHENS, April 8 (AP).—Nine members of Admiral Petros Voulgaris's Cabinet, which succeeded the government of General Nicholas Plastiras, were sworn in tonight at the Regency. Admiral Voulgaris, head of the Greek Navy, became Minister of Marine and Air in addition to Premier.

Other members of his Cabinet include Demetrius Ballonos, Minister of Education; Gregory Kassimatis, National Economy and Labor; George Mantzavinos, Finance; Nicolas Tricorfos Sbarounis, Hygiene; Constantine Trastos, Public Assistance; Captain George Lambrinopoulos, under secretary to the Prime Minister; Denis Zakynthinos, under secretary for the press; Anargyros Dimitracopoulos, Public Works, and Admiral Spyros Matessis, Minister of the Mercantile Marine.

The posts of Foreign Secretary and the Ministry of the Interior were still to be filled. John Sophianopulos, Foreign Minister in the Plastiras government, is en route to San Francisco for the World Security Conference.

Although all phases of political opinion from Socialist to Royalist are included, observers viewed the new Cabinet as an interim government pending arrangements for national elections and a plebiscite on the form of government the Greeks want for the future.

Dr. Hans Fischer Dies In Munich

Bern, Switzerland, April 8 (AP)—Dr. Hans Fischer, 64, who won the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1930 for work in blood analysis, has died in Munich, the Munich newspaper Nachrichten reported. Dr. Fischer had lectured at the Universities of Munich, Vienna and Innsbruck.

SWEDES DENY NORWAY HAS ASKED FOR HELP

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 8 (AP)—Talk of Swedish military intervention in German-occupied Norway has been received sympathetically here and is considered timely in view of the Allies' drive toward Denmark.

A Danish relief corps trained and equipped by Sweden has been summoned to report for duty next week-end at camps near Denmark, Danish sources said. A Norwegian detail also is ready here.

Intervention by the Swedish military would be regarded here as an act of war but of relief. It would be considered a large-scale police action to save Norway from further suffering.

The Foreign Office has denied that the Norwegian Government has made any formal request for Swedish assistance.

Some units of the Norwegian police corps of more than 12,000 have been flown into northern Norway in American planes. The Danish police brigade of 5,000 to 6,000 men has been equipped with weapons of all types.

In addition, Danish sources said, at least 2,000 doctors, nurses, fire fighting and general clean-up workers had been organized.

Jap Envoy In Soviet Reported Ready To Depart For Tokyo

Moscow, April 8 (AP)—The Soviet Union's renunciation of her five-year neutrality pact with Japan overshadowed all political news in the Russian capital today and was a lively topic of conversation among foreign diplomats and among the Russian people.

At the same time some observers were of the opinion that the Poles or the Russians may speak up again shortly on the failure to invite a representation from the Polish provisional government to the San Francisco world-security conference.

Rumors prevailed in Moscow's foreign colony that Japanese Ambassador Natotake Sato—who had postponed one trip home to report, in order to receive the Soviet note—was preparing to depart for Tokyo to give the new Suzuki Government his view of what the Russian renunciation meant.

Jap Newsmen Busy

The Japanese have been most active since Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov handed Sato the terse note last Thursday telling him that the 1941 treaty had lost its meaning.

Japanese newspaper correspondents have been working night and day pouring out their interpretation of the latest Soviet action.

Izvestia, official Government newspaper, charged yesterday that Japan actively aided Germany in her war of aggression against the Soviet Union. Izvestia said Japan's military and political leaders had put their money on Hitler's cards.

Pravda, the organ of the central committee of the Communist party, has carried no comment on the renunciation. Neither has Red Star, the newspaper which goes to all the officers of the Red Army. Both, of course, printed the text of the Molotov note the day after it was delivered.

Nipponese Told Off

The Soviets have told off the Japanese in no uncertain language. Now the Japanese, if they did not know it before, know how the Russians feel about Russian-Japanese relations.

From the Japanese point of view, of course, it isn't a very cheering situation, although nothing more is likely to happen in the immediate future, if at all.

There still seems to have been no progress made on the Polish question by the three-power commission given the task of reorganizing the Polish provisional government along the lines set forth at the Crimean conference.

Terms Of Agreement

But the Russians and Poles are not likely to let the matter of Polish representation at the San Francisco conference go by unnoticed, for both have declared how extremely important they view the presence of representatives of the proviisonal government at the meeting.

[Under the terms of Crimean agreement, the United States and Britain were to grant recognition to the Moscow-supported Polish provisional government, the so-called Lublin group, when that government had been broadened to include democratic leaders in and outside the country.]

"Pravda" discussed the Polish question to some extent today, an "observer" taking issue with Mark Sullivan, of the New York Herald Tribune. He quoted Mr. Sullivan as saying that "the formation of a Polish government friendly to the Soviet Union would mean that such a government would not be independent."

"According to Sullivan an 'independent' government would only be one inimical to the Soviet Union," the "observer" declared, adding: "But the Polish people are going their own way. This way foresees a sound friendship with the U. S. S. R. in foreign policy and broad democratization in internal politics. There is no power which can detract the Polish people from this view."

Tito Calls On Mrs. Churchill

Moscow, April 8 (AP)—Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia paid his respects to Mrs. Winton Churchill today. The informal conversation at their first meeting touched on many subjects.

Harley Delegates Out On Moscow Collegium

Moscow, April 8 (AP)—Two Soviet delegates to the San Francisco world security conference were named members of the collegium of peoples commissars for foreign affairs today.

They were S. K. Tsarapkin, chief of the American section of the Foreign Office and a delegate to the Dumbarton Oaks conference, and K. V. Novikov, chief of the second European division dealing with British Dominions.

7 GERMAN PLANES ARRIVE IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, April 8—(AP) Seven German warplanes landed in southern Sweden today and the crew of one frankly admitted they were deserters, dispatches from Malmo said.

An eighth plane was shot down by Swedish antiaircraft gunners and three others flew off when the flak barrage started.

Three Germans in a fighter plane said they were deserters. The other planes were reported to be one transport carrying 12 soldiers and five planes of a type used for scouting, fighter spotting and transporting high officers from one battle sector to another.

All of the Germans except those in the fighter plane said they had intended to go to Bornholm, a German-occupied Danish island in the Baltic. The planes were escorted to landing fields by Swedish fighters and their German crews and passengers were interned.

(Several German planes also have been flown to Portugal and Spain in the last week.)

Repeatedly in the last few weeks Germans, arriving in Sweden by boat and plane, have said that they were neither refugees or deserters but were en route to Bornholm and merely erred in navigation.

Congressman And U.S. Official Reach Lebanon

Beyrouth, April 8 (AP)—Representative Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, and Commander John S. Young, assistant administrator of the United States Foreign Economic Administration, arrived Saturday on a tour in which they already have visited China, Burma, India, the Persian Gulf and Palestine.

They are the first United States officials to visit Lebanon since recognition of its independence, and were greeted warmly by the Premier, Foreign Minister and deputies.

U.S. Editors Optimistic On World Press Freedom

Forrest and McGill Tell of Reaction to Mission

CALCUTTA, April 8 (AP).—A committee of American newspaper men left today on the last leg of a world tour in the interests of freedom of the press which has carried them to all major Allied capitals and fighting fronts.

Ralph McGill, editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune, took off for a swing over the Pacific, expecting to arrive in the United States late this month. Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia University School of Journalism, third member of the committee, remained in China briefly, to follow them homeward [illegible].

A formal report of results of their four-month discussions and investigations will be delayed until their return to the United States, but Forrest and McGill, in a brief summary, said there was every reason for optimism concerning prospects for world-wide post-war freedom of the press.

"The principle of a free press everywhere is recognized as an ideal which will be attained by newspapers in every country we visited," Forrest said. "There is some uncertainty in official circles how the idea will be realized in practice, but the groundwork is there for peace-time discussions and inclusion of free news exchange guaranties as one of the fundamental requirements of a post-war international organization."

Ackerman arrived in China just at the time the Chinese government approved extension of Columbia's branch journalism school for another year. He remained to attend to details of the extension.

Turkey Seeks New Pact Of Friendship With Reds

Agrees the Russian-Denounced Treaty Is Outmoded

ANKARA, April 7 (Delayed) (AP).—Turkey announced today it agreed with the Russian government that their treaty of friendship and neutrality, recently denounced by Russia, had outlived its usefulness and had suggested a new pact of amity between the nations "better confirming actual interests." The official answer was published after seventeen days of silence during which the Turkish government studied a Soviet note.

Russia notified Turkey, March 19, that it wished to denounce their bilateral treaty, which had existed since Dec. 17, 1925, declaring the Soviet government appreciated the value of the treaty but that the war had caused new conditions necessitating "important ameliorations."

The Turkish reply, presented to the Soviet government through Foreign Minister Hasan Sakea, expressed a desire to "maintain and consolidate sincere friendship" between the two countries.

U.S. Cigarettes In China $2 Pack

Chungking, April 8 (AP)—American cigarettes can be purchased in Chinesee shops in Chungking, Chingtu, Kunming and other cities if one is willing to pay a price equivalent to two American dollars for a pack of twenty.

CHINESE ROUT ENEMY COLUMN

More Than Half Of Jap Force In Honan Reported Wiped Out

Chungking, April 8 (AP)—Chinese troops have wiped out more than half of an enemy column which was surrounded in southwest Honan after reaching a point 30 miles from the Shensi border, the high command announced tonight.

The announcement said the remaining Japanese retreated eastward pursued by Chinese forces who gained more than 3 miles.

Meanwhile, the Chinese counter-attacked Japanese threatening Shensi from northwestern Honan. After six hours of fighting they killed more than 400 of the invaders who retreated eastward. The communiqué said pursuing Chinese reached the vicinity of the Japanese-held town of Chang Suichen on the Lo River, 70 miles from the Shensi border.

Jap Attacks Beaten Off

Reinforced Japanese forces counterattacked Chinese positions west of Teng Hsien on the highway running northeast from Laohokow. More than 300 Japanese were killed in the ensuing clash, which was reported continuing.

The Chinese reported beating back fresh tank-supported Japanese attacks against Laohokow, killing more than 500 of the invaders and destroying four tanks. Fighting also was continuing at points south and southeast of Laohokow, former site of a United States 14th Air Force base.

14th Air Forces' Toll

The Japanese lost a ton of shipping sunk for every 2.3 pounds of American bombs dropped and every 2.2 gallons of American gasoline expended by certain units of the 14th Air Force in special operations in an eight-month period, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault announced today.

The figures covered a period from May 24, 1944, to February 28. Chennault, commander of the 14th Air Force, announced that 47 enemy aircraft were destroyed by the 14th last month, 18 probably were destroyed and 72 damaged, while his forces ran up a ration of eleven Japanese planes destroyed in air combat for every American plane shot down.

2,243 Planes Since July 4

The month's bag brought the number of enemy planes destroyed by the 14th since July 4 to 2,243, and the number of "probable" to 877.

Heavy strikes were continued against the enemy's sea, river and railroad supply lines, with particular concentration of the bombing of rail equipment in the northeast to slow the Japanese drive which resulted in evacuation of the 14th Air Force from Laohokow base on the Han River.

BLOCKADE HITS JAPS' SHIPPING

MacArthur Tells Results For First Quarter Of 1945

Manila, Monday, April 9 (AP)—Army and Navy bombers blockading the China Sea sank 221,492 tons of Japanese shipping, probably sank an additional 44,645 tons and damaged 108,630 tons during March alone, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

He gave these totals for the first three months of 1945: Sunk, 345,179 tons; probably sunk, 116,965 tons; damaged, 274,295 tons—a total of 736,439 tons.

This reflected the tightness of the blockade which is keeping the Japanese from use of their rich conquered East Indies empire.

Enemy Shipping Pounded

In the latest strike, Saturday, heavy bombers with a fighter escort wrecked three escort vessels, seven freighters and six barges in a sweep of the China coastline.

Enemy shipping was severely pounded at Keelung, on the northeast coast of Formosa, and at Mako harbor in the Pescadores Islands to the west.

General MacArthur, announcing continued [illegible] on the many Philippine ground fronts, reported that 6,495 additional Japanese dead had been counted and 179 prisoners taken in the last week.

This brought the total enemy dead for the entire Philippines campaign to approximately 316,000, against American casualties—dead, wounded and missing—of around 30,000.

Land Escape Routes Cut

On Luzon Island, 14th Army Corps infantrymen captured Tayabas town and Lucban to gain control of the main road network in Tayabas province, south of Manila. This effectively cut all land escape routes for the enemy in the Bicol Peninsula, Luzon's long southeastern "tail" on which the invaded port of Legaspi is located.

Santa Maria and other towns in the Santa Maria Valley of central Luzon were liberated by the 11th Corps, while the 158th Regimental Combat team met only small-arms fire as it advanced in Albay province, at the southern end of Luzon.

In the central Philippines, 13th Air Force planes ravaged Japanese positions in the hills on Negros and Cebu in support of foot troops, destroying 50 trucks, 7 gun emplacements, 3 supply dumps and 5 barges.

Davao Heavily Bombed

Heavy bombers unloaded 130 tons of bombs on enemy positions at Davao, Eastern Mindanao.

America's war hold on the Philippines tightened today as southwestern Mindanao became a mopup operation and 40th Division troops were in possession of two additional airfields on Negros Island after an advance of 30 miles.

Formosa continued to occupy a high place on the air forces' neutralization list. Its Kiirun shipping base was blasted with 114 tons of bombs. At Kowloon, prewar British crown colony, other planes spilled 87 tons of bombs on the Hong Kong dock area.

No checkoff of Kiirun damage was available because of undercast, but at Kowloon fires were set in an electric power plant and a sizable building in the supply sector. In addition, a tanker in Hong Kong harbor was hit dircetly, as was the adjacent Kaitan airdrome.

War Rhythm Speeded

South China Sea traffic of the Japanese was attacked by planes which severely damaged a 3,000-ton freighter and several smaller cargo vessels. East of Formosa two small ships were sent to the bottom.

The general rhythm of the war in the Southwest Pacific was accelerated as medium bombers roared down on a Japanese light cruiser in Soemba Strait, General MacArthur's Sunday communiqué said the warship was sunk or badly damaged.

MacArthur said remnants of the Japanese Zamboanga forces had fled to the mountains north of Moroc.

Cleanup action against the Japanese in the Wewak sector of New Guinea continued and MacArthur reported Australian ground forces have killed 790 Japanese troops there. An additional 510 Nipponese were killed in New Britain and Bougainville.

JAPANESE LINES TIGHTEN AS YANKS APPROACH NAHA

Marines Continue Rapid Advance Against Light Opposition.

AIRDROME PERILED

American Fighter Pilots Are Using Two Captured Air Bases on Okinawa.

GUAM, Monday, April 9—(AP) Japanese on Okinawa, only 325 miles south of their homeland, now are offering American Doughboys the [illegible] of resistance, including round-the-clock artillery fire, but 24th Army corps infantrymen advanced both along the west coast toward the capital city of Naha and inland toward important Yonabaru airdrome yesterday.

Marines, moving northward from captured Yontan and Katena airfields several miles north of the doughboys, continued their rapid advance against "negligible resistance," Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced in today's communique. Marine gains ranged yards westward along the Motobu peninsula.

Planes Use Airfields

Fighter pilots of the Second Marine aircraft wing already have begun operating from Katena and Yontan fields, Nimitz added. Maj. Gen. F. P. Mulcahy, USMC, in tactical command of Marine aerial operations, has established headquarters ashore.

Nimitz's communique, covering action from Saturday noon through Sunday night, said Japanese resisted stubbornly every move by the 24th corps Doughboys under Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge.

The enemy was entrenched in well-emplaced pillboxes.

Despite heavy artillery blasting day and night and murderous machinegun and rifle fire at close range, the soldiers captured two villages and advanced 200 yards inland toward Yonabaru airfield on the east coast on Nakagusuku bay, and 400 yards down the west coast toward the capital city of Naha, population 66,000.

These advances presumably put the infantry within four [illegible] Naha and about a mile fr[illegible] baru town and airfield.

The battle for southern [illegible] developed into a full-scal[illegible] ment. American carrie[illegible] ships' heavy guns and [illegible] heavy artillery supported soldiers. Pilots were rocketing and strafing as well as bombing enemy strong points.

Jap Airplanes Attack

The Japanese, too, threw aircraft into the fight but their small aerial attacks probably did little damage. Four enemy pilots appeared over Okinawa Saturday and all were shot down.

Nine more enemy planes were destroyed Sunday.

Motobu peninsula, the Marine sector, is about 10 miles long with about 50 square miles of territory. So far as is known here, there is little of importance there. The terrain is rugged.

Approximately 30,000 civilians have been taken into protective custody of the American government.

Carrier aircraft, continuing their protective support, attacked shipping and shore installations on islands of the Amami group, at Kinawa's northwest tip, firing a small cargo ship and destroying a lugger.

While admitting the loss of five warships, the Japanese claimed Nipponese air and surface units sank 10 American warships and five transports and damaged 13 men-of-war and seven transports.

Admiral Nimitz disclosed that three American destroyers were sunk and other fleet units damaged when the Japanese made determined attacks against the invasion fleet off Okinawa.

Meanwhile Japanese Imperial headquarters admitted loss of one battleship, a cruiser and three destroyers in the ill-fated attempt of Nippon fleet remnants to reach the Yank Okinawa invasion armada last Saturday. This action followed by one day the Japanese air attack on the U. S. fleet at Okinawa.

Japs Lose Battleship

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz earlier announced that Yank carrier fliers intercepted the fleet 50 miles southwest of Kyushu, southernmost of Japan's main islands. He said the Japanese lost the 45,000-ton super-battleship Yamato, two cruisers, three destroyers and 417 planes.

ner, Jr.'s 10th Army, now hold roughly one-quarter of Okinawa's 485 bomb and artillery blasted square miles after a week of virtually unopposed advances.

In the south the 7th division ran into prepared Japanese positions and its advance was slowed to a crawl. The Americans held the entire center of the island with the Marines throwing a tight four-mile long line from Nago (Okaneku) on the west coast to Oro bay on the east.

The southern units held a jagged line about four and a half miles long from Uchitomari on the west to Tsuwa on the east coast while forces on the west coast were within two miles of Machinato airfield and four miles from Naha, the island's capital city. The 7th division on the east coast is about one and a half miles from the Yonabaru airstrip.

The first American wounded from Okinawa began arriving at Guam by plane and ship but their numbers were small as compared with the flow of wounded that followed the first week of the bloody Marine battling on Iwo Jima.

Yank Mine Sweeper Can Really Take It

Guam, Monday, April 9 (AP)—The skipper of a little United States mine sweeper reported by radio to the flagship during heavy Japanese air attacks on the Okinawa amphibious force Friday:

"We have been hit twice in attacks by two aircraft, but we splashed the third. Six men wounded in action."

But the mine sweeper wasn't calling for help. The skipper next reported:

"We now are taking a damaged destroyer in tow."

VENEZUELA EXTENDS HAND TO ARGENTINA

CARACAS, Venezuela, April 8—(AP) Venezuela announced tonight it had resumed diplomatic relations with Argentina.

This Latin American republic thus became the first to welcome the Buenos Aires government back into the American family of nations as a war ally.

(Authoritative sources in Washington said earlier today that 16 American republics were scheduled to establish diplomatic relations with Argentina simultaneously tomorrow as a result of Buenos Aires' declaration of war against Germany and Japan.)

JAPS ATTACK FLEET, LOSE 360 PLANES

Land-Based Warplanes Are Driven Off, Three U. S. Destroyers Sunk.

ABOARD ADMIRAL TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, Ryukyus, April 7—(Via Navy Radio)—(Delayed)—(AP) The Japanese air force made its most spirited land-based attack of the war upon American ships yesterday — at a cost of more than 360 airplanes—in an effort to open the way for the Nipponese fleet to attack the American invasion armada off Okinawa.

The attack failed despite the sinking of three American destroyers and the damaging of several other craft, and early today American carrier planes attacked the advancing enemy fleet force south of Kyushu, sinking the [illegible]-battleship Yamato, two c[illegible] and three destroyers. The [illegible] der of the enemy force ret[illegible]

"T[illegible] was the strongest based air attack the Japanese have made on our ships — much heavier than during the Philippines campaign — but considering our slight losses in planes and ships and the destruction of their naval units and planes—it was a terrific beating for them," said a member of Vice Adm. Richmond Kelly Turner's staff.

About seven enemy seaplanes went down within sight of Turner's flagship during the great air battle, from 3 p.m. to darkness last night (about 2 a.m. to 7 a.m. Saturday, Eastern War Time), on one of them crashing only 200 yards off the stern and in the center of a cluster of small craft without damaging anything.

The air battle was the first of any kind on a large scale in the Okinawa area although the invasion force leaders expected such action on invasion day and were pleasantly surprised at the light aerial opposition theretofore.

From the flying bridge of this ship it was a thrilling show. Japanese planes zoomed out of the overcast with bombs and torpedoes into such terrific cones of anti-aircraft fire that none had a chance of completing its run across this close-packed amphibious fleet.

Most dramatic was a Nipponese dive-bomber, which in a long, straight glide appeared to be coming right at Turner's ship, the ship's guns were spouting a terrific stream of bullets straight into the oncoming aircraft.

The pilot couldn't live long in that fire and he obviously was helpless as the plane swerved, plunging toward a nearby ship.

"God! Don't let it hit that ship, don't let it," one seaman shouted.

The plane barely passed over the bow of the ship, caught a wing in the water and plunged into the sea, just missing an LCI (landing craft infantry) and several small craft. A huge sheet of flame marked its destruction.

Small craft raced to the point where the plane went down, 200 yards from this ship, but failed to find any trace of wreckage.

The first two planes downed in this area splashed into the water shortly after 3 P.M. A half hour later one crashed into a reef and exploded.

Battleship Bags Plane

Then minutes later a battleship brought down another on the outward fringe of the amphibious fleet. A few minutes later another spun into the beach, hitting an amphibious craft and setting it afire.

At least one crashed on Okinawa north of the American line. But most of the attacks centered against the screening destroyers, particularly those to the northwest of Okinawa's Bolo Point.

Their obvious intent was to wipe out the destroyers which could block any enemy fleet intrusion.

"If this is the best they can do we had better go right on to Japan," said Admiral Turner. "Apparently we've got more ships than they have planes."

Crash Near Hospital Ship

Another Japanese plane crashed flames just short of a hospital ship, its burning debris almost hitting that vessel of mercy, which promptly pulled out of the area with unashamed haste.

On the northern horizon smoke from several damaged destroyers could be seen.

The story of those destroyers was one of extreme heroism.

One destroyer, attacked by eight to ten planes, shot down the first two before taking a hit. Then two more planes came in. An LCS drew alongside the burning warship to remove survivors and shot down the next attacking plane.

Another destroyer came to the rescue and was struck three times in six attacks.

Japan 'Coerced To Strike At Pearl Harbor,' Suzuki Says

San Francisco, April 8 (AP)—Japan was "coerced to strike at America at Pearl Harbor," Nippon's new Premier, Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki said today.

Suzuki, whose words were broadcast, also declared Japan won a spiritual victory on Iwo Jima.

"For instance," he was quoted in predicting ultimate victory, "we lost Iwo Jima, but I still believe we won the battle of Iwo Jima when I think of the spiritual blow we dealt the enemy on that island."

Doesn't Say Who Coerced

He was quoted as saying "the present situation was fully foreseen when we were coerced to strike at America at Pearl Harbor." There was no explanation of how or by whom Japan was coerced.

Suzuki told the Japanese that their country was in a "momentous crisis" and that war developments "do not warrant optimism.

As the Premier appealed to the people to devote their all to "successful consummation of the war," the chief of police of Japan's Hokkaido area warned that any Japanese listening to the "voice of America" propaganda broadcasts from the Saipan radio station could expect to be "questioned" and "kept strictly under control."

The Premier, after visiting two national shrines with his war and navy ministers to offer "prayers for sure victory," took over his official residence.

Reform At Home Urged

The Japanese agency Domei said the Premier promised "reform" on the home front and declared "there is no excuse for us as subjects of his majesty, the Emperor, to permit the enemy to soil any part of our country."

Suzuki appealed to the people to "lay aside any and all differences of the past, and throw their total efforts into the war. Administrative reforms, he said, will "enable all people, young and old, to participate directly in the war with their burning patriotic spirit to break through the momentous crisis confronting the Japanese."

Togo Returns To Foreign Office

He added he was "ready to die in leading the nation in carrying on the war and crushing the enemy."

Tokyo radio confirmed late Saturday night that Shigenori Togo, present Foreign Minister who aided in framing the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact which has been abrogated by Moscow, had taken the Foreign Portfolio in Nippon's third War Cabinet. Togo also became Minister of Greater East Asia Affairs.

Tokyo said that Naoto Kohiyama, president of the South Manchuria Railway, will become Minister of Transportation and communications. Earlier Tokyo broadcasts said that ministry would be handled by Administrator Teijiro Toyoda in addition to his munitions fortfolio.

On the heels of organization of the new Cabinet the war ministry shook up the high command of the Army and the air force.

Tokyo Tells of "Offensive"

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8 (AP)—The Tokyo radio declared that the battle around Okinawa had become Nipponese "offensive" and made the unconfirmed claim that 245 "enemy" ships have been sunk or damaged in the area since March 23.

B-29s Strike at Airfie On South Tip of Kyu

Seek to Halt Foe's Air Forc Toward Okinawa

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP).—Apparently seeking to neutralize Japanese aerial operations southward toward Okinawa, Superfortresses bombed important airfields at Kanoya and Kanoya East on the southernmost tip of the Japanese home islands of Kyushu today, the War Department said in a communique. The attack was made through clouds and results were not observed.

Little anti-aircraft fire and no fighter opposition was encountered by the raiding planes. One plane was reported missing, however.

The B-29's flew from bases of the 21st Bomber Command in the Marianas Islands. The target area probably was the base for the Japanese aerial force which battled last week with American naval forces north of the invaded Ryukyu Islands.

Three Marines Who Raised Flag In Iwo Jima Are Killed by Japs

By Technical Sergeant Keyes Beech, a Marine Corps combat correspondent, who was with the 28th regiment, Fifth Marine division, on Iwo Jima. Distributed by The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The fate and the identity of the six men in photographer Joe Rosenthal's historic picture of the flag raising on Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima was revealed upon the arrival here of Marine Private First Class Rene A. Gagnon, 20, of Manchester, N. H.

3 Marines Dead, 1 Wounded

Returned to report to Marine Corps Headquarters, Gagnon disclosed that three of the Marines in the picture are dead and that a Navy hospital corpsman, also pictured, has been wounded.

The survivors, Gagnon, said, are himself and Marine Private First Class Ira Hamilton Hayes, 22, of Bapchule, Ariz.

As identified by Gagnon, the men in the picture are, reading from left to right:

A Marine, killed in action, whose name cannot be revealed until next of kin are notified of his death; Private First Class Hayes, with slung rifle; Marine Sergeant Michael Strank, 24, of Conemaugh, Pa., who is barely visible beside Hayes, dead; Navy Pharmacist's Mate Second Class John H. Bradley, 21, of Appleton, Wisc., wounded; Private First Class Gagnon, whose helmet is barely visible beside Bradley, and Marine Sergeant Henry O. Hansen, 24, of Somerville, Mass., at foot of pole, dead.

All of the Marines were members of "E" company, Second Battalion, 28th Marines, the regiment which conquered Mount Suribachi after four days of savage fighting. Bradley was attached to "E" company as a corpsman.

All of the casualties among the six men occurred after their regiment had moved to the northern Iwo front.

"It makes you feel kind of strange to know that out of those six fellows, three of them are dead," Gagnon said. "They were my buddies.

Flag Looked Swell

"It was a big flag and looked swell. For a flagpole we had to use a piece of Jap pipe. After the flag went up and while we were standing there our lieutenant said to hurry up, because there was plenty of work to do.

"There was, too," said Gagnon, "because there were still Japs around the place."

The lieutenant to whom Gagnon referred was First Lieutenant Harold G. Schrier, 29, of Richmond, Mo., who led a patrol to the top of Suribachi on the morning of February 23.

It was Schrier, Platoon Sergeant Ernest I. Thomas of Tallahassee, Fla., and Hansen who raised the first and smaller flag on Suribachi. Thomas was also killed.

Saber-Rattlers Absent From Suzuki Cabinet

Washington, April 8 (AP)—Experts on Japan here hesitate to put a definite interpretation on the complete absence of saber-rattlers in the new Japanese Cabinet.

The possibility that the Suzuki Government may have been formed with peace definitely in mind cannot be disregarded, it is held here, but officials concerned with Japanese affairs are proceeding upon what they consider a more likely theory—that the Suzuki Government, sparked by munitions-expert Toyoda, intends to fight on.

There is some speculation that the die-hard militarists may have withdrawn more or less under their own power to move over to the Asiatic mainland and make ready for the main fight there. Most of them came from the Kwantung Army in Manchuria to power at home.

Toyoda Seen as the Strong Ma

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—[illegible] there is a strong man in the new Japanese Cabinet, it is Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, the new Minister of Munitions, in the opinion of Washington experts on Japan. It is their corollary belief that the Government of Premier Suzuki is primarily a home-defense Cabinet, in contrast to the defense-abroad policy of the Koiso Government.

At 59 Toyoda is a leading figure in Japanese industry. He is president of the Japan Steel Works, and is married into the powerful Mitsui industrial family.

'Birmingham' Back in Action After Battle Catastrophe

WASHINGTON, April 8 — (AP) The U. S. Cruiser Birmingham is back in action, less than six months after a battle catastrophe that killed 229 of her officers and crewmen and injured 420 more.

In one deadly moment last Oct. 24, the Navy related, a magazine explosion in the nearby aircraft carrier Princeton caused the 649 casualties and riddled the Birmingham's top structures. Both ships were supporting General MacArthur's Leyte landings in the Philippines.

Tried to Save Princeton

Sinking of the Princeton, with casualties described as light, was reported by the Navy some time ago. The Birmingham was engaged in trying to save the damaged and burning carrier when the Princeton blew up.

A single Japanese plane dived out of the overcast and dropped a bomb in the center of the Princeton's flight deck. Her commanding officer, Capt. William Houck Buracker of Winchester, Mass., ordered her out of formation to fight the ensuing fire. Twenty minutes later there were two internal explosions.

The order was given to abandon ship and other vessels picked up hundreds of her men from the water.

The Birmingham, commanded by Capt. Thomas Browning Inglis of Houghton Lake, Mich., reinforced other ships at the scene for the salvage operation.

To obtain the maximum use of the Birmingham's fire-fighting equipment, Captain Inglis ordered the Birmingham close to windward of the Princeton.

After a half-hour, only a small fire was burning aft. Then the Birmingham had to move away to help repel air attackers.

It was an hour before the enemy planes were turned back and the Birmingham again could approach the Princeton. The vessels were only 50 feet apart when the Princeton's magazine went up. Men on the other ships saw the stricken vessels leap apart from the force of the blast. Orange flames enveloped the Princeton.

Scene of Death and Agony

The topside structures of the Birmingham were sprayed with torn fragments from the Princeton. Her decks were a scene of wholesale death and agony.

"Blood ran so freely sand had to be scattered for safe walking," the Navy reported.

Captain Inglis praised Lt. James H. Macart, South Orange, N. J., the only surviving medical officer aboard, for organizing aid for the wounded.

Captain Inglis, who suffered severe burns and a broken arm, remained on duty until he began to lose consciousness and was forced to turn over command to the executive officer. Inglis is now recovering from his injuries at the Naval Medical center, Bethesda, Md.

The Birmingham was repaired and modernized at the Mare island, Calif., Navy yard and she has returned to service.

U.S. FLYERS STRAFE ALLIED PRISONERS

Captives In Reich Shot At In Error, General Reveals

Washington, April 8 (AP)—Masses of migrating war prisoners in Germany occasionally have been strafed in mistake by American planes, a War Department spokesman said last night.

"It is hard to understand how this happens, as our pilots are briefed about prisoner of war movements," Brig. Gen. B. M. Bryan, assistant provost marshal, told a meeting of prisoners' next of kin.

"But the truth is that things are changing so fast over there that it is impossible to brief the pilots accurately.

"The pilots' instructions are to disrupt transportation and strafe every German vehicle they can on the roads."

Describes Mass Movements

General Bryan described three great mass movements of prisoners, forced by their captors to march westward because of the Russian advance.

Information obtained from Swiss sources, he said, showed the largest of the three was a migration of about 800,000 prisoners, including some 25,000 Americans, up the Danube past embattled Vienna.

These figures are so large, General Bryan said, that experts in the provost marshal general's office find them hard to believe.

"These are the groups that have been strafed by our own planes," he said.

"We heard of one group of prisoners marching along with a ten-foot American flag displayed so our pilots flying low would see who they were. You have to admire the resourcefulness of men who could conceal a flag that size in a prison camp for eventual use in such a pinch."

Captives Moved Northward

General Bryan said about 100,000 prisoners of war, including 15,000 Americans, are moving along the northern German coast into the area of Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck. He added that a third column of 60,000 prisoners, of whom 10,000 are Americans, is moving west in a line south of Berlin.

Later he told newsmen that Swiss reports did not mention the dislocation of prisoners by the great Anglo-American advances from the Rhine bridgeheads, but he agreed that probably 1,000,000 prisoners have been forced to march.

He told of near-starvation rations, disease and hardships confronting the prisoners.

Basil O'Connor to Tour Pacific

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—The American Red Cross said today its chairman, Basil O'Conner, will make a six-weeks inspection tour of Red Cross installations in the central and southwest Pacific shortly. Mr. O'Connor will leave later this month. He previously has visited Red Cross facilities in England, France and Italy.

Secret Gyroscopic Sight For U.S. Fleet Revealed

New York, April 8 (AP)—The Sperry Corporation said today, with Navy approval, that a secret gyroscopic sight it developed early in the war has "made our fleet relatively invulnerable to attack from aircraft."

Known as the Mark 14 Gyro Gunsight and used on anti-aircraft gun mounts, it enabled the Battleship South Dakota to shoot down 32 Japanese planes before they could strike in her first major engagement in 1942, the corporation said.

NAZI GENERAL BURIED IN U.S.

Laid To Rest In Mississippi With Military Honors

Como, Miss., April 8 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Hans von Schubert was buried today with full military honors in the Como prisoner-of-war camp cemetery, 4,000 miles from the Germany for which he fought in two wars.

The American Army and his captive countrymen gave the 52-year-old Prussian officer, who died Wednesday of a brain ailment in Kennedy General Hospital at Memphis, last rites befitting his rank.

Nazi Salute Given

Before the funeral began, the body of General von Schubert, who was captured in France last fall, had lain in state in the prison stockade chapel, alternate squads of German officers serving as guards of honor.

From the chapel, the general's swastika-draped coffin was borne to the stockade gate by four officers. The procession passed between two lines of prisoners, each of whom gave the Nazi salute as the coffin passed.

Iron Cross To Mark Grave

Heading the cortege were three drummers, beating a muffled roll, and a muted sixteen-piece band headed by a leader in the uniform of the German Luftwaffe. In front of the coffin marched a tall German officer who carried a wood-fashioned German iron cross on which was lettered General von Schubert's name. The cross was to mark his grave.

At the compound gate, the coffin was placed in a hearse, behind which the procession marched.

STIMSON FAVORS MERGING OF ARMY, NAVY AFTER WAR

WASHINGTON, April 8—(AP) The move for postwar merger of the Army and Navy gathered new impetus today with its endorsement by Secretary of War Stimson.

In a letter approved by the Budget bureau, Stimson wrote Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, that "the War department strongly favors the establishment of a single department of the armed forces and recommends the enactment of measures which will accomplish this objective in an orderly manner."

Hill is author of legislation which would set up such a department, with a secretary of the armed forces as its head. Provision would be made for undersecretaries of Army, Navy, Air and other activities, and for establishing the United States chiefs of staff.

Hill told reporters in making public Stimson's letter that he intends to ask the Senate Military committee soon to conduct hearings on the measure.

"We ought to have all of our Army, Navy and Marine activities coordinated," he said, "and I believe this is the best way to accomplish that result."

In his letter, Stimson called attention to the fact that the joint chiefs of staff had appointed a special Army-Navy committee to study postwar reorganization of the armed forces, which already has interviewed Army and Navy commanders in the field.

"The committee is now in the process of preparing its report, which it is hoped will be submitted to the War department relatively soon," Stimson said. "When this report has been received and given thorough study, the War department will be in a position to make a complete report on the proposed legislation."

Recently James F. Byrnes, the retiring War Mobilizer, asked Congress to give early consideration to merging the Army, Navy and Air Forces into a single department of national defense after the war. He said that the present division of authority has meant waste and duplication of authority.

SOLDIER AWARDED TOP U.S. MEDAL

Kentuckian, 22, Shot 58 Nazis And Saved Buddies

Washington, April 8 (AP)—Infantryman Wilbur K. Ross, who cut down a batch of Hitler's Elite troops "like a combine going through a wheat field," is going to get the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The nation's highest award will be presented to the former farm boy from Strunk, Ky., in the European theater, where he still is fighting.

Ross, a private first class, turned back nine counterattacks by a company of Elite German mountain troops, killing or wounding at least 58 of the enemy in the process and saving the remnants of his own company from destruction.

Had Light Machine Gun

Ross's company in the 30th Regiment of the 7th Army's 3d Infantry Division had attacked a German hillside position near St. Jacques, France, last October 30. Of 88 men who stormed the heavily defended position only 33 survived and they dug in 200 yards from the enemy. The Germans launched a series of counterattacks.

Ross moved his light machine gun out in advance of the American lines. Ammunition for the riflemen supporting Ross ran low. The Nazis attacked and Ross opened up.

Spot Seemed On Fire

One of Ross's companions who likened the feat to wheat mowing, said that in less than a minute he saw 50 Germans fall dead or wounded around Ross's machine gun. His spot seemed to be on fire because of the constant grenade explosions and sparks from bullets striking rocks about him. Enemy bullets bounced off the tripod of his gun. The Germans broke after their last attack. Ross was untouched.

Ross, 22 years old, worked on farms near Stearns shortly before he entered the Army in October, 1942.

Curb Is Urged On Peace-Time News Censors

Speakers at Forum Agree Free Press Is Essential to Check on War Makers

PHILADELPHIA, April 8 (AP).—Unanimous agreement that there must not, and need not, be censorship of the press in peace time, was reached today in an open forum on "Free News in a Free World" over radio station WIP.

Claude A. Jagger, of New York, assistant general manager of The Associated Press; Melvin K. Whiteleather, "The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin," war correspondent; Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University and Dr. Reese James, director of journalism at the University of Pennsylvania, participated in the forum.

Two suggestions for correction of censorship abuses in the post-war period were made by Mr. Jagger and Dr. Johnson. The United Nations organization should set up a bureau, Mr. Jagger said, which would see that news men are given free access to all news sources in all countries. Any limitations placed upon the reporters would be indicative that the country was preparing for war, Mr. Jagger said.

Dr. Johnson suggested establishment of a court of appeals with greater authority than the government of countries to which reporters are sent. Reporters would make complaints to this board when news channels were blocked.

Mr. Whiteleather said correspondents in foreign fields would welcome such plans if put into effect after the war. All speakers agreed these plans would work automatically toward more careful selection of staff personnel in the field.

Mr. Jagger said he hoped the United Nations would take definite action on plans proposed in 1919 at Versailles by Kent Cooper, general manager of The Associated Press, to provide for a world-wide free press with communication channels adequate to all reporters and freely available without discrimination.

"If channels of information are kept open and free, the systematic poisoning that warmakers require becames impossible, because their lies are quickly shown up and discredited," Mr. Jagger said.

Even in our country, newspapers and press associations must be ever vigilant so that military censors do not carry their authority too far into the political field, said Mr. Jagger.

"We are also working steadily to see that bad news is not withheld too long from the American public," he added.

REPORT JAPS PLANNED TO DESTROY MANILA

NEW YORK, April 8—(AP) Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo said today he would place before Congress on April 17 documentary proof that orders to destroy Manila and kill its inhabitants were sent direct from Tokyo to the Japanese army.

Romulo, U. S. resident commissioner of the Philippines, told a communion breakfast of the Catholic institute of the press:

"On that day I will have the opportunity to indict the Japanese through the means of affidavits and photographs which will establish the fact that orders to destroy Manila and kill its inhabitants came from Tokyo. And most of this proof was taken from dead Japanese officers."

After Romulo's talk a plaque was awarded to Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer who took the famed picture of U. S. Marines raising the American flag on Mt. Suribachi on Iwo Jima.

COL. HOWSE NAMED TO SURPLUS BOARD

WASHINGTON, April 8—(AP) Appointment of Col. Alfred E. Howse, of Wichita, Kan., as administrator of the Surplus Property board was announced today by Chairman Guy M. Gillette.

He replaces Mason Britton, who resigned April 1 to undertake a confidential government assignment.

Gillette said that Howse's "brilliant army career" and along civilian experience in large-scale merchandising and distribution programs "eminently qualifies him" for the assignment as administrator.

Howse is chairman of the Wichita Wholesale Furniture company, a partner in the Howse investment companies, and president of the Forest Hills companies.

Joining the War department in a civilian capacity in 1941, Howse was called to active duty shortly after the war broke out. At Wright Field, Dayton, he served as executive for procurement on the staff of Lt. Gen. George E. Kenny, then commanding general of the materiel command. In this capacity he organized and developed the Army Air forces' national procurement program.

Howse was transferred to the south Pacific area in the spring of 1943, where he became acting chief of staff for the 13th Air Force supply.

Injuries sustained in that area resulted in his retirement from the Army last February, after he had served for a year as regional representative of the Army Air forces at San Francisco.

COAL CONTRACT CHANCES LESS

Prospects For Pact In 24 Hours Called Diminished

Washington, April 8 (AP)—Prospects of reaching a soft coal miners' contract within 24 hours cooled perceptibly tonight.

A note of skepticism came from the producers' side about the immediate chances of agreement following a series of week-end meetings between subcommittees of miners and operators.

The groups were named Saturday to discuss certain details of demands of John L. Lewis, president of the mine workers. Both sides had joined in a report Saturday to the War Labor Board predicting agreement by tomorrow night.

$1.25 Pay Raise Indicated

This forecast was understood to represent provision of $1.25 more a day for the miners, and to exclude Lewis's 10-cents-a-ton royalty demand. Subcommittees will report tomorrow to the joint conference on program of their talks on the proposed contract.

The operators, after more than 24 hours of intermittent talks with the small mine workers' committees, said Lewis had definitely stiffened in his attitude since the negotiators, at his behest, bypassed the WLB for the time being.

One operator source said that unless there is some relaxation of union demands, the issues will have to be decided by the WLB after a public hearing of the evidence, after all.

Chances Believed Less

The over-all chances of a mutual agreement, these operators feel, are much less tonight than was indicated by the Saturday message to the War Labor Board. Miner representatives could not be reached at once for comment.

The official attitude of optimism of the message itself was not shared at the time, however, by all of those connected with the five weeks' negotiations.

The cost of the $1.25 proposal, some operator sources said, would amount to $150,000,000 and tack 25 cents onto the cost of a ton of coal. A price increase would be imperative, they said.

Settlement Foreseen

Nevertheless, Lewis, United Mine Workers president, and Ezra Van Horn, conference chairman and a Cleveland operator, concurred that the controversial points, at least, could be settled in principle by tomorrow night.

The sudden turn of events was brought about by Lewis Saturday. He insisted on keeping the negotiations alive when the operators wanted to drop them and send the whole dispute to the War Labor Board for settlement.

It was not disclosed what part, if any, had been played by the wave of work stoppages, particularly in mines producing for steel furnaces, but Lewis was believed to have become impatient as the wildcat strikes spread and reached a critical stage at the week end.

Callan, President-Defamer, Plans Supreme Court Appeal

New York, April 8 (AP)—Hugh Callan, 39, former soldier who lost his appeal from a ten-year prison sentence imposed for making uncomplimentary remarks about the President, said today he would take a pauper's oath and attempt to have his conviction reviewed by the Supreme Court.

At a room he rents in a private home in the Bronx, Callan said he was "unable to understand" a statement by the United States District Attorney's office at Atlanta, yesterday that his "whereabouts are unknown."

"My Address Is Registered"

"My address is registered on the appeal papers in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, and here I am at that address," he said. "I don't know when the FBI will come for me, but when they do I am going to try to have the court appoint counsel for me to appeal to the Supreme Court."

Callan was convicted by a military court-martial at Camp Blanding, Fla., in May, 1942, of sedition and speaking disrespectfully of the President before other inductees at Camp Upton, L.I., where he was inducted. He was given a twenty-year sentence, which later was reduced by President Roosevelt to ten.

Held He Hadn't Taken Oath

The court record said his remarks included statements that "the President and his capitalistic mongers" were enslaving the world and that Japan and Germany were justified in their war against the United States.

He has been at liberty on his own recognizance since he was granted a writ of habeas corpus last September by a Federal court at Atlanta, which held he had not taken the oath at the time of the alleged remarks and thus was not actually inducted into the Army.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans set aside the writ Friday and ordered Callan to prison.

Callan said he would remain at his Bronx address until taken into custody.

LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' U.S.FIRST ARMY PUSH TO THE EAST COMPLETELY COLLAPSED ENEMY LINES ALONG THE WESER--LAST MAJOR BARRIER BEFORE BERLIN EXCEPT FOR THE ELBE--AND INFANTRY ADVANCES WERE LIMITED TO THE SPEED WITH WHICH TROOPS COULD MARCH WITH FULL PACKS UNDER THE HOT SUN.

TROOPS AFTER OVERRUNNING GOETTINGEN PUSHED ON TWO MILES BEYOND WITHOUT CONTACTING THE ENEMY IN FORCE.

BEFORE GOETTINGEN, THEY CAPTURED AN AIRFIELD WITH TWO PLANES, AND THEN CROSSED THE LEINE RIVER OVER A BRIDGE THE GERMANS FAILED TO BLOW. THEY RAN INTO NO ARTILLERY FIRE, THE ENEMY APPARENTLY PULLING BACK HIS FIELD GUNS FOR A FINAL STAND FARTHER EAST.

APR 9 1945

A49

FIFTEEN MILES SOUTHWEST OF GOETTINGEN, THE GERMANS FINALLY WERE DRIVEN FROM MUENDEN AND INFANTRY SMASHED THE REST OF THE WAY THROUGH THE HESSIAN GAP--ANCIENT ROUTE OF CONQUEST USED BY NAPOLEON.

IN ITS OWN BATTLE TO LIQUIDATE THE RUHR POCKET, THE FIRST ARMY RAN UP AGAINST HARD RESISTANCE ONLY IN THE AREA OF THE FALLEN BASTION OF SIEGEN, ADVANCING THREE TO FOUR MILES THROUGH THE HILLS FROM BOTH SOUTH AND EAST AND FLUSHING HUNDREDS OF PRISONERS.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ISSUED FEW DETAILS ON THE AIRBORNE OPERATION IN HOLLAND, BUT THE COMBINED AIRBORNE-CANADIAN FIRST ARMY OPERATION WAS SWIFTLY SEALING OFF THE ROBOT BOMB COAST AND CUTTING OFF ANY ESCAPE FROM AMSTERDAM, ROTTERDAM AND THE HAGUE EXCEPT BY WATER.

ONE CANADIAN ARMORED COLUMN, RACING FOR A JUNCTION WITH THE AIRBORNE FORCES, ~~ENTERED HAALWEIDE ONLY 14 MILES~~ 11 3/4 MILE EAST OF THE ZUIDER ZEE AND ~~SIX AND A HALF MILES~~ FROM MEPPEL, THROUGH WHICH PASSES THE LAST GOOD ROAD AND RAILWAY ROUTE OF RETREAT FROM HOLLAND'S BIG PORTS AND CITIES.

THIS ROUTE CURVES NORTHEASTWARD FROM MEPPEL AND PASSES FOUR AND A HALF MILES NORTH OF HAALWEIDE.

A JUNCTION WITH THE AIRBORNE FORCES WAS EXPECTED AT ANY TIME.

IT WAS THE JOB OF THE SKY-TROOPERS TO SEIZE THE BRIDGES OVER THE COUNTLESS STREAMS AND CANALS THAT MAKE HOLLAND'S FLATLANDS ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST DIFFICULT BATTLEFIELDS.

THE ENEMY WAS STILL HOLDING ON BOTH FLANKS, HOWEVER.

GEN.H.D.G.CRERAR'S CANADIAN FORCES WERE REPULSED IN AN ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE EMS RIVER ON THE EAST FLANK AT MEPPEL.

ON THE WEST FLANK ZUTPHEN, A KEY TRAFFIC CENTER, WAS CAPTURED AFTER FOUR DAYS OF BITTER FIGHTING BUT CANADIANS WERE HELD OFF MORE THAN A MILE FROM A SECOND HIGHWAY CENTER AT DEVENTER, EIGHT MILES TO THE NORTH.

THE GERMANS WERE MAKING THEIR STAND ON THE ISSEL RIVER AND WERE HURRIEDLY REINFORCING TWO WATER FLOOD LINES FARTHER WEST, WHERE THE DUTCH TRIED TO STAND AGAINST THE BLITZKRIEG IN 1940.

THESE PREPARATIONS INDICATED THAT FIELD MARSHAL JOHANNES BLASKOWITZ'S TWO ARMIES IN NORTHWESTERN HOLLAND HAD NO INTENTION OF FLEEING AND MEANT TO FIGHT TO THE LAST.

THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY WAS DRIVING ON THE BIG U-BOAT BASE OF BREMEN FROM THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST WITH VANGUARDS ONLY SEVEN MILES AWAY.

ONE COLUMN OF THE SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION CAPTURED SYKE, 11 MILES SOUTH OF THE PORT CITY, AND RACED ON NORTH. ANOTHER SEVENTH ARMORED FORCE WAS PUSHING UP FROM THE SOUTHWEST.

THE GERMANS WERE EXPECTED TO TRY TO DEFEND BREMEN WITH WHAT TROOPS THEY COULD SALVAGE FROM THE SOUTHWEST FIGHTING ZONE AND MARINE NAVAL TROOPS IN THE CITY ITSELF.

MEANWHILE, LT.GEN.MILES C.DEMPSEY'S EASTWARD DRIVE WHICH HAD ROLLED UP SEVEN MILES WEST OF HANNOVER APPEARED TO HAVE SHIFTED NORTH TOWARD HAMBURG.

HIS SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION ABRUPTLY TURNED UP ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF NEUSTADT, 15 MILES NORTHWEST OF HANNOVER AND 64 MILES FROM HAMBURG.

APR 9 1945

A50

GERMAN COMMENTATORS SAID THE BRITISH WERE BUILDING UP TREMENDOUS POWER TO CUT OFF DENMARK AS WELL AS SEIZE BREMEN AND HAMBURG.

THE BRITISH 11TH ARMORED DIVISION, AFTER CAPTURING A BIG SYNTHETIC OIL PLANT AT LOCCUM, 25 MILES WEST OF HANNOVER, ALSO TURNED NORTH AND ROLLED INTO REHBURG, 23 MILES WEST AND SLIGHTLY NORTH OF HANNOVER.

LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S AUDACIOUS MUNICH-BOUND PUSH RAN INTO HEAVY FIGHTING DEEP BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES IN THE AREA OF CRAILSHEIM, WHERE THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION TANGLED WITH GERMAN MACHINEGUNNERS, BAZOOKAS AND ANTI-TANK GUNS.

THE 14TH ARMORED DIVISION SWEPT 10 MILES INTO KRONUNGEN, FOUR MILES NORTHWEST OF SCHWEINFURT, AND WAS OUTFLANKING IT BY PLOWING INTO NEUSTADT, 19 MILES DUE NORTH OF THE CITY.

THE 42ND INFANTRY DIVISION WAS CLOSING IN FROM THE SOUTH. ONE FORCE SWEPT UP TO SCHWANFELD, NINE MILES SOUTH OF SCHWEINFURT, AND

30. 24 - 24601

ANOTHER CROSSED A LOOP IN THE RIVER MAIN AT ASTHEIM, 11 MILES SOUTH OF THE CITY.

ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY'S FRONT, THE GERMANS STILL HELD OUT IN HEILBRONN, 25 MILES NORTH OF STUTTGART.

LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S U.S.THIRD ARMY BATTLED GERMAN TANKS FOR THE SECOND SUCCESSIVE DAY IN THE AREA WEST OF MUEHLHAUSEN, KNOCKING OUT 10 MORE FOR A TWO-DAY TOTAL OF 50.

THE GERMANS WERE MASSING FORCES NORTH OF MUEHLHAUSEN, AND PILOTS REPORTED ROADS WEST OF WEIMAR FILLED WITH ENEMY TRAFFIC HEADING TOWARD THIS SECTOR.

THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION, HEADING STRAIGHT INTO THE FACE OF THESE FORCES, DROVE FIVE MILES NORTH INTO DINGELSTADT, 10 MILES NORTHWEST OF MUEHLHAUSEN.

BUT THE LIMITED SCOPE OF OPERATIONS INDICATED THAT PATTON'S ARMORED COLUMNS WERE BUILDING UP SUPPLIES BEFORE RESUMING BIG-SCALE OPERATIONS.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN HOLLAND, APRIL 8-(AP)-ALLIED AIRBORNE TROOPS LANDED IN NORTHEASTERN HOLLAND LAST NIGHT AND CANADIAN ARMORED FORCES ARE ADVANCING FROM THE COEVORDEN AREA TO EFFECT A LINKUP.

OTHER ARMORED UNITS HAVE SURGED NORTHEASTWARD TO WITHIN 15 MILES OF THE ZUIDER ZEE AND ONLY SEVEN FROM AEPPEL. THEY ARE ONLY FOUR AND A HALF MILES FROM THE ENEMY'S LAST ROAD AND RAILROAD ROUTES OUT OF WESTERN HOLLAND WHICH RUN FROM ZWOLLE THROUGH MEPPEL INTO NORTHEASTERN HOLLAND.

AIRBORNE TROOPS WERE LANDED OVER A WIDE AREA IN NORTHEAST HOLLAND AHEAD OF THE LINE FORMED BY THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY ADVANCE.

IN THIS AREA IS MUCH OF HOLLAND'S RECLAIMED GROUND, CUT INTO AND SLICED BY CANALS AND IRRIGATION DITCHES.

THE AIRBORNE LANDING AND THE ARMORED DRIVE TOWARD THE ZUIDER ZEE ENDANGERS A LARGE POCKET OF ENEMY TROOPS HOLDING OUT EAST OF THE ISSEL RIVER.

THE CANADIAN ARMOR THRUST INTO GERMANY WAS BEING HELD STUBBORNLY IN MEPPEN, ON THE WEST BANK OF THE EMS RIVER, WHERE THEY HAVE BEEN REPULSED IN ATTEMPTED ASSAULT CROSSINGS.

TO THE WEST THE ADVANCE TOWARD DEVENTER WAS CHECKED BY THE ENEMY 2,000 YARDS SOUTH OF THAT COMMUNICATIONS HUB. THE GERMANS WERE HOLDING STUBBORNLY IN ZUTPHEN AS FIGHTING FOR THIS TRAFFIC CENTER WENT INTO THE THIRD DAY.

THE SPEARHEAD CLOSEST TO THE ZUIDER ZEE IS IN HAALWEIDE, ALMOST DUE EAST OF MEPPEL. THIS THRUST, FOUR AND A HALF MILES FROM THE MAIN ARTERY LEADING OUT OF WESTERN HOLLAND, THREATENED TO CLOSE A LAND TRAP ON THE ENEMY TO THE WEST.

THE GERMANS HAVE MADE NO EFFORT TO WITHDRAW. THEY ARE IMPROVING TWO DEFENSIVE WATER FLOOD LINES BEHIND WHICH THEY APPARENTLY EXPECT TO FIGHT SHOULD THE CANADIANS DRIVE THEM FROM THE ISSEL RIVER DEFENSES.

ONE OF THESE LINES IS THE FORMER DUTCH DEFENSE LINE OF 1940 WHICH FAILED TO HALT THE GERMAN THRUST TO THE COAST.

A SINGLE TRACK CROSSES THE BRIDGE BUT DOUBLE TRACKS HAVE BEEN RUN FOR ONE AND ONE QUARTER MILES ON EITHER SIDE TO LINKING HIGHWAYS.

ALTHOUGH MUD WAS THE WORST OBSTACLE, HARDLY ANY OF THE BARRIERS OF WAR WERE LACKING IN THE AREA--INCLUDING THE NECESSITY OF DIGGING UP A GERMAN WAR CEMETERY WHERE BODIES WERE BURIED TWO AND THREE DEEP.

ALL MATERIALS FOR CONSTRUCTION WERE GERMAN--EVEN THE TIMBER, WHICH CAME FROM THE HUERTGEN FOREST SOUTH OF CAPTURED AACHEN. THE STEEL, ESPECIALLY PROCESSED AND ORDERED MONTHS IN ADVANCE IN ANTICIPATION OF THE NEED, CAME FROM THE HADIR STEEL WORKS AT DIFFERDANGE, LUXEMBOURG. RUBBLE TO FILL IN THE SOLID FOUNDATION AND ROADS WAS CARTED ACROSS THE RIVER ON TEMPORARY PONTOON BRIDGES FROM WRECKED GERMAN BUILDINGS.

HE LEARNED FROM THE GESTAPO AND BURGOMEISTER THAT GERMAN TROOPS WERE HIDING IN THE HILLS OUTSIDE OF TOWN. ROSE AND FOUR MEN ARMED WITH NOTHING THAN CARBINES WENT AFTER THEM AND CAME BACK WITH 35 HOLDING THEIR HANDS HIGH IN THE AIR.

"THROUGH SHRADER, I TOLD THE BURGOMEISTER TO MAKE EVERYONE TURN IN THEIR FIREARMS, KEEP OFF THE STREETS, AND PUT OUT WHITE FLAGS," ROSE SAID. "WE CUT THE WIRES IN THE TELEPHONE OFFICE AND WENT BACK TO GET HELP."

HIS HELPERS WERE PFC JOHN GOFF OF GOSHEN, VA., THE JEEP DRIVER, AND PFC. EUGENE PODHYSKI OF SCRANTON, PA. AND PFC. DONALD SEDWICK OF KITTANNING, PA., THE OTHER TWO WIREMEN.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, APRIL 8-(AP)-INFANTRY OF THE U.S.FIRST ARMY BROKE 18 MILES THROUGH THE CRUMPLED WESER RIVER LINE TODAY AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION AND SEIZED GOETTINGEN, WHERE THEY FOUND APPROXIMATELY 15,000 WOUNDED GERMAN SOLDIERS IN HOSPITALS.

ENEMY DEFENSES ALONG THE WESER COLLAPSED ALMOST COMPLETELY AND INFANTRY ADVANCES WERE LIMITED ONLY BY THE SPEED AT WHICH TROOPS COULD MARCH UNDER FULL EQUIPMENT IN THE HOT SUN.

AFTER PUSHING A TOTAL OF 16 MILES FROM THE WESER CROSSINGS TO GOETTINGEN, ONE REGIMENT MARCHED ON TWO MILES FARTHER WITHOUT CONTACTING THE ENEMY IN FORCE.

DURING THIS 18-MILE HIKE, THE INFANTRY ENCOUNTERED NO ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE. THE GERMANS APPARENTLY HAD PULLED ALL REMAINING FIELD GUNS BACK TO A LINE WHERE THEY MIGHT TRY A FINAL STAND.

BEFORE REACHING GOETTINGEN, THE DOUGHBOYS CAPTURED AN AIRFIELD WEST OF THE CITY WITH TWO AIRPLANES INTACT. THEY CROSSED THE SMALL LEINE RIVER ON A BRIDGE THE GERMANS HAD FORGOTTEN TO BLOW ALTHOUGH THEY DESTROYED AN ADJOINING RAILROAD SPAN.

GOETTINGEN IS A CITY OF 50,000 NOTED FOR ITS UNIVERSITY, FOUNDED IN 1737 BY GEORGE II, KING OF ENGLAND AND ELECTOR OF HANNOVER.

AMONG ITS STUDENTS HAVE BEEN COLERIDGE, BISMARCK, AND SUCH NOTED AMERICANS AS HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW, THE HISTORIAN GEORGE BANCROFT, AND THE DIPLOMAT EDWARD EVERETT.

RESISTANCE WAS SLIGHT EVERYWHERE ALONG LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' U.S.FIRST ARMY FRONT EXCEPT IN THE AREA NEAR SIEGEN, AT THE SOUTHEAST CORNER OF THE RUHR POCKET, WHERE GERMAN PARACHUTE TROOPS FOUGHT AMERICAN INFANTRY TO A STANDSTILL.

MUENDEN FINALLY WAS CLEARED BY AMERICAN FOOT TROOPS WHO SMASHED THE REST OF THE WAY THROUGH THE HISTORIC HESSIAN GAP, FAMOUS CORRIDOR TO THE EAST USED BY NAPOLEON AND OTHER CONQUERORS.

OTHER INFANTRY CROSSED THE MILITARY HIGHWAY AND DROVE TO ROSDORF IN A GAIN OF NINE MILES.

VATICAN CITY, APRIL 8-(AP)-A GERMAN PROTEST WAS REPORTED MADE TODAY AGAINST A RECENT OSSERVATORE ROMANO EDITORIAL WHICH COULD BE INTERPRETED AS CALLING ON GERMANS TO LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS TO AVOID FURTHER BLOODSHED.

THE FIGURES COVERED A PERIOD FROM MAY 24, 1944, TO FEB. 28.

CHENNAULT, COMMANDER OF THE 14TH AIR FORCE ANNOUNCED THAT 47 ENEMY AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED BY THE 14TH LAST MONTH, 18 PROBABLY WERE DESTROYED AND 72 DAMAGED, WHILE HIS FORCES RAN UP A RATION OF 11 JAPANESE PLANES DESTROYED IN AIR COMBAT FOR EVERY AMERICAN PLANE SHOT DOWN.

THE MONTH'S BAG BROUGHT THE NUMBER OF ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED BY THE 14TH SINCE JULY 4 TO 2,243, AND THE NUMBER OF "PROBABLE" TO 877.

HEAVY STRIKES WERE CONTINUED AGAINST THE ENEMY'S SEA, RIVER AND RAILROAD SUPPLY LINES, WITH PARTICULAR CONCENTRATION OF THE BOMBING OF RAIL EQUIPMENT IN THE NORTHEAST TO SLOW THE JAPANESE DRIVE WHICH RESULTED IN EVACUATION OF THE 14TH AIR FORCE FROM LAOHOKOW BASE ON THE HAN RIVER.

EVEN THE TIRES AND WHEELS OF P-51 FIGHTER PLANES HAVE BEEN STOLEN. IN OTHER INSTANCES JEEPS WERE STOLEN OR DISMANTLED AND THE PARTS SMUGGLED TO AREAS WHERE THEY WERE REASSEMBLED AND SOLD.

ABOARD U. S. MARINE THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS FLAGSHIP, OKINAWA, APRIL 6-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE UNPREDICTABLE JAPANCE WHO PERMITTED AMERICAN MARINES AND SOLDIERS TO LAND ALMOST WITHOUT OPPOSITION ON OKINAWA'S EASILY DEFENDED BEACHES, CHOSE BROAD DAYLIGHT TODAY TO LAUNCH THEIR LONG-AWAITED AIR ATTACK IN FORCE ON THE INVADING YANK FLEET.

IT WAS A SPECTACULAR DISPLAY WITH BURNING JAPANESE PLANES FURNISHING AN IMPORTANT PART TF THE FIREWORKS.

I DUCKED LOW IN A NAVY SPEEDBOAT AS THE AIR ATTACK RAGED OVER-HEAD AND WITNESSED THE FINALE--FOR THE TIME BEING AT LEAST--FROM THE FLAG DECK OF THIS VESSEL.

A SMALL SPEEDBOAT, INCIDENTALLY, IS THE BEST PLACE TO WATCH AN AIR ATTACK--ESCEPT POSSIBLY IN A NEWSREEL--AS THE JAPANESE SELDOM BOTHER WITH SUCH A SMALL TARGET.

AS THE AIR RAID SOUNDED AT THE BEGINNING OF THE ATTACK SCORES OF SHIPS SENT UP VERITABLE SHEETS OF ACKACK, MACHINEGUN BULLETS AND 40MM SHELLS. THE DIN WAS TERRIFIC. A YELL WENT UP AS THE FIRST JAPANESE PLANE CRASHED.

ABOARD A NAVAL EVACUATION PLANE, OKINAWA, RYUKYUS, APRIL 8 -(VIA NAVY RADIO)-(AP)-ENS. JANE KENDEIGH CONTINUED HER PIONEERING IN THE PACIFIC TODAY WHEN SHE STEPPED FROM THIS AIR TRANSPORT EVACUATION SQUADRON PLANE AT OKINAWA'S YONTAN AIRFIELD, TO BECOME THE FIRST NURSE ON THE ISLAND, ACORSS WHICH MARINES AND DOUGHBOYS ARE SWEEPING WITH STARTLING RAPIDITY.

JANE, ALSO THE FIRST NURSE TO LAND ON IWO JIMA TO BRING OUT WOUNDED PATIENTS BY AIR, IS A PIONEER AS WERE HER ANCESTORS, WHO CROSSED THE PLAINS IN COVERED WAGONS.

I MADE THE ROUND TRIP TO OKINAWA WITH JANE AND WATCHED HER TAKE EFFIEICENT CHARGE OF 20 WOUNDED MEN CHOSEN FOR THE FIRST FLIGHT BACK TO THE GUAM HOSPITAL. DURING THE SHORT TIME THE STRETCHERS LAY ON THE DIRT OF THE AIRFIELD WAITING TO BE LIFTED INTO THE PLANE, SHE ACQUAINTED HERSELF WITH THE NEEDS OF EACH CASE.

WHEN WE TOOK OFF ON THE RETURN TRIP JANE ALREADY HAD A CHART IN HER MIND OF THE CONDITION OF EACH PATIENT. ONE CASE, LABELED "SERIOUS" --A TOWHEADED LAD WITH A COMPOUND FRACTURE OF THE LEFT ARM AND A PAINFULLY WOUNDED THROAT WHERE A BULLET STRUCK HIM--WAS PLACED CONVENIENTLY SO JANE COULD FEED HIM THROUGH A TUBE AND KNEEL BESIDE HIM WHEN HE WHISPERED A REQUEST.

SHE FOUND TIME FOR EVERYTHING--TO CHAT WITH MEN AS WELL AS WATCH TEMPERATURES, GIVE SEDATIVES, CHANGE BANDAGES. SHE INSPECTED THE DUD SHELL OF A WOUNDED MARINE COLONEL FROM NEW YORK WHO WAS CARRYING IT HOME AS A GRISLY SOUVENIR.

"IT WAS A TOUGH JOB GETTING THE SHELL AWAY FROM THE DOCTORS," SAID THE COLONEL, "BUT I WANTED IT."

THEN HE TOLD JANE:

"I AM LIVING ON BORROWED TIME BECAUSE THAT SHELL FAILED TO EXPLODE."

THE HOSPITAL CORPSMAN ABOARD THE EVACUATION PLANE WAS JOHN DRUST, JR., PHMARACIST'S MATE 1/C, OF ROYALTON, ILL., VETERAN OF SIX AIR EVACUATION FLIGHTS TO IWO JIMA.

THE PAIR WORKED WITH PERFECT COORDINATION.

WITH 25TH DIVISION NEAR BALETE PASS, APRIL 8-(AP)-TIRED AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS PASSED THEIR 82ND DAY ON THE BALETE BATTLELINE TODAY AS THIS DECISIVE FIGHT FOR NORTHEAST LUZON RAGED BITTERLY IN THE CARABALLO MOUNTAINS.

DAILY YANK GAINS ARE MEASURED BY YARDS ACROSS THE RUGGED MILE-HIGH BATTLEGROUND WHICH JAPANESE HAVE CLEVERLY CHOSEN AND FORTIFIED. AFTER ONE MONTH'S BATTLING UP THE NARROW ARTILLERY-ROCKED VALLEY, THE 25TH DIVISION'S FORWARD ELEMENTS ARE NOW APPROXIMATELY THREE MILES SOUTH OF BALETE PASS--THE ONLY ENTRANCE FROM THE SOUTH TO THE CAGAYAN VALLEY, JAPAN'S BATAAN. THE PASS IS ABOUT 35 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BAGUIO.

"THIS BATTLE SHOULD BE COMPARED WITH CASINO," SAID MAJ. GEN. CHARLES L.MULLINS, OF RANCHO DE LOS OLIVOS, CALIFORNIA, COMMANDER OF THE 25TH (TROPIC LIGHTNING) DIVISION, "IN IT WE ARE MAKING THE SAME DESPERATE FIGHT AGAINST TERRAIN FROM WHICH THE ENEMY CANNOT BE BLASTED OUT BY AIR OR ARTILLERY, BUT MUST BE DUG OUT."

Q(THIS IS THE FIRST REPORT -- BY ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT HAMILTON FARON -- DIRECT FROM VICE ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER'S PACIFIC FLEET CARRIER TASK FORCE ON HE DESTRUCTION OF THE SUPERBATTLESH YAMATO AND OTHER JAPANESE WARSHIPS JUST 50 MILES SOUTH OF JAPAN PROPER APRIL 7.)

BY HAMILTON FARON

WITH ADMIRAL MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCE, APRIL 7 (DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS MIGHTY U.S. FLEET FORCE WIPED OUT MAJOR REMNANTS OF THE JAPANESE FLEET TODAY, INCLUDING THE GIANT BATTLESHIP YAMATO, LAST OF THE ENEMY'S BIG WARSHIPS.

THE 45,000-TON BATTLESHIP WAS LEFT BURNING AND SINKING WITH AT LEAST FIVE AND POSSIBLY SEVEN OTHER WARSHIPS.

(PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS AT GUAM ANNOUNCED APRIL 8 THAT THE YAMATO, ONE LIGHT CRUISER, ANOTHER LIGHT CRUISER OR LARGE DESTROYER, AND THREE DESTROYERS WERE SUNK.)

AIRCRAFT FROM VICE ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER'S CARRIERS SMASHED THE JAPANESE FORCE WITH TORPEDOES AND BOMBS AS DARED TO VENTURE FROM INLAND SEA PROTECTION.THE ACTION, IN THE EAST CHINA SEA 50 MILES SOUTH OF THE MAINLAND ISLAND KYUSHU, CAME THE DAY AFTER MITSCHER'S PLANES DEALT NEW CRIPPLING BLOWS TO THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE -- SHOOTING DOWN MORE THAN 200 PLANES. THEY WERE KNOCKED DOWN AS THEY ATTEMPTED TO ATTACK OKINAWA. IT WAS THE BIGGEST AIR BATTLE OF RECENT MONTHS.

AT LEAST EIGHT TORPEDOES TORE INTO THE SIDES OF THE YAMATO. THE BATTLESHIP LOST WAY SLOWLY. FIRES FLAMED FROM HER STERN. FINALLY SHE WAS RIPPED BY INTERNAL EXPLOSIONS AS SHE SETTLED INTO THE SEA.

AT LEAST ONE LIGHT CRUISER AND POSSIBLY ANOTHER -- THE LATTER MAY HAVE BEEN A LARGE DESTROYER -- ALSO SANK BENEATH THE BLOWS OF THE AMERICANS PLANES, TEARING INTO THEM FROM ALL SIDES.

THREE DESTROYERS WERE ACCOUNTED FOR BY DIVE BOMBERS. THEY WERE SEEN TO SINK. TWO OTHER WERE LEFT BURNING FURIOUSLY.

THREE OTHER DESTROYERS, LISTED AS "UNDAMAGED", WERE MERELY RAKED BY ROCKETS AND MACHINEGUN BULLETS OF STRAFING PLANES.

CONSERVATIVELY, MITSCHER MADE THIS STATEMENT: "I BELIEVE THE JAPANESE FLEET AND JAPANESE AIRFORCE ARE DECIDEDLY ON THE WAN." BUT THE MANNER IN WHICH HE SPOKE IMPLIED FAR MORE THAN WORDS.

THE VETERAN CARRIER FORCE COMMANDER, WHO HAS PARTICIPATED IN EVERY MAJOR ACTION AGAINST THE JAPANESE FLEET, WAS OBVIOUSLY JUBILANT OVER RESULTS OF THE TWO-DAY ACTION.

A209FX

HIS SATISFACTION WAS ECHOED BY FELLOW PILOTS, WHO TOLD OF THE ATTACK ON THE FLEET TODAY.

"IT WAS SO INTENSE WE HAD TO WAIT OUR TURN TO MAKE RUNS," THEY SAID.

A GENERAL PICTURE OF THE ATTACK WAS PAINTED BY LT. (JG) ALAN TRUMBULL, PASADENA, CALIF, WHO SAID:

"THERE WERE SO MANY PLANES MAKING RUNS WE COULDN'T TELL WHOSE TORPEDOES WERE HITTING."

APR 9 1945

INTERCEPTED LESS THAN 100 MILES (ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ'S COMMUNIQUE SAID ABOUT 50 MILES) SOUTHWEST OF KYUSHU IN HEAVY WEATHER WHICH FORCED PLANES TO OPERATE BETWEEN 3,000 TO 5,000 FOOT CEILINGS, THE JAPANESE OFFERED LITTLE RESISTANCE IN INITIAL PHASES OF THE ACTION. CARRIER PLANES CIRCLED WITHOUT DRAWING FIRE BEFORE BEGINNING THE ASSAULT.

BUT THE PICTURE WAS DIFFERENT AS THE RUNS BEGAN. ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS OPENED UP WITH HEAVY FLAK. EVEN THE MAIN 16-INCH BATTERIES OF THE BATTLESHIP WERE TURNED ON THE AMERICAN PLANES. ON THE WHOLE, HOWEVER, ANTIAIRCRAFT WAS INACCURATE AND LOSSES OF OUR PLANES WERE VERY LIGHT. (NIMITZ SAID ONLY SEVEN U.S. PLANES WERE LOST.)

DEFINITE CONFIRMATIONS OF DESTRUCTION OF 245 JAPANESE BOMBERS, FIGHTERS AND TORPEDO PLANES MADE THE ENGAGEMENT OF THE GREATEST SINCE 405 WERE DESTROYED IN THE BATTLE OF THE PHILIPPINES IN JUNE, 1944.

DESPITE THE INTERCEPTION, SOME ENEMY PLANES BROKE THROUGH TO OKINAWA, WHERE A SECOND MAJOR DOGFIGHT RAGED, WITH FIGHTERS FLYING PATROL OVER THE ISLAND. MANY WERE SHOT DOWN THERE ALSO BY ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS.

ONLY A FEW OF THE ENEMY BROKE THROUGH TO ATTACK THE AMERICAN CARRIERS AND ESCORT WARCRAFT. ALL OF THESE WERE SHOT DOWN BY SHIPS' GUNS OR CARRIER PATROL PLANES, WHIPPING FLEETS OF JAPANESE PLANES WHICH ATTACKED MITSCHER'S FORCES.

APPROXIMATELY A SCORE WERE SHOT DOWN, BUT THEY SUCCEEDED IN DAMAGING ONE MAJOR FLEET UNIT.

'OFFICIALLY, CREDIT FOR THE SUCCESSFUL ATTACK ON THE YAMATO PROBABL WILL NOT BE ASSIGNED. HOWEVER, UNOFFICIALLY, MUCH OF IT GOES TO THE TORPEDO SQUADRON HEADED BY LT.CMDR.CHANDLER W.SWANSON, SON OF ALEX F.SWANSON (17 WATERLAND ROAD) CORONADO,CALIF.

SWANSON'S SQUADRON MADE THE FIRST STRIKE.

"ALL OF US WERE IN POSITIONS WHERE WE HARDLY COULD MISS," SWANSON SAID.

WITH SWANSON IN THE LEADING SECTIONS OF THE SQUADRON IN THE CONCERTED ASSAULT WERE LTS.PHILIP N.WAINWRIGHT, AMBLER,PA.; BERNARD F.BERRY, WEST MONROE,FLA.; BOTH OF WHOM BROUGHT BACK CHUNKS OF JAGGED FLAG INSIDE THEIR PLANES; JUDSON CHARLES DAVIS (1014 COVEWAY) SOUTH CHARLESTON,W.VA., AND DEWEY FRANK RAY, RURAL ROUTE NO.2, EUGENE,ORE.

RAY, INCIDENTALLY, FLEW BACK WITH ONE OF HIS WHEELS HANGING DOWN AND, BECAUSE OF ADDITIONAL WIND RESISTANCE, GOT BACK TO THE CARRIER WITH ONLY 12 GALLONS OF GASOLINE LEFT IN HIS TANKS. ENROUTE, TO KEEP THE PLANE IN THE AIR, HE WAS FORCED TO DISCARD HIS RADIO, GUNS, AMMUNITION AND CAMERA.

"BUT I HUNG ONTO MY RAFT," HE GRINNED.

THE BIGGEST SCORE BY THE FLIERS, WHO WELCOMED THE ROUGH AND TUMBLE ENGAGEMENT WITH THE JAPANESE PILOTS, WAS MADE BY PLANES UNDER COMMAND OF REAR ADM.JOSEPH J.(JOCKO) CLARK. THEY REPORTED CONFIRMATIONS FOR DESTRUCTION OF 151 ENEMY PLANES OF ALL KINDS.

ACCOMPLISHING THIS, CLARK'S FIGHTERS LOST ONLY ONE PLANE AND ITS PILOT SAID HE HOPED TO REACH LAND, OR TO MAKE A WATER LANDING BESIDE AN AMERICAN SHIP WHERE HE COULD BE RESCUED.

THE AERIAL BATTLE RAGED OVER MORE THAN 12 SQUARE MILES, MUCH OF THE TIME UNDER CLOUD COVER.

YONTAN AIRFIELD, OKINAWA,APRIL 7-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THREE MARINE FIGHTER SQUADRONS LANDED ON YONTAN FIELD TODAY TO HELP STRENGTHEN AIR DEFENSES OF THE ISLAND, WHICH HAS BEEN UNDER CONTINUING AIR ATTACK THE PAST SEVERAL DAYS.

4 ARMIES STRIKE FOR ELBE RIVER ALONG WIDE FRONT

Doughboys Hammer into Essen, Seize Ruins of Krupp Munitions Works.

GELSENKIRCHEN FALLS

Nazi Forces Believed Putting Torch to Hamburg, Hannover, Brunswick.

PARIS, Tuesday, April 10.—(AP) Allied armies struck yesterday for the Elbe river—last big stream before Berlin—fought into the outskirts of Hannover and to the gates of flaming Bremen, and cut off 80,000 enemy troops in Holland with a push within 20 miles of the north German coast.

Mysterious fires raged in Hamburg, Hannover and Brunswick, indicating that the German armies, stricken by the loss of a half million men in 10 terrible days of combat, were putting the torch to the cities which they seem unable to save from the Allied onslaught.

American troops fought into virtually encircled Essen, Europe's greatest armaments city, and captured the ruins of the famed Krupp munitions works, idle since an RAF obliteration bombing in March. The nearby Ruhr city of Gelsenkirchen fell without a shot.

Smash Toward Elbe

The British Second army and the U. S. Ninth, First and Third armies were hammering toward the Elbe, which runs within 50 miles of Berlin, shoulder-to-shoulder along an arching front of 200 miles.

While the British joined lines with the Ninth army for the assault on Hannover, the main weight appeared to be swinging northeastward where vanguards on the Weser river were 50 miles from the Elbe at Hamburg, Germany's second city. They were battling a Marine division hustled down from Hamburg and German troops from Denmark.

The Paris radio said the British also had entered Bremen, but the last reports from the front said they were locked in hard fighting five miles from the city.

The U. S. Ninth army threw five divisions into its eastern push, led by the motorized 83rd infantry division, which broke into the province of Brunswick at a point less than 70 miles from the Elbe and 137 miles southwest of Berlin.

The Ninth Army's Fifth Armored division also broke loose north of the Second Armored division, which was erroneously reported to be 20 miles from Brunswick Sunday. It was the 83rd which was 25 miles from Brunswick.

Smash Toward Berlin

The U. S. First army plunged nearly 20 miles eastward on the south flank of the Ninth army to within 135 miles of the Reich's capital. On its south flank, the U. S. Third army moved its lines up 128 miles from Berlin.

A field dispatch said the First and Third armies now were 150 miles from the Russians and close enough to co-operate tactically in cutting the Reich in half. There was no official hint, however, that such tactical teamwork had actually begun, although it was possible.

More than 5,200 Allied warplanes flailed supply and defense positions in front of the advancing Allies.

The Canadian First army joined up with Allied First Airborne army forces, split the lines of two German armies in Holland, and pinned an estimated 80,000 of the enemy back in Holland's largest cities of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Utrecht and the Hague.

The Canadian Fourth Armored division broke out of its Ems river bridgehead and dashed 17 miles north to Beckhusen, 20 miles from the river's North Sea mouth. Closing of this gap would seal off all Holland and possibly double the number of German troops stranded on Dutch soil.

Driving westward, the Canadians came within sight of the Zuider Zee as they shut the door on German forces in southwestern Holland.

All roads out were cut save a hazardous one over the Zuider Zee causeway when Canadian armor fought into the railway junction of Meppel and the Germans blew up the dikes, flooding the 10-mile strip of lowland between there and the Zuider Zee.

Canadians Enter Sogel

One Canadian column, following swiftly at the heels of German forces pulled out of northeast Holland, raced 23 miles northeastward, entered Sogel and pressed on beyond to a point but 28 miles from the north sea and 32 miles from the port of Emden.

There was no rest for the Germans either in middle or southern Germany.

The U. S. First army hammered eastward 18 miles and captured Duderstadt, approximately 135 miles southwest of Berlin, putting it back in the running with the U. S. Ninth and Third armies thrusting east.

The U. S. Third army, still building up power on the Thuringian plain, edged a few miles farther east to Allmenhausen, 83 miles west of Leipzig and 128 miles southwest of Berlin.

The U. S. Seventh army, held up in bitter fighting on the southern end of its front thrust within 95 miles of Munich, cut losse on the north end. Tanks rumbled out into fairly open country only 65 miles west of the Czech border.

The French First army fought within nine miles of Stuttgart and was outflanking the Siegfried line anchored in the Black Forest, slashing around through the forest's northern fringes.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th Army group, reported that for the past 10 days the Germans had been losing troops at the rate of 50,000 a day in killed, wounded and captured, the heaviest losses yet inflicted in this war on the enemy's armies.

TANKS RACING ACROSS PLAINS IN NORTH REICH

Bremen and Hannover Burn as the British and Yank Troops Close In.

ARMOR BY-PASSES BIG CITIES

Germans Lose 500,000 Troops in Ten Days—80,000 in Dutch Pocket.

Paris, April 9 (A. P.).—The Allies, having exacted 500,000 casualties from the Germans in ten days, cut the last railway from western Holland today, trapping the bulk of 80,000 more Germans believed still in the Netherlands.

The American Ninth and British Second armies fought within sight of the shelled and burning north German cities of Hannover and Bremen. They were within fifty miles of the Elbe River at Hamburg and seventy of the stream at Nagdeburg. The Elbe is the last water barrier on the flat country leading to Berlin and flows within fifty miles of the capital.

Hannover and Bremen both were five miles from Allied infantry and tanks. An entry into both was imminent, although the Germans were fighting hard for Bremen, one of their greatest ports and shipbuilding centers. Tanks by-passed both cities, hopelessly outflanking each.

Many Towns Are Ablaze.

Great and small cities and towns all over northern Germany burned mysteriously, even though Allied bombers stayed away from most. Flames were reported specifically in Hamburg, Hannover, Brunswick and Luebeck. Of these, Luebeck and Brunswick had not been raided recently.

Ninth Army troops stormed into the streets of the great Ruhr industrial cities of Essen (660,000), home of the Krupp works; Dortmund (537,000) and Gelsenkirchen (313,000).

At least 38,600 prisoners were captured yesterday, 37,500 to Gen. Omar Bradley's four American armies in the center. Bradley's headquarters estimated German casualties at 50,000 a day for the past ten days.

To the south the Seventh Army capture of Crailsheim placed the Americans within ninety-four miles of Munich and 170 of Hitler's mountain fastness at Berchtesgaden.

Canadians pushed eight miles northeast of Zwolle and made contact with Allied airborne troops to wrest control of the north Holland communications. The junction was established close to the rail junction of Meppel, ten miles from the Zuider Zee. There the last rail line was snapped and the last rail bridge was blown up. The Germans blasted the dikes flooding 400 square miles. Late in the day the Canadian armor sped six miles north of the Ems River town of Meppen to a point thirty-five miles from Emden.

"Field Marshal Montgomery's tanks and infantry tonight are executing a vast maneuver to trap hundreds of thousands of Germans against the sea in northern Germany and Holland—(where the smaller trap already is closed)," Associated Press Correspondent Robert Wilson wirelessed from British headquarters.

At Supreme Headquarters, officers said up to 80,000 Germans of Army Group H were left in Holland. Many are combat troops, but most are garrison and supplemental personnel. The Germans facing the Canadian First Army on a 150-mile front from the Dutch city of Arnhem to the Ems River were split into two distinct pockets. One was west of the Issel River including Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Utrecht and the Hague. The other screened the German naval bases of Emden and Wilhelmshaven, thirty-nine and thirty-six miles from closest Allied troops.

Holland Liberation Is Near.

"The liberation of northeast Holland is likely to come quickly," Ross Munro of the Canadian Press reported.

The Ninth Army at last reports—hours behind the swift pace of battle—was on open flat tank country with no coherent German lines before them. The Hell-on-Wheels (Second) Armored Division by-passed Hannover ten miles to the south and then went "out of sight" in a wedge within twenty miles of Brunswick (201,306) aimed at Magdeburg (334,358) on the beeline to Berlin. Supreme Headquarters received no word from the Ninth Army of further operations today, presumably because of thin communica-

Seventh Forming Traps.

The Seventh Army captured 7,861 prisoners in twenty-four hours and made gains of up to fifteen miles eastward. The Germans threw in tanks and self-propelled guns and the Americans destroyed twenty-seven of them. American infantry shoved well east of captured Neustadt and other troops went beyond Koenigshofen. Another clamped a mand post of a 42d Division company.

Names of the men who escaped could not be disclosed, but the father of one of them was described as a personal friend of Maj. Gen. Harry Collins, commander of the 42d (Rainbow) Division, who immediately sped word to the father.

Escaped Yanks Tell Of Nazi Cruelties

By A. I. Goldberg

With the U.S. 7th Army, April 9 (AP)—Two United States Army lieutenants who survived the horrors of the Gerolstein and Hammelburg prisoner-of-war camps in Germany escaped in their fourth attempt and reached the American lines east of the Main River yesterday, declaring they had been subjected to "utterly inhuman treatment" by their captors.

One, a young West Point graduate of the class of 1943, and the other, an Arlington (Va.) youth, broke away from guards on a forced march toward a new prison camp at Nuernberg as advancing American troops approached the older camps.

West Pointer Grim

French slave laborers supplied them with food as they made their way to the American lines, where they related the story of their experiences in German hands. The West Pointer punctuated his story with the grim statement that the treatment they had received was "utterly inhuman" and he longed to get back into the lines to "kill Germans for what they did to our men."

"The Germans even tried to use Red Cross packages addressed to us as bribes—holding them back from us, then offering us something from them to try to get us to talk. Not one American officer or man in any prison I have been in ever talked.

Lost 40 Pounds

"The Germans put me in solitary confinement for thirteen days trying to make me tell them who I was. They had a suspecion who my day was, and his outfit, on which they had all the information, but I refused to tell them anything. I lost 40 pounds."

The other lieutenant said he had lost 30 pounds. French and Polish slave laborers from the Germans led Sergt. Henry Wells, Van Nuys, Cal., and his patrol to the fugitives, and a jeep carried them to the com-

Douglas, of Arlington, Va., who knew the West Pointer at the academy.

"This is the happiest day of my life," the escaped lieutenant said. "But we can never forget the horrors of those prison camps.

"Gerolstein should go down in history as a blot of shame on humanity."

Wounded Left Untreated

The other lieutenant said, "What left searing scars on both of us was knowledge of the way our wounded prisoners lay untreated in hospitals."

Paper bandages but no drugs or antiseptics were used, both men said.

In each of three prior escape attempts which failed they managed to obtain some materials for treating the wounded and smuggled these back to the camps with them, they reported.

U. S. Doctor Raids Nazi Town; One Jeep Goes and Captures It

By HOWARD COWAN.

Bad Mergentheim, April 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This town was captured, but it wasn't strictly according to Hoyle, as Capt. Richard Herrick of Webster City, Iowa, tells the story.

Bad Mergentheim, a little German resort city, had sixteen hospitals jammed with more than 2,000 wounded, most of them German, but a captured German nurse said that four of the wounded men were Americans, and added that she thought the German troops had cleared out.

"We decided to take a chance—send a party in to get those men out. We'd heard that some of our fellows were getting pretty rough treatment," said Capt. Herrick, who is the medical officer of the Second Battalion, Twenty-second Infantry, Fourth Division.

Sergt. Robie Moore of Pocohontas, Va., and Sergt. Jake Brill of 532 East 52d street, Brooklyn, medics, accompanied the Captain. Brill is a German-speaking Polish refugee who, during transfusions, tells the German patients: "This is good Jewish blood you're getting, bud."

"Nobody'd been in the town yet, so we figured on taking the German nurse along to show the way," Herrick said. "She got nervous before we left and said, 'Auf weidersehen,' and started to walk away. I told her 'Auf weidersehen, hell,' and took her by the arm. She came with us."

Found Only Three Yanks.

Herrick said that when they got to the hospital he walked in the front. He continued: "There was a German soldier sitting inside a little inclosure like you find in most any hospital. I asked him 'Wo sind die Amerikanshen Soldaten?" He mumbled an answer, and pointed to the stairs, and then looked up and saw who we were. He hollered, 'Oh, Amerikaners,' and stuck up his hands. I thought his eyes would pop out of his head.

"There were only three instead of four Americans there. Two of them weren't even wounded. They were medics from the 116th Cavalry who were captured while carrying Kraut prisoners to an aid station. They'd been working as orderlies in the hospital. The wounded man was from the Twelfth Armored Division.

"We loaded up right away and made our men release a couple of German doctors and two nurses they'd captured outside—they needed them in the hospitals—and went on home."

Yesterday morning the Fourth Division was still fighting on the road north of Bad Mergentheim. Word again got round that the town was clear. Lieut. Harry W. Rose Jr. of Washington, D. C., and three wire men and a jeep driver were sent in to reserve some billets for the Third Battalion.

One-Jeep Task Force.

"I though it was strange when we ran into a road block of mines on the outskirts of town," Rose said. "It was funnier still when he got in the town. Here were German soldiers walking around. They weren't even armed."

This one-jeep task force drove to the City Hall and surprised a Gestapo officer loafing in the police station. Pfc. Karl Shrader of 639 West 207th street, New York, one of the wire men, speaks German fluently. He learned from the Gestapo agent and the Burfomeister that German troops were hiding in the hills outside of town. Rose and four men armed only with carbines went after them and came back with thirty-five captives.

"Through Shrader I told the Burgomeister to make all civilians turn in their firearms, keep off the streets and put out white flags," Rose said. "We cut the wires in the telephone office and went back to get help."

Inside the town was the SS headquarters with a huge stock of weapons and ammunition. The luxurious Kurthaus Hotel, with 400 rooms designed for the elite tourist trade, was found to house broadcasting studios for the Stuttgart station, evacuated last July because of air raids. Among the 2,000 German patients in the hospital was a German general.

'No Nazi Stand Before Berlin'

By J. W. Gallagher

With the 9th Army in Germany, East of the Leine River, April 9 (AP)—There is no indication here that the Germans can or will organize any good defensive line between this area and Berlin.

Civilian morale and the general soldier morale appear to be in complete collapse, although certain Nazi elements are fighting with ferocity.

Prisoners have been pouring in at an unprecedented rate.

21,000 Prisoners

In the past ten days, the 2d Armored Division has taken more prisoners with less fight than at any stage of its operations in this war, including those in Sicily. The prisoner count was more than 21,000 by Sunday night.

Veteran army men expressed the opinion the Germans are incapable of putting up an organized line because they simply lack the manpower to do it.

Units Scattered

In the last 115 miles of its forward drive the 2d Armored Division has yet to encounter a single organized German division. The only units it has encountered have been isolated static defense troops or convalescent SS or parachute men.

One reason for the German lack of fighting manpower is seen in the fact that Maj. Gen. Isaac D. White's command alone overran 138 hospitals filled with German wounded—the fruits of six years of war.

A mobile broadcast tank under Lieut. Arthur Hadley, New York, has been responsible in part for the surrender of at least 4,000 prisoners.

Tanks Take Towns

The 2d Armored's tanks roll uptown in an invaded city, spread out, then Hadley's tank calls on the defenders to surrender. In the face of this showing of force, they usually give up, although they sometimes let fly a few shots before closing the deal.

The ferocity of the spirit of some of the resisting German elements, however, is shown in the story of a captured German officer who reported the mayor of Lemgo was taken to the rear and hanged by the Nazis because he tried to arrange the surrender of his city. The officer said he saw the body hanging publicly in the streets.

Civilian officials, nevertheless, are surrendering their towns, and sometimes have chased out German soldiers first.

Werewolf Order Overridden

A German colonel in charge of a hospital town asserted he had overridden the "werewolf" orders of the Nazi high command for the civilian population to kill every invader they could reach. He said he had published an order that fulfillment of such instructions would be "suicide to thousands of innocent German men" of the civilian population.

"These (werewolf) orders are opposed to every international law and to every law of humanity," he said his order to the populace read. "They are barbaric. Therefore I annul these orders."

The 2d Armored Division caught up with some elusive German railroad guns, destroying two of them with artillery fire Sunday.

Dummy Airfield Taken

A dummy German airfield was taken. Dummy planes had been camouflaged just enough so they would not be quite hidden, but to make them seem real, said Major Robert Crust, of Flint, Mich., of the 2d Armored.

The castle of the former King of Hannover is in American hands. The giant edifice, now owned by a duke an dused as a museum, contained many valuable paintings and relics. It was completely undamaged.

The 702d Tank Battalion, under Lieut. Col. John A. (Tiger) Beall, of Jacksonville, Texas, was the first group to bombard near-by Hannover.

YANKS, REDS NOW IN POSITION TO COORDINATE DRIVE

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH U. S. FIRST ARMY, April 9—(AP)—For the first time since the great Allied drives opened, Russian and American armies tonight are in a position for tactical field cooperation in cutting up what remains of the German army.

Marshal Konevs' First Ukrainian army and the armies of Generals Patton and Hodges are only some 150 miles apart and it is possible for them to coordinate their moves in slashing Germany apart at the waist.

Ready to Coordinate Moves

Whether there is close coordination at this stage is known only to the high command, but a study of the map shows that with the distances whittled down the Allies are easily able to mesh their operations.

The shortest line between the Americans and Russians stretches from the spearhead of the Third army near Weiman to Goerlitz east of Dresden.

Should simultaneous drives be opened down this line through Leipzig and Dresden the Allies probably would slice Germany in half in relatively short order and a corridor would be opened between the Russian and American fronts.

Some veteran military men foresee capitulation of all enemy forces left in the half of the country that is cut off from Hitler by such a bisecting.

"Once they are away from Hitler's influence and control," one officer said, "I believe we will see capitulation. But this will be in the geographical half of Germany cut off from Hitler. He is the only influence that keeps them going."

This viewpoint coincides with that of Gen. George C. Marshall, who reportedly told the Senate Military committee that the quickest way to end the war with Germany would be to kill or capture

GI Risks Life To Save Bridge On Yanks' Road To Berlin

In Germany, April 9 (AP)—Because an Atlanta sergeant thought more of his duty than he did of his life, the 9th Army drove unhampered across the Leine River toward Berlin.

The advance of the 2d Armored Division and attached doughboys of the 30th Infantry Division placed the 9th Army spearhead less than 130 miles from Berlin today, at Sarstedt and Hildesheim.

Tears Out Fuse

A sergeant from the 30th, riding a 2d Armored tank, saw a wisp of smoke curl from a pier on the approach of one of the Leine bridges south of Sarstedt.

Realizing the smoke came from a German fuse and that the bridge was about to be blown up, the sergeant rushed forward and tore out the burning fuse with his bare hands.

It was attached to 1,200 pounds of explosive, and the fuse had burned so near the charge that a detonating cap exploded in his hands.

Two Fingers Blown Off

The explosion blew off two of his fingers, and for this reason under censorship rules he must remain nameless for the moment.

The sergeant's act allowed the combat command to rush forward across the bridge unhampered, forcing a general German withdrawal to the south with the result that the 2d Armored's other commands found several more bridges intact and passed rapidly over them to take Hildesheim early Sunday.

Hitler because of his influence over the armed forces.

Drawing a line between the two fronts shows that either Leipzig or Dresden would be the most favorable meeting places.

From Leipzig to Berlin there is a corridor of solid ground leading through many lakes and low ground and it is traversed by one of Hitler's superhighways.

Enemy Resistance Weak

One officer declared there was less enemy strength in front of the First army than at any time since Gen. Omar N. Bradley sent his troops ashore in Normandy.

"We've carved the heart out of Germany's industry by the Russians' capture of Silesia and by pocketing the Ruhr," the officer said. "When Germany is cut in two then it is the finish. Disintegration already has begun. If Hitler retreats to the national redoubt in southern Bavaria then in my opinion it is highly likely the forces trapped in the northern half will capitulate."

Tactical reconnaissance pilots returning from flights over enemy territory make such reports as "150 plus people in Holzminden," or "thirty plus people walking northeast" or "200 scattered people walking northeast from Goettingen."

There are no reports of any considerable enemy concentrations of troops, tanks or guns—which would be spotted if the enemy was making a stand in any great force.

ESSEN'S KRUPP WORKS FOUND 'DONE' BY RAF

ESSEN, Germany, April 9 (AP)—Troops of the United States Ninth Army entering Essen today found the site of the Krupp armaments works perhaps the most pulverized spot in Germany. Not a wheel had turned in the plant since March 11, when 1,000 Royal Air Force heavy bombers gave the Krupp factory its finishing blow.

"I think about 2,000 people were killed that last night," said a former Krupp employe, now an Essen police sergeant. "After that, Krupp had no lights and the Essen railroad was destroyed."

Sgt. Otto Spiegler, a combat rifleman, of 945 East 165th Street, the Bronx, N. Y., asked him if our artillery had hit the plant. The German said there were "so many raids and explosions I couldn't be sure."

The Essen Railroad was the transportation link in the huge Ruhr armament production line. It had stops at Hamborn, Oberhausen, Gelsenkirchen, Bochum and Dortmund, surrounding Essen, and with a combined pre-war population of almost 3,000,000.

Troops of the Seventy-ninth Infantry Division, who entered Essen, took Hamborn about two weeks ago. Three doughboys entered Gelsenkirchen and found it undefended.

After the March 11 bombing, the Gestapo forced every male citizen of Essen to join the German Army or the police force and started preparations to defend the city. But a few days ago the Gestapo itself fled. Then Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring sent his crack Second Parachute Division to Essen along with artillery and tanks.

Col. Andrew J. Schriver of Mount Holly Springs, Pa., whose 315th Regiment was in the city, said "those paratroopers made us fight all the way in here."

GERMAN PEOPLE ARE TERRORIZED BY 'WEREWOLVES'

By WES GALLAGHER

HAMELIN, Germany, April 9—(AP) Adolf Hitler's newest weapon, the underground organization of "Werewolves," has terrorized some sections of the German civilian population, but thus far at least has been a flop as effective guerrilla opposition to the Allied armies.

A check of the various armies revealed today that in all of the vast territory overrun by Allied forces there has been almost no sabotage of military effort or assassination of Allied soldiers. The German civilian population has been docile beyond the expectations of Allied authorities.

German civilians, long dominated by the Gestapo, were terrorized by the Nazi announcement of the formation of the society of Werewolves.

It was significant that the first public announcement of the Werewolves came almost simultaneously with Gen. Eisenhower's letter to President Roosevelt in which the Supreme Allied commander said that no formal ending of the war could be expected and that a prolonged period of guerrilla activity would be anticipated.

That there will be no formal peace every German, officer and civilian alike, agrees. They say that the Nazis themselves will never make peace and there is no other German group strong enough to do so.

This means that the Allied armies, besides crushing every particle of enemy resistance, must overrun every section of Europe held by the Germans.

The Nazis are trying to capitalize on this situation by attempting to throw Germany into a state of anarchy in which there would be no civilian administration and virtually no communications except army channels. It would take the Allies many years to deal with this chaos Hitler is creating without a thought for the suffering of Germans or the other peoples of Europe.

Creating the Werewolves is one of the terror weapons by which the Nazis hope to keep any German civilian from taking any position to help administer the country under Allied control.

This would mean that American, British and Russian forces would have to build and maintain public utilities, install communications and feed 8,000,000 people.

The alternative is to have 8,000,000 starving people, with the resulting riots, on Allied hands.

Under this chaos and confusion the Nazi party leaders could safely go underground to plan a long-range political campaign to sabotage Allied efforts to bring order to Germany. They probably could escape detection rather easily.

There is a possibility that Hitler may be able to form a new murder society in chaotic Europe which might take years to stamp out and for a few months couple it with organized guerrilla warfare. Whether he will succeed depends more on the reaction of the German people than on the Allied forces.

If the Germans throw off the yoke of terror and insist on law and order, Hitler will fail. If the Germans do not—then the Allied powers face a huge and long task.

Shelled By Nazis, Prisoners Say

With U.S. 9th Army in Germany, April 9 (AP)—The 8th Armored Division today reported the capture of a prisoner-of-war camp for Russians where the Germans had turned artillery against the helpless prisoners, killing hundreds.

The liberated Russians said they had been marched from Essen, Duesseldorf and Dortmund for two days without food. When they reached the inclosure southeast of Soest, they related, the Germans set up artillery and as the Americans approached shelled the prisoners herded inside the barbed-wire fence.

American aid men tried to save the wounded Russians, but many died.

"All were suffering from exposure and malnutrition as well as wounds," said Lieut. Donald Franekl, medical officer from Philadelphia. "Some were walking skeletons."

'MURDER PLANT' SEIZED IN REICH

Estimated 20,000 Put To Death By Nazi Executioners

Russians say Nazis murdered 577,000 in Latvia. ..... Page 4

With U.S. 1st Army in Germany, April 9 (AP)—A Nazi "murder factory," where an estimated 20,000 political prisoners, Jews and slave laborers were put to death, was discovered in an insane asylum near Limburg by the 1st Army, Allied officers disclosed today.

A story of diabolical torture and ghoulish feasts by drink-sodden executioners was told by the investigators, Capt. Brinkley Hamilton, a British officer attached to an American infantry division, and Lieut. W. R. Johnson, of Loveland, Colorado.

The asylum had been located previously by Lieut. George Walker, of Deshler, Ohio, and Capt. Alton H. Jung, of San Antonio, Texas, after their suspicions were aroused by tales told by German residents of the village of Hadamar, 4 miles north of Limburg.

Three Arrests Ordered

They questioned German officials of Hadamar and on the basis of their reports Major Harvey M. Coverly, of Sausalito, Cal., ordered the arrests of three Germans who ran the asylum—a 70-year-old doctor, a 45-year-old chief woman's nurse and a middle-aged chief warden.

The asylum, the officers learned, was one of six "plants" set up by the Nazis inside Germany to dispose scientifically of slave laborers who were unruly or had outlived their usefulness to the German war machine. They gave this account of the slaughter house:

German civil authorities themselves estimated that 15,000 victims were gassed and cremated, another 5,000 killed by drugs or poison and buried in communal graves near the asylum walls.

Crazed Inmates Raised Terror

After residents of Hadamar complained repeatedly of the stench of burning bodies and the Bishop of Muenster protested, the Nazis switched from gas to hypodermic injections, and from cremation to mass burial.

The killings continued up to March 21—eight days before the arrival of the American armor.

They were described as "mercy killings" authorized by a 1939 Nazi statute. Political prisoners and slave laborers — particularly Russians, Poles and Dutch—who became too weak to work were first starved, then declared "hopelessly ill," and slain.

Terror was added to the place by 300 crazed inmates who were allowed to run free in the awesome underground dungeons.

A Tough-Looking Man

"Nobody would believe it," Johnson said. "It had underground chambers with dripping water, bats flying around and little crazy men jumping out at you at every step. . . .

"The director in charge was a big tall Nazi surgeon, about 70 years old, a graduate of Heidelberg, with saber scars on his face. He was gray-haired but I never saw a tougher-looking man in my life. The chief nurse—her job was to put the death needle into women patients—was about six feet tall and built like a football player. She was as ugly as a witch. The head keeper was a mousey-looking middle-aged man who had been promoted from driving victims to the asylum to the actual job of doing away with them.

"It was the head keeper who gave us the first real tipoff on how the place operated. He told us the asylum never held more than 500 patients and showed us that there were only 481 graves in the cemetery. There were three fresh, empty graves and when we asked him about them he said, 'We always keep three graves ahead.'

Only Sane People Killed

"Captain Hamilton noticed then that the graves were seven feet or more deep and bulb-shaped. Most German graves now are only a few inches deep. . . . We learned that instead of one body in each grave there from six to twenty. . . ."

The English officer, a veteran of twenty years at London's Bow Street police station, said it was "bloody-awful business — worse than anything I ever heard of." He said he learned that on one day they took 500 Russians into the [illegible] and not one came out alive. "When we first walked through [illegible] insane inmates, laughing and [illegible]eaming, followed us around in [illegible]ks," Hamilton said. "There [illegible]e dwarfs and stupid giants, but [illegible]eemed harmless. Only the sane [illegible]le there were killed.

SS Men Provided Help

Each morning the surgeon director, the head keeper and the head nurse held a conference and decided on those to be killed during the day. . . . The head keeper gave the men a narcotic which in their weakened conditioned quickly killed them. The head nurse did the same for the women. When the head keeper wasn't around, one of his assistants did the job.

"One assistant said the doctor was regarded as a kind man because if one of the victims fought against taking the hypo needle the surgeon would not let the attendants beat him into submission. He just let the man go without food until he was too weak to object."

The investigators said the "murder factory" started operating sometime in 1941 and that the gas chambers and crematorium were operated by SS men sent from Berlin.

A Drinking Orgy

"After their ten-thousandth killing, the SS men had a drinking orgy," Hamilton said. "They cleaned out the skulls of some of their victims and used them as drinking cups. Townspeople and former employés at the asylum testified to this."

The officer said some of the victims were "young children who were half Jews."

"Most of the victims appeared to be Russian men and women workers who couldn't stand the strain of hard work and little food on the German farms and in the factories," he said. "One nurse in the asylum defended the killings, saying it was better for these people to be put away because they were sick and useless, even to themselves.

Pneumonia Blamed

"There also were many Poles and some Dutch killed. I don't know whether they killed French or Belgians—but we found no evidence to prove they did.

"The medical director of the district had to prepare reports on the deaths. These people would seal them and send them in complete secrecy to Berlin. Those were his orders. In most cases the cause of death was given as pneumonia or dysentery.

Major Coverly, who listened as the two officers told their story, broke in:

"Yes, and the day after we found the asylum three of the patients still there were so weak they died. The cause of their death was given as 'sleeping sickness.'"

"A Doctor Of Honor"

Throughout the period of executions by drugs, which began after the furor among the townspeople over teh gas killings had died down, the director in charge of the asylum carried out to the letter the legal principles set down by the Nazi euthanasia law that the victims be diagnosed by a reputable physician as "incurably ill." Under the Nazi party starvation technique this only required the interval of time necessary for the ailing workers to break down from lack of food.

Confronted by the evidence and testimony on the operations of his "murder factory," the surgeon, Captain Hamilton said, only replied:

"I have always been a doctor of honor."

JEWISH TREASURE FOUND IN GERMANY

With the United States Third Army in Germany, April 9 (A. P.).—A Nazi-assembled collection of Jewish cultural treasures has been discovered in the Hessian village of Hungen, ten miles southeast of Giessen, by Lieut. Robert Schoenfield of 1696 East 31st street, Brooklyn, it was disclosed today. Hungen was made a collection point for these treasures beginning in 1941, under the supervision of Dr. Otto Paul, an Orientalist.

The Jewish collection, found scattered in a Hungen castle, a bank, a brickyard, a school and a choir loft, included sacred books dating back to the fourteenth century, thousands of other books by Jewish authors and more than 200 paintings, some by the French artist Edgard Degas. The treasures were looted from museums, the Rothschild libraries, the Oppenheim Collection at Frankfort and the Jewish Historical Museum at Amsterdam.

Yanks Counting Gold Captured In Nazi Mine

Merkers, Germany, April 9 (AP)—United States Army officers toiled in the depths of a German salt mine 2,100 feet underground today to take inventory of a captured hoard of gold and money which a

APR 10 1945

Reichsbank official said represented Germany's entire gold reserve.

More than 4,000 bags of gold bullion—each weighing 25 pounds and worth $14,000—already had been counted, but there still were tons of treasure yet to be inventoried.

May Exceed $100,000,000

There were indications that the total might exceed the $100,000,000 estimate which Dr. Werner Vieck, Reichsbank director for the Erfurt district, placed on the value of the hoard.

The inventory was begun yesterday, after 3d Army engineers, under Lieut. Jack McFarlane, of Hollywood, Cal., had blasted a hole through the thick brick wall protecting the treasure.

Lined With Bags Of Money

Corridors leading to the main treasure room were lined with huge stacks of bags containing Reichsmarks and the money of various other countries, including American dollars.

In addition to the great monetary treasure, hundreds of priceless works of art were found hidden in the mine. Dr. Paul Rave, curator of the German State Museum and an assistant director of Berlin's National Art Galleries, said two thirds of Germany's art treasures were cached there.

A titian Venus found in the mine belonged to a Berlin gallery, Dr. Rave said, but he did not know which one. Art treasures in the mine belonged to German institutions and included nothing from any of the occupied countries, he said.

TO FORCE NAZIS TO FEED OTHERS

U.S. Army Officials Setting Up Rhineland Autonomy

With U.S. 1st Army, April 9 (AP). Starting rehabilitation of Rhineland agriculture, the American 1st Army military government officials have placed on the German people the responsibility of providing their own livelihood.

Under the program the Germans will be expected to feed not only themselves but also thousands of Poles, Russians, Czechs and others brought into the country as forced laborers.

The immediate problem is to get the farmers to cultivate their fields, increase dairy production, take care of live stock and plant truck gardens. The Rhineland's major crops are wheat, rye, barley, oats and vegetables.

Approximately 3,520,000 acres are available for production. Military government experts expressed belief that 70 or 80 per cent of this land would be producing this year.

With railroads smashed by Allied bombings and few vehicles left behind by the retreating Wehrmacht, transportation is a great problem. Undamaged farm machinery in the area is being pooled, and captured enemy oil stocks and fuel will be given to the farmers.

BRIDGE BLAST PREVENTED

U. S. Sergeant Loses 2 Fingers in Exploit in Germany

WITH THE UNITED STATES ARMY, in Germany, April 9 (AP)—Because an Atlanta sergeant thought more of his duty than he did of his life, the Ninth Army drove unhampered across the Leine River toward Berlin.

The sergeant's act allowed the combat command to rush forward across the bridge unhampered, forcing a general German withdrawal to the south with the result the Second Armored Division's other commands found several more bridges intact and passed rapidly over to invest them and take Hildesheim early Sunday.

Starving Dutch Trek For Canadian Lines

With Canadian Forces in Holland, April 9 (AP)—Starving Dutch civilians are leaving Amsterdam, Rotterdam and the Hague by the thousands and streaming hopefully toward the Canadian lines in East Holland, Dutch underground leaders in a newly liberated town said today.

Many persons have died on the trek, these underground leaders said, but still the hungry horde moves on, heedless of threats or privations, cluttering the roads and disrupting German traffic.

"In Amsterdam alone," one man said, "the civilians are dying from malnutrition at the rate of some 400 a day.

Meantime, in a small concentration camp near Zutphen, Holland, Allied troops discovered bodies of twelve persons who had been beaten and shot just 24 hours before Canadian soldiers found the bodies buried under six inches of soil.

Two Tibetans Find Out What The War's About

With the Canadian 1st Army, April 9 (AP)—Two Tibetans learned today what this war is all about—after having fought in it—on both sides—for five years.

They set out on a walking tour of Russia five years ago. Promptly they were drafted into the Russian Army, captured by the Nazis and thrust into the Germany Army.

Through it all, because they could find no one able to speak Tibetan, they didn't know what nations were fighting, or why.

Then they were captured by Canadian troops, whose linguists were baffled until someone finally found a sergeant who'd been to Tibet. He told them what goes on.

Merkers, Germany, April 9 (A. Exchanged Nazi Soldier Feared Recapture

Muehlhausen, Germany, April 9 (AP)—A German soldier at least 50 years old stood at a street corner in this town frantically flagging passing American vehicles.

Finally two Americans from the 6th Armored Division decided to investigate. The German pulled out a batch of papers and through an interpreter the Americans learned that he had been captured and sent to a prison camp at Huntsville, Texas. Exchanged because of his age, he had been trying to get home to Muehlhausen but arrived only after the 6th Armored Division captured the town.

His chief worry now was that he would be recaptured and sent back to America before he could find civilian clothes.

HEIDELBERG, April 9 (AP)—The residents of this old university city seemed today to be completely indifferent to Nazi appeals for underground activity against the Allies.

"We haven't had a single case of sabotage, guerrilla or hostile reaction toward our troops," Capt. E. K. Haskell of Santa Barbara, Calif., said. "Neither have there been any reprisals against the Germans we have working for us."

Wood-Burning Tanks Found In Germany

Eisenach, Germany, April 9 (AP). Wood-burning tanks aparently were among the novel weapons with which the Germans hoped to overcome the fuel shortage handicap.

In extensive shops seized here were found a number of tanks knocked down and in process of conversion to one that was generated from wood as fuel. The cumbersome equipment added considerably to the size and vulnerability of the tanks. There is no evidence that any of the wood burners actually got into action.

Captured ordnance depots and factories falling into American hands are being examined carefuly for trace of any secret weapons.

KOENIGSBERG FORT FALLS TO SOVIETS AFTER LONG SIEGE

Fall of Beautiful Austrian Capital Now Appears Imminent.

NAZIS BATTLE FIERCELY

27,000 German Prisoners Taken in Seizure of East Prussian Bastion.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 10—Russian assault forces, swiftly overrunning Vienna, late last night captured the heart of the Austrian capital while Soviet troops along the Baltic completed the long-besieged East Prussian captial of Koenigsberg.

The fall of Vienna, cultural center of Europe and second greatest city of Adolf Hitler's greater Germany, appeared imminent.

Bloody hand-to-hand street fighting swirled through more than three-quarters of the entire city as the Germans fought from isolated pockets. [illegible] were resisting stubbornly, street barricades and overturned trolleys, only 1,700 surrendering in night and daylong fighting yesterday.

Reach Center of City

The Russians, however, knifed to the center of the city and captured world-renowned landmarks within or on the edge of Vienna's famous Ringstrasse. The Town hall, the most imposing edifice in Vienna, the parliament buildings and the opera house were in Russian hands. The Germans also had given up the central police headquarters, the main telegraph and postoffices and the central European bank.

The hold-out garrison of Koenigsberg capitulated at 9:30 p.m. (Moscow) time last night. Up to 8 p.m., the Red army had taken 27,000 prisoners, including their commandant, Gen. Lasch, in the blazing ancient fortress of the Teutonic Knights and the cradle city of Prussian militarism.

Koenigsberg, in ruins from concentrated Russian artillery and aerial bombardment, fell little more than 36 hours after Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky's Third White Russian army began storming the city in an all-out assault Sunday.

Koenigsberg, a city with a prewar population of 368,000, first was encircled Jan. 30 by the late Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky. During the following month the Germans broke the encirclement but the city remained under close siege while the Russians cleaned up an East Prussian pocket to the southwest.

Planes Attack Fort

Then Sunday, Vasilevsky, new commander of the Third White Russian group, opened a tremendous assault after Red air force planes flew 5,000 bombing and machine-gunning sorties over the ancient fortress. Breaking through an outer defense line, the Russians re-encircled the city and broke into the streets yesterday.

Premier Stalin announced Koenigsberg's fall. He pointed out that the victory cleared the last major German point of resistance along the Baltic coast east of Stettin. West of Koenigsberg, Berlin said Vasilevsky's troops were swiftly mopping-up the last Nazi pocket in East Prussia on the Samland peninsula.

Over the weekend, Russian planes sank nine transports totaling 36,000 tons and five other ships near the escape port of Pillau, while a German cruiser and five other vessels were damaged.

As the battle for Vienna raced toward a climax with Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army spearheading the drive into the city, a second Soviet army closed the escape gap on the north to 17 miles.

East and northeast of the city Marshal Rodin Y. Malinovsky's Second White Russian army expanded its bridgehead across the Danube and Morava rivers to a front of 24 miles. The bridgehead on the historic batleground of the Marchfeld plain was deepened to eight miles, Moscow revealed, when Malinovsky's troops captured Lassee, 12 miles northeast of Vienna, in a five-mile gain.

The Germans were counter-attacking desperately in this sector in an effort to keep open the highway and two secondary railroads running north out of Vienna to Bruenn (Brno) in Czechoslovakia and foil a complete Red army encirclement.

Malinovsky's cavalrymen, however, captured Oberweiden, within five miles of Gaenserndorf, controlling one secondary rail escape route, and also pushed eight miles along the north bank of the Danube. These forces captured Schoenau, one mile from Vienna's northeastern, limits and seven miles from battered Aspern airfield in Vienna's northern district of Floridsdorf.

While Malinovsky's forces swept down on Vienna from the northeast, dispatches said that other Soviet units crossed the Danube northwest of the city.

This report was in part confirmed by the Nazi transocean agency, which said that troops of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army were attempting to ford the wide river at Nuszdorf after breaking into Vienna from the northwest.

Compress Escape Gap

This meant that two Soviet groups were moving to close the escape gap, one from the east and one from the west. Malinovsky's men moving in from the east were reported in sight of Aspern airfield in northern Vienna and the Soviet newspaper Pravda said that Russian planes were hammering the airport.

Soviet planes yesterday flew 1,400 sorties over Vienna, Pravda said, machinegunning enemy strongpoints and showering leaflets bearing Tolbukhin's proclamation of promised liberation for the Austrian people.

Dispatches said there were indications that the Viennese were helping the Red army for no great fires were raging inside the captial at dawn today. The Viennese, however, had not halted the Germans from mining the streets. Booby traps were abundant and the heaviest mortar fire and large groups of Nazi snipers were being employed by the Germans.

As reports said a water and fuel shortage had begun to be felt in the embattled city, the German radio gave a series of graphic reports of fighting within the smoke and dust-shrouded capital.

The enemy said Tolbukhin's troops, now four miles inside the city, had broken through to the city's magnificent museums on the Ringstrasse after bringing up reinforcements to the west rail station. They were a few hundred yards from the parliament.

On the east, Russian forces stormed across the Danube Canal, south of the Danube itself, and broke into the Prater, the playground of the Viennese, center of a great amusement park with wide boulevards, gardens and restaurants.

These forces were reported by Berlin to have stormed the southern railway bridge across the Danube to the district of Floridsdorf on the Danube's north (left) bank, but the enemy said they were "repelled with heavy losses."

In northwest Vienna, the Russians advanced across historic Kahlenberg, a 1,585-foot terraced mount overlooking the city, Berlin said. They pushed down its slopes, overran German artillery positions and broke into the city district of Grinzing.

Lancasters Rip Hamburg Sub Yards; 159 Nazis Bagged

London, Tuesday, April 10 (AP)—Allied planes destroyed at least 159 enemy aircraft yesterday as American heavy bombers and fighters pounded airfields between Hannover and Munich and the RAF dropped its tremendous 11-ton bombs on U-boat shelters at Hamburg.

The German air force made little effort to interfere with the great armadas of Allied bombers sweeping over the Reich during the day, and consequently scores of enemy planes were caught parked on the ground when Allied fighters and fighter-bombers dropped down in strafing romps.

These successes brought the three-day cost to the German air force to at least 351 planes.

RAF Out In Force

Another bitter day for the Luftwaffe was no sooner ended than the German radio began flashing new warnings of bomber formations attacking the Reich by night. The frequency of the warnings indicated the RAF was out again in force.

Nearly half of the enemy planes destroyed yesterday were shot up along a superhighway near Munich. Two alert Mustang pilots, chasing a jet-propelled German fighter at low altitude, spotted scores of Nazi planes parked among trees beside the Autobahn, which was being used as a homing strip, and soon other swarms of American Mustangs rallied for the kill.

13 Jets Among Destroyed

The Mustangs were part of an escort of 750 fighters which accompanied more than 1,250 8th Air Force heavy bombers in assaults on ten German airfields and two military depots in the Munich area. They destroyed at least 83 of the enemy's hoarded planes, 13 of them the fast jet-propelled model.

Only one formation of Fortresses was molested in the air, four jets making an attack. One of the enemy was shot down.

Returning pilots said an area 60 miles square around Munich was a mass of flames after the heavy bombers dumped 3,500 tons of high explosives and fragmentation bombs on their targets.

66 Planes Wrecked

Fighter-bombers of the United States 9th Air Force, making more than 1,000 sorties from their bases on the Continent for a loss of only one plane, wrecked 66 German planes and damaged 42 others on airfields at Celle, 20 miles northeast of Hannover, and on five fields within 10 miles of Erfurt and Weimar.

Another parked plane was blasted at Magdeburg and four Messerschmitt 109s were shot down in combat north of Bayreuth, near the Czechoslovak border.

Another jet was downed by medium and light bombers making 700 sorties against railyards, storage depots and an oil refinery in the Erfurt area. One bomber was lost to a jet attack.

Three jets were knocked out of the skies by Polish Mustangs covering the RAF Lancaster bombers which rocked the thick-shelled U-boat pens at Hamburg with both 11-ton "volcano" and six-ton "earthquake" bombs.

Hamburg's Sub Yards Hit Fifth Time In Week

London, April 9 (AP)—More than 900 RAF heavy bombers blasted the Blohm-Voss submarine yards at Hamburg and the Lutzekendorf synthetic oil plant near Leipzig last night while Mosquitos rocked Berlin with another dose of two-ton bombs.

The raids followed up assaults yesterday by more than 1,950 planes of the United States 8th Air Force, which bombed eleven targets between Berlin and Nuernberg without being challenged by the Luftwaffe.

Fifth Blow This Week

The RAF attack on the Blohm-Voss yard was the fifth heavy bomber raid on that objective within a week. The plant, which was described by the Air Ministry as probably the most important ship-building yard in Germany, still employs 17,000 workers and is one of the main assembly points for the new prefabricated submarines.

The German Air Force suffered its worst defeat of the year over the week end as 192 of its rationed planes were destroyed.

A total of 104 Nazi planes were bagged by 8th Air Force gunners Saturday. Sixty-four were credited to fighter pilots and the remainder to bomber gunners.

Yanks Bag 35

United States 9th Air Force pilots shot down 32 yesterday and destroyed 38 on the ground, while 8th Air Force fighters got three more.

The remainder of the week-end bag was accounted for by RAF fighters.

Many of the destroyed German planes were the jet-propelled type. Reports indicate that they are being flown by inexperienced pilots.

The 8th Air Force's losses for two days totaled 32 bombers and 4 fighters. Some German pilots attempted to ram the raiders when their guns failed.

Eighth Air Force targets yesterday included airfields at Schastadt, Unterslaurersbach, Roth, Hof and Eger.

Other Targets

Two ordnance plants at Bayreuth and Grafenwohr, the Derben oil depot, 55 miles west of Berlin, and a jet-plane repair center at Furth, near Nuernberg, also were bombed. Four rail yards in the same areas were hit.

RAF Coastal Command planes attacked convoys in the Skagerrak and Kattegat over the week end. Half a dozen merchant vessels were reported sunk or set afire.

From all of its week end operations the RAF reported thirteen aircraft missing.

RAF Liberators from Italy last night bombed the railyards at Trento, junction of the Brenner route with the Venice line.

Bridges Bombed

They followed up a daylight attack by more than 500 United States 15th Air Force heavy bombers along the Brenner route and on other rail objectives in northeastern Italy.

Lightnings bombed bridges in Austria and southern Germany and knocked out 22 locomotives.

Ten enemy planes were destroyed in yesterday's operations from Italy, against a loss of twelve from the Mediterranean Allied air forces.

RUSSIANS PUSH WAY TO HEART OF VIENNA

Fighting Engulfs Three-quarters of City—Nazis Report Reds Reach Palace Park and Fourth Railway Station.

London, April 9 (A. P.).—Swiftly overrunning street barricades and overturned trolley cars, Russian shock troops reached the inner heart of Vienna today, as the fighting engulfed three-quarters of the city and Moscow dispatches said that the Russians were within eight to twelve miles of encircling it.

Berlin reported that Russian storm battalions overnight fought their way through battles down the famous Mariahilfer-strasse, Vienna's main shopping center, to reach her world-renowned museums lining the Ringstrasse, original boundary of the 2,000-year old capital of Austria. Bloody hand-to-hand fighting, punctuated by exploding mortar shells and grenades, swept through almost the entire area of the city south of the Danube. Apparently fourteen of the city's twenty-one districts were being invested from the south, east and northwest.

Within the capital the Russians were reported attempting to cross the Danube to the north bank. They had already spanned the Danube Canal, and, according to the Germans, had fought their way into Schoenbrunn Park, site of the summer palace of the Hapsburgs, and also had reached Franz Joseph Railway Station in the northern part of the city.

Schoenbrunn Park is west and southwest of the three railway stations previously captured by the Russians in the southern part of the city. Schoenbrunn palace rivals Versailles in its sumptious plan.

The Germans said that the Russians reached the Franz Josef Station, controlling traffic northward out of the city, by advancing across the historic Kahlenberg, a mountain overlooking Vienna on the northwest, and through the famous wine-growing suburb of Grinzing. Just east of Grinzing, the Germans said, the Russians were attempting to storm across to the east bank of the Danube at Nuzsdorf, a suburb.

Moscow dispatches said it was believed that the Russians had already crossed further out, in the vicinity of captured Klosterneuberg.

Red Colums May Link Up.

Other forces had stormed across the 325-yard-wide river east of Vienna and the two columns were driving toward a junction on the Marchfeld, the flat Viennese plain north of the river. The eastern column, from captured Pframa, was reported to have pushed to within sight of the Aspern Airport, inside Vienna's city limits on the northern bank of the Danube. Already having cut the railroad leading to Bruenn, Czecho-Slovak munitions center sixty-five miles north of Vienna, this column was driving for the main highway leading north and had taken it under long-range fire at some places.

Only one railway, the north bank line running to Prague, 150 miles to the northwest, remained open and it was menaced if not cut by the force reported to have crossed the river northwest of Vienna.

West of Vienna the Russians had captured Neulengbach, fifteen miles from the city, and were reported to have advanced several miles from there to within sight of St. Poelten on the Vienna-Linz Railway. St. Poelten is less than sixty miles east of Linz, Austrian munitions town, and is 190 miles from Munich.

At Center of Koenigsberg.

In East Prussia, meanwhile, the Germans reported, the Russians battled their way to the center of Koenigsberg, the long-beleaguered fortress capital of that junkers province.

Marshal Alexander Vasilevsky's tanks and tommy gunners smashed into the city from both the southwest and northwest and reached the main railway station and the Pregel River, which bisects the capital, Berlin said. The city was ablaze and shrouded in smoke from heavy assaults by artillery and divebombers.

The Russians also were driving to clear the Samland peninsula, northwest of the capital, last bit of East Prussia left in German hands.

Attacked From Air

The Red air force, which made 1,400 flights over Vienna yesterday, renewed its attacks today and also was heavily pounding another encircled city, industrial Breslau.

[A Reuter dispatch from Moscow said a big battle for Breslau, encircled capital of German Silesia, had begun.]

Southwest of Vienna, Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army made bold strides in the direction of Graz, Austria's second city, and reached positions on the Lafnitz River, 30 miles from the northeastern suburbs and less than 150 miles from Berchtesgaden.

Fighting In Koenigsberg

Another Tolbukhin unit was swinging through the Fishbacher Alps, between Graz and Vienna.

A Moscow announcement of the Koenigsberg drive came as the German radio declared the Russians may already have started their long-expected offensive against Berlin. Fall of the East Prussian fortress city would release thousands of additional Soviet troops for the push on the German capital.

Russia to Insist On Full Role in World Affairs

Moscow Radio Calls This the Difference Between Now and After 1918

LONDON, April 9 (AP).—The Moscow radio declared tonight that Soviet Russia "cannot and will not be elbowed out of participation in international affairs" and that "Germany must be disarmed economically, militarily and politically."

In a Red Army commentary hour heard by the British Broadcasting Corporation, entitled "Hitlerite Germany's Moral and Political Defeat in the Course of the War," the Moscow radio asserted the German nation "must make good the damage suffered by victims of her aggression."

"War criminals must be punished with severity," the broadcast added. "It is essential to prevent future propagation of reactionary militaristic and chauvinist ideas in Germany—ideas on which the Germans have been reared for many generations."

The broadcast followed by only a short time a Moscow announcement of findings by a Soviet state commission which reported that the Nazis killed 577,000 persons in Latvian concentration camps during the German occupation.

Continuing comments on German responsibility, Moscow said: "The population of Germany, as the result of its responsibility for crimes committed by the Hitlerite clique, will be able to regain its right to be accepted into the comity of other European nations only by years of intense toil and hard trials.

"Radical differences between the situation today and the situation after 1918 consist in the fact that the Soviet Union, the country where democracy has been brought to its last logical conclusion, an implacable enemy of reaction and Fascism, cannot and will not be elbowed out of participation in international affairs, as happened after the first world war.

"In close collaboration with all other peace-loving nations, the three leading powers of the anti-German coaltion will build up a naw and effective organization of international security, the task of which will be to insure a stable and lasting peace."

577,000 NAZI MURDERS SEEN

Russians Indict 88 For Killings In Latvia Camps

London, April 9 (AP)—Two Wehrmacht field marshals and 86 other Germans were named responsible for the death of 577,000 persons in concentration camps in Latvia and the deportation of 175,000 others as slave labor in a 6,000-word report tonight by a Soviet investigating committee.

Field Marshals von Model and Schoerner, army group commanders, were blamed for the crimes in the report which a Moscow broadcast said was made by a group of prominent Soviet Latvians and Russians.

The committee reported that the Germans had methodically destroyed factories, public utilities, libraries, museums, hospitals and homes, had ransacked libraries and art galleries and had slain many Latvian intellectuals.

At Least 170,000 Civilians

At least 170,000 civilians, including women and children, were slaughtered in mass extermination camps near Riga, it was charged.

"The German fiends spared no one," the report said. "They murdered men and women, healthy and sick, children and old people. In the central prison in Riga they murdered more than 2,000 children whom they had taken away from parents and in Salaspils camp they killed more than 2,000 children."

In this camp the commission said it found nine grave pits covering a total area of more than 3,600 square yards, and had established that the Germans tortured to death more than 56,000 civilians in the camp.

2,450 "Evacuated"

"In the first and second psychiatric hospitals they killed all the mentally diseased," the report said, citing three instances in which German SS (Elite Guard) police removed a total of more than 2,450 mental defectives from the hospitals in 1942 and "shot all of them in Bikernik Forest" on the outskirts of Riga.

A hospital doctor testified he was instructed to note on the sick lists simply, "evacuated by SS police."

The committee said that on August 22, 1941, about 780 mental patients from the Daugavpils (Dvinsk) psychiatric hospital were shot in a small town, including twenty healthy children temporarily transferred to the hospital building from a children's home.

Just Before Easter

"The Germans also killed residents of Riga and its suburbs in Bikernek, Dreilin and Rumbul forests," the report continued. "In Bikernek Forest, located on the outskirts of Riga, the Hitlerites shot 46,500 civilians."

One witness living near the forest told the commission he counted 41 busses in one morning during a two-day movement of doomed persons just before Easter, 1942.

On Easter Sunday he said many residents went to the place of shooting in the forest and saw a big open pit filled with slain women and children.

"The bodies of the women and children bore traces of torture," the witness was quoted as saying. "Many had bruised faces and heads. Some had hands or fingers cut off, eyes gouged out, stomachs ripped open."

And A Whole Village

The committe reported investigators, at the forest, found 55 graves with a total area of more than 30,000 square yards.

The report also charged massacres in these places: Dreilin Forest, near Riga, "more than 130,000 civilians and prisoners of war" shot; Rumbul Forest, 38,000 civilians slain; Daugavpils (Dvinsk), daily shootings of "hundreds of Soviet citizens kept in prisons and camps," including more than 43,000 at one point on the territory of Zolotaya Gorka, district of Rezekne (Rezhitsa), "15,200 civilians including more than 2,000 children" and the entire population of the village of Audriny, destroyed allegedly for helping the Red Army.

In the first days of the occupation, the report said, the Germans drove Jews into synagogues, which then were locked and set afire, burning 2,000 Jews to death in four synagogues.

In October, 1941, 35,000 Jews were confined behind barbed wire in a Riga ghetto, the report said, and the next month "the Germans picked out 4,500 able-bodied men and 300 women from the ghetto and shot the rest on November 30 and December 12, 1941."

Children And Mothers

A witness was quoted on the shooting of the Jews as saying:

"People with little children, old men and women, poured out into the streets, where they lined up. They were dispatched in busses but most of the people were driven on foot. In endless columns the Jews plodded along the streets. The exodus lasted from 5 P.M. Saturday all through the night and ended on Sunday evening.

"The streets were covered with ice, and people fell and were shot on the spot. The streets of the ghetto became red with blood. Children and mothers were shot mercilessly.

"As people traveled their last road, the road to death, German beasts snatched small children from their mothers' hands, seized them by the feet and killed them by smashing them against poles and fences."

The committee said the Jews were shot in Rumbul Forest, where they were forced to strip to their underwear and march to their graves to be killed. Those who attempted to resist were beaten with rubber clubs.

At Daugavpils ghetto, the Germans were charged with having staged five mass shootings of Jews, leaving only 400 of the original 30,000 alive after the last mass shooting May 1 and 2, 1942.

The commission reported that 327,000 Soviet prisoners of war were tortured or shot to death in Latvia, many of them at Stalag 350, in Riga.

The commission said the Germans daily shot prisoners of war who were too weak or ill to work and insulted and beat them for no reason whatever.

APR 10 1945

The report concluded: "The Extraordinary State Commission has established the fact that bloody crimes were committed in the Latvian Socialist Republic. Destruction of towns and agriculture has been done on explicit orders of the Nazi government and the German command."

ELECTION TRUCE IN BRITAIN MAY END AFTER V-E DAY

King

LONDON, April 9 — (AP) Parliament returns from its Easter recess tomorrow amid growing indications that Britain's election truce will vanish with the defeat of Germany—if not sooner.

While the country still is united behind Prime Minister Churchill as the national war leader, a strong challenge to Churchill as the conservative domestic leader is crystallizing in the laborite faction both in the House of Commons and within the Prime Minister's coalition.

No Election in 10 Years

Britain has not had a national election in 10 years. Under the truce when vacancies occur in Parliament the party holding the seat is allowed to fill it without opposition from any other major parties. The independents have upset this procedure in a few instances, however.

Ernest Bevin, long time strongman of the trade union movement and Churchill's minister of labor, touched off a fiery political exchange in provocative weekend speeches asserting that while he has pledged his loyalty to the Prime Minister "as a national leader, I have never given it to him as the leader of the Conservative party."

DAY

Bevin blamed the Conservatives for for failing to prepare for the defense of the country and called for a sweeping program of nationalization of some key industries like power, fuel and transport.

Taking up the challenge, Brendan Bracke, conservative minister of information, replied that Bevin himself was lukewarm in supporting rearmament measures before the war and denounced the labor program for nationalization on the grounds that "government has enough to do without meddling directly in the management of our trades and industries."

Churchill to Carry On

Churchill has indicated clearly that he is prepared to carry on as the head of a post-war reconstruction government and has suggested a continuation of the coalition even after the election.

Bevin, who heads the transport workers' union, is the first key laborite figure in the present cabinet to reject this idea. In asserting that he would stand by the desires of a majority of his party the labor minister made what appeared to be a possible bid for the prime ministership himself.

Less colorful Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee, as the present leader of the party, normally would head any labor government. The party's leadership, however, is not held unshakably by any single individual and both Bevin and Home Secretary Herbert Morrison would have strong support for the top job.

The election campaign already is beginning to take shape. In the present Commons the Conservatives hold 379 seats and Laborites 163 with the remaining 73 divided mainly among Liberals and Independents.

The conservative London Sunday Times contended that the issue would be whether to "dismiss Mr. Churchill to make room for Mr. Attlee."

ference that the Conservative party had failed to prepare for the defense of the country and "ran a foreign policy which nearly brought not only Britain but the whole of civilization to dust." He urged nationalization of coal mines and of the power industry and "a completely co-ordinated transport system publicly owned."

Britons Debate Issue Of 1939 Preparedness

KING

London, April 9 (AP)—A rugged political debate developed today, with two members of the Cabinet at odds over the state of Britain's 1939 preparedness for war and the treatment of postwar industry.

Brendan Bracken, Conservative Minister of Information, replied vigorously to week-end speeches by Ernest Bevin, Laborite Minister of Labor, and said the Labor party's postwar program would mean a "sort of totalitarian state."

Bracken also assailed attempts to blame the Conservative party for prewar unpreparedness.

Bevin Wrong, Too

"Mr. Bevin denounced the Conservatives for not warning the country that it was heading for war," Bracken told a luncheon of Holborn Conservatives. "They ordered in good company. In March, 1939, Mr. Bevin wrote: 'The nation is organizing for a war that may never take place.' Lack of vision is no monopoly of Conservatives.

"If Mr. Churchill had been listened to this country might have been saved from much misery and destruction."

Attacks Labor Program

Bracken attacked the Labor program calling for sweeping nationalization of some industries, and declared:

"When the Socialists suggest Britain should set up the biggest of all monopolies, Government direction of industry, transport, banks, fuel and power, neither Conservatives nor millions of electors who have no party affiliations will follow them.

"Surely the Government has enough to do without meddling directly in the management of our trades and industries. Britain will never accept the sort of totalitarian state desired by the Socialists.

"Instead of messing about with nationalization schemes which must inevitably create confusion, not to say chaos, the whole production power of the country should be geared to provide our people with the homes, the furniture and all the goods they so greatly desire."

Bevin charged in a speech Saturday before a Yorkshire labor con-

SOVIET RADIO DEMANDS GERMANY BE DISARMED

DAY

LONDON, April 9—(AP) The Moscow radio declared tonight that Soviet Russia "cannot and will not be elbowed out of participation in international affairs" and that "Germany must be disarmed economically, militarily and politically."

In a Red army commentary hour heard by the BBC, entitled "Hitlerite Germany's moral and political defeat in the course of the war," the Moscow radio asserted the German nation "must make good the damage caused by victims of her aggression."

ADVISER OF HITLER CALLED A SUICIDE

London, April 9 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio said today that Max Amman, veteran Nazi party executive and close friend and adviser of Adolf Hitler, had committed suicide in Munich "leaving a letter stating that he was despondent because of the imminent collapse of Nazi Germany." Amman was the first business manager of the Nazi party and attained great wealth as publisher of party newspapers and books. He was known as one of Hitler's closest associates and most trusted adviser on money matters.

2000 U. S. PLANES RAID MUNICH ZONE

Jameson

London, April 9 (A. P.).—More than 1,250 American heavy bombers and 750 fighters smashed ten German airfields, an underground oil storage depot and a powder plant, all within a sixty-mile radius of Munich, today. R. A. F. Lancasters escorted by Spitfires and Mustangs unloaded eleven-ton and six-ton bombs on U boat shelters and oil storage depots at Hamburg in other daylight raids.

An armada of more than 900 R. A. F. heavy bombers blasted the Blohm-Voss submarine yards at Hamburg and the Lutzekendorf synthetic oil plant near Leipzig last night while fleet Mosquitoes rocked Berlin with another dose of two-ton blockbusters.

DAY

The German Air Force suffered its worst defeats of the year during the week end as 192 of its carefully rationed planes were destroyed within a space of twenty-four hours. Many of the destroyed German planes were the fast jet-propelled craft, but reports indicate they are being flown by inexperienced junior pilots.

War-Risk Rates Reduced

London Underwriters Report New Lowering of Levels

LONDON, April 9 (AP).—Further reductions in cargo war-risk rates on shipping to and from the United Kingdom was announced by the Institute of London Underwriters today.

New rates, effective immediately, include Atlantic ports of Canada or the United States north of Cape Hatteras, 0.5 per cent, compared with 0.75 previously; Atlantic ports in the United States south of Cape Hatteras and United States Gulf ports, 0.5 against 1 per cent; Pacific ports of Canada and the United States or Central America, 0.75 against 1.25; South American Atlantic or Pacific 1.5 against 2.25; Australia and New Zealand, two against two and seven-eights.

U. S. FLYERS SAVED AFTER 109 HOURS

London, April 9 (A. P.).—Six American airmen were rescued from the storm-swept North Sea last week after 109 hours adrift. They were members of an Eighth Air Force air-sea rescue unit who on March 30 attempted to rescue a Mustang fighter pilot. Their Catalina flying boat was disabled in a rough landing, and a formation of jet planes repeatedly attacked the ship as it foundered helplessly in the choppy waters. The rescue crew failed to reach the Mustang pilot and saved themselves only by lashing dinghies together.

APR 10 1945

American and British planes located them and kept a protective vigil overhead until their rescue, dropping supplies to them as montainous waves thwarted efforts of another flying boat and several small launches to reach them until April 4. A British launch finally effected the rescue.

Lieut. John V. Lapenus of Baton Rouge, La., was the Catalina's pilot, and the other crew members were Lieut. Theodore J. Langan, 23, of 94 Paulin Boulevard, Leonia, N. J., co-pilot; Lieut. Charles V. Buffington, 29, Kansas City, Mo., navigator; Sergt. William F. Dotson, 27, Jasper, Ala.; Sergt. Don Hochstetter, Moses Lake, Wash., and Sergt. James A. McMullin, Blytheville, Ark.

10,000 English Wives Reported Bound Here

London, April 9 (A. P.).—The London Daily Mail said today that the War Department at Washington is preparing plans to send the wives and children of American service men in this country—irrespective of rank—to their husbands' homes in America free of cost.

The United States Army plans to assume the task of issuing visas to the more than 10,000 wives and families of American soliders who have been married here, the newspaper added. Until now only the wives of men of the rank of staff-sergeant or higher have been eligible for free passage.

3 German E-Boats Sunk By British

London, April 9 (AP)—Three German E-boats were sunk and five others severely damaged by British light coastal forces over the week end in one of the fiercest battles ever fought between small warcraft in the North Sea.

On two successive nights the enemy sent out strong forces of E-boats in an attempt to approach Allied convoy routes between England and liberated ports in Bel-

The Nazi vessels were shadowed by RAF planes while the navy's little ships sped in to fight them off. Two torpedo boats were lost.

A number of German seamen from sunken ships were picked up as prisoners.

War Risk Rates For Cargoes Cut

London, April 9 (A. P.).—Further reductions in cargo war risk rates on shipping to and from the United Kingdom was announced by the Institute of London Underwriters today.

New rates, effective immediately, include Atlantic ports of Canada or the United States north of Cape Hatteras, one-half per cent, compared with three-quarters previously; Atlantic ports in the United States south of Cape Hatteras and United States gulf ports, one-half against one per cent; Pacific ports of Canada and the United States or Central America, three-quarters against one and one-quarter; South American Atlantic or Pacific one and one-half against two and one-quarter, Australia and New Zealand, two against two and seven-eighths.

LENINGRAD FIGHT PRAISED

Mrs. Churchill Regards City as 'Sacred,' Moscow Reports

LONDON, April 9 (AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the British Prime Minister, told citizens of Leningrad today that she regarded their city as "sacred" because of the lives sacrificed during its siege, the Moscow radio reported.

Mrs. Churchill spoke briefly during a visit to the city and said she and her secretary, Miss Mabel Johnson, hoped to visit Leningrad hospitals.

"Long live Leningrad," she concluded. "Long live friendship between our two countries."

Nazis Taking 10-Year-Olds

London, April 9 (AP)—The German DNB news agency said in a broadcast today that 10-year-old boys and girls were being called up "for the Hitler Youth service" to help meet Germany's manpower problems. The broadcast did not say what their duties would be.

Gen. Hurley Leaves London.

London, April 9 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, United States Ambassador to China, left London today en route to Chungking. He was recalled Feb. 19 to confer with President Roosevelt in Washington.

Australian Backs Hague Court.

London, April 9 (A. P.).—The Australian Minister of External Affairs, Herbert V. Evatt, urged strengthened powers today for the Permanent Court of International Justice to counterbalance post-war security plans giving "almost unlimited authority to a small security council in which the Big Five predominate." He spoke before the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

Public Relations Man Of Army Killed in Action

2 Reporters and a Censor Missing; One From Brooklyn

PARIS, April 9 (AP).—Technical Sergeant Clarence Pearse, of El Reno, Okla., a member of the Army Public Relations Division, was killed in action during airborne operations in connection with the 21st Army Group crossing of the Rhine March 21, Supreme Headquarters announced today.

Two correspondents and a censor wer ereported missing in the same operation. They are Corporal Robert Krell, of 277 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, of "Yank" magazine; Geoffrey Charles Bocca, of "The London Daily Express," and Captain H. C. Hewitt, a British press censor.

Of forty-six correspondents and Army public relations men who participated in the air-borne operations, five were forced to bail out, four of these suffering injuries, the announcement said. Three others were injured.

CARDINAL HLOND FLOWN TO PARIS

Paris, April 9 (A. P.).—August Cardinal Hlond, 64-year-old Primate of Poland who has vigorously accused the Nazis of perpetrating atrocities against Polish priests, has been liberated by American Ninth Army troops from a convent near Paderborn, where he had been held by the Gestapo for fourteen months.

The Roman Catholic Church leader was flown to Paris yesterday by Capt. William Fadler of Joplin, Mo., personal pilot of Lieut.-Gen. William H. Simpson, Ninth Army commander. Cardinal Hlond declined to describe his treatment by the Gestapo, saying it was "a personal matter of the past."

Accused Collaborator Tried

Paris, April 9 (AP)—The trial of Lucian Henri Rottee, whom the state charges with having been the Gestapo's torture expert during the occupation of Paris, opened today in the Court of Justice. The formal indictment accused him of collusion with the enemy. Testimony of 24 witnesses will begin tomorrow.

Million Nazi Captives

Paris, April 9 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army group has captured more than a million Germans on the Western front.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army leads with 418,501. Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges's 1st Army, two months older, has taken 405,703, and the 9th Army of Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson has bagged 182,162 for a combined total of 1,006,366.

No figure has been announced for Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow's 15th Army, also a part of Bradley's command which includes more than a million American troops. Another American Army, the Seventh, had captured almost 200,000 German troops. It is a component of Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers' 6th Army group.

Typhus Quarantine Imposed Beyond Rhine

Paris, April 9 (AP)—The United States Army chief surgeon's office imposed a rigid quarantine on all Germany beyond the Rhine today to prevent typhus, now reported in 58 different Reich areas, from spreading westward into France and the Low Countries.

The quarantine does not apply to Allied soldiers and none has as yet been reported stricken by the lice-carried disease. More than 500 cases have been found, however, among German civilians, war prisoners and forced laborers in recently occupied territory in western Germany.

The health ban will prevent persons other than troops from passing either the Rhine or Waal rivers without first being examined and dusted with delousing powder. The Medical Corps also is taking a large amount of anti-typhus serum into Germany for innoculation purposes.

French Troops In Reich Visited By De Gaulle

Paris, April 9 (AP)—General de Gaulle returned to France today after a week-end visit to French troops in Germany.

De Gaulle crossed the Rhine Saturday on a pontoon bridge built by French engineers entirely of French material. He conferred decorations and visited Karlsruhe and several other badly shattered cities.

At the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, French 1st Army commander, he made a brief speech pointing out that this was the first time in 150 years that a French army had forced its way across the Rhine.

ALLIES IN ALL-OUT AIR RAID IN ITALY

Heavy Bombings Are Paving Way For 8th Army

Rome, April 9 (AP)—The bulk of Allied air strength in Italy was thrown into a terrific bombardment today of an 8-mile-wide strip in the path of the 8th Army in the direction of the Po River toward Ferrara.

A portion of the United States 15th Air Force joined the United States 12th Air Force in the saturation bombing, which at first reports appeared to exceed the devastation wrought at Cassino in the great assault [illegible]

Soaked With Explosives

Within the area was the town of Lugo, 10 miles northeast of Highway No. 9 and 1 mile west of the Senio River that has been the frontline boundary for many weeks.

The limited locale was literally soaked with high explosives by relays of American planes.

Lugo is 32 miles southeast of Ferrara and 27 east of Bologna. It is an important station on the Ravenna-Bologna railway and is on roads leading to both Bologna and Ferrara.

The Allied 15th Army Group communiqué, issued earlier, dealt only with Sunday's ground operations and gave no word whether the 8th Army movements today were integrated with the colossal aerial assault announced shortly before midnight.

Two Miles From Massa

The regular communiqué said American 5th Army troops on the Allied left flank had driven against weakening German resistance within 2 miles of Massa, last sizable town on the road to the west coast Italian naval base of La Spezia.

Japanese-Americans of the famed 442d Infantry Regiment pushed steadily ahead from captured Monte Belvedere while Negro troops of the 92d Infantry Division captured Montignoso, 2 miles from Massa, as well as Porta and the small village of Strinato, all north and northwest of Strettoia, one of the jumping-off places for the present advance.

Resistance Slackens

Enemy artillery, which had poured down a hail of fire at the start of the advance, slowed somewhat in this area, and the previously fierce ground resistance slackened. There was no official explanation of the diminished German reaction.

Two British destroyers for the third day shelled coastal batteries and troop concentrations between the advancing American lines and La Spezia. The enemy battery at Punta Bianca, on the near side of the narrow Gulf of La Spezia, was officially reported "still active."

No change was reported in the British Eighth army's lines at the other extreme of the front, east of the Valli di Comacchio lagoon. The Germans still were holding Porto Garibaldi and the north bank of the Valetta canal. The Eighth army continued mopping up enemy pockets north of the Reno river at the lagoon's southwest corner. A total of 250 prisoners have been captured so far.

The naval command announced that destroyers including the American ship MacKenzie, the British Musketeer and the French Tempete and Trombe, shelled the Italian Riviera sporadically last week.

Yank Drive On Massa Meets Light Resistance

Rome, April 9 (AP)—Fifth Army troops battling their way up the Italian west coast are closing in on Massa against scattered enemy resistance after capturing 3,000-foot Monte Belvedere, 2 miles south of the town, Allied headquarters announced today.

Crack Japanese-American infantry troops were spearheading the advance.

Elements of the 442d Regiment, composed of American-born Japanese, beat off German counterattacks northeast of Monte Belvedere and cleared out enemy pockets south of Monte Folgorito and east of the main highway leading to La Spezia.

Negroes Take Two Villages

Meanwhile, tank-supported troops of the 92d Negro Division stabbed forward to the village of Porta and captured Montignoso, about two miles southeast of Massa, as well as Strinato to the north of Strettoia.

For the third straight day the British destroyers Marne and Lookout gave the west-coast Americans effective support.

At the eastern end of the front, 8th Army units were mopping up the enemy around the southwestern fringe of the Comacchio lagoon. Prisoners in that locality totaled 250.

Patrols Active

Brisk patrol actions were reported on the Senio River line across the southeast corner of the Po Valley and in the mountains a little farther west.

The naval command announced that Allied warships carried out bombardments of communications, dumps and gun posts along the Italian Riviera near the French frontier last week. The United States destroyer Mackenzie, the French destroyers Tempete and Trombe and the British destroyer Musketeer participated.

Sweden To Repatriate German Civilians Now

Stockholm, April 9 (AP)—All German civilians who have fled to Sweden in recent days will be sent back to their own country immediately, the Swedish Minister of Justice announced today.

Decision to return the German citizens, made by the Swedish Royal Council, will not affect German military deserters or those persons currently in quarantine, the Justice Minister's announcement said.

More than 100 German refugees, most from the Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia, have arrived in Sweden during the last ten days.

Spanish Action Likely As Japs Ignore Protest

Madrid, April 9 (AP)—The Japanese have not yet replied to a Spanish protest against the bayoneting of Spanish citizens and the destruction of Spanish property in the Philippines, but all indications tonight were that the Spaniards are not planning to wait any longer before at least breaking off diplomatic relations.

Spain's protest note and demand for satisfaction were delivered to Yakichiro Suma, Japanese Minister, March 19. Suma promptly went to the legation, burned papers and packed a large quantity of art he had bought in Spain. He began playing golf at the Madrid Country Club each afternoon while the Spaniards awaited an answer.

There was every indication that the Spaniards would put a halt to this situation—possibly tomorrow when the Cabinet meets.

2 Poles Back Warsaw Bid To Frisco Parley

Moscow, April 9 (AP)—Jan Dembowski, Polish professor, in a three-column article today in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, asserted that the Polish Provisional Government in Warsaw "has an undeniable right to represent Poland before the whole world" at the San Francisco World Security Conference.

In Warsaw Chairman Yanosh, of the Poland Peasant party, voiced similar sentiments, asserting that failure to invite the provisional government "is a direct result of activities of reactionary Poles abroad."

Paasikivi Government Presents Resignations

Helsinki, April 9 (AP)—Premier Juho Passikivi's Government resigned today but agreed to President Marshal Mannerheim's request that it remain in office until a new government, expected to show a Leftist trend, can be formed.

The action had been expected since the mid-March parliamentary elections, which showed a Leftist swing.

Parliamentary groups will assemble Tuesday to apportion places on Diet committees, where Conservatives, by uniting against the Leftists, will retain a majority.

BIG ALLIED BOMBERS HIT BRIDGES IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, April 9—(AP) American and British heavy bombers, concentrating on the already riddled Japanese communications in southeast Asia, smashed nine rail and highway bridges on the vital Burma-Thailand and Pegu-Martaban supply routes.

The American heavy bombers, escorted by [illegible] of the First Air command, [illegible]ment, as low as 300 feet in their bridge bombing forays. In lower Burma British fighterbombers sank 40 enemy river craft and two coastal vessels.

A security blackout masked the new thrusts of British armo units in Burma. Sharp figh continued two miles west of where the Japanese are c tenaciously to the Cent rail junction but the ready have cut the ra the town.

Chinese Report 2 Jap Forces Retreating

Chungking, April 9 (AP)—Two Japanese columns were reported withdrawing into Honan province today after suffering setbacks at the hands of Chinese defending the Shensi border.

A Chinese communiqué said that more than half of one column had been wiped out when it was surrounded in southwest Honan barely 30 miles from the Shensi frontier, and that Chinese forces were pursuing the remnants eastward.

The second Japanese column, striking toward Shensi from northwestern Honan, was reported routed after six hours' fighting in which 400 of the invaders were slain. Chinese forces pursuing the withdrawing enemy were said to be nearing Japanese-held Changsuichen on the Lo River 70 miles from the Shensi border.

CHINESE BAR SHENSI DRIVE

Fight Way Into Changsuichen. Battle On In Laohokow

Chungking, Tuesday, April 10 (AP)—Chinese troops fought into the town of Changsuichen, 70 miles from the Shensi province border, Monday in a fierce battle to check anincipient Japanese threat from northwestern Honan, the Chinese high command announced today.

The Chinese, in a communiqué, said the enemy had penetrated Laohokow, 200 miles northwest of Hankow, but said at least 400 invaders were killed. "Hard fighting is proceeding there," the report said.

Chinese Air Force Active

Widespread offensive activity by the Chinese Air Force in different sectors of Honan also was announced.

An earlier communiqué reported hard fighting in both Honan and Hupeh provinces as the Japanese sought to smash resistance for a possible entry into Shensi, northern gateway to Chungking.

Two Japanese counterattacks northwest of Neisiang, on the Honan-Shensi highway, were beaten back with heavy enemy losses, the high command announced. Chinese troops had progressed eastward in a drive from points northwest of Sichwan, a Honan province highway town 37 miles from the Shensi border.

In northwestern Honan, Chinese pressing toward Chang-Suichen on the Lo river 70 miles from Shensi met stubborn resistance as they tried to crush another possible threat to Shensi.

Just to the south of Sichwan, in northern Hupeh, heavy fighting occurred in the neighborhood of Laohokow. Continued Japanese attacks were made against the Chinese who claimed they still held the city, near which the American 12th Air force recently evacuated an important bomber base.

In a "major offensive" in the vicinity of Ninchang, 45 miles to the south, the High command said, the Chinese captured several heights and killed several hundred Japanese.

Chinese troops operating east of the Peiping-Hankow railroad were reported to have broken into the railway station at Suipang in Honan on April 5 after four hours of hand-to-hand fighting, killing 100 Japanese troops and destroying two nearby rail bridges. Several Chinese columns continued driving toward enemy bases on the southern section of the railway, it was announced.

JAP ARTILLERY SLOWS AMERICAN DRIVE ON OKINAWA

Marines in North Push Rapidly Ahead Against Weak Opposition.

YANK ATTACK BLUNTED

Mighty Artillery Duel Described as Heaviest of Pacific War.

GUAM, Tuesday, April 10—(AP) The heaviest artillery duel of the Pacific, likened to major battles in the European theater, blazed through its third successive day Monday on southern Okinawa and held 24th Army corps troops to small gains while Marines to the north pushed ahead rapidly.

One artillery officer described the Japanese defenses as "the Okinawa Siegfried Line." Marine field pieces joined army artillery, ships' guns and bombers in an increasingly heavy bombardment of the enemy's well-fortified positions in cave-pocked rugged hill country.

Jap Guns Destroyed

The combined bombardment destroyed Japanese guns, emplacements, barracks and small craft, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in today's communique.

Maj. Gen. Ron S. Geiger's Marine Third Amphibious corps, meantime, moved ahead 3,000 to 4,000 yards to gain control of half of Motobu peninsula against resistance described by Nimitz as "scattered and ineffective." They were near Kushibaru town, about three miles north of the base of the peninsula.

Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Army corps troops were held to small local gains by Japanese artillery and by increasingly heavy small arms and machine gun fire.

The Doughboys' positions remained virtually unchanged Monday night. They still were two miles north of Machinato airdrome and it was another two miles to Naha, Okinawa's capital city of 66,000 on the west coast. On the east, they remained more than a mile from Yonabaru town and its still uncompleted airfield.

Heaviest of Pacific War

The artillery duel was the heaviest of the entire Pacific war. The Japanese, who always have hated artillery, and never have been able to match the Americans in any phase of its use, were staging forays behind American lines in often-suicidal attempts to knock out U. S. field pieces.

While the southern Okinawa Japanese, numbering probably 60,000 troops, were pushed into an 85-square mile area of farm-dotted, artillery-blasted, heavily fortified territory, they still had more than 10 times as much room in which to maneuver as did the Nipponese on tiny Iwo Jima.

About 10 Japanese airplanes attacked American amphibious forces off Okinawa last night. Seven were shot down. There apparently have been no further enemy aerial attacks on the Okinawa ground forces.

Japanese resistance was so bitter that they were able to recapture one dominating hill from the Doughboys in a furious tank, bazooka and artillery battle Sunday, front line dispatches disclosed.

The enemy's defense system, with hillside caves and easily defended draws and ravines, extends across the island immediately north of the capital city of Naha.

It is backed by the heaviest concentration of artillery so far employed by the Nipponese in the Pacific war, said Maj. Gen. J. R. Sheetz, artillery commander of the 24th Army corps. He predicted an artillery battle of the type that has characterized the European war.

The Nipponese counterdrive in the Naha defense line developed Sunday morning. Using mortar and artillery fire from positions hidden in crags and caves, the enemy drove the first battalion of the 184th Infantry regiment from Red Hills, which the Doughboys had captured the previous night.

Smash 3 Yank Tanks

The Japanese opened up when five Yank tanks started across a mine field, showered the tanks with incendiary missiles and then charged the hill with fixed bayonets. Three of the tanks were lost. The battalion withdrew and was last reported reforming for an attempt to take back the lost position.

The stiff enemy resistance in the southern sector, where gains of only 200 to 400 yards were reported through Sunday, contrasted with the negligible opposition encountered by American Marines to the north. Monday's communique announced Marine advances Sunday of 3,000 to 4,000 yards westward along the Motobu peninsula.

It was apparent that the bulk of the estimated 60,000 defenders of Okinawa had retreated into the southern sector for the final defense of the island only 325 miles from Japan. In this heavily defended terrain, the Japanese resisted stubbornly from pillboxes and blockhouses emplaced to take full advantage of the rugged area.

Air warfare over and near Okinawa had subsided after the momentous battles in which the superbattleship Yamato, of 45,000 tons, and five other enemy warships were sunk. The Japanese lost 417 aircraft in their two-day attacks on Pacific fleet forces, including the Okinawa invasion force, and another 173 were destroyed or damaged in the American Superfortress raids Saturday on Tokyo and Nagoya.

American naval losses stood at three destroyers sunk, one major fleet unit and several smaller vessels damaged and seven carrier planes destroyed. Five Superforts were lost.

Charging Japs Drive Yanks From Okinawa Hill

Guam, April 9 (AP)—Japanese charging with fixed bayonets in their first counterattack of the Okinawan campaign drove American troops off a dominating hill as tank-supported Yank infantrymen hammered at strongly defended caves and pillboxes beneath a developing artillery battle.

Nipponese poured out of caves and crags on southern Okinawa when Japanese tanks, artillery and mortars [illegible] blasting at five United [illegible] tanks lumbering through a field studded with 500-pound bombs that had been converted into land mines. The Japanese showered the tanks with "Molotov cocktails" and then charged Red Hill.

Three American tanks were lost. The 3d Battalion of the 184th Regiment withdrew from the hill. Americans reformed last night, expecting strong opposition in their attempt to retake the hill.

Strongly Dug In

Nipponese were strongly dug into crags, hills, ravines and caves on southern Okinawa, 325 miles from Japan. Behind them was the largest concentration of artillery encountered in the Pacific campaign, with heavier guns than they've used heretofore. These batteries kept up a swelling, round-the-clock duel with superior United States artillery.

Lightly opposed Marines were swarming through northern Okinawa, cutting off Motobu Peninsula with its former enemy submarine and torpedo base at Unten.

Ground resistance was about all Japan had to offer in the way of a defense of Okinawa. Its mighty 45,000-ton superbattleship Yamato and five lesser warships were sunk Saturday in a suicidal attempt to come to the infantry's rescue. In all, 590 enemy warplanes were destroyed or damaged ni thrusts at the Pacific Fleet, at the Okinawa invasion force or at Mustang-escorted B-29's which raided Tokyo and Nagoya.

North Of Naha

Immediately north of Okinawa's capital city of Naha, on a line stretching almost directly across the island, the Japanese began their defense from well-prepared, heavily fortified positions.

Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Army Corps troops were held to gains of only 200 to 400 yards as the enemy opened up Saturday with heavy artillery and continued firing day and night.

The Japanese are using more and heavier artillery in this campaign than ever before in the Pacific, Maj. Gen. J. R. Sheetz said today, Associated Press Correspondent Robbins Coons reported.

Compared To Europe

Sheetz, commanding general of the 24th Corps' Artillery, predicts a complete artillery battle of the type that took place in Europe.

While the Japanese artillery on Okinawa is heavier than standard for them, it is still no match for American batteries, the general asserted. The Yank batteries on the southern front have been reinforced by several battalions.

In savage fighting the infantrymen gained 400 yards yesterday in their push toward the Yonabaru airfield, on the east coast in the center of Nakagasuku Bay. They were within about a mile of Yonabaru.

Two Villages Captured

On the west coast, other infantrymen captured two villages Saturday, then were held to a 200-yard advance Sunday. These troops were about 2 miles north of Machinato airfield and about 4 miles from Naha.

The Japanese stand on the Naha-Yonabaru line clearly shows that the bulk of Okinawa's garrison, estimated at more than 60,000 troops, had been withdrawn into the southern section of the island before the 24th Corps and Marine 3d Amphibious Corps went ashore. There are about 85 square miles of rough terrain south of the Naha-Yonabaru line and the enemy is expected to convert all of this into a battleground.

Marines Gain In North

Doughboys pushing through the heavy artillery fire had to fight their way over rough terrain well suited for defense and against enemy troops protected by strategically placed blockhouses and pillboxes. Tanks, flame throwers and bazookas were thrown into the battle. The terrain is hilly and cave-pocked and the Japanese have defended it with many land mines.

Meanwhile, the Marine 2d Aircraft Wing established bases on captured Katena and Yontan airfields and strafed and rocketed Japanese positions in support of ground operations.

Army, visited much of the Marine sector in the north yesterday and reported casualties were light—far below the original estimates of what they would be.

So thoroughly did Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier pilots clean the skies of enemy warcraft on Friday that their only opposition was ships' gunfire as they carried their torpedoes and bombs into the Yamato force Saturday.

16 Hits On Yamato

Eight torpedo and eight bomb hits sank the Yamato. Also sunk were a light Agano class cruiser, another smaller cruiser and three destroyers. Three other destroyers were left burning; possibly three more escaped as the pilots concentrated on the battleship.

The victory cost the United States three destroyers sunk and damage to one major fleet unit plus several destroyers and smaller craft. Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland said it was disclosed aboard Admiral Turner's flagship that casualties on one American destroyer were heavy.

Associated Press Correspondent Hamilton Faron, aboard Mitscher's flagship, said carrier pilots had a field day as they vied for turns at the Yamato. The attack "was so intense we had to wait our turns to make our runs," pilots told him.

U. S. LOSSES HEAVY ON ONE DESTROYER

Aboard Admiral Turner's Flagship Off Okinawa, April 9 (A. P.).—Casualties were heavy in only one of the three American destroyers sunk in the American defeat of the Jap Yamato battleship task force, it was stated officially tonight.

Officers also diselosed that one of the American destroyers, although herself damaged, rescued the crew of another destroyer which was afire—then put out the flames and returned the rescue crew to its own ship, which was restored to operation and sailed for port.

American planes and ships on Saturday thoroughly searched all areas where the three American destroyers were lost to Friday's Jap air attack without finding additional survivors.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that three destroyers were sunk and that one major fleet unit, plus several destroyers and smaller craft, were damaged in Friday's air attack, which preceded the American naval victory of Saturday. In the latter engagement American carrier pilots sank the new superbattleship Yamato, two light cruisers and three destroyers and damaged three other destroyers.

3,170 More Start Home From Manila

Manila, April 9 (AP)—Former Japanese prison-camp internees still in the Philippines were reduced to 1,200 today, as 3,170 American and British nationals started home on transport and hospital ships.

These repatriates were from all Luzon camps, including 1,550 from Manila's Santo Tomas. Previously 1,763 had left for home. Among these were 130 British subjects who went to Australia on March 20.

Red Cross workers spent 24 hours fitting children with woolen coats and caps donated by the Army for the ocean voyage.

One Marriage Reported

Many departing girls bade tearful farewells to GI sweethearts they had met since liberation. At least one marriage was reported before the internees left Santo Tomas, their home for three years.

Of the departing repatriates 620 were hospital cases or dependents. Four hundred of those leaving had not been interned.

Today's exodus left only 1,200 persons, mostly former Santo Tomas inmates whose nationality status had not been fully clarified. Many of those remaining said they did not wish to return home.

Air Base Set Up On Okinawa

Yontan Airfield, Okinawa, April 7 [AP—Delayed]—The Marines landed fighting, as usual, today establishing the first land-based air defense on Okinawa after one squadron had shot down a Japanese bomber attacking an American carrier.

Marine Corsair fighter planes, armed more heavily than usual, arrived and set up immediate patrols.

The first combat action in a long time for the Marine fighter group occurred when a Japanese bomber roared toward an escort carrier. Capt. Ralph G. McCormick, of Detroit, led his division against the bomber, exploding it only 500 yards from the carrier. Lieut. Joseph Doherty, of Seattle, Wash., and Lieut. James Keegan, of Greenwich, Conn., got in a few quick shots at the bomber. Their planes were damaged by flak thrown up from the carrier, but neither was injured.

Transportation Difficulties

Major Perry Shuman, of Angola, Ind., and Lakeland, Fla., commander of the unit, arrived early and assumed the task of establishing groundwork in advance of the planes' arrival. He accomplished a remarkable readiness despite difficulties in unloading ships and shore transportation. Some newly-arrived planes refueled immediately and went on patrol.

The first Corsair was landed by Major Robert O. White, of Clarion, Iowa, commanding a squadron, amid cheers from the scores of ground crew men anticipating protection from enemy nuisance raids

Okinawa P.O. In Action On D-Plus-1

Okinawa, April 9 (AP)—The mail man has been functioning on Okinawa since a week ago today—invasion day plus one. He even is operating the intricate business of processing V-mail.

The navy postmaster for this area is Lieut. Andrew Walker, of Albuquerque, N.M. His postoffice is is aboard an LST (landing ship, tank) skippered by Lieut. James F. Bradley, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., who was graduated from the Naval Academy [illegible] and became the first graduate to win a full lieutenancy and command of an LST.

Said Bradley:

"We brought a load of mail out from Saipan, including a few sacks of army mail for the assault troops. It was put ashore the morning after the Easter landing.

Telephone Equipment

"We also brought large signal vans, telephones, switchboards and communications units—enough for a city of 20,000—for a permanent beach installation.

"As we unloaded our signal equipment, we expanded our fleet post office in this ship.

"We have a V-mail section, where we process our own V-mail; a regular airmail section and a registered-mail section. We can handle anything a city post office can.

Mail For Ships

"We are handling mail for more than 1,400 ships off Okinawa and the Kerama Islands and for ships with our carrier task forces in the Ryukyus. We've had airmail from Kerama for more than a week and we started airmail for Okinawa today."

More than 140 ships already have unloaded their cargoes on this island.

Currently, Okinawa's post office is slightly on a slant because the LST tore a large hole in one end while beaching and has to keep the weight in the opposite corner so the hole rides above the water.

Oki Docility A Surprise

Guam, April 9 (AP)—The docility and complete co-operation shown by Okinawa civilians is a surprise to American officers, who expected hostility.

Thousands of civilians are surrendering in an ever increasing stream. In many areas they are being permitted to go ahead with the harvest of crops, since many grain fields and gardens are producing now.

They are also allowed to return to the hills for hidden stores and household goods. When they return they bring additional hundreds with them.

Many of the civilians are being treated for disease and wounds at field hospitals. Their eyes show their relief at finding the Americans far from the barbarians pictured by the Japanese military.

PLANES SINK JAP WARSHIP

MacArthur's Flyers Bag Destroyer And Transport

Manila, Tuesday, April 10 (AP)—Direct hits by heavy bombers blockading Japan's China Sea shipping sank a destroyer and an 8,000-ton freighter-transport and seriously damaged another destroyer and a fourth vessel Sunday night, headquarters reported today.

In addition, air patrols of the 5th Air Force wrecked six coastal vessels [illegible] near Hainan Island, [illegible] harbor vessel at Hong Kong and a small ship off Formosa.

Airdromes Set Afire

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported heavy bombing raids on eastern Mindanao, Jolo Island in the Sulu archipelago, and Formosa, where 171 tons of bombs left huge fires in airdromes and supply areas of the west coast.

On Luzon Island, Yank infantrymen pressing against Japanese defensive positions in the central sector, were "causing progressively heavy attrition" of enemy troops and material, while to the south the Americans mopped up the area below Laguna de Bay, capturing quantities of Japanese supplies.

An American trap has sealed off all Japanese land avenues of escape from the Biscol peninsula of southeastern Luzon Island.

Control Road Network

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported in his Monday communiqué that the northern end of the trap was closed when soldiers of the 14th Corps took control of the main road network of Tayabas province. The Yanks captured Tayabas and Lucban, important roadside towns commanding the good highway leading northward from the peninsula.

The 158th Regimental Combat Team, which invaded the Biscol region through the port of Legaspi, is on the southern flank of the trap. The once formidable Japanese Bicol garrison would be at the mercy of American airmen should the trapped Nipponese attempt escape by sea.

Likened To Cassino

Bitter battling continued in the mountains of east central Luzon where soldiers of Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins's 25th Division have been fighting for almost three months for strategic Balete Pass, gateway to the Cagayan Valley.

Mullins likened this operation to the battle of Cassino, in Italy. He said "the enemy cannot be blasted out by air or artillery, but must be dug out." Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent, after a flight over the sector, said the GI's still face a "heartbreaking job."

General MacArthur disclosed that his China sea blockading Army and Navy airmen sunk, probably sunk or damaged 763,439 tons of Japanese shipping during the first three months of 1945. Tonnage sunk totalled 345,179 and probably sunk 116,965.

The Monday communique added 6,495 dead and 179 prisoners to Japanese casualties in the Philippines, boosting the grand total to 314,854. The new fatalities were counted since April 2.

American airmen, flying from Philippine bases, maintained their relentless hammering of Japanese positions over a wide area. They hit Cebu and Negros islands, in the Central Philippines and blasted the Formosa area. Patrol planes wrecked three escort vessels, seven merchantmen and six barges on the China sea. Two bombers were lost.

Okinawa Hit With 10,000 Tons

ABOARD VICE ADMIRAL R. K. TURNER'S FLAGSHIP, off Okinawa, April 9 (AP)—Big guns of the Navy's bombardment force poured 10,600 tons of explosive shells into Okinawa's beach defenses in the first week of the amphibious [illegible] against that island, Commodore Smith of San Francisco said today.

Santo Tomas Internee Dies Of Beri-Beri

Manila, April 9 (AP)—Frank Neild, former textile engineer in charge of the National Development Company's Manila factory and a former resident of New Bedford, Mass., died at a field hospital March 14 of beri-beri, it was disclosed today.

Neild, interned at the Santo Tomas camp by the Japanese, suffered from a dietary deficiency which had progressed too far to respond to treatment, the Santo Tomas census department reported.

His family resides in the United States.

Penicillin Successful In Verruga Treatment

Lima, Peru, April 9 (AP)—Dr. Luis Aldana, Peruvian bacteriologist, reported today he had successfully used penicillin on several cases of verruga, one of Peru's most serious medical problems.

[Verruga is a wart-like outbreak, mostly on the face and extremities. It is one stage of oroya fever, often fatal, and is caused by a parasite that people living in the Peruvian Andes get from the bite of some insect.]

Dr. Aldana in an interview with La Cronica said that he had injected 500,000 penicillin units in a patient and "the success was complete."

Nations Enthusiastic Toward Argentina

Buenos Aires, Argentina, April 9 (AP)—A buoyancy of spirit in marked contrast to the reserve of their previous official contacts marked the formalities in which the United States and other countries of the United Nations today gave their long-withheld official recognition to the Government of Argentina.

Edward Lyndall Reed, councillor in charge of the United States Embassy staff, called at the office of Acting Foreign Minister Cesar Ameghino and notified him of resumption of full relations. Reed said he found it a happy occasion.

The governments of Great Britain, France, Canada, The Netherlands, Uruguay, Brazil, Columbia and Peru, were among others extending a hand to the Government of General Edelmero J. Ferrel.

Reed presented his credentials as charge d' affaires, a post he will hold until a new Ambassador from the United States is appointed.

Guatemala Suspends All Civil Rights

Guatemala, April 9 (A. P.).—Official statements today announced that the Assembly has suspended for thirty days the Civil Rights articles on the Constitution. The measure is retroactive to April 4.

Dispatches from Costa Rica described the measure as establishing a virtual state of emergency.

CALL RIO CAPTIVE CHIEF NAZI AGENT

Rio de Janeiro, April 9 (A. P.).—The Brazilian Federal police today announced the arrest of George Frederick Blass, 53 years old, a German citizen, whom they described as the chief of an Axis sabotage band operating in many parts of South America. Blass was said by the police to have completed a course at the Nazi sabotage school in Hamburg. He has been questioned continuously since his arrest here several days ago, the police said.

They also took into custody three alleged accomplices, one of whom gave the name of Walter Agostini.

The arrest of Blass, the police said, was made almost simultaneously with the arrest of several sabotage suspects in Chile. A communication was received from the Chilean police concerning Blass.

Japs' Philippine Toll Now 314,854

Manila, April 9 (AP)—The count of Japanese killed and captured in the Philippines reached 314,854 today as Gen. Douglas MacArthur added 6,495 dead and 179 prisoners to the official total of a week ago.

There was no new announcement of American casualties—by latest previous report, around 30,000 killed, missing and wounded.

MacArthur's communiqué also disclosed an impressive toll of Japanese shipping—nearly three quarters of a million tons sunk or damaged—in the American air blockade of the South China Sea during the first three months of 1945.

Ground fighting in the Philippines, which MacArthur announced yesterday had virtually completed liberation of southern Mindanao, continued particularly bitter in the Balete Pass sector of northern Luzon.

"This battle should be compared with Cassino" [in Italy], declared Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins, whose 25th Division troops have been battling for 83 days to clear the Balete Pass gateway to the Cagayan Valley. "The enemy cannot be blasted out by air or artillery, but must be dug out."

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines reported, after flying over the Balete area—35 miles southeast of the Japanese-held Philippine summer capital of Baguio—that a "heartbreaking job" still remains for the American infantry.

Tayabas, Lucban Taken

In southern Luzon, 14th Corps troops cut the last land-escape route for Japanese in the Bicol Peninsula as they captured the towns of Tayabas and Lucban to gain control of a main road network.

Eleventh Corps troops occupied Santa Maria and other towns of the Santa Maria Valley of central Luzon.

Thirteenth Air Force planes, supporting ground units, hit Japanese positions on Negros and Cebu.

Rio Arrests "Sabotage Chief"

Rio de Janeiro, April 9 (AP)—Authorities said tonight a Nazi sabotage ring operating throughout South America may have been smashed as the result of the arrest of a German engineer, Georg Konrad Friedrich Blass, 53, described as its chief.

The arrest was announced today as a Brazilian court sentenced another German, Wilhelm Heinrich Kopff, to [illegible] in prison for Axis espionage. The spy was captured in 1943, the day after he landed in Brazil from a rubber raft.

His companion, a Dutch Guiana Negro named William Marcus Baarn, was acquitted after his lawyer said he never intended sabotage and had helped solve the case.

Several Countries Concerned

The Federal police, after questioning Blass for several days, said he personally established sabotage units in Venezuela, Colombia and Peru to operate in conjunction with previously established agencies in Chile, Argentina and Uruguay.

Brazilian authorities said he was [illegible]unded veteran of the last war a former professor at the University of Cologne, and had been commended for services to the German Government.

He came here on an Italian airliner from Rome in June, 1940, and apparently traveled with full Nazi authority to carry out sabotage assignments without further orders, officials said.

Specific Charges Withheld

The authorities declined to say now whether specific acts of sabotage have been traced to him, inasmuch as the investigation is continuing.

The prisoner, said by police to have completed a course at the Nazi sabotage school in Hamburg, has been questioned continuously since his arrest in Rio de Janeiro several days ago. Police also took into custody three alleged accomplices, one of whom gave the name of Water Agostini. Formal proceedings against Blass have not yet been completed.

The arrest of Blass, the police said, was made almost simultaneously with the arrest of several sabotage suspects in Chile.

Mexican Flyers Off To Battle In Pacific

Mexico City, April 9 (AP)—The War Department announced today that a squadron of the Mexican Air Force, numbering approximately 300 men, had left a Pacific port for active duty in the war zone.

Mexico is the second Latin-American nation to send troops overseas. Brazilian troops now are fighting in Italy.

Canada Names Parley Delegates

OTTAWA, April 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today that a delegation of seven will represent Canada at the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco. The delegation will be headed by the Prime Minister and will include Louis St. Laurent, Minister of Justice; Senator J. H. King, Government leader in the Senate; Senator Lucien Moraud, Quebec Progressive Conservative; Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader; Mrs. Cora Casselman, Alberta Liberal in the House, and M. J. Coldwell, House leader of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation.

Finnish Regime Resigns

New York, April 9 (AP)—Premier Juho K. Paasikivi of Finland has handed the resignation of his Government to President Marshal Baron Carl Gustav von Mannerheim, the [illegible] radio reported today.

The broadcast said that Mannerheim had asked the Cabinet members to "carry on" until a new government has been formed.

The broadcast was recorded here.

King And Queen See Princess Working

London, April 9 (AP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth paid a surprise visit to an ATS motor-training center today and found pretty Princess Elizabeth, her hands grease-stained, wearing khaki overalls, working on an army truck engine.

Fixing motor parts is part of the 19-year-old Princess's training as a second subaltern in the British equivalent of the WAC which she joined a few weeks ago.

The King joked with the royal heiress about her work. Then when a test showed the engine's silencer still wobbling badly he quipped "you must have left something out."

War With Russia Doubted By Japs

San Francisco, April 9 (AP)—The Japanese agency Domei said today in a Singapore-datelined dispatch that there was "no immediate prospect" of war between Japan and Russia, and added, "on the other hand, relations between the two countries have been as cordial as could be expected."

"Only Anglo-American interference and pressure" could provoke Russo-Japanese misunderstanding of such gravity as to lead to a rupture in relations and subsequently to war," said Domei in the broadcast recorded by FCC. The Soviet Union, it added, "is perfectly well aware that from such a war it has nothing to gain. On the other hand, in waging such a war it will merely be furthering the interest of the Anglo-Americans."

The agency said the emphasis placed on maintenance of Russo-Japanese neutrality by Nippon Foreign Office quarters "will serve as a counter to any and all enemy efforts to drag the Soviet Union into war in the Pacific."

JAP ADMIRAL DEAD

San Francisco, April 9 (A. P.).—Rear Admiral Jutaro Takahashi, 67-year-old member of the Japanese Diet, died yesterday, the Japanese Domei news agency reported today in a broadcast recorded by the FCC. Takahashi, former director of the naval gunnery school, was commander of Japan's first submarine squadron. He was the 124th Japanese admiral to die since last May.

193 U.S. Ships 'Blasted': Japs

San Francisco, April 9 (AP)—Radio Tokyo asserted today that since the American invasion of Okinawa 193 United States ships have been "blasted" but admitted that "no decisive blow has been meted out as yet."

The Japanese Domei news agency reported that last week's air-sea battle continued with Japanese suicide planes making a "devastating [illegible]" at dusk Saturday off Okinawa. Domei said the attackers apparently "seriously crippled at least four or five warcraft" and threw the United States task force "into utter confusion."

Yanks Being Repulsed

A Japanese imperial communiqué reported today that American reinforcements were still pouring into the United States Army's southward drive on Okinawa but that Japanese troops "are repulsing enemy forces."

A broadcast version of the communiqué, recorded here, claimed without confirmation that 3,600 American casualties were inflicted in the first week, 102 United States tanks and 33 guns knocked out and 16 landing barges destroyed. Japanese losses were placed at 400.

Sinking Claims

The imperial communiqué claimed 49 United States ships were sunk or damaged in the Japanese air attack on the American fleet in the Okinawa area last Friday. Admiral Chester W. Nimitz has announced United States losses as three destroyers sunk. The enemy version was that 30 ships were sunk, including 3 cruisers, 10 destroyers, a "large-type warship," 3 mine sweepers and 13 unidentified craft.

Japan officially acknowledged the loss of five warships in the two-day air-sea battle. The Domei news agency described them today as units of a "special attack corps," the Nipponese term for suicide forces. Domei described their participation as "highly significant," and added: "This means that not only the air force and submarines, but every branch of the Japanese Navy is now carrying out special attacks."

Grand Offensive

One Domei dispatch from "a Japanese naval base" reported:

"The Imperial Navy has been mobilized for a grand offensive and for the last few days this base has been resounding with the roar of the special attack corps planes which have been taking off for the Okinawas."

There was nothing further to indicate a new naval action might be in preparation.

Newspaper editorials were quoted to tell the Japanese people that "battles at all times demand sacrifices" and that if Japanese air and naval units continue to attack in such fashion "there is nothing to fear from the enemy's quantitative superiority of arms and supplies."

Violently Anti-American Leaders In Tokyo Cabinet

San Franiesco, April 9 (AP)—A group of violently anti-American Japanese war leaders—including Shigenori Togo, who master-minded the Kurusu prewar sneak-peace mission to Washington—were sworn into Japan's new "momentous crisis" Cabinet today in the presence of Emperor Hirohito.

Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, 76, pre-Pearl Harbor Premier, assumed the important role of adviser to Emperor Hirohito—a post known as president of the Privy Council.

Two Posts For Togo

Togo holds two portfolios—Foreign Minister and Minister of East Asia Affairs.

The appointment of these two elder statesmen—Togo and Hiranuma—who helped engineer Japan's greater East Asia policy was made by Japan's new Premier, the aged Admiral Baron Kentaro Suzuki. He announced immediately that the new cabinet was "ready to die leading the nation in carrying on the war and crushing the enemy."

Other new Cabinet appointments announced today by Radio Tokyo and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, include:

Gen. Masakazu (Shozo) Kawabe, who received a new over-all post of the army air command. He was formerly commander of Japan's central army.

Two General Commands

Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama, War Minister in the recently deposed Kuniaki Koiso's Cabinet, and Field Marshal Shunroku Hata were named to two general army commands in the homeland.

Naoto Kohiyama was slated to become Minister of Transportation and Communication. As president of the South Manchurian Railway, a Government-controlled corporation, he helped exploit occupied Manchuria.

Togo, 64, a veteran of the Japanese Foreign Office, was Ambassador to Germany and Russia before he engineered the Kurusu-Nomura peace mission to Washington. In 1938 he carried on negotiations with Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov at the time of the Russian-Japanese border clash.

Hiranuma assumes the post vacated Friday by Suzuki, who was chosen to form a new Cabinet in succession to Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, who replaced Gen. Hideki Tojo.

As the new Cabinet was formed, Shinjiro Hara, police chief, banned listening to the "Voice of America" broadcasts and promised punishment to persons failing to turn in American leaflets dropped by raiding planes.

Radio Tokyo also announced the death of Japan's 124th admiral since last May—Rear Adm. Jutaro Takahasi, 67, and said Awa Maru, a Japanese ship used to carry relief supplies to U. S. war prisoners and internees in southern Asiatic waters, was missing.

Commenting on the Okinawa sector, a Japanese Imperial communique reported that American reinforcements were still pouring into the U. S. Army's southward drive but that Japanese troops are "repulsing enemy forces."

The enemy radio asserted that since the American invasion, 293 U. S. ships have been "blasted" but admitted that "no decisive blow has been meted out as yet."

Last week's air-sea battle, said the Japanese Domei news agency, seriously crippled at least four or five warcraft" and threw the U. S. task force "into utter confusion."

'Suicide Unit' Searching for U. S. Fleet, Japs Say

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9—The Japanese navy has sent another "special attack unit" toward Okinawa in search of the U. S. Pacific fleet but apparently has not yet joined battle, Tokyo radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by Blue network.

A special attack unit (suicide corps) comprised of a battleship, cruisers and destroyers left its base determined not to return—and dashed into enemy waters in order to carry out close-in assaults," Tokyo said.

The broadcast said more attacks would be launched "until the full force of the enemy fleet has been annihilated."

RIGHT

TOGO BACK AS JAP FOREIGN MINISTER

San Francisco, April 9 (A. P.).—The appointment of Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma as President of the Privy Council and of Yigenori Togo as Foreign Minister and Minister for East Asia Affairs was announced by Tokyo radio today. Both appointments were part of the campaign of the new Premier, 77-year-old Admiral Kantaro Suzuki, to strengthen his administration in the face of what the Japanese themselves call a momentous crisis.

Hiranuma, 76 years old, and one of the Empire's ranking elder statesmen, assumes the post vacated on Friday by Suzuki when the latter was chosen to form the new government in succession to the fallen cabinet of Gen. Kuniaki Koiso. He held the same post from 1936 to 1939 and was premier for a few months in 1939. Togo was foreign minister at the time of Pearl Harbor. Before that he had been ambassador to Germany and to Russia.

Hiranuma, Togo Appointed To Jap Cabinet

San Francisco, April 9 (AP)—The appointments of Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma as president of the Privy Council and of Shigenori Togo as Foreign Minister and Minister of East Asia Affairs were announced by Tokyo radio today.

Both appointments were part of the campaign of the new Premier, 77-year-old Admiral Kantaro Suzuki to strengthen his administration in the face of what the Japanese themselves call a "momentous crisis."

Takes Suzuki's Former Post

Hiranuma, 76, and one of the empire's ranking elder statesmen, assumes the post vacated Friday by Suzuki when the latter was chosen to form the new Government in succession to the fallen Cabinet of Gen. Kuniaki Koiso. He held the same post from 1936 to 1939 and was Premier for a few months in 1939.

Togo was Foreign Minister at the time of Pearl Harbor. Before that he had been Ambassador to Germany and to Russia.

Tokyo's broadcast announcements of the Hiranuma and Togo appointments were recorded by the Associated Press. Earlier broadcasts on the political situation were recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Set To Crush Enemy

Suzuki took an aggressive stand and announced he was "ready to die leading the nation in carrying on the war and crushing the enemy."

A Japanese Domei dispatch reported, meanwhile, that an overall army air command for the Japanese home islands had been named with Gen. Masakazu (Shozo) Kawabe in command. Kawabe formerly was commander of Japan's central army. Also named were two general army commands in the homeland, to be headed by Field Marshal General Sugiyama, War Minister in Koiso's Cabinet, and Field Marshal Shunroku Hata.

Radio-Listening Ban

America's propaganda program drew attention from Police Chief Shinjiro Hara, who banned any listening to "voice of America" broadcasts, and promised punishment for persons who do not turn in American leaflets dropped by raiding planes. Tokyo radio declared America was circulating rumors of peace feelers offered by Japan, but declared this "always is done during Cabinet changes."

LOOKING TO END OF LEND-LEASE

Senate Republicans Want It To Go Out With The War

Washington, April 9 (AP)—Spurred by a demand from Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) for an accounting of postwar foreign commitments, Senate Republicans sought today to assure shutting off of the lend-lease spigot when hostilities end.

Vandenberg told his colleagues in discussion of a House-approved measure to extend lend-lease authority till June 30, 1946, that Congress ought to have "a direct and conscious opportunity to deal with external postwar relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction on their own independent merits."

Wants Clear Understanding

He said he was supporting the pending bill because of a conviction that lend-lease aid is as indispensable to fighting the war as the Army and Navy.

"But it is equally essential," he declared, "that there should be no misunderstandings at home or abroad that lend-lease stops when hostilities cease, that lend-lease is intended by Congress to be exclusively an instrument of war and that it must not be used by our own administrators for postwar relief, rehabilitation or reconstruction."

Taft Isn't Satisfied

While Vandenberg said that Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, had promised that no postwar commitments would be made, Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said he was not satisfied that a House-attached amendment specifically prevents such action.

Taft offered an amendment which would stop all lend lease deliveries immediately when the war ends. As the bill presently is drawn, deliveries could be made on prior commitments for three years after the lending authority expires.

Vandenberg contended that the House amendment was clear, although he conceded that an "ambiguous" construction could be placed upon it.

Langer Holds Out For Farmers

In this connection, Senator Langer (R., N.D.) said he would not vote for the bill unless farm machinery, locomotives and boxcars were excluded from export under its terms. He said American farmers are losing crops because of lack of these items. Langer, the only senator who voted against lend-lease a year ago, said today he was "proud of that vote."

Vandenberg said he was willing for this country to accept a "substantial responsibility" for relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction in a war-torn world. But he insisted Congress ought not to be asked to approve a "piecemeal" program, and added:

"I do suggest that we are neither big enough nor rich enough to become permanent almoner to the whole earth."

Taft On Deal With French

Taft said the agreement with the French "obviously is intended to provide supplies for rehabilitation."

It calls, he said for French payment over a 30-year period for up to $2,500,000,000 worth of goods.

"In other words we are making a postwar loan to France," the Ohioan declared.

"Personally, I am willing to support a loan to France but I don't think it should be made under lend-lease."

Taft said he thought the British agreement as well as the French may leave room for postwar loans under lend-lease.

"It has been widely stated that the Russians have asked for $6,000,000,000 but I think they have probably been told they will have to get it some other way than through lend-lease," he added.

PHILIPPINE GOODS IMPORTS

Supreme Court Rules They Are State-Tax Exempt

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The Supreme Court gave the war stricken Philippines an economic boost today.

It ruled that shipments from there are imports and thus exempt from state taxation.

Justice Murphy, a former Governor General of the islands, said in a concurring opinion that such a construction of the Constitution conforms "to the national policy of aiding the Philippine reconstruction."

Economy "Closely Linked"

He added that "for the foreseeable future, at least, their economy must be closely linked to that of the United States, without either country abandoning or retreating from the common ideal of independence for the Philippines."

The islands, Murphy said, "cannot safely be thrown into the world market and left to shift for themselves."

Murphy observed that the ruling did not preclude Congress from levying any tariff it feels necessary.

The court prevented Ohio from levying a property tax on fibers brought from the islands, overturning a decision by the State Supreme Court in an appeal by Hooven & Allison Company, Xenia, Ohio.

Warns Of Advantages

Justice Reed, in a separate opinion, warned that the practical effect of the opinion is to give the products of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Canal Zone "and perhaps other territories or possession" considerable advantages over competing products of the States.

"It enables importers, whether for manufacture or sale, from these possessions to keep on hand, tax free, quantities of nontaxable original packages of imported goods, such as clothing, embroideries, liquors, tobacco, sugars vegetable oils and fibers," Reed declared.

"Supports Similar Rights"

Although the Court's opinion "disclaims determination of any rights beyond the Philippines . . . the basis upon which the decision rests supports similar rights for all lands covered by the Treaty of Paris (under which Spain ceded lands to this country in 1898)," Reed said.

Reed raised the lone dissenting voice on the Philippine subject, but the court split 5 to 4 in drawing a dividing line between the time imports are immune and when they lose that identity and become subject to state taxes.

The case involved not only Philippine fibers held by the Ohio firm but a quantity from other countries, and the majority opinion by Chief Justice Stone treated them separately. He held that none of the fibers was subject to taxes, reversing the Ohio court.

Awaiting Manufacture

The fibers were in the company's warehouse awaiting manufacture, and were in their original packages. Stone said the Supreme Court never had ruled that imports held by the importer in the original package and before they were subject to manufacture are liable to state taxation.

Justice Black, in a dissent joined by Justices Rutledge, Douglas and Murphy, contended that the majority opinion results in the "odd situation," creating discrimination in favor of goods imported for use against goods imported for sale.

Supporting Reed's majority opinion were Roberts, Frankfurter, Reed and Jackson.

Wage-Hour Law

In a series of other decisions, the court answered questions arising under a section of the wage-hour law providing for actions to recover unpaid minimum wages or overtime pay.

The court held that an employé is not entitled to interest on sums recovered in such an action. It ruled that a worker accepting from his employer delayed payment due under the act cannot waive his right to recover an equal sum in damages. It decided that an employer and a worker cannot waive the latter's right to the basic minimum wages and damages, through a settlement for less than the statutory amount.

CHIEF CENSOR IS QUESTIONED

Byron Price Tells Of Need For News Controls

Washington, April 9 (AP)—Byron Price, director of censorship, said tonight that in general, the public is being given all the news possible consistent with national security.

"Of course," he declared on a Blue Network radio program, "there have been mistakes and censorship has made its share, but I thing that any broadcaster or newspaper man would say that the news available is far more complete than in any other country, and far more complete than many people thought would be possible when the war started."

"Will censorship end as soon as there is no longer any security problem involved?" he was asked by a commentator.

Price Questioned

"I hope so," replied Price. "I will do everything I can to see that all censorship ends completely the moment the shooting ends and American life is no longer in danger."

At the opening of the program, at which he explained what the censorship code covers and its voluntary operation, Price was asked:

"Has the censorship code ever been applied to control the expression of opinion?"

Opinion Is Free

"No," the chief ensor replied. "We have made no requests in the field of opinion, and everyone is free to speak his mind so long as he does not disclose information of value to the enemy."

"What degree have broadcasters and editors co-operated in observing the code so far?" He was queried.

"They have co-operated remarkably well. The sum total of the contribution which has been made to the national security is very great indeed."

Some Comply Reluctantly

"Have all broadcasters and editors agreed with all requests of censorship?"

"No," Price answered. "Naturally they have not. There have been many instances in which they complied reluctantly because they did not agree, but still they have complied as a patriotic contribution."

The program commentator then asked:

"What is the general feeling of broadcasters and editors toward censorship?"

"I am quite sure," Price said, "they do not like censorship and neither do I, but I believe there is a universal recognition that we must have some restraints in wartime and that the Government is in the best position to know what restraints are important."

PEACE HOPES HIGH, VANDENBERG SAYS

WASHINGTON, April 9—(AP) Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) said today he hopes the American delegation to the San Francisco conference can bring back a "treaty of salvation" for the world which the Senate will accept.

Vandenberg, himself a delegate, addressed the Senate just before the United States delegation met at the State department to begin discussing policy questions which it will face at the Golden Gate conference on world organization.

"Despite the obstacles which rise to jeopardize our course," he said, "despite temporary discouragements which fade in potency when weighed against the mighty end in view, we must preserve for organized peace."

Administration leaders, including Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Foreign Relations committee, patiently accepted Vandenberg's statement as an indication that he intends to go along wholeheartedly in efforts to create a world organization on the Dumbarton Oaks principles despite differences of opinion that may arise.

Connally, also a delegate, later told reporters Vandenberg's statement was "very encouraging." As chairman of the Republican Senatorial conference, the Michigan Senator often reflects the views of many GOP legislators on foreign affairs.

Noting that he is going on "an unsought assignment" to San Francisco, Vandenberg said the conference there "confronts the grave responsibility of answering the yearnings of a war-torn world which prays in many tongues at countless hearthstones for a dependable formula that shall dissipate the scourge of war for keeps."

"I hope that Senator Connally and I may be able to bring back to our colleagues, at no too distant date, a treaty of salvation which may deserve your approval in the name of enlightened American self interest and the sake of a happier world where peace with justice may bless free men," he declared.

Full Light Urged On U.S. Frisco Preparations

Washington, April 9 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) wants an immediate announcement of any advance decisions reached by American delegates to the San Francisco United Nations Conference.

The eight United States delegates went to work today on policy questions amid indications that the State Department planned to delay disclosure of any agreements until a full American program is completed.

But Vandenberg is said authoritatively to be urging that if the group reaches a decision on any revision of principles as stated in the Dumbarton Oaks preliminary peace-keeping formula it tell the world about them at once.

Wants Charter Upheld

The San Francisco conference opens April 25.

It obviously is Vandenberg's hope that the American delegation will accept his suggestion to incorporate into the general statement of principles a provision that the proposed international organization shall work toward "establishing justice" and against any violation of Atlantic Charter terms.

He is said to feel that an announcement that this nation's delegates supported such a provision, in addition to his amendment to give the league authority for later review of wartime political decisions, would boost the morale of small nations.

Congress Wants Publicity

Continuous publicity on the doings of the American delegation, as well as on the San Francisco conference itself, is favored in Congress.

Senator Hatch (D., N.M.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said the diplomats "ought to take the people into their confidence as much as is possible."

"Whatever is agreed upon at San Francisco," he said, "has to have the support of the American people if it is to be approved by the Senate in the form of a treaty. The better the people of the country understand the issues involved, the better it will be for us in the Senate."

Mexican Parley Pointed To

Senator Auston (R.,Vt.), also a Foreign Relations Committee, member, said the Mexico City conference of American republics, which he attended as an adviser, provided a "happy experience" in doing most of its work in open sessions.

"If the public can be kept abreast of developments without tying the hands of the delegates, it would be well to make each decision known immediately," he said.

Austin noted, however, that any decisions the United States delegation reaches in this week's meetings may have to be revised at the conference in the light of developments there.

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Foreign Relations Committee, a delegate, also emphasized this view. Connally said it may be that no formal decisions will be reached, but only tentative agreements.

United Nations Jurists Meet to Draft World Court

WASHINGTON April 9 — (AP) Jurists from 38 United Nations set to work today on the court structure which many international lawyers contend must evolve into a main peace-keeping agency if international organization is to work.

But as they sat down to their task the delegates undertook no such grandiose assignment as setting up immediately a world judiciary of that power and responsibility.

The job now is to draw up mechanics for a world court, to be integrated with the Dumbarton Oaks international organization and to handle disputes now justiciable under existing international law.

But implications that they are building important foundations for the future came from Secretary of State Stettinius in a welcoming address. He said their work must give effect to peace-loving people's determination that international differences shall be settled "by peaceful methods and on a basis of justice."

Their recommendations are to be submitted to the United Nations conference opening in San Francisco April 25 to set up the organization planned at Dumbarton Oaks.

A primary decision to be reached here is whether a world court of new form shall be created, or the existing world court shall be adopted into the new set-up with necessary modifications. Preliminary opinion apparently leans to taking over the present court virtually intact.

The world court, operating alongside the old League of Nations, had its permanent headquarters in the Hague, the Netherlands. During the war it has functioned in London.

The most direct recent indication of the ultimate role toward which some international lawyers hope to point the court has come from John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the 1944 presidential campaign and a counselor to the American delegation to San Francisco.

In a speech last month Dulles asserted that an international organization which can actually enforce peace is unlimited at this time, and that a chief benefit from the United Nations organization will be the bringing together of representatives of the nations, for discussions and joint actions that can lead to creation of a full body of international law. That law, he said, does not now cover the big disagreements between nations which lead to major wars.

The court naturally would be administrator of such law as it developed.

Smaller nations generally have urged greater powers immediately for the proposed court than ever were centered at the Hague. Principally they have argued for enforceable decisions, with the power of the United Nations to be thrown behind its judicial findings much as police enforce the decisions of national and lesser courts; and for the right of a complainant nation to bring in another country for judgment with or without that country's consent.

With Senate ratification of world organization treaties in mind, American officials have shown little sign of backing such plans now.

Recognize Farrell Regime

For the United States this meant recognizing the regime of General Edelmiro Farrell which came to power in March 1944 and which the then Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, declined to recognize on the charge that it was working against the interests of the Allied cause.

The sharp redirection of United States policy was explained here as being due to the steps recently taken by the Argentine government. Secretary of State Stettinius, in announcing recognition, said he was very happy to do so. He emphasized that the decision to resume normal relations had been taken unanimously by the American nations.

Edward L. Reed, charge d'affaires in Buenos Aires, called on Acting Foreign Minister Cesar Ameghino at 1:00 p.m., Buenos Aires Time (12 noon, Eastern War Time). He presented a note acknowledging receipt of an Argentine note of March 14, 1944, which had informed Hull that General Farrell had succeeded General Pedro Ramirez as president of Argentina. By acknowledgement of that note, 13 months late, recognition of the Farrell regime was established.

Great Britain, France, Canada and the Netherlands were among other countries resuming usual diplomatic dealings with the Farrell government.

It is now expected that a new ambassador will be sent to Buenos Aires very soon and speculation has centered on Spruille Braden, present ambassador to Cuba.

Recognition leaves several questions open: Notably, whether Argentina will be taken into the United Nations and whether she will be invited to attend the conference on world organization at San Francisco April 25.

Russia's attitude which has been critical of the present Argentine regime, will almost certainly be a major factor in the answers to these questions.

The resumption of normal diplomatic relations on the part of the 20 American republics did not mean an act of recognition by each of them. Some had recognized the Farrell regime from the first but none had maintained full and normal relations with it in recent times.

American Nations Reserve Relations with Argentina

WASHINGTON, April 9—(AP) Argentina was welcomed back into the American family of nations today, 13 months after she was excluded on the ground that her government cooperated with the Axis.

The United States and 19 other American republics resumed what Secretary of State Stettinius called "normal diplomatic relations." This followed Argentina's recent declaration of war on Germany and Japan and her adherence to the inter-American agreements for security and cooperation in this hemisphere which were adopted last

WATER TREATY FACES CHANGES

Senator Downey's Move May Speed Ratification.

Washington, April 9 (A. P.).—Senate consideration of the United States-Mexico water treaty took a new turn today when Senator Downey (D.-Cal.) withdrew an amendment and declared he would suggest instead some changes in the form of reservations to the pact. Meeting at 11 A. M., an hour earlier than usual, the Senate had previously agreed to a vote by noon on Senator Downey's amendment to increase from two to six the number of commissioners who would administer the pact.

Mr. Downey's action was expected to speed efforts by administration leaders for an early vote on ratification of the treaty. The Californian served notice, however, that debate might continue for two or three weeks on various reservations unless treaty sponsors got together with opponents informally to see if some kind of agreement could be reached.

He suggested that a major point that might be incorporated in a reservation would declare that the 1,500,000-acre feet of water of the Colorado River guaranteed Mexico under the treaty should be delivered "regardless of quality."

Quantity, Not Quality.

The treaty does not specifically state what the quality of the water shall be, only the quantity. Senator Downey argued that if in future years its content should become extremely saline, Mexico would successfully plead to an international court of arbitration for additional quantities.

The adoption of a reservation making clear that only 750,000-acre feet should be clear fresh water—a figure equal to the quantity of Colorado River water used by Mexico before construction of Boulder Dam and the creation of Lake Mead—and that the remaining 750,000-acre feet should be accepted by Mexico "regardless of quality," would remedy the situation, the Californian contended.

Senator McFarland (D.-Ariz.) said that if the United States guaranteed the quality of water to be delivered to Mexico, then Mexico might be given preferential treatment over the lower Colorado River basin States.

Downey replied he was suggesting only that 750,000 acre feet be supplied from Lake Mead, whatever the quality of water is in the lake.

The remainder, he said, could be in water that already had been used in this country in irrigation ditches and eventually returned to the river channel. The degree of salinity in such water would depend on the nature of the soil irrigated.

Navy Lieutenant Wins The Bronze Star Medal

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The Secretary of State, Edward R. Stettinius, said today the Army will hold custody of the gold, currency and art treasures captured in a German salt mine until the Allies can discuss their disposition.

Final disposition of this wealth will be made by the Allied Control Commission for Germany, Stettinius said.

229 ON CRUISER KILLED BY BLAST

Washington, April 9 (A. P.).—"Blood ran so freely sand had to be scattered for safe walking."

In those words the Navy described the scene aboard the cruiser Birmingham—with 229 dead and 420 wounded by a blast fifty feet away in the magazine of the aircraft carrier Princeton.

The explosion occurred last October 24 as the two ships, with others, were supporting Gen. MacArthur's invasion of Leyte in the Philippines.

The Navy previously told of the sinking of the Princeton, with light casualties. But it waited for the Birmingham's return to service to tell of the terrifying moment that felled 649 of its officers and men.

Almost successful in its five-hour efforts to put out a fire aboard the Princeton left by a bomb hit from a single Japanese plane, the Birmingham had to leave that chore to help repel another aerial attack.

It returned to the abandoned carrier just as the flames spread to the ship's magazine. A spray of torn fragments hit the Birmingham, leaving its decks "a scene of horror and agony."

The Prihceton, hopelessly damaged, was torpedoed. The Birmingham was returned for repairs.

U-BOAT MARCH SINKINGS DROP

Allied Casualties Inflicted On Them Again Severe

Washington, April 9 (AP)—German U-boats sank fewer Allied ships in March than in February, the monthly Anglo-American statement said today.

The undersea raiders continued to increase their effort, the statement added, but casualties inflicted on them were again severe.

The prolonged and extensive bombing and mine-laying policy of the Allies "has undoubtedly delayed the introduction of the new type U-boats," it was stated. "In a similar manner the capture of Danzig by the Soviet Army helps to cut off the evil at its source."

As usual, the statement, issued under authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, gave no figures either on shipping losses or U-boat sinkings.

The statement for February had reported the loss of "a moderate number" of Allied merchant vessels to U-boat activity, but said anti-submarine forces destroyed more enemy submarines than in January.

Stimson's Aid Praises Negroes' Record in War

Says Elements of the 92d Were Not Fully Trained

WASHINGTON, April 9 (AP).—Truman K. Gibson, civilian aid on Negro Affairs to Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, asserted today that "certainly the record being made by Negro soldiers gives the lie to any charge that Negroes cannot and will not fight."

Mr. Gibson, a Chicago attorney, told a news conference that as a result of his recent inspection trip to the Mediterranean and European theaters "I am impressed that such differences as exist between soldiers are not due to racial characteristics but to such factors as training, motivation and environment."

Asked about allegations that elements of the 92d Division, a Negro outfit on the Italian battle line, had "melted away" under attack Mr. Gibson replied that the 92d is still in the line and is still fighting.

"What happened in the 92d was not a complete failure of the division, but of platoons and patrols," Mr. Gibson added, saying that "when the Army found that the 92d hadn't been properly trained it took immediate steps to remedy the situation."

Three-fourths of the Negroes in the Army, he said, "come from the Souuth where they don't have the educational opportunities they do in the North

Turkish Attache Sees Europe's War End Soon

New York, April 9 (AP)—Beheattin Kayalioglu, newly appointed assistant financial attache at the Turkish Embassy in Washington, said today that Turkey needed many supplies and products from the United States and "can pay for a great part."

Automobiles and agricultural equipment were Turkey's prime need, the attache said at LaGuardia Field upon his arrival in the United States. He added he believed the European war would be over "in a few weeks" and that that would be the signal for resumption of trade negotiations between the United States and Turkey.

Considerable trade, which "ought to be large" between the United States and India, was predicted by Shiv Raj, British Indian banker and industrialist, who also arrived today on a trans-Atlantic clipper. He said he came for a business tour.

Norwegians, Danes To Be Free Soon, F.D.R. Says

Washington, April 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared today that the "period of martyrdom" of the Danish and Norwegian peoples will be ended "very soon."

In a statement on the fifth anniversary of Germany's attack on the two Scandanavian nations, the Chief Executive said:

"Today marks the anniversary of the infamous and ruthless attack on Denmark and Norway. For five long years the Danish and the Norwegian peoples have suffered under the heel of the Nazi oppressor. Yet never has their courage lagged. Never have they ceased to resist. Very soon their period of martyrdom will be ended. Then, as the peoples of Denmark and Norway have fought as allies in the common struggle against the forces of aggression, so will they work with the other like-minded nations to insure the maintenance of world peace and security."

FREIDIN IS APPOINTED A MEMBER OF WLB

WASHINGTON, April 9 (AP)—Jesse Freidin, general counsel of the War Labor Board, was appointed today by President Roosevelt to be a public member of the agency. He will fill the vacancy created when William H. Davis resigned to become Federal Economic Administrator.

Mr. Roosevelt has accepted the resignation of Walter T. Margetts as an alternate industry member of the board. Mr. Margetts has been appointed chairman of the New Jersey State Mediation Board.

Mr. Freidin, who has served as counsel since January, 1944, is a native of New York City and was counsel to former Lieut. Gov. Charles Poletti of New York. He also served as Mr. Poletti's law secretary when the latter was a New York Supreme Court Justice. Mr. Freidin has also acted as a special counsel for the New York State Power Authority.

THREE IN PHOTO DEAD

Washington, April 9 (A. P.).—Three of the six men in Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal's graphic picture of the flag raising on Mount Suribachi died in later bloody fighting on Iwo Jima.

A Navy Hospital Corpsman, pictured with five Marines fixing the colors atop the Iwo Jima promontory, was wounded.

Marine Pfc. Rene A. Gagnon, 20 years old, of 43 Hollis street, Manchester, N. H., disclosed on his arrival here that of the six only he and Marine Pfc. Ira Hamilton Hayes, 22, of Bapchule, Ariz., escaped injury or death.

Gagnon said those killed were Sergt. Michael Strank, 24, of Conemaugh, Pa.; Sergt. Henry O. Hansen, 24, of Somerville, Mass., and another whose name cannot be disclosed until next of kin are notified. Gagnon identified the wounded man as Navy Pharmacist's Mate Second Class John H. Bradley, 21, of Appleton, Wis.

Brazilian Fighter Pilots Train At Strother Field

Strother Field, Kan., April 9 (AP). Training of Brazilian fighter pilots has been started at this 2d Air Force base, staffed by veterans returned from the South Pacific and European theaters of war.

Arrival of the first group to report for P-47 pilot instruction was disclosed today.

Only three of the newcomers speak English but, before their first day was over, Capt. Joao Cararao T. Ribeiro and Second Lieutenant Olney A. Dutra, acting as interpreters, began looking about for an English instructor.

Mother Accepts Highest Award

Shenandoah, Pa., April 9 (AP)—Mrs. John Damato accepted today the Congressional Medal of honor awarded posthumously to her son, Marine Corporal Anthony P. Damato, who threw himself on a Japanese grenade to save the lives of two comrades.

Too ill to travel to the White House where President Roosevelt asked that the award be made, Mrs. Damato instead chose a schoolroom where her son was a student to receive the nation's highest award.

Corporal Damato was the twenty-sixth Marine in World War II to receive the Congressional Medal.

15 Nations Giving Argentina Recognition

Washington, April 9 (AP)—Argentina's return to the Western Hemisphere fold is scheduled to be completed today with diplomatic recognition by the United States and 14 other American republics.

The action follows Argentina's recent declaration of war on the Axis and adherence to other declarations set forth at the Mexico City conference.

Latin-American countries already voted recognition.

Callan Gets Notice He Must Go To Prison

New York, April 9 (AP)—Hugh Callan, 39, today received official notice by mail that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans had voided an action by which he sought freedom from a ten-year prison sentence for sedition and making derogatory remarks about the President while he was in the armed forces.

The former soldier said he would ask the United States Supreme Court to review his conviction by a Camp Blanding (Fla.) court-martial in May, 1942, on a charge of sedition and speaking disrespectfully about President Roosevelt before other inductees at Camp Upton, Long Island.

The military court's original twenty-year sentence later was reduced to ten years by the President.

Sherwood Speaks Out Against Erasing Japs

New York, April 9 (AP)—Robert E. Sherwood, former director of the overseas branch of the Office of War Information, said today that he was opposed to total extermination of the Japanese.

Sherwood told a United Urban League campaign fund meeting that thousands of Japanese Americans "separated from Japan by no more than a generation, have proved they can justify our essential faith in freedom and equality for all men of all kinds."

Recently returned from a Pacific mission for the Secretary of Navy, Sherwood said captured Japanese soldiers and civilians usually become co-operative and work willingly at any task after learning they were not to be subjected to barbaric treatment.

HOUSE SEES WORK LEGISLATION DEAD

Washington, April 9 (A. P.).—Man power legislation, deadlocked because of House and Senate differences, today appeared dead as far as the House is concerned.

Returning from a two-weeks' informal Easter recess, responsible House leaders told reporters that they did not believe the House would accept the bill originally passed by the Senate. The House approved the Senate measure after it was rewritten in a Senate-House conference, but the Senate turned it down and has asked the House for another conference.

"As far as I am concerned," the bill originally passed by the Senate is not satisfactory," said Chairman May (D.-Ky.) of the House Military Committee, who headed the House conferees.

The original Senate bill provided generally for voluntary man power controls, while the House bill called for stiff penalties for workers leaving their jobs without approval or refusing to accept war work. The compromise turned down by the Senate undertook to give the Director of War Mobilization power to control the job movement of virtually all men and women.

FISHERMAN CATCHES AERIAL BOMB IN NETS

BLOCK ISLAND, April 9—(AP) Owen Mitchell, owner and skipper of the Dragger George A., told tonight of hauling up a 550-pound aerial bomb in his nets Sunday, along with his haul of fish.

He brought the bomb to the surface in the same vicinity in which the Nathaniel B. Palmer, Stonington trawler, was blown to bits last Friday and three of its four-man crew killed.

Mitchell, fishing with his son, Earl, took the bomb into Block Island and turned it over to the Coast Guard.

Fresh Meat In 8 Hours

Washington, April 9 (AP)—American troops in Germany are getting fresh meat and dairy products within eight hours after the supplies are unloaded from ships at Antwerp.

The War Department reported this today, saying refrigerated trucks, known as the "penquin fleet," are doing the job. They pull up at the docks at Antwerp, load and eight hours later arrive at the front lines.

The trucks, each marked with a penquin holding packages of meat, are "greeted by the troops with whoops of delight," the department said.

COAL PICTURE GETS BRIGHTER

Tentative Accord Reached On All Except One Issue

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The up-and-down hopes for a new soft-coal agreement were on the upgrade again tonight.

"Tentative understandings" had been reached on all but one of the bones of contention between John L. Lewis and operators, Chairman Ezra Van Horn announced at the close of today's session of the wage conference.

The understandings were reported later in the day both to an emergency meeting of the United Mine Workers' 250-man policy committee and to a corresponding operators' group.

Held Up By Technicality

One excellent authority said the remaining issue was on Lewis's demand for union eligibility for all but one foreman per mine, and that a technicality held up agreement on this point.

The policy committee, after receiving Lewis's report, was said to have authorized him to conclude an agreement along lines he outlined in the afternoon session.

If the operators accept, that could be done tomorrow.

After the separate union and operator meetings, Van Horn reported verbally to the War Labor Board substantially what he had told the press. The board made no announcement but indicated it was keeping close contact with the negotiations and was prepared to ask for White House intervention if the situation warranted.

Steps Toward Intervention

Meanwhile, preliminary steps were taken to clear the papers necessary to possible Government intervention through the Solid Fuels Administration, the Justice Department, the Budget Bureau and the Office of Economic Stabilization, before they go to the White House.

In the Federal seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co., mail-order house, these steps took a week. If the miners' situation cleared up,

APR 10 1945

APR 10 1945

APR 10 1945

the papers could be withdrawn at any point.

Van Horn said negotiations will be resumed at 11 A.M. tomorrow instead of the usual hour of 10 o'clock.

Saturday both operators and miners had indicated hope that full agreement, at least in principle, might be ready by tonight for a report to the War Labor Board.

That hope was not realized, but Van Horn's announcement gave the proceedings a more optimistic tinge than they had had since yesterday, when operators reported Lewis's stand had stiffened and the outlook was gloomy.

The nature of the unresolved Lewis demand was not announced.

Opposition To Royalty Adamant

The UMW president was understood to have receded earlier from his most spectacular demand—a royalty of 10 cents a ton for a union "rainy-day fund." He agreed to a settlement proposed by Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, which did not include it. But the operators turned down the Perkins formula, reported to come out at about $1.50 a day more pay.

Operator opposition to the royalty, which they have contended would cost them $60,000,000 a year, has been adamant.

Other controversial points include union eligibility for all but one foreman per mine, and pay equal to that of a mobile unit operator for all members of the mobile crew. Proposals under discussion are understood to net the men about $1.25 a day.

Government seizure of mines, on account of unauthorized strikes, was believed to have been imminent Saturday and to have had much to do with the sudden revival of negotiations. The operators at that time had been ready to report a stalemate to the War Labor Board and ask the WLB to take over the dispute for adjudication.

The miners are supposed to be on the job under a 30-day extension of the old contract, which expired March 31. Any pay adjustments are to be retroactive.

Intervention Still Possible

One Government source said Federal intervention still is in prospect if miner idleness continues on last week's scale.

The situation improved over the weekend in Pennsylvania, where the Solid Fuels Administration reported 62 mines employing 13,167 were idle, and 4,500 more men were absent from operating pits. Saturday's score there was 93 mines down and 31,259 men idle.

But in Indiana operators said all 45 shaft mines, employing over 4,000 men, were idle again. Talk in mining communities was that the men did not plan to work until there is a new contract.

A UMW spokesman in Illinois said all union men in that State were back on the job and declared idleness last week meant only that the men were "tired" and took "a little more rest" after the Easter holiday.

1,500 Russian-Freed Yanks Return With Tales Of Hunger

Boston, April 9 (AP)—Fifteen hundred American soldiers returned to their homeland tonight with tales of hungry months in German prison camps.

Advancing Russian troops liberated them as the Nazis fell back in Poland last January too rapidly to move the prisoners.

The returning men were the first large group of liberated American troops to come home from the European Theater.

They told of meager meals in Nazi prison camps. They talked of their escapes.

Praise For Red Cross

Soldier after soldier enthused about "those Red Cross packages that kept us alive."

They said of the Poles—"They didn't have much, but they shared with us what they had.'

They were ready with questions, too.

"Got a paper?" many asked. "What's this curfew all about?" Many others wanted to know. And a couple were interested in when the circus was coming up this way.

An army transport brought them into port just after dark last night.

There was a bit of a chill in the air and the waterfront was deserted An army band stood on the dock. There were a few port officials around and a gathering of newspaper men.

The band whopped it up with the airs of about every state that the bandsmen could think of and were almost drowned out by the cheering and yelling soldiers.

A soldier's head stuck out of every porthole. They jammed the decks. They crowded the superstructure. There were heads and shoulders even popping through the narrow spaces that divided the life rafts.

Some Held For 2 Years

Glad to be home?—the question was too silly even to ask.

Some of the men had been in prison camps for two years.

A lot of the boys had been at Limburg, German prison camp recently taken by the 1st Army, in their earlier days as prisoners of war.

Limburg was a transient camp at that time, they said, and the fare was as near a starvation diet even then as it was in recent weeks.

Tells Of Diet

Pfc. Paul Thompson, of Marysville, Ohio, spent some time at Limburg. The diet while he was there was soup made of sugar-beet tops, some greens, a loaf of bread for six meals, he said.

Thompson had been 43 months overseas and four months a prisoner of war. He weighed 198 pounds when he was captured and 110 three months later.

He escaped from the prison camp in Poland while the Germans were trying to remove the prisoners in the face of a Russian advance.

Shrapnel cut his right leg as he passed through the Russian lines toward the rear, but for ten days he hobbled on through Poland.

Thompson explained that the Russians were busy advancing and the rescued men made their way to the rear on their own.

Helped By Polish Girl

As he reached the point where he felt that he couldn't go another foot, a Polish girl took him to her home. For six days she cared for his infected leg. Then he started on again.

"She saved my life," Thompson said, "and I'm going back to Poland some day and get her."

One private experienced a German court-martial along with his other troubles. Pfc. Walter W. Steinhaus, of Sheboygan, Wis., had that doubtful honor.

A prisoner from February, 1943, until he was liberated in January this year, Steinhaus hit a guard, he said, and drew a three-year, three-month sentence.

Relates Loss Of Weight

Tech. Sergt. Charles Andrews, of Phoenix, Ariz., said some of the men lost as much as 50 pounds in seven weeks—again Red Cross parcels kept them going.

It was still a long way from home for Lieut. William R. Swanson, of El Centro, Cal., but he was no stranger to Boston.

He was at a near-by Boston camp in 1936, was captured his first week at Salerno and was seventeen months in a German prison camp in Poland.

A lad named Tatro—his first name got lost in the excitement—was itching to get back to a Vermont trout stream. His home is at Eden, Vt., and at 19 he's a veteran—a veteran of Anzio and three and one half months in the prison camp.

Baltimore Man Among 800 In From Isles

San Francisco, April 9 (AP)—Her decks jammed with wide-eyed children and oldsters, a big Coast Guard transport slipped alongside a navy pier here yesterday, bringing home more than 800 civilians, most of whom had been through three years of imprisonment under the Japanese in the Philippines.

It was the largest group of liberated Americans to be returned to this country.

While hundreds of relatives and friends eagerly awaited the vessel's arrival, the evacuees crowded the rails of the ship for their view of the land that means liberty and loved ones.

Some Weep, Some Laugh

Some stood silently, some wept. others laughed hesitantly, as people to whom laughter was an unfamiliar thing.

All were clad in army khaki, and huddled in army overcoats as coolness and rain chilled them.

For many of the children it was their first sight of America.

Baltimorean's Comment

John William Limpert, of Baltimore, echoed the sentiment of them all when he said, "I'd rather starve to death in the States than live like a prince under the Japanese."

They told a tale of common suffering at the hands of the Nipponese.

But new emphasis was given to one of the nightmarish sequels of liberation—the shelling of Santo Tomas internment camp by the Japanese after it had been taken by American doughboys.

One of the men who lost his life from a Japanese shell was Dr. Walter Foley, pastor of the Manila Union Church. Mrs. Foley, who was nearby, had an arm severed by the explosion.

An eyewitness of the tragedy in which a great number of the internees was killed told the story yesterday. He was the Rev. Farley Downs, 50, Christian missionary who was in charge of religious services at Santo Tomas, and later at Los Banos prison. He is on his way to join his wife in Boston.

Camp's Last Child

Also aboard the ship was the last child born in Santo Tomas—Francis Victor Barngrover, 2½ months old. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barngrover, the parents, and their two older children also were among the returning evacuees.

The group included prisoners from Santo Tomas, Los Banos, Bacolod, Holmes and Davao prison camps, as well as a few who managed to hide out in the jungle during the entire occupation of the islands by the Japanese.

Limpert In Isles Since 1940

Mr. Limpert, who is 56 years old, is the brother of Mrs. James Jenkins, 1100 North Lakewood avenue, and Frederick Limpert, of 2512 Poplar drive.

He left for the Philippines as a representative of a lumber firm in October, 1940, and was taken prisoner by the Japanese on June 5, 1942, on Negros Island. Held at Los Banos Prison he was only able to get word back to his sister once during his imprisonment. In a letter written in December, 1943, he said only that he was "safe and quite well."

Word of his liberation came in another letter dated last February 25. In that he said that his condition was "good," but that he had lost a good deal of weight.

THEY ARE SERVING WITHOUT A BONUS

Princeton Charter 'Veterans Of Foreign Wars' In Ranks

Princeton, N.J., April 9 (AP)—Eight of nine Princeton University undergraduates who asked $1,000 bonuses in 1936 for veterans of future wars are serving in the armed forces today. The ninth is exempt for physical disability.

The Princetonians, convinced that another world war would occur within 30 years, formed an organization called Veterans of Future Wars, and urged the Government to pay bonuses to all males between 18 and 36 for the part they would play in the future conflict.

"Let them spend it before it's too late," they said.

Claimed 50,000 Members

Chapters of the Veterans of Future Wars were set up on 250 campuses, and membership of 50,000 was claimed.

The bonus for potential war veterans never was achieved, and today the founders' roster shows:

Chapter commander, Lewis J. Gorin, Jr., former Louisville lawyer, field artillery captain.

Treasurer Thomas Riggs, Jr., English instructor at Exeter Academy, Exeter, N.H., army first lieutenant.

Public Relations Officer Robert G. Barnes, formerly with the Yale University department of international relations, army first lieutenant.

Penn T. Kimball, former New York city newspaper man, Marine first lieutenant and combat correspondent.

Alexander Black, Jr., Pittsburgh lawyer, a navy lieutenant (jg).

Thaddeus T. Hutcheson, Houston (Texas) lawyer, navy lieutenant.

Urban J. P. Ruston, University of Virginia faculty member, navy lieutenant with the United States Military Government in the Pacific.

Richard D. Waters, New York city business man, navy lieutenant (jg).

Secretary John C. Turner, exempt for physical disability, is a civilian in New York city.

BACK PAY CLAIM RELEASE VOIDED BY HIGH COURT

6-3 Decision on Wage-hour Act Bars Settlement by Worker Waiver.

BROOKLYN BANK IS INVOLVED

Supreme Tribunal Also Annuls General Release on Overtime Given in Another Case.

Washington, April 9 (A. P.).—The Supreme Court ruled, 6 to 3, today that the wage-hour law precludes a settlement in which a worker gives a release from further claims resulting from overtime employment.

In other wage-hour law decisions, also delivered by Justice Reed, the court unanimously voided a general release by which a worker gave up additional back pay claims possible under the law and unanimously reversed a finding that interest may be added to amounts won by employees in suits filed under the act to collect overtime compensation.

The 6 to 3 opinion, from which Chief Justice Stone and Justices Roberts and Frankfurter dissented, involved the former employment of William J. O'Neil as a watchman at a business building owned by the Brooklyn Savings Bank. The bank said that without any demand from O'Neil it voluntarily calculated the overtime pay due him if the wage-hour act applied to his former job, sought him out and gave him $423. O'Neil in writing released the bank from further claims.

Later O'Neil sued for an additional $423 as "damages," plus attorney's fees and interest. The wage-hour act makes employers liable to workers for unpaid overtime compensation and for "an additional equal amount as liquidated damages." New York State courts awarded O'Neil the additional amounts and this decision was upheld by the high court.

Other Wage-hour Decisions.

The case involving a general release on additional back pay claims reached the court on an appeal by L. Elwood Dize, manufacturer of barrels and boxes used by oyster and crab meat packers in Crisfield, Md. Lower Federal courts rules that a release signed by Lake Maddrix on payment of $500 which he claimed as overtime compensation could not be used as a defense against new claims. The Federal District Court found that at the time both employer and employee knew something in addition apparently was due. This decision also was upheld.

An appeal by the Arsenal Building Corporation, owner of a building at 463 Seventh avenue, New York city, and by Spear & Co., Inc., managing agent for the building, brought up litigation involving interest. Meyer Greenberg, an elevator operator, and twenty-five other service employees in the building, in a suit in the Southern New York Federal District Court, won a total of $5,379 for overtime pay and an additional $5,379 for "liquidated damages" as permitted by the act. The court also allowed $2,151 as interest at 6 per cent on the total award. The Second Federal Circuit Court, in affirming the District court, added $500 to the allowance of $750 originally ordered for the employees' attorneys' fees.

Arsenal and Spear said the interest award was based on a State law. They contended that it could not be added to damages won under a Federal act and the Supreme Court reversed the lower court's decision.

New York Overtime Case.

The court also upheld a New York State Supreme Court award of unpaid overtime wages and damages to a group of employees of the J. F. Fitzgerald Construction Company and in this case also ruled against payment of interest. It was another unanimous decision by Justice Reed interpreting the wage-hour law.

The employees had been working on a railroad bridge in Chatham, N. Y. The construction company contended that the record of the case contained no evidence that the employees were engaged in interstate commerce, so as to permit them to recover overtime wages and damages under the Federal law.

The Supreme Court said it was clear that employees "who actually repair abutments or substructures of bridges on which are laid tracks used in interstate transportation" are engaged in interstate commerce.

DURING THE THREE DAY RAIDS THE AMERICANS HAVE CRATERED 27 LUFTWAFFE BASES IN NORTHERN, CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN GERMANY, FORCING THE NAZI PILOTS TO OPERATE FROM OTHER FIELDS FAR BEHIND THE FRONT LINES.
TODAY'S FLEET OF MORE THAN 1,250 FLYING FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS CONVOYED BY 750 MUSTANGS AND THUNDERBOLTS POURED MORE THAN 3,500 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVE AND FRAGMENTATION BOMBS OVER THE 10 FIELDS BELIEVED TO BE JET-PROPELLED PLANE BASES.
OIL RESERVOIR NEAR ONE FIELD AT NEUBERG WAS SMASHED. AN UNDERGROUND WHICH LOADED SHELLS WERE STORED WAS SMASHED AND A PLANT IN ALL OF THE TARGETS WERE WITHIN A 50-MILE RADIUS OF MUNICH AND WERE BOMBED VISUALLY. PILOTS REPORTED EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD RESULTS.
THE BATTERED PORT OF HAMBURG GOT ITS SIXTH ATTACK WITHIN A WEEK AS THE RAF BLASTED THE U-BOAT LAIR IN A QUICK DAYLIGHT FOLLOW-UP TO AN ASSAULT ON THE GREAT NORTHERN PORT LAST NIGHT BY A POWERFUL RAF FORCE.

AT LEAST SIX MERCHANT SHIPS WERE SET ABLAZE IN A DAWN ATTACK MONDAY BY RAF HALIFAXES AND LIBERATORS ON ENEMEY SHIPPING IN THE SKAGERRAK. THE AIR MINISTRY SAID THE SHIPS WERE PART OF FAST-MOVING CONVOYS BELIEVED TO BE LADEN WITH SUPPLIES FOR U-BOAT BASES IN NORWEGIAN HARBORS.

"IN SPITE OF THE ALLIED THREAT TO BALTIC PORTS, THE ENEMY IS STILL TRYING TO MOVE TROOPS FROM NORTHERN NORWAY TO GERMANY," SAID AN RAF COMMENTATOR. "THE SAME SHIPS ON THE RETURN VOYAGE CARRY VITAL CARGOES TO NORWAY TO ENABLE U-BOATS TO PUT TO SEA IN WHAT MAY BE HITLER'S LAST RESISTANCE BID."

OF THE GERMAN PLANES SHOT UP ON THE GROUND NEAR MUNICH, AT LEAST 54 WERE RIPPED APART BY THE 55TH MUSTANG GROUP COMMANDED BY LT. COL.ELWYN RIGHETTI OF SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF., WHO PERSONALLY KNOCKED OUT SIX. RIGHETTI ESTIMATED THERE WERE 120 NAZI PLANES OF ALL TYPES PARKED "WINGTIP OT WINGTIP" AMONG THE FOLIAGE BESIDE THE HIGHWAY.

THE ROWS OF PLANES NEAR THE HIGHWAY WERE FIRST SPOTTED BY MAJ. EDWARD GILLER, 600 NORTH SIXTH ST., GRANT'S PASS, ORE., AND LT. ERNEST LEON, 312 AVE. B, CLOQUET, MINN., WHO WERE CHASING A JET-PROPELLED ME-262 IN LOW FOR A KILL.

WHEN NEARLY AT TREE-TOP LEVEL, THE TWO PILOTS SAW THE LINEUP OF ENEMY PLANES, OPENED UP ON THEM AND RADIOED THEIR POSITION. SOON SWARMS OF OTHER MUSTANGS FOLLOWED THEM DOWN, SPRAYING THE PARKED PLANES WITH THEIR MACHINEGUNS UNTIL THEIR AMMUNITION WAS EXHAUSTED.

CAPT.ROBERT WELCH OF BROWN CITY, MICH., AND CAPT.FRANK BIRTCIEL OF SYLVIA, KANS., EACH DESTROYED FIVE.

LT.LEON LEVITT OF VILLAR RIDGE, ILL., RIDDLED TWO JUNKERS 88S BEING TOWED ALONG ANOTHER HIGHWAY SOUTH OF MUNICH AND REPORTED SEEING DOZENS OF SHINY NEW JU-88S HIDDEN BENEATH THE TREES ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ROAD MILES FROM THE NEAREST AIRFIELD.

APR 10 1945

B54

"THE CREWS WERE WORKING ON SOME OF THEM UNDER THE COVER OF BRANCHES OF THE TREES," LEVITT SAID. "I SAW NEARLY 100 OTHER PLANES ON WHAT APPEARED TO BE A FARM. SOME WERE PARKED IN THE MIDDLE OF SIDE ROADS."

A STAFF OFFICER OF THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE SAID IT WAS OBVIOUS THE GERMANS HAD BEEN EXPECTING AN ATTACK ON THE AIRFIELDS IN THE SOUTH AFTER THOSE IN THE NORTH HAD BEEN HAMMERED SATURDAY AND OTHERS IN CENTRAL GERMANY HAD BEEN ATTACKED SUNDAY.

"THEY APPARENTLY PULLED THEIR PLANES OFF THE FIELDS IN THE MUNICH AREA AND TRIED TO HIDE THEM ALONG THE SUPERHIGHWAYS WHERE THEY COULD BE CONCEALED IN THE WOODS IF THEY DIDN'T GET A CHANCE TO OPERATE," HE SAID.

"THEY THOUGHT WE WOULDN'T PROWL THE HIGHWAYS LOOKING FOR AIRPLANES. AND IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR THAT JET WHICH THOSE TWO MUSTANG PILOTS CHASED RIGHT OVER THE AREA, THE PARKED PLANES PROBABLY WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN SIGHTED."

LONDON, APRIL 9-(AP)-THE GERMAN AIRFORCE WAS CAUGHT WITH ITS PLANES DOWN TODAY AND U.S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTERS DESTROYED AT LEAST 83, LT. COL. ELWYN RIGHETTI OF SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF., LEADING WITH DESTRUCTION OF SIX.

CAPT.FRANK BIRTCIEL, OF SYLVIA, KAS., AND CAPT. ROBERT WELCH, OF BROWN CITY, MICH., BAGGED FIVE APIECE AND CAPT. FRANK EMORY, MT. VERNON, WASH., NAILED FOUR.

MAJ. EDWARD GILLER, 600 NORTH SIXTH ST., GRANTS PASS, ORE., CHASED A JET AT TREE TOP LEVEL OVER ONE OF HITLER'S SUPERHIGHWAYS NEAR MUNICH AND AFTER DOWNING THE ENEMY SPOTTED ABOUT 120 PARKED PLANES IN A WOODS LINING THE AUTOBAHN. HE DESTROYED THREE AND RADIOED FOR HELP. OTHER MUSTANGS SOON COLLECTED OVER THE HIGHWAY AND DESTROYED AT LEAST 60. DAMAGING AN UNDETERMINED NUMBER OF OTHERS.

AIR FIELDS BOMBED TODAY WERE AT FURSTENFELDBRUCK, OBERPFAFFENHAFEN, LEIPHEIM, LECHFIELD, MEMMINGEN, RIEM, EUBERG, SCHLEISSHEIM AND TWO AT LANDSBERG.

THE NINTH MADE 380 TRIPS DURING THE MORNING--300 OF THEM IN SUPPORT OF THE THIRD ARMY--AGAINST GERMAN TRANSPORT, TROOPS AND STRONG POINTS. AT THE SAME TIME 225 MEDIUM AND LIGHT BOMBERS FROM CONTINENT BASES FIRED AN OIL STORAGE DEPOT AT BAD BERKA, 12 MILES SOUTHEAST OF ERFURT AND THE AMBERGKUMMERSBRUCK ORDNANCE PLANT 36 MILES EAST OF NUERNBERG.

THE TOLL TAKEN OF GERMAN VESSELS BY THE PERSISTENT BOMBING OF THE GERMANS NORTH SEA AND BALTIC PORTS IN THE LAST 10 DAYS HAS BEEN BOOSTED TO AT LEAST 27 SHIPS SUNK, INCLUDING NINE SUBMARINES, A U.S. AIR FORCE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

LONDON, APRIL 9-(AP)-ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNNERS WERE SHOOTING DOWN 72 PER CENT OF THE FLYING BOMBS THE GERMANS SENT OVER SOUTHERN ENGLAND NEAR THE END OF THE V-1 CAMPAIGN, GEN.SIR FREDERICK PILE, COMMANDER OF BRITAIN'S ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSES, SAID TODAY.

SIR FREDERICK, RETIRING TO BECOME DIRECTOR GENERAL OF HOUSING IN THE MINISTRY OF WORKS, SAID ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS ACCOUNTED FOR 85 PER CENT OF ALL ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED OVER ENGLAND DURING THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS OF THE NIGHT BLITZ AND 40 PER CENT DURING THE LAST THREE MONTHS, WHEN FIGHTER PLANE SUCCESS INCREASED.

DURING THE NAZIS' HIT-RUN RAIDS OF 1942 THERE WERE MORE THAN 1,000 ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS ON ENGLAND'S SOUTHERN COAST, PILE DISCLOSED. ONCE 65 PER CENT OF A RAIDER FLIGHT WAS SHOT DOWN, AND ANOTHER TIME 60 PER CENT, "AND AFTER THAT THE SNEAK RAIDERS NEVER CAME BACK," HE SAID.

BY JAMES F.KING

LONDON, APRIL 9-(AP)-PARLIAMENT RETURNS FROM ITS EASTER RECESS TOMORROW AMID GROWING INDICATIONS THAT BRITAIN'S ELECTION TRUCE WILL VANISH WITH THE DEFEAT OF GERMANY--IF NOT SOONER.

WHILE THE COUNTRY STILL IS UNITED BEHIND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AS THE NATIONAL WAR LEADER, A STRONG CHALLENGE TO CHURCHILL AS THE CONSERVATIVE DOMESTIC LEADER IS CRYSTALLIZING IN THE LABORITE FACTION BOTH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS AND WITHIN THE PRIME MINISTER'S COALITION.

BRITAIN HAS NOT HAD A NATIONAL ELECTION IN 10 YEARS. UNDER THE TRUCE WHEN VACANCIES OCCUR IN PARLIAMENT THE PARTY HOLDING THE SEAT IS ALLOWED TO FILL IT WITHOUT OPPOSITION FROM ANY OTHER MAJOR PARTIES. THE INDEPENDENTS HAVE UPSET THIS PROCEDURE IN A FEW INSTANCES, HOWEVER.

ERNEST BEVIN, LONG TIME STRONGMAN OF THE TRADE UNION MOVEMENT AND CHURCHILL'S MINISTER OF LABOR, TOUCHED OFF A FIERY POLITICAL EXCHANGE IN PROVOCATIVE WEEKEND SPEECHES ASSERTING THAT WHILE HE HAS PLEDGED

HIS LOYALTY TO THE PRIME MINISTER "AS A NATIONAL LEADER, I HAVE NEVER GIVEN IT TO HIM AS THE LEADER OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY."

BEVIN BLAMED THE CONSERVATIVES FOR FAILING TO PREPARE FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE COUNTRY AND CALLED FOR A SWEEPING PROGRAM OF NATIONALIZATION OF SOME KEY INDUSTRIES LIKE POWER, FUEL AND TRANSPORT.

TAKING UP THE CHALLENGE, BRENDAN BRACKE, CONSERVATIVE MINISTER OF INFORMATION, REPLIED THAT BEVIN HIMSELF WAS LUKEWARM IN SUPPORTING REARMAMENT MEASURES BEFORE THE WAR AND DENOUNCED THE LABOR PROGRAM FOR NATIONALIZATION ON THE GROUNDS THAT "GOVERNMENT HAS ENOUGH TO DO WITHOUT MEDDLING DIRECTLY IN THE MANAGEMENT OF OUR TRADES AND INDUSTRIES."

CHURCHILL HAS INDICATED CLEARLY THAT HE IS PREPARED TO CARRY ON AS THE HEAD OF A POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION GOVERNMENT AND HAS SUGGESTED A CONTINUATION OF THE COALITION EVEN AFTER THE ELECTION. APR 10 1945

BEVIN, WHO HEADS THE TRANSPORT WORKERS' UNION, IS THE FIRST KEY LABORITE FIGURE IN THE PRESENT CABINET TO REJECT THIS IDEA. IN ASSERTING THAT HE WOULD STAND BY THE DESIRES OF A MAJORITY OF HIS PARTY THE LABOR MINISTER MADE WHAT APPEARED TO BE A POSSIBLE BID FOR THE PRIME MINISTERSHIP HIMSELF.

LESS COLORFUL DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER CLEMENT R.ATTLEE, AS THE PRESENT LEADER OF THE PARTY, NORMALLY WOULD HEAD ANY LABOR GOVERNMENT. THE PARTY'S LEADERSHIP, HOWEVER, IS NOT HELD UNSHAKABLY BY ANY SINGLE INDIVIDUAL AND BOTH BEVIN AND HOME SECRETARY HERBERT MORRISON WOULD HAVE STRONG SUPPORT FOR THE TOP JOB.

THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN ALREADY IS BEGINNING TO TAKE SHAPE. IN THE PRESENT COMMONS THE CONSERVATIVES HOLD 379 SEATS AND LABORITES 163 WITH THE REMAINING 73 DIVIDED MAINLY AMONG LIBERALS AND INDEPENDENTS.

THE CONSERVATIVE LONDON SUNDAY TIMES CONTENDED THAT THE ISSUE WOULD BE WHETHER TO "DISMISS MR.CHURCHILL TO MAKE ROOM FOR MR.ATTLEE."

THE LONDON DAILY HERALD, A LABOR ORGAN, REPLIED THAT THE CAMPAIGN SHOULD BE ONE OF PRINCIPLES RATHER THAN PERSONALITIES AND ASSAILED WHAT IT CALLED ATTEMPTS TO CASH IN ON THE GLAMOR ATTACHED TO CHURCHILL AS THE NATION'S WAR LEADER.

THE ATTENTION OF THE VOTERS APPEARS TO BE ABSORBED MAINLY BY DOMESTIC PROBLEMS WITH THE NATION FACING A TREMENDOUS RECONSTRUCTION PROGRAM. SOCIAL SECURITY AND HOUSING HAVE BEEN PUT FORWARD BY BOTH MAJOR PARTIES AS THE TWO CHIEF ISSUES.

WITH U.S.FIRST ARMY, APRIL 9-(AP)-FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE GREAT ALLIED DRIVES OPENED, RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN ARMIES TONIGHT ARE IN A POSITION FOR TACTICAL FIELD COOPERATION IN CUTTING UP WHAT REMAINS OF THE GERMAN ARMY.

MARSHAL KONEV'S FIRST UKRAINIAN ARMY AND THE ARMIES OF GENERALS PATTON AND HODGES ARE ONLY SOME 150 MILES APART AND IT IS POSSIBLE FOR THEM TO COORDINATE THEIR MOVES IN SLASHING GERMANY APART AT THE WAIST.

APR 10 1945

WHETHER THERE IS CLOSE COORDINATION AT THIS STAGE IS KNOWN ONLY TO THE HIGH COMMAND, BUT A STUDY OF THE MAP SHOWS THAT WITH THE DISTANCES WHITTLED DOWN THE ALLIES ARE EASILY ABLE TO MESH THEIR OPERATIONS.

THE SHORTEST LINE BETWEEN THE AMERICANS AND RUSSIANS STRETCHES FROM THE SPEARHEAD OF THE THIRD ARMY NEAR WEIMAN TO GOERLITZ EAST OF DRESDEN.

SHOULD SIMULTANEOUS DRIVES BE OPENED DOWN THIS LINE THROUGH LEIPZIG AND DRESDEN THE ALLIES PROBABLY WOULD SLICE GERMANY IN HALF IN RELATIVELY SHORT ORDER AND A CORRIDOR WOULD BE OPENED BETWEEN THE RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN FRONTS.

SOME VETERAN MILITARY MEN FORESEE CAPITULATION OF ALL ENEMY FORCES LEFT IN THE HALF OF THE COUNTRY THAT IS CUT OFF FROM HITLER BY SUCH A BISECTING.

"ONCE THEY ARE AWAY FROM HITLER'S INFLUENCE AND CONTROL," ONE OFFICER SAID, "I BELIEVE WE WILL SEE CAPITULATION. BUT THIS WILL BE IN THE GEOGRAPHICAL HALF OF GERMANY CUT OFF FROM HITLER. HE IS THE ONLY INFLUENCE THAT KEEPS THEM GOING."

THIS VIEWPOINT COINCIDES WITH THAT OF GEN.GEORGE C.MARSHALL, WHO REPORTEDLY TOLD THE SENATE MILITARY COMMITTEE THAT THE QUICKEST WAY TO END THE WAR WITH GERMANY WOULD BE TO KILL OR CAPTURE HITLER BECAUSE OF HIS INFLUENCE OVER THE ARMED FORCES.

DRAWING A LINE BETWEEN THE TWO FRONTS SHOWS THAT EITHER LEIPZIG OR DRESDEN WOULD BE THE MOST FAVORABLE MEETING PLACES.

FROM LEIPZIG TO BERLIN THERE IS A CORRIDOR OF SOLID GROUND LEADING THROUGH MANY LAKES AND LOW GROUND AND IT IS TRAVERSED BY ONE OF HITLER'S SUPERHIGHWAYS.

WITH CANADIAN ARMY IN THE NORTH, APRIL 9-(AP)-ALLIED TROOPS WHO PARACHUTED BEHIND ENEMY LINES OVER A WIDE AREA SOUTH OF GRONINGEN, RIDDLING ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS AND DEFENSE IN NORTH HOLLAND, HAVE BEEN "TREMENDOUSLY SUCCESSFUL" IN THEIR OPERATIONS, OFFICERS OF FORWARD UNITS SAID TONIGHT.

THE AIRBORNE TROOPS REPORTED CAPTURE OF AT LEAST TWO OBJECTIVES IN THE FIRST 12 HOURS AFTER DROPPING BEHIND THE ENEMY'S POSITIONS.

THIS AIRBORNE SHOW WAS NOT LIKE ANY OTHER PUBLICIZED DROP BEHIND ENEMY LINES. FOR ONE THING, WHILE ALLIED GROUND FORCES PUSHED IN THE DIRECTION OF THE LANDINGS, NO SPECIAL EFFORT WAS MADE TO CONTACT THE SELF-CONTAINED AIRBORNE FORCE. EXCEPT FOR ONE INSTANCE, THE AIRBORNE TROOPS HAVE MADE NO PHYSICAL CONTACT WITH CANADIAN ADVANCED UNITS AND DID NOT EVEN ATTEMPT TO MAINTAIN THAT ONE CONTACT.

INSTEAD, THE PARATROOPERS --WERE APPARENTLY WORKING IN COMPACT, EFFICIENT UNITS, CREATING HAVOC AND CONFUSION BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES. THEY SEEM DETERMINED TO STAY PUT UNTIL THEY OR THE ADVANCING GROUND FORCES DRIVE THE ENEMY ENTIRELY FROM THE AREA.

IN THE PAST TWO DAYS I HAVE DRIVEN MORE THAN 250 MILES IN AN ATTEMPT, SO FAR UNSUCCESSFUL, TO LINK UP WITH THE PARATROOPERS.

ONE UNIT, THE FORCE OPERATING CLOSEST TO THE AIRBORNE TROOPS, LEARNED ONLY EARLY TODAY THAT THE PARATROOPERS WERE FIGHTING BEHIND THE ENEMY LINES.

"WE PICKED UP ONE WIRELESS REPORT FROM THEM," AN OFFICER SAID, "WHICH DISCLOSED THAT TWO BRIDGES HAD BEEN BLOWN. WE HOPE THEY CAPTURED A FEW."

A LATER RADIO REPORT TOLD OF A HEAVY ENEMY MOVEMENT EASTWARD FROM THE AREA JUST SOUTH OF GRONINGEN, PROBABLY BROUGHT ABOUT BY THE SUDDEN APPEARANCE OF ALLIED AIRBORNE TROOPS OVER A WIDE AREA.

NIGHT LEAD ESSEN (510)

BY ROBERT EUNSON

ESSEN, GERMANY, APRIL 9-(AP)-ESSEN, HOME OF THE KRUPP WORKS AND ONCE THE GREATEST ARSENAL OF ALL EUROPE, WAS PRACTICALLY SURROUNDED TONIGHT AND AMERICAN TROOPS TRAMPED ITS STREETS.

THE GREAT KRUPP WORKS COVERING 20 SQUARE MILES WERE FOUND IN RUINS. THEIR STACKS DEAD SINCE ROYAL AIR FORCE BOMBERS CAME THE NIGHT OF MARCH 11 AND PULVERIZED THEM. THE KRUPP WORKS, IN FACT, APPEAR TO BE THE MOST PULVERIZED SPOT IN ALL GERMANY.

WHEN THE 79TH INFANTRY DIVISION OF THE U.S. NINTH ARMY ENTERED THE CITY THIS MORNING, A KRUPP EMPLOYE SURRENDERED, SAYING IT WAS A RELIEF TO KNOW "THOSE GOD-AWFUL NIGHTS AND DAYS OF BOMBS HAVE COME TO AN END.

"I THINK ABOUT 2,000 PEOPLE WERE KILLED THAT LAST NIGHT," HE SAID. "AFTER THAT, KRUPP HAD NO LIGHTS AND THE ESSEN RAILROAD WAS DESTROYED."

THIS FORMER EMPLOYE, NOW A SERGEANT IN THE ESSEN POLICE FORCE, WAS ASKED BY GERMAN-SPEAKING SGT. OTTO SPIEGLER, COMBAT RIFLEMAN FROM 945 EAST 165TH ST., THE BRONX, N.Y., IF ARTILLERY SHELLS HAD HIT THE PLANT.

"THERE WERE SO MANY RAIDS AND EXPLOSIONS I COULDN'T BE SURE," THE GERMAN REPLIED. "ALL I KNOW IS I NEVER WANT TO LIVE THROUGH THAT AGAIN."

EVEN ESSEN NEWSPAPERS ADMITTED AS MANY AS 500 CIVILIANS WERE KILLED DURING ONE AIR RAID, AND THE PEOPLE USUALLY FELT THE NEWSPAPER FIGURES WERE ABOUT ONE-FOURTH OF THE REAL TOTAL.

AFTER THE MARCH BOMBING, THE GESTAPO FORCED EVERY MALE CITIZEN OF ESSEN TO JOIN THE POLICE FORCE OR THE ARMY AND MADE PREPARATIONS TO DEFEND THIS ARMORER OF THE THIRD REICH. A FEW DAYS AGO THE GESTAPO FLED.

ONCE THEY WERE GONE, THE POPULATION MADE NO ATTEMPT TO DEFEND THE CITY.

THEN FIELD MARSHAL KESSELRING SENT HIS CRACK SECOND PARATROOP DIVISION INTO THE LINES BEFORE ESSEN AND STRENGTHENED THESE SEASONED BATTLERS WITH ARTILLERY AND TANKS.

"THOSE PARATROOPERS MADE US FIGHT ALL THE WAY IN HERE" SAID COL. ANDREW J.SCHRIVER, MOUNT HOLLY SPRINGS, PA., WHOSE 115TH REGIMENT IS FIGHTING INSIDE THE CITY.

"I AM OUT TO DESTROY MORE OF GERMANY THAN SHERMAN DID IN GEORGIA," DECLARED THE WHITE-HAIRED VETERAN OF TWO WARS, WHOSE HEADQUARTERS WAS IN A RUHR FACTORY.

THERE WAS QUITE A CONTRAST THE RECEPTION AT GELSENKIRCHEN. FOUR MILES TO THE NORTHWEST, WHICH WAS ENTERED AND FOUND UNDEFENDED.

A JEEP PATROL SAID THE ONLY SIGN OF LIFE WAS GERMAN CIVILIANS READING AMERICAN LEAFLETS SHOT IN BY BLANK ARTILLERY SHELLS.

CITIZENS COMPLAINED OF FIVE YEARS OF ALLIED BOMBING AND SAID THE INDUSTRIAL AREA OF GELSENKIRCHEN WAS JUST ABOUT FLAT.

MAJ.WILLIAM A.MCKEAN, BRAINTREE, MASS., CAPT.BENJAMIN F.WESTER-VELOT, BROOKLYN, N.Y., LT. GEORGE W.JONES, PORTLAND, ME., AND PFC JOHN GEARY, WHEELING, W.VA., TOOK OVER GELSENKIRCHEN.

LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON WAS DRIVING INTO THE RUHR WITH THE EIGHTH ARMORED DIVISION AND THREE INFANTRY DIVISIONS--THE 79TH, 95TH AND 35TH, PLUS SEVERAL UNITS SO FAR UNANNOUNCED.

HIS U.S. NINTH ARMY LIBERATED SEVERAL THOUSAND FOREIGN WORKERS, INCLUDING ABOUT 80 RUSSIANS WITH BROKEN FEET. THE GERMANS HAD DROPPED HEAVY IRON BALLS ON THEIR FEET, MAIMING THEM SO THE WORKERS COULD NOT RUN AWAY.

CPL. ANTONIO RIVA, 310 EAST 24TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, HELPED TO FREE THE SAD-FACED RUSSIANS.

AMONG OTHERS WHO RELEASED THE INJURED SLAVE LABORERS WERE CPL. JOHN POVICH, JOHNSTOWN, PA., PFC. EARL N.EILENBERGER, 6 THORP ST., BINGHAMTON, N.Y., AND T/5 JUNIUS DAVIS, 479 HILL ST., ATLANTA, GA.

THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION FOUGHT FIERCE GERMAN ATTACKS ON ITS NARROW CORRIDOR TO CRAILSHEIM, MIDWAY BETWEEN STUTTGART AND NUERNBERG AND THE CLOSEST WESTERN FRONT APPROACH TO HITLER'S MOUNTAIN AERIE. THE RUSSIANS WERE LAST REPORTED 120 MILES FROM BERCHTESGADEN.

THE MOST VIOLENT FIGHTING CONTINUED IN THIS SIXTH DAY OF BATTLE FOR HEILBRONN.

THE STEADY CLOSE IN ON THE RUHR POCKET CONTINUED. SUPREME HEADQUARTERS SAID, HOWEVER, THAT THE CUTOFF BAND WAS NOW SO STRONG AND SO WIDE THAT THE GERMANS HAD NO CHANCE OF BREAKING OUT, EVEN WITH A COORDINATED ATTACK.

THE ENEMY COMMUNIQUE SAID BRITISH SPEARHEADS WERE ACROSS THE WESER WELL BEYOND BREMEN BETWEEN SYNE AND VERDEN, 162 MILES WEST OF BERLIN AND 54 SOUTHWEST OF HAMBURG.

AT MEPPEN, THE CANADIANS WERE TEN MILES FROM THE ZUIDER ZEE.

THE GERMANS BLEW DIKES, FLOODING AN AREA 20 MILES SQUARE BETWEEN MEPPEN AND ZWOLLE, 12 MILES SOUTH OF MEPPEL, VIRTUALLY ISOLATING GERMAN FORCES REMAINING IN WESTERN HOLLAND. THIS INDICATED ANOTHER DEFENSE LIKE THAT OF THE FRENCH PORTS OF DUNKERQUE, LORIENT, ST.NAZAIRE AND LA ROCHELLE. THE MOUTH OF THE GIRONDE LEADS TO BORDEAUX AND THE CHANNEL ISLANDS WHERE 137,000 GERMANS ARE TRAPPED HUNDREDS OF MILES BEHIND THE FRONT.

APR 10 1945

ALL OF NORTH HOLLAND WAS ISOLATED BY THE FRESH DIKE BREAKS EXCEPT FOR A ROAD ALONG 25 MILES OF DIKE CAUSEWAY ACROSS THE NORTH AND ZUIDER ZEE. THIS WAS THE ONLY REMAINING GERMAN ESCAPE AND SUPPLY ROUTE OPEN.

THE CANADIANS FOUGHT ON THE ISSEL LINE FROM ZWOLLE SOUTH TO DEVENTER AND ARNHEM. THE CANADIAN THIRD DIVISION FOUGHT IN THE OUTSKIRTS OF DEVENTER (40,309) AND THE SECOND DIVISION ADVANCED NORTH TO THE SCHIPBEEK CANAL AND OCCUPIED HOLTEN ON THE DEVENTER-ALMELO ROAD.

GERMAN BROADCASTS ASSERTED 500 AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOPS WERE DROPPED AT BAD SOODEN BETWEEN MUENDEN AND MUELHAUSEN, BUT BOTH PLACES ARE FAR BEHIND ALLIED LINES.

APR 10 1945

THE ATTACKING DIVISIONS OF GEN.OMAR N.BRADLEY'S 12TH ARMY GROUP RENAMED THE RUHR ENCIRCLEMENT THE "ROSE POCKET" IN MEMORY OF THE COMMANDER OF THE THIRD ARMORED DIVISION, MAJ.GEN.MAURICE ROSE OF DENVER, WHO WAS SLAIN BY THE NAZIS WHILE SURRENDERING IN THE CAMPAIGN TO SNAP SHUT THE TRAP.

THE NINTH ARMY LANCED WITHIN 63 OR LESS MILES OF THE ELBE RIVER, WHICH FLOWS WITHIN 50 MILES OF BERLIN AND IS THAT RAVAGED CAPITAL'S LAST NATURAL DEFENSE BARRIER.

ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT, THE SEVENTH ARMY WAS A BARE FOUR MILES AT LAST REPORTS--MANY HOURS BEHIND DEVELOPMENTS--FROM SCHWEINFURT (40,500), BALLBEARING CAPITAL OF GERMANY. AT CRAILSHEIM, THE TROOPS WERE MIDWAY BETWEEN NUERNBERG (431,000) AND STUTTGART (460,000).

THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY CAPTURED MEPPEN (9,000) AND PUSHED NORTH WITHIN 30 MILES OF THE NORTH SEA AND 40 MILES FROM THE NAVAL BASE OF EMDEN. THE GERMANS SEEMED TO HAVE ABANDONED THE LOWER EMS RIVER AND PROBABLY WERE FALLING BACK ON EMDEN. THEY ARE LIKELY ALSO TO DEFEND THE PORT OF WILHELMSHAVEN, 35 MILES EAST OF EMDEN.

AIRBORNE TROOPS IN NORTHEAST HOLLAND DISRUPTED GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS SOUTH OF GRONINGEN. THE CANADIAN FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION SET FREE NUMEROUS FRENCH AND RUSSIAN PRISONERS IN A CAPTURED CAMP.

MOBILE CANADIAN AND BRITISH FORCES WERE WHEELING NORTHWARD SWIFTLY TO LINK UP WITH THE PARACHUTE AND GLIDER FORCES. THE BRITISH GUARDS ARMORED DIVISION DROVE WITHIN FIVE MILES OF QUACKENBRUCK IN A FANOUT MOPPING UP THE NORTHWEST CORNER OF THE REICH.

THE RACING SEVENTH ARMORED (DESERT RATS) DIVISION HAS COVERED 120 MILES IN 11 DAYS TO REACH ARTILLERY RANGE OF BREMEN, BUT ITS PACE SUDDENLY SLOWED TO A CRAWL TODAY BEFORE A HARDER CRUST OF ENEMY DEFENSE. THE GERMANS LAID DOWN A TERRIFIC SCREEN OF ARTILLERY FIRE FROM THE BURNING CITY. THE DESERT RATS FOUGHT IN LITTLE RIEDE, FIVE MILES SOUTHEAST OF BREMEN, AND CAPTURED BASSUM, TEN MILES SOUTH OF THE BIG PORT.

PRISONERS SAID THE GERMANS HAD RUSHED DIVISIONS DOWN FROM NORTH JUTLAND AND DENMARK TO STIFFEN THEIR LINES. THE BRITISH CAPTURED 1,100 PRISONERS YESTERDAY TO RAISE THEIR BAG EAST OF THE RHINE TO 34,500.

THE CAPTURE OF MEPPEN JUST ABOUT SEALED OFF HOLLAND FOR LIBERATION--IF AND WHEN GEN.EISENHOWER INTENDS TO EXECUTE THAT JOB--FOR IT WAS THE JUNCTION FOR THE LAST ROUNDABOUT RAILLINES THROUGH ZWOLLE NEAR THE ZUIDER ZEE. THAT BODY OF WATER WAS WITHIN SIGHT OF THE CANADIANS ADVANCING ALONG THE DIKED LOWLANDS.

THE PINCHDOWN OF THE RUHR-ROSE POCKET CONTINUED WITH STEADY GAINS BY THE NINTH ARMY ON THE NORTH AND THE FIRST ARMY ON THE EAST AND SOUTH. GAINS UP TO FOUR OR MORE MILES WERE MADE.

THE THIRD ARMY ABOUT COMPLETED ITS CONSOLIDATION AND MAPPING UP IN PREPARATION FOR ITS NEXT PUSH, POSSIBLY TOWARD THE RUSSIAN LINES, LEIPZIG OR CZECHOSLOVAKIA--OR ALL THREE. LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON HAD STRAIGHTENED HIS LINE EXCEPT FOR A SMALL BULGE SOUTH OF GOTHA, SEVEN MILES WIDE AND 14 MILES BACK FROM THE TIP. HE WAS LESS THAN 170 MILES FROM THE RUSSIANS, 58 FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA AND 69 FROM LEIPZIG AT LAST REPORTS. HIS FORWARD TROOPS ALSO MENACED BERLIN, ERFURT AND MAGDEBURG.

HOUSE TO HOUSE FIGHTING CONTINUED IN THE SOUTH GERMAN RAIL CENTER OF HEILBRONN.

THE FRENCH REPORTED "GOOD GAINS" TO THE EAST OF THE CAPTURED BLACK FOREST CITY OF PFORZHEIM, AND CAPTURED BRACKENHEIM AND LAUFFEN ON THE NECKAR, FOUR MILES SOUTH OF HEILBRONN. THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP ADVANCES WERE FLANKING THE LAST SIEGFRIED LINE POSITIONS OPPOSITE THE UPPER RHINE. THE POILUS PUSHED INTO THE BLACK FOREST NORTHEAST OF THE RHINE CITY OF RASTATT AND BADEN BADEN.

SPOTTY CLOUDS FLECKED THE WESTERN FRONT SKIES TODAY, BUT WEATHER WAS AT LEAST AS FAVORABLE AS YESTERDAY WHEN THE ALLIES FLEW 5,838, SORTIES WITH THE LOSS OF TEN PLANES. THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH PILOTS DESTROYED 137 TO 143 PLANES AND DAMAGED 124. DURING THE NIGHT, THE BRITISH ATTACKED GERMANS ALONG THE LAST 30 MILES OF THE DUTCH BORDER.

BOMBERS WORKED OVER HAMBURG AND TARGETS NEAR LEIPZIG, WHILE MOSQUITOS KEPT BERLIN UNDER ATTACK.

THE FIRST ARMY'S BRIDGEHEAD OVER THE UPPER LEINE RIVER EXTENDED THREE TO FIVE MILES EAST OF THE STREAM AND FOR 11 MILES FROM GOETTINGEN TO NEIDERGANDERN. THE AMERICANS FOUGHT IN THE STREETS OF EBENHAUSEN AND ADVANCED NORTHEAST OF BODENFELDE.

THE NINTH DIVISION, PRESSING INTO THE RUHR-ROSE POCKET, CLEARED MECHEDE AND ARMOR TOOK FREDEBURG. OTHER TROOPS FOUGHT IN OBERINGHAUSEN. HEINSBERG, 12 MILES NORTHEAST OF SIEGEN, FELL TO THE EIGHTH DIVISION.

PARIS--FIRST ADD NIGHT LEAD WESTERN FRONT (BY BEALMEAR) XXX ENEMY'S ARMIES.

AS LT. GEN. WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S NINTH ARMY POUNDED EASTWARD, A FIELD DISPATCH SAID THERE WAS NOT THE SLIGHTEST INDICATION THE GERMANS COULD ORGANIZE A GOOD DEFENSE LINE BEFORE BERLIN.

THE FIFTH ARMORED DIVISION CROSSED THE WESER AND JOINED THE BERLIN SWEEPSTAKES. THE 83RD INFANTRY IN THE VAN WAS FIVE MILES NORTHEAST OF GANDERSHEIM AND ABOUT 30 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BRUNSWICK.

THE 84TH INFANTRY DIVISION WAS LEADING THE ASSAULT ON HANNOVER, HOME TOWN OF THE LAST GERMAN PRESIDENT, PAUL VON HINDENBURG.

TO THE SOUTH THE MOTORIZED 83RD INFANTRY ROLLED 12 MILES EASTWARD FOLLOWING IN THE PATH OF THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH CAPTURED THE UNIVERSITY CITY OF HILDESHEIM.

APR 10 1945

THE 30TH DIVISION CLEARED THE PIED PIPER CITY OF HAMELIN AND LIKEWISE FOLLOWED THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION, MOPPING UP BY-PASSED OR OVERRUN VILLAGES AND STRONGPOINTS.

IN THE BATTLE TO CLEAN UP THE RUHR, THE 79TH INFANTRY DIVISION FOUGHT INTO ESSEN IN THE FACE OF ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE.

THE GERMANS WERE TRYING TO KNOCK OUT BRIDGES ON THE RHEINE-HERNE CANAL, OVER WHICH THE INFANTRY SPED IN ENTERING ESSEN. TANKS AND TANK DESTROYERS CROSSED THE CANAL TO GIVE THE INFANTRY SUPPORT.

THE SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION OF THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY CAPTURED RIEDE, FIVE MILES SOUTHEAST OF BREMEN, AND CHARGED INTO THE STOUT DEFENSES BEFORE THE CITY.

THE SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION SHOVED ACROSS THE LEINE RIVER OVER TWO CAPTURED BRIDGES SEVEN MILES NORTHWEST OF HANNOVER, WHILE THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION PUSHED 18 MILES NORTHEAST TOWARD HAMBURG, FIGHTING BEYOND NIEDERNSTOECKEN, 63 MILES FROM THE CITY. CLOSEST BRITISH FORCES TO HAMBURG WERE THOSE BEFORE BREMEN.

ON THE WESTERN FLANK, THE BRITISH CAPTURED BERGE AND PUSHED ON TWO MILES TO A POINT 20 MILES NORTH OF LINGEN BUT WERE MEETING WITH STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

THE GERMANS HAD SUCCEEDED IN BOLSTERING THEIR LINES ALL ALONG THE FRONT OF LT. GEN. MILES C.DEMPSEY'S ARMY, INDICATING THAT THEY WILL NOT CEDE THE NORTH SEA PORTS WITHOUT A STERN STRUGGLE.

GEN. H.D.G.CRERAR'S CANADIAN FIRST ARMY SPLIT THE GERMANS' 150-MILE FRONT IN NORTHERN HOLLAND DIRECTLY IN THE CENTER, LEAVING TWO HUGE POCKETS OF RESISTANCE.

THE SOUTHERNMOST INCLUDES ROTTERDAM, AMSTERDAM, THE HAGUE AND UTRECHT. THE OTHER IS IN THE NORTH AND SCREENS THE PORTS OF EMDEN AND WILHELMSHAVEN.

THE LATTER FORCES WERE BEING WITHDRAWN RAPIDLY FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE PORTS, AND A FIELD DISPATCH SAID THE LIBERATION OF THAT NORTHEAST SECTION OF HOLLAND SHOULD COME QUICKLY.

ANOTHER CANADIAN SPEARHEAD RACED 21 MILES NORTHEAST BEYOND THE DORTMUND-EMS CANAL AND WAS WITHIN 50 MILES OF OLDENBURG, A CITY WHICH SCREENS BREMEN ON THE WEST.

THE U.S. FIRST ARMY MET ONLY DISORGANIZED RESISTANCE IN ITS MARCH EASTWARD.

TWENTY-SEVEN MILES NORTHWEST OF CAPTURED DUDERSTADT THE 104TH INFANTRY DIVISION FOUGHT INTO EINBECK AFTER AN 18-MILE ADVANCE.

BETWEEN THSE TWO POINTS, HOWEVER, THE GERMANS WERE FIGHTING WITH ALL THEIR OLD-TIME FURY AT NORTHEIM, WHERE THE THIRD ARMORED DIVISION RAN INTO HEAVY ANTI-TANK FIRE, AND NEAR EMENHAUSEN, WHERE THE GERMANS THREW IN TIGER TANKS.

WESTWARD, THE FIRST ARMY HACKED THREE TO EIGHT MILES INTO THE RUHR POCKET FROM THE EAST AND SOUTH. THE FIRST ARMY HAS TAKEN 20,000 PRISONERS FROM THE RUHR SINCE THE TRAP SNAPPED SHUT ON POSSIBLY 150,000 TROOPS 15 DAYS AGO.

SINCE THE ENVELOPMENT, THE POCKET HAS BEEN REDUCED FROM 4,000 SQUARE MILES TO APPROXIMATELY 2,600 SQUARE MILES.

THIRD ARMY TROOPS AND TANKS GAINED UP TO NINE MILES ALONG A 23-MILE FRONT IN STRAIGHTENING OUT ITS LINES THRUST MOST OF THE WAY ACROSS THE HOUR-GLASS WAIST OF GERMANY.

APR 10 1945

THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION, BY DRIVING INTO ALLMENHAUSEN EAST OF MUEHLHAUSEN, REACHED A POINT 83 MILES WEST OF LEIPZIG, THE HIGHWAY CENTER WHICH LINKS NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN GERMANY.

BIGGEST GAIN OF THE DAY WAS SCORED BY THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH ADVANCED NINE MILES TO THE VICINITY OF ROTH, ON THE SOUTH FLANK SOME 40 MILES SOUTH OF MUEHLHAUSEN.

HEAVY RAIL AND ROAD MOVEMENTS WERE SPOTTED IN AND OUT OF LEIPZIG, AND THE GERMANS SENT UP MORE THAN 100 PLANES ON LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON'S FRONT, INDICATING THAT THE ENEMY WAS BRINGING UP FORCES TO TRY TO STOP THIS MENACE TO HIS VITAL LIFELINES.

THE GERMANS, WHO HAD ATTACKED FURIOUSLY WEST OF MUEHLHAUSEN, DESISTED AFTER A TERRIFIC MAULING, AND RESISTANCE WAS MODERATE TO NIL AS 10,887 MORE PRISONERS WERE TAKEN, INCLUDING 5,200 WOUNDED FROM OVERRUN HOSPITALS.

THE GERMANS WERE STRIKING BACK HARD AT THE 22-MILE-LONG CORRIDOR WHICH THE 10TH ARMORED DIVISION OF LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S U.S. SEVENTH ARMY CARVED OUT DEEP IN THE GERMAN LINES IN THE AREA OF CRAILSHEIM, 95 MILES NORTHWEST OF MUNICH.

THE ENEMY WAS ATTACKING BY AIR AND GROUND, TRYING TO CUT OFF THE TANK SPEARHEADS WHICH WERE THREATENING TO CUT UNDER STRONG GERMAN POSITIONS AROUND HEILBRONN, 38 MILES WEST OF CRAILSHEIM.

ARMY TRANSPORT PLANES DARINGLY LANDED SUPPLIES AT CRAILSHEIM AIRPORT FOR THE HARD-PRESSED SPEARHEADS.

FIGHTING RAGED WITH MOUNTING FURY IN HEILBRONN, WHERE THE GERMANS WERE BRINGING UP REINFORCEMENTS AND THROWING THEM INTO THE ROOM-TO-ROOM STRUGGLE IN HOUSES AND BUILDINGS.

FARTHER NORTH, HOWEVER, TANKS AND TROOPS SWEEPING EASTWARD AND BY-PASSING THE BALL-BEARING MANUFACTURING CITY OF SCHWEINFURT ROARED OUT INTO OPEN COUNTRY 14 MILES FROM COBURG AND 65 MILES FROM THE CZECH BORDER.

THE 45TH DIVISION PACED THIS ADVANCE BY FIGHTING EAST 18 MILES IN 24 HOURS.

ROME, APRIL 9-(AP)-THE RAF HAS ESTABLISHED AN AIR BASE ON THE EASTERN END OF CRETE AND IS FLYING SUPPLIES TO GUERRILLA FORCES ON THE ISLAND ALTHOUGH SOME 10,000 GERMANS ARE STILL HOLDING OUT ON THE WESTERN END.

HUNDREDS OF BRITISH TROOPS LEFT BEHIND AT THE TIME THE BRITISH EVACUATED CRETE IN 1941 ALREADY HAVE BEEN BROUGHT OUT.

A WELL-TRAINED GUERRILLA FORCE HELPED IN PREPARING THE AIR FIELD AFTER THE GERMANS RUSHED TO THE WESTERN END OF THE ISLAND WHEN THE NAZIS STARTED PULLING OUT OF GREECE. THE GERMANS ON CRETE APPARENTLY HOPED TO REACH THE GREEK MAINLAND BY SEA AND AIR BUT THE RAF CUT SEA AND AIR COMMUNICATIONS BOTTLING THEM UP.

A BRITISH OFFICER IS IN COMMAND OF THE GUERRILLAS AND THROUGH A GO-BETWEEN THE GUERRILLAS HAVE PURCHASED SUPPLIES OF EVERY DESCRIPTION FROM THE GERMANS, MANY OF WHOM SURRENDERED THEMSELVES WHEN THEY BROUGHT IN THE GOODS TO SELL.

ABOARD A B-25 BOMBER OVER THE EIGHTH ARMY FRONT, ITALY, APRIL 9-(AP)-THE AIR FORCE PUT ON "ANOTHER CASSINO" TODAY IN AN EFFORT TO BREAK OPEN GERMAN RESISTANCE FACING THE EIGHTH ARMY AT THE EASTERN END OF THE ITALIAN FRONT.

BEFORE WE WENT ALOFT IN THIS MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBER THE COMMANDERS TOLD US "EVERY BIT OF AVAILABLE AIR POWER WILL BE THROWN INTO THIS SHOW," AND IT LOOKED THAT WAY.

IT WAS AN ALL-OUT SHOW DIRECTLY IN FRONT OF THE SENIO RIVER LINE WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN NURSING ALL WINTER. THE BRAKES WERE COMPLETELY OFF AS THE AMERICANS PLASTERED EVERYTHING THE NAZIS DIDN'T HAVE BURIED UNDERGROUND.

HEAVY BOMBERS TURNED LOOSE THEIR BIG BOMBS ABOVE US, MEDIUMS WHIZZED OFF OUR WINGS AND FIGHTERBOMBERS ZIPPED ALONG THE DECK -- ALL FLAILING AWAY AT THIS EASTERN ITALIAN PORTION OF THE ESTIMATED 25 GERMAN DIVISIONS HOLDING THE APENNINES.

THEY HAMMERED THE WHOLE LINE PRACTICALLY ALL THE WAY FROM THE VALLI DI COMAACHIO LAGOON ON THE EAST, WHERE EIGHTH ARMY COMMANDO FORCES MADE AMPHIBIOUS LANDINGS A WEEK AGO, DOWN TO HIGHWAY NO. 9 WHICH RUNS FROM BOLOGNA THROUGH FAENZA. BUT THE CENTER OF THIS THUNDERING ASSAULT WAS IN THE AREA OF LUGO, 11 MILES NORTH OF FAENZA.

AS WE HEADED IN FROM THE ADRIATIC THERE WERE SMOKE MARKERS DIRECTING THE BOMBERS. A FEW MILES FARTHER INLAND THERE WAS ANOTHER SET OF SMOKEPOTS, AS WELL AS "T'S" POINTING TOWARD THE ENEMY. THERE WERE TWO MORE SETS OF THESE "T" MARKERS AND THERE WAS A WALL OF ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE THROWN UP BY OUR OWN GROUND GUNS TO BURST A FEW THOUSAND FEET BELOW THE PRE-ARRANGED LEVEL OF OUR PLANES TO SHOW THEM WHERE NOT TO LAY THEIR EGGS.

OUR PLANES FOLLOWED THIS ROUTE AT THREE LEVELS -- HEAVIES, MEDIUMS AND FIGHTERS STACKED ON TOP OF EACH OTHER. THEY POUNDED TARGETS PICKED IN ADVANCE BY THE ARMY GROUND COMMANDERS, NOTABLY TROOPS CONCENTRATIONS, FUEL AND AMMUNITION DUMPS AND GUN POSITIONS.

ALONG WITH TREMENDOUS BOMB BURSTS FROM HUNDREDS OF PLANES WE COULD SEE FLASHES FROM SCORE UPON SCORE OF OUR GUNS AS INNUMERABLE BATTERIES ALL ALONG THE LINE HURLED THEIR "BIG STUFF" OVER IN WHAT APPEARED TO BE A GENERAL SOFTENING UP OF THE ENEMY DEFENSES.

IT APPEARED IMPOSSIIBLE FOR ANY ENEMY TO STAND UP OR HOLD POSITIONS UNDER SUCH AN AWESOME AVALANCHE OF FIRE.

ON OUR WAY TO THE TARGET AREA WE PASSED OVER A TABLE-LIKE NO MAN'S LAND EAST OF THE APENNINES WHERE THE GROUND WAS POCKED FOR MILE AFTER MILE AND BRIDGES TORN OUT FROM ARTILLERY AND AIR SMASHES OF THE PAST.

STOCKHOLM, APRIL 9-(AP)-THE GERMANS EXPECT THE RED ARMY AND THE WESTERN ALLIES TO MEET SOMEWHERE IN THE HALLE-LEIPZIG AREA, A BERLIN DISPATCH TO THE NEWSPAPER DAGENS NYHETER SAID TODAY.

(LEIPZIG IS 82 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN; HALLE IS AN ADJOINING CITY. THE U.S. FIRST ARMY LAST WAS REPORTED 100 MILES DUE WEST OF LEIPZIG AND THE FIRST UKRAINIAN ARMY 100 MILES DUE EAST.)

"THE EASTERN FRONT CAN EXPLODE ANY MOMENT NOW," THE NEWSPAPER QUOTED BERLIN MILITARY QUARTERS. "TROOP CONCENTRATIONS INDICATE THERE PROBABLY IS AN AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE ALLIED AND RUSSIAN COMMANDS ON A COMBINED ASSAULT DESIGNED TO MEET IN THE HALLE-LEIPZIG AREA."

A SECURITY BLACKOUT MASKING THE NEW THRUSTS OF BRITISH ARMORED UNITS IN BURMA. SHARP FIGHTING CONTINUED TWO MILES WEST OF THAZI WHERE THE JAPANESE ARE CLINGING TENACIOUSLY TO THE CENTRAL BURMA RAIL JUNCTION BUT THE BRITISH ALREADY HAVE CUT THE RAILWAY BELOW THE TOWN.

OKINAWA EYEWITNESS (170)

BY ROBBIN COONS

OKINAWA, APRIL 9-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS REPULSED TWO JAPANESE COUNTERATTACKS ON THE WESTERN FRONT IN SOUTHERN OKINAWA TODAY AND AT LAST REPORTS WERE FIGHTING OFF A THIRD.

THE FIRST TWO ATTACKS WERE MADE BY ABOUT 50 JAPANESE ACH, THE THIRD BY 150.

ON THE WESTERN FLANK, ONE INFANTRY BATTALION TOOK A HIGH RIDGE JUST NORTH OF KAKAZU VILLAGE. (THIS PRESUMABLY IS ABOUT FOUR MILES NORTH OF OKINAWA'S CAPITAL CITY, NAHA.)

IN THE 7TH ARMY DIVISION SECTOR ON THE EAST COAST, THE 184TH REGIMENT, WHICH WITHDREW FROM RED HILL YESTERDAY, RECAPTURED IT AFTER CONCENTRATING ARTILLERY FIRE ON THE POSITION DURING THE NIGHT.

ON THEIR PART, THE JAPANESE RETURNED ARTILLERY FIRE FOR TWO HOURS.

THE JAPANESE MADE THEIR DEFENSE IN DEPTH ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT, WITH ALL APPROACHES GUARDED. FIRST RESISTANCE WAS FROM OUTPOSTS, WITH THE NIPPONESE NOW SLOWLY WITHDRAWING TO THEIR MAIN POSITIONS.

THE OKINAWA CAMPAIGN MAY LAST 60 TO 90 DAYS, WITH THE JAPANESE IN POSITIONS PROBABLY UNDER CONSTRUCTION FOR A YEAR IN CRAGGY HILLS. OF THE JAPANESE TROOPS ON THE ISLAND, A LARGE NUMBER ARE BELIEVED TO BE IN POSITIONS BETWEEN THE FRONT LINES AND SHURI TOWN EAST OF NAHA.

WITH 24TH ARMY CORPS, OKINAWA, RYUKYUS, APRIL 9-(VIA NAVY RADIO)-(AP)-JAPANESE DEFENDERS OF OKINAWA ARE USING MORE AND HEAVIER ARTILLERY IN THIS CAMPAIGN THAN EVER BEFORE IN THE PACIFIC, MAJ. GEN. J.R. SHEETZ SAID TODAY.

SHEETZ, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 24TH CORPS' ARTILLERY, PREDICTS A COMPLETE ARTILLERY BATTLE OF THE TYPE PRESENTLY PREDOMINANT IN EUROPE.

WHILE THE JAPANESE ARTILLERY ON OKINAWA IS HEAVIER THAN STANDARD FOR THEM, IT STILL IS NO MATCH FOR AMERICAN BATTERIES, THE GENERAL ASSERTED. THE YANK BATTERIES ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT HAVE BEEN REINFORCED BY SEVERAL BATTALIONS.

"MY PURPOSE," SAID GENERAL SHEETZ, "IS TO GET EVERY GUN WE CAN AND SYSTEMATICALLY KNOCK OUT EVERY ENEMY ARTILLERY EMPLACEMENT. THE ARMY IS A GREAT BELIEVER IN USING GUNS INTELLIGENTLY TO

APR 10 1945

I FOUND TANKMEN SPRAWLED AROUND LUMBERING VEHICLES IN WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN A PLEASANT VALLEY BUT FOR THE HIDEOUS THUNDER AT THE FRONT LINES AND AN OCCASIONAL BURST OF JAP MORTAR FIRE BEHIND AMERICAN LINES WHICH SENT US ALL DIVING INTO THE DIRT.
GRIMY, TIRED TANKMEN CURSED A JAPANESE SNIPER ON A NEARBY HILLSIDE. BY CONTRAST TO THE BARK OF HIS RIFLE WAS THE SWISH OF OUR HEAVY ARTILLERY OVERHEAD, PROBING JAPANESE POSITIONS. THE SOUND OF THE BIG SHELLS WAS LIKE SWEET MUSIC.
WHAT APPEARED TO BE THE FIRST ENEMY COUNTERATTACK WAS IN PROGRESS. INFANTRYMEN WHO HAD TAKEN RED HILL YESTERDAY WERE BEING FORCED BACK BY MORTAR AND MACHINEGUN HELL-FIRE. TANKS COVERED THE WITHDRAWAL FOR REFORMING OF ATTACK LINES TO TAKE RED HILL AGAIN.
LT.JOSEPH E.GALLAGHER OF MILFORD, MASS., BLOND, ERECT COMPANY COMMANDER WHOSE NOSE WAS PINKED YESTERDAY BY A SNIPER'S BULLET, DISMOUNTED FROM HIS TANK AND CHECKED HIS MEN. AN INSURANCE MAN IN PEACETIME, GALLAGHER REMARKED WRYLY THAT IT "WAS A GOOD WAY TO MAKE A LIVING."
ONE TANKMAN TOLD HOW GALLAGHER COVERED THE WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS YESTERDAY WHEN FIVE LIGHT TANKS VENTERED INTO JAPANESE LINES. HE BROUGHT ALL THE MEN OUT AND TWO TANKS--DESTROYING THE OTHERS TO PREVENT THEIR CAPTURE. AMONG RESCUED CREWS WAS STAFF SGT. ELWOOD L.WADE OF (215 UNION ST.) MADISONVILLE, KY.; SGT. EDWARD WOODS OF (95 SHERMAN AVE.) TOMKINSVILLE, STATEN ISLAND, N.Y., AND CPL. WILLIAM PIERCE OF (402 50TH ST). BROOKLYN.
JAPANESE HIDDEN IN HILLSIDE CAVES HAD DUMPED "MOLOTOV COCKTAILS" ON THESE LIGHT TANKS AS THEY CLANKED UPWARD, AND THE MEN INSIDE IMMEDIATELY WERE SURROUNDED BY ENEMY SNIPERS. ACTION WAS FAST AND FURIOUS UNTIL MEDIUM TANKS MOVED UP TO THE RESCUE. FIFTY JAPANESE WERE KILLED IN THE SKIRMISH.
CPL. MARTIN A. FURST OF FOREST CITY, IOWA, HIS FACE DIRTY AND POWDER-SPECKED, DISMOUNTED AND EPORTED TO GALLAGHER:
"ALL OKAY, SIR." IN THE MORNING'S ACTION FURST'S TANK WAS HIT. HE JUMPED OUT, CRAWLED UNDERNEATH, AND THEN SAW JAPANESE ADVANCING WITH FIXED BAYONETS. HE SCRAMBLED BACK INTO HIS TANK, GRABBED HAND GRENADES AND TOSSED THEM INTO THE ADVANCING LROUP. HE AND OTHER CREWMEN ESCAPED THROUGH SNIPER FIRE TO ANOTHER TANK. AMONG THESE WAS PFC ROY HANSEN OF MINNEAPOLIS. GALLAGHER CREDITED THIS TANK WITH HOLDING BACK THE ENEMY WHILE THE INFANTRY WITHDREW UNDER MORTAR FIRE.
THE TROOPS WERE LETTING READY TO RESUME THE ATTACK AGAIN THIS AFTERNOON AS TWO WOUNDED MEN ARRIVED ON STRETCHERS FROM THE SRONT. THE JAP SNIPER ON THE HILLSIDE WAS WORKING PERIODICALLY, AND MORTARS POPPED AT INTERVALS.
"DON'T GO FURTHER UP--IT'S PLENTY HOT THERE," WARNED THESE SOLDIERS WHO SOON WERE GOING UP RED HILL AGAIN, "WHERE "IT'S PLENTY HOT." IT WAS PLENTY HOT RIGHT THERE SO FAR AS I WAS CONCERNED.

THE INFANTRY WAS HELD TO SMALL LOCAL GAINS ALL ALONG THE SOUTHERN FRONT, RUNNING FROM JUST NORTH OF THE CAPITAL CITY, NAHA, TO YONABARU ON THE EAST COAST. HOWEVER, THE 184TH REGIMENT OF THE 7TH DIVISION RECAPTURED RED HILL, AN EAST COAST POSITION WHICH THE JAPANESE HAD SEIZED FROM THE YANKS IN A BITTER CLOSE RANGE BATTLE FOUGHT WITH TANKS, BAZOOKAS, SMALL ARMS AND GRENADES.
COONS REPORTED THE JAPANESE LAID DOWN A TWO-HOUR ARTILLERY BARRAGE, INDICATIVE OF THE STEPPED-UP TEMPO OF THE BATTLE. HE ALSO REPORTED THE JAPANESE ARE ENTRENCHED IN DEPTH ALONG THE SOUTHERN FRONT, IN POSITIONS WHICH THEY HAD BEEN PREPARING FOR PROBABLY A YEAR.

U.S. SEVENTH DIVISION ADVANCE COMMAND POST, OKINAWA, APRIL 9-(AP)-THE AMERICAN COMMUNIQUE TOAY SAYS "HEAVY ARTILLERY WAS USED BY THE ENEMY THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT AND DAY"--"24TH CORPS TROOPS MOVED FORWARD ON THE LEFT ABOUT 400 YARDS."

BUT HERE IS ANOTHER VERSION OF HOW THE SEVENTH DIVISION IS DOING AT THE FRONT.

THE TRIP BACK FROM THE FRONT IS SLOW AND ARDUOUS. IT'S SLOW BECAUSE AMBULANCE JEEPS MOVE SLOWLY WHEN CORPSMEN ARE TRYING TO INJECT BLOOD PLASMA INTO THE BROKEN BODIES OF WOUNDED MEN ON STRETCHER-RACKS. IT'S ARDUOUS BECAUSE THE ROAD IS CROOKED, RUTTED AND IN CONSTANT DANGER FROM JAPANESE MORTAR AND ARTILLERY FIRE.

ON THE ROAD A THOUSAND YARDS AHEAD OF AN OBSERVATION POST TWO JEEPS AND AN AMMUNITION TRAILER WERE STALLED. WHILE MEN AHEAD WERE RECONNOITERING, HEAVY JAPANESE ARTILLERY SCORED A DIRECT HIT ON THE AMMUNITION JEEP. IT FLAMED IMMEDIATELY AND SHELLS AND BULLETS WERE SPITTING IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

SEVERAL MEN TRIED TO SALVAGE THE SECOND JEEP AND AFTER A FIFTH TRY THEY SUCCEEDED. THE AMMUNITION STILL WAS EXPLODING WHEN ONE MAN BACKED IT DOWN THE ROAD. THE RIGHT FRONT TIRE WAS AFIRE.

ALL THIS WENT ON WHILE JAPANESE ARTILLERY SHELLS WERE SMASHING ALL AROUND.

THE SECOND AND THIRD BATTALIONS OF THE 184TH INFANTRY REGIMENT ARE MOVING AHEAD IN THE FACE OF TERRIFIC JAPANESE HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE.

LT.ROBERT J.MITCHELL, THE SEVENTH DIVISION PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER, SAID "WE CAN GO UP FORWARD TO THE COMMAND POST BUT IT IS PLENTY DANGEROUS." HIS DRIVER, PFC.KENNETH UMBAUGH, OF (215 S. THIRD ST.) FORT DODGE, IA., SAID "LET'S GO, BUT LET'S GO FAST. THAT ARTILLERY IS GETTING TOO DAMNED CLOSE."

THE LAST 200 YARDS WAS ROUGH. A RED FLAG SHOWED MINES AHEAD SO UMBAUGH PARKED THE JEEP BEHIND A BLUFF AND WE BEGAN WALKING FORWARD.

THE WAR CEASED BEING GLAMOROUS WHEN WE PASSED PONCHO-COVERED AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS LYING ON THE GROUND AWAITING THEIR LAST RIDE BACK TO THE CEMETERY.

THE SIGHT OF MEDICAL CORPSMEN IN JAPANESE-DUG TRENCHES BANDAGING BLOODY WOUNDS OF OTHER SOLDIERS ISN'T EXCITING EITHER. IT JUST MAKES YOU MAD.

ALL THE WHILE THERE WAS THE REPEATED WHINE-SCREAM-WHAM OF HEAVY SHELLS ALL ALONG THE FRONT. EVEN AN AMATEUR CAN TELL W EN THEY COME TOO CLOSE. THE ONLY COMFORTING THING IS THE WHISTLING CHATTER OF OUR OWN HEAVY STUFF PPURRING OVERHEAD.

THE JAPANESE ARE TAKING IT, TOO.

THE ROAD BACK IS TOUGH, BUT NOBODY COMPLAINS WHEN THEY THINK OF THE FELLOWS WHO HAVE TO STAY UP FRONT AND TAKE IT.

MARINE THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, APRIL 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE RATIO OF CASUALTIES AMONG WAR DOGS HAS BEEN FAR HIGHER THAN AMONG MARINES IN THE BATTLE FOR NORTHERN OKINAWA.

ONE DIVISION STARTED WITH A PLATOON OF 40 SCOUT AND MESSGER DOGS. FOUR WERE KILLED IN ACTION. AND EACH, BY HIS DEATH, SAVED THE LIVES OF MARINES.

THREE WERE SHOT BY SNIPERS WHO FOR SOME STRANGE REASON CHOSE TO KILL THE DOG RATHER THAN THE MARINES WITH HIM. THE MARINES, WARNED BY THE SHOT, HAD A CHANCE TO TAKE COVER. THE FOURTH WAS THE TARGET OF A GRENADE WHICH ALSO WOUNDED SEVERAL DEVILDOGS.

"THERE IS NO WAY OF TELLING HOW MANY MARINE LIVES THIS DOG PLATOON HAS SAVED," SAID PLATOON SGT. WILLARD LAYTON, OF BAIRD, W.V. "WHEN THE DOG STOPS AND GOES INTO A POINT ALL THE MARINES HIT THE DECK IN A HURRY.

"OF COURSE THE DOG CAN'T TELL THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A JAP AND ANY OTHER STRANGER BUT WE FOUND THAT WHEN AN ANIMAL GIVES AN ALERT ITS A GOOD IDEA TO KEEP OUR EYES OPEN. IT MAY BE ONLY A CHIP-MUNK OR A STRAY HOG, BUT ON THE OTHER HAND IT MAY BE A JAP IN A HOSTILE MOOD, AND FREQUENTLY HAS BEEN."

THE DOGS--GERMAN SHEPHERDS AND DOBERMAN PINSCHERS--HAVE BEEN OF INESTIMABLE VALUE IN ROOTING JAPS AND OKINAWANS OUT OF CAVES.

WITH THE AIR APACHE BOMB GROUP IN LUZON, APRIL 7-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SECOND LT.SAMUEL W.BENNETT CLIMBED DOWN FROM A MITCHELL BOMBER, SCUFFED HIS SHOES IN THE DIRT AND GRINNED: "MAN, OH MAN! I WAS NEVER SO GLAD TO GET MY FEET DIRTY."

BENNETT, WHOSE HOME IS IN PINEVILLE, LA., PILOTED A BOMBER WHICH HELPED SINK A JAPANESE CRUISER OFF THE CHINA COAST YESTERDAY. ALTHOUGH THE PLANE WAS HIT BY ACK-ACK, BENNETT DROPPED THREE BOMBS, SCORING ONE DIRECT HIT. THEN HE WHEEDLED THE MITCHELL INTO MAKING THE 400-MILE TRIP BACK TO BASE ON ONE ENGINE.

FIRST LT.GEORGE R.SCHMIDT OF (P.O.BOX 336) GOODING, IDAHO, LED THE FLIGHT OF MITCHELLS FROM THE HARD-HITTING "AIR APACHES" GROUP WHICH SPOTTED THE JAPANESE CRUISER STEAMING ALONG THE CHINA COAST TOWARD JAPAN.

BUT WHEN THE FLIERS FIRST SAW THE WARSHIP THEY COULDN'T FIGURE IT OUT. APPARENTLY THE CRUISER HAD BEEN DAMAGE IN SOME EARLIER ACTION AND ITS BOW BLOWN OFF, FOR THE JAPANESE HAD RIGGED A MAKE-SHIFT, BLUNT BOW. IT WAS WALLOWING ALONG THROUGH HEAVY SEAS AT RELATIVELY SLOW SPEED.

"WE SOON LEARNED IT WAS A PRETTY HUSKY WARSHIP," SCHMIDT SAID. "BECAUSE THEIR HEAVY STUFF BEGAN TO FLY UP AT US A LONG WAY OFF."

SCHMIDT'S PLANE TOOK HITS WHILE ON A WAVE-LEVEL APPROACH, BUT PRESSED THE ATTACK AND TWO OF HIS 500-POUNDERS SMACKED THE CRUISER'S DECK SQUARELY. THERE WAS A HUGE EXPLOSION AND ORANGE FLAME SHOT 200 FEET INTO THE AIR.

BENNETT, FLYING SCHMIDT'S WING, RECOVERED FROM A FLAG HIT DURING HIS RUN AND PLUMPED ANOTHER 500-POUNDER INTO THE SHIP. THAT WAS ALL. THE CRUISER ROLLED OVER, BURNING FIERCELY.

BUT THE ACK-ACK, DESCRIBED BY THE FLIERS AS THE HEAVIEST THEY EVER HAD SEEN FROM ONE TARGET, CONTINUED.

"THEY JUST WOULDN'T STOP FIRING," SCHMIDT SAID.

WITH SCHMIDT WAS 2ND LT.NEAL H.RYAN OF (218EAST 8TH ST.) WATSONTOWN, PENNA., FL

WITH THE AIR APACHES BOMB GROUP ON LUZON, APRIL 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-"TONDELAYO" HAS FLOWN HER LAST MISSION.

THE FAMOUS MITCHELL BOMBER, NAMED AFTER THE SIREN IN THE PLAY "WHITE CARGO," PILED UP NEAR A JAPANESE GARRISON ON CATANDUANES ISLAND. BUT HER CREW GOT OUT UNSCATHED AND FILIPINO GUERRILLAS TOOK CARE OF THE MEN BEFORE THE JAPANESE ARRIVED.

"TONDELAYO" WON RENOWN FAR AND WIDE THROUGH THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, PARTICIPATING IN THE FIRST UNESCORTED DAYLIGHT BOMBER MISSION OVER RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN JAN, 10, 1943. SHE TORE IN OVER RABAUL'S HARBOR AND SANK A 6,000-TON JAPANESE FREIGHTER-TRANSPORT. SLUGGED IT OUT WITH SWARMS OF NIP FIGHTERS AND MADE IT HOME ON ONE ENGINE. SHE SHOT DOWN FIVE ENEMY FIGHTERS AND FOUR OTHERS SPUN INTO THE WATER TRYING TO KNOCK HER DOWN.

THE PRIDE AND JOY OF THE VETERAN "AIR APACHES" BOMBER GROUP, SHE REVIVED FROM THE RABAUL RAID AND PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN OTHER MITCHELL BOMBER STRIKES.

THEN "TONDELAYO" WAS RETIRED. THE "AIR APACHES" MADE A "FAT CAT" OUT OF HER AND USED HER TO CARRY SUPPLIES.

IT WAS ON ONE OF THESE "FAT CAT" MISSIONS THAT "TONDELAYO" MET HER DEMISE. IMPENETRABLE WEATHER FORCED HER DOWN OUT OF GASOLINE ON THE ROCKY SHORES OF CATANDUANES ISLAND OFF THE SOUTH-EASTERN TIP OF LUZON.

FIRST LT.ROBERT K.CAVINS OF (245 EAST VALLETTE) ELMHURST, ILL., PILOT, TRIED TO MAKE A RUN OVER THE BEACH TO SALVO TREASURED SUPPLIES IN THE BOMB BAY, BUT THE ENGINES CONKED OUT.

THE PLANE HIT THE WATER 30 YARDS FROM THE BEACH, SKIPPED AND ONCE HIT THE WATER'S EDGE, THEN SKIDDED TO A STOP ON THE SAND.

A JAPANESE GARRISON WAS ONLY A FEW MILES TO THE SOUTH, BUT IN A MATTER OF MINUTES HUNDREDS OF FILIPINOS REACHED THE SCENE.

FOR TWO AND A HALF DAYS THE EIGHT FLIERS LIVED WITH THE GUERRILLAS, STARTED SAILING SOUTH FOR SAMAR. AND WERE PICKED UP BY AN AMERICAN DESTROYER.

THOSE WITH CAVINS INCLUDED: CAPT.EDWARD F.EGAN, BOUNDBROOK, N.J.; 1ST LT.WILLIAM BOING, JR., OF CARTHAGE, N.C.; 2ND LT.PAUL E.LANGDON OF (6625 VINE ST.) CINCINNATI, OHIO; TECH. SGT. WERE APPROXIMATELY 100 JAPANESE LEFT IN THE CHINA SEA YESTERDAY AFTER POWERFUL MITCHELL BOMBERS FINISHED SINKING THEIR TWO DESTROYER-ESCORTS.

THE JAPANESE FIRED TO THE LAST, THEN CLUNG TO THE SIDES OF THE SINKING SHIPS AND FLOATED OFF IN OIL SMEARED WATER. THE WHOLE SHOW WAS OVER IN A FEW MINUTES.

THE MITCHELLS, PART OF THE FAMOUS "AIR APACHES" GROUP, SPOTTED TWO ENEMY WARSHIPS SPEEDING THROUGH THE CHINA SEA BETWEEN SWATOW AND AMOY.

CAPT.GEORGE H.MUSKET, FLIGHT LEADER, OF (1236 FAIRVIEW AVE.) ST.LOUIS, MO., LINED UP HIS BOMBERS AND PEELED OFF AT 1,000 FEET FOR A MAST-HEIGHT ATTACK. HIS TARGET MADE A SHARP TURN, EXPOSING ITS BROADSIDE. MUSKET STRAFED THE FIRST SHIP, THEN HOPPED OVER DECKS AND CAUGHT THE SECOND ONE WITH A DIRECT BOMB-HIT ON ITS SUPERSTRUCTURE.

THE WARSHIP SHUDDERED AND SLOWED, BUT STILL WAS UNDERWAY WHEN 2ND LT.LESTER W.MORTON OF ABILENE, TEX., MADE A DIRECT HIT.

THE VESSEL TURNED OVER ON ITS SIDE, AND SANK WITHIN ONE MINUTE.

MEANWHILE, 1ST LT.OLLIE E.HATCHER, DENVER, PRESSED HOME THE ATTACK ON THE OTHER DESTROYER ESCORT. HIS BOMBS CAUSED IT TO LIST BADLY, AND START TO SINK. THEN 2ND LT.TED BRONSON OF PRESCOTT, ARIZ., POURED IN ANOTHER 500-POUNDER AND THAT DID IT.

AS THE WARSHIP HEELED OVER JAPANESE SWARMED ACROSS THE DESK TO THE ABOVE-WATER EDGE, THEN CLUNG TO THE SIDE UNTIL THE SHIP FINALLY SANK.

BY JOHN B.OWEN

WASHINGTON,APRIL 9-(AP)-THE SUPREME COURT GAVE THE WAR STRICKEN PHILIPPINES AN ECONOMIC BOOST TODAY.

IT RULED THAT SHIPMENTS FROM THERE ARE IMPORTS AND THUS EXEMPT FROM STATE TAXATION.

JUSTICE MURPHY, A FORMER GOVERNOR GENERAL OF THE ISLANDS, SAID IN A CONCURRING OPINION THAT SUCH A CONSTRUCTION OF THE CONSTITUTION CONFORMS "TO THE NATIONAL POLICY OF AIDING THE PHILIPPINE RECONSTRUCTION."

HE ADDED THAT "FOR THE FORESEEABLE FUTURE, AT LEAST, THEIR ECONOMY MUST BE CLOSELY LINKED TO THAT OF THE UNITED STATES, WITHOUT EITHER COUNTRY ABANDONING OR RETREATING FROM THE COMMON IDEAL OF INDEPENDENCE FOR THE PHILIPPINES."

THE ISLANDS, MURPHY SAID, "CANNOT SAFELY BE THROWN INTO THE WORLD MARKET AND LEFT TO SHIFT FOR THEMSELVES."

APR 10 1945

V

MURPHY OBSERVED THAT THE RULING DID NOT PRECLUDE CONGRESS FROM LEVYING ANY TARIFF IT FEELS NECESSARY.

THE COURT PREVENTED OHIO FROM LEVYING A PROPERTY TAX ON FIBERS BROUGHT FROM THE ISLANDS, OVERTURNING A DECISION BY THE STATE SUPREME COURT IN AN APPEAL BY HOOVEN AND ALLISON CO., XENIA, OHIO.

JUSTICE REED, IN A SEPARATE OPINION, WARNED THAT THE PRACTICAL EFFECT OF THE OPINION IS TO GIVE THE PRODUCTS OF PUERTO RICO, GUAM, THE CANAL ZONE "AND PERHAPS OTHER TERRITORIES OR POSSESSION" CONSIDERABLE ADVANTAGES OVER COMPETING PRODUCTS OF THE STATES.

"IT ENABLES IMPORTERS, WHETHER FOR MANUFACTURE OR SALE, FROM THESE POSSESSIONS TO KEEP ON HAND, TAX FREE, QUANTITIES OF NON-TAXABLE ORIGINAL PACKAGES OF IMPORTED GOODS, SUCH AS CLOTHING, QUANTITIES OF NON-TAXABLE ORIGINAL PACKAGES OF IMPORTED GOODS, SUCH AS CLOTHING, EMBROIDERIES, LIQUORS, TOBACCO, SUGARS, VEGETABLE OILS AND FIBERS," REED DECLARED.

ALTHOUGH THE COURT'S OPINION "DISCLAIMS DETERMINATION OF ANY RIGHTS BEYOND THE PHILIPPINES X X X THE BASIS UPON WHICH THE DECISION RESTS SUPPORTS SIMILAR RIGHTS FOR ALL LANDS COVERED BY THE TREATY OF PARIS (UNDER WHICH SPAIN CEDED LANDS TO THIS COUNTRY IN 1898)," REED SAID.

REED RAISED THE LONE DISSENTING VOICE ON THE PHILIPPINE SUBJECT, BUT THE COURT SPLIT 5 TO 4 IN DRAWING A DIVIDING LINE BETWEEN THE TIME IMPORTS ARE IMMUNE AND WHEN THEY LOSE THAT IDENTITY AND BECOME SUBJECT TO STATE TAXES.

THE CASE INVOLVED NOT ONLY PHILIPPINE FIBERS HELD BY THE OHIO FIRM BUT A QUANTITY FROM OTHER COUNTRIES AND THE MAJORITY OPINION BY CHIEF JUSTICE STONE TREATED THEM SEPARATELY. HE HELD THAT NONE OF THE FIBERS WAS SUBJECT TO TAXES, REVERSING THE OHIO COURT.

THE FIBERS WERE IN THE COMPANY'S WAREHOUSE AWAITING MANUFACTURE, AND WERE IN THEIR ORIGINAL PACKAGES. STONE SAID THE SUPREME COURT NEVER HAD RULED THAT IMPORTS HELD BY THE IMPORTER IN THE ORIGINAL PACKAGE AND BEFORE THEY WERE SUBJECT TO MANUFACTURE ARE LIABLE TO STATE TAXATION.

JUSTICE BLACK, IN A DISSENT JOINED BY JUSTICES RUTLEDGE, DOUGLAS AND MURPHY, CONTENDED THAT THE MAJORITY OPINION RESULTS IN THE "ODD SITUATION," CREATING DISCRIMINATION IN FAVOR OF GOODS IMPORTED FOR USE AGAINST GOODS IMPORTED FOR SALE.

IN A SERIES OF OTHER DECISIONS, THE COURT ANSWERED QUESTIONS ARISING UNDER A SECTION OF THE WAGE-HOUR LAW PROVIDING FOR ACTIONS TO RECOVER UNPAID MINIMUM WAGES OR OVERTIME PAY.

THE COURT HELD THAT AN EMPLOYEE IS NOT ENTITLED TO INTEREST ON SUMS RECOVERED IN SUCH AN ACTION. IT RULED THAT A WORKER ACCEPTING FROM HIS EMPLOYER DELAYED PAYMENT DUE UNDER THE ACT CANNOT WAIVE HIS RIGHT TO RECOVER AN EQUAL SUM IN DAMAGES. IT DECIDED THAT AN EMPLOYER AND A WORKER CANNOT WAIVE THE LATTER'S RIGHT TO THE BASIC MINIMUM WAGES AND DAMAGES, THROUGH A SETTLEMENT FOR LESS THAN THE STATUTORY AMOUNT.

TWO YANK ARMIES RACE FOR BERLIN, 110 MILES AWAY

Ninth Army Tanks Overrun Salzgitter, Site of Goering Steel Works.

THIRD REACHES ERFURT

British Forces Cross Weser to Drive Within 60 Miles of Hamburg.

Bremen

PARIS, Wednesday, April 11—(AP) The U. S. Ninth army, in a neck and neck race with the American First army toward Berlin, quickly toppled German [illegible] city of Hannover yesterday and swept on 28 miles into Brunswick's outskirts at a point only 110 miles from the Reich capital.

NIGHT

While tank units of the Ninth also overran Saltzgitter, site of the Goering steel works 10 miles southwest of imperiled Brunswick, U. S. First army troops in a 40-mile advance on the south smashed into Nordhausen and likewise struck within 110 miles of Berlin with the seizure of localities near Auleben, 45 miles west of Halle and 57 miles from Leipzig.

Farther south the U. S. Third army, capturing 285 members of the German foreign ministry at Muehlhausen, rolled on and reached the outskirts of Erfurt and Coburg, 50 miles from the Czechoslovakian frontier in the swelling drive to split Germany.

Warplanes Smash Luftwaffe

Thousands of Allied warplanes were aiding the explosive advances into the heart of Germany and destroyed 397 German planes during the day.

In the north the British Second army sent tank columns across the shattered Weser river line north of fallen Hannover, a city of nearly a half-million population, and reached the Aller river at a point within 60 miles of Hamburg, great German port. Berlin said units of this army already had crossed the lower Aller and were only 50 miles from Hamburg.

To the west the Canadians plunged within 25 miles of the seaport of Emden in their race to close the last corridor leading into Holland where between 100,000 and 200,000 Germans are pocketed. Other units fought deeper into Holland itself.

At the southern end of the 400-mile front curving deep into Germany the U. S. Seventh army struck within 45 miles of the Danube headwaters and the French First army captured Pforsheim, 15 miles southeast of Karlsruhe and 22 miles from the big communications center of Stuttgart.

Elements of the First and Ninth army fought savage rear actions as they compressed the shrinking Ruhr pocket where 100,000 Germans were trapped. Field dispatches said the Germans were flying in old planes by night and trying to rescue key officers and personnel.

Eisenhower Calls on Germans

General Eisenhower's headquarters, in a broadcast declaring that "German resistance in the west has collapsed," called on the German population in the big ports in the north to keep fanatical Nazis from destroying what's left of those city's dock installations.

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth Army Doughboys riding captured German half-tracks stormed and captured Hannover, which gave the current English monarchial line to Britain. Troops of the 84th infantry division under Maj. Gen. Alexander Boling made the quick conquest of the city which mostly was a pile of bricks after five years of constant bombing. Thousands of the city's peacetime population of 472,527 still were living in the ruins.

Elements of the veteran 30th division, sweeping around Hannover cut the autobahn mid-way between there and Brunswick and then captured Vechelade, only five miles east of Brunswick. This stroke put these troops within 110 miles of Berlin.

West

The Ninth's Second Armored division farther south crashed through hastily-erected Nazi mountain defenses and captured points only 10 miles from Brunswick as they began enveloping operations against that key road junction city.

The rapid Ninth army gains put that fighting outfit only 160 miles from Russian troops along the Oder river east of Berlin.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army tank columns dashing toward a juncture with the Russians swept eastward 25 miles to a point within 52 miles of the Elbe river, entering Nordhausen.

Resistance in Ruhr Weakens

At the same time enemy resistance in the Ruhr trap lessened somewhat at some points, possibly indicating the trapped Germans were pulling back into a tight little ring for a last-ditch stand.

At the rate prisoners were being taken—the First army had pulled 18,667 prisoners from the pocket as of Monday night and the Ninth army had taken 17,897—it was believed that possibly better than the 100,000 Nazis estimated as being in the trap had been caught by the solid juncture of the First and Ninth sealing off the Ruhr.

However, the Germans were reported evacuating troops from the Ruhr by transport plane—probably key personnel—in a desperate attempt to salvage something from the disaster. American night fighters knocked down one old JU-52 Monday night. There are several air fields within the pocket which can be used.

Hodges' armor which turned eastward from Paderborn had reached Nordhausen and points to the south. They were driving down a corridor bypassing the towering Harz mountains on their left.

Two flying columns of the Third Armored division met at Gieboldhausen and a sharp fight with enemy tanks temporarily slowed up their advance. Allied war planes came into the battle and after two of the Nazi tanks had been knocked out the others retreated eastward.

Other advance units of Hodges' First army reached Niedergebra, Herzberg, and a point near Werningerode, nine miles east of Duderstadt.

A dispatch from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said British Second army troops broke through a 30-mile gap in German lines north of Hannover where defenses were "paper thin," and speared to within 60 miles of Hamburg, great German port on the Elbe river.

The British broke out of their Weser bridgehead at Hoya, 40 miles northwest of embattled Hannover, and in a nine-mile advance punched within two miles of the communications hub of Rethen, on the Aller river, the last of three water barriers between menaced Bremen and Hamburg.

1st Tanks 115 Miles From Berlin; Ruhr Battle Disaster for Nazis

British Army Rushes for Port of Hamburg as Patton's Troops Advance Again to Within Few Miles of Erfurt.

BULLETIN.

Muehlhausen, Germany, April 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two hundred and eighty-five members of the German Foreign Ministry staff have been captured by the Americans here. American armor advanced so quickly that the staff had no time to flee. The capture did not include Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

Long

Paris, April 10 (A. P.).—Ninth Army infantry riding German half-tracks, captured the old city of Hannover today and reached a point further east along the superhighway 120 miles from Berlin.

Hannover, a city of 472,000, is the twelfth city of Germany and the ancient family seat of the kings of England. Tanks of the Fifth Armored Division raced around the city in a twenty-three mile advance which carried to a point fifteen miles northwest of Brunswick. Resistance in Hannover and the surrounding area was described officially as light, coming mainly from unco-ordinated units.

Much of Hannover's population was on hand to greet Major-Gen. Alexander R. Bolling's Eighty-fourth Division when it took over the city. The division promptly gave the city to the General in honor of the liberation of his soldier son, who was freed from a Nazi prison camp this morning.

Thus today brought to Bolling not alone his greatest military victory, but the news of his son's safety. First Lieut. Alexander R. Bolling Jr. of Washington, D. C., was captured in the Ardennes bulge last winter when on patrol trying to locate a German battery. Until today the General did not know whether his son was alive. Even then he could not notify his wife.

Meanwhile First Army armor to the south advanced twenty-four miles to the Harz Mountains, reaching a point sixty miles from the Elbe River just south of the large supply base of Nordhausen, which is 115 miles from Berlin. Gen. Courthey H. Hodges's new First Army drive was punching across the narrowing waist of Germany toward the Russian siege lines in the east, at last reports no more than 150 miles away in some sectors. His tanks headed down a corridor by-passing the towering Harz Mountains on the left.

Ruhr a Great Disaster.

The battle of the Ruhr already had turned into a German military disaster. By last midnight the First and Ninth armies had taken 36,566 from the trap and there were thousands more still inside. At the present rate, some 100,000 will be taken.

Another 100,000 to 200,000 were sealed off in Holland, Supreme Headquarters raising its estimate during the day. The Canadians moved to within fifteen miles of the North Sea and captured a V-2 rocket site near Hellendoorn.

The Third Army which the Germans had reported as being loose, advanced to within two and a half miles of Erfurt, sixty-three miles from Leipzig, and within three of Coburg, fifty miles from the Czecho-Slovak frontier.

The Germans said the Third Army had started shelling Erfurt, a city of 166,661, last reported five miles away.

The Germans said that Americans who by-passed Hannover had reached Salzgitter, 115 miles from Berlin and seventeen from the big aircraft center of Brunswick. Salzgitter is the site of the sprawling Hermann Goering iron works. The enemy also said that Hannover was encircled completely and that the British had crossed the Aller River and captured Verden and started a race for Hamburg, fifty miles distant.

North of Hannover, British tanks and infantry cut a twenty-mile gash in German defenses and started for Hamburg, Germany's leading port and second largest city. Hamburg was sixty miles away in that sector.

While the Eighty-fourth (Rail Splitters) Division entered the ruins of Hannover, meeting place of five railroads and seven major highways, tank troops sped many miles to the northeast and southeast of the city which guards the approaches to Berlin.

The Canadian First Army marched to within fifteen miles of the North Sea and twenty-five of the Dollart Bay U-boat base of Emden in the thrusts to seal off the landward routes into the Netherlands.

Bremen, Germany's second port, was outflanked to the southeast by a British Second Army bridgehead over the Weser River at Hoya. The British were encountering stiff defenses at the outskirts of smoldering Bremen, but the port was being flanked on both sides.

[The British have entered the western suburbs of Bremen, Absie, the OWI transmitter in London, declared in a broadcast picked up at New York this afternoon by NBC. Absie added that British tanks have completely encircled the city.]

Nearing Helgoland Bight.

Troops west of the city cut to within thirty-five miles of Helgoland Bight.

Pilots reported the Germans were sendng air transports into the shrinking Ruhr death pocket by night in attempts to salvage what they could of the 1,000,000 or so Nazis sealed off between the First and Ninth armies.

The Ruhr pocket shrunk to less than 2,000 square miles under attacks from the north, east and south by the First and Ninth armies. Gelsenkirchen, a flattened city of 313,000, fell without a shot. Essen, sixth largest city of Germany, was toppling in street fighting, and its great Krupp works were captured.

Siegburg (32,000), east of Bonn, fell to the First Army, which pushed five miles northwest of it. Olpe, Kobberode and other towns on the east side of the pocket toppled.

Nazis Rescue Generals.

Don Whitehead, in a front-line dispatch, quoted American pilots as saying tonight that the Germans were sending air transports into the Ruhr pocket by night in an apparent attempt to evacuate key personnel and equipment. The Germans were flying old three-engined Junkers-52s. It is highly likely they have been able to get out some top-ranking generals.

American night fighters intercepted one transport last night and shot it down north of Attendorn. Planes were arriving over the Ruhr at intervals of about fifteen minutes, coming in low over the hills. There are several airfields which could be used inside the pocket.

As of midnight last the First Army had taken 18,667 prisoners from the pocket and the Ninth Army had counted 17,897, with thousands more still inside the pocket. The rate at which prisoners were being taken upholds the present official estimate that there were some 100,000 German troops caught in the Ruhr, including service elements, anti-aircraft troops, cooks, bakers and assorted odds and ends required to keep the combat units supplied.

Resistance Slackening.

Resistance has been lessening the past few days leading some military men to think that perhaps the enemy was pulling back into a tight little circle for a last-ditch stand. Infantrymen captured a bridge on the Lenne River near Oberberge today and then pushed on to the town of Visbeck. They were engaged by dug-in infantry, tanks and anti-tank fire. Ninth Division infantry pushed west almost five miles south of Mechede while armored units drove thirteen miles west of Oberkirchen to the Lenne River. In the southern part of the pocket American troops advanced to a line roughly six miles north of the Sieg River.

All along the northern and central fronts American and British forces were either surging into the heartland of Germany or lined up for impending assault.

Gen. Omar Bradley's First and Third Army linkup on the Thuringian plain threatened with the Russians, to cut the Reich in two. The Germans were rushing whatever reserves they could scratch up into the historic Jena battlefields where Napoleon—another invader from the west—prevailed a century ago. Jena was just ahead of the Twelfth Army group.

The First and Third Army positions out in the clear on the Thuringian plain gave Gen. Bradley a battering ram south of the Harz mountains and almost due south of Brunswick. There probably was no fighting force left in the heart of the Reich which could stop the massed might of Gen. Eisenhower. Already sixty-two Allied divisions have been identified in fighting east of the Rhine and twenty of these are armored.

Hannover was deeply outflanked from the north and south by divisions of the American Ninth and British Second Armies.

The Germans said American tanks immediately north of Hannover were pushing east from Steinhuder Meer and had advanced to a point "midway between Hannover and Celle," 22 miles northeast of the Prussian traffic center.

The Germans said yesterday the Americans had pushed north around Lehrte, ten miles east of Hannover. By enemy account, they were less than eight miles from completely encircling the city of 472,527.

"It becomes increasingly clear that the enemy intends to encircle Hannover completely," the Germans said early this afternoon.

Bradley's First and Third Armies were within 150 miles of Russian lines and in ideal tank country, where Germany may be cut in two.

His Ninth Army captured the Ruhr industrial center of Gelsenkirchen, (313,000 population). The Ninth also captured the ruined Krupp works in Essen and virtually surrounded that city of 660,000 while fighting in its streets.

Two Cities Afire

Hannover and Bremen were besieged and afire while the British Second and American Ninth Armies beat at their outskirts.

Both are great prizes. Bremen is Germany's second port, a Focke-Wulf plane producer and a submarine base. Hannover is a meeting place of five railroads and seven main highways and a producer of aircraft, guns, tanks, trucks and four fifths of Germany's airplane tires.

The whole Allied front was aimed at the Elbe River, 50 miles away at Hamburg and less than 70 at Magdeburg. The river is the last before Berlin.

The Ninth Army on the high road to Berlin was less than 20 miles from Brunswick; the Third Army was five from Erfurt; the Seventh was four miles from Schweinfurt; and the French were nine from Stuttgart.

The Ruhr trap was squeezed down to less than 2,500 square miles, a death trap 50 miles long and 50 wide holding tens of thousands of Nazis. Fighting raged in the streets of Dortmund (537,000) for the third day.

The total bag of prisoners from the Ruhr pocket rose to more than 25,000 as the Eighth Division captured Olpe, 13 miles north of Siegen, where the Germans had been reported concentrating tanks and troops for a counter-attack. Resistance, however, was light and there was no sign of massed strength.

More than 25,000 square miles has been hacked from Western Germany and Allied armored spearheads are jabbing deeper. General Eisenhower's tanks were clanking about the Reich virtually at will; the shattered Wehrmacht—drained by 500,000 casualties in ten days and by the entrapment of 180,000 more in the Ruhr and Holland—was fighting by day and running by night.

Canadians Push on Emden

The Canadian Fourth Armored Division advanced ten miles during the night to within 25 miles of Emden (27,000) and 15 miles from the North Sea. The North German city of Oldenburg was menaced by Canadians 40 miles away.

Hamburg, Germany's second city of 1,682,220, was less than 50 miles from Allied vanguards, and the port of Luebeck was brought within 95 miles of British lines thrust across the Weser at Hoya.

More than 6,000 bombing, rocket firing and machine gunning Allied warplanes kept rail junctions and cross roads towns of Middle Germany aflame all day yesterday and last night. British heavy bombers in great strength loosed terrific ruin on the big Kiel shipyards.

The U. S. Eighth Air Force alone destroyed 166 planes, and damaged 53 more in attacks on airfields and dispersal grounds in a great circle around Munich, 95 miles from the Seventh Army. Pilots found evidence that the hard-pressed Luftwaffe was using makeshift operational bases. Many destroyed planes were on superhighways. Many were Jets.

Escape Route Cut

The Canadian Fourth Armored Division racing north along the Ems fought within 15 miles of Dollart Bay, between Germany and Holland. A salient to this arm of the North Sea would totally sever Holland from the Reich; all railroads already have been cut and it is estimated 80,000 Germans are pocketed behind flooded polders and the Canadian troops.

The Third Army farther south was building up for the last lap of the victory race in an assault line on the Thuringian Plain within 128 to 130 miles of Berlin. Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops continued to straighten their lines, advancing up to nine miles on a 25-mile front which extends from Plaue, 13 miles southeast of Gotha, southward to Walgau, nine miles south of Suhl and within 50 miles of Czechoslovakia.

German Resistance Shattered

APR 11 1945

V-E Day Expected When British and U. S. Troops Join Up With Reds.

By WES GALLAGHER.

Hamelin, April 10 (A. P.).—A juncture between British-American and Russian forces may well be the time chosen by the three Powers to declare all organized warfare with Germany at an end.

Such a declaration would give German soldiers one of two choices—they could either surrender and be treated as prisoners of war or continue fighting and be hunted down as Franc Tireurs or guerrillas, having no legal military status. Judging by the morale of German troops captured in the past two weeks there is little doubt what the German soldier's choice would be. Those still willing to die for the Fuehrer are few and far between.

The Western Front is that in

20.24-246 49

name only. There is no real German front left. The resistance now being encountered by American forces, except in the Ruhr pocket, is unorganized and little more than strong guerrilla opposition. For example, the Ninth Army spearheads driving east toward Berlin since bypassing the Ruhr have not encountered a single organized German division. They have been met only by convalescents, anti-aircraft crews and some several hundred odd units ordinarily found only in rear areas.

Expect Short Stands.

Military men feel the Germans are incapable of erecting any battle front in the west, except perhaps for a short stand along the Elbe and immediately before Berlin itself. In the words of one operations officer, the situation in the west is now more of a political than a strategic problem.

Front line fighting men feel that one or two armored divisions or infantry combined can set out for any place in Germany now and reach it within a reasonable time. Most military men believe the joint chiefs of staff in Washington will fix some definite line in Germany to which either the Russians or the western front Allies will advance and then halt, waiting for the forces opposite to move up and join them.

This meeting, no matter where, probably will end what might be called organized resistance in the Reich, military authorities believe. A meeting by the United States Third Army and the Russians would cut Germany into two isolated sections, while a meeting between the Ninth Army and the Russians near Berlin would accomplish a similar feat, making it impossible for the German High Command to conduct any sort of organized war. This is particularly true in view of the fact that nine-tenths of Germany's heavy industry is in Allied hands.

No Formal Peace.

Such a cutting up of the German army would allow German soldiers to surrender with honor, because their military situation would be impossible.

Almost all Germans, officers and civilians, seem to agree that there will be no formal peace. They say the Nazis will never make peace and there is no other German group strong enough to do so. They say the German soldier would like to stop fighting, but that he will not give up until he knows he can surrender without danger of retaliation from the Nazis.

The Nazis, with organizations such as the Werewolves are trying to capitalize on the situation by attempting to throw Germany into a state of anarchy.

Some sections of the German population have been terrorized by the Werewolves, but thus far they have been a flop as effective guerrilla opposition to the Allied armies. A check of the various Allied armies disclosed there has been almost no sabotage of military effort or assassination of Allied soldier

General Says Hitler Shelved British Invasion

Nazi Tells How R.A.F. Raids and Landings in Africa Spoiled Plan Later On

GOETTINGEN, Germany, April 9 (Delayed) (AP).—A small, mouselike German major general of ordnance, who built the sites for the barge-borne invasion of England, said today that Adolf Hitler himself postponed the venture against the advice of his military leaders.

"Von Rundstedt," he said, "wanted to attack England immediately after France fell in 1940, but he was overruled by Hitler. Instead we were ordered to wind up our campaign in Yugoslavia and prepare to attack Russia."

In 1942, the general declared, Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt thought the golden opportunity had been missed and that England was too strong to be invaded. But, he said Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch wanted to establish a holding line in Russia and prepare for a strike against England.

Because of his skill and knowledge, the general was given the job of organizing invasion sites in Holland. He said thousands of barges were concentrated, but that the invasion project finally was abandoned.

"That was because of two things," he said, "the Royal Air Force bombing attacks on our barge concentrations, and the invasion of North Africa by the Allies."

He said that although tied up by the Russian campaign the Germans had gambled in North Africa to gain food supplies and take a chance on capturing the Suez Canal.

Sitting almost unnoticed in the banner-hung City Hall among clamoring civilians, the little general said he had been relieved of his command a month ago because the Nazi gauleiters no longer trusted him. "The Wehrmacht officers who want to make peace no longer have any real power in the German Army," he declared.

35 Men Drank From Victims' Skulls At Nazis' Limburg 'Murder Factory'

Limburg, Germany, April 10—(AP)—American troops have discovered a German "murder factory," rivalling any house of horror dreamed up by fiction writers, where it is estimated 20,000 persons viewed by the Nazis as "undesirables," were systematically slain.

Located in an insane asylum near Limburg, the terror-filled establishment was in charge of a tall, scar-faced 70-year-old [illegible] surgeon, assisted by a husky 45-year-old chief woman's nurse and middle-aged chief warden, Allied officers said. On the staff were SS (Elite Guard) officers from Berlin.

Tales told by German residents of the village of Hadamar, four miles north of Limburg, led U. S. First Army officers Lieut. George Walker of Deshler, Ohio, and Capt. Alton H. Jung of San Antonio, Tex., to question officials in the village, and resulted in locating the asylum.

Maj. Harvey M. Coverly, Sausalito, Calif., ordered the arrest of the three in charge of the "factory," said by the officers to be one of six set up by the Nazis inside Germany to dispose scientifically of unruly slave laborers or those who had outlived their usefulness.

German civil authorities estimated 15,000 victims were gassed and cremated and another 5,000 killed by drugs or poison and buried in communal graves.

The stench of burning bodies caused Hadamar residents to complain and the bishop of Muenster lodged protests with the asylum officials. That caused the Nazis to switch from gas to hypodermic injections and from cremation to mass burial.

The slayings were described as "mercy killings" authorized by a 1939 Nazi statute.

Two investigators, Capt. Brinkley Hamilton, a British officer attached to an American infantry division, and Lieut. W. R. Johnson, Loveland, Colo., told a macabre story of death and torture and ghoulish feasts by drunken executioners in the asylum where 300 crazed inmates were permitted to run free in underground dungeons.

"Nobody would believe it," said Johnson. "It had underground chambers with dripping water, bats flying around and little crazy men who jumped out at you at every step."

Of the Nazi surgeon in charge, Johnson said: "I never saw a tougher looking man in my life."

The job of the chief nurse, he added, "was to put the death needle into women patients. She was about six feet tall, built like a football player and as ugly as a witch."

The head keeper, "a mousey-looking middle-aged man who had been promoted from driving victims to the asylum to the actual job of doing away with them," gave the officers the first indication of how the asylum operated, Johnson declared.

"He told us the asylum never held more than 500 patients and showed us that there were only 481 graves in the cemetery. There were fresh, empty graves, and when we asked him about them he said 'we always keep three graves ahead.' "

The officers learned that from six to 20 bodies were dumped into each grave.

Captain Hamilton, a veteran of 20 years at London's Bow Street Police Station, said that on one day 500 Russians were taken into the asylum and not one came out alive.

"When we first walked through the asylum the insane inmates, laughing and screaming, followed us around in packs," Hamilton added. "There were dwarfs and stupid giants, but all seemed harmless. Only the sane people there were killed."

He said that each morning the surgeon director, the head keeper and the nurse conferred on who would be killed that day.

"One assistant said the doctor was regarded as a kind man because if one of the victims fought against taking the hypo needle the surgeon would not let the attendants beat him into submission," Hamilton recounted. "He just let the man go without food until he was too weak to object."

The gas chambers and crematorium were operated by SS men from Berlin, the investigators added.

After their 10,000th killing the SS men had a drinking orgy, Hamilton said. "They cleaned out the skulls of some of their victims and used them as drinking cups. Townspeople and former employes at the asylum testified to this."

He said some of the victims were "young children who were half Jews."

Most of the victims appeared to be Russian men and women workers who couldn't stand the strain of hard work and little food, the officers said. Many Poles and some Dutch were killed, but there was no evidence to prove that Belgians or French were slain.

The surgeon, confronted by evidence and testimony on operations of the murder factory, was quoted have always been a doctor of honor."

BRITON DECLARES NAZIS STARVED YANK CAPTIVES

Goettingen, Germany, April 10—(AP)—British Imperial prisoners newly freed from two German camps said today American soldiers captured in Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's ill-fated Ardennes offensive had been starved and mistreated by the Nazis.

A South African gun sergeant captured at Tobruk in June, 1942, said the treatment of British prisoners had not been bad until last December, "when the Germans really got scared."

Among 2,000 Empire troops freed at Goettingen and Duderstadt, he said their Red Cross parcels failed to arrive then and food fell off to watery soup, bread and one-inch squares of sausage.

"But we learned what bad treatment could really be when the Americans arrived at our camp late in December," he said, referring to the thousands of prisoners taken from such outfits as the 106th, 99th and 28th Infantry Divisions, which were hit first and hardest by Von Rundstedt's Winter drive.

"For some reason which we never learned, they had a much tougher break than we did. When they arrived at our camp we naturally tried to share our Red Cross parcels with them, but the Germans immediately took the parcels away from the Americans and told us we couldn't give them any gifts. Then they were taken away from our area and locked in a separate enclosure.

"They quickly developed dysentery and were treated shockingly. They were put in double-decked barns with no sanitation facilities. There was no place for them to go and you can imagine the condition of their living quarters. They were just living skeletons when last we saw them."

His story was corroborated by several other British, New Zealand and South African soldiers, some of whom had been prisoners ever since Dunkirk.

285 RIBBENTROP AIDES CAPTURED

Foreign Ministry Staff Members Taken In Muehlhausen

Muehlhausen, Germany, April 8 [AP—Delayed]—Two hundred and eighty-five members of the German Foreign Ministry were captured last Thursday when the 6th Armored Division rolled into this city 19 miles northwest of Weimar.

Officials captured handled matters such as [illegible] exchange of nationals [illegible] countries, personnel and press communications and among them were several who had spent many years in Washington.

However, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and other top figures in his department were not among the prisoners taken.

This section of the Foreign Ministry, whose work was generally administrative, was moved to Muehlhausen from Berlin about a month ago when many Government offices were moved into this area some 140 miles southwest of Berlin where the Nazis believed they would be comparatively safe.

Tanks Spoil Plans

But the staff barely had time to get set up and organized when tanks of the 6th Armored Division roared into the city, which offered no resistance and consequently was hardly touched by war.

Just before taking this picturesque Old World city of 50,000 the 6th, commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, of Washington, D.C., also seized numerous members of the German railroad ministry at Scherbda, 10 miles south of Muehlhausen. The photographic department of Transocean News Agency was captured at Langensalza, 5 miles southeast.

This area was to have been one of the main dispersal centers for German Government departments when the encroachments of the Russians on the east and the repeated aerial bombings of Berlin forced the transfer of many of the Reich's offices away from the capital.

Under House Detention

When the decision was made to leave Berlin, two departments of the Foreign Ministry were transferred here, but Ribbentrop and his closest associates fled elsewhere.

The officials who came here were found in apartments, basements, garages and homes of friends. Inasmuch as the officials were civilians they were placed in charge of Allied Military Government officers, including Major Royce Weisenberger, of Hope, Ark., former lawyer and legislator, and Capt. Judson de Loach, of Lakeland, Fla., former member of the Associated Press staff in Atlanta, Ga.

The Foreign Ministry staff was placed under house detention until they could be moved.

'Did Not Dare Talk'

The enemy officials said Berlin was at least 75 per cent destroyed and most Government buildings gone, but added that the SS (Elite Guard) and Gestapo still held an iron fist over the people of the ruined capital.

Trembling as he spoke, one of the staff said "most of us feel the war is lost, but until now we did not dare talk about it for fear of what might happen to us."

People in Germany generally have ceased believing some secret weapon still might win the war, he said, but at the same time believe the war will continue if the SS and Gestapo hold the whip hand.

Escape 'Miraculous'

The people are extremely pessimistic about any group of Germans wresting power from Hitler. Himmler and their henchmen. Hitler is still very much alive, the captives insisted.

A man who said he took the picture of Hitler, shaking hands with Mussolini two hours after the army coup failed last July declared, "there was nothing fake about it. Hitler's escape was simply miraculous."

Fear of the Russians pervades the entire German nation, it was said, and people who believe the war is lost hope the Americans will be strong enough to hold the Russians in check.

"If the Russians are uncontrolled, Germany will cease to exist as a nation," one officer asserted.

Early in the war Reichmarshal Goering told the people that "if ever a single bomber is able to fly over Berlin my name will be Meyer."

Now everyone calls Goering "Mr. Meyer," surreptitiously of course.

Americans who escaped from a German prison camp said today that the Germans had inflicted horrible cruelties upon their captives.

"You wouldn't believe the way the Germans treated the prisoners, both the wounded and the unwounded," Bolling said. "Near the American lines the harsh treatment was relaxed, but farther inside Germany it was worse."

Bolling and Lieut. Robert Jonscher of Arlington, Vt.; and Pfc. John Kutsaris, 520 Wheatland ave., Bound Brook, N. J., arrived at the American lines northeast of Wuerzburg this morning. Jonscher said that he had lost thirty pounds and Bolling said he lost forty pounds during the imprisonment.

Both men said they had been through horrors at Gerolstein and Hammelburg. They said they made four attempts to escape and finally got away four days ago. They lived in the woods, aided by escaped French labor prisoners. The lieutenants met Kutsaris later. He had been captured a week ago at Wuerzburg.

Woman Wants To Quit Germany For Ohio Home

Bad Mergentheim, Germany, April 10 (AP)—Mrs. Georgia James von Richter said today she wished to go back home to Cleveland, Ohio, but would go only if her husband, former German vice consul in Cleveland, could go with her.

She said she married Richard von Richter in 1934.

Her husband was fired from the diplomatic service because he had married an American, but his Government used him in its radio service because of his knowledge of English, she said.

Mrs. von Richter, who says "I think I'm still an American," told American officers that she used to live at 2904 Warrington road, Shaker Heights, Cleveland, and that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. James, still lived there.

9th Army Captures 2, Perhaps 3 Generals

Blomberg, Germany, April 10 (AP). The 113th Cavalry Group of the 9th Army captured two and possibly three German generals today east of the Weser River. One blundered into American lines.

8 AERIAL RECORDS FALL IN ASSAULT ON 26 AIRFIELDS

Eighth Airforce Loses 25 Bombers, 15 Fighters in Massive Attack.

YANKS BAG 20 JETS

Luftwaffe Given Crippling Blow, Planes Grounded for Lack of Fuel.

LONDON, April 10.—(AP) American fighter pilots and bomber gunners destroyed 397 German aircraft today and shattered eight aerial warfare records in the most devastating blow ever delivered against the once mighty Luftwaffe.

Countless other German craft were damaged as both American and British planes again assaulted the German Reich.

25 U. S. Bombers Lost

Losses of the U. S. Eighth airforce were announced as 25 heavy bombers and 15 fighters.

In attacks on more than 26 enemy air fields, 336 German planes were destroyed on the ground and 61 were shot down in aerial combat. Twenty of the 61 were the deadly jet-propelled fighters, the largest bag of these high-voltaged interceptors ever collected in a single day.

Fighter pilots destroyed 284 parked planes and shot down 21 others, while bomber gunners accounted for 17 enemy aircraft. Continent-based U. S. Ninth air force pilots, in attacks on 15 air fields, destroyed 39 planes on the ground and shot down 18 others. The Ninth lost five fighter bombers.

Three more Luftwaffe bases were ripped up by fighters of the First Tactical Air Force operating from France. They accounted for 13 parked enemy craft and five others shot down in combat.

In the last four days 61 German air fields have been pounded and at least 765 enemy planes have been destroyed.

The German jet planes drilled into the American bomber formations in waves of up to 10 abreast.

The combined force of heavy bombers and fighters, the greatest fleet ever put aloft to blast air fields, dug up seven jet plane bases and an experimental testing field all within a 70-mile radius of Berlin.

There was no way of confirming destruction caused by bombs dropped from a 20,000-foot level, but returning crewmen said that before depositing some of their loads they could see several airdromes crowded with planes.

Toll May Rise

A spokesman for Eighth airforce headquarters said 'this record-breaking number of enemy planes destroyed on the ground may rise with final assessment of claims, which is now incomplete and will continue for several days."

One formation of Fortresses and its fighter escort repulsed the heaviest concentration of jet planes so far encountered over Germany when the bombers went in and blasted an ordnance depot and fighter base at Oraniensburg, 15 miles north of Berlin.

Flying sometimes in waves of more than four abreast, flying forts pounded German air fields in the Brandenburg and Magdeburg areas, while Mustangs ripped into more than 100 parked enemy craft on two fields northwest of Berlin.

Ninth Air force fighters blasted at least nine ME-109s out of the air north of Weimar and Gotha, while 16 Thunderbolts dropped fragmentation bombs squarely on more than 500 freight cars, 350 of them loaded with ammunition, in the Neunemarket railyards 10 miles north of Bayreuth, and then sped on to othersidings where 28 more cars and two locomotives were destroyed.

Two separate forces of heavy RAF planes, meanwhile, pounded two freight yards in Leipzig and the German radio reported more formations of British bombers were over the Reich tonight.

Today's crippling air blow on the Luftwaffe's striking force, most of which was grounded for lack of fuel, shattered the previous overall fighter and bomber score of enemy planes knocked out in a single day, 352 planes destroyed July 17, 1943 in the Schweinfurt and Regensburg areas.

It also beat the old record of 177 enemy planes destroyed in a single day by fighter pilots, set last Sept. 5, and upset the mark of 70 enemy planes destroyed on the ground, also set last Sept. 5.

RAF bombers were also out against the Reich, with heavy bombers smashing railway yards at Leipzig and Plauen, some 90 miles to the south, while Mosquito bombers paid their nightly call on Berlin. Probably more than 1,000 RAF planes took part in these attacks, bringing to nearly 6,000 the total of planes which attacked Germany in the last twelve hours.

3,150 Planes Take Part

More than 3,150 American planes took part in today's record-making smashes, attacking at least a dozen German airfields, including bases for the dangerous jet-propelled planes, and hitting at enemy supplies and rail equipment.

Included in the attacking force were 1,300 Britain-based U. S. Eighth airforce Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 850 fighters, and more than 1,000 fighter-bombers of the U. S. Ninth airforce and First Tactical airforce, operating from continental stations.

Eighth airforce pilots, flying long-range Thunderbolts and Mustangs riddled 284 parked enemy aircraft, many of them jet planes roosting on eight airdromes within a 70-mile radius of the German capital. In the air these pilots knocked down 21 other planes, 20 of them ME-262 twin-turbo craft, in some of the most violent dogfights of the war.

Ninth airforce pilots claimed destruction of 39 enemy planes on the ground and 15 others downed in aerial combat, while pilots of the First Tactical airforce blasted 13 on the ground and knocked five others out of the sky.

In the last four days well over 50 German air fields have been hammered and at least 745 enemy planes have been destroyed.

An 8th Air Force staff officer said that at least 100 more Nazi planes were probably splintered and an untold number were damaged by the 3,600 tons of fragmentation bombs and high explosives dropped by the Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

There was no way of confirming destruction caused by bombs dropped from a 20,000-foot level, but returning crewmen said that before depositing some of their loads they could see several airdromes crowded with planes.

245 NAZI PLANES DESTROYED BY U. S.

London, April 10 (A. P.).—Fighter pilots of the United States Eighth Air Force today destroyed at least 245 German planes—227 of them on the ground—and set an all time record for fighters.

The score was made as more than 2,150 American bombers and fighters, flying a massive aerial offensive, hit German airfields into its fourth straight day, struck at enemy jet-plane bases in the Berlin area, following up a night attack by 600 R. A. F. bombers on Germany's largest submarine assembly yards at Kiel.

The previous record kill of enemy planes on the ground and in the air scored by fighter pilots was 177 on September 5, 1944.

The R. A. F. blow at Kiel was the third major strike at the North Sea U-boat base in less than twenty-four hours.

The attack came only a few hours after British Lancaster bombers hit submarine shelters at Hamburg with 22,000 and 12,000-pound bombs for the second time during the day. The Air Ministry said many large fires were observed after the night raiders hit three Kiel yards.

Allied bombing now apparently has scotched a planned resumption of the German U-boat offensive.

Bag Three Nazi Planes

Fighters shot down three more German planes during the night, bringing the Allied score to 357 enemy aircraft destroyed in three days. American Fighters had a strafing picnic yesterday at scattered German fields, destroying 156 Nazi planes on the ground.

R. A. F. Mosquitos again paid their nightly call on Berlin. Others raided objectives at Plauen, near the border of Czechoslovakia; Stade and Hamburg.

The British lost six planes in operations last night and yesterday. The U. S. Eighth Air Force reported ten bombers and four fighters missing from a force of more than 2,000 heavy bombers and fighters put in the air yesterday.

Nazi Hide Planes

With only enough fuel to get planes in the air at infrequent intervals, the Germans now are trying to save the idle aircraft by hiding them along highways and in fields far removed from regular bases.

This discovery was made yesterday by two Eighth Air Force pilots helping to escort 1,250 bombers on attacks on ten air fields and other targets in a 60-mile radius of Munich. While chasing a ME-262 a few hundred feet off the ground they detected a concentration of enemy planes parked in the woods beside a two-lane autobahn eight miles south of Munich.

day and thrust within 372 miles of the German rail escape route northward to Brno (Brunn), the Soviet Army has disclosed last night.

Fall of the remainder of the old Austrian capital appeared imminent as heavy street fighting raged on, and Moscow told how the enemy's defenses were crumbling in announcing that on Monday 2,000 soldiers were captured along with 72 tanks and 75 field guns in-

Raked From Three Sides

Russian artillery from three sides was raking the 3-mile-long, half-mile-wide crescent of land between river and canal, where the Germans still were holding out in the old Jewish quarter of Leopoldstadt and in the Brigittenau and Prater commercial districts.

Within the battle zone were two large railway stations, the 125-acre Augarten Park, Vienna's modern sports stadium, and the modest site where in 1867 the younger Johann Strauss wrote the "Blue Danube Waltz."

West Along Danube

All the main portions of Vienna, including the old city bounded by the famed Ringstrasse, were in the hands of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army, while Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian forces drove west along the Danube's north banks to the southwest city limits of Vienna at Muehleiten.

Other Suburbs Seized

Malinovsky's men seized a dozen other suburbs, including Deutsch Wagram, 3½ miles from the single-track railroad that leads northward to Brno in Czechoslovakia.

Deutsch Wagram, in the center of the Marchfeld plain that has been a battleground since Roman times, was the scene of the battle of Wagram when Napoleon defeated Archduke Charles in 1809.

Deutsch Wagram is but 8 miles from the Danube and 10 miles due west of Tolbukhin's troops at Klosterneuburg on the opposite bank.

In that space runs the Brno railway and another single-track route that leads circuitously northwestward toward Prague.

The Germans were struggling desperately to hold their escape bridges across the Danube and the railway line leading to Brno.

Simultaneously other units of Malinovsky's army slashed ahead on a broad front in Slovakia northeast and north of Bratislava, taking the city of Trencin on the east bank of the Vah river and Barel 80 miles from Gen. Andrei Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainians driving down from the north.

Many Nazis Taken Prisoner

The Moscow communique which announced this series of successes also listed a staggeringly-large bag of German troops taken in the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, which fell Monday.

A total of 92,000 Germans were captured in the five-day final assault, Moscow said, while another 42,000 were killed. Fifty thousand of those captured were taken after the city's formal fall at 9:30 p.m. Monday night. Among the prisoners were 1,819 officers and four generals, including the commandant, a general Lasch.

Hastening the final cleanup of all East Prussia, the Third White Russian army thrust westward from Koenigsberg and took four towns on the Samland peninsula, Moscow announced.

The Russians were officially silent concerning operations on any other fronts, but German reports said the Red armies also had opened a final assault to reduce the holdout citadel of Breslau, capital of lower Silesia, and thereby free additional forces for a concerted drive westward towards the rushing American armies.

Berlin commentator Lt. Col. Alfred von Olberg broadcast that "strong Russian concentrations in the Buzlau and Guben area, 53 miles southeast of Berlin, and the appearance of fresh forces in the Kuestrin area, 32 miles east of Berlin, indicate that Russian wedges will be aimed at both flanks to outflank Berlin from north and south."

Von Olberg also suggested that divisions freed from the victorious siege of Koenigsberg in East Prussia might launch a new Baltic seacoast drive for the great port of Stettin and ultimately toward Kiel.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, part of whose forces were aiding in the Vienna encirclement, cut loose other troops in southern Slovakia for a drive between the Morava and upper Nitra rivers toward the Moravian border.

PANIC IN AUSTRIAN CAPITAL

Fall of City Seems Imminent as Reds Capture All But Last Few Blocks.

BULLETIN.

London, April 10 (A. P.).—The Russians have captured all of Vienna south of the Danube, which includes the whole capital except some suburbs on the north bank, Moscow announced tonight. The communique also said that 50,000 more Germans had surrendered in Koenigsberg, raising the total to 92,000, including four generals. In addition, 42,000 Germans were killed in Koenigsberg between April 6 and today, the communique added.

London, April 10 (A. P.).—While the Moscow radio declared "the fall of Vienna is imminent," and Russian storm troops within the Austrian capital battled the Germans for the last few blocks of the city, other Russian forces beyond Vienna were heading for Munich and Prague and a link-up with the Allies in the west.

A Moscow dispatch said that Marshal Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army "was making startling progress" in its drive west of Vienna toward Linz and Munich. Exact positions were not given, however, since the Germans in many sectors were unaware of the scope of this advance. It was stated that Tolbukhin's forces crossed the Danube immediately northwest of Vienna near Nuzsdorf, and were believed also to have crossed some twelve miles further upstream, in the vicinity of Tulln. Neither crossing has been officially confirmed. The one at Nuzsdorf was linked to the Second and Third Ukrainian armies' push to close the enemy's seventeen-mile escape avenue out of Vienna. The crossing at Tulln apparently was aimed at Prague, 139 miles away.

Below Vienna, meanwhile, another wing of Tolbukhin's Army had thrust to within 133 miles of Adolf Hitler's mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden.

Hail Fall of Koeningsberg.

On the other hand, the Russian troops along the Baltic coast, far to the north, had captured the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg after a massive thirty-three-hour barrage had softened three lines of fortifications surounding that cradle of Prussian militarism. The fall of Koenigsberg was hailed in the Russian press as one of the great victories of the war, comparable to the breaching of the Seigfried Line in the west.

Red Star, the Russian Army newspaper, declared: "For almost seven centuries this bandit town has stood on the Baltic ravaging and ruining the tribes of Lithuania. . . . From now on and forever, East Prussia, the birthplace of the arrogant aggressors and would-be enslavers of the Slavs, has been separated from German soil."

More than 42,000 prisoners were taken when Koenigsberg fell at 9:30 o'clock last night, little more than thirty-six hours after the Russians began their final all-out attack.

Early this afternoon the German communique said that Marshal Konev's First Ukrainian Army has launched an assault on beleaguered Breslau in Silesia.

Panic swept Vienna, Moscow dispatches said, adding that Nazi storm troopers, seeking to quell a disorder, had fired on throngs of hungry housewives.

While the Berlin radio declared that the Germans were still opposing the Russians "with wild stubbornness" in Vienna, Moscow dispatches pictured the carved up Nazi garrison as a "disorganized mob fighting to escape from the city." Berlin said that the Russians have now entered the world famous Prater, the great amusement park that lies in the southeastern part of the smoking city between the Danube River and the Danube Canal, and Moscow announced that the inner heart of the capital had been overrun, that the Russian infantry and tanks, driving from the west late last night, broke across the famous Ringstrasse and captured such structures as the Town Hall, the Parliament buildings, the Opera House and Central Police Headquarters.

Marshal Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army swarmed across the much-battered Aspern airport, on the north side of the Danube, thus denying the Germans any hope of escape by air. The Russians then turned north and battled German tanks and self-propelled guns in Vienna's suburbs of Flordisdorf and Jedlersee through which runs the highway to the Czecho-Slovak city of Bruenn. The right wing of the Second Ukrainian Army was thirty-eight miles southeast of Bruenn.

Russian correspondents also said today that the narrow streets of Wiener Neustadt, Messerschmitt manufacturing city south of Vienna, were piled high with debris and the town is in ruins as the result of American air raids. Sopron, in Hungary, just southeast of Vienna, also "is almost completely ruined after mass raids by American and British aircraft," one correspondent said. "The railway station, with hundreds of cars, and many-storied houses are a mass of stones, concrete and tangled wire and steel."

Koenigsberg, cradle city of Prussian militarism, formally capitulated last night at 9:30 P. M. (Moscow Time), little more than 36 hours after Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky's Third White Russian Army group began an all-out assault. More than 42,000 prisoners were taken in two days and the total apparently still was mounting.

First encircled January 30, Koenigsberg was reported a ruin from the long air and artillery battering. Flames still were leaping through the wreckage. Announcing the fortress city's fall, Premier Stalin said the victory cleared the last major German strongpoint along the Baltic east of Stettin.

By Berlin account, Vasilevsky's troops were mopping up the last Nazi pocket in East Prussia on the Samland Peninsula, west of Koenigsberg. There seemed little chance of any escaping, since Russian planes over the weekend sank nine transports and five other ships near the escape port of Pillau.

Reds Closing Ring

North of Vienna, two Russian armies were within 17 miles of closing the enemy's last avenue of flight. In a five-mile gain, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army captured Lessee, 12 miles northeast of the Austrian capital. His bridgehead across the Danube and Morava Rivers was expanded to a width of 24 miles and a depth of eight.

While Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army drove into Vienna from the west, the Germans on the north counter-attacked desperately in an effort to keep open a highway and two secondary railroads running to Bruenn in Czechoslovakia.

Unofficial Moscow dispatches said Tolbukhin's troops had crossed the Danube northwest of the city. German reports said his men were attempting to cross at Nuszdorf. Thus, Tolbukhin and Malinovsky apparently were trying to cut directly across the enemy's northern escape route and encircle the capital.

'IKE' SAYS FOE HAS COLLAPSED

Calls On Port Workers To Save Harbor Installations

London, April 10 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters told the German people flatly tonight that "their resistance in the west has collapsed" and called on workers in North Sea ports to block Nazi fanatics from wrecking harbor installations.

Allied stations, broadcasting in both English and German, sent out this warning from supreme Allied headquarters on authority of the supreme commander: "Allied armies are now threatening your towns. German resistance in the west has collapsed."

"Danger From Fanatics"

"In these last weeks of the war the future of your towns is in the gravest danger from fanatics who may make a last-minute attempt to make the ports unusable. The power of the men behind these fanatics is crumbling. It will be broken with the arrival of Allied armies. Then your ports will be used at once."

Eisenhower urged the people to prevent the Nazis from seizing the last food and fuel stocks in the cities, declaring: "You will need food and fuel to get over the initial period after the collapse."

Re-employment Promised

The broadcast said, "it depends on what you do now which will be the first North Sea port to be reopened," and then pointed out that as soon as ports were available to the Allies there would be immediate re-employment for dock workers, crane drivers, harbor pilots and many other workers.

Harbor officials and workers were told to remember where the Nazis placed land and sea mines and to report them to the Allies.

The broadcast was one of a series which the Supreme commander has been directing to the German people in various sections and it told the residents of the port cities that further instructions would follow.

Syrians Told End Of War Is at Hand

London, April 10 (A. P.).—Premier Fayiz el Khoury told the Syrian National Assembly he had received information from high Allied sources that news of the cessation of hostilities was imminent, Reuters reported today in a dispatch from Damascus.

Nazi Newscasts Inexplicably Lapse

London, Wednesday, April 11 (AP). German radio news services resumed broadcasting shortly after midnight following an unexplained silence of more than five hours for some stations.

DNB's European service that went off the air at 8.20 P.M., came back at 1.10 A.M. with an announcement that a holdout garrison at Wuerzburg had surrendered.

Its service then was interrupted again by a loud whistle. The German agency's home service, which had stopped at 7.05 P.M., resumed at 12.40 A.M., also. The transocean agency was silent, except for call signs, from 8 P.M. to 10 P.M.

NAZIS ACCUSED OF KILLING 577,000

London, April 10 (A. P.).—The Nazi Government and the German High Command were charged today by a Soviet investigating committee with the merciless slaughter of 577,000 men, women and children in Latvian concentration camps. A 6,000-word report broadcast by the Moscow radio said that an additional 175,000 Latvians were deported as slave laborers, and on explicit orders of Nazi officials and the military a ruthless destruction of factories, public utilities, libraries, museums, hospitals and homes was carried out during the German occupation.

"The German fiends murdered men and women, healthy and sick, children and old people," the report said. In the central prison in Riga they murdered more than 2,000 children whom they had taken away from parents, and in Salaspils camp they killed more than 3,000 children."

The commission said that in the Salaspils camp the investigators found nine grave-pits covering a total area of more than 3,600 square yards. More than 56,000 civilians were tortured to death in the camp, it was charged. Mental defectives were taken from hospitals and shot, the report added. In one instance the victims included twenty healthy children temporarily transferred to a hospital from a children's home.

14 'Chutists Reported Shot After Capture

London, April 10 (AP)—At least fourteen British parachutists have been shot by Germans who captured them, Sir James Grigg, War Secretary, told Commons today.

He said strong protests have been made to the German Government through neutral Switzerland.

Two corporals who escaped after being placed before a firing squad with four others who were wounded by Gestapo men related details of one of these executions, he said, and fixed the date as last July 5.

Adolf's 'Putzi' Reported Back In English Hands

London, April 10 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's piano playing crony, Dr. Ernst (Putzi) Hanfstaengl is back in a British internment camp after two years in the United States, it was reliably reported today.

First interned here at the outbreak of the war, he was sent to the United States in 1942, presumably in the hope that he would be able to give authorities valuable information about the Nazi regime and its leaders. But those who knew him in Germany and in internment camps were convinced he had little to offer except inconsequential backstairs gossip and said that was the reason he had been handed back to Britain.

BRITISH LOSSES 502,396

Empire's Casualties of 1,126,802 Include 306,984 Dead

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—The British armed forces suffered 502,396 casualties, including 216,287 dead, up to Feb. 28, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today.

In addition, 188,212 service men from the United Kingdom are either prisoners of war or internees in neutral countries, he said. These figures do not include the deaths of members of the armed forces from natural causes or casualties among civilians or merchant seamen resulting from enemy action.

In a written report, Mr. Churchill also listed Canada's losses at 39,220, including 31,439 killed, 45,251 wounded and 8,367 prisoners, and Australia's at 87,256, including 19,430 killed, 35,595 wounded and 25,276 prisoners. Total British Empire casualties were listed at 1,126,802, of whom 306,984 were killed.

Freeman-Mitford Dies of Wounds.

Allies Honor Invasion Planner

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Both Britain and France have accorded high honors to Capt. Lyman A. Thackrey of the United States Navy, who helped to plan the invasion of Europe and is scheduled to leave soon for a new assignment in the Pacific. A native of Manhattan, Kan., and a veteran of twenty-five years in the Navy, Captain Thackrey received the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre in Paris on April 3. Then he was notified that King George had ordered his appointment as a commander of the military division of the Order of the British Empire.

CHURCHILL WARNS CABINET MEMBERS

London, April 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill, in the midst of a threat to his war-time coalition government, said today that Cabinet Ministers could advocate Conservatism or Socialism on their own, but he would not tolerate criticism from them which "reflects on the actual policies pursued by the Government."

Virtually all London newspapers predicted that the war-time coalition will come to an early end, with the end of the war in Europe approaching.

The Daily Express, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, demanded a general election, Britain's first in ten years, "at the earliest moment." Beaverbrook is a member of Prime Minister Churchill's Cabinet.

"There is no need to lament this political cleavage now that the German danger no longer threatens," the Daily Express said.

The Times declared that "it is inevitable that with one accord the parties should seek to resume freedom of speech now that the primary task of the coalition is almost achieved."

Both the Conservative Daily Sketch and the Daily Herald deplored the agitation for an early election but agreed that one seemed inevitable.

EIRE SANCTUARY BARRED

Churchill Says He Will Prevent War Criminals' Flight There

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill implied today that he would see to it that no war criminals found sanctuary in neutral Eire.

The question arose in the House of Commons when Dr. James Little, a Presbyterian minister from Belfast, asked the Prime Minister whether he would "take steps to make sure that no war criminals find sanctuary in any country embraced within the British Commonwealth of Nations."

The written reply from Mr. Churchill was: "Yes, sir."

Eire, whose leaders have challenged the contention that Southern Ireland is part of the British Commonwealth, has evaded giving the Allies flat assurances that Axis war criminals would be banned. The Eire Government, however, has served notice that anyone who jeopardized the country's neutrality or was undesirable would not be admitted.

BRUSSELS, April 10 (AP)—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, has completed negotiations for setting up an information office in Brussels, it was announced today. Mr. Davis will leave Brussels tomorrow.

Plot Is Nipped In Arrest Of Two

Paris, April 10 (AP)—Two men wearing French air force uniforms arrested at Saint Cyr were accused by the authorities today of complicity in an enemy-inspired plot against the French state.

The men, arrested in an automobile which contained several submachine guns and documents described officially as "incriminating," were not air-force officers, police said.

Pamphlets found in the car urged the population to solve food-shortage problems by intercepting food trucks on the road, and the Air Ministry, in a communiqué, said "these tracts are the work of trouble-makers in the pay of the enemy."

A conspiracy against the French Government was announced officially several days ago, but accounts of its nature have been vague and varied. A magistrate conducting a judicial inquiry into the reported plot has minimized its importance.

French Officials Hold Ten Air Force Officers

Paris, April 10—(AP)—French military intelligence disclosed today the arest of 10 French Air Force officers on suspicion of complicity in a recently uncovered plot against the government.

BRITISH OPEN DRIVE IN ITALY

Senio Crossed On Wide Front; Aim Is To Bag 2 Armies

Rome, April 10 (AP)—The veteran British 8th Army, opening what probably will be the last major battle in Italy, crossed the Senio River today on a wide front in a campaign to annihilate the German 10th and 14th armies before they can retreat into the mountain fortress of southern Germany.

The attack got into action last night after a [illegible] lull, behind a heavy artillery barrage and the greatest coordinated aerial assault ever carried out in Italy.

Opened At 7.30 P.M.

The barrage, which opened at 7.30 o'clock last night, was preceded by an aerial assault by United States 12th and 15th Air Force and RAF warplanes.

All three air forces resumed the assault today with a great force of heavy bombers from the 15th, blasting a path through German defenses for the 8th Army.

Shortly before noon, 3,400 100-pound high-explosive bombs and 180,000 fragmentation bombs had been dropped in front of the British.

The break across the Senio was accomplished near Lugo, a town of some 14,000 inhabitants about 13 miles west of Ravenna, and junction point of the Faenza-Ferrara and Ravenna-Bologna roads.

The British troops moved in [illegible] over bridges thrown across the river in an effort to exploit to the fullest the surprise of the aerial and artillery attack.

Initial Objectives Gained

Initial objectives were gained against relatively light opposition and the Tommies continued to press forward overy the swampy terrain, interlaced with numerous drainage ditches.

An Allied advance westward beyond Lugo would endanger Nazi strongholds upstream along the Senio into the northern Apennines. The Germans have held this area on each side of Highway 9 in great strength.

Foe's Best Troops There

There was no immediate indication what proportion of the enemy strength in northern Italy—estimated at 25 German divisions and six Italian-Fascist divisions—has been massed in the path of the 8th Army.

However, the cream of the Nazi fighting units—notably the veteran 1st and 4th Parachute Troop divisions and the 26th and 19th Panzer Grenadiers—have been concentrated mostly in front of the 8th Army foothold across the southeastern corner of the Po Valley and against the American 5th Army south of Bologna on the central Italian front.

The 5th Army front was active with the United States 473d Infantry Regiment, operating with the 92d Division, fighting its way into the southern outskirts of Massa, near the Italian west coast.

The new British offensive was the first big attack against the Nazis since Field Marshal Albert Kesselring left to take command of the German forces on the Western front.

Col. Gen. Heinrich von Vietinghoff, who formerly commanded the German 10th Army under Kesselring, is believed to have taken up the over-all Italian command.

Liberators Bomb Massings

In an effort to prevent the Germans from rushing reinforcements to the Adriatic sector, RAF Liberators pounded German troop concentrations between Lake Comacchio and the Bologna road while British and American medium and light bombers and fighters battered roads leading to the front and strafed all vehicles in the area.

In the afternoon American Mitchells and South African Marauders attacked German gun positions.

The present Brititsh offensive cannot be put into a true perspective until it is determined whether Hitler is actually going to attempt to make a last-ditch stand in Bavaria and western Austria.

If he does, this new phase of the long, costly Italian campaign will be a valuable contribution by robbing the Nazis of men badly needed in the east and west. If he does not, it may provide one more defeat to add to the humiliation of the German militarists which many Allied leaders believe is necessary for the coming peace.

Breakthrough In Prospect

Should the British attack develop into a clean-cut breakthrough, the 26 German divisions, harried by the lack of transport and hunted on every road by the overwhelming Allied air force, would face disaster.

There is no immediate indication just what form the attack might take.

180,000 fragmentation bombs were poured into two small areas between the Senio River and the Santerno River.

The eastern end of the Italian front burst into flame at 7:30 o'clock last night when hundreds of heavy guns opened up. Bridgeheads were established on a broad front on the north side of the Senio in the vicinity of Lugo.

The smash across the Senio brought to an end the prolonged winter lull on this front.

Endangers Nazi Lines.

A strike beyond Lugo would endanger Nazi strongholds upstream along the Senio into the northern Apennines, and the comparatively easy manner in which bridgeheads were established, together with the display of an Allied material superiority, suggested that the twenty-five German divisions, plus six Italian Fascist divisions estimated to be in Italy would not be able to withstand the pounding for long.

The attack came after Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, expert in delaying tactics, had been called away to take charge of the Germans' western front. His place is reported to have been taken by Col.-Gen. Freidrich von Vietinghoff, credited with a leading role in constructing the defenses of Cassino. Ahead, however, lay tough going for the British tackling what apparently is meant to be the last battle for northern Italy. Much of the terrain is swampy and interlaced with canals and ditches.

Americans on the Fifth Army sector were also on the offensive, with the United States 473d Infantry Regiment, operating with the Ninety-second Division, fighting its way into the southern outskirts of Massa against growing enemy resistance. The British troops had slightly less than a mile to go beyond the Senio to reach Lugo, thirteen and a half miles west of Revannea.

Rome, April 10 (A. P.).—The British Eighth Army, supported by a bombardment from hundreds of guns and the heaviest Allied air assault ever carried out in Italy, has crossed the Senio River in a campaign to destroy as much as possible of the opposing German Army before it can withdraw into Germany's southern mountain redoubt.

Great forces of United States Fifteenth Air Force bombers and fleets from the United States Twelfth Air Force and the R. A. F. were aloft, resuming the blasting of a path through German defenses for the attacking ground forces.

Rome, April 10 (A. P.).—R. A. F. Liberators, blasting German troop concentrations immediately ahead of Allied positions on the eastern portion of the Italian battlefront, caused some casualties today among British Eighth Army troops despite the most elaborate precautions ever taken to prevent such accidents.

Allied anti-aircraft guns put up a barrage of smoke shells to mark certain boundaries and warn the flyers of the proximity of the Eighth Army's lines. Radio beams, smoke pots and large ground markers also were used to direct the bombers. Allied Air Force officials said the bombs from one small formation of planes were dropped short.

Luce Feels U. S. Troops Must Be Told Army Plans For Them In Near Future

By CLARE BOOTHE LUCE
(Representative in Congress from Connecticut)

Allied Headquarters in Italy, April 10—(AP)—The foremost question of G. I.'s here—even of the combat soldier—is not "how will the battle in Italy turn out" but "how soon do I get home when it's over." For he realizes that the destruction of the Nazi Armies in the valley of the Po will probably mark the real end of organized German effort.

One thing seems certain to me. It's going to be much longer than the average man here thinks. It will probably be from 12 to 18 months after the occupation armies have reached Germany before the last American troops embark from Italian soil for home.

And in the meanwhile thousands of men will have marked time in Italy awaiting deployment to the Pacific. If this is a hard fact, as I believe it to be after a number of talks with military authorities here, it seems of vital importance to the morale of the men of this theater—and everywhere else in Europe—that they be told it at the earliest possible moment.

Will Accept Hardship

The American soldier stands irrevocably on his right to gripe. But he will always accept any hardship that's laid upon him provided he plainly undertands the patriotic and practical reasons for its imposition and provided that hardship isn't discriminatory.

He only asks that his leadership tell him the "real score." It was a most serious mistake in the past from a moral viewpoint to give an overseas soldier—particularly in the Italian theater—a much too optimistic view of his real chances for getting home on rotation.

This mistake must not be made again when the shooting stops here, or every troublesome morale and disciplinary problems will develop which will be bitterly aggravated by political pressure and demagogery on the home front.

Must State Policy

Congress should encourage the War Department soon to lay down a precise and just policy for the return or deployment of the thousands upon thousands of men and women in uniform in this theater. That policy should include the reasons behind it and an honest estimate of how long it will take to effectuate.

Above all, once announced, the entire policy must tirelessly and ceaselessly be explained and publicized among the men themselves, for selling it to the men who have already served and fought long hard years overseas is going to be the toughest job of public relations that the Army will face.

It is not only in the War Department and in Congress where this problem must be faced, but in the theaters themselves great leadership will have to be shown.

Army commanders will have to exercise considerable tact, patience and imagination in handling the masses of soldiers who will have ceased to be potential combat material and who have already, unavoidably, begun to think of themselves again as civilians—civilians anxious to get out of uniform and eager to rejoin their wives and children or acquire them—and desperately impatient to enter the race which has begun on the home front for postwar jobs.

Viewpoint Will Change

Moreover, as the average G.I. tends to think of himself as a civilian he'll begin to judge his officers as civilians, too—and no American citizen takes kindly to other men in position and authority who shove him around unfairly.

Unavoidably, begun to think of them-

For these reasons towards the end of every war in rear areas increasing antagonism develops between the G. I. and "The Army." This natural antagonism of an American who finds himself still in uniform while the battle rolls past and dies down is always vocalized in the general complaint that officers are treated better than they should be solely on the grounds of their commissioned status.

This situation has been particularly true in the past in the Italian theater which has had a larger rear area and a smaller and less active front proportionately than any other theater. Here from a G. I. one hears the frequent charge that "the brass hats get the best of everything."

Get Best Quarters

For example, that officers requisition all the best hotels and living quarters; have the first and sometimes the sole access to rear post exchange items; get liquor rations which even combat infantrymen don't, and above all move freely in jeeps and cars, using gasoline and transportation for recreational purposes which are denied the G. I.

As overall charges, the G. I.'s complaints are greatly exaggerated, though all of them still stick in many individual cases.

But the point is that while a crucial battle is in progress everywhere such charges never seriously impair morale or discipline. But if peace should come to Europe, leaving in the wake of the Allied occupation armies thousands of American service combat troops waiting long months for transfer home or deployment to the Pacific, these charges, if true, even in isolated instances, can become dynamite that will not only damage the prestige of the American Army leadership as a whole but will create plenty of local trouble.

Our high ranking military authorities here are keenly aware of the situation and today are making every effort to meet it. In particular they are pushing plans to make the G. I.'s life more comfortable and as fruitful as possible during the waiting period.

Programs Planned

They point out the Red Cross and rest camp facilities here will have to be greatly increased, with particular emphasis put on recreational and vocational educational services, for the G. I. will revolt at the idea of long days of drill for a war that has come to an end. Plans are being made to open schools and shops that will help him fit himself for postwar jobs of a profession, but even with the utmost skill and tact with the end of the European phase of the war men and officers overseas will have entered the most difficult and trying period, which will call on them for the utmost self restraint, discipline and scrupulous observance of the workings of democracy.

The consensus over here, both in the ranks and among officers, is that the passage of a national universal military training act by Congress would do more than anything that can be done in or out of overseas theaters to dissipate the deep discontent and feeling of frustration that is bound to overtake men who are kept long months overseas after V-E Day.

BULLET HITS HIS HEART BUT U.S. SOLDIER LIVES

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIFTH ARMY, in Italy, April 10 (AP)—The German bullet had a name on it—that of Pfc. Ray Shaffer Jr. of Greensburg, Pa.; but he is alive today.

The slug pierced a lung and entered the heart of the young machine-gunner, but it stopped there and was passed into the bloodstream, doctors said.

When the bullet finally was located it had circled through an artery in the upper abdomen and doctors at the Thirty-third Field Hospital said they believed this was the only case of its kind on record.

Maj. Robertson of Paducah, Ky., and Capt. Robert E. Jones of Tifton, Ga., surgeons, sewed up Private First Class Shafer's heart and lung and then extracted the bullet in a two-hour operation.

"He'd have bled to death in a few minutes but for the fact a portion of the injured lung collapsed and partially shut off the flow of blood," Major Robertson said.

Private First Class Shaffer received seven transfusions during the operation and altogether has received fifteen pints of blood—more than he had to start with. He is keeping the bullet as a souvenir.

Right of Asylum Is Refused; Spain to Send Nazis

STOCKHOLM, April 10 (AP).—Fifty German refugees aboard four boats arrived at Tralleborg today, but Swedish authorities forced them to remain on the vessels in accordance with new government regulations refusing asylum to fleeing Germans.

Finns Attack Nazi Holdouts

STOCKHOLM, April 10 (AP).—The Stockholm newspaper "Expressen" reported today that the Finns have launched a spring drive to mop up the last German forces holding out in a narrow tongue of northern Finland between Norway and Sweden.

21 Danish Ships Spirited Away From Germans

19 Tugs and 2 Freighters Sail to Sweden in Coup Engineered by 200 Danes

STOCKHOLM, April 10 (AP).—The last units of a fleet of nineteen Danish tugboats and two freighters, manned by 200 Danes, sailed into southern Swedish ports today.

The Danes said the flight was made at the direction of the Allies to deprive the Germans of the use of the vessels. However, many other serviceable craft remain in German hands.

Captain Hector Kjaer, head of the Switzer Danish Tugboat and Steamship Company, organized the coup. The freed Danes said the escape was arranged in this manner:

The tugboats were stationed in the northern and Oresund districts of Denmark. False messages saying several ships had been grounded were transmitted Saturday. When the tugs reached the scenes of the reported groundings, they were met by small boats loaded with armed patriots, who ordered them to continue to Sweden.

The Danes said the Gestapo in Copenhagen discovered Sunday night that something was afoot, and started a round-up of patriots and ship officers and sailors. Ten persons were reported arrested.

Russians Free Wife Of Yugoslav Leader

Moscow, April 10—(AP)—Olga Mandic, wife of Ante Mandic, member of the Yugoslav Regency Council, has been discovered in a German concentration camp liberated by the Red Army, field dispatches said today.

She said she was arrested on New Year's Eve, 1944, at a resort near Fiume and had learned only recently that her husband was alive.

War Criminals Sought In Spain

Madrid, April 10 (AP)—Neutral Spain is inspecting the arrivals of all foreigners from Germany to prevent persons classified by the Allies as war criminals from settling in the country, it was learned today.

The foreign section of the Spanish police is preparing a questionnaire, to be distributed soon, for all Germans not in diplomatic service who already are in the country.

The Germans must state whether they are Nazis, and, if so, how long they have been party members, what their activities were during the Spanish civil war, whether they still are members of the German Army and whether they were classified by the Allies as war criminals. All their commercial activities since 1936 must be disclosed, and they must explain how they have earned a living since September 1, 1939.

CHINESE TAKE HONAN TOWN

APR 11 1945

Report Changsuichen Fall. Battle On In Laohokow

Chungking, April 10 (AP)—The Chinese high command said tonight that counterattacking Chinese troops had recaptured the western Honan province town of Changsuichen, 70 miles from the Shensi border.

"The enemy remnants fled toward Lining with our forces in hot pursuit," the communiqué said.

The high command acknowledged that Japanese forces had entered Laohokow, former site of an advanced United States airbase 200 miles northwest of Hankow, and said the Chinese garrison was battling the invaders within the city.

Battling In Southern Honan

On the southern Honan front in the Neisiang area, 190 miles northwest of Hankow, heavy fighting was in progress with no change in the positions of the two forces.

East of the Peiping-Hankow railroad, the high command said, Chinese troops captured the north and west passes to Junan, 130 miles north and slightly east of Hankow. Street fighting was reported raging in Junan, with the Japanese defending the town house by house.

Other Chinese troops were reported pressing on Chowkiakow, a Yellow River town 30 miles northeast of Junan.

The high command said Chinese troops had breached Japanese lines at several places in the vicinity of Nanyang, 170 miles northwest of Hankow, and had wiped out 300 counterattacking Japanese troops.

Chinese Army Admits Japs Enter Laohokow

Chungking, April 10 —(AP)— The Chinese High Command acknowledged today that Japanese forces had entered Laohokow, former site of an advanced U. S. air base 200 miles northwest of Hankow, but said the garrison still was battling stubbornly within the city.

Four hundred of the invader were slain, the announcement said.

The Chinese reported their counterattacking forces in northwestern Hunan Province had fought into the town of Changsuichen, 70 miles from the Shensi border

REVEALS NEW PLAN FOR PUSH TO JAPAN

Chungking, April 10 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of United States Army forces in China, returned to Chungking today after conferences at Washington and in the Philippines. He said that new plans had been worked out for integrated ground and air action against the Japanese in China as the war progresses on a new time table.

At conferences with President Roosevelt, Admiral Leahy, Gen. Marshall, Admiral King, Admiral Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur, he added, "plans for the defeat of Japan were thoroughly explored." He described the outcome as "particularly significant as our forces close in on the enemy's homeland in decisive stages."

BRITISH TROOPS SEIZE THAZI IN BURMA DRIVE

CALCUTTA, April 10—(AP) British 14th Army troops mopping up Japanese remnants in central Burma have captured Thazi, an important road junction town, 14 miles east of Meiktila, a southeast command communique said today.

Armored [illegible] pushed south of Thazi ran into several Japanese light tanks and knocked out one of them. In other operations in the Meiktila area British and Indian troops wiped out a number of enemy gun positions and inflicted heavy casualties on the disorganized enemy.

Rocket-firing RAF Beaufighters attacked Japanese bunkers in the Thazi area in close support of the advancing ground troops.

The communique said that an enemy pocket of resistance in the Legyi area, 24 miles south-southeast of the Pakokku bridgehead across the Irrawaddy had been cleared.

Warplanes of the Eastern Air command ranged over occupied areas of Burma.

BURMA TOWN IS TAKEN

Calcutta, April 10 (A. P.).—The road junction of Thazi, fourteen miles east of Meiktila, has been captured by British Fourteenth Army troops, Southeast Asia Command announced today. South of Thazi retreating Japanese forces were bombed and strafed by warplanes of the Eastern Asia Command.

An enemy pocket in the Legyi area, twenty - four miles south-southeast of the British bridgehead over the Irrawaddy at Pakokku, was reported cleared.

M'ARTHUR FORCES IN SULU CAPITAL

Control Of Archipelago Reported—Leper Colony Rescued

Manila, Wednesday, April 11 (AP). Veteran infantrymen of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Division invaded Jolo Island Monday and quickly seized the capital city and its airfields to take "complete control" of the Sulu archipelago, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

He announced also that all organized [illegible] ceased on southern Luzon Island, and that American invasion forces had liberated hundreds of Filipino lepers in the Culion colony by occupying Coron Bay, fleet anchorage between Busuanga and Culion islands north of Palawan.

Strike Inland 8 Miles

The 41st Division, which captured the big harbor of Tawitawi in the Sulu chain only 30 miles from Borneo on April 2, swept ashore at the Jolo city water front, on the 20-mile-long island's north coast.

They swiftly seized the city and struck inland 8 miles, scattering all enemy resistance. There was no indication of the intensity of the opposition at Jolo, but MacArthur said two weeks aerial pounding had disrupted enemy defenses.

Jolo, shrine city of the Moros, is the finest port of the Sulu archipelago, which stretches between southwestern Mindanao and northern Borneo.

Drive Across Peninsula

MacArthur, in announcing that all organized Japanese resistance had collapsed on southern Luzon, said its liberation is at hand."

The 11th Airborne Division reached Antimonan, on the east coast, in a swift drive of 20 miles from Lucena. Thousands of crack Japanese troops are believed trapped in the long southeastern "tail" of Luzon.

In the central Philippines, United States infantrymen occupied Coron Bay on Busuanga Island, north of Palawan, to rescue a colony of lepers at Culion town. The bay once was used as a Japanese fleet anchorage during sorties against the American beachhead at Leyte Island.

MacArthur said the first medical and food supplies to be received at the leper colony in three years were delivered by the Yanks.

Bombers Sink Another Ship

In the air war, heavy bombers severely raked airdromes on Formosa and fighters strafed rail facilities. A freighter-transport was destroyed off the west coast.

Bombers flying the China Sea blockade have "almost cleared the shipping lanes to the south," MacArthur reported. He said that "in default of shipping targets, our heavy and medium bomber patrols of the blockade destroyed bridges, installations and railway equipment along the arterial railway line running north along the French Indo-China coast and bombed the Hoe How airdrome on Hainan."

FLIERS BLAST CONVOY, SINK 2 JAP SHIPS

Manila, April 10—(AP)—Four Navy Liberator bombers attacked a 15-ship Japanese convoy Saturday, sinking a destroyer and a large freighter and seriously damaging another destroyer before the rest of the convoy could flee toward Swatow on the China coast, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Other Philippines-based bombers raised the day's bag to 10 ships sunk as they ranged enemy shipping lanes at will from the Netherlands East Indies to Formosa.

Ground forces on Luzon Island, meanwhile, continued pressure on trapped Nipponese forces but progress was generally slow because of the difficult terrain.

Military Targets Hit

The far-ranging bombers struck at military installations and fuel and munitions dumps with heavy bomb loads in a succession of raids. Two Liberators exploded a huge ammunition dump at Keelung, Formosa. More than 75 other planes hit targets on the China Sea Coast and the Formosa West Coast with a total of 171 tons of bombs.

Farther south, Thirteenth Air Force heavies and mediums ranged over Borneo, wrecking four barges in Brunei Bay and damaging a small troop-laden freighter off the southern coast of Celebes.

Fighters destroyed many Japanese trucks and supply dumps while supporting ground action on Negros and Cebu Islands in the Philippines.

In Southern Luzon, the First Cavalry crossed the Onipa River near Malepuya, driving south and further compressing the enemy force already encircled southeast of Laguna De Bay.

On the Bicol Peninsula, the 158th Regimental Combat Team drove westward against moderate resistance west of Daraga.

Bitter fighting marked the struggle around Balete Pass and Baguio on Northern Luzon. The 25th Division moved forward 1,200 yards from Kapitalan, south of the pass. The 33d Division ran into stiff mortar and artillery fire southeast of Burgos, which is 15 miles from Baguio.

Supporting bombers blew up several Japanese supply dumps at Baguio.

TSUGEN INVADED BY YANK FORCES

Doughboy Drive in Okinawa Checked by Fierce Jap Resistance.

GUAM, Wednesday, April 11—(AP) Tenth army troops landed on little Tsugen island off Okinawa's east coast yesterday while on the main island 24th corps Doughboys battered at the "little Siegfried Line" on the south for the sixth straight day without appreciable gains.

Some [illegible] encountered on Tsugen [illegible] only a mile and one-quarter long about 10 miles off Nakagusuku harbor, important because in American hands it would complete American control of that onetime Japanese fleet anchorage.

5,009 Japs Killed

The Navy announced today that 5,009 Japanese were killed and 222 prisoners of war taken in the first eight days of the battle for Okinawa; 325 miles south of the Japanese homeland.

There was no late estimate of American casualties. Field reports said they were running high in the bitterly-contested southern sector, where the most furious artillery duel of the Pacific war is under way.

The last official report of U. S. casualties covered up to midnight last Wednesday. At that time 175 marines and soldiers had been killed and 798 wounded.

Intense fighting continued in the southern sector along the entire four and one-half mile line running from Uchitomari on the west coast to the town of Tsuwa on the east coast.

The Japanese were attacking American tanks with Molotov cocktails and using 500-pound bombs as mines. While they have temporarily checked the advance toward the capital city of Naha they have been unable to shove the invaders back.

Front reports said the fact there were no appreciable gains recorded may be attributed in part to the desire of Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold, the Seventh Division commander, to hold down his casualties by massing great amounts of artillery against Japanese in concrete pillboxes.

Artillery was seeking to knock out each emplacement before troops were sent forward—a long and difficult task.

Japanese counterattacks on both the southern and nothern sections of the American lines were reported today by Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz. All were beaten off.

Marines Push Ahead

Marines of Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Amphibious corps scored gains up to 2,500 yards in the north, overrunning enemy submarine pens and other installations, but the 24th army corps lines at the south were substantially unchanged.

On this southern battlefield, where the heaviest artillery duel of the Pacific war is in full fury, several Japanese counterattacks were hurled back. By 6 p. m. yesterday, Nimitz reported, there were "no substantial changes in the lines."

Artillery, ship guns and carrier aircraft closely supported the Yanks, who are driving on the Okinawa capital of Naha.

No details were given on the Tsugen island invasion. The island, just off the mouth of Nakagusuku bay, could serve to protect that important fleet anchorage. The Americans now control the inner shore of the big harbor.

Marine artillery had joined infantry big guns pounding the heavily-fortified Japanese positions on southern Okinawa against savage resistance along a battle line within four miles of the capital city of Naha, but to the north Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine Amphibious Corps swept ahead virtually unchecked.

The Marines, scoring gains up to 4,000 yards, cut off the big Motobu Peninsula and, fanning westward, occupied about half of it yesterday. They over-ran the western shore of Katena Ko onetime site of Japanese submarine pens.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique today said the Marines still found only "scattered and ineffective" opposition.

But it was a different story on Southern Okinawa, where the enemy has concentrated the bulk of a defense garrison estimated at more than 60,000 troops.

Warships in Action

The Japanese may be using more and heavier artillery than they have mustered before, but still it was no match for the American batteries massing their fire in a furious all-out slugging match.

Battleships and cruisers also turned their heavy guns on the Japanese artillery, destroying a number of gun emplacements in the rugged terrain well suited to defensive tactics.

Two counter-attacks were thrown back yesterday and a third still was being fought off last night in a fierce engagement.

The Seventh Division's 184th Regiment recaptured Red Hill yesterday after concentrating artillery fire on it during the night. The hill was seized from the Yanks earlier in a bitter, close-range counter-attack fought with tanks, bazookas, small arms and grenades.

Associated Press Correspondent Robbin Coons, with the 24th Corps on Okinawa, predicted it may take two to three months to capture the island. Iwo Jima, the toughest single conquest of the Pacific war, took 26 days.

Pouring out an increasing volume of small arms and machine-gun fire along with their artillery, the Japanese are making a stand from prepared positions which one Tenth Army staff officer called "Okinawa's Siegfried Line."

OKINAWA LOSSES FAR BELOW ENEMY'S

With the Twenty-fourth Army Corps, Okinawa, April 10 (A. P.).—Two Japanese have been killed for every American killed or wounded in the first nine days of fighting on Okinawa, a headquarters spokesman said today, and the American casualties include a very small percentage of men killed while the counted enemy losses are almost entirely of dead.

By comparison the rate of Japanese dead to American casualties on Saipan and Iwo was one to one, on Luzon four to one, and on Leyte seven to one.

Fierce Artillery Duel Rages, With Enemy Unable to Match Power of American Guns—Long, Bitter Battle Is Predicted

FLYER IN WAVES SAW YAMATO HIT

By VERN HAUGLAND.

Aboard Admiral Turner's Flagship off Okinawa, April 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An eyewitness account of the sinking of the 45,000-ton Yamato, Japan's mightiest battleship, was related tonight by a carrier pilot shot down in the midst of the enemy task force. He is 26-year-old Lieut. (j. g.) William Ernest Delaney of Detroit, rescued by two planes from Fleet Airwing One, who had spotted the Japanese force and led American planes on the attack. Lieut. Richard L. Simms of Atlanta, Ga., flew over the enemy warships to divert their fire, while Lieut. James R. Young of Central City, Ky., landed in the sea and picked up Delaney.

Two cruisers and three destroyers were sunk with the Yamato and three destroyers were left burning, Delaney, who was flying a torpedo bomber from a light carrier, said.

"At 12:35 we sighted the battleship with a screen of two cruisers and eight destroyers. One destroyer was about ten miles behind.

"I broke out of the overcast at 3,000 feet and saw a plane making a run on the battleship. I started my glide-bombing run on her. Right after I released by 500-pound bombs I heard an explosion from a shell hit on my plane. Fumes poured into the cockpit and fire broke out on one wing. I tried to gain altitude but saw things were getting worse and ordered my two crewmen to bail out. Then I bailed out. I saw both crewmen land in the water safely. I was about five miles west of the Japanese force.

"The Yamato was dead in the water. I saw a destroyer approach her close enough to throw a line aboard, possibly to remove survivors, when another wave of our planes came in. There was a thick cloud of smoke and seemed to be an explosion in the battleship. There was another explosion on the destroyer to the southeast which apparently sank.

"I was midway between a destroyer and the battleship, about five miles from each, when two planes came in and spotted my dye marker. One plane diverted fire from the stationary battleship while Young landed the other and picked me up."

Simms and Young were flying a search sweep when they sighted the Japanese force. They tracked the ships from a distance of five miles, meanwhile contacting Corsairs.

Two Veterans To Aid Stassen At San Francisco Conference

Pearl Harbor, April 10 (AP)—Two discharged sevice men will be assistants of Commander Harold Stassen at the San Francisco world peace conference, he announced here today.

Stassen, one of the United States representatives, said he will choose an honorably discharged Marine and a soldier who have been in combat. He plans to pick men who are returning from schooling and who are interested in government.

The former Minnesota Governor, in reply to a question, said he does not expect to represent the service men's viewpoint at the conference because he believes the delegates should represent all of the people instead of any one group.

Urges Policing Of World

In discussing the San Francisco conference, Stassen said he visions a new world in the making in which peace is not an impossibility, but, he added, that peace will be purchased only at the price of world-wide policing.

Answering [illegible] questions [illegible] correspondents at a conference upon the eve of his departure for the United States, Stassen said that every citizen of the world, and particularly every American, will have a valuable stake in San Francisco because it is the little fellow's only hope for the prevention of future wars.

Big-Three Alliance Asked

"The least thing the conference may accomplish would be the formation of an organization of United Nations of Great Britain, Russia and the United States and an agreement among them of the results they want to achieve," said the former three-time Governor of Minnesota.

"The maximum development would be the creation of an effective organization representing all peoples of the world," he added.

The commander said a strong police force will be required, because he has no confidence in Germany not starting future wars.

Likewise, he said, a close watch will have to be kept by each nation upon the others to be sure that none attempts undercover preparations for war—especially such preparations as may be conducted in the secrecy of scientists' laboratories.

Charter Envisioned

Despite all these difficulties in the way of peace and in reaching satisfactory agreements among nations, Stassen said he was confident that national viewpoints represented at San Francisco would not be an insurmountable barrier.

He envisioned a charter setting up a basic organization that includes a security council, a court of justice, an assembly and an economic council.

Commander Stassen, aide to Admiral William F. Halsey, compared this with a city government of a police department, a city council, a judge and administrative departments.

Stassen said the conference will not be concerned with boundary disputes, reparations and like questions but with the setting up of a framework for a world-wide organization guaranteeing peace.

5 Major Nations Vital

He said the co-operation of at least five major nations is necessary for this—with each nation co-operating in spirit as well as in the letter of the law.

Major nations, with the exception of Germany, are already convinced that war is not a satisfactory manner of settling disputes, he added.

Any nation is entitled to its own type of government, he said, as long as it doesn't interfere with the rights and freedoms of other nations.

Capitalistic governments, he declared, should have the right to try to make their plans work and produce satisfactory results and demonstrate this to the other peoples of the world.

Nazis Halted Too Late

On the other hand, other nations have the same right with their particular philosophies, but in the case of the Nazis they should have been stopped the moment their program threatened world peace, he added.

In this connection, Stassen said we couldn't have prejudged the Nazis at the start of their program but we could have at the point where it threatened adjoining nations.

As for dire predictions of civilization being annihilated by a lightning type of warfare in the future, Stassen said it is necessary to organize opinion for good uses of science and against harnessing the uses of science for war.

Jack Dempsey Rustles Invaders' Sandwiches

Guam, Wednesday, April 11 (AP). Jack Dempsey, Coast Guard commander and former heavyweight boxing champion, rustled sandwiches for landing craft crews and troops before they debarked from his transport for Okinawa's beaches Easter Sunday.

"I wasn't going ashore with them but I was keyed up and wanted to be doing something," he said today. "The boys were too excited to think about getting food, so I took over the job of sandwich man."

Dempsey explained he was ill with a gall bladder ailment on D-day but he was able to go ashore the second day.

Oahu Air-Engine Plant Active

NAVAL AIR STATION, Barber's Point, Oahu Island, Hawaii, April 10 (AP)—The first American airplane engine reassembly plant to be setup out in the Pacific has its moving lines in full swing—thus speeding up the return of engines to action against the Japanese. The Navy plant began functioning in December and turned out more than eighty engines in the first month. It already has tripled its production.

Capt. Faulkner Is Named New Zealand Navy Chief

Wellington, New Zealand, April 10 (AP)—The Admiralty today appointed Capt. G. H. Faulkner chief of the New Zealand naval staff with the rank of commodore, second class.

Faulkner, who succeeds Commodore Sir Atwell Lake, recently relinquished the position of chief of staff to the commander in chief of the South Atlantic and principal sea transport officer for South Africa.

Japs Call For Arms Output For Close

Fighting At Home

APR 11 1945

San Francisco, April 10 (AP)—Japan's third war Cabinet held its first regular meeting today amid appeals for production of more weapons for "close-quarter" fighting in the expected Allied invasion and a warning that the nation's financial fabric is weakening.

Tokyo radio broadcasts heard by the FCC said Baron Kantaro Suzuki summoned his Cabinet, organized Saturday, for a meeting in which members "exchanged opinions vigorously."

A Nagoya broadcast quoted Toyosaku Hirose, Finance Minister, in warning that inflation of Japan's currency is becoming a "serious question" because the country is "carrying out a war on such a vast scale."

Would Reorganize Bank

Domei, the Japanese news agency, reported that the Finance Ministry had approved a plan to "reorganize" the Bank of Japan and "simplify and strengthen" its setup by compressing its 31 bureaus into one office, three departments and eight bureaus.

Hirose said "changes in the war situation" had created a need for "decisive and appropriate measures."

The Tokyo radio said "Anglo-American journalists" who predict that the Suzuki Cabinet will become a "peace Cabinet" are fooling themselves.

The enemy broadcast also referred to a comment by Joseph C. Grew, United States Under Secretary of State and former Ambassador to Tokyo, who "sounded a note of stirring warning to the American people, declaring that emergence of the Suzuki Cabinet means a strengthening of the Japanese nation to fight it out."

Domei predicted Japan's war policies will be advanced "boldly and vigorously" by the new Foreign Minister, Shigenori Togo, who held that post in the Nipponese political maneuvers which preceded Pearl Harbor.

Togo Recites Aims

Togo was quoted as proclaiming that Japan's war aim was to "abandon the forces of destruction for the forces of reconstruction" while "poisonous America and England were hindering the progress of humanity."

Lieut. Gen. Reickichi Tada, president of the Japanese Science Mobilization League and a foremost ordnance expert, said Japan's handicraft shops should produce close-quarter weapons to be used by "all the Japanese people" in the "imminent" Allied invasion.

These weapons he listed as anti-tank guns, hand grenades, rockets and "special attack planes."

TOKYO SCOFFS AT PEACE AIM

Denies New Cabinet Intends to Seek Armistice.

San Francisco, April 10 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio scoffed today at American and British comments that the new Cabinet of Premier Kantaro Suzuki may put forth peace feelers. It said the allegations were interesting, "disclosing as they do the inner psychology of the authors' desire for peace." It also pointed out that similar suggestions were made when the late Koiso Cabinet took office.

In a broadcast recorded by the FCC, Tokyo continued: "Again the Anglo-American journalists predict that the Suzuki Cabinet will become a peace Cabinet on the grounds, first, that Admiral Suzuki was one of the victims of the February 26 incident in 1936, and, second, that the new Cabinet is upheld by the Senior Statesmen."

An exception to such comment, Tokyo said, was that of Under-Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Tokyo, "who sounded a stirring note of warning to the American people, declaring that the emergence of the Suzuki Cabinet means a strengthening of the Japanese nation to fight it out." Observing that it may not be "our business" to decide which is the sounder comment, Tokyo added: "At least we can say this, that Grew has more information and intelligence on Japan, and on richer information and closer intelligence we can form sounder judgments.'

Japan's wartime diplomacy will be carried on boldly and vigorously by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, Domei, the Japanese official news agency, declared earlier today.

Togo, who was Foreign Minister at the time of Pearl Harbor, returned to that post yesterday in Japan's third war-time Cabinet, and today outlined his policy in a statement reminiscent of his speeches when the war began. Domei quoted him as saying that Japan's aim is to "abandon the forces of destruction for the forces of reconstruction," that the "poisonous" Americans and English were hindering the progress of humanity and "ruthlessly destroying everything they please," and that Japan's ultimate aim is to achieve a "universal alliance based on reciprocity and equality."

Togo's return to the Foreign Ministry was heralded by influential Japanese newspapers largely because of his knowledge of Soviet Russia which last week disavowed a non-aggression treaty with Japan. "What we are interested in now," the Asahi said in an editorial quoted by Domei, "is whether the Soviet Government will continue to have an interest in maintaining peace in the East in cooperation with Japan or will they work in the opposite direction."

Japs Boast They Have New 'Whirlwind' Plane

San Francisco, April 10 (AP)—The Japanese agency Domei today announced a new Nippon fighting plane, called the Nayate, or Whirlwind, which it said "is now rushing forward like a hurricane to bag United States planes which dare to cross its path."

In a radio Tokyo broadcast recorded by the FCC, Domei said the plane "is a sort of hybrid with a four-bladed propeller. One glance at this superb craft in action reveals its power, speed and high efficiency."

New Propaganda Officials

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10 (AP)—Two of Japan's top radio executives will direct Japanese propaganda, Domei Japanese news agency, reported today in a broadcast intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

Dr. Hideki Shinomura, president of the Japan Broadcasting Corporation, is Minister Without Portfolio and President of the Board of Information, which operates the propaganda machine.

Tatsuo Hisatomi, managing director of the Japan Broadcasting Corporation, was named vice president of the Board of Information today.

RAIDERS OVER JAPAN

San Francisco, April 10 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio reported that a single Superfortress bombed the Kanto area of Tokyo and Yokohama again today.

"Two large planes," apparently B-24s," flew over southern Kyushu and the Goto islands to the southwest, Tokyo said in a broadcast recorded by the FCC, and four small planes raided Kagoshima prefecture at the tip of Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands.

Arab Princes Reach N.Y. On Way To Frisco Parley

New York, April 10 (AP)—Five royal princes of Saudi Arabia, each accompanied by a bodyguard, arrived here today on an ATC plane en route to the San Francisco conference, to which they are delegates.

His Royal Highness Namir Faisal Ibn Abdul Aziz headed the delegation. He was accompanied by his son, Abdullah El Faisal, and his three brothers, Amir Mohammed, Amir Fahad and Amir Nawaf. The royal physician, Dr. Rashad Faroun, accompanied the princes.

U. S. DELEGATION TO PARLEY WILL VOTE AS A UNIT

Stettinius Says Majority Ballot Will Fix Position on Each Issue.

NEUTRAL OBSERVERS BARRED

But San Francisco Conference Will Admit Representatives of 42 U. S. Organizations.

Washington, April 10 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Stettinius reported today that the American delegation to the San Francisco conference will act as a unit, its position on each issue being determined by majority vote.

He also disclosed these other developments at a news conference:

1. Some neutral countries have inquired about sending observers to the United Nations conference opening April 25, but it has been impossible to accommodate them. This evidently includes such countries as Sweden and Switzerland, and also probably Italy.

2. A total of forty-two organizations of civic, professional, agriculture, labor, business and others have been invited to appoint one representative and an assistant each to act as consultants to the eight-member United States delegation.

3. Secretary Stettinius is still hopeful that the proposed new Polish "national unity" government may be set up at Warsaw in time to provide representation for Poland at the meeting.

4. Avra Warren, chief of the State Department's Office of American Republics, was added to the list of official advisers to the American delegation and Arthur Sweetser was named to represent the Office of War Information. Sweetser served as an American observer at the League of Nations.

U. S. Group Forming Policy.

The United States delegation began yesterday a series of policy meetings and Mr. Stettinius said today it would be engaged for the next several days in going over the Dumbarton Oaks proposals for world organization and all suggestions concerning them—presumably meaning suggestions for changes.

It is the aim of these meetings, he said, to develop unified opinion on the part of the delegation on all points which may come up at San Francisco. It is not possible to give day to day information on the trend of these discussions, he added, because tentative views reached today must be reviewed in the light of subsequent discussion of other subjects.

The eighty-four consultants from the various private organizations, Mr. Stettinius said, will pay their own expenses but the State Department will try to arrange for housing and transportation for them. A State Department statement on the consultants said that in selecting the organizations an effort had been made to get a group which "constitutes a fair cross-section of citizen groups."

"It has not been practicable," this statement said, "to extend consultant invitations to all organizations interested in the work of the conference."

Organizations Invited.

The organizations invited to designate representatives follow:

American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, Chamber of Commerce of the United States, National Association of Manufacturers, National Foreign Trade Council, American Bar Association, National Lawyers Guild, American Federation of Labor, Congress of Industrial Organizations, Railway Labor Executives Association, American Legion, American Veterans Committee, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, American Farm Bureau Federation, Farmers Union, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, National Grange.

American Association of University women; General Federation of Women's Clubs; National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.; National League of Women Voters; Women's Action Committee for Victory and Lasting Peace; American Jewish Conference; American Jewish Committee; Catholic Association for International Peace; Church Peace Union; Federal Council of Churches of Christ of America; National Catholic Welfare Conference.

American Association for the United Nations (Commission to Study the Organization of Peace), Americans United for World Organization, Inc.; Carnegie Endowment for International Peace; Council on Foreign Relations; Foreign Policy Association; National Peace Conference; Kiwanis International; Lions International; National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; National Exchange Club; Rotary International; American Council on Education; National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and National Education Association.

Argentina Needs Moscow Nod

Unfriendly Soviet Gesture Might Prevent Her Seating at San Francisco.

Washington, April 10 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia appeared today to hold the key to Argentine participation in the United Nations conference at San Francisco beginning April 25.

The next move toward that objective is up to the Buenos Aires Government. But it seemed certain that a favorable nod from Moscow could speed action, once Argentina takes the first step, or that an unfriendly Soviet gesture could stop the whole business.

Russia's position is somewhat like that of Britain and the United States in relation to the present Warsaw Government of Poland. In that case Warsaw asked for a bid to San Francisco and Russia backed up the request. Britain and the United States rejected it, however, in the hope that a new "national unity" administration might be set up in time to represent Poland.

Polish Seating Possible.

There is little hope here now that such a reorganization can take place at Warsaw before April 25. But the possibility remains that it might be arranged in time to have a Polish delegation seated in the spot that will be held vacant for it when the West Coast conference gets under way.

In the case of Argentina, the United States and all the other nations yesterday fully recognized the government of Gen. Edelmiro T. Farrell to which they had turned a diplomatic cold shoulder for the thirteen months that it has been in power. Great Britain and some other non-American states joined in the recognition move.

The action was taken by the American countries on the basis of a resolution they adopted at Mexico City last month inviting Argentina to put its policies in line with those of the other countries at war with the Axis.

The next move expected here is a Buenos Aires request to the United States or some other Allied Power for permission to join the United Nations. Such a request then would be transmitted to the other Allied Powers, among them Russia.

That Brings in Unknown Factor.

That would bring in the unknown quantity.

British policy toward Argentina now is in line with that of this country and China would be expected to go along in this instance.

Russia, on the other hand, has been sharply critical recently of the general course of the Farrell government. This criticism has appeared in the Russian press, which normally is taken as a reflection of official views. In diplomatic quarters here, however, this by no means is considered the final word on Russian policy.

Hence it is now known at the moment whether Russia would accept or reject an Argentine bid.

The United States attitude is expected to be neither to sponsor nor to defend such a move but to let Argentina's record and her recent actions speak for themselves.

F.D.R. RODE NEAR U-BOAT

Cruiser Passes Over Spot After Nazi Ship Is Attacked

Detroit, April 10 (AP)—A Coast Guard lieutenant said today that a United States cruiser on which President Roosevelt was returning from Yalta sailed almost directly over a German U-boat in the Straits of Gibraltar.

Lieut. John F. Pival, of Detroit, told this story, which was released by the Coast Guard:

"We were entering the Mediterranean, and knew that a U-boat was in the vicinity. We had been warned by the British on the Rock.

Pilot Spots U-Boat

"There was tremendous activity in the straits that morning. About twenty bombers were criss-crossing the area while a lot of destroyers and British anti-sub ships were combing the area. We were carrying troops and thought they were clearing the straits for us.

"Our radio was turned to the aircraft frequency and just as we started into the narrows a British pilot was heard to say, 'I see the beggar. Yes, that's him. He's diving. Here I go.' However, the plane did not succeed in getting the sub, but all ships converged on the spot and kept him pinned there.

Learned President Was Aboard

"Just then one of our finest cruisers and her escort of destroyers came steaming out of the Med, sailing almost directly over where the submarine had been.

"Upon arrival in Italy, we were startled to hear that the President was aboard the cruiser."

NEUTRALS DENIED INFORMAL LOOK-IN INTO PEACE TALKS

WASHINGTON, April 10 — (AP) There will be no look-in for neutrals and other uninvited nations at the San Francisco conference, Secretary of State Stettinius indicated today.

Stettinius disclosed at his news conference that some countries had inquired about sending informal observers to the Golden Gate conference on world organization, but they were told it was impossible to arrange.

Meanwhile, the United States delegation to the conference, having agreed upon making unit decisions by a majority vote, worked toward a meeting of minds on matters of policy likely to arise. The members are meeting at the State department all this week.

Two of the eight delegates have been absent from the sessions which began yesterday. They are Commander Harold L. Stassen, on active duty with the Navy, and former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who is recovering from a long illness and exhaustion.

Hull still hopes to go to San Francisco. The time for a decision by his physicians is drawing near. There is some thought that while he may not be able to attend the opening session he will almost certainly be able to go out sometime during the meeting which is expected to last at least a month.

There were these other pre-conference developments:

1. The question of Argentina's attendance appeared to depend on the attitude of Russia toward the Argentine government which the United States, Britain and many other United Nations formally recognized yesterday. Russia would have to pass upon an Argentine request for admission to the United Nations and also, if it were made, any suggestion that Argentina attend the West Coast parley.

2. Stettinius said he was still hopeful that a new Polish government would be set up at Warsaw in time to represent Poland. But other officials were unable to sight anything more than hope in support of this possibility.

3. Forty-two labor, business, professional, religious and similar organizations were invited to send one representative and an assistant each to the conference. This addition of 84 persons made it certain that American group delegates, advisors and consultants would total many more than 100 persons.

The consultants from the various private organizations will pay their own expenses.

4—The meeting of international jurists to provide for a world court within the framework of the Dumbarton Oaks world organization plan went into its second day with attention still focused on organizational problems.

All Able-Bodied Soldiers In U.S. To Be Sent Overseas

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Every able-bodied soldier in the United States who has not seen service overseas is earmarked to go abroad just as fast as he can be replaced by a returning veteran.

Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, set this forth in a communication made public today by Representative Mahon (D., Texas), member of the House Appropriations Committee.

5,000,000 Overseas

Prompted by a suggestion by Mahon that "the bottom of the barrel should be scraped" of soldiers still in this country before switching combat units from the European theater to the Pacific war fronts, Stimson wrote:

"According to February figures, there were approximately 8,050,000 men in the Army, 5,150,000 of whom were overseas.

"Of the 2,900,000 on duty in the United States, almost half (roughly 1,400,000) already have been earmarked for overseas duty and are being trained accordingly either in tactical units or as individual replacements and students in replacement training centers, training regiments and schools; 180,000 others were in army hospitals."

Earmarked For Overseas

The War Department chief declared the remainder, 1,365,000, were in essential administrative and service jobs, concerned with overseas supply, plane maintenance, cargo loading, communications or transportation. Then he added:

"Every one of these soldiers, except those who already have seen overseas service or who are physically disqualified, is earmarked for foreign service as soon as he can be replaced by an overseas returnee or a limited-service man."

Connecticut Men Are Among 1,500 Landed After Rescue From Starvation Pens by Russian Sweep Across Poland—Red Cross Praised

Boston Port of Embarkation, April 10—(AP)—Fifteen hundred liberated American soldiers were eating good Yankee "chow" today after months of meager meals in German prison camps.

Freed from Nazi rule by Russian forces sweeping across Poland last January, the men marched ashore from an Army transport just after dark Sunday night—the first large group of ex-prisoners to come home from the European theater.

The cheering soldiers trudged down gangplanks, almost drowning the music of a welcoming Army band on the dock, and then were whisked away to a nearby camp for processing and briefing, preliminary to being granted furloughs.

They ate steak and ice cream and all that goes between and talked endlessly. There were tales of near-starvation and mistreatment, yarns of high adventure and thrilling escape, of desperate flight through enemy-held territory, and of death faced on many a cold and fearful morning.

Praise Red Cross and Poles

Through the discordant symphony of the arrival and the settling down ran two themes, echoed and re-echoed by a thousand throats.

"The Red Cross," the men said, "those packages of theirs kept us alive," and the Poles, "they didn't have much, but they shared what they had."

Some of the soldiers—among them were 99 from New England—had been in prison camps for two years. Several of them knew the AP's Larry Allen, who recently was returned to this country on the Exchange Ship Gripsholm.

Second Lieut. Rudolph J. Malchiodi of 29 High Street, Deep River, Conn., said he had been at Oflas 64 with the AP war correspondent. The lieutenant said he dropped from 195 to 150 pounds eating German prison fare.

Typical of the men who spent some time at Limburg—a German prison camp recently taken by the First Army—before they were moved to Poland, was Pfc. Paul Thompson of Marysville, Ohio, who dropped from 198 pounds to 110 pounds in three months.

Later he said he escaped from the prison camp in Poland while the Germans were trying to move the prisoners back to the fatherland in the face of the swift Russian advance.

Saved By Girl

His right leg cut by shrapnel, Pfc. Thompson said he hobbled on for 10 days until a Polish girl found him and nursed him until he was able to continue his flight.

"She saved my life," he declared. "I'm going back to Poland some day and get her."

The Ohio private was joined by scores of others in his praise of the Poles.

Pfc. Walter W. Steinhaus of Sheboygan, Wis., experienced a German court martial along with his other troubles. He said he hit a guard and drew a three years, three months' sentence.

Pvt. Andrew Steranchak of 12 Oak Avenue, Shelton, Conn., went practically barefooted for weeks and when he found a pair of wooden shoes he really appreciated them.

And he too said what so many others did—"It was the Red Cross boxes that saved us."

Tech. Sgt. Charles Andrews of Phoenix, Ariz., said some of the men lost as much as 50 pounds in seven weeks, and also praised the Red Cross.

Three Connecticut men experienced what they described as a "Hell-on-wheels" ride while being transferred from one prison camp to another.

Sgts. Bramwell G. Phillips, 27, of 126 South Main Street, South Norwalk, George F. McNeil, 31, of Willimantic, and Thomas R. Lynch, 35, of 19 Park Street Norwich, lived to tell the story.

Sergeant Phillips said they "stood up for 23 days in a box car with 37 other guys and with a loaf of bread every four days for six men.

"If we thought the ride was Hell," he said, "there was even greater suffering when the boys learned that the freight cars up ahead were loaded with munitions.

"We were shuttled onto a siding for 11 days. Our cars were not marked to indicate that we were prisoners, so there was nothing to do but sit and pray while Allied planes zoomed and strafed our train."

ARMY ELIMINATES PLANNED BOOST IN TANK PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, April 10 — (AP) The war is going so well, the Army announced tonight, that it has decided not to complete 12 new tank plants.

These plants were scheduled to reach the peak of their operation in the last quarter of the year, but the Army now has decided it won't need them.

Existing Plants to Continue

But it was emphasized that existing tank plants will have to "continue to meet production schedules in full."

A War department statement said:

"American production is now at a level which assured American fighting men of a sufficient production rate to complete the war against Germany and provide the output necessary to supply forces to be used against Japan.

"The War department emphasizes that this action is not a cut-back in production but the elimination of a planned increase in tank output.

"Because most of the proposed operations would have been in critical labor areas this change in plans will ease the present and expected labor shortages in these areas.

"Four of the projected tank plants—Chrysler Corporation, Chrysler subcontractors, Ford Motor company, and General Motors—would have been in Detroit, Mich.

"Other plant expansions affected are: American Steel Foundries Cast Armor plant, East Chicago, Ind.; Ford Motor company, Dearborn, Mich.; General Motors, Fisher Body division, Flint, Mich.; Oilgear company and subcontractors, Milwaukee, Wis.; Ordnance Steel Foundry plant, Kuad Cities Tank Arsenal (International Harvester), both Bettendorf, Iowa; Waukesha Motor company, Waukesha, Wis.; and Standard Steel Spring company, Coraopolis, Pa."

Meantime, the Surplus Property board disclosed in its monthly report for February that eighty government-owned war plants and their sites, have been declared surplus or excess. They cost an aggregate of $552,474,000.

Of the 80 plants, 23 were on a stand-by basis for possible future use for the purpose for which they were built; 46 had been declared surplus, which means they are no longer needed and are ready for disposal, and 11 were being used as disposal center warehouses.

Some Declared Surplus

All of the plants which have been declared surplus or excess and which cost more than $15,000,000 each are Aluminum and Magnesium plants.

These included Basic Magnesium, Inc., Las Vegas, Nevada, which cost $133,428,000; Dow Magnesium company, Velasco, Texas, $54,885,000; Mathieson Alkali Works, Inc., Lake Charles, La., $47,011,000; Aluminum Company of America, Baton Rouge, La., $25,903,000; Aluminum Company of America, Los Angeles, $24,750,000.

Dow Magnesium company, Marysville, Michigan $23,586,000; Aluminum Company of America, Massena, New York $19,700,000; Dow Magnesium Company, Ludington, Mich., $18,450,000; Aluminum Company of America, Burlington, N. J., $17,357,000; Electro Metallurgical Company, Spokane, Wash., $16,173,000.

February disposal of plants and plant sites—none of which had been complete plants—totaled $1,094,000 (original cost). Sales brought $761,000, or 70 per cent of the cost of the property.

The principal sale in February was the purchase by the Buick division of General Motors of installations, fixtures, etc., at Melrose Park, Ill. These cost $770,000 and the sale price was $578,000.

Disposals of surplus property by the various disposal agencies totaled $35,289,000 in February, an increase of 32 per cent over January. Government-owned and controlled property disposed of by the War and Navy departments, however, declined 30 per cent to $36,923,000. Combined disposals of owning and disposal agencies was 12 per cent less than in January.

Bomber Hits Mountain

All on Board Are Killed as B-17 Crashes and Burns in South

KEESLER FIELD, Biloxi, Miss., April 10 (AP).—Ten men were killed late Sunday night twenty-five miles south of Knoxville, Tenn., when a B-17 bomber on a routine night combat training flight from Keesler Field crashed into the side of a mountain, the commanding officer of the Army Air Force Training Command station announced today.

A forest ranger spotted the plane burning after the crash from his lookout in the Smoky Mountains. The B-17 hit the side of the mountain at an altitude of 4,600 feet, 400 feet from the mountain's crest. All on board were killed.

The dead included Lieutenant David K. Crocker, twenty-eight years old, navigator instructor, son of Mrs. Ethel M. Crocker, of 15 Overlook Terrace, Maplewood, N. J.; Second Lieutenant Richard C. Henkel, twenty-six, pilot, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Henkel, 174 Adams Street, Delmar, N. Y., and Technical Sergeant Edwin W. Bill, twenty-nine, aerial engineer, son of Mrs. Frances Bill, Sag Harbor, L. I.

248 German Prisoners In Virginia Disciplined

Camp Pickett, Va., April 10 (AP)—The Army's "no work, no eat" policy as a method for disciplining unruly prisoners of war has been put into effect at the Lyndhurst branch camp near Waynesboro, following the refusal of 248 German prisoners of war, all naval men, to continue work.

Col. A. E. Potts, commanding officer of Camp Pickett, announced that the war prisoners had been placed on a diet of bread and water. He said the war prisoners contended they were not properly fed.

He asserted the prisoners of war were receiving the prescribed diet for men of their classification and added that the bread-and-water diet would continue until the war prisoners conformed to the routine set up for them.

Big Cuts In Numerous War Plants

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Announcement of big cuts in artillery ammunition production and a decision against completing twelve new tank plants combined tonight to reflect official pleasure at progress of the war.

Army ordnance men at Chicago announced the ammunition program change, and the War Department at Washington said the Army has decided it won't need the dozen tank plants which were not scheduled for peak operation until autumn.

The 1945 schedule now contemplates a ten per cent reduction in the entire artillery ammunition program authorized last December. That was at a time when the Rundstedt breakthrough made the situation dark on the Western front.

Would Avoid Hardships

The Chicago announcement said full consideration would be given to the need of guarding against losses or hardships to industry or labor when the ammunition cutbacks, estimated at nearly $200,000,000, are applied.

And the tank-plant statement said it was imperative that existing tank plants "will have to continue to meet production schedules in full."

A War Department statement said:

"American production now is at a level which assured American fighting men of a sufficient production rate to complete the war against Germany and provide the output necessary to supply forces to be used against Japan.

"The War Department emphasizes that this action is not a cut-back in production, but the elimination of a planned increase in tank output.

To Ease Labor Shortages

"Because most of the proposed operations would have been in critical labor areas, this change in plans will ease the present and expected labor shortages in these areas.

"Four of the projected tank plants — Chrysler Corporation, Chrysler subcontractors, Ford Motor Company and General Motors—would have been in Detroit.

"Other plant expansions affected are: American Steel Foundries cast armor plant, East Chicago, Ind.; Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Mich.; General Motors, Fisher body division, Flint, Mich.; Oilgear Company and subcontractors, Milwaukee, Wis.; ordnance steel foundry plant, Quad Cities Tank Arsenal (International Harvester), both Bettendorf, Iowa; Waukesha Motor Company, Waukesha, Wis., and Standard Steel Spring Company, Coraopolis, Pa."

Eighty Plants Surplus

Meantime, the Surplus Property Board disclosed in its monthly report for February that 80 Government-owned war plants and their sites, have been declared surplus or excess. They cost on aggregate of $552,474,000.

Of the 80 plants, 23 were on a stand-by basis for possible future use for the purpose for which they were built; 46 had been declared surplus, which means they are no longer needed and are ready for disposal, and eleven were being used as disposal-center warehouses.

SENATE PASSES BILL EXTENDING LEND-LEASE LAW

WASHINGTON, April 10—(AP) The Senate passed a one-year extension of Lend-Lease today after Vice President Truman joined in defeating, 40 to 39, a Republican amendment designed to make doubly sure that Lend-Lease ends when the shooting stops.

The bill, already passed by the House, now goes to President Roosevelt.

Taft Amendment Defeated

Administration officials have said there are no plans to use Lend-Lease for postwar relief and rehabilitation of foreign countries. Senators opposing the amendment offered by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told the Senate today it was superfluous and would hamstring orderly liquidation of the vast program.

When the roll was called on the Taft amendment, the vote was 39 to 39. Under Senate rules this defeated the amendment but Truman, exercising for the first time his privilege of voting when there is a tie, gave it the final knock on the head by voting "no" in an emphatic voice.

The extension measure then passed without a record vote.

It prolongs the life of the Lend-Lease law until June 30, 1946, but provides that nothing in the act shall be construed as authorizing the President to enter into an agreement with any foreign government for postwar relief, rehabilitation or reconstruction purposes.

Taft and others have argued that plans for relief and reconstruction should be made entirely separately from Lend-Lease and under the close control of Congress.

Vote on Party Lines

The division on the Taft amendment was on almost straight party lines. Senators Ellender of Louisiana, Johnson of Colorado, Overton of Louisiana and Wheeler of Montana were the only Democrats voting for the proposal, while Austin of Vermont and Wiley of Wisconsin, both members of the Foreign Relations committee, were the only Republicans voting against it.

The story would have been different except for a last minute change of votes by Senators McClellan (D-Ark) and Chavez (D-NM), who had voted "aye" but changed to "no."

Taft argued that a recent Lend-Lease contract with France obviously had been made for post-war purposes. He said he was not so much concerned with that particular instance as with the precedent it would establish.

Opposing Taft's amendment, Majority Leader Barkley declared that the language the Ohio Senator sought to delete only provided for the orderly liquidation of Lend-Lease. Senator George of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations committee, said some Senators might believe the President was going to misuse his powers under the act, but he added:

"I don't like to take that view. Adoption of the Taft amendment would destroy the liquidating provision in the original Lend-Lease act."

Senator Tydings (D-Md), who was paired in favor of the amendment on the decisive vote, declared "the blank check era ought to end with the cessation of hostilities."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), who supported Taft, said the language sought to be eliminated would permit a Lend-Lease agreement to be made 24 hours before the end of hostilities and continue for three years thereafter.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb) said he had heard "rumors" that a commitment of $8,000,000,000 had been made to Russia for reconstruction purposes. This Barkley categorically denied.

but Mr. Truman announced his opposition to the proposal in a loud voice.

The vote came after Senator Taft had charged that a house provision in the bill, which extends lend-lease operations

June 30, 1946, would have opened the way for use of lend-lease materials for post-war rehabilitation, relief and reconstruction.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, replied that the language Mr. Taft sought to strike out provided only for orderly liquidation of lend-lease goods after the war ends. Senator George (D.-Ga.) said the Taft proposal would have defeated the effort of Congress to prevent use of the goods for post-war purposes.

Truman Breaks Lend-Lease Tie

Casts Vote After Senate Splits 39 to 39 on Taft Curb on Liquidation of Supplies.

BULLETIN.

Washington, April 10 (A. P.).—The Senate passed and sent to the White House today legislation continuing lend-lease operations until June 30, 1946.

Washington, April 10 (A. P.).—Vice-President Truman broke a 39 to 39 Senate tie today to defeat an effort by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) to strip the lend-lease bill of a provision permitting post-war foreign liquidation of American supplies.

Mr. Truman cast his ballot, his first since he took the presiding officer's chair in January, when the tie vote was announced. Under Senate rules Senator Taft's amendment would have been defeated by the tie vote anyway,

COAL ACCORD FOLLOWS U.S. MINE SEIZURE

Bituminous Pact Agreed On After Roosevelt Acts In Wildcat Strikes

Washington, April 10 (AP)—A new contract for soft-coal miners was agreed on tonight a few hours after the Government took control of 23 mines.

The agreement, reached by operators and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, will go before a full negotiating committee for ratification tomorrow.

Nearly six weeks of negotiations were ended by the announcement of Ezra Van Horn, chairman of the bituminous wage conference, that the two sides had got together on a contract to supplant the one which expired March 31 and that its terms will be perfected by a subcommittee meeting at 1.30 P.M. tomorrow.

Full Committee To Meet

The full committee will meet then at 3.30 P.M. for final approval.

The Government stepped in to operate those mines affected by a wave of wildcat work interruptions which had partially closed plants turning out war-vital steel.

It acted while the negotiators plodded doggedly ahead in their deliberations. Van Horn's announcement came less than three hours after the Federal action.

President Roosevelt ordered Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, to take over any mines where stoppages exist or are threatened. Within an hour Ickes followed through and the Government thus was back in the coal business for the fourth time since the country declared war.

Details of the new wage contract were not officially disclosed but it was reported that inside miners now receiving $8.50 a day basic wage will receive $10.

Lewis Victory Seen

This meant the operators had acceded to Lewis's demands for a seven-hour day with time and a half for all other time spent underground except a fifteen-minute lunch period.

This was the proposal of Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, on the main wage demand of the miners. It was frankly regarded as a swap for the 10-cent a ton royalty which Lewis discarded in the heat of the negotiations.

Miss Perkins's suggestion that the contract be terminated in one year, instead of on twenty days' notice as Lewis proposed apparently was accepted.

Vacation payment of $75, as a compromise for Lewis's demand of $100 and the old agreement on $50, also was accepted, according to reliable information.

Differentials Estimated

In place of Lewis's demand for differentials of 10 cents an hour and 15 cents an hour for the second and third shifts, respectively, the agreement, so far as could be learned, called for 4 cents and 6 cents per hour.

On the controversial foremen's issue, the reported agreement allowed for exemption from United Mine Workers membership of a superintendent, a mine foreman and a fire boss—in other words, all but three supervisory employés at each mine would be brought into direct membership in the United Mine Workers.

The union disclaimed all responsibility for the strikes. Lewis had agreed to extension of the old contract until May 1, but in the field thousands of miners were idle.

Although the presidential order authorizes Ickes to call upon the Secretary of War to take such action "as he may deem necessary or desirable" to protect employés and mines, an Interior Department spokesman said no call for army assistance was contemplated.

Seized Mines In 7 States

The seized mines are in seven states. The greater part of the nation's 3,478 mines have remained in operation.

Ickes took these steps:

1. Issued an order takng possession of idle soft-coal mines in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Tennessee, Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Alabama.

2. Ordered those mines to be opened for work Thursday morning.

3. Designated executive heads of the mining company as Federal operating managers.

4. Instructed the Federal managers to raise the United States flag over their pits and to post Government take-over notices.

5. Called upon the mine workers to return to their jobs and keep coal moving on schedule to speed the winning of the war.

6. Made applicable again regulations issued during the 1943 Government operations.

"Stopping work at this time is intolerable and unpatriotic," Ickes said in a statement. "It is threatening the production of munitions and war equipment just when our armies need our full support to win victory in Europe."

Steel Output Reduced

"Suspension of operations in mines serving the iron and steel industry is already estimated to be cutting into steel production at a rate which represents approximately 100,000 tons of steel output weekly.

"The War Production Board has informed my office that thirteen blast furnaces for the production of pig iron and 31 open-hearth furnaces where iron is turned into steel are closed today. Other plants will be affected similarly unless the production of coal is resumed immediately.

"Obviously, a continuation of this situation would seriously hamper within a very short time the output of munitions vital to the progress of the war.

"The first job is to get the coal moving again.

"Every man connected with this industry should know that coal, in the form of steel, explosives, equipment, industrial energy and transportation is a fundamental part of practically every action of our fighting men. Coal must move on schedule.

"Every ounce of production strength must be used to reduce the threatening coal deficit of 40,000,000 tons. Even when German military resistance collapses we shall have a tough job ahead to beat the Japs.

"To falter now in coal production might cost us an early victory in Europe and prolong the fighting of the war in the Pacific."

The presidential executive order said Mr. Roosevelt had found that, as a result of existing or threatened strikes and other labor disturbances, operations had been interrupted or were threatened with interruption.

The coal produced by such mines is required for the war effort, he said, and that effort "will be unduly impeded or delayed by such interruptions."

Ickes, in his capacity as Solid Fuels Administrator, will run the mines. But the executive order said he was to permit the managements to continue with their functions "to the maximum degree possible consistent with the aims of this order."

60-Day Limit Set

The Secretary is to give the mines back to private management as soon as he determines that Government operation no longer is needed for "the successful prosecution of the war."

In no event, the President directed is Government control to last more than 60 days after the restoration of the productive efficiency of any seized mine.

Terms and conditions of employment in effect at the time of Government possession are to be continued, subject to terms of the War Labor Disputes Act.

Ickes is permitted, however, to make adjustments in line with economic stabilization policies, after negotiation with employé representatives and approval by the War Labor Board.

The Executive order said the Secretary "shall make employment available and provide protection to all employés" and to all persons seeking work, so far as they are needed, at the affected mines.

In carrying out the presidential order, Ickes is to act with the assistance of any public or private "instrumentalities or persons" he may designate

20,000 AWAY FROM WORK

Other Industries Than Mines Involved In Strikes

New York, April 10 (AP)—Government seizure of soft-coal mines topped developments on the labor front today as more than 20,000 workers in other industries stayed away from work.

Back-to-worrk movements, however, ended labor disputes in Kansas City, Akron, Ohio, and Ottumwa, Iowa. In Detroit, where there were nine war plants idle because of disputes, one settlement was announced.

But in Yonkers, N.Y., a new walkout developed affecting 5,500 employes of the Alexander Smitth & Sons Carpet Company, Inc., producing cotton duck and woolen blankets for the armed forces. There the United Textile Workers demanded a wage increase for workers in the lower pay bracket.

NLRB Takes Action

The National Labor Relations Board, meanwhile, wired representatives of 1,500 employés that a work stoppage in a Lake Charles (La.) 100-octane gasoline plant

"must be terminated immediately." The board said it understood the stoppage was in protest against what workers termed exorbitant rents charged by a private contractor.

In Detroit, strikes and walkouts were affecting production of military tires, motors and other war matériel. These included: 180 women out at the United States Rubber Plant; 700 at the Detroit gear division of Borg-Warner Corporation, and 5,000 in three plants of Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company.

Inspectors Settle Strike

A strike of 100 inspectors at Packard Motor Company in protest over the reduction of the inspection staff which made 4,000-employés idle was settled at a WLB hearing.

Elsewhere there were signs of returning industrial peace.

The off-and-on, six-day-old stoppage of 300 mixing-machine operators affecting 7,000 employés of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company Plant No. 1, Akron, ended when members of the CIO United Rubber Workers voted to negotiate grievances with the company resulting from discharge of a union committeeman operator.

Prisoner Use Canceled

An official of United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America (CIO) announced that an army order canceling use of German war prisoners as workmen brought to an end a protest walkout which began April 2 at the North Kansas City plant of the United States Gypsum Company.

At Ottumwa, Iowa, 3,000 employés of the John Morrell & Co. meat-packing plant, idle since last Thursday, agreed to return to work and await settlement of seniority issues by the WLB.

Ward Accuses Army Officers

Chicago, April 10 (AP)—Montgomery Ward & Co. made complaints of misconduct today regarding army officers occupying its seized stores at San Rafael, Cal., and Jamaica, N.Y.

Harold L. Pearson, Ward vice-president and treasurer, made the complaints in a letter to Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, in charge of seized Ward properties.

Pearson declared that doors at San Rafael had been "left unlocked after business hours," that one night an army officer was "admittedly intoxicated when he reported for duty," and that another night "an intoxicated woman" was admitted to the store "in the company of an army private and an army lieutenant who also was intoxicated."

The letter made a number of complaints regarding the San Rafael store and similar complaints about events asserted to have occurred at Jamaica, N.Y., where the Army controls another of its stores.

Col. R. Parker Kuhn, in charge in General Byron's absence, said "the matter has been reported to the proper authorities at Washington and a full investigation will be made of the charges."

"Ward's has affidavits supporting each of these charges," Pearson's letter asserted. "Affidavits covering many other instances of reported misconduct could not be obtained because the witnesses have husbands or sons in the Army and fear retaliation."

TWO SENATORS ATTACK OPA

Wheeler And Lucas Sharp In Remarks At Hearing

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) declared today that OPA's handling of black markets smells of crookedness and Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) said its price policies make no sense to him.

In an angry session of the Senate Agriculture Committee investigating food shortages, the legislators swapped sharp remarks with Thomas I. Emerson, OPA's enforcement chief.

Wheeler had quoted reports that eighty per cent of the meat sold in most big cities is black-market meat.

"Don't Do Anything About It"

"Fantastic," said Emerson. He estimated that in New York perhaps ten per cent of meat sold at wholesale is black market, perhaps fifteen per cent at the retail level. Emerson added that OPA has the facts.

"If you know what the facts are," retorted Wheeler, "then there is something crooked in your office. The trouble is that when you are told about the situation you don't do anything about it."

Lucas expressed his poor opinion of OPA during testimony by Wilbur La Roe, counsel for smaller meat packers.

"OPA has been attempting to create the impression we have gotten together (on meat-price policies) when it is not true," said Le Roe. He accused the agency of "unwillingness to co-operate with the intent of Congress and with this committee."

The OPA-vs.-packers argument is an old one, boiling down to a difference of opinion on fairness. Some packers claim that the top legal prices they are permitted to receive are too low in comparison with the prices they have to pay. OPA has argued that the industry has been prospering generally and that a packer ceiling increase would not relieve meat shortages.

Thomas Asks For Names

Senator Lucas commented on the case against OPA, as summarized by La Roe: "I just can't understand their attitude in this crisis—to quibble over a few dollars."

Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) directed Emerson to put into the record the names of those "responsable for this situation, beginning with yourself."

Emerson replied that meat prices were the responsibility of James C. Brownlee, Chester Bowles, deputy to OPA administrator, and John Madigan, OPA meat expert.

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) joined the two Democratic senators in jumping on OPA. Wherry said he knew of chickens selling for 75 cents a pound in Washington and "I can tell you where" ration points are on sale at $8 a thousand.

Men Called "Academic"

"I've come to the conclusion that most of your men are academic and don't know what they are talking about," Wherry told Emerson.

Emerson agreed with Wherry that there is a larger black market this year than last.

He testified that OPA recently seized 50,000,000 counterfeit red ration points in Chicago, following drastic action against counterfeiters in New York and Boston.

"By and large we feel the counterfeit problem is under control," he said.

3,200 OPA Agents

Emerson told the committee OPA has 3,200 enforcement agents and is trying to get 300 more. He said it would take a much larger staff to enforce OPA regulations than it does to find out what is going on.

Senator Thomas told a reporter that only an aroused public opinion can do much about illegal meat sales. He said:

"You can't prosecute the whole United States. Unless the people become aroused, you are going to have a complete breakdown of OPA controls."

Comment And Advice

OPA announced, meanwhile, that the primary aim of the new meat-allocation program it is preparing will be to channel more meat through Federally inspected packing houses.

This objective, the agency reported, was outlined at a Monday meeting attended by representatives of all major segments of the meat industry. The session was called by OPA to obtain comment and advice from the industry.

Another purpose of the program is to encourage more slaughterers to enlist full or partial Federal inspection, OPA said. Only Federally inspected meat may be transported across states lines.

"Channeling a more normal portion of the total meat supply through Federally inspected plants should make more meat available for the armed forces and for civilians in areas where little or no slaughtering is done and where civilians are largely dependent on Federally inspected meats," OPA told the industry representatives.

ALUMINUM NEED ROSE TOO FAST

Batt Denies Aid to Canada Slowed Home Industry.

Washington, April 10 (A. P.).—Nothing this country did for Canadian aluminum production handicapped domestic production, William L. Batt, vice-chairman of the War Production Board, told a Senate committee today.

Batt, first of several Government agency heads to testify before the small business committee on the United States participation in the Shipshaw plant of the Canadian Aluminum Company, said the aluminum needs of this nation grew so rapidly that power needs could not keep up with them.

About 150 kilowatts of power already was available for the Canadian plant, he said, when this country loaned more than 100,000,000 to expand the plant. "The project," he declared, "was well under way; it could be rounded out."

"No material intended for any United States power project was ever diverted for Shipshaw," Batt said.

Representative De Lacy (D.-Wash.) has said there was a general understanding in the Northwest that facilities supplied to Canada could have been used at the Bonneville and Grand Coulee. He declared also that materials supplied by this country to the Canadian project represented not more than 4 per cent of the entire cost of the entire Canadian development. No priorities were withheld for domestic plants, because of Shipsaw, he added.

Another consideration for aiding the Canadian project, Batt said, was the need of additional power for the Massena plant of the Aluminum Company of America. This plant, he said, already was using Canadian power but Canada refused to increase the power load on the ground that her domestic needs would be handicapped. He also declared that the War Production Board was "following the lead given us by President Roosevelt and the Canadian Prime Minister in the Hyde Park agreement of April 20, 1941."

The agreement, he said, specifically pointed out the opportunity to take advantage of existing and potential capacity in Canada for the speedy production of certain munitions, materials, aluminum and ships.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., April 10 (AP)—The United States submarine Obax was launched today at the Portsmouth Navy Yard. It was sponsored by Mrs. John E. Fogarty, wife of Representative John E. Forgarty of Rhode Island.

Navy Okays Wearing Of Philippine Ribbons

Washington, April 10 (AP)—The Navy today authorized members of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard who served in the Philippines to wear the campaign ribbons newly created by the Philippine Government.

They are the Philippine Defense Ribbon and the Philippine Liberation Ribbon.

Unit Commendation To 1st Marine Brigade

Washington, April 10 (AP)—The Navy Unit Commendation Ribbon for outstanding heroism during the invasion of Guam has been awarded the 1st Provisional Marine Brigade by Secretary Forrestal.

This is the first Marine Corps unit to receive the new award.

The 1st Marine Brigade is now the 6th Marine Division, another combat team having been added.

The brigade was under command of Maj. Gen. Samuel Shepherd, Jr.

Nazi U-Boat Activity Bogs Down in March

Washington, April 10—(AP)—New-type Nazi U-boats apparently have been penned in by Allied bombings and mine laying.

As a result German underwater raiders sank fewer Allied merchantmen last month than the "moderate number" sent to the bottom in February. U-boat casualties "were again severe."

A joint Anglo-American statement reporting this last night added that Russian capture of Danzig helped "cut off the evil at its source."

Hood River Post Restores Jap Names To Its Honor Roll

Hood River, Ore., April 10—(AP)—The names of 15 Japanese-American servicemen are back on the American Legion's Hood River honor roll.

The names, whose erasure "to show the Japanese we don't want them back," provoked a nation-wide controversy, were formally restored by the Hood River Post last night following a directive from the National Legion Commander.

The post eliminated a 16th who was dishonorably discharged from the service.

Five Prisoners Escape

Flee Ft. Leavenworth Barracks In Stolen Army Officers' Uniforms

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 10 (AP).—Five prisoners at the United States disciplinary barracks were sought today after overpowering their guard and five fellow prisoners and kidnaping a truck driver in making their escape. They fled from the post golf club, where they had been working. All were dressed in stolen Army officers' uniforms.

Their trail led to a farmhouse three miles north of Lawrence, where Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Weeks reported they had been tied up in a bedroom of their home and their car, a 1931 Model A Ford, stolen. Two children, sleeping, were not disturbed.

Sixth Man Identified In Famous Picture Of Iwo Flag-Raising

Washington, April 10—(AP)—Pfc. Franklin R. Sousley of Ewing, Ky., was identified today by the Marine Corps as the sixth man in Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal's historic Iwo Jima flag-raising picture.

Identification of Sousley, now dead, was withheld by the Marine Corps until his mother was notified of his death. Identity of the other five men in the picture was announced Sunday by the Marines.

Sousley, 19, was the son of Mrs. Goldie Price of Route 2, Ewing. The Marine Corps said he was killed while engaged in mopping-up operations in the northwest corner of Iwo Jima.

Sousley was the Marine standing at the extreme left in Rosenthal's picture which was taken as the American flag was raised on Mount Suribachi. Two other Marines in the picture also have since been killed and a Navy hospital corpsman who was a member of the group has been wounded, the Marine Corps disclosed Sunday.

Rosenthal's picture is being used as the symbol of the Seventh War Fund campaign.

YANKS TO PUSH THEIR SEARCH FOR NAZI GOLD

Washington, April 10—(AP)—Maybe the Germans did put all their gold in one salt mine but the United States Government isn't going to accept the story just because a German official or two said it was so.

The search will go on—that's the word from Washington today.

Some experts here are convinced Germany has a lot more of the yellow metal buried around the countryside than the $100,000,000 worth captured Saturday in a salt mine at Merkers.

Others, however, think the salt-mine hoard was the great bulk of the Hitler government's holding.

Ideas Vary

Inquiries at the Treasury Department, State Department, Foreign Economic Administration and Federal Reserve Board failed to produce any official willing to be quoted on the subject, but here are some facts and thoughts.

Before the war, the Nazis reported their central gold holdings as $29,000,000. This probably was a lie. Some U. S. experts think Germany had much more.

Even before the war, the Nazis seized gold in Czechoslovakia. In 1939 they grabbed gold in Poland. In 1940 they stole an estimated $20,000,000 of Belgian gold from the Bank of France. They ran out of Italy with an estimated $100,000,000 in gold. They looted the Yugoslav treasury.

In all, Germany must have had at least $500,000,000 worth of gold at one time.

Since then, of course, the Germans have spent a lot of it. They used it to buy goods in Switzerland, Sweden, Romania and other countries. They used some for espionage. How much they had to part with is where the experts disagree.

The United States owns $20,417,000,000 worth of gold. The total gold stock of the world is estimated at $35,000,000,000.

ESCAPE FOR MANY OF THE NAZI TROOPS SEEMED IMPOSSIBLE AS MALINOVSKY'S TROOPS DRIVING FROM THE EAST AND MARSHAL FEODOR I. TOLBUKHIN'S ARMY SWINGING BACK FROM THE TULLN BRIDGEHEAD WEST OF VIENNA, COMPRESSED THE DEFENDERS INTO THE EASTERN AND NORTHERN SECTIONS OF THE CITY. THE NARROW ESCAPE CORRIDOR TO BRUENN (BRNO) WAS UNDER HEAVY PRESSURE.

TOLBUKHIN ALSO WAS REPORTED BY BERLIN TO BE SENDING SOME ELEMENTS LANCING WESTWARD TOWARD ST. POELTEN, 28 MILES FROM VIENNA IN THE DIRECTION OF LINZ AND MUNICH.

THE MOSCOW NEWSPAPER, "EVENING MOSCOW," SAID THE VIENNA POPULATION WAS STARVING AND THAT WOMEN HAD BEEN STANDING IN LINES DEMANDING BREAD ALL DAY. THE DISPATCH ADDED THAT "DETACHMENTS OF STORM TROOPERS HAVE OPENED FIRE ON THE PEOPLE, SEEKING TO PUT DOWN THE THRONGS OF HUNGRY HOUSEWIVES."

THE NEWSPAPER SAID THE GERMANS HAD PLASTERED VIENNA WITH ANTI-ALLIED POSTERS BUT THE CIVILIANS WERE SCRATCHING THEM OUT AND BY NIGHT WERE HANGING AUSTRIAN NATIONAL BANNERS IN THE STREETS.

BERLIN CLAIMED THE GERMANS WERE DEFENDING THEIR LAIR WITH "WILD STUBBORNNESS" BUT MOSCOW DISPATCHES PICTURED THE CARVED UP GARRISON AS REDUCED TO "DISORGANIZED MOB FIGHTING."

THE RUSSIANS HAD LAUNCHED CONCENTRIC ATTACKS AGAINST THE CENTER WITH MOST BITTER FIGHTING REPORTED BY THE GERMANS SWIRLING AROUND THE FRANZ JOSEF RAILROAD STATION AND GENERAL HOSPITAL. RED TROOPS HAD ENTERED THE WORLD-FAMED PRATER, VIENNA'S BIG AMUSEMENT PARK BETWEEN THE DANUBE AND DANUBE CANAL.

THE GERMAN HOPE WAS TO KEEP OPEN THE FLORIDSDORF BRIDGE. THE RUSSIANS ALRE ADV

HAD OCCUPIED THE PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, TOWN HALL, POLICE HEADQUARTERS, TELEGRAPH OFFICES AND OTHER CIVIC CENTERS.

MALINOVSKY'S MEN, PUSHING ACROSS MARCHFELD PLAIN ALONG THE NORTH BANK OF THE DANUBE WERE REPORTED TO HAVE OVERRUN ASPERN AIRPORT ON THE NORTHEASTERN EDGE OF THE CAPITAL, THUS DENYING THE NAZIS A CHANCE TO ESCAPE BY AIR. HIS COLUMNS THEN SWUNG NORTHWESTWARD TO BATTLE GERMAN TANKS AND SELF-PROPELLED GUNS IN THE FLORIDSDORF AND JEDLESEE SUBURBS THROUGH WHICH RUNS THE AUTOBAHN TO BRUENN.

TOLBUKHIN'S TROOPS CIRCLING THE CITY ON THE NORTHWEST WERE SAID TO HAVE CUT BACK SOUTH TO CAPTURE STRONG LINES NEAR NUSZDORF, CROSS THE DANUBE AND TAKE UP THEIR FIGHT AGAINST THE CORRIDOR. MOSCOW SAID TOLBUKHIN HAD SMASHED HIS WAY INTO THE LEOPOLDSTADT DISTRICT BEYOND THE CENTER OF THE CITY BETWEEN THE VIENNA CANAL AND THE DANUBE. A GERMAN SS WAR CORRESPONDENT, SPEAKING FROM VIENNA, TOLD OF THE PENETRATION INTO NUSZDORF AND SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD "WIDENED TO A GREAT EXTENT" THE BREACHES MADE IN DEFENSE LINES MONDAY.

MUSCOVITES CELEBRATED THE FALL OF KOENIGSBERG ALTHOUGH BERLIN CLAIMED THERE WERE REMNANTS OF ITS PROUD GARRISON STILL RESISTING INSIDE THE RUINED CITY. THE BERLIN WAR COMMENTATOR SAID THE PORT OF PILLAU, AT THE TIP OF SAMLAND PENINSULA 25 MILES WEST OF KOENIGSBERG, WAS STILL IN GERMAN HANDS ALTHOUGH UNDER CONTINUOUS RUSSIAN FIRE.

THE OFFICIAL RUSSIAN NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA PAID HIGH TRIBUTE TO THE RUSSIAN COMMANDERS WHO REDUCED THE EAST PRUSSIAN FORTRESS AND THE SOVIET ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR ASSERTED FOR "ALMOST SEVEN CENTURIES THIS BANDIT TOWN HAS STOOD ON THE BALTIC RAVAGING AND RUINING THE TRIBES OF LITHUANIA" BUT "FROM NOW ON AND FOREVER MORE EAST PRUSSIA, THE BIRTHPLACE OF THE ARROGANT AGGRESSORS AND WOULD-BE ENSLAVERS OF THE SLAVS, HAS BEEN SEPARATED FROM GERMAN SOIL."

MOSCOW DISPATCHES DESCRIBED THE KOENIGSBERG STORMING IN DETAIL, TELLING HOW RED TOMMY GUNNERS, IN MEDIEVAL FASHION, SCALED THE FORTRES WALLS WITH LADDERS AND MOWED DOWN ITS DEFENDERS. ITS FORTIFICATIONS WERE DESCRIBED AS AMONG THE GREATEST IN EUROPE.

RED STAR, RECALLING THAT PETER THE THIRD GAVE KOENIGSBERG BACK TO GERMANY AFTER THE RUSSIANS HAD OCCUPIED IT FROM 1758 TO 1762, SAID THAT THIS TIME KOENIGSBERG DEFINITELY WOULD NOT BE RETURNED TO THE GERMANS.

THE FALL OF KOENIGSBERG WAS A TREMENDOUS BLOW TO GERMAN MATERIAL STRENGTH AS WELL AS IN MANPOWER. ALLIED PILOTS SCORED 176 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED MONDAY AND MONDAY NIGHT -- AND THEY NAILED 152 OF THESE ON THE GROUND.

DURING THE NIGHT NEARLY 600 ROYAL AIR FORCE HEAVY BOMBERS HEAPED 3,000 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON THREE SHIPBUILDING YARDS AT KIEL, WHICH HAVE BEEN USED TO ASSEMBLE PREFABRICATED SUBMARINES.

THE AIR MINISTRY DESCRIBED THE YARDS AS THE MOST IMPORTANT IN GERMANY FOR U-BOAT CONSTRUCTION. THEY HAVE BEEN HIT REPEATEDLY IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS.

APR 11 1945

A206

THE YARDS ARE AMONG THE NEAREST TO THE ENEMY'S MAIN U-BOAT BASES IN NORWAY. THE KIEL ATTACK WAS THE RAF'S THIRD AGAINST U-BOAT YARDS AND SHELTERS IN 24 HOURS.

MOSQUITO PLANES THROUGH THE NIGHT CONTINUED THEIR "BUS SERVICE" TRIPS TO BERLIN TO UNLOAD TWO-TON BLOCKBUSTERS AND ATTACKED OTHER OBJECTIVES FROM PLAUEN, NEAR THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER TO HAMBURG.

JUST HOW SERIOUS THE GERMAN AIR FORCE'S PLIGHT HAS BECOME WAS ESTABLISHED MONDAY BY TWO EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER PILOTS WHO DETECTED "PARKING LOTS" IN THE WOODS, IN WHICH THE GERMANS HAD CONCEALED MANY PLANES.

LT.COL.ELWYN G.RIGHETTI, OF SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF., ESTIMATED AT LEAST 120 PLANES WERE CONCENTRATED IN ONE SUCH SPOT, "WELL CAMOUFLAGED AND PARKED WINGTIP TO WINGTIP."

RIGHETTI CALLED IN AMERICAN FIGHTERS IN THE VICINITY, AND THEY STRAFED THE AREA UNTIL THEY RAN OUT OF AMMUNITION, ESTIMATING THEY HAD KNOCKED 83 OF THE PLANES TO PIECES OR SET THEM AFIRE.

RETURNING BOMBER CREWS WERE ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT THE RESULTS OF THEIR HITS. THEY DESCRIBED THEIR BOMB PATTERNS AS SOME OF THE BEST THEY EVER LAID DOWN.

COL. ALBERT SHOWER, 1142 WABAN HILL, MADISON, WIS., A COMMAND PILOT, SAID "OUR FORMATION CAME IN ON ITS RUN AS A NUMBER OF ENEMY FIGHTERS, POSSIBLY 30 OR 40, WERE ATTEMPTING TO TAKE OFF. WE BLANKETED THE FIELD WITH 500 AND 1,000-;9-1

'-07:;?'. THE ENEMY PLANES

BLANKETED THE FIELD WITH 500 AND 1,000-POUND BOMBS. THE ENEMY PLANES DID NOT GET OFF."

SGT. RAYMOND BLACKSON, 113 SUMNER AVE., VANDERGRIFT, PA., A FORTRESS WAIST GUNNER ON THE SWEEP OVER THE ORANIENBURG ORDNANCE DEPOT, SAID:

"I SAW THE SILVER GERMAN JET PLANES HITTING EACH GROUP AS THEY CAME OFF THE TARGET, ANDOTHEN THREE SILVER JETS CAME IN ON US LIKE BULLETS. AS THEY PASSED I SAW ALL THREE GET SHOT DOWN."

LONDON--FIRST ADD FIRST LEAD AERIAL (BY HENRY B.JAMESON) X X X

THE AMERICAN DAYLIGHT FORCE WAS MADE UP OF MORE THAN 1,300 HEAVY BOMBERS AND 850 FIGHTERS. THE PLANES LASHED AT SEVEN AIRFIELDS SOUTH AND WEST OF BERLIN AND ALSO BLASTED THE GERMAN AIR FORCE'S EXPERIMENTAL FIELD AND LARGE ORDNANCE DEPOT IN THE SAME GENERAL AREA.

THE RAF BLOW AT KIEL WAS THE THIRD MAJOR STRIKE AT THE NORTH SEA U-BOAT BASE IN LESS THAN 24 HOURS.

THE AIRFIELDS HIT BY THE AMERICAN PLANES WERE AT LARZ, BURG, BRIEST, NEURUPPIN, ZERBST AND PARCHIM, ALL WITHIN A 70-MILE ARC AROUND THE WEST SIDE OF THE GERMAN CAPITAL.

OTHER TARGETS INCLUDED THE ORDNANCE SUPPLY CENTER OF ORANIENBURG AND THE EXPERIMENTAL TRAINING AIRFIELD NEAR RECHLIN.

THESE ATTACKS BROUGHT TO 43 THE NUMBER OF GERMAN AIRFIELDS BOMBED BY THE U.S.EIGHTH AND NINTH AIR FORCES IN THE LAST FOUR DAYS, DURING WHICH MORE THAN 360 ENEMY PLANES WERE REPORTED DESTROYED IN THE AIR AND ON THE GROUND.

THE ATTACK CAME ONLY A FEW HOURS AFTER BRITISH LANCASTER BOMBERS HIT SUBMARINE SHELTERS AT HAMBURG WITH 22,000 AND 12,000-POUND BOMBS FOR THE SECOND TIME DURING THE DAY. THE AIR MINISTRY SAID MANY LARGE FIRES WERE OBSERVED AFTER THE NIGHT RAIDERS HIT THREE KIEL YARDS.

ALLIED BOMBING NOW APPARENTLY HAS SCOTCHED A PLANNED RESUMPTION OF THE GERMAN U-BOAT OFFENSIVE.

FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN THREE MORE GERMAN PLANES DURING THE NIGHT, BRINGING THE ALLIED SCORE TO 357 ENEMY AIRCRAFT DESTROYED IN THREE DAYS. AMERICAN FIGHTERS HAD A STRAFING PICNIC YESTERDAY AT SCATTERED GERMAN FIELDS, DESTROYING 136 NAZI PLANES ON THE GROUND.

RAF MOSQUITOS AGAIN PAID THEIR NIGHTLY CALL ON BERLIN, OTHERS RAIDED OBJECTIVES AT PLAUEN, NEAR THE BORDER OF EZECHOSLOVAKIA; STADE AND HAMBURG.

THE BRITISH LOST SI

RAIDED OBJECTIVES AT PLAUEN, NEAR THE BORDER OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA; STADE AND HAMBURG.

THE BRITISH LOST SIX PLANES IN OPERATIONS LAST NIGHT AND YESTERDAY. THE U.S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE REPORTED TEN BOMBERS AND FOUR FIGHTERS MISSING FROM A FORCE OF MORE THAN 2,000 HEAVY BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS PUT INTO THE AIR YESTERDAY.

WITH ONLY ENOUGH FUEL TO GET PLANES IN THE AIR AT INFREQUENT INTERVALS, THE GERMANS NOW ARE TRYING TO SAVE THE IDLE AIRCRAFT BY HIDING THEM ALONG HIGHWAYS AND IN FIELDS FAR REMOVED FROM REGULAR BASES.

"WE SAW ALL TYPES OF PLANES, A WELL CAMOUFLAGED AND PARKED WING TIP TO WING TIP, IN THE WOODS LINING THE HIGHWAY," SAID LT.COL. ELWYN G.RIGHETTI, SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF.

HE ESTIMATED THAT AT LEAST 120 PLANES OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS WERE CONCENTRATED THERE.

RIGHETTI CALLED IN ALL THE AMERICAN FIGHTERS IN THAT VICINITY. THEY STRAFED THE AREA UNTIL THEY RAN OUT OF AMMUNITION. AT LEAST 83 PARKED MACHINES WERE KNOCKED TO PIECES OR SET AFIRE.

RESIDENTS OF RIGA AND ITS SUBURBS WERE TAKEN INTO NEARBY FORESTS AND MASSACRED, THE REPORT ASSERTED. IN BIKERNEK FOREST ON RIGA'S OUTSKIRTS 46,500 CIVILIANS WERE SHOT. ONE WITNESS WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THAT THE BODIES OF THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN BORE TRACES OF TORTURE.

IN THE FIRST DAYS OF THE OCCUPATION OF LATVIA THE GERMANS DROVE JEWS INTO SYNAGOGUES, THEN SET THE PLACES OF WORSHIP AFIRE, THE REPORT SAID. IN OCTOBER, 1941, 35,000 JEWS WERE CONFINED BEHIND BARBED WIRE IN A RIGA GHETTO, AND THE NEXT MONTH "THE GERMANS PICKED OUT 4,500 ABLE-BODIED MEN AND 300 WOMEN, AND SHOT THE REST ON NOV.30 AND DEC.12, 1941."

A WITNESS DESCRIBING THE SHOOTING OF THE JEWS SAID "THE STREETS OF THE GHETTO BECAME RED WITH BLOOD. AS PEOPLE TRAVELED THEIR LAST ROAD, THE ROAD TO DEATH, GERMAN BEASTS SNATCHED SMALL CHILDREN FROM THEIR MOTHERS' HANDS, SEIZED THEM BY THE FEET AND KILLED THEM BY SMASHING THEM AGAINST POLES AND FENCES."

THE COMMISSION SAID 327,000 SOVIET PRISONERS OF WAR WERE TORTURED OR SHOT TO DEATH IN LATVIA, MANY AT STALAG 350 IN RIGA.

LONDON, APRIL 10-(AP)-MUSTANG AND THUNDERBOLT PILOTS OF THE U.S. EIGHTH AIRFORCE SHATTERED EIGHT AERIAL WARFARE RECORDS TODAY IN THEIR UNPRECEDENTED STRIKE AGAINST THE GERMAN AIR FORCE.

1. THEY DESTROYED 303 ENEMY PLANES ON THE GROUND AND IN THE AIR, UPSETTING THE EIGHTH AIRFORCE'S PREVIOUS RECORD OF 177 PLANES, SET LAST SEPT. 5.

2. THEY DESTROYED 284 PLANES ON THE GROUND BY STRAFING, AGAINST A PREVIOUS 147 DESTROYED LAST SEPT. 5.

3. ONE GROUP, THE 339TH MUSTANG GROUP, DESTROYED 100 GERMAN PLANES ON THE GROUND. THIS IS MORE PLANES THAN A SINGLE EIGHTH AIRFORCE GROUP HAS EVER DESTROYED ON THE GROUND IN A SINGLE DAY, AND MORE PLANES THAN ANY SINGLE GROUP HAS EVER DESTROYED BOTH ON THE GROUND AND IN THE AIR IN ANY SINGLE DAY.

THE PREVIOUS RECORD WAS SET LAST SEPT. 5 WHEN THE 56TH THUNDERBOLT GROUP DESTROYED 70 PLANES ON THE GROUND FOR A COMBINED TOTAL OF 79 DESTROYED ON THE GROUND AND IN THE AIR.

4. ONE SQUADRON IN THE 339TH GROUP DESTROYED 62 PLANES ON THE GROUND, UPSETTING THE PREVIOUS FIGURE OF 47 ENEMY PLANES.

5. THE 56TH GROUP DESTROYED 39 PLANES ON THE GROUND AND TWO IN THE AIR TO BECOME THE FIRST EIGHTH AIRFORCE GROUP TO DESTROY MORE THAN 900 ENEMY AIRCRAFT. THE GROUP'S TOTAL IS NOW 904, INCLUDING 684 DESTROYED IN THE AIR AND 220 ON THE GROUND.

6. LT.COL.JOSEPH THURY, ST.PAUL, MINN., DESTROYED FOUR PLANES ON THE GROUND, BRINGING HIS STRAFING TOTAL TO 18 1/2 PLANES AND BECOMING THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE'S LEADING ACTIVE FIGHTER PILOT IN GROUND VICTORIES.

7. OF 21 PLANES SHOT DOWN IN AERIAL COMBAT, 20 WERE GERMAN JET-PROPELLED FIGHTERS, THE EIGHTH AIRFORCE'S BIGGEST SINGLE DAY BAG OF THE PROPELLORLESS CRAFT.

8. LT.COL.JOHN LANDERS, JOSHUA, TEX., AND MAJ.ARCHIE TOWER, WINTHROP, N.Y., EACH DESTROYED EIGHT ENEMY PLANES ON THE GROUND. THE OLD RECORD FOR PLANES DESTROYED ON THE GROUND IN ONE DAY BY ONE MAN WAS SEVEN, ALTHOUGH ONE PILOT PREVIOUSLY DESTROYED SIX PLANES ON THE GROUND AND SHOT DOWN TWO OTHERS IN ONE DAY.

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER STATION, ENGLAND, APRIL 10-(AP)-EIGHTH AIRFORCE FIGHTER PILOTS RETURNED FROM WRECKING 284 GERMAN PLANES ON THE GROUND TODAY DECLARED THAT THEY COULD HAVE BOOSTED THAT SCORE TWOFOLD IF THEIR SUPPLY OF GASOLINE AND AMMUNITION HAD NOT BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LT.JOHN DUNCANN KOKOMO, IND., SAID THAT HE SAW ABOUT 200 ENEMY AIRCRAFT IN A "PARKING LOT" AMONG SOME TREES ABOUT A MILE AWAY FROM THE NEURUPPIN AIRDROME IN THE BERLIN AREA.

"I SWEPT OVER AND BLEW UP THREE OF THEM AND DAMAGED THREE MORE," HE SAID. "I FINALLY LEFT WHEN MY AMMUNITION WAS EXHAUSTED."

SOME PILOTS ALSO SPOKE OF SURPRISINGLY LIGHT FIRE FROM GERMAN GROUND GUNNERS.

"A FIELD AT WITTSTOCK WAS A BEAUTIFUL LAYOUT WITH SIX OR EIGHT ADMINISTRATIVE BUILDINGS AND AT LEAST 75 PLANES OF VARIOUS TYPES," SAID MAJ.ARCHIE TOWER, WINTHROP, N.Y., WHO DESTROYED EIGHT AIRCRAFT WHILE LEADING A MUSTANG SQUADRON WHICH WRECKED A TOTAL OF 62.

"WE PICKED UP A LITTLE BATTLE DAMAGE FROM MACHINEGUN FIRE," HE SAID, "BUT IT WAS MINOR, AND THERE WAS NO FLAK AT ALL."

LT.COL.JOHN LANDERS, JOSHUA, TEX., DESTROYED EIGHT PLANES ON THE GROUND, INCREASING HIS TOTAL TO 14 1/2 IN THE AIR AND 13 ON THE GROUND. SIX OF HIS AERIAL VICTORIES WERE JAPANESE PLANES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

"WE MUST HAVE CAUGHT THE ACK-ACK GUNNERS ASLEEP WHEN WE HIT THE WERNER AIRDROME SOUTHEAST OF BERLIN," HE SAID. "NOT A SHOT WAS FIRED UNTIL AFTER OUR FOURTH RUN OVER THE FIELD. AT ONE TIME, THE SMOKE WAS SO THICK WE WERE FLYING ON INSTRUMENTS WHEN WE CROSSED THE FIELD."

LANDERS' GROUP KNOCKED OUT AT LEAST 45 PLANES IN THESE ATTACKS.

LT.GEN.SIR MILES C.DEMPSEY'S DESERT RAT (7TH) ARMORED DIVISION FORMED A STRONG ASSAULT ARC AROUND THE SOUTH SIDE OF BREMEN AND THREATENED TO BURST LOOSE IN AN OUTFLANKING THRUST NORTH TO THE HELGOLAND BIGHT, 30 MILES AWAY, OR ACROSS THE WESER TO THE ELBE NEAR HAMBURG.

THE CORRIDOR NORTHEAST TO BREMEN ALREADY HAS BEEN SHOULDERED OUT AT LEAST 25 MILES WIDE BETWEEN WILDENHAUSEN AND THE WESER OPPOSITE VERDEN.

FARTHER EAST THE 11TH ARMORED AND SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISIONS DROVE ON PAST HANNOVER FROM THE NORTH, LEAVING THAT CITY OUTFLANKED AND NEARLY ENCIRCLED ON BOTH SIDES BY BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS. GERMAN RESISTANCE, HOWEVER, WAS STIFFER AT BOTH HANNOVER AND BREMEN.

THE LARGE GARRISON AT NIENBURG (11,200), NORTHWEST OF HANNOVER, SURRENDERED TO THE 11TH. THE TOMMIES THEN RAN INTO THE OPEN, CAPTURING LICHTENHORST, NIENHAGEN AND ESPERKE, ALL WEST OF THE LIENE RIVER.

ON THE 21ST ARMY GROUP LEFT FLANK, THE GERMANS STILL RESISTED
CANADIAN ATTEMPTS TO CUT ACROSS THE ISSEL RIVER IN HOLLAND. HASSALUNE, ROAD JUNCTION TEN MILES EAST OF THE EMS, FELL TO THE TROOPS OF THE 43RD WESSEX DIVISION, WHO DROVE TWO MILES EAST. THE GUARDS
ARMORED DIVISION ENTERED MEPPEL.

THE DESERT RATS' PENETRATION WITHIN A MILE OF WILDESHAUSEN ALREADY THREATENS THE MAIN ESCAPE ROUTE FOR GERMANS SOUTHWEST OF BREMEN--THE 7TH AND 8TH PARACUTE AND THE 15TH PANZER GRENADIER DIVISIONS.

THE BRITISH HAD A 11-MILE BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE LEINE RIVER, THE LINE THE GERMANS HOPE TO ESTABLISH ON ITS BANKS WAS TURNED HOPELESSLY.

THE NINTH ARMY'S 84TH DIVISION PUSHED ACROSS THE RIVER ALSO, LINKED UP WITH THE BRITISH SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION AND CLOSED WITHIN FOUR

THE SEVENTH ARMY OF LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH, HERO OF GUADALCANAL, GAINED FOUR TO SIX MILES ALONG VIRTUALLY ITS ENTIRE DIFFICULT, HILLY FRONT.

THE 45TH (THUNDERBIRD) DIVISION PUSHED THROUGH HASSAIN, FIVE MILES SOUTH OF CAPTURED KOENIGSHOFEN. THE THIRD DIVISION MOVED FORWARD IN THE AREA 12 MILES ABOVE THE BALLBEARING CENTER OF SCHWEINFURT, CLAMPED IN A VISE BY THE 12TH AND 14TH ARMORED DIVISIONS. THE 102ND CAVALRY GROUP WON POSITIONS 11 MILES SOUTHEAST OF SCHWEINFURT AND THE TENTH ARMORED (TIGER) DIVISION BROADENED AND STRENGTHENED ITS CORRIDOR SOUTHEASTWARD TO CRAILSHEIM, 42 MILES FROM THE DANUBE.

THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY CROSSED THE ENZ RIVER AND JABBED TO WITHIN NINE MILES OF STUTTGART (460,000).

ONLY SCATTERED CLOUDS WERE OVER THE FRONT AND THE DAY LOOKED AT LEAST AS GOOD AS YESTERDAY FOR ANOTHER AERIAL WHIPLASH.

APR 11 1945

THE FIRST AND NINTH ARMIES HAD WIDENED THE CORRIDOR EAST OF THE RUHR TRAP TO A DEPTH OF 50 TO 75 MILES AND ANY GERMAN HOPES OF A NAZI BREAKTHROUGH WERE LOST, IT WAS SAID OFFICIALLY.

NORTH AND SOUTH OF DUDERSTADT, 140 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN, INFANTRY AND TANKS MOVED UP ON A LINE FOR STEADY GAINS.

USE OF BREMEN, TOO, MIGHT PROVE DIFFICULT FOR AS EARLY AS MARCH REPEATED ALLIED BOMBING WAS REPORTED TO HAVE DESTROYED HALF THAT CITY OF 342,306.

THE CANADIANS ESTABLISHED FURTHER CONTACT WITH ALLIED AIRBORNE TROOPS OPERATING IN A WIDE AREA SOUTH OF THE NORTH NETHERLANDS CITY OF GRONINGEN (120,000).

THE 12TH MANITOBA DRAGOONS REACHED AIRBORNE TROOPS NORTH OF CAPTURED COEVORDEN. THE SECOND CANADIAN DIVISION ADVANCED FIVE MILES, CLEARED TWO TOWNS AND TOOK 300 CAPTIVES BEYOND THE ALMELO-ZWOLLE HIGHWAY NORTHEAST OF DEVENTER. THE GERMANS WERE PULLING BACK BEHIND THE ISSEL RIVER BETWEEN ZWOLLE AND DEVENTER.

THE THIRD CANADIAN DIVISION ENTERED THE OUTSKIRTS OF DEVENTER (40,309), MAIN ISSEL CROSSING FOR V-BOMB SUPPLIES TO THE LAUNCHING PLATFORMS BETWEEN ROTTERDAM AND THE HAGUE. THE GERMANS DEFENDED THE TOWN RESOLUTELY.

IN A FOUR-MILE CANADIAN ADVANCE, GEN.HENRY CRERAR'S TROOPS REACHED BEEKHUSEN, 27 MILES FROM EMDEN.

THE GERMANS AT THE EXTREME SOUTH STILL CLUNG TO THE ONE SURVIVING PORTION OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE SOUTH OF KARLSRUHE, BUT FRENCH FIRST ARMY TROOPS WERE OUTFLANKING THEM. BRACKENHEIM, SOUTHWEST OF INVESTED HEILBRONN, FELL.

APR 11 1945

ANOTHER 5,000 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN FROM THE RUHR POCKET YESTERDAY BY THE FIRST AND NINTH ARMIES WHICH PRESSED INWARD FROM THREE TO FIVE MILES FROM THE SOUTH, EAST AND NORTH. HOUSE FIGHTING ERUPTED IN THE RUHR INDUSTRIAL CITY OF CASTROP, SIX MILES NORTHWEST OF DORTMUND. NINTH ARMY TROOPS REACHED THE RUHR RIVER EAST OF ESSEN.

THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THE AMERICANS HAD PUSHED FARTHER EAST TOWARD THE ELBE FROM HILDESHEIM, 132 MILES FROM BERLIN AND 70 FROM THE ELBE CITY OF MAGDEBURG. THE GERMANS SAID "DEATH STAND" RESISTANCE WAS HOLDING THE AMERICANS IN THE RUHR AND THURINGIAN FOREST.

OF THE MAIN RIVER AREA BEHIND AMERICAN THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMY LINES, THE ENEMY COMMUNIQUE SAID:

"GERMAN UNITS WHICH REMAINED IN THE OCCUPIED AREA NOW ARE WAGING GUERRILLA WARFARE, INFLICTING HEAVY LOSSES."

BY ROBERT EUNSON
WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY, APRIL 10-(AP)-THE AMERICAN NINTH ARMY CAPTURED CENTURIES-OLD HANNOVER TODAY AND SWEPT ON TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF BRUNSWICK, BIG GERMAN MANUFACTURING CENTER JUST 105 MILES FROM BERLIN.

THE NINTH'S VETERAN 30TH INFANTRY DIVISION CAPTURED ALVESSE AND VECHELADE, FIVE MILES EAST OF BERLIN, PUTTING THEM 110 MILES FROM THE REICH CAPITAL.

THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION CRACKED ON THROUGH MOUNTAINS TO THE SOUTHEAST OF HANNOVER AND CAPTURED SALZGITTER, 10 MILES BELOW BRUNSWICK WHILE THE 83RD INFANTRY TOOK GOSLAR, ANOTHER 13 MILES FARTHER SOUTH.

HANNOVER, GERMANY'S 12TH LARGEST METROPOLIS, FELL TOMAJ. GEN. ALEXANDER R.BOLLING'S 84TH INFANTRY, THE DOUGHBOYS MAKING THE CAPTURE A CELEBRATION OF THE NEWS THAT THEIR COMMANDER'S SON, FIRST LT. ALEXANDER R.BOLLING, JR., HAD BEEN LIBERATED FROM A GERMAN PRISON CAMP TODAY.

THE ONCE PROUD CITY WAS 90 PER CENT RUINS, SHAPELESS PILES OF BRICK AND RUBBLE, AS THE RESULT OF FIVE YEARS OF STEADY BOMBING AIMED AT ITS RAILWAY YARDS, A CROSSROADS FOR THE MAIN BERLIN-TO-COLOGNE AND HAMBURG-TO-FRANKFORT LINES.

THE RAILSPLITTERS TOOK HANNOVER FROM THREE SIDES AFTER AN ARTILLERY BARRAGE HAD HAMMERED AWAY AT THE CITY OFF AND ON ALL MONDAY NIGHT. TWO BRIDGES ACROSS THE LEINE RIVER WERE SEIZED AND THE DOUGHBOYS CHARGED IN.

A WHOLE BATTALION HAD FILED BY A GERMAN MARK V TANK IN AN UNDERPASS WHEN AN INQUISITIVE SOLDIER WALKED OVER AND PEERED INSIDE. HE SAW THE TANK CREW THAT WAS SUPPOSED TO BE GUARDING THE BRIDGE ALL SOUND ASLEEP. THE NONCHALANT SOLDIER TOSSED IN A HAND GRENADE AND THE COLUMN KEPT RIGHT ON MARCHING INTO TOWN.

ACTUALLY THERE WAS VERY LITTLE RESISTANCE INSIDE THE CITY ALTHOUGH A FEW FANATICAL BANDS OF NAZIS WERE STILL HOLDING OUT TO THE SOUTH.

THE BURGOMEISTER EITHER HAD FLED OR HAD GONE INTO HIDING AND THERE WAS NO ONE TO SURRENDER THE TOWN. THE AMERICANS JUST TOOK OVER.

THE GERMANS HAD NOTHING LARGER THAN A BATTALION FROM ANY ONE UNIT IN HANNOVER AND THE NAZIS EVEN TOSSED IN AN OUTFIT OF MARINE FUSILLIERS IN AN EFFORT TO MAKE A LAST DITCH STAND. THE MARINES APPARENTLY CAME FROM A NAVAL UNIT IN DENMARK. A DISMOUNTED PANZER GRENADIER UNIT WAS DISCOVERED AMONG THE CAPTIVES.

LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S NINTH ARMY HAS NOW GONE MORE THAN 175 MILES SINCE IT CROSSED THE RHINE 18 DAYS AGO. IN THAT TIME IT HAS CAPTURED 112,753 PRISONERS AND LIBERATED ABOUT 125,000 SLAVE LABORERS.

WHILE PUSHING DEEPER INTO GERMANY, THE NINTH ALSO DROVE SOUTH INTO THE RUHR POCKET AND TONIGHT WERE AT THE RUHR RIVER EAST OF ESSEN. IT REPORTED A THREE-MILE GAIN INTO THIS DENSELY POPULATED INDUSTRIAL AREA.

FIRST LEAD RUHR (250)
BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, APRIL 10-(AP)-PILOTS REPORTED TODAY THAT THE GERMANS WERE SENDING AIR TRANSPORTS INTO THE RUHR POCKET AT NIGHT IN AN APPARENT ATTEMPT TO EVACUATE KEY PERSONNEL AND EQUIPMENT IN THE NARROWING CIRCLE.

THE GERMANS WERE FLYING OLD THREE-ENGINED JUNKERS-52S. IT IS HIGHLY LIKELY THEY HAVE BEEN ABLE TO GET OUT SOME TOP RANKING GENERALS AND KEY PERSONNEL CAUGHT IN THE ENCIRCLING MOVE BY THE U.S. NINTH AND FIRST ARMIES.

AMERICAN NIGHT FIGHTERS INTERCEPTED ONE TRANSPORT LAST NIGHT AND SHOT IT DOWN NORTH OF ATTENDORN. PLANES WERE ARRIVING OVER THE RUHR AT INTERVALS OF ABOUT 15 MINUTES, COMING IN LOW OVER THE HILLS.

THERE ARE SEVERAL AIRFIELDS WHICH COULD BE USED.

AS OF MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT THE FIRST ARMY HAD TAKEN 18,667 PRISONERS FROM THE POCKET AND THE NINTH ARMY HAD COUNTED 17,897, WITH THOUSANDS MORE STILL INSIDE THE POCKET.

THE RATE AT WHICH PRISONERS WERE BEING TAKEN UPHOLDS THE PRESENT OFFICIAL ESTIMATE THAT THERE WERE SOME 100,000 GERMAN TROOPS CAUGHT IN THE RUHR, INCLUDING SERVICE ELEMENTS, ANTIAIRCRAFT TROOPS, COOKS, BAKERS AND ASSORTED ODDS AND ENDS REQUIRED TO KEEP THE COMBAT UNITS SUPPLIED.

RESISTANCE HAS BEEN LESSENING THE PAST FEW DAYS LEADING SOME MILITARY MEN TO THINK THAT PERHAPS THE ENEMY WAS PULLING BACK INTO A TIGHT LITTLE CIRCLE FOR A LAST-DITCH STAND.

INFANTRYMEN CAPTURED A BRIDGE ON THE LENNE RIVER NEAR OBERBERGE THIS MORNING AND THEN PUSHED ON TO THE TOWN OF VISBECK. THEY WERE ENGAGED BY DUG-IN INFANTRY, TANKS AND ANTITANK FIRE.

NINTH DIVISION INFANTRY PUSHED WEST ALMOST FIVE MILES SOUTH OF MECHEDE WHILE ARMORED UNITS DROVE 13 MILES WEST OF OBERKIRCHEN TO THE LENNE RIVER.

IN THE SOUTHERN PART OF THE POCKET AMERICAN TROOPS ADVANCED TO A LINE ROUGHLY SIX MILES NORTH OF THE SIEG RIVER.

WITH THE U.S. TENTH ARMORED DIVISION IN GERMANY, APRIL 10 -(AP)-LT.COL. W.E.ECKLES, OF VICTORIA, TEXAS, HAD AN UNUSUAL MESSAGE TO TRANSMIT TODAY.

THE MESSAGE WAS SIGNED "THE WOMEN OF HEIDELBERG" AND WAS ADDRESSED TO GEN.EISENHOWER. IT WAS FOUND AFFIXED TO THE BISMARCK STATUE IN HEIDELBERG.

THE MESSAGE SAID: "WE WANT THE RESURRECTION OF COMMON SENSE AND DECENCY X X X. GIVE US PEACE BASED ON WISDOM AND YOU WILL RECEIVE OUR ADMIRATION."

ECKLES AND HIS ASSOCIATES WERE PUZZLED AS TO WHETHER IT WAS SINCERE OR REPRESENTED A NAZI ATTEMPT TO PLAY ON AMERICAN SYMPATHIES.

SOME ONE WITH A VIVID IMAGINATION AT LEAST COMPOSED THE DOCUMENT. IT ASSERTS: "YOU WANTED TO ENTER HEIDELBERG AS A VICTOR AND ALL YOU FOUND WERE PEOPLE WITH SMILING FACES AND OPEN ARMS AND WHITE FLAGS FLYING FROM THEIR HOUSES. YOUR SOLDIERS WERE HUGGED AND KISSES AND SERVED WITH WINE."

IN VIEW OF THE ALLIED NON-FRATERNIZATION ORDERS, HUGGING, KISSING AND WINING WOULD SEEM OUT OF THE QUESTION.

CRAILSHEIM, GERMANY, APRIL 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-HEAVY TANKS, ARTILLERY AND INFANTRY COMPONENTS OF THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION LAY IN THIS BATTERED JUNCTION ON THE ROAD TO MUNICH TODAY, WAITING FOR THEIR THIRD MAJOR GERMAN COUNTERATTACK IN THREE DAYS.

THE AMERICANS REACHED CRAILSHEIM FRIDAY AFTER SLICING 25 MILES IN LESS THAN 10 HOURS AND CUTTING THE 17TH GERMAN SS DIVISION IN HALF.

"WE ARE READY FOR THEM," SAID BRIG.GEN.EDWIN PIBURN, COMMANDER OF COMBAT COMMAND A, WHICH WITH THE 63RD INFANTRY DIVISION TO THE NORTHEAS FORMS A POTENTIAL TRAP OF 60 SQUARE MILES FOR SEVERAL THOUSAND NAZI SOLDIERS.

"LET 'EM COME," SAID MAJ.CURTIS HANKINS, 300 WEST 13TH ST., PINE BLUFF, ARK., WHO COMMANDS THE DARING TASK FORCE WHICH SLASHED SOUTH IN A MANEUVER THAT MAY SPOIL ANY GERMAN DEFENSE LINE ALONG THE UPPER DANUBE.

"WE FOUGHT THEM OFF TWICE AND WE CAN FIGHT 'EM OFF AGAIN."

"LET 'EM COME, WE ARE THE TENTH ARMORED," ECHOED PFC.WADE CONNER, TYLER, TEX., A MACHINEGUNNER.

THERE WERE REPORTS THAT 3,000 GERMANS WERE MASSING IN A WOODS SOUTHEAST OF CRAILSHEIM. THE GERMANS WERE POURING SIX-BARREL MORTAR FIRE INTO THE TOWN AND NAZI FIGHTER PLANES REPEATEDLY STRAFED IT. JET-PLANES SWOOPED OVER AT INTERVALS DROPPING BOMBS.

JUST EAST OF THE TOWN 15 C-47 TRANSPORT PLANES WERE TAKING OFF AFTER DELIVERING A LOAD OF AMMUNITION AND GASOLINE TO THE AMERICAN UNIT. FROM THE NORTH SUPPLIES KEPT ROLLING DOWN THROUGH GERMAN ANTI-TANK GUN FIRE AND SNIPER BULLETS WHICH TOOK A HEAVY TOLL OF TRUCK AND JEEP DRIVERS.

BY DUSK INFANTRY REINFORCEMENTS 15 MILES AWAY WERE SLOWLY CLEARING A SALIENT TOWARD THE TOWN.

"IF WE HAD HAD THAT INFANTRY WITH US WE'D HAVE BEEN HALF WAY TO MUNICH BY NOW," HANKINS SAID.

HANKINS' TASK FORCE IS 42 MILES FROM THE DANUBE AND 95 MILES FROM MUNICH. A RED-FACED, RED-HAIRED ARKANSAS FARMER, HANKINS MADE HIS REPUTATION FIRST WHEN HIS TASK FORCE TOOK KASTEL.

THIS CORRESPONDENT REACHED CRAILSHEIM WITH CAPT.LESTER NICOLS, DIVISION PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER, AFTER A DASH DOWN THE HIGHWAY AHEAD OF THE THIRD SUPPLY CONVOY TO MAKE IT HERE IN A DAY.

B54

AT THE COMMAND POST WAS LT.JOHN HILL OF GREENVILLE,N.C., WHO RODE THE THIRD TANK INTO THE TOWN. HE IS A COMBAT INFANTRYMAN WHO WEARS THE SILVER STAR AND GOT A BATTLEFIELD PROMOTION FOR ACTION COVERING THE WITHDRAWAL FROM BURDORF A MONTH AGO.

HILL WAS IN A HURRY TO "GET DOWN THERE AND PLACE MY MEN."

"WE ARE SWEATING THIS OUT NOW," SAID LT.MAX SCHOENBERG OF SEYMOUR, CONN., WHO SAID HE HAD BEEN BOMBED OUT OF TWO COMMAND POSTS IN THE LAST THREE DAYS.

"IF THEY DON'T THROW ANY MORE AT US THAN THEY HAVE THE LAST TWO NIGHTS I THINK WE HAVE ENOUGH TO HOLD THEM," HANKINS DECLARED. "THEY HAVE BEEN ATTACKING IN AT LEAST SIX COMPANY STRENGTH AND THEY ARE TOUGH SS BABIES OF ALL AGES, BUT MOSTLY BETWEEN 20 TO 25. THEY WANT THIS TOWN AWFULLY BAD."

THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN SHOWING STRONG AIR ACTIVITY AGAINST THE FORCE, SENDING AS MANY AS 38 PLANES AT A TIME OVER THE TOWN. SEVERAL PLANES HAVE BEEN KNOCKED DOWN.

T/5 WARREN LOREN VAN FOSSEN, CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA, A MEDIC, SAID THAT, FOR THE SCOPE OF OPERATIONS, THE CASUALTIES WERE NOT AS HIGH AS MIGHT BE EXPECTED.

GERMAN FIGHTERS ATTEMPTED TO GET A CUB OBSERVATION PLANE PILOTED BY CAPT.REFORD HISKETT, ERIE, OKLA., (UNLISTED POSTAL GUIDE) DIVISION AIR OFFICER, AND CONTAINING HOWARD BYRNES, STARS AND STRIPES REPORTER FROM 100 EAST 105TH ST., NEW YORK CITY. AN ACK-ACK OUTFIT INCLUDING CPL PAUL OSBORNE, ROXBURY,N.Y.; PVT.STEVEN GABRIEL, BROOKLYN,N.Y., AND PFC.CLARENCE DANIELS, SALISBURY,N.C., CHASED THEM OFF.

"ARTILLERY FIRE, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF COASTAL GUNS FIRING FROM

'UNTA AND BIANCA, WAS SLIGHT. MORE THAN 350 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN. 30 FAR INFORMATION RECEIVED INDICATES THAT, IN RELATION TO THE SIZE OF HIS FORCES INVOLVED, THE ENEMY HAS SUFFERED HEAVY CASUALTIES. THE CASUALTIES SUFFERED BY OUR FORCES WERE FAIRLY LIGHT IN COMPARISON."

THE OFFICIAL ACCOUNT OF ACTIVITY ON THE EIGHTH ARMY FRONT SAID NOTHING ABOUT THE SECTOR CENTERING AROUND THE TOWN OF LUGO, IN THE AREA SATURATED BY MANY TOMS OF BOMBS.

APR 11 1945

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT SID FEDER, WATCHING THE BOMBING FROM A PLANE, REPORTED THAT IN ADDITION TO THE CONCENTRATION OF AIR MIGHT HE WAS ABLE TO SEE FLASHES FROM "SCORES UPON SCORES" OF ALLIED FIELD GUNS IN "WHAT APPEARED TO BE A GENERAL SOFTENING UP OF ENEMY DEFENSES WHICH HAVE STOOD UP THROUGHOUT THE WINTER."

MORE THAN 750 AMERICAN AND RAF HEAVY BOMBERS, IN ADDITION TO MANY HUNDREDS OF MEDIUM BOMBERS AND FIGHTERBOMBERS PARTICIPATED IN YESTERDAY'S CLOSE SUPPORT OPERATION IMMEDIATELY AHEAD OF THE EIGHTH ARMY.

FROM THIS STRIKING FORCE, WHICH FLEW NEARLY 3,100 SORTIES, ONE HEAVY BOMBER AND FOUR OTHER PLANES WERE LOST.

EVEN WITH SUCH MASSING OF STRENGTH TO OBLITERATE NAZI DEFENSES IN THE PATH OF THE EIGHTH ARMY IN THE EDGES OF THE PO VALLEY, THE MEDITERRANEAN ALLIED AIR FORCES HAD ENOUGH PLANES LEFT OVER TO CONTINUE BLASTING OF GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS IN SOUTHERN AUSTRIA, NORTHERN ITALY AND YUGOSLAVIA.

A BOMB HIT WAS SCORED ON A GERMAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE BOLOGNA AREA, WHICH WAS ATTACKED BY RAF SPITFIRES AND SOUTH AFRICAN KITTYHAWKS. THREE OTHER HITS WERE MADE ON ENEMY-OCCUPIED BUILDINGS NEARBY.

THOUSANDS OF BOMBS RAINED ON GERMAN TARGETS FROM NEARLY 2,000 PLANES IN ONE OF THE BIGGEST DISPLAYS OF AIR POWER YET SHOWN IN THE ITALIAN THEATER.

APR 11 1945

GEORGE PALMER, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WHO RODE IN ONE OF THE WARPLANES, SAID THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBERS, 800 MEDIUM BOMBERS, MORE THAN 250 FIGHTER-BOMBERS AND FIGHTER PLANES BY THE SCORE MOVED OUT, WAVE UPON WAVE, AND METHODICALLY LAID WASTE THE MILITARY TARGETS.

COL. GLADWYN PINKSTON OF PASADENA, CALIF., STARTED IT OFF WHEN HE LED A GROUP OF THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERBOMBERS BLASTING GERMAN GUN POSITIONS.

THEN WAVES OF HEAVIES DUMPED 175,000 BOMBS IN A TWO-HOUR ATTACK ON AREAS EAST OF BOLOGNA.

PALMER SAID HE SAW ONLY ONE PARACHUTE DRIFTING DOWN.

PALMER RODE WITH LT.COL. JOHN MARTIN OF CULPEPER, VA., A FIGHTER GROUP COMMANDER WHO HAD JUST COMPLETED HIS 184TH COMBAT MISSION AN HOUR BEFORE.

MARTIN'S FLIGHT PLACED A 1,000-POUND BOMB DIRECTLY UPON A GERMAN GUN POSITION, DROPPED TWO BOMBS INTO A GUNPIT AND BLEW UP A GERMAN-OCCUPIED HOUSE 50 YARDS FROM THE GUNPIT.

CAPT. DONALD LAWLESS, 1631 PARK PLACE, WICHITA, KANS., FLYING HIS 83RD MISSION, WAS THE FIRST AMERICAN PILOT TO DIVE ON AN ENEMY POSITION IN THE DAY'S ACTION.

DESTRUCTION OF 32 GERMAN-OCCUPIED BUILDINGS AND DAMAGE TO 51 BY FIGHTERBOMBERS WAS CONFIRMED.

-THE TIGHT AMERICAN AERIAL BLOCKADE OF THE CHINA SEA PAID NEW DIVIDENDS AS SHARP-EYED YANK FLIERS HIT A JAPANESE CONVOY OFF SWATOW, STRATEGIC PORT ON THE ASIATIC MAINLAND DIRECTLY WEST OF FORMOSA. Add Manila Philippines xxx Wainwright

GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED IN HIS TUESDAY COMMUNIQUE THAT HEAVY AMERICAN BLOCKADE BOMBERS ATTACKED A 15-SHIP CONVOY SATURDAY. DIRECT HITS SANK A DESTROYER AND AN 8,000-TON TRANSPORT. SERIOUS DAMAGE WAS INFLICTED ON ANOTHER DESTROYER AND A FOURTH SHIP. THE OTHER VESSELS FLED TOWARD SWATOW.

PHILIPPINE-BASED PLANES RAIDED HEAVILY THROUGHOUT THE ARCHIPELAGO AND ALSO HIT IN THE FORMOSA, HONGKONG AND BORNEO REGIONS.

THE BIG JAPANESE BASE AT DAVAO, SOUTHEASTERN PHILIPPINES, AND JOLO, CHIEF ISLAND IN THE SULU ARCHIPELAGO, WERE HAMMERED WITH 186 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES.

AIRDROMES, SUPPLY AREAS AND FUEL TANKS ON FORMOSA'S WEST COAST WERE LEFT IN FLAMES AS YANK BOMBERS UNLOADED 171 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES IN THAT AREA. EIGHT SHIPS WERE SUNK IN SWEEPS NEAR HONGKONG, HAINAN ISLAND AND OFF FORMOSA. SMALL SHIPPING WAS LASHED IN BORNEO'S BRUNEI BAY AND IN THE CELEBES.

BAD TERRAIN SLOWED LAND ACTION ON PHILIPPINE FRONTS. STRONG YANK PRESSURE IN NORTHERN AND CENTRAL LUZON TOOK HEAVY TOLL OF JAPANESE SOLDIERS AND MATERIAL. THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION GAINED GROUND IN THE SECTOR SOUTHEAST OF LAGUNA DE BAY WHILE THE 158TH REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAM TIGHTENED ITS HOLD ON THE SOUTHERN FLANK OF THE BICOL PENINSULA TRAP.

BITTER BATTLING CONTINUED IN THE BALATE PASS AND BAGUIO SECTOR. THE 25TH DIVISION REGISTERED A 1,200-YARD GAIN IN THE RUGGED COUNTRY SOUTH OF THE PASS. JAPANESE MORTAR AND ARTILLERY FIRE SLOWED THE 33RD DIVISION NEAR BURGOS, ROADSIDE TOWN 15 MILES NORTHWEST OF BAGUIO.

OKINAWA,APRIL 10-(AP)-WHEN IT COMES TO AERIAL GALLANTRY AND BRAVERY, CONSIDER LT. (JG) DAVID G.ROBINSON OF (4508 NORTH KILPATRICK) CHICAGO. APR 11 1945

HE DELIBERATELY FLEW INTO THE MOST DANGEROUS ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE IN THE WORLD -- FROM AMERICAN SHIPS AND SHORE GUNS -- TO KEEP ONE AND POSSIBLY TWO FELLOW FLIERS FROM BEING SHOT DOWN.

ROBINSON, A WILDCAT PILOT ON AN ESCORT CARRIER, WAS SPOTTING FOR NAVAL GUNFIRE OVER SOUTHERN OKINAWA APRIL 7, WHEN HE NOTICED AN AIRPLANE UNDER ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE FIVE MILES TO THE NORTHWEST.

SUSPECTING IT MIGHT BE A FRIENDLY PLANE ACCIDENTALLY ATTACKED BY GUNNERS WHO WERE "TRIGGER HAPPY" AFTER HEAVY JAPANESE RAIDS THE PREVIOUS DAY, ROBINSON DELIBERATELY FLEW TOWARD THE GUNFIRE. WHEN HE WAS TWO MILES OFF HE IDENTIFIED THE PLANE AS A CORSAIR FIGHTER WITH ITS WHEELS DOWN.

ROBINSON SAID "GUNS ON OKINAWA AND SHIPS OFF THE BEACHES WERE THROWING EVERYTHING THEY HAD AT HIM. I'VE FLOWN IN THE EUROPEAN AS WELL AS THE PACIFIC THEATER AND THE GERMANS NEVER PUT UP AS STRONG AND ACCURATE FIRE AS THAT.

"I FIGURED THAT EVEN IF THE GUNNERS DIDN'T RECOGNIZE THE CORSAIR THEY'D RECOGNIZE MY WILDCAT COVERING HIM AND QUIT FIRING, SO I INDICATED TO THE PILOT TO HEAD FOR YONTAN AIRFIELD. WE STARTED BACK AT 1,500 FEET AND SUDDENLY ANOTHER WILDCAT HAD JOINED US. WE WERE UNDER CONCERTED ATTACK ALL THE WAY AND GETTING A GREAT MANY HITS.

"BOTH THE CORSAIR AND WILDCAT MADE A FAST APPROACH TO YONTAN AND LANDED SAFELY, BUT MY CONTROLS WERE SHOT UP AND I CRASHED TO THE SOUTH, NEAR KATENA FIELD.

"WE THREE ARE EXTREMELY LUCKY TO BE ALIVE AND INTACT TODAY."

ROBINSON WAS NOT EMBITTERED BY THE EXPERIENCE OF BEING SHOT AT BY FRIENDLY GUNS, AND SAID HE WAS MERELY MORE STRONGLY IMPRESSED WITH THE DESTRUCTIVE POWER OF AMERICAN GUNS.

"IT'S ONE OF OUR MOST DIFFICULT PROBLEMS HERE -- KEEPING FROM SHOOTING DOWN FRIENDLY PLANES AND KEEPING OUR PLANES FROM BOMBING AND STRAFING OUR OWN SHIPS OR POSITIONS.

"WITH PLENTY OF AIRPLANES AROUND IT'S HARD FOR GUNNERS TO WAIT UNTIL THEY ARE SURE OF A PLANE'S IDENTITY -- YET WHEN OUR PLANES GET IN TROUBLE THEY OCCASIONALLY HAVE TO COME WITHIN THE GUNFIRE AREA.

"I DON'T KNOW JUST WHAT THE ANSWER TO IT IS -- BUT I DON'T EVER WANT TO BE THAT KIND OF TARGET AGAIN."

OKINAWA, RYUKYU ISLANDS, APRIL 10-(AP)-SOME MARINE ARTILLERY BATTALIONS, UNNEEDED IN THE ALMOST UNOPPOSED NORTHWARD ADVANCE OF MARINES ON OKINAWA, HAVE BEEN THROWN INTO THE GROWING ARTILLERY BATTLE ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE ISLAND.
THESE ARTILLERYMEN SUPPORTING THE ARMY'S 24TH CORPS ARE THE FIRST MARINES ON OKINAWA TO BE GIVEN A REAL CHANCE TO DO BATTLE.
COMMENTING ON THE NAVY'S PART IN THE ARTILLERY PHASE OF THE RYUKYU ISLANDS CAMPAIGN, CMDR. PAUL SMITH, FORMER GENERAL MANAGER OF THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE AND NOW PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER FOR VICE ADM. RICHMOND KELLY TURNER'S AMPHIBIOUS FORCE, SAID:
"ONCE AGAIN WE ARE SENDING SCRAP IRON TO THE JAPANESE--THIS TIME IN THE FORM OF SHELLS.
"IN THE FIRST WEEK OF THIS OPERATION WE DELIVERED 10,600 TONS OF SCRAP IN NAVAL SHELLING, NOT INCLUDING 40,000 TONS OF PROPELLANTS. THIS DOES NOT INCLUDE BOMBS AND SHORE-BASED ARTILLERY.
"BUSY MINESWEEPERS HAVE CLEARED 3,000 SQUARE MILES OF OCEAN OF MINES, GENEROUSLY STREWN BY THE JAPANESE AROUND THE RYUKYUS AND SURROUNDING WATERS.
ALTHOUGH HUNDREDS OF NIPPONESE SUICIDE BOATS WERE CAPTURED IN THE INVASION OF THE KERAMA ISLANDS, PRECEDING THE OKINAWA ASSAULT APRIL 1, THE LITTLE CRAFT ARE STILL APPEARING AND ATTEMPTING TO RAM AMERICAN SHIPS. AN ILLUMINATING FLARE FROM A CRUISER SHOWED ONE 1,000 YARDS AWAY, BUT IT APPARENTLY ESCAPED IN THE DARKNESS. ANOTHER WAS DESTROYED.
ENEMY PLANES STILL ATTEMPTING TO RAID THE AMPHIBIOUS FORCE LYING OFF OKINAWA, FAILED TO GET PAST THE DESTROYER SCREEN. LANDING CRAFT HELPED A DESTROYER SHOOT DOWN THREE.
TWO PLANES, AT LEAST ONE OF THEM AMERICAN, COLLIDED OVER SOUTHERN OKINAWA. JAPANESE SHOT TWO MEN AS THEY PARACHUTED.
CARRIER PLANES KNOCKED OUT JAPANESE TORPEDO LAUNCHING TUBES ON THE SOUTH COAST AND AN AIR PLANE DIRECTING STATION ON THE NORTHERN TIP OF OKINAWA.
NEARLY ALL INVASION SHIPS HAVE BEEN UNLOADED AND RETURNED TO REAR AREAS.

OTTAWA, APRIL 10-(AP)-THE WAR WITH JAPAN WILL DEMAND A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF THE OUTPUT OF CANADIAN FACTORIES AFTER VICTORY IN EUROPE, MUNITIONS MINISTER C.D.HOWE INFORMED PARLIAMENT TODAY.
ANY CANADIAN INDUSTRIAL CAPACITY NOT REQUIRED FOR WAR WILL BE CONVERTED IMMEDIATELY TO CIVILIAN PRODUCTION, HE SAID.
IN 1944 CANADA PRODUCED 72 PER CENT OF HER OUTPUT FOR THE ARMED FORCES OF HER ALLIES, AND HOWE SAID THE FIGURE WOULD RISE TO 80 PER CENT IN 1945.
ESTIMATED TOTAL VALUE OF CANADIAN WAR PRODUCTION FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1944-45 WAS $2,206,000,000, COMPARED WITH $2,499,000,000 FOR 1943-44, A DECLINE OF 12 PER CENT ATTRIBUTED JOINTLY TO DECEASED MILITARY REQUIREMENTS AND INCREASED EFFICIENCY PRODUCTION.
HOWE REPEATED AN EARLIER ESTIMATE THAT WITH THE END OF THE WAR IN EUROPE, CANADA WOULD CUT BACK HER MUNITIONS PRODUCTION PROGRAM BY APPROXIMATELY 35 PER CENT.
HOWE NOTED THAT DURING THE LATTER HALF OF 1944 THERE HAD BEEN A SUBSTANTIAL DECREASE IN WAR DEMANDS FOR SOME OF THE MAJOR NON-FERROUS METALS INCLUDING ALUMINUM, AND THAT RESTRICTIONS ON THE USE OF THEM CONSEQUENTLY WERE RELAXED. DURING THE LAST FEW MONTHS, HOWEVER, THERE HAS BEEN AN INCREASE IN REQUIREMENTS, HE ADDED.
RECENT ORDERS FOR ALUMINUM FROM THE UNITED STATES "WILL HAVE THE EFFECT OF BRINGING (CANADIAN) PRODUCTION BACK TO NEAR CAPACITY FOR SOME MONTHS TO COME," HOWE SAID.

SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 10-(AP)-THE JAPANESE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY TODAY REPORTED AN "ENEMY LANDING" TODAY ON TSUKATA ISLAND, IN NAHA-GUSUKU BAY ABOUT SEVEN MILES OFF OKINAWA ISLAND'S EAST COAST.

APR 11 1945

THE UNCONFIRMED DISPATCH, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, CLAIMED JAPANESE FORCES SANK ONE LARGE ENEMY DESTROYER AND HEAVILY DAMAGED ONE SMALL WAR CRAFT OUT OF A GROUP PENETRATING NAHA-GUSUKU BAY.

EARLIER DOMEI REPORTED SUICIDE BOATS ATTACKED AN "ENEMY ARMADA" NEAR TSUKATA ISLAND SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

AN IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID AMERICAN CASUALTIES ON OKINAWA BETWEEN APRIL 1 AND 7 REACHED APPROXIMATELY 3,000, AGAINST A JAPANESE LOSS OF APPROXIMATELY 400 DEAD OR WOUNDED.

THE AMERICANS ARE NOW CONCENTRATING MORE THAN 1,000 TROOPS AND 50 TANKS IN THE TSUNA SECTOR, THE BROADCAST CONTINUED, ONE AMERICAN UNIT OF ABOUT ONE COMPANY'S STRENGTH ADVANCED TOWARD OHAMA, THREE KILOMETERS SOUTH OF TSUNA, AND VIOLENT FIGHTING IS RAGING.

THE DISPATCH ADDED THAT MORE THAN 100 UNITED STATES WARSHIPS INCLUDING EIGHT BATTLESHIPS AND 50 CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS, ARE SAILING AROUND OKINAWA AND "LOOSING SHELLS INTO OUR LAND POSITIONS."

ANOTHER JAPANESE "SPECIAL ATTACK" ON SUICIDE SURFACE FORCE, DOMEI SAID, ATTACKED A GROUP OF CRUISERS NEAR ISHIGAKI ISLAND IN THE SAKASHIMA GROUP SOUTH OF OKINAWA, AND ADDED "RESULTS OF THE ATTACK HAVE NOT YET BEEN CONFIRMED."

SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 10-(AP)-JAPAN'S WARTIME DIPLOMACY WILL BE CARRIED ON "BOLDLY AND VIGOROUSLY" BY FOREIGN MINISTER SHIGENORI TOGO, THE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY REPORTED IN A DISPATCH TODAY REMINISCENT OF TOGO'S SPEECHES AT THE TIME OF PEARL HARBOR.

TOGO, FOREIGN MINISTER WHEN THE WAR STARTED, RETURNED TO THAT POST YESTERDAY IN JAPAN'S THIRD WARTIME CABINET.

THE DISPATCH INTERCEPTED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION QUOTED TOGO AS SAYING JAPAN'S AIM WAS TO "ABANDON THE FORCES OF DESTRUCTION FOR THE FORCES OF RECONSTRUCTION." HE SAID "POISONOUS" AMERICAN AND ENGLAND WERE "HINDERING THE PROGRESS OF HUMANITY" AND "RUTHLESSLY DESTROYING EVERYTHING THEY PLEASE".

JAPAN'S ULTIMATE AIM, HE SAID, WAS TO ACHIEVE A "UNIVERSAL ALLIANCE BASED ON RECIPROCITY AND EQUALITY."

THE RETURN OF TOGO TO THE FOREIGN MINISTRY WAS HERALDED BY INFLUENTIAL JAPANESE NEWSPAPERS LARGELY BECAUSE OF HIS KNOWLEDGE OF SOVIET RUSSIA WHICH LAST WEEK DISAVOWED A NON-AGGRESSION TREATY WITH JAPAN.

"WHAT WE ARE INTERESTED IN NOW, THE ASAHI SAID IN AN EDITORIAL QUOTED BY DOMEI, "IS WHETHER THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT WILL CONTINUE TO HAVE AN INTEREST IN MAINTAINING PEACE IN THE EAST IN COOPERATION WITH JAPAN OR WILL THEY WORK IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION."

WASHINGTON, APRIL 10-(AP)-WAR FOOD ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS SAID TODAY ABOUT 1,500,000 POUNDS OF ARGENTINE CANNED BEEF IS TIED UP IN MEXICAN WAREHOUSES. THE REASON GIVEN WAS RELUCTANCE OF OWNERS TO ABIDE BY TERMS OF A BRITISH-AMERICAN-CANADIAN WARTIME AGREEMENT COVERING IMPORTS OF SOUTH AMERICAN MEATS.

THAT AGREEMENT, ADOPTED SEVERAL MONTHS AFTER THIS COUNTRY ENTERED THE WAR, GAVE GREAT BRITAIN EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO BUY SOUTH AMERICAN EXPORTABLE SUPPLIES OF MEAT FOR USE OF THE UNITED NATIONS. THE PURPOSE OF THE AGREEMENT, OFFICIALS SAID, WAS TO ELIMINATE COMPETITIVE BIDDING WHICH MIGHT HAVE HAD THE EFFECT OF BOOSTING PRICES ABOV LEVELS NOW BEING PAID. ANOTHER OBJECTIVE WAS TO CONSERVE SHIPPING.

UNDER THE AGREEMENT, ARGENTINE MEATS ARE MOVED TO EUROPE AND DIVIDED AMONG CIVILIANS AND THE ARMIES OF THIS COUNTRY AND THE OTHER ALLIES. THE UNITED STATES PAYS ONLY FOR THAT PORTION WHICH IS TURNED OVER TO ITS ARMY.

WFA OFFICIALS SAID THAT AFTER THE AGREEMENT WAS SIGNED, A GROUP OF ARGENTINE SHIPPERS SENT TWO CONSIGNMENTS OF CANNED MEAT TO THIS COUNTRY. ONE ARRIVED AT NEW ORLEANS WHERE AN EMBARGO--DESIGNED TO EFFECTUATE THE BRITISH-AMERICAN-CANADIAN AGREEMENT--PREVENTED ITS BEING SOLD FOR CONSUMPTION IN THIS COUNTRY. THE AMERICAN ARMY REQUISITIONED THE CONSIGNMENT AND PAID THE OWNERS PRICES COMPARABLE TO THOSE BEING PAID BY THE BRITISH, PLUS TRANSPORTATION PRICES.

MEANWHILE, THE OTHER CONSIGNMENT WAS DIVERTED TO MEXICO WHERE IT WAS UNLOADED AND PLACED IN STORAGE PENDING ATTEMPTS OF THE OWNERS TO OBTAIN PERMISSION FOR ITS ADMISSION TO THIS COUNTRY. THIS COUNTRY HAS REFUSED TO GRANT SUCH PERMISSION.

WFA OFFICIALS SAID THE BRITISH HAD OFFERED TO BUY THE MEAT BUT THE OWNERS HAD REFUSED THEIR OFFER.

IN REFUSING ENTRY INTO THIS COUNTRY, THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN PROMPTED BY THE BELIEF THAT NOTHING WAS TO BE GAINED BY IMPORTING ARGENTINE MEATS DURING THE WAR. ANY DIVERSION OF SOUTH AMERICAN MEAT TO THIS COUNTRY WOULD REDUCE BRITISH AND UNITED NATIONS SUPPLIES IN EUROPE AND WOULD THEREBY INCREASE THE DEMANDS UPON THIS COUNTRY.

9th Army At Elbe 60 Miles From Berlin, Reaches Magdeburg After 50-Mile Dash

Tanks Advance 50 Miles in Day To Reach River

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, Thursday, April 12.—(AP) Armored columns of the U. S. Ninth army swept within 57 miles of Berlin and within 115 miles of the Russian front yesterday in a startling advance of more than 50 miles that carried to the Elbe river at Magdeburg. A crossing of this last water barrier before the German capital was believed imminent.

The sensational eastward drive, longest single day's thrust yet made on German soil, was accomplished by the Second (hell on wheels) armored division, which by-passed the manufacturing city of Brunswick and [illegible] through the heart of the Reich against practically [illegible]stent opposition.

A late front dispatch said the river could be bridged within a few hours unless unexpected resistance developed. This would set the stage for an early junction with the Red army. Correspondents said the link up might be made within a few days.

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth Army troops were 57 miles away from the southwestern limits of greater Berlin, which includes Potsdam, and the Russians were 32 miles from the capital on the east with the city itself stretching some 25 miles between these two points.

Accompanying the Ninth Army's spectacular advance, six other Allied armies pounded forward in the great victory-bound offensive which seemed to blow the whole western front wide open.

Essen Captured

Essen and Gelsenkirschen, two mighty industrial cities of the Ruhr, were captured by infantrymen of the Ninth Army operating far in the rear of the armored spearheads, and other doughboys of the Ninth drove into Bochum and Brunswick.

The Canadian First and British Second armies fanned out toward an imminent junction that would close a steel trap on possibly 200,000 German troops in Holland and northwest Germany, making advances of up to 15 miles.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First Army broke loose on a 22-mile rampage that carried within 48 miles of Leipzig, putting these American troops within 120 miles of a linkup with the Russians.

Coburg Captured

The Third Army captured ancient Coburg and clamped a news blackout on two armored divisions after they had rumbled forward at least 12 and 15 miles, respectively.

The Seventh Army completely encircled the famous ball-bearing manufacturing city of Schweinfurt and stormed into it from two sides. The French First Army fought forward three miles into the northern edge of the black forest, southeast of Karlsruhe.

Thousands of Allied warplanes joined in the scourge of the German army and pilots reported seeing white flags raised in many towns and villages. Many thousands of prisoners were rounded up as the ground forces swept forward, capturing cities and clearing pockets left behind by the onrushing tanks.

[illegible]nce Varies

Resistance itself varied on different fronts. The Seventh Army was forced to withdraw from the communications center of Crailsheim, 47 miles southwest of Nuernberg. But even though the Tenth armored division found this narrow salient too hot to hold it managed to bring back 2,000 prisoners in its withdrawal.

Forty miles farther west the 100th division cleared half of Heilbronn, where fierce fighting has raged for days.

But the main attention was focused on the Ninth army's tremendous drive to the Elbe river. It was not known whether Simpson's tanks had entered Magdeburg itself, or whether the bridges there were intact.

A big commercial and industrial center with a prewar population of 334,358, Magdeburg has two rail and two highway bridges across the Elbe. Five miles north of the city one of Hitler's great autobahns (superhighways) crosses the river.

It appeared likely from correspondents' dispatches that the Americans had reached the river on both sides of the city. The tanks were followed by infantrymen sweeping unchallenged along a front ten miles wide.

British troops in the north punched to within 45 miles of Hamburg, but were still held four miles outside the port of Bremen; to their west the Canadians cross the Issel river deeper into Holland, where scores of thousands of Germans were trapped.

In making its spectacular dash to Magdeburg the Second (Hell on Wheels) Armored division by-passed on the south the big aircraft center of Brunswick and plunged eastward on a solid 10-mile front, meeting only scattered opposition throughout the remarkable day. The Nazi Brunswick garrison still was fighting bitterly through the streets against Doughboys of the 30th division.

Farther south the 83rd division stormed ahead 20 miles and reached Halberstadt, 24 miles southwest of Magdeburg. A huge airplane factory at Halberstadt was overrun.

The Germans lacked the manpower even to slow Gen. Simpson's wave of men and armor. As occasional pockets of resistance were encountered the American avalanche simply built up before them and burst around both sides, leaving the Nazi garrisons to be cleaned out at leisure.

"South of Brunswick there were not even any pockets, and old 'Hell on Wheels' was moving like it did through Sicily," said Associated Press Front Correspondent Wes Gallagher.

Another front dispatch declared the Elbe could be bridged within a few hours—"unless the Germans decide to fight, something they haven't really done for two weeks."

The Ninth Army troops apparently reached the Elbe on both sides of Magdeburg, and just to the north of that big city is a wide autobahn, or super military highway, leading to Berlin.

The swift first army drove across the Thuringian plain south of the Harz mountains, crushing the small opposition in its path and out running its communications with headquarters.

Already the headlong advance of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' forces and the flanking Ninth and Third armies threatened to bar German forces in the north from their last-ditch fortress in the Alps south of Munich. XXIII infantry was mopping up behind the fast-moving armor.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army lashed out again after several days spent consolidating its positions and quickly fought into and encircled the city of Erfurt, between Gotha and Weimar some 130 miles southwest of Berlin. Twenty-three Nazi tanks and 18 planes were destroyed in capturing the Erfurt airport in the northern part of the city. Coburg, 50 miles south of Erfurt, surrendered to the 11th armored division.

2d Tank Division Is at Magdeburg; 3 U. S. Armies Racing Eastward

Paris, April 11 (A. P.).—The American Ninth Army reached the Elbe River at Magdeburg, sixty-four miles from Berlin, today, after capturing the Ruhr munitions capital of Essen, and fighting into Brunswick.

The spearheading Second (Hell-on Wheels) Armored Division of Lieut.-Gen. William H. Simpson's army got into a fight at the Goering Steel Works, at Wolfenbuttel, but soon enveloped the town and broke loose in a free run to Wufferstedt and Slenstedt, twenty-seven miles southwest of Brunswick, then raced on to the Elbe, last major river barrier before Berlin.

The First Army continued its advance eastward from last reported positions 120 miles from Russian lines. First Army armor may be expected to reach the Russian lines within the next week, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported.

One First Army armored spearhead roared toward the Elbe for a twenty-two-mile gain and was last reported outside Koelleda, forty-eight miles from Leipzig where a broad superhighway leads to Berlin.

To the south, elements of three armored divisions and at least six infantry divisions of the Third Army leaped off in a new drive, with the Fourth Armored Division racing twelve miles and the Sixth Armored Division making fifteen miles at last reports.

Coburg Surrenders.

The Eleventh Armored Division of the Third Army accepted the surrender of Coburg, forty-nine miles from Czecho-Slovakia, when fighter-bombers flew around the town and white flags popped out. The town commandant at first had refused to dicker.

Farther south, Seventh Army troops battled inside bomb-ravaged Schweinfurt, the German center of the ballbearing industry, but the Tenth Armored Division of that army, under heavy pressure from SS troops, was forced to pull out of Carlsheim, in its narrow salient behind the Black Forest. The Tenth took 2,000 prisoners with it.

British Build Up for Big Drive.

In the north, the British Second Army broadened and strengthened a twenty-mile front of armor south of besieged Bremen in preparation for the final blow to that great port and submarine center.

Other British troops rolled up steady gains along the western end of a wide front in northern Germany, racing down the last fifty miles toward Hamburg and the thirty toward the Helgoland Bight. The Canadians were within ten miles of the North Sea.

In Holland Canadian troops fought across the Issel River in the area of captured Deventer (40,300) toward Appeldorn in an attack that may soon bring the great Dutch ports of Amsterdam and Rotterdam under Canadian guns, Associated Press Correspondent Robert Wilson reported from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters.

Cities such as Hannover, Deventer, Coburg, Brunswick, Salzgitter and (by German account) Wanna Eickel fell. Besieged were Bremen, Erfurt and Schweinfurt. Fighting continued inside Dortmund, Heilbronn, Nordhausen and Bochum. Menaced were Emden, Hamburg, Oldenburg, Celle, all uncaptured cities of the Ruhr, Halle, Dessau, Leipzig, Weimar, Jena, Stuttgart, Plauen and Nuernberg. The Dutch cities of Groningen, Zwolle and Arnhem all were within cannon shot of the Canadians, driving up the last ten miles toward the North Sea.

The Old Hickory (Thirtieth) Division fought into southern Brunswick. Major-Gen. Leland S. Hobbs, Thirtieth Division commander, issued an ultimatum for surrender of the city and attacked when the German commander asked twenty-four hours in which to remove troops.

The actions of Eis... nine armies made it appa... the battle had become ...

at least six infantry divisions flamed into renewed action as Gen. Patton signalled his forces to get on with the job of tearing the Reich apart. Doughboys of the 80th division slammed into Erfurt. The Fourth armored division banged ahead 12 miles and the Sixth armored advanced 15. At latest report both outfits still were moving fast.

Prisoners said the German commander of Erfurt (pop. 145,000) had intended to surrender the city, but was prevented from doing so by the arrival of an SS officer who ordered the city defended.

The average gain of Patton's forces along a curving 60-mile front between Erfurt and Coburg was between six and eight miles against scattered opposition. A blackout was imposed on further details of the thrusts by the Fourth and Sixth armored divisions.

Capture of Coburg placed the Third army ony 48 miles from the old border of Czechoslovakia. The German garrison at first refused even to consider a demand for its surrender, but quickly changed its mind when a flight of American fighter-bombers roared close overhead. White flags popped out from hundreds of buildings. Coburg was the site of one of the Nazi party's earliest conventions in 1922, when Hitler was a virtual outlaw.

Erfurt, into which Patton's infantry drove after an early morning jump-off, has been a principal center of German culture for more than 1,200 years. A bishopric was founded there by St. Boniface. Its university was founded in 1378. Doughboys took more than 600 prisoners in the first five hours of the fight for the city.

161 Miles from Russians

Driving on beyond Erfurt, other units of the 80th infantry reached the vicinity of Eichelborn, six miles southwest of Weimar. At this point of its farthest official eastward advance, the Third army was 88 miles from the Elbe and 161 miles from Russian lines.

The 90th infantry, advancing six miles, cleared several towns midway between Erfurt and Coburg, including Grossbreitenbach. The 89th infantry pushed east eight miles, clearing several towns, including Arnstadt, nine miles south of Erfurt.

One armored spearhead of First army speared eastward 22 miles up to early afternoon and was reported outside Koelleda, 47 miles from Leipzig, which is connected with Berlin by superhighway. Another of Hodges' armored columns pushed seven miles northeast of Clingen to Bilzingsleven against scattered opposition.

One of the favorite topics of conversation on the First army front was reported to be "when will we meet the Russians?" Doughboys and officers alike were laying bets on when the junction would take place.

Essen, largest of the Ruhr's industrial cities with a prewar population of 659,871, was captured by parachute troops of the American 17th airborne division, who on Tuesday crossed a pontoon bridge over the Rhine-Herne canal and entered the shattered metropolis under command of Col. Edson Raff of New York City.

In announcing the capture of the second largest city yet to fall into Allied hands, the First Airborne army said that German civilians milling through Essen's rubbled streets were jubilant at the arrival of the Americans and offered them bottles of wine as they moved between buildings decorated with white flags.

There was scarcely any resistance inside Essen and isolated groups of Nazis were rounded up quickly. Overturned streetcars blocked railroad underpasses throughout the city and its boulevards and parks were in ruins, an official announcement said. The Ruhr town of Herne, just north of Bochum, fell to the 35th division.

Resistance in Dortmund (Pop. 537,000) began breaking during the afternoon after four days of street fighting. Attacking toward the southwest, the Eighth armored division smashed two to four miles into the Ruhr pocket, reaching the Ruhr river at Frondenberg and the Mohne river at Neheim.

It was reported that the Krupp armament works in Essen had been destroyed by Allied bombing seven times since the war began, and as many times rebuilt. They employed 100,000 workmen.

Capture Messerschmitt Plant

One of the day's greatest prizes was the huge Messerschmitt plane plant at Halberstadt southwest of Magdeburg. In addition to the valuable machinery, American forces captured 50 Messerschmitt-109 fighters fresh from the assembly line.

Thousands of slave laborers were liberated by the American advance which overran the great Hermann Goering steel network south of Brunswick. The starving workers rioted and stormed through the shops until they were put under control by Ninth Army troops. Many of the plants were underground and the area was protected by hundreds of anti-aircraft and railroad guns.

The Second armored division first swept around the formidable obstacle and then overran the area before lighting out on its dash thrust to the Elbe. The city of Brunswick was observed to have been flattened by American daylight bombings.

On the northern end of the Western front the British Second army advanced 10 miles in the center of Lt. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey's front, capturing Verden, 45 miles southweast of Hamburg, as the Germans tried to extricate perhaps 40,000 men from the salient southwest of Bremen.

The Seventh Armored division was still stalled four miles from Bremen's southern outskirts. The Sixth airborne's positions remained unchanged just short of Celle, north of Hannover, as the units paused to rest.

To the west in Holland Canadian troops crossed the Issel river in the Deventer area, lunging toward Appeldorn in a drive aimed at the big Netherlands ports of Amsterdam and Rotterdam.

The Canadian crossing of the Issel in storm boats after a heavy air and artillery assault placed them in a position to threaten Arnhem from the rear.

At least 80,000 and 90,000 enemy troops are concentrated in the west Holland area between the Issel and North sea, of which 20,000 to 30,000 are estimated to be fighting units.

On the left flank of the 21st army group front Polish troops of the Canadian army thrust through Westerbork and were approaching Assen, 25 miles from the North sea. Other forces pushed five miles east from Sogel into Welte, 45 miles from the North sea.

In the ever-tightening Ruhr pocket the Germans were surrendering in great numbers. The Eighth division alone has taken more than 11,000 prisoners out of the trap, including entire units which gave up without a struggle. One prisoner reported increasing sabotage behind the German lines.

In a desperate move by the enemy to keep his troops in line—but it apparently was failing to work—any soldier who absents himself from his unit for more than 24 hours automatically is shot upon apprehension, it was said.

sen. The Seventy-ninth (Cross of Lorraine) Division had fought into its debris-piled streets two days ago. Germans in Essen welcomed the Americans hilariously. They threw their arms about the troops, perhaps relieved that their protracted ordeal from bombing was ended. American artillery shells started dropping in the city March 10 after the Ninth Army reached the Rhine.

Essen was built atop one of the earth's largest coal deposits. The Krupp and other foundries worked day and night unless disrupted by the bombers which have attacked the city for nearly five years. The Krupp works, birthplace of German war materiel since the days of Bismarck, had been rebuilt seven times in this war, and it employed 100,000 skilled workmen. Machine shops, steel foundries, boiler works, textile mills, breweries and lighter industries dotted the city.

Other Ruhr Towns Fall.

The Ruhr town of Herne, just north of Bochum, fell and American infantry worked in to the coal and steel center of Bochum from the west.

Resistance in Dortmund (537,000) began breaking during the afternoon of this fourth day of street fighting. Dortmund is the eleventh largest city of Germany, ranking just ahead of Hannover which fell yesterday.

Attacking toward the southwest, other Americans burrowed two to four miles into the Ruhr pocket, reaching the Ruhr river at Frondenberg and the Mohne river at Neheim near the great dam which the R. A. F. destroyed.

Half of the Ruhr pocket was reduced and the survivors of the trapped force of up to 150,000 Germans were compressed into a 2,000-square-mile box forty-five miles long and about the same distance wide.

Trapped Units Defy Order.

In the Ruhr trap, meanwhile, the German commander had decreed that any German soldier who absented himself from his unit for more than twenty-four hours was to be shot immediately upon apprehension. This move to keep troops in the line was failing, because more and more units were marching out to surrender to the Americans. One entire company marched out under a white flag on the east side of the trap and surrendered, and in the south men of the Eighth Infantry Division bottled up a regiment of 1,500 men at Valbert, twenty miles northwest of Siegen, before the Germans knew what was happening.

The Eighth Division has taken more than 11,000 prisoners from the Ruhr trap, including entire units which quit without a struggle. One prisoner said there was increasing sabotage within the pocket. All evidence adds up to this: That the Germans inside the trap are disorganized and disheartened, despite the efforts of their commanders to pull them together for a bitter last stand. In the early days of the campaign and fact until recently, the ratio of German officers to enlisted men captured was one to 100. Now it is one to fifteen or twenty enlisted men.

"The answer to this," said a First Army officer, "is that the officers are having to stay up forward with their troops to see they don't surrender or quit fighting. If they don't stay with the troops, then the troops won't fight."

Black Widows last night destroyed three Junkers-52 transports over the east end of the Ruhr pocket, where the Germans were trying to salvage some key personnel from the trap. Field Marshal Walther von Model, commander of the trapped German Fifteenth and Fifth Panzer armies, was reported still in the ping-up operation. The center of the German front was shattered, the north and south flanks were laid open to annihilating attacks. The German plan of withdrawal to mountain redoubts in south Germany was imperiled by the swift drive across the waist of Germany toward Russian lines.

Airborne troops captured 83,- trap yesterday. Supreme Headquarters said 54,895 Germans surrendered April 8-9.

The Ninth and First armies advanced north and south of the Harz Mountains in the greatest gains yesterday. They pulled up abreast of the Third Army.

The First Army was driving toward the Russian lines south of the Harz Mountains in an open corridor on the Thuringian Plain. Some First Army tanks pushed thirty-one miles in a day into Klingen and beyond to a position fifty-seven miles from Leipzig.

Slight Resistance Expected.

Indications were that the Germans would be unable to offer really formidable resistance anywhere west of the Elbe. The tank men encountered some units of sailors from Hamburg in a fight at Ahlden, on the Aller River fifty-nine miles from Hamburg.

Perhaps significant in the generally loosening resistance in the north as the Germans withdrew southwest of Bremen, the Desert Rats Division encountered Elite SS troops in one village near Bremen, and these were much less eager to fight than previous SS troops which have been met.

On the British left flank, the advance was slower but steady. Here German troops were resisting resolutely.

German Losses Mounting.

Supreme Headquarters said 283,668 Germans had surrendered on the western front in the first nine days of April and that yesterday's total undoubtedly swelled the figure beyond 300,000. That would bring the total of Germans captured since the cross-Rhine offensive March 23 to almost 500,000 since 194,374 were bagged before April 1.

The official Shaef summary said Allied casualties in all were less than one-twelfth those of the enemy on the East side of the Rhine. Headquarters said 150,000 Germans were caught in the Ruhr pocket. Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said 80,000 to 90,000 were trapped in western Holland and that another 110,000 to 120,000 were being sealed into another and larger pocket in northern Holland and northwest Germany. Yet another 137,000 are estimated trapped in French ports and the channel islands, nearly 800 miles behind the front. That meant another 487,000 Germans were within grasp.

Gen. Omar Bradley's armies were within 57 miles of the great Saxony city of Leipzig, also menaced by the Russians.

The German communique said the Ninth Army had broken into Bochum (303,288), a coal, steel and rail center in the Ruhr trap. The enemy asserted that the Seventh Army had been driven from Crailsheim, 94 miles from Munich and 42 from the Danube.

White flags fluttered in front of the Ninth Army in Brunswick, 105 miles from the capital.

The First Army was a bare 110 miles from Berlin at a point beyond the great supply base of Nordhausen, where street fighting progressed.

The Third Army was about the same distance away.

The British Second Army beating toward Hamburg and besieging Bremen was 123 miles from Berlin on the outskirts of the Aller River town of Celle.

Key Cities Fall

Important cities fell. Hannover, twelfth largest in Germany and a major communications center of 472,527, fell to Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth Army.

Deventer (40,300), last Dutch strongpoint on the Issel River between Arnhem and Zwolle, toppled to the Canadians.

The Ninth took Salzgitter and its sprawling Hermann Goering iron works near Brunswick. Luetgen in the Ruhr and Wildeshausen, near Bremen, also were captured.

"German resistance in the west has collapsed," General Eisenhower declared.

The actions of his nine charging armies made it appear that the battle had become a mopping up operation.

The center of the German front was shattered, the north and south flanks were laid open to annihilating attacks. The German plan of withdrawal to mountain redoubts in South Germany was imperilled by the swift drive across the waist of Germany toward Russian lines.

The border of Czechoslovakia was 48 miles away. Canadians were within 10 miles of the North Sea and driving hard with the British to spring a new trap on 200,000 Germans in Holland and Northwest Germany.

The Elbe, last river before Berlin, which flows within 50 miles of the capital, was 52 miles from American vanguards many hours ago. The Helgoland Bight of the North Sea was 30 miles away.

Armies in the south were 42 miles from headwaters of the Danube, 57 from Leipzig and 94 from Munich. The French were in the foothills of the Black Forest.

Advances of up to 40 miles were recorded in the last 24 hours. The Hars Mountains of Central Germany were being by-passed. Every remaining city and factory in Germany was threatened by armies of the west, east and south moving in for the final kill under American, British, Canadian, Russian and other Allied banners. The drive from Italy in the Po Valley menaced the redoubt country from the south.

Large and historic cities were being by-passed by tanks and left for infantry to storm.

At last reports, the British were less than four miles from Bremen (population 342,306); the Ninth Army was five from Brunswick (201,306); the Third was in the outskirts of Erfurt (166,661) and Coburg (25,000); the Seventh was three northeast and northwest of the ballbearing city of Schweinfurt (42,000) and the French were nine from Stuttgart (460,000).

Fighting continued inside the Ruhr centers of Essen (660,000) and Dortmund (537,000) and in Heilbronn (73,000).

Hamburg, Magdeburg, Weimar and Nuernberg all were menaced.

Half of the Ruhr pocket was reduced and the survivors of the once trapped force of up to 150,000 Germans were compressed into a 2,000-square-mile box 45 miles long and about the same distance wide.

The German Air Force, too, was gasping its last. Allied pilots destroyed 403 enemy craft yesterday. The staggered German Army was fighting its death battle virtually blind, its Luftwaffe sealed to the ground by the loss of planes and frontline airports.

Unceasing air attacks were searching out hiding places along superhighways and taking a terrific toll of German planes. In the week ended yesterday, the Allies cratered 59 airfields and destroyed or damaged 1,738 planes, by far the greatest number of them on the ground.

Clear skies today sent the whole Allied flying arsenal out again at dawn to keep up the slaughter.

Near Erfurt, Germany, April 11 (A. P.).—Dr. Bela Fabian, Hungarian politician and author who described himself as one of the few survivors of the Nazis' great killing plant at Auschwitz (Oswiecim) in Polish Silesia, told interviewers today that 5,000,000 Jews from many European countries had been gassed and cremated there

Hungarian Leader Declares 5,000,000 Jews Murdered

By THOBURN WIANT

NEAR ERFURT, Germany, April 11—(AP) Dr. Bela Fabian, president of the dissolved Hungarian Independent Democratic party, accused the Germans today of killing 5,000,000 Jews at the Oswiecim (Auschwitz) extermination camp in Polish Silesia, which he himself narrowly escaped.

(The Polish Ministry of Information more than a year ago reported 500,000 Jews had been gassed and cremated at this camp and the international church movement ecumenical refugee committee in a subsequent report on Oswiecim and its sister camp of Birkenau said 1,715,000 Jews had been killed at the two places.

(A spokesman for the American Jewish committee library in New York said it had been estimated 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 Jews had been exterminated since the war began in Europe, but the library had no figures to substantiate a report that 5,000,000 had been exterminated in one camp.)

Fabian declared the executions were carried out in a 10-month period.

He said all Jews, even 90, were automatically condemned to the gas chamber and crematory as were the weak and sickly and young mothers who refused to leave their children. "If the captain did not like the looks of anyone else—they were gassed too," he said.

Mass Executions

Many died of overwork, starvation and beatings before the gas chamber could receive them, Fabian said. The officer in charge, he continued, employed a dramatic flourish of the hand in ordering entire groups taken away to be gassed and cremated—without questioning or examining them to learn if they were guilty of any wrong.

The 56-year-old author and politician told his story of the notorious camp, since captured by the Red army, after his liberation by American troops from another camp at Ohrdruf, southwest of Erfurt.

Three others liberated with Fabian corroborated his story and said it was a "miracle" that Fabian still lived. They said he owed his life to the fact that Germans believed him when he said he was only 46 years old.

The other three are Heinz Meyer, 22, Hungarian violinist; Desider Kohlmann, 34, a Bratislavan, and Sam Ezratty, 28, a Greek medical student.

Fabian, who said he once had lunch with President Roosevelt, asked that Congressman Sol Bloom (D-NY) be notified he is safe. He is the author of the books, "One Thousand Men without a Woman," and "Six Horses and 40 Men."

in a ten-month period.

Unnerved by his ordeal, Fabian was interviewed here after his release by American soldiers from a camp south of Gotha to which he had been recently transferred.

Auschwitz is the German name for Oswiecim, a town in southwestern Poland already known as the site of perhaps the Nazis' largest plant for the killing of great numbers of persons, chiefly Jews. Some previous estimates of deaths at Oswiecim have run into the millions, but as far as can be learned immediately none was quite so high as Fabian's.

[The total Jewish population of Europe in 1939 was 8,939,608, according to the World Almanac, quoting the American Jewish Committee. Of these 240,000 were in Germany, 191,-

408 in Austria, 444,567 in Hungary, 60,000 in Belgium, 156,817 in Holland, 240,000 in France, 3,313,900 in Poland, 3,020,141 in Russia and 72,791 in Greece. The dispatch, still incomplete, did not show upon what authority Fabian based his figures.]

Fabian said he was taken to Auschwitz ten months ago with 500,000 other Hungarian Jews and that 400,000 were gassed and cremated in the first two months and that only 1,000 remained alive.

With Lieut. Theodore Gutman of Los Angeles, and Sergt. Siegmund Fuld, 501 West 187th street, New York city, acting as translators, Fabian told a story so horrible as to the almost unbelievable. Fabian said he could speak English, but that he was so unnerved by the ordeal of his detention that he preferred to give the interview in German.

He stated that the 5,000,000 murdered at Auschwitz included Jews from Belgium, Holland, France, Poland, Hungary and Greece.

Violinist Liberated Also.

Fabian said he spent four months at Auschwitz and then was moved last October 26 to Oranienburg, near Berlin, because the Germans feared the Russians would overrun the murder plant.

After two weeks at Oranienburg he was shifted to Ohrdruf, south of Gotha, where he remained until he was liberated by the Americans.

Three others liberated from the concentration camp were Heinz Meyer, 22, a Hungarian violinist; Desider Kohlmann, 34-year-old Bratislavan, and Sam Ezratty, 28-year-old Greek medical student. They said it was a miracle that Fabian survived.

Fabian himself said that he was alive because he remained in the background as much as possible. He added that the Germans used him as an interpreter because he spoke fluent Russian, Hungarian and German. All Jews over 50 were automatically gassed and cremated, but the Germans believed Fabian when he insisted he was only 46.

Fabian, who asked that his friend, Representative Sol Bloom (D.-N. Y.) be notified of his safety, explained that his party of approximately 60,000 members was dissolved by the Hungarian Government at the insistence of the Germans three years ago.

Reports All Over 50 Gassed.

"Every one over 50 was automatically gassed," Fabian said. "Every one weak or sickly automatically was gassed. And if the captain did not like the looks of any one else, they were gassed too." "Young mothers, although healthy, were gassed if they refused to leave their children."

A hundred thousand children were brought into Auschwitz while Fabian was there. He said fifty were kept as runners and messengers, while all the other 99,950 were gassed and cremated.

One thousand fifty Hungarian Jewish boys, all of them intelligent and ranging in age from 14 to 15, were taken in trucks to the gas house and crematory, Fabian said. Some of them cried, he related, but one of them, a lawyer's son, climbed atop the truck and said: "Brothers, we should not cry, because we are dying for the betterment of mankind."

At the last minute, he said, a new order came through that 1,000 of the group should be killed, so fifty temporarily escaped death.

Whole Groups Ordered Executed.

An author as well as a politician—Fabian wrote "Six Horses and Forty Men" and "1,000 Men Without a Woman"—Fabian said the Auschwitz butchery was run by an officer who, with a dramatic flourish of a hand, would order entire groups or parts of groups gassed or cremated without questioning or examining any of them.

Fabian, who said he once had lunch with President Roosevelt, declared 3,400 persons in the Ohrdruf concentration camp died in the past four months due to over work, lack of food and beatings. The Germans made men work so hard that even the strongest broke down in six weeks, Fabian said. When the Americans reached the vicinity of Ohrdruf, the Germans dug up the bodies of their victims, poured oil on them, but did not get a chance to burn them.

Ezratty said he was among 45,000 Jews taken to Auschwitz from Salonika, Greece, and that only between fifty and sixty of them still are alive.

GERMANS VIEW HORROR SCENE AT NAZI CAMP

Ohrdruf, Germany, April 11—(AP)—Col. Hayden A. Searl, whose armored forces discovered the scenes of horror at the Ohrdruf concentration camp, thought it would be a good idea for the German citizens of this town to see what SS (Elite Guard) brutality had done in their midst.

The Chicopee Hill, Mass., officer rounded up 40 leading citizens for a tour of the camp, where several hundred bodies of slain foreign workers are still in evidence.

They saw bodies sprawling in the open space between the barracks, piled like timber in one building, and heaped in a tangled mass in a wide pit in still another place where apparently some effort had been made to burn them.

Germans Disgusted

At first the Germans expressed disbelief, insisting "the SS isn't like that." Later they voiced disgust, with one doctor saying "It's the work of beasts."

The next morning the Nazi Mayor of Ohrdruf and his wife were found hanged. The Army said it was suicide.

Ohrdruf, said by foreign workers to have the reputation of being a fanatically Nazi community, got a different slant on their former rulers. Allied military government officials who found it difficult to get Ohrdruf citizens to co-operate said that now there are plenty of volunteers.

News of the camp's discovery has spread up and down the front, and many hundreds of American soldieds who can get away from their war chores are visiting it. They leave in a grim mood.

Colonel Searl says the Army is too busy to clean up the mess and that it may serve a good purpose if as many American soldiers as possible see the unmistakable evidence of Nazi concentration camp management.

He Didn't Make It

A body of one slain worker, almost like a highway sign, points the way to the main entrance of the camp, which lies at the edge of this pleasant town. The presumption was he attempted to flee and didn't make it.

Most of the bodies lying scattered in the open have bullet holes in the back of the head. In one spot the victims were apparently made to kneel in a 40-foot circle, and were killed by an executioner who walked behind them.

One survivor said the executioner was an SS medical major.

One Russian survivor asserted that 4,700 internees were killed or died of maltreatment in the camp, most of them in recent weeks. American officers regarded that figure as high, but estimated that 1,400 to 1,700 was conservative.

The SS tried to evacuate as many internees as possible when American armored columns made their swift approach, but there was little transport and great confusion, survivors said. Those killed were the ones who had to be left behind, many of them sick.

The camp, known only as Nord Lager of Ohrdruf, was understood to have taken the overflow of internees from the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp.

HANNOVER-MUENDEN, Germany, April 11.—(AP) The people of a little Brunswick province village near here gathered in the main street today to curse and spit upon the local Nazi leader who was captured by American troops as he was trying to escape in disguise.

Maj. [illegible] of El Paso, Texas, [illegible] told him they hated the local boss, known as a "kreisleiter," (district leader) because he had denounced to the Gestapo many of their relatives and friends who were put to death or brutally treated.

A week before the U. S. First Army overran the town, they said, this 6-foot, 2-inch autocrat turned over to the Gestapo 30 persons who were executed.

The kreisleiter, a private in the World war who since had risen to some power in the Nazi ranks, professed amazement that his own neighbors should turn on him, insisting "I have no enemies."

He had tried to slip out of by donning his old World Wa[illegible] form and a long overcoat, but doughboys rounded him up [illegible] put him in a truck with other prisoners bound for a behind-the-lines collecting point.

A German woman recognized him as the truck stopped in the main street a moment, and cried out, "that man is bad, very bad. He is not a soldier."

A military policeman took the kreisleiter off the truck for questioning, and almost immediately a crowd gathered.

"They cursed him and spat on him and probably would have beaten him to death if we hadn't kept him in custody," said Bartlett.

"He contended that the people who cursed him were only the scum of the town.

Among the stories the villagers told against their former chief was this one:

Shortly before the American breakthrough at St. Lo in France last July, a meek, mild-mannered little man entered a local bakery and noticed the baker was wearing a Nazi button in his lapel.

"Before long it will be a good idea to wear that button under your lapel, because the Americans will be here," said the customer.

The baker informed the kreisleiter and the customer was arrested by the Gestapo and convicted of subversive talk.

A little later he was sent to a "sanitarium" where he underwent an operation. When he returned home he was blind, and in four months he was dead.

The kreisleiter said he could prove that the operation had been for the little man's own good, but the townspeople howled him down.

Germans Busy at Ballbearing Plant When Yanks Took Town

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Associated Press Photographer Jim Pringle went into Schweinfurt Wednesday with the 42nd Infantry Division of the U. S. Seventh army and wrote the following account of what he saw):

By JIM PRINGLE

SCHWEINFURT, Germany, April 11—(AP) The Germans were still making ballbearings in this place until the Americans entered.

This is Schweinfurt, which the Eighth Air Force found so hard to knock out in the fall of 1943.

Either the raiders missed their mark or the Germans have an amazing facility to rebuild, for I was inside one of the larger ballbearing plants a few minutes ago and the machinery was intact. Many shiny, marble-like bearings were in evidence.

Since the Americans entered the city, a terrific blast has shattered one plant. It was due to a German time-charge, as the enemy apparently knew the Americans would be eager to examine the plants first of all. I don't know whether the explosion caused many casualties.

Much of Schweinfurt is in ruins, amid which scores of snipers still are sending bullets down the streets and over the rooftops. But dusty doughboys are worming their way steadily through the town and it shouldn't be long before this target can be forever written off the Allied Air Forces' list.

102 Executions Halt Revolt

TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, April 11 (AP).—Reliable information reaching this headquarters today said 102 members of the German Air Force were executed by the Germans on March 31 in an effort to stop an officers' revolt. Among those executed, it was said, was a general named Baber.

Thousands Of Nazi V-Bombs Downed

SHAEF, April 11, 1945—Anti-aircraft gun crews of the United States 9th Air Force shot down 60 per cent of the thousands of German [illegible] aimed at Antwerp between October and March, Brig. Gen. William L. Richardson, chief of the 9th Air Defense Command, announced today.

Less than five per cent of the Nazi V-1 and V-2 weapons directed at Antwerp's 40 miles of docks reached the port area, and the remaining percentage of bombs launched went wide of the target, Richardson said.

An average of more than twenty V-bombs daily were fired at Antwerp in the six months covered by the announcement and some days as many as 150 bombs set off.

Stubborn Street Fighting in Brunswick Slows Other Elements of 9th Army

WITH THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION, in Germany, April 11 (AP)—After a brief stand around the Hermann Goering works south of Brunswick, German resistance crumbled again today as forward forces of the Ninth Army drove on to the Elbe River at Magdeburg.

The Second Armored Division's Eighty-Second Reconnaissance Forces were averaging four miles an hour at the time this was written. Powerful armored forces of this division and infantry were rolling a mile or two behind them on a front almost ten miles wide.

The German garrison at Brunswick was putting up a stubborn street fight against the Thirtieth Division of the Ninth Army, but both north and south of the aircraft manufacturing center German resistance crumbled. The German High Command simply does not have the manpower to hold any front more than two or three miles wide. The Americans' hard-hitting forces simply build up to and then fly around German pockets and clean them up at leisure.

However, south of Brunswick there are not even any pockets to date and the old "Hell on Wheels" division is moving as it did through Sicily. Tens of thousands of slave laborers in the great built-up area south of Brunswick were liberated by the American's advance. Starving workers rioted and stormed shops until the Ninth Army's troops put them under the control of units arranged for handling them.

Most workers had been in forced labor in the Hermann Goering steel network, which stretches for miles south of Brunswick. Many of these plants are scattered and underground, providing a formidable fighting obstacle.

The area is protected by hundreds of anti-aircraft and railroad guns. One task-force leader, Lieut. Col. Hugh R. O'Farrell of Athens, Ga., said that the artillery concentrations were the heaviest fought against in this war.

The Second Armored Division swept around and then overran the area that centers around Wolfenbuttel, which fell early this morning. Four railroad guns were taken. More than 1,000 prisoners were captured by the Second Armored Division up to 11 A. M., Lieut. Col. Eugene Traham of Lafayette, La., reported.

One combat team under Col. Sidney Hinds of Nashville, Tenn., took Watenstedt, some thirty-three miles from the Elbe, at noon today and pushed rapidly on. The Fortieth Division captured in the outskirts of Brunswick several air fields loaded with planes apparently assembled from factories there. The city was flattened by American bombers. The Thirtieth's advance also overran one of Germany's few oil-producing areas. Several score oil wells are already well behind the front.

Coburg Was Nazi Ideological Shrine

Lochner

With U.S. 7th Army, April 11 (AP). Coburg is another in the procession of Nazi ideological shrines to be taken by the American drive.

It was at Coburg that the Nazis held their first convention in 1922, with the permission of Duke Charles Edward, a grandson of Queen Victoria of England. The date was [illegible] Deutscher Tag (German Day).

It was at Coburg that the first Nazi city administration was elected in 1922.

It was at Coburg that one of the most important subsidiary organizations of the Nazi party—the Nationalsozialistische Kraftfahr Korps (National Socialist Motor Corps) held its annual reviews, beginning in 1935. The NSKK was a camouflaged military organization which furnished trained motor personnel to the army.

Was An Early Nazi

It was at Coburg that the Nazis, in Hohenfels castle, established a national training school for women leaders.

Charles Edward was among the earliest of Nazis. He was related to many persons of royal lineage, many of them British, through Queen Victoria. By marriage he was related to Prussian royalty. Thus, he lent glamor to the Nazi cause.

Hitler, quick to evaluate the propaganda worth of Charles Edward's name and lineage, appointed him chairman of the German Red Cross, and as such the Duke and his entourage, made a trip around the world. He even visited President Roosevelt.

The Duke was a figurehead on that mission. The moving spirit was the Nazi Ambassador, Stahmer, who during the Red Cross trip promoted the Japanese-German Alliance, and who later was made German Ambassador to Tokyo.

BARUCH PAYS VISIT TO PATTON'S ARMY

President's Advisor Holds Park Bench Conference in Frankfurt.

By EDWARD D. BALL

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY IN GERMANY, April 12—(delayed)—(AP) Bernard M. Baruch, special advisor to President Roosevelt, visited Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., and the Third Army area today.

(Three sections of this dispatch were stopped by censor except for the words: "Quote Allies won't—" The dispatch then resumed.)

Asked if he came to Germany on a mission for Roosevelt, Baruch replied, "The President expressed hope I could come—and here I am. Let's call it a look-see trip."

The elder statesman said and to Germany for postwar rebuilding would be a matter for the Allies to decide. Asked to elaborate, he said, "I had some very definite ideas about what to do in this direction but it is best I keep them to myself for the time being."

While in Germany Baruch visited bomb-flattened Frankfurt and held a park-bench conference under bright sunshine with Allied military government officials in charge of the city.

Baruch said he had skipped Paris and came to Germany from London because "I wanted to get a look at the greatest military achievement in history.

"And I came direct to the Third Army from London," he laughed, turning to Gen. Patton, "because I wanted to see exhibit A in this great accomplishment."

4,000 PLANES RIP BAVARIA

3 Air Attacks Made Against Berlin By Night

London, Thursday, April 12 (AP)—Allied planes pounded Germany again during the night after a day in which more than 4,000 medium and heavy bombers and fighters blasted the Nazis' southern arsenal area and pounded traffic in front of the Allied armies.

The [illegible] reported that between 10 P.M., and midnight three separate air attacks were made against the Berlin area.

During the day United States 9th Air Force flyers, who made more than 1,500 fighter-bomber sorties, reported they destroyed 74 German planes on the ground on fields around Brunswick, Halle, Jena and Erfurt and at Eger in Czechoslovakia.

17 FW-190's Downed

In an hour-long dogfight northwest of Magdeburg, United States Thunderbolts shot down seventeen new Focke-Wulf 190's while protecting the 2d Armored Division spearhead that reached the Elbe at Magdeburg.

These kills raised to at least 898 the number of enemy planes destroyed in five days. The 9th reported loss of twelve planes during the day.

The United States 8th Air Force which Tuesday destroyed 322 German planes in the Berlin area, reported seeing not a single one yesterday.

2 Targets Listed

Bombing and strafing in clear weather, they reported excellent results against these targets.

An oil storage depot, an ordnance depot and an airfield, all at Regensburg; an airfield and railway yards at Ingolstadt; an explosives plant at Kraiburg east of Munich; an ordnance depot at Landshuit; an oil storage depot at Freiham, west of Munich; and railway yards at Treuchlintgen, Neumarkt, Donauworth and Amburg.

Meanwhile, about 300 British heavy bombers plus fighter escorts hit railway yards at Neurnberg and Bayreuth.

As the 8th Air Force fleet dumped 3,600 tons of explosives on vital targets, the 9th Tactical raiders reported they shot up 1,400 German vehicles in the vicinity of the 3d Army advancing from the Eisenach area, knocked out five tanks in that sector, and destroyed 100 freight carloads of bombs and motor trucks.

Ninth Day In Row

It was the ninth consecutive day of heavy bomber attacks on the Reich and the fifth straight day that all bombing was carried off visually as the Reich target became more compact hourly by the pressure of advancing Allied armies.

The latest heavy assaults followed RAF assaults Tuesday night on Leipzig and three Mosquito attacks on Berlin.

Red Army Troops Storm Danube Canal in Vienna

Massive Tank Battle Raging on Historic Napoleonic Battlefield.

Wheeler

LONDON, Thursday, April 12—(AP) Red army tanks cut one of the last remaining German escape routes from Vienna yesterday while shock troops stormed across the Danube canal within the city and that part of the Austrian capital lying on the Danube's south bank.

Hurdling the canal, a former branch of the Danube, Russian tommy-gunners captured half of the nine-mile-long island where fanatical [illegible] troops were making a [illegible] between the canal and the Danube.

The Russians won control of the southernmost of Vienna's five bridges across the Danube, but the Moscow radio said SS men were dynamiting the spans.

Northeast of Vienna, a massive tank battle raged on the historic Napoleonic battleground of the Marchfeld plain. The Germans battled to stave off Red army encirclement, but the Russians lashed across a secondary escape railroad running north to Lundenburg and the Czechoslovak city of Bruenn (Brno).

As the Moscow radio reported buildings crashing down and smoke spiralling high over Vienna, Berlin said that the Red army had driven 42 miles west of the Austrian capital toward Linz and Munich in a sweep along the Danube valley, a classic invasion route to Bavaria.

The enemy said that tanks of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army had lanced westward to the Danube bend between Krems and Melk, 50 miles from Linz and 75 miles from Bavaria. If true, it meant the Russians were within 116 miles of Berchtesgaden, Adolf Hitler's mountain top retreat.

In Czechoslovakia, meanwhile, the Second and Fourth Ukrainian armies linked in the Carpathian mountains and cleared a supply road from Poland to the Vienna front.

Tolbukhin's assault teams in Vienna raced under Nazi mortar fire across the Danube canal, captured one of the canal bridges intact, and battled on to the island from the southeast while artillery raked that last German defense area on the Danube's south bank from three sides.

The Russians captured the Vienna electric power station beyond the canal and cleared the entire Prater park area of German resistance, Moscow's midnight communique said. The Prater park was Vienna's main amusement center, with beautiful boulevards and restaurants. In it are Vienna's new stadium, the Freudenau race-course and the rotunda, built for the international exhibition of 1873.

Pressing along the silver-like island, the Russians pushed into the hold-up area with flame-throwers and mobile guns and engaged the fanatical enemy garrison which included Luftwaffe pilots, sailors, Volkssturmers, SS men and even boys from Junkers schools, and broke into the Jewish quarter of Leopoldstadt.

Commercial Leopoldstadt is one of the last three city districts held by the Germans who were fighting from cellars, behind monuments and overturned trolleys and from their own burned-out tanks. The city district of Brigittenau also lies on the island, while across the Danube is Floridsdorf.

In Prater park, the Russians won the approches to the Ostbahn bridge across the Danube to Floridsdorf, but Moscow indicated that it had been blown up. Fighting in the narrow island area cost the Germans 4,000 dead and 2,300 prisoners Tuesday, Moscow said.

Northeast of Vienna, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army slixed over one of three secondary railroads to Bruenn by capturing Raggendorf, five miles from the main supply highway to that city. The highway was under violent artillery fire, Moscow dispatches said.

Malinovsky's troops captured Raggendorf while expanding their bridgehead across the Morava river to a front of 35 miles with a new crossing of the river in the Duerkrut area, 22 miles northeast of Vienna and 49 miles south of Bruenn.

Bitter Tank Battle

In a swaying tank battle, Malinovsky's armored forces were driving on the key junction of Mistelbach, 19 miles north of Vienna and controlling all the escape railroads northward. They pushed within 10 miles southeast of the town by taking Spannburg village.

Some 130 miles northeast of Vienna, meanwhile, Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's Fourth Ukrainian army linked with mountain fighters of Malinovsky's army in the Carpathian belt and together cleared the Turiec, Orava and upper Vah river valleys in advances of 18 miles over four days.

With Czechoslovak and Romanian troops fighting side by side with the Russians, the Red army captured Vrutky, a five-way road and rail junction at the Vah-Turiec Confluence and thereby cleared a railroad supply route from Krakow to Bratislava.

Capture of Vrutky carried the Russians within 10 miles southeast of Zilina which, following the fall of Trencin Tuesday, is the last Vah river valley junction on the direct Bratislava-Moravska Ostrava railroad through the Jablunka pass.

In the mountains, the Russians also captured the town of Turiansky Svaty-Martin and more than 40 villages along a 23-mile front.

The Moscow radio said that the Germans had "doomed Vienna to destruction" and were blowing up priceless architectural monuments to slow the Russian advance.

VIENNA IS ALMOST ALL CLEAR AS REDS STORM OVER CANAL

Final Elimination of Nazi Holdout Force Seems Matter of Hours.

London, April 11 (A. P.).—The Russians announced tonight that the Red Army had stormed across the Danube Canal in Vienna and cleared the Germans from part of their remaining stronghold lying between the canal and the Danube River.

Russian accounts also said that the right wing of Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army had invaded the central Czecho-Slovak province of Moravia at points less than thirty-five miles from the great city of Bruenn (Brno). Farther north, the Germans said that other Russian forces, in an all-out assault to reduce the Oder River fortress of Breslau, had stormed into Richthofen Square, in that Silesian city.

Inside Vienna the rag-tag Nazi force, including school boys, pilots and sailors fighting as infantry, had been pushed back on an island against the Danube by Russian storm units sweeping forward in hand-to-hand fighting. Complete elimination of this enemy holdout group appeared likely in a matter of hours.

Red Army storm units were operating in the three-mile long, half-mile wide crescent of land between the Danube River and the Danube Canal—an area which includes the old Jewish quarter of Leopoldstadt and the Brigittenau and Prater commercial districts. Everything west and south of the canal had been mopped up by the Russians.

There was no indication that the Germans yet had blown the four bridges over the Danube, one of which probably already is in Russian hands, a Moscow dispatch said. The Germans could fight their way eastward across the Danube on the two main bridges—Reichsbruecke and Floridsdorfg—but once on the other side the Nazis would face the gun muzzles of Marshal Malinovsky's men, who already had closed in on the only escape road to Bruenn.

Shells Fired Into Ring.

Other dispatches reported that German artillerymen surrounded in the famed Vienna woods fired shells into the city's ancient Ring, smashing buildings and stores before they finally were liquidated. Ukrainians, Russians and White Russians, brought as slave labor to Vienna by the Germans, were liberated from the city's cellars.

Marshal Malinovsky's drive into Moravia was made in the area north of the captured Varg River city of Trencin, Moscow dispatches said. The Russian Army newspaper Red Star reported that Marshal Malinovsky's men also had reached the Morava River at a new point, opposite Hodonin (Goeding), and were preparing to storm that city, twenty-eight miles southeast of Bruenn.

By enemy account, Marshal Malinovsky's units also were closing in on Luddenburg (Breclav), thirteen miles southwest of Hodonin, in Czecho-Slovakia. DNB, German news agency, called this area "one of the focal points on the southern front, where the Russians have scored a deep penetration."

A Berlin military spokesman warned that "huge Russian concentrations were observed" along the whole front inside Germany from Silesia to Stettin, and said that "these concentrations doubtless were preparatory for the impending offensive" against Berlin.

Nearly 6,000 German dead were counted in Vienna's streets and suburbs from yesterday until this morning. Moscow dispatches said that numerous Germans were being captured.

Northwest and northeast of the city, two powerful Russian armies completed a full encirclement of Vienna. Eight miles to the northeast, the town of Deutsch Wagram was captured, bringing Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army within three and one-half miles of the German rail escape route northward to Brno (Bruenn) in Czechoslovakia.

Red Guns Pound Nazis

Firing from three directions, Russian artillery was raking the Germans compressed within the three-mile-long, half-mile wide crescent of land between the river and canal—the old Jewish quarter of Leopoldstadt and the Brigittenau and Prater commercial districts.

East and north of the Danube, Malinovsky's forces seized a dozen of Vienna's suburbs, from Deutsch Wagram on the Marchfield Plain in the north, where Napoleon defeated Archduke Charles in 1809, to Muehleiten, near the river on the south. In addition to cleaning up the districts of Vienna lying west and south of the canal, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army spread out along the Danube to the northeast and, by some unofficial accounts, had crossed to the east bank.

Moscow announced last night that on Monday 2,000 Germans were captured along with 72 tanks and 75 field guns inside the city. In one section, 3,000 German dead were counted.

In Slovakia, units of Malinovsky's Army slashed ahead northeast and north of Bratislava. They captured Trencin, on the east bank of the Vah River barely 80 miles from Gen. Andrei Yeremanko's Fourth Ukrainians driving down from the north.

Recapitulating the losses inflicted on the enemy in the capture of the East Pussian capital of Koenigsberg, Moscow announced that 42,000 Germans had been killed and 92,000 captured in the five-day final assault. Fifty thousand prisoners were taken when the city fell Monday.

Former Premier In Polish Mixup

London, April 11 (AP)—Reports that 70-year-old Wincenty Witos, former Premier of Poland, left his home twelve days ago in the company of Soviet agents for an "unknown destination" aroused speculation in London tonight that Russia was planning to sponsor a new independent Polish coalition Government.

Both the United States and Britain have held firm to a decision reached at Yalta by the Big Three that only representatives of a Polish Government of national unity would be invited to the world San Francisco security conference. Russia has sought a bid for the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw provisional Government in event the Poles failed to form a coalition Government in time.

Churchill To Speak

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced in Commons today that Prime Minister Churchill, possibly Thursday, April 19, would deal specifically with the work of a three-man commission set up in Moscow to create a "new national unity administration" for Poland and "certain other aspects of the Russo-Polish relations."

The fact that Churchill planned to discuss the Polish problem in Commons suggested the Allies hoped to unravel the snarled question in time to permit Polish representation at the San Francisco conference opening April 25.

15 Others Disappear

The Polish exiled Government in London—at odds with Moscow and also without an invitation to the world security conference—announced that Witos, founder of the Peasant party, had left his home at Wierzchoslawice, in Krakow province, March 31 with four Soviet agents and had not been heard from since.

Fifteen other Polish leaders were reported by the exiled Government recently to have disappeared after leaving their homeland on the invitation of Moscow to visit London and discuss formation of a "national unity" provisional Government.

Russia Believed Assembling Own Polish Coalition Regime

Ex-Premier Witos Unreported After Leaving With Soviet Agents—Churchill to Speak on Poland Next Week.

London, April 11 (A. P.).—The Polish Government-in-Exile said today that Wincenty Witos, 70-year-old former Premier, left his home in Krakow province with Soviet agents for an unannounced destination twelve days ago and had not been reported since. The announcement raised speculation that Soviet Russia might be planning to sponsor independently a new Polish coalition government at Warsaw.

Foreign Secretary Eden informed Commons that Prime Minister Churchill would deal with Russian-Polish relations and the Three-Power Commission set up in Moscow to create a new national unity government for Poland in a speech in Commons, probably on Thursday of next week.

The fact that Mr. Churchill plans to speak suggested that the Allies may untangle the situation in time for Poland to be represented at the San Francisco conference.

The Polish Government's announcement said that Mr. Witos, three times Premier and leader of the Peasant party, went away with four Soviet agents, three dressed in civilian clothes and one in uniform, on March 31 and "since that time there has been no news at all about his whereabouts."

Eden Touches on Rumania.

Mr. Eden said Mr. Churchill's remarks next week would deal specifically with work in Moscow of a Big Three commission concerning a new Polish provisional government and would touch also on "certain other aspects of Russo-Polish relations."

Of the Romanian situation, the Foreign Secretary said he understood that the Soviet Government acquired Bessarabia and Northen Bucovina under an agreement with the Romanian Government on June 28, 1940, and that persons who left these territories without permission of the Russian authorities were being returned. Capt. James A. Duncan, Conservative, declared that "something should be done" to give these persons an opportunity to decide for themselves whether to return, but Mr. Eden replied that Britain had no responsibility in the agreement and he did not see where she had an official interest in the question.

Mystery of Missing Officials.

Elsewhere a reliable authority said the British Government lacked information on the whereabouts of fifteen prominent Polish political leaders reported missing by their exiled government in London. The exiled government said they disappeared after leaving their homeland on the invitation of Moscow to visit London and discuss prospective formation of the "national unity" provisional government provided for in the Crimea Conference. A statement acknowledging the possibility that the fifteen might be in Moscow discussing this subject came from the government in exile last night, with the observation that if this was true it violated "the spirit and letter" of the Yalta declaration.

Laborite Richard Stokes told Mr. Eden he had heard rumors that Russia was to receive 2,000,000 "German male slaves for twenty years" after the war. "The Russians did not ask for 2,000,000 or any other number of male slaves for any time at all," Mr. Eden replied. "All that was said at Yalta was that reparations terms should be discussed at Moscow, and there was no commitment about labor whatever."

Hitler Dying, Himmler Chief In Reich, British Press Says

London, April 11 (AP)—The British press reported without confirmation today that Adolf Hitler, broken in health and perhaps dying, has been forced by the Nazis to yield control over the toppling Reich to Heinrich Himmler.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was asked in Commons whether he could confirm a report that Hitler had been assassinated, but he brushed it aside in a manner indicating he gave it no credence.

The United States 12th Army Group headquarters received information meanwhile that 102 members of the Luftwaffe, including a General Baber, were executed by the Germans March 31 in an effort to quell a rebellion of army officers. Headquarters said the information was reliable.

Word Held Authoritative

The London newspapers amplified a report issued by the British Press Association which said its diplomatic correspondent has authoritative information that Hitler already has been superseded by Himmler, and that Hitler is "a dying man."

Possibly indicative of a growing anti-Hitlerism in the Reich, the German radio commentator Felix Schmidt-Becker tonight blasted at "pseudo-politicians, often sitting in responsible posts," who "insinuate it is perhaps better to take the Führer's picture off the walls because one never knows."

"These people," he said, "whether conscious or unconscious traitors, should be threatened with the gallows. They are often promoters of doubt in innocent German souls."

V-Day With Linkup Seen

Regardless of whether the reports of Hitler's last days are premature, the spectacular advances of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies toward a linkup with the Russians left no doubt that the Third Reich is collapsing and that, if Himmler actually is taking over from Hitler, he is becoming the head of a state which virtually has ceased to exist.

It is expected here that V-day in Europe will be declared once Eisenhower's forces have linked with the Russians, and the Russian and American high commands have decided that organized resistance on both the Eastern and Western fronts has been liquidated.

New Hitler Unit Created

London newspapers gave significance to a German radio broadcast announcing that Himmler had decreed Germany would dispense this year with its usual celebration of Hitler's birthday April 20 "in view of the war situation."

The German radio, however, also broadcast that Hitler himself had ordered today the creation of a new desperation defense organization, presumably a sort of companion guerrilla unit to the werevolves.

The new unit is called the "Volunteer Corps Adolf Hitler" and has orders to "beat the enemy wherever he is met," but the broadcast did not make clear how Hitler hoped this could be done since it mentioned as the volunteers' only Government-furnished equipment small arms, bicycles, boots and mess outfits.

The werevolves were organized to fight secretly behind the lines, but the volunteer Hitler corps, the broadcast indicated, would fight in the open.

Hitler Assassination Rumor Is Heard by M. P. in London.

London, April 11 (A. P.).—A report that Adolf Hitler has been assassinated circulated in Britain today, but Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said that he had heard nothing about it. Capt. John H. McEwen raised the question of the rumor in the House of Commons, declaring that he had heard the Foreign Office was "directly responsible" for it and asking confirmation.

Mr. Eden replied that "as usual, the 1922 committee knows information before the Foreign Office." The 1922 committee, of which Capt. McEwen is secretary, is the extreme right-wing faction of the Conservative party.

The British Press Association reported a grave split developing among the Nazis and said that eivdence had reached official quarters in London that the Nazi party was throwing over Hitler in favor of Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief. There was no confirmation from the British Foreign Office.

Without specifying the source of its information, the news agency's diplomatic correspondent said he had been informed authoritatively that there were good reasons to believe that Hitler already was being superseded by Himmler. Foreigners who have been in the closest touch with Germany are convinced that Hitler is a dying man, the correspondent added.

The Foreign Office said that it was operating on the theory that Hitler was in control, with Himmler in command of the defense forces. One spokesman said that nothing definite had been received of a split among Nazi leaders.

As to Hitler's condition, he said, all kinds of reports are heard—that he is dying, insane or even dead, and "any one of them may be true, but probably most of them aren't."

Anti-Hitlerism Growing.

Possibly indicative of a growing anti-Hitlerism in the Reich, the German radio commentator Felix Schmidt-Becker tonight blasted at "pseudo-politicians, often sitting in responsible posts," who "insinuate it is perhaps better to take the Fuehrer's picture off the walls because one never knows."

"These people," he said, "whether conscious or unconscious traitors, should be threatened with the gallows. They are often promoters of doubt in innocent German souls."

Hitler's fifty-sixth birthday will not be celebrated by Germans in the usual manner this year, Himmler decreed today in his capacity as Minister of the Interior.

"In view of the war situation," said a broadcast of DNB, Nazi news agency, "Governmental offices and all other public services will work as usual April 20, Hitler's birthday, according to a decree of the Minister of the Interior."

'Corps of Stalwarts.'

The creation of a new Volunteer Corps Adolf Hitler" under orders to "beat the enemy wherever he is met" was announced in a German broadcast today. It would be a corps of stalwarts, the broadcast said, who would be expected to "attack and destroy advanced enemy tank spearheads and carry out demolitions." But small arms and bicycles were the only equipment mentioned for issue to the corps other than boots and mess outfits.

Each rural district was asked to supply the names of four or five volunteers, the announcement said. The broadcast said that Dr. Robert Ley, chief of the Reich's labor front, would direct the corps "in action in widely differing roles." The corps would differ from Werewolves in that it is to fight openly.

RUSSIA LABOR AID OPPOSED

Commons Bloc Calls For Great Britain's Refusal

London, April 11 (AP)—A small Laborite bloc in Commons demanded tonight that Great Britain oppose any terms for Germany which would provide "slave labor" for Russia.

The demand was pressed even after Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, assured Commons that Russia had not asked for "male slaves for any time at all" when the question of reparations was raised at the Crimea conference. He said, however, that he was not ruling out the possibility that Moscow at some later date would insist that German labor repair war damage.

Tells Of Rumor

Richard R. Stokes, Laborite and one of the leading Catholic members of Commons, said he had heard a rumor that Russia planned to insist on a "supply of 2,000,000 male slave laborers from Germany for twenty years after cessation of hostilities."

Stokes called upon the Government to "explode" the rumor if it was untrue and declared Britain should "resist any suggestion that there should be an arrangement of this kind for slave labor at the expense of the vanquished."

Two other Laborites, John J. Tinker and Rhys Davies, joined Stokes before George Hall, Foreign Under Secretary, brought the discussion to a close.

BATTLESHIP SCHEER SUNK

10,000-Ton German Craft Sent Down By RAF

London, April 11 (AP)—The German 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer—one of the two most formidable warships left in the German Navy—has been bombed and sunk at the Kiel naval base, the British Air Ministry announced tonight.

The loss leaves Germany only one other pocket battleship, the Luetzow. The disaster was the most serious to the German Navy since the sinking of the big battleship Tirpitz last November.

British bombers sent the Admiral Scheer to the bottom with their bombs last Monday night as it rode in the inner basin at Kiel naval base, the Ministry said.

Aided Baltic Evacuation

Reconnaissance had detected the battleship in the Kiel harbor only two days before. It had fled there when the Baltic port of Gdynia was taken by the Russians. The Admiral Scheer had previously played an important part in the defense and evacuation of German pockets of resistance on the Baltic coast.

Confirmation of the sinking climaxed a series of recent Allied air raids on Germany's main ports in a methodical program of destroying her sea power. The Allies counted 28 warships and merchant vessels sunk in these raids, including the Admiral Scheer and the 6,000-ton light cruiser Koeln and eight submarines.

Reported In Denmark

The Admiral Scheer, of the same class as the Admiral Graf Spee, which the Germans scuttled in December, 1939, after a naval battle off Montevideo, was a rich prize which the navy and RAF had narrowly missed bagging on other occasions.

The Admiral Scheer was bombed at Kiel as recently as April 4, and in February was reported to have taken refuge at Bernholm, Denmark, damaged and "on the run" from pursuit.

The loss leaves Germany, besides the Luetzow, two 8-inch-gun cruisers, the Hipper and Prince Eugen, and the light cruisers Nuernberg and Emden.

Had Six 11-Inch Guns

The Admiral Scheer carried six 11-inch guns and a full complement of 926 men. The ship was 609¼ feet over all, carrying two aircraft launched by a catapult, and was capable of 26 knots and a cruising radius of 10,000 miles at 15 knots.

The Admiral Scheer belonged to a class developed by German naval architects because of a Versailles treaty provision limiting Germany's naval vessels to 10,000 tons displacement, compared to the 35,000 tons allowed the victorious powers of the last war. She was a Diesel-powered ship.

SCHEER SUNK BY R. A. F.

London, April 11 (A. P.).—Reconnaissance shows that the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer was sunk in the R. A. F. attack on the Kiel naval base the night of April 9, the British Air Ministry announced today.

The 10,000-ton Admiral Scheer was a sister ship of the Admiral Graf Spee, which was damaged by the British in a naval battle off Montevideo and scuttled by her Nazi crew December 17, 1939.

Occupation Zone Shifted

France Receives Part of Area in Germany Assigned to Britain

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—France has received part of the British zone of occupation of Germany under plans of the four-power European Advisory Commission which she recently joined. The arrangement appears to be more a bilateral agreement between Britain and France than a joint plan for carving out a separate district for French control.

An authoritative source reported that a separate control commission and separate zone of occupation would be set up for Austria, which will be cut from Germany after the Allied victory. The Austrian control commission will function independently.

Hamburg Gauleiter Flees

London, April 11 (AP)—The Luxembourg radio said today that the Nazi gauleiter of Hamburg had fled the city as Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops drove toward the big German port.

SHAW SEES LONG WAR IN PACIFIC

London, April 11 (A. P.).—George Bernard Shaw, asked how he planned to celebrate the impending end of the European war, declared today:

"I don't intend to celebrate it at all. The war won't be over on V day. It will go on for a long time against Japan."

The same question brought these other diverse responses:

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, joint president of the League of Nations Union—"I'll go to church; I hope every one else will."

Prof. Gilbert Murray, educator—"I want to go to sleep for a long time."

Mrs. Edwin Smith, housewife—"I'm going to make Yorkshire pudding with a fresh egg."

Ministry Of Aviation Bill Passed

London, April 11 (AP)—The House of Commons passed a bill tonight creating a separate Ministry of Aviation, following a government spokesman's declaration that Britain must have supremacy in peacetime flying.

Juliana Arrives In London

London, April 11 (AP) — Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands arrived at an airfield near London today after flying the Atlantic from Canada in a Liberator of the RAF Transport Command. She was welcomed by Queen Wilhelmina.

PACT OF FRIENDSHIP

LONDON, Thursday, April 12—(AP) The Moscow radio announced today that a pact of friendship and mutual assistance has been signed by the Soviet union and Yugoslavia.

Liner Georgic Salvaged To Become Troopship

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, April 11—The Cunard-White Star liner Georgic, damaged by fire and sunk by bombs at Suez three years ago, has been salvaged and transformed into one of the world's finest troop ships, the Ministry of War Transport announced today after a trial run.

The rebuilt 27,000-ton motor ship has recreation rooms, motion picture halls and spacious sleeping and mess quarters, constructed in the nineteen months since the vessel was raised and returned to Britain.

Liechtenstein as Refuge.

Paris, April 11 (A. P.).—French officials say that they suspect some high Nazi officials may seek refuge in the independent principality of Liechtenstein, on the Austro-Swiss frontier. This possibility was reported to have been heightened by the transfer of a number of important French political prisoners, including Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier and Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, to the Inn Valley, which twists through the Oetzthaler Alps and links with the Arl Valley, leading to Liechtenstein and Switzerland.

Liechtenstein is a postage stamp country of 6,000 population. In pre-war times its armed force consisted of fewer than a dozen gendarmes.

U. S., France in Damage Pact

PARIS, April 11 (AP)—France and the United States reached an agreement today on the method of settling claims for damages done in France by American soldiers. The agreement covers claims arising from traffic and other accidents or losses suffered through the fault of American personnel, but does not cover war destruction. After acceptance by American authorities the claims will be paid by France and the amounts added to lend-lease accounts.

Vichy Detective Chief Doomed

PARIS, April 11 (AP).—Lucien Henri Rotee, former Vichy chief of detectives, was condemned to death today at the close of a trial in which he was charged with denouncing and arresting French resistance patriots and torturing them for the sheer love of torture. The audience applauded as the court ruled Rotee must surrender his membership in the French Legion of Honor because he was unworthy of it.

BRITISH DRIVE TO SANTERNO

8th Army 4 Miles Past Senio; Yanks Near Carrara

Rome, April 11 (AP)—The British 8th Army has burst out of its bridgehead across the Senio River against strong opposition and reached the Santerno River at many places, it was announced tonight.

Other units of the 8th Army have landed on the shore of Lake Comacchio, 4 miles behind the German positions in an amphibious leap-frog operation, a special communiqué disclosed.

At the same time the American 5th Army was reported to have advanced more than 3 miles north of Massa against heavy resistance. Americans also pushed nearer Carrara.

Nazis Announce Success

Success of the 8th Army put British, New Zealand, Indian and Polish troops at least 4 miles beyond the Senio as Allied headquarters announced capture of four towns and said the enemy defenses on the Senio River had been "breached on a broad front."

The German radio said a "first-class" battle has developed between Lake Commacchio and the Via Emilia, where the British are attacking on a 20-mile front.

[The Nazi Transocean agency broadcast claimed the Germans wiped out the first line of the British and then withdrew to the Santerno sector.]

Eighth Army troops who landed behind enemy lines at Lake Comacchio captured a bridge and more than 100 prisoners.

1,200 Germans Seized

Eighth Army forces of five nationalities—British, New Zealand, Indian, Italian and Polish—took part in the new attack, many of them sloshing through flooded territory in the low ground of the Po Valley. A special announcement added Alfonside to the list of captured towns; Lugo, Fusignano and Cotiganola. Alfonside fell to Italian troops, while other forces pushed more than 2 miles west of the town.

Forces reaching the Santerno River encountered heavy fire from German artillery and Tiger tanks. Opposition at the river was officially described as "stiff." Enemy tanks and anti-tank weapons were reported along the river all the way between Sagata and Mordano. Allied troops reached the river opposite Mordano at noon after a swift advance of nearly 2 miles.

In the first day of the British drive 1,200 Germans were captured.

More than 1,000 tactical aircraft supported the 8th Army attack, pounding targets in the battle area and blasting communications and supplies. B-25 medium bombers, concentrating on enemy troops and supply between Argenta and Lake Comacchio, flew some 400 sorties, while on the opposite end of the line other medium bombers hit enemy guns at La Spezia.

Mortars Used On Nazis

United States 5th Army troops, led by the tough and experienced 442d Regiment, composed of Japanese-Americans, and the 473d Regiment of the 92d Division, captured Massa on the Italian west coast.

Troops of the 442d Regiment pushed forward across the Frigido River on both sides of Highway 1, reaching Codena, a half mile east of the famous marble center of Carrara. The Japanese-American infantrymen captured some German mortars and turned them on the retreating Nazis. More than 100 prisoners were taken. Troops of the 473d Regiment fought off a German counterattack in platoon strength while other elements of the regiment made another crossing of the Frigido and occupied Lavacchio, 1 mile north of Massa.

The 473d is commanded by Col.

30-27—24689

William T. Yarborough, a native of Washington State.

Liberators Active

On the central Italian front, south of Bologna, the Germans continued to cling to their mountain crag defenses in the rough country below Highway 9.

The ground operations along the Adriatic continued to receive strong aerial support and yesterday more than 750 heavy bombers dropped better than 1,700 tons of fragmentation bombs on enemy strong points in the path of the 8th Army troops.

Medium bombers and fighters concentrated on the immediate battle area while Flying Fortresses and Liberators dropped great loads of bombs on the Brenner Pass railline—bottleneck for supplying German troops in Italy.

Lightnings also attacked rail lines into Austria in an effort to choke off the embattled Nazis in Italy.

BRITISH TAKE 3 STRATEGIC ITALIAN TOWNS

Drive Ahead on 7-Mile Front Past Senio River

Rome, April 11 — (AP) — British Eighth Army troops led by flame-throwing tanks captured Lugo, Fusignano and Cotignola in the opening phase of their offensive across the Senio River on the eastern flank of the Italian front, Allied headquarters announced today.

Fall of these towns represented advances on a front of at least seven miles in the Eastern Po Valley astride the highway running from Ravenna to Bologna. Lugo lies a mile west of the Senio on the highway. Bologna is some 30 airline miles ahead.

In Western Italy, American troops of the Fifth Army cleared the enemy from the road hub of Massa and pushed on in the direction of La Spezia, major Italian naval base a dozen miles away.

Enemy Lines Breached

"Our troops have breached enemy defenses on the River Senio on a broad front," an Allied communique said.

In the early hours of the new attack, Eighth Army infantry, moving up behind a heavy air bombardment, captured more than 1,200 Germans. Veteran New Zealanders took a prominent role in the assault.

The Eighth Army also was on the move south of Highway 9, the major communication thoroughfare up the Po Valley from Rimini, on the coast, through Forli, Faenza, and Imola to Bologna. A bridgehead was secured across the Upper Senio near Cuffiano, four miles from the highway southwest of Faenza.

In the major attack in the north the initial crossings were made between Fusignano and San Severo. South of that sector extensive minefields and tough resistance slowed the attack, but a bridgehead was formed and during Monday night the crossings were linked up and bridges thrown across the stream. Tanks and artillery poured across. In the extreme north, Italian troops crossed the stream and advanced steadily west of Alfonsine.

Tanks Give Close Support.

Official accounts disclosed that Lieut.-Gen. Sir Richard McCreery, commander of the Eighth Army, had opened his offensive at 7:20 P. M., Monday, and even before full darkness gathered his troops had won a bridgehead 1,000 yards deep. Flame throwers rooted the enemy from whatever defenses remained after the preliminary air pounding.

Tanks gave close support yesterday as infantry shoved on into Lugo, Fusignano and Cotignola, reaching the Lugo Conal. More than 750 heavy bombers swooped over the region again yesterday, dropping more than 1,700 tons of fragmentation bombs on enemy lines and gun posts west of Lugo.

Difficult terrain lies ahead. It is cut every few thousand yards by a river or a canal virtually the entire distance to Bologna.

On the west coast, the Fifth Army was advancing on a front five and one-half miles wide against stiff resistance. The drive is aimed at the big Italian naval base of La Spegia, twelve miles away.

Massa was captured by the 442d Infantry Regiment, composed of Japanese-American troops, and the 473d Regiment of the Ninety-second Infantry Division, a Negro unit. Part of the 473d pushed across the Frigido River. Units of the 442d cleared the village of Pariano, two miles northeast of Massa, and advanced toward the marble-quarrying center of Carrara.

At the head of the Adriatic, light British naval craft intercepted a convoy of German lighters and destroyed two of them with torpedoes. Six enemy planes were shot down yesterday and nine Allied aircraft failed to return.

Failure of U. S. To Take Any Stand On Italian Questions Confuses Rome

By CLARE BOOTHE LUCE
(Member of Congress From Connecticut)

Rome, April 11—(AP)—So far as any observer in Italy today can discover American policy toward this country consists largely of a limited two point program: First to help the Italians feed themselves, and secondly, to return Italy to the Italians as rapidly as possible.

Such a program certainly can hardly be called a foreign policy. A foreign policy would indicate America's stand on combustible problems such as Trieste, restoration of the Italian colonies, and the question of whether to support a constitutional monarchy or a left wing government if the liberation of the north should immediately be accompanied by an outbreak of violent troubles such as that which beset Greece.

Our failure to indicate even a trend of official opinion on these questions has for some months past kept all foreign diplomatic circles in Rome bedeviled and bewildered and has encouraged agitation from every Italian political party. They have spread rumors concerning both American and British post-war intentions.

Meets Big Problem

However, apart from the question of Trieste, upon which all Italians, all parties—left and right—are agreed, America's first program point—to feed Italy—happens to be a question that also most concerns both plain Italian citizen and his existing government.

To the extent that America succeeds in keeping Italy above the danger line of mass starvation we create an atmosphere of goodwill which is bound to make any foreign policy we adopt easier to pursue.

What are the food facts today in Italy? A fact is that since Salerno great masses of Italians in liberated Italy are living only a very little above a subsistence level and that in some large cities and devastated areas there is actual danger of starvation.

But the fact also is that liberated Italy is at last beginning to get foodstuffs from America to alleviate this situation—foodstuffs in amounts that were promised during the months before the last Presidential campaign—and not delivered.

Promises Too Big

Incidentally, the extravagant promises about food made during early 1944 did a great deal of damage to U. S.-Italian relations and complicated problems of the American Government and the Allied Commission in Italy. They "took the rap" for failing to make good on deliveries which shipping and transportation shortages and needs of the battles then in progress made out of the question.

Since July, 1943, there have arrived in Italy 1,300,000 tons of foodstuffs and 185,000 tons of civil supplies, excluding coal and petroleum. During this March 137,000 tons were imported for the use of Italian civilians and this total is being stepped up for the months ahead.

The greatest single factor in the problem of food shortages in Italy is a lack of transportation facilities which make it impossible for local farmers to get their produce to market.

For example, from 1936 to 1939, the Fascist Government had registered 100,000 load-carrying trucks. When the Germans began their retreat from Salerno they destroyed every vehicle in Italy they couldn't move out with their armies.

During last year, the Fifth and Eighth Armies put 500 military trucks at the disposal of the Italian Government and as of today the American Government has landed 818 new trucks for exclusive civilian use and by June 1, a total of 1,700 will be landed and in operation while an additional 1,600 trucks are requisitioned and are expected to arrive by the middle of Summer.

Since November, 1944, 2,338 freight cars have been recovered and returned to service and there is a program under way to bring into Italy hundreds of U. S. Army cars from Sardinia and North Africa. Nevertheless, the continuing problem of transportation can best be understood when it is noted that at the present time there are about 30,000 freight cars in Italy, compared with 150,000 before the fall of Salerno.

Solving Food Problem

All the political agitation of Americans in Italy to the contrary, it is apparent to anyone reaching for facts here that two things are true: First, slowly but surely the American Government is helping break the back of the Italian food question; second, the problem is still a long way from being solved.

For in spite of the best efforts we can make, the situation here may even grow worse. The danger of wild currency inflation is a factor which must constantly be kept in mind. The comparatively recent awareness of the Italian people that all these imported items — trucks, food, other supplies — are to be checked off under reparation clauses of surrender agreements against any goods and services they have provided our armies while on Italian soil increases that danger.

Moreover, the Italian people know now that all the lire issued to the American and British soldiers in pay are to be redeemed by the Italian Government. In short, they've just begun to realize that no matter what America sends them it will not be received for nothing and that the final bill will be charged up to their own government. And here as at home such bills must come out of the pockets of the taxpayer.

This belated understanding of the people that Italy has involuntarily accepted the principle of reverse Lend-Lease is bound to increase the trend toward inflation and induce hoarding of all sorts of goods and commodities.

I have talked to a number of Italians about this reverse Lend-Lease aspect of Italian relief. It is both interesting and heartening to note that whereas they groan at the thought of the heavy tax burden that is bound to fall upon them as a beaten people they don't consider it unjust or unreasonable that they should be obliged to assume them.

Pope Receives R.K.O Official.

Vatican City, April 11 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII today gave a private audience to Frederick Ullman, vice president of R.K.O.

Paper Speculates On Leopold's Exchange

Stockholm, April 11 (AP) — The newspaper Expressen said today there was some hope that King Leopold of Belgium would be exchanged by the Germans by way of Sweden, and speculated that Leopold might be intending to abdicate in favor of his son.

This speculation arose when Prince Carl Bernadotte, brother of Leopold's Queen—the late Astrid of Sweden—purchased the Castle Huseby, near Vaxjo, in southern Sweden for the Royal House of Belgium, the account said. The reported price was 2,500,000 Swedish crowns ($600,000).

Prince Carl Bernadotte, who resigned his Swedish title when he married a countess and was given the title of Belgian Prince by Leopold, was said to be at Castle Laaken at Brussels now, as the guest of Prince Regent Charles of Belgium.

Swedish Fishing Boat Sunk

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 11 (AP)—The 600-ton Swedish fishing boat Ramona was stopped and sunk by a submarine of unknown nationality in international waters south of Karlskrona, it was announced tonight.

Spanish Break With Japanese

Madrid, April 11 (AP)—Spain severed relations with Japan tonight and announced in a Cabinet communiqué that there was "no doubt" that Japanese soldiers murdered Spanish nationals and destroyed Spanish property in Manilla.

The communiqué was issued following a meeting of the Cabinet at which Generalissimo Franco presided.

The communiqué added that "as a result of these exceptionally grave facts, the Spanish Government, esteeming them incompatible with the maintenance of friendly normality between the two countries, has resolved to break diplomatic relations with the Government of Japan, while maintaining a demand for indemnity sent Japan for the loss of life and damage caused to Spanish citizens."

Japanese Minister Yakichiro Suma earlier in the day started to arrange his departure for Portugal but it was reported that Spain would hold him and other Japanese diplomats until Tokyo arranged the safe departure of Spanish diplomats now in Japan.

SPAIN SPLITS WITH JAPAN

MADRID, April 11—(AP)—Spain severed diplomatic relations with Japan today in what apparently was the aftermath of the killing of Spanish Nationals by Japanese soldiers at Manila.

MACAO 'BOMBING' PROTESTED

Lisbon, April 11 (AP)—The government announced today it had protested to Washington concerning an alleged bombing of the Portuguese colony of Macao on the China Coast in which 19 persons were reported killed.

Egypt Seeks Return Of Mummified Head

Cairo, April 11 (AP)—The mummified head of King Tut-ankh-Amen's mother-in-law was reported today to be among the art treasures which the Americans found buried in the Merkeus salt mines in Germany and the Egypitans want it back.

The Egyptians hope they will have better luck persuading the Allied commission of the validity of their claim to the head of their ancient queen than they had with the Germans.

A German expedition to Egypt discovered Queen Nefertiti's head in 1934 and hurried off with it to Germany where it became a chief attraction in the Berlin museum. A series of Egyptian diplomatic protests failed to get the head back.

JAPS ATTACKING IN HONAN SECTOR

Chinese Strike Eastward In Diversionary Thrust

Chungking, April 11 (AP) — The Chinese high command announced tonight that Japanese forces were counterattacking in northwestern Honan province, presumably in an attempt to smash Chinese forces barring the invasion route into Shensi.

The communiqué said the enemy attack was based at Loning, on the Lo River 80 miles from the Shensi border.

The Chinese, in a diversionary thrust eastward, attacked Japanese positions southwest of Shanhsien, on the Lunghai railway 60 miles from the Tungkwan gateway into Shensi. Chinese troops, the high command said, have occupied a number of enemy strong points and killed 200 of the invaders.

Sichwan Recaptured

Chinese troops in southwestern Honan province are continuing their attacks northwest of Sichwan. The high command acknowledged, however, that Sichwan, on the highway 37 miles from the Shensi border, again was in Japanese hands.

Fighting continued west of the Japanese-held road center of Tenghsi, some 80 miles from the Shensi border. More than 100 Japanese were reported killed in attacks against the enemy west of the Han River town of Saigyang, southeast of Laohokow. Three enemy strong points in this sector were recaptured.

The high command, reiterating a previous declaration that 5,000 Japanese were killed when the Chinese beat back a previous attempt several weeks ago by the Japanese to invade Shensi from Honan, disclosed that the invaders at one time occupied Chungyangtien, less than 16 miles from the border. The war bulletin said 21 enemy tanks were destroyed and twelve mountain guns and a large amount of military material, including four field guns, 34 machine guns and 858 rifles were captured.

Planes of the United States Fourteenth Air Force bombed Japanese strong points, troop concentrations and supply depots from Hsinhsiasuchi, on a tributary of the Han River north of Laohokow, southward to Ichang, on the Yangtze.

Chinese Pursue Fleeing Japs In Northwest Honan

Chungking, Apri 11—(AP)—Chinese forces were reported today in hot pursuit of Japanese troops retreating eastward from Changsuichen, Northwestern Honan Province town 70 mies from the Shensi border whose capture was announced last night by the [illegible] High Command.

In Southwestern Honan, where another Japanese threat to Shensi Province had been developing, the Chinese reported their troops advancing eastward from Schwan, 37 miles from the Shensi border, against stiffening enemy resistance.

East of the vital Hankow-Peiping railway, the Chinese said they had fought their way into Junan, 130 miles northeast of Hankow. Fierce street fighting was raging there.

Laohokow, former site of an advanced U. S. air base 200 miles northwest of Hankow, which the Chinese acknowledged yesterday had been entered by the Japanese, was virtually wirtten off as lost.

The Chinese reported, however, that they had recaptured Nanchang, 45 miles south of Laohokow, after it had been taken by the enemy Sunday.

British Press Jap Retreat In Burma

Calcutta, April 11 (AP)—British armored units drove east today from captured Thazi in an effort to interecept Japanese troops attempting to escape eastward into Thailand from central Burma along the Thazi-Taunggyi highway. Taunggyi is 85 miles east of Thazi.

Forward elements of the British column were reported to have reached Hlaingdet, a village 8 miles east of Thazi.

Other British forces pushing southward from Thazi toward Rangoon, 280 miles south, established a roadblock south of Thazi on the main highway and ambushed a column of retreating Japanese troops. In a brief engagement 200 of the invaders were killed and eight artillery pieces captured.

British Indian troops operating directly east and slightly north of the Meiktila area captured a number of guns and supply dumps and inflicted heavy casualties.

Medium bombers of the Eastern Air Command attacked a Japanese supply and troop base at Kyaukpadaung, railhead of a 70-mile branch line southwest of Pyinmana.

British In Burma Push Beyond Thazi

Calcutta, April 11 (AP)—Sweeping beyond captured Thazi, British 14th Army troops were reported closing in today from the north and west against Hlaingdet, eight miles from the main highway to the Shan States of Eastern Burma.

Hlaingdet lies [illegible] miles southeast of Thazi, important hub 14 miles east of the British base at Meiktila.

A Southeast Asia Command communique also said that armored columns operating from Meiktila had inflicted considerable casualties on Japanese remnants in the region.

Allied aircraft ranged over Burma to the south, attacking Japanese concentrations on the road to Rangoon.

ARTILLERY DUELS RAGE ON OKINAWA

American Casualties 2,695 —Japs Losing Men at Rate of 11 to One.

GUAM, Thursday, April 12.—(AP) American casualties of 2,695—432 dead, 2,103 wounded and 160 missing—in the first nine days of the Okinawa invasion were announced today by Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz as U. S. Marines and infantrymen fought bitterly on both ends of the rain-swept island just 325 miles south of Japan.

Doughboys of Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Army corps were stalemated in the southern sector for the seventh straight day amid a full-blown artillery duel, and for the first time since the Easter Sunday invasion the Marines in the north ran into organized resistance.

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine amphibious corps scored some advances but their speed was slowed materially. The Leathernecks hold about two-thirds of the Notobu peninsula on Okinawa's west coast.

The Americans on the vital Ryukyu island were killing Japanese at the rate of more than 11 to one, considerably less than the ratio on Iwo Jima and Saipan. The American casualties were up to midnight Monday. By Sunday midnight the enemy had lost 5,009 dead and 222 prisoners, but much heavy fighting has been under way since then.

Lines Unchanged

Admiral Nimitz again reported "no substantial changes in the lines" in the southern sector, where the strongly-entrenched Japanese were pouring in artillery, mortar and small arms fire in increasing amounts. The action, fought along the "Little Siegfried Line" about four miles north of Naha, was undeniably the fiercest artillery engagement of the Pacific war.

Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh division took the village of Ouki while other troops captured the nose of a ridge near Kakazu in the morning and held it against a stiff counterattack in the afternoon. A minefield to the east damaged three American tanks.

During the day the Japanese made four determined and well-prepared counterattacks against the 24th corps after firing 4,000 rounds of mortar and artillery fire. The Japanese called for mortar fire into the front, even though some landed among their own men.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland said the Japanese were suspected of employing a small observation plane with United States markings from a hidden airfield on southern Okinawa. The tiny aircraft was reported observing American positions and directing Japanese mortar fire.

YANK FOOTHOLD ON RIDGE NEAR KAKAZU GAINED

Infantrymen on Okinawa Get Back Important Point After Three Days.

Guam, April 11 (A. P.).—American infantrymen gained a foothold today for the second time in three days on a ridge near Kakazu, on southern Okinawa, where the Japanese are making their stanchest defense of the island. Artillery fire on both sides slackened as the weather cleared.

A heavy rainstorm which had swept the area had not kept the Yanks from seizing Tsugen, an islet at the entrance to Nakagusuku Bay. Twenty-fourth Corps doughboys who landed at Tsugen against only light opposition, yesterday killed off the entire garrison of 150 troops, pre-invasion naval shelling knocking out most of the enemy's artillery, mortars and machine guns.

Tsugen, about ten miles off Okinawa's eastern coast, gives the Americans control of Nakagusuku Bay, one-time Japanese fleet anchorage. The excellent harbor can be used advantageously for unloading supplies and equipment designed to develop Okinawa into an air base only 325 miles south of the Japanese home islands. Marine Corps fighter planes already are based there for air defense.

Americans fighting in rain and mud on Okinawa gained up to 2,500 yards in the north but were virtually stalemated in the rugged southern sector for the sixth straight day amid the fiercest artillery duel of the Pacific war. Several Japanese counterattacks, supported by artillery and mortar barrages, were thrown back on the south.

The counter-blows were costing heavy casualties and materially increased the Japanese toll of dead since the official count of 5,009, plus 222 prisoners of war taken, up to Sunday midnight. The enemy in one counterattack recaptured a ridge near Kakazu.

Jap Gunnery Better.

Major-Gen. John R. Hodge, Twenty-fourth Corps commander, said that the Japanese artillery was stronger and more accurate than any offered yet in the Pacific. He said that his troops actually were only through the outer shell of defenses, which extend for almost four miles to the outskirts of Naha, the capital city.

This bitter fighting in the south, along a four-and-a-half-mile line, was increasing the rate of American casualties, estimated unofficially at the rate of one American killed or wounded for every two Japanese killed. The last estimate of American casualties on Okinawa covered up to Wednesday midnight—a week ago.

At that time 175 Marines and soldiers had been killed and 798 wounded. Much bitter fighting has marked the battle since then.

Artillery Preparation First.

One reason gains have been recorded in yards is the fact that field commanders are massing great quantities of artillery to knock out each concrete pillbox before sending troops forward. This takes time, but it saves lives.

Marines in the north, under Major-Gen. Roy S. Geiger, smashed two small counter-attacks on the Motobu peninsula yesterday, meeting their first important opposition. Their advance of 2,500 yards was the smallest Marine sweep of the eleven-day campaign.

It took in Unten Bay, on the northern shore, where the Leathernecks captured submarine pens pounded so heavily by artillery and bombings that they were of little use. The Japanese continued their small-scale nuisance air attacks.

A destroyer and two neighboring landing craft were attacked by six enemy planes within six minutes off Okinawa last night, but five were shot down by fighters and the sixth ran for home. One plane crashed thirty yards off the destroyer's beam.

Earlier, an enemy light bomber made a run against a destroyer, but the plane failed to release. The plan crashed in the sea without damage to the ship.

Meanwhile, Japan's Domei news agency repeated its broadcast claim that nine Allied aircraft carriers had been sunk in waters of the Ryukyu chain between March 23 and April 7 with the assertion that "at least three" of these had been identified as the "converted carrier Langley, the standard carrier Essex and the auxiliary Hipper."

SOUTHERN LUZON CLEAN-UP PUSHED

American Forces Move Quickly to Liberate Additional Territory.

MANILA, Thursday, April 12—(AP) American forces are moving swiftly to liberate southern Luzon, exploiting the enemy's disorganized state, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Dismounted troopers of the First Cavalry division advanced 14 miles from Luzon to occupy Sampaloc and sent advance units to Mauban on the east coast of southeastern Luzon.

Elements of the 11th Airborne division [illegible] moved in force into the Lamon area, on the east coast, and the 158th regimental combat team pressed its attack in the Legaspi area, capturing 14 pieces of artillery and other military equipment.

These gains followed yesterday's announcement by MacArthur that all organized enemy resistance had collapsed in southern Luzon and its liberation "is at hand."

On Negros, the 40th division, advancing 30 miles around the northern end of the island, forced enemy remnants into a narrow pocket. MacArthur said civil government was rapidly being restored.

In the air war heavy bombers hit the Victoria docks at Hong Kong, bombed two radio stations and rail installations on Hainan island in the China seas and sank a small freighter off the Luichow peninsula.

Farther south a French Indo-China troop train was destroyed with direct hits and a small cargo ship sunk.

Heavy bombers also pounded the Davao area of Mindanao island in the Philippines and oft-bombed Formosa. Borneo was another target.

American liberation forces which are rapidly clearing the Philippines of Japanese today imposed a greater threat to oil-rich Borneo from the Sulu archipelago, brought under complete control after a speedy campaign.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced Wednesday that his veteran 41st division seized Jolo island, key position in the chain leading from Mindanao to Borneo, on Monday. This gave his forces complete control of the group a week after the first landing on Tawitawi, at the southern end of the chain.

Yank forces now are poised on the north and northeast flanks of Borneo—on Palawan to the north and in the Sulus to the northeast. Airfields on Palawan are within 500 miles of Brunel bay and Tarakan, enemy bases in northern Borneo. Those on Jolo are only 200 miles from Sandakan, capital of northern or British Borneo.

YANKS CONTROL SULU ISLANDS

Americans Overrun Jolo—Free Leper Colony.

Manila, April 11 (A. P.).—Complete control of the Sulu Archipelago between Mindanao and Borneo, was announced today by Gen. MacArthur. Forty-first Division infantry invaded the key island of Jolo on Monday, [illegible] quickly captured the capital city and its airdromes.

The veteran Forty-first Division, which captured the big harbor of Tawitawi in the Sulu chain on April 2, swept ashore at the Jolo city water front, on the twenty-mile-long island's north coast. Another force landed four miles northeast of the capital. Opposition was negligible so the Americans drove eight miles inland.

Another swift landing was made at Culion Island, north of Palawan. This resulted in the liberation of thousands of lepers who had lacked proper food and medicine for three years. Ten years ago the Culion leper colony numbered 7,000, including a few whites.

Although the adjoining anchorage in Coron Bay was used by the Jap fleet during operations against the American invaders of Leyte last November, resistance was negligible and a supply ship steamed in immediately with the first medical supplies the lepers have received since the Jap occupation.

While MacArthur announced "all organized enemy resistance in southern Luzon has collapsed and its liberation is at hand," from the Bicol Peninsula came field reports that the 158th Regiment met resistance a mile and a half southeast of Darage.

To the north the Eleventh Airborne Division advanced twenty miles from Lucena, capital of Tayabas Province, to Atimonan on the Pacific Coast—one of the points where the Nipponese launched their Luzon invasion in 1941. This advance was through mountain passes where Americans and Filipinos held out for more than a week against a huge Jap force.

American planes bombed Davao and Borneo targets Sunday. Formosa targets were blasted Saturday and Sunday.

Faces on Cardboard Look Like Live Japs

WITH THE U. S. 24th ARMY CORPS, Okinawa, April 11—(AP) The Japanese are employing sundry delaying tricks on Okinawa, Seventh Division headquarters reported today.

Yank Doughboys, trying to smash through stiff opposition to Naha, the capital, have had to take time out to investigate Japanese fakes in the bushes and burial caves areas. The faces proved to be cardboard masks.

In some sectors the Japanese planted land mine fields and made no effort to camouflage them. Investigation showed that the Nipponese dug many holes and covered them with fresh earth but put no mines in them. Mine removers have been delayed while probing the mineless spots.

Some Okinawa burial vaults, which the Americans are under strict orders not to desecrate, have been used by the Japanese to store supplies of ammunition and for machinegun emplacements. An advancing Yank tank threw flame in the direction of one vault, and it exploded.

G. I., ADRIFT, SURVIVES DRINKING SALT WATER

AT A FIELD HOSPITAL, in the Philippines, April 8 (Delayed) (AP)—They say a man lost at sea in a life raft can't drink salt water and survive, but Boddie Grier did.

They say, too, that the stark loneliness of one human being on a raft for more than three weeks of heat, cold and buffeting will often drive a man insane, but Boddie Grier came through.

For twenty-four days and nights this 19-year-old boy drifted alone in a tiny raft through the South China Sea. Except for two planes that flew over and failed to sight him, he saw nothing but sky and water. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Grier of Wilmington, Del., pronounce their son's first name "Boa-dee," but he's "Boddie" to his buddies of the 345th Bomb Group.

Boddie, a radioman with the Air Apache Bomb Group on Luzon, was the sole survivor when his plane was ditched 200 miles off the Indo-China coast after a bombing mission on March 10.

He was wedged in the plane's waist and had to chop his way out when it crashed. When the plane sank, a life raft popped out of a hatch. Wearing his life vest, Boddie bucked ten to fifteen foot waves to the raft.

"I rigged up a sail and headed for the Philippines which I figured were somewhere due east," he said. "I hoped to log two miles an hour for fifteen days."

He kept track of the days for a while, but finally lost interest.

During the last week he ran out of fresh water and began drinking salt water.

"I'd rinse out my mouth and then take a few sips," he explained.

On the twenty-fourth day Boddie was picked up by a ship.

Money Isn't Everything

A FIGHTER BASE ON IWO JIMA (Delayed) (AP).—Captain S. Gamjigarjian, of New York, finance officer of an Air Forces service group, casually kicked aside one of thirteen boxes containing more than $1,000,000 in United States currency. "This money doesn't bother me at all," he said. "We just sort of keep an eye on it while we are guarding this can," and he put his hand reverently on one of Iwo's rarest objects—a can of peaches.

Australian Wives Must Wait

BRISBANE, Australia, April 11 (AP).—Because of shipping difficulties, many of 2,000 Australian wives of American servicemen awaiting transport to the United States may not be able to leave for America this year or next, an American spokesman said here today.

2 Chilean Divisions Due For Pacific, Is Report

Santiago, Chile, April 11 (AP)—The magazine Vea said today that Chile will send two divisions to the Pacific front as part of a quota of 1,000,000 soldiers from Latin-America agreed upon at the Mexico City inter-American conference.

The magazine said President Antonio Rios would inform the Chilean Congress of the agreement when it convenes May 25.

[In Washington the State Department said it had "no confirmation whatsoever" of the Santiago report and a spokesman for the Chilean Embassy said he knew "absolutely nothing" concerning it. It was pointed out that the only military subjects formally taken up at the Mexico City conference related to defense of the Western Hemisphere.]

Argentina Accepts U.S. Envoy

Buenos Aires, April 11 (AP)—The Argentine Government today said that Spruille Braden proposed as United States Ambassador to this country, would be acceptable here. Braden now is United States Ambassador to Cuba.

Venezuela Protests Killings

CARACAS, Venezuela, April 11 (AP)—The Foreign Office today protested the slaying by the Japanese of Alberto Delfino, Venezuelan Consul in Manila, and his wife and son, last Feb. 10. The protest, made on the basis of reports received in Washington, was filed through the Swiss Legation, which represents Japan in Venezuela.

Mexican Unit Joins MacArthur

MEXICO CITY, April 11 (AP)—The Government announced today that the First Squadron of the Mexican Aviation Corps, the first unit of Mexico's armed forces to be sent overseas—had been incorporated with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces. The squadron's departure from a Pacific Coast port was disclosed only a few days ago.

Argentina Will Show Anti-German Movies

Buenos Aires, April 11 (AP)—Alfredo Bolognesi, director general of the Government's Theater and Film Board, said in an interview with La Nacion today that the American film, "The Hitler Gang," would be shown for the first time in Argentina next Friday.

The new policy, he told the newspaper, will extend to all previously banned films, among them Charles Chaplin's "The Dictator," "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and "Mission to Moscow."

Whitey Dahl Dropped By Canadian Air Force

Ottawa, April 11 (AP)—Squadron Leader Harold E. (Whitey) Dahl, United States veteran of the Loyalist forces in Spain and a member of the RCAF, has been convicted of four charges in connection with improper disposal of about $680 worth of aircraft equipment and other articles, it was announced tonight. He was sentenced to dismissal from the air force.

Dahl, released in 1939 from a Spanish prison by General Franco, has been commanding officer of a Royal Air Force transport command station at Belem, Brazil, where the improper disposal was alleged to have taken place.

He was tried on fourteen charges, but convicted only on four which alleged not only improper disposal but conduct "to the prejudice of good order and air-force discipline."

Canadian Press Favors Free Exchange Of News

Toronto, April 11 (AP)—A resolution expressing belief in the free exchange of news was adopted today by the annual meeting of the Canadian Press. The resolution parallels one passed by the CP board at its meeting in Vancouver last September and will be communicated to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the Canadian delegates to the world security conference in San Francisco.

It approves "the world-wide right of interchange of news by news-gathering and distributing agencies, whether individual or associated, and the right of free access to news sources by any newspaper of any country." It further expresses the belief that "these rights should be protected by international compact."

JAP MILITARIST IN NEW CABINET

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11—(AP) Lt. Gen. Fujiharu Yasui, member of the powerful Japanese military faction known as the Kwantung Army Clique, has joined the new Nipponese cabinet as a minister without portfolio, Tokyo radio said today.

Premier Baron Kantaro Suzuki's cabinet acquired another member when Natao Kohiyama, president of the South Manchuria railway, was installed as minister of transportation and communications, said another of the Japanese broadcasts heard by the FCC.

Yasui lifted the cabinet military membership to six—four navy and two army leaders. Domei, the Japanese news agency, said the influential militarist was a nominee of war minister Gen. Korechika Anami and was expected to maintain "liaison between the cabinet and the army."

The first Cabinet meeting yesterday gave lengthy consideration to increasing the production of war materials and foodstuffs and strengthening transportation facilities, Domei said.

The influential Tokyo newspaper Asahi turned the spotlight on the Russo-Japanese situation with an editorial saying that relations with Russia and China formed the most important "task" confronting Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo.

Domei said Baron Masayuki Matsuda, Parliamentary Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Koiso Cabinet, which preceded Kantaro Suzuki's government, had been named to the same post in the new Cabinet.

was installed as Minister of Transportation and Communications, taking over the post held temporarily by Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, Munitions Minister. Domei said that Gen. Yasui, an influential militarist and classmate of Gen. Anami and Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, commander in the Philippines, was expected to maintain "liaison between the cabinet and the Army."

Jap Cabinet Meets.

In another dispatch recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission, Domei said that Premier Admiral Baron Kantaro Suzuki's cabinet, at its first meeting yesterday, emphasized the necessity of increasing the production of war materials and foodstuffs and strengthening transportation facilities.

"All the ministers," Domei said, "voiced their firm resolution to tide over the situation at any cost." Domei reported that the Japanese are showing unusual interest in the diplomatic trend which will be developed by Shigenori Togo, Foreign Minister at the time of Pearl Harbor, who was recalled to the post by Baron Suzuki.

The news agency quoted an editorial from the Tokyo Asahi saying that relations with Russia and China constitute the most important task confronting Togo. Asahi noted that Togo was a strong advocate of school of thought which felt that the nation's diplomatic policy should be independent of military developments, as opposed to a rival school believing that war-time diplomacy should be determined by military developments.

NEW FINNISH CABINET

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Carl Gustav Mannerheim of Finland directed Premier Juho K. Passikivi to form a new cabinet, a Finnish radio reported last (Wednesday) broadcast reported by the FCC.

Earlier the Finnish radio said a coalition government was expected to be formed under Passikivi to replace the cabinet which resigned following the recent elections.

150 SUPERFORTS AGAIN HIT TOKYO

B-29s, Supported by Fighter Planes, Hammer Jap Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 12—(Thursday)—(AP) Tokyo caught it again yesterday from the superfortresses—perhaps more than 150 of them supported by fighters of the Seventh air force.

The 20th Air Force announced the daylight raid (today, Tokyo time) struck industrial targets in the Japanese capital and in the general area, the B29s operating in very large force.

The announcement, giving no details, termed it a "three-way" attack by the 21st bomber command from the Marianas islands. It did not elaborate on the expression. Military men took it to mean the planes swept in from different directions.

Army Clique Is in Jap Cabinet

Kwantung Faction Leader and Manchurian Railway Head Take Over Posts.

San Francisco, April 11 (A. P.).—Another of Japan's Kwantung Army clique, strongest military faction of the empire, joined the new Suzuki Cabinet today. The Japanese agency Domei reported via the Tokyo radio that Lieut.-Gen. Fujitaru Yasui, a nominee of War Minister Korechika Anami, was installed as a Minister without portfolio.

U.S. Group Asks Italy As An Ally

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Pleas for recognition of Italy as a full ally were heard today by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, but Representative Mundt (R., S.D.) objected that the committee was going outside its province.

Representative Mundt interrupted a hearing on a resolution calling for recognition to express "amazement and disappointment" that the State and War departments hadn't been consulted.

Pointing out that Congress cannot recognize the former Axis partner, Mundt said:

"It (the resolution) is an attempt on the part of the branch of Government which has the least information to tell the branch with the most information what it should do."

To Write Secretaries

He said later he will write the Secretaries of State and War asking their views on Italy.

Advocates of the resolution, introduced by Representative Marcantonio (ALP., N.Y.), jammed into the committee hearing to urge its adoption in time to give Italy a place in the United Nations Conference at San Francisco later this month.

Recognition of Italy as a full ally—instead of its present designation as a "cobelligerent"—would make that country eligible to receive lend-lease aid from the United States.

LaGuardia Supports Measure

Mayor LaGuardia of New York sent a telegram to the committee declaring "Italy should be afforded the opportunity of signing the United Nations agreement."

Italy has "rid herself of the despicable dictator who plunged her people into war against their will," the Mayor said. "She is carrying her load within her present limitations in aid of the cause of the United Nations. She should not be permitted to continue under the disadvantages in which she now finds herself."

Race With Time

Marcantonio, Representative D'Alesandro (D., Md.) and other representatives urged adoption of the resolution in time to admit an Italian delegation to San Francisco.

Members of a joint committee representing Italian-American organizations with a claimed total membership of 1,800,000 arrived in Washington today to urge that Italy be invited to the San Francisco meeting. The committee, headed by Luigi Antonini, president of the Italian-American Labor Council, was formed for that particular purpose. It includes representatives of political, labor, religious and fraternal organizations of Americans of Italian descent.

NEW SOFT COAL WAGE PACT SIGNED

WLB Must Approve Agreement Reached By Lewis And Operators

Washington, April 11 (AP)—A new soft-coal agreement carrying a basic $1.07-a-day pay increase and an extension clause intended to end periodic end-of-contract crises was signed today by operators and miners.

Subject to War Labor Board approval and a rise in coal prices, the contract was ratified by John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers and owners' representatives after weeks of negotiation. Signing came as the Government moved to get back into operation scattered mines where shutdowns have interrupted the output of fuel for the war effort.

Work Resumption Due Today

Operators said a coal-price increase, which would have to be approved by the Office of Price Administration, would be necessary to meet higher production costs occasioned by the higher wages.

Lewis has agreed to join in the operators' request for a price increase, the amount of which is not yet known, but is estimated at about 25 cents a ton. None of the added cost can be absorbed, the operators contended.

An operators' spokesman estimated the additional miner remuneration at approximately $150,000,000 annually.

A general resumption of work was expected tomorrow at mines shut down by wildcat strikes. Bolstering this belief were both a presidential order for Government seizure and the final signing of the contract.

Stoppages In Three States

Continued stoppages were reported today in Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Alabama, three of the seven States where Secretary of the Interior Ickes was ordered to take over operation of 235 idle mines.

In Pennsylvania, where 20,684 remained idle, John Dresmich, international representative of UMW District 5 (Pittsburgh), said small mines could be expected to resume operation at once, but that it would take "a day or two" to get miners back to larger pits, "because they have to hold local meetings and vote on it first."

New Rate $10 Per Day

The new contract fixes a wage rate of $10 per day as compared with the present $8.50, but the actual pay increase, spread over a 6-day week and with less than regular rates for underground travel, averages $1.07 a day.

Differentials of 4 and 6 cents for the second and third shifts, respectively, were included in the contract.

The workers would receive $75 apiece in place of vacation time off, an increase of $25 over the old contract.

Lewis abandoned his demand for a 10-cents-a-ton royalty for a union "rainy day" fund, in exchange for concessions on his principal wage demand.

Drops Foreman Demand

His demand that foremen be made eligible for union membership—the last stumbling block in the way of agreement—also was dropped in the face of unaltering operators' opposition.

Hope for an end to the contract termination crises which have disrupted production and led to Government seizure four times since the war started was based on the new contract's "open-end" provision.

The contract will run for one year from April 1, unless the Government wage policy is revised in the meantime, but will not terminate automatically next March 31.

"Open-End" Provision Praised

One operator called the "open-end" provision the finest thing "we have ever had" in respect to a precaution against the upheavals caused by automatic contract terminations.

The "open-end" provision calls for continuation of the contract beyond next March 31 unless either party wants to negotiate for some reason or other.

In that event, the party would serve a ten-day notice of a call for a negotiating conference. The conference would run for fifteen days, at the end of which if no agreement were reached the talks could be continued by agreement or either side could serve notice that the contract would terminate in another five days.

30-Day Cooling Off Period

This would make over-all a 30-day cooling-off period before the contract could terminate, said this operator, who withheld use of his name.

Operator sources said it was difficult to calculate the average added cost of producing a ton of coal involved in the wage increase because of varying factors in different producing areas. One spokesman prominent in the negotiations said the costs would be up between 20 to 40 cents a ton.

Negotiators said the new wage agreement is being sent to the War Labor Board for consideration. It probably will require hearings to get a full explanation of the details of the agreement before reaching any decision.

Polish Question Urgent

APR 12 1945

Washington, April 11 (AP)—A new break within the Big Three is feared in diplomatic quarters here in connection with word from London that Prime Minister Churchill is preparing for a discussion on unhappy Poland.

Already, there is more than dissatisfaction on the part of the United States and England about Russia's attitude—and vice versa.

Churchill is to address the House of Commons Thursday of next week. No one in responsible position here will predict he will have anything good to say about progress toward establishing the Yalta-proposed "national unity" government for Poland.

It appears implicit in London's news on Churchill that the British are telling Moscow that the facts of a very unhappy condition could not be kept much longer secret. Also that if Moscow wants to help avoid an outbreak of trouble just prior to the San Francisco conference of United Nations it should co-operate quickly for a solution.

Tend To Blame Russians

The tendency both here and in London is to put most of the responsibility for the bogging down of Polish negotiations on the Russians.

The impression in Washington is that the Soviets have taken the position that the Yalta agreement provided merely for broadening but not for reorganizing the present Warsaw Government.

This is entirely contrary to the London and Washington interpretation of what President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Churchill wrote down at Yalta about Poland.

English and American foreign-policy chiefs take the line that a really new Government should be set up at Warsaw, including not only leaders of the present Soviet-sponsored regime, but also Polish leaders from both inside and outside the country who would be acceptable to the United States, Russia and Britain.

Still Long Way Apart

APR 12 1945

The question is becoming urgent because of an apprehension held by diplomatic officials here that the Polish situation may go on being, in peace as in war, one of the real sources of division among the Allies.

When American officials returned from the Yalta conference they believed that they had achieved a workable solution. Now it can be reported without question that thus far the difference of interpretation of the Yalta agreement on Poland has put the Russians about as far from the Anglo-American negotiators as they were prior to Yalta.

While Big Three relationships held the pre-conference attention of diplomats here, some members of the American delegation to San Francisco pressed ahead with a more strictly United States approach to conference problems.

Main Issue For Decision

Chairman Connally (D., Texas), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in a speech here that he believed the United States representative on the proposed world security council should be free to act to use force in prevention of war without referring to Congress for authority in each case.

It seems certain that this will be one of the main issues for decision by the Senate if the San Francisco conference produces, as expected, a charter of world organization which the President would shortly thereafter recommend to the Senate for ratification.

A group of international jurists worked steadily ahead on revision of World Court statutes to fit that agency into the proposed new organization. Members of the American delegation continued their sessions at the State Department designed to produce a common policy for the delegation on issues to come up at San Francisco.

RELIEF TOTAL UP IN BILLIONS

UNRRA Estimates Needs Of Liberated Lands

Washington, April 11 (AP)—UNRRA estimated today that liberated lands will need $100,000,000,000 worth of food, clothing and other relief supplies.

But the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration said in its second quarterly report that these countries themselves would furnish about 92 per cent of their own needs.

Total import requirements, exclusive of those of Russia and China, were estimated at $7,500,000,000, of which UNRRA will chip in $2,000,000,000.

Help May Be Slow

However, the international relief agency warned that help may be slow in coming.

"Even though the main back of the Nazi military power may be broken before long," the report said, "it may take some time to clean up pockets of Nazi resistance. If this eventually does occur, UNRRA may also be limited, by such military operations, in carrying out fully the tasks for which it was created."

The armed forces, it explained, have first call on port facilities, transportation and distribution. Thus relief for liberated areas may be continued only on an emergency basis until Germany's final collapse eases the strain on the supply routes.

To Get Full-Scale Aid

The freed peoples received from President Roosevelt, who sent the UNRRA report to Congress, assurances they will get full-scale help eventually.

"We in America, who have been so fortunate as to have the battle for the world waged beyond our shores," he said in a letter to the legislators, "propose as participants in UNRRA to do all in our power to help these victims of war begin to regain their strength so that they can help themselves and assume their rightful places as partners in achieving victory and in building a lasting peace."

$800,000,000 Available

The report showed that while the United States has made available $800,000,000 in cash and supplies to UNRRA, only $6,173,417 had been spent by December 31. The report covered operations only to that date.

Nine nations, the report disclosed, have not yet paid their assessments in full for UNRRA's $10,000,000 fund for 1944 administrative expenses. Russia has contributed only $200,000 of her share of $1,500,000.

Nip Mercy Ship Sunk, U.S. Fears

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The State Department announced tonight that an Allied submarine sank what may have been the Japanese relief ship Awa Maru, traveling under Allied safe conduct.

The announcement said the Navy Department had reported that a ship about 40 miles from the estimated position of the Japanese vessel was sunk about midnight April 1 by submarine action.

A survivor said it was the Awa Maru.

The announcement said no lights or special illumination were visible at any time.

APR 12 1945

The Awa Maru was returning to Japan after having delivered relief supplies for Allied internees and prisoners in Formosa, Hong Kong, Saigon, Singapore and in Dutch Indies ports.

The supplies had been sent to Vladivostok over a year ago and long negotiations preceded Japanese agreements to deliver them.

The United States is sending a communication to Japan about the matter through Swiss authorities.

The main concern is whether the incident might be seized upon as a bar to further deliveries.

U. S. Moves to Increase Pork Production, OPA Under Fire

WASHINGTON, April 11 — (AP) — The government moved today to get more pork next year, while critical senators studying present food shortages accused OPA of laxness, unfairness and inefficiency.

War Food Administrator Marvin Jones asked farmers to increase fall production of pigs 18 per cent to 37,000,000 head. He raised the price the government supports for hogs from $12.50 to $13 a hundred pounds.

A Department of Agriculture forecast said there is plenty of corn in reserve to fatten the fall crop of pigs—which won't be ready to eat until next spring.

Thomas I. Emerson, deputy OPA administrator in charge of enforcement, underwent another rough day in hearings of the Senate Food Investigation committee.

30-24-24693

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), who said black market operators in meat thrived under OPA tactics, told Emerson to his face that "you are the best evidence" of OPA incompetence.

Emerson testified that OPA discovered about 350,000 violations of price controls last year and secured 67,039 convictions. He told questioning Chairman Thomas (D-Okla) that OPA needs more enforcement agents, also that short supplies and bad distribution of supplies tended to increase the black market.

J. T. Kennedy, superintendent of markets for the District of Columbia, testified that people in Washington are "not in sympathy" with OPA's enforcement methods and that half the meat sold here goes for above-ceiling prices.

No Action Taken

F. M. Tobin, a Rochester, N. Y., meat packer, told the committee that his company has notified OPA "on many occasions of violations but they don't seem to do anything about it."

Tobin also said that Herman N. Greenberg, chief of OPA's meat and dairy enforcement division, passed up an invitation from members of the Independent Meat Packers association to discuss black markets. Tobin heads the association.

"I could have furnished him names," Tobin said. Greenberg, who was present, told the committee that he had to miss the meeting, in Chicago, because he had to return to Washington.

Drama was added to the committee's deliberations by the reading of a telegram from Harry T. Brundige, Cosmopolitan magazine writer, who wired that OPA agents were called off when a trap was ready for a gang of alleged black market operators two years ago.

Brundige's account, which was put into the record, related that the writer posed as a meat buyer for New York night clubs and that an arrangement was made to purchase 800,000 to 1,000,000 pounds of black market meat.

But at the last minute, when Brundige was intending to make the first and trap-spring payment, in Kansas City, the telegram said, Emerson called off OPA agents who had been working with him.

Emerson explained to the committee that OPA had all the evidence it needed without Brundige's help. He said the leader of the black market gang was sentenced to a year in jail and was fined $10,000.

"It might interest you to know," Wheeler then said, "that the black marketers who were indicted today in Baltimore or who will be indicted tomorrow in a $2,000,000 black market operation are the same characters with whom Mr. Brundige did business two years ago and could have been nailed then—and permanently—instead of letting them loose and wild for two full years."

APR 9 1945

Today in Baltimore, meat wholesalers Lincon Spevak and George Lerian, his manager, posted bond of $5,000 each. They were indicted by a Federal grand jury yesterday on 242 counts charging ceiling price violations and another charging conspiracy to sell wholesale pork, beef, butter and turkey at above ceiling prices in New York, Baltimore and elsewhere.

Senator Wheeler has advocated that the Federal Bureau of Investigation send its G-men into the fight against illegal dealers in rationed food. But Emerson said the FBI does not have the staff to give OPA much help on enforcement.

The OPA deputy and Senator Bushfield (R-SD) got into a quarrel about what Bushfield called OPA "snoopers" bluffing businessmen into paying penalties.

Bushfield said he knew of one case in which four OPA agents "wrangled with a poor little grocer for three hours." Emerson commented most such reports were untrue. Bushfield said this one was, that he was there.

RED RAIDER UNIT PROUD OF RECORD IN PACIFIC WAR

By JAMES D. WHITE

WASHINGTON, April 11—(AP) Maybe you haven't heard of the Red Raiders. But thousands of Japanese have—all the way from Rabaul to Formosa. A lot of them looked up too late to see the bombs falling.

Formally, the Red Raiders are the 22nd bombardment squadron of the U. S. 5th airforce. The long story of their operations in the southwest Pacific just released contains a string of "first" as long as a liberator's fuselage.

Latest on the list, the Raiders were the first land-based army bombers to hit Formosa from the Pacific side. They left Heito air base in flames. That was the day after their leader, Col. Richard W. (Red) Robinson of Wilkinsburgh, Pa., was killed in a take-off crash at a Philippines base.

Named for Leader

It was from Robinson, a full colonel at 26, that the Raiders took their name, a tribute to his flaming red hair. Their insigne is a red-maned Viking warrior.

In 1940 the new 22nd took B-26 Marauders directly from the assembly lines and were the first unit equipped with them. On the day after Pearl Harbor they were on their way to Australia—which they reached in January 1942.

The first fully armed bombardment unit to span the Pacific, the 22nd sent some planes into the battle of Midway. Four of their bombers were the first army mediums to be used for torpedo bombing.

They were the first medium bomber unit to hit Rabaul, New Britian, where they braved swarms of Jap interceptors and the fire of 100 flak ships. They got a presidential citation about this time.

They helped to wipe out that big Japanese convoy of 22 ships in the Bismarck sea and worked their way up the New Guinea coast over such historic targets as Buna, Lae, Salamaua, Finschafen, Wewak, Wakde.

The Marauders were replaced by the longer-ranged Mitchell B-25s, and the Raiders were the first group to fly that type of bomber in combat. They didn't lose a plane.

Jumps between targets became even longer and the raiders switched to Liberators (B-24s) and thus became the first outfit to have flown three types of bombers in combat. They were the first to hit Palau in daylight hours, first to hit the Philippines, and were the first B-24s in action against Clark field, Manila and Corregidor in the Philippines.

Meanwhile they took part in a two-day strike which knocked out oil refineries at the "Ploesti of the Pacific" at Balikpapan, on Borneo.

Operating now from the Philippines, the Red Raiders are commanded by Maj. Leonard T. Nicholson, an original member of the squadron, from Prescot, Ariz.

The ambition of the Red Raiders now, naturally, is to be the first Pacific-based Liberator fliers to hit Tokyo.

FIGHTS UNIONS ON FOREMEN

APR 12 1945

G.M. Official Opposes Unionization Of Management

New York, April 11 (AP)—H. W. Anderson, vice president of General Motors Corporation, said tonight that General Motors believed it was its "patriotic duty to oppose the unionization of management by every proper and lawful means."

"We are convinced it would be impossible," Anderson told a personnel conference of the American Management Association, "for a foreman to follow both management and union leadership at the same time."

He said Generals Motors had been able to maintain an efficient and successful organization because it had insisted on establishment and maintenance of rules "designed to leave no doubt as to where everybody—workmen, management and unions alike—stood at all times."

Policies In Jeopardy

"It is these very policies," he added, "that will be in jeopardy if outside organizations attempt to usurp the loyalty and co-operation we must have from our management personnel."

Earlier, War Labor Board Chairman George W. Taylor criticized what he termed a tendency of labor and management to shift to the War Labor Board the responsibility for settling a dispute.

General wage increases, even while present governmental controls remain in effect after the war ends, was seen today as a possibility by Chairman Taylor.

"General wage increases," Dr. Taylor said, "may possibly return to the economic picture while governmental controls are retained as growing availability of manpower and civilian goods relieves the inflationary pressures which originally caused the Government to restrict general wage adjustments to the limitations of the Little Steel formula.

Hourly Rate Adjustment

"It may be that the first step away from the general rule of no more general wage increases may take the form of selective adjustments in hourly rates to meet specific problems in specific industries. This is a matter, however, which lies in the future."

The Little Steel formula limits wage increases to 15 per cent of rates in effect on January 1, 1941. Dr. Taylor said that formula had been inaugurated not only to place a ceiling on wage increases, but "to assure lagging groups of workers of at least a fifteen per cent increase."

The WLB has been "acutely aware of the necessity for preventing wage increases which require price increases" during the war, Dr. Taylor said, and only about 1,000 out of 360,000 cases handled by the board required price increases.

National Arbitration Board

"Thought may well be given," he said also, "to the creation of a national arbitration board to which parties may voluntarily turn when the emergency duties of the national WLB have been discharged."

Taylor said it was the nation's obligation to "build a voluntary system for minimizing strikes and walkouts." Collective bargaining should be encouraged, with some sort of governmental umpire available to arbitrate when disputing parties cannot get together, he contended.

Brig. Gen. William C. Rose, vice chairman of the War Manpower Commission, told the meeting there would "still be a tremendous war-production job" after V-E day and "throughout the period of our war with Japan."

Letdown Will Hurt

"We who know the gravity of the problem which will confront us after V-E day—that is the defeating of Japan—are apprehensive that a national letdown may have serious consequences in that direction," he said.

Rose said 350,000 war-production workers would be needed before next August and 4,000,000 agricultural workers would be required to meet 1945 food-production goals.

TARIFF FIGHT AHEAD ON HILL

Battle Lines Drawn As Hearing Is Set For Monday

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today set next Monday for the opening of perhaps the biggest congressional tariff battle since the Hawley-Smoot tariff law was written in 1930.

The committee on that day will begin public hearings on legislation proposing to extend the Reciprocal Trade Act for three years, with an amendment granting the President broad new authority to lower duties.

Present Legislation

Republican and Democratic lines already have developed on this historic issue between the parties.

It appears now that many Democrats will join the Republicans in opposing the proposal for additional grant of duty-cutting authority to the President. There seems to be plenty of power to extend the Reciprocal Trading Act in its present form.

The present law, enacted in 1934, permits the President to cut tariffs under the Hawley-Smoot levels by 50 per cent, in negotiating trade pacts with other nations. The State Department has perfected such pacts with 28 nations, with many duties trimmed by varying percentages.

President Roosevelt has asked Congress for new authority to cut tariffs, in treaties, by as much as 50 per cent below their January 1, 1945, levels. This would mean that items already cut 50 per cent could be trimmed a total of 75 per cent below Hawley-Smoot stipulations.

President's Statement

"The purpose of the whole effort," the President said, "is to eliminate economic warfare, to make practical international co-operation effective on as many fronts as possible, and so to lay the economic basis for the secure and peaceful world we all desire."

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.), Ways and Means Republican leader, has called for party alignment against the proposal.

able for bases.

Some units will be sent by the way of the United States, with numerous men given home leaves. Many will go by other routes.

During the early phases of deployment, the spokesman said, there will be no substantial demobilization of AAF personnel except for those eligible men already in the United States.

Rating Scores As Bases

None will be demobilized until their adjusted-rating scores have been published throughout the Army. Their release may be still further delayed by the lack of a qualified replacement, if they are "essential" men, or by some necessity which is unforeseen now.

The AAF is using the army scoring procedure to determine eligibility for demobilization, and expects to release the same percentage as the other army branches.

Personnel readjustments of all units to be redeployed will be made before the units are dispatched.

Plans To Shift Air Forces After V-E Day Outlined

Washington, April 11 (AP)—General movements of army air forces from Europe to the Pacific will wait until at least 30 days after V-E day. Some "critical" units may be shifted earlier.

An Air Force spokesman, disclosing this today, said it would take a month or more to put into effect the administration for such a vast transfer. Some units will be assigned to a "relatively small" occupational air force in Europe.

Bases Impose Only Limit

Emphasizing that the air forces intend to do to Japan what they have already done to Germany, the spokesman said all the air strength that can be employed will be thrown against the Nipponese. The only limiting factor will be land avail-

COMMERCE JOB FOR SCHINDLER

F.D.R. Nominates St. Louisan As Wallace Right-Hand Man

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Alfred Schindler, a 50-year-old St. Louis business man, was nominated today by President Roosevelt to be Secretary Henry Wallace's right-hand man at the Department of Commerce.

Schindler issued a statement here saying he is ready to "devote my all" to the task of helping business and industry.

The new Under Secretary—subject to approval of the Senate—was hand-picked by Wallace. He first met Wallace over twenty years ago when Schindler was a feed sales executive and Wallace a farmer.

Served Under Jesse Jones

Schindler has also served under Jesse Jones, whom Wallace supplanted at the Commerce Department. Throughout 1942 and part of 1943 Schindler was administrative assistant to Secretary Jones.

Schindler, if the Senate acts favorably, will succeed Wayne C. Taylor as Under Secretary. Taylor's resignation was announced by the White House along with Schindler's appointment.

Taylor is reported to be in line for the presidency of the Export-Import Bank, a position which is vacant.

For the last year Schindler has headed his own firm, the Alfred Schindler Company, a holding company for four small enterprises—two manufacturing concerns, a sales agency and an advertising agency.

Headed St. Louis Group

Before organizing these enterprises, Schindler was for seven months executive director of the Committee for Economic Development for Greater St. Louis.

From 1917 to 1942, he was with the Ralston-Purina Company of St. Louis. He was the youngest sales executive ever appointed by that firm.

Yesterday Schindler was the guest of Senator Briggs (D., Mo.) at a luncheon in the Capitol attended by Vice President Truman, Robert Hannegan, of St. Louis, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and fourteen senators.

Senator Briggs called Schindler a small business man whose ambition it is to work out a program of service to small business in the postwar period.

MARS SETS NEW RECORD

Flying Boat Makes 20 Trips Over Pacific In March

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The Mars, world's largest flying boat, shattered all previous records for monthly operations in March by flying twenty scheduled trips over the Pacific plus two test hops, the Navy reported today.

The Mars operates a regular Naval Air Transport Service run between Alameda, Cal., and Pearl Harbor.

The 72-ton flying boat carried 19,332 pounds of cargo and 473 high-priority military passengers in its 290.3 scheduled hours of flying for the month, the Navy said.

Thirteen In Crew

A full crew of thirteen and two trainees were carried on all regular flights. The two test hops totaled an additional three hours and twelve minutes.

The Navy also credited the Mars with a record high daily average flight total of 9.4 hours for transoceanic operations.

Since the Mars began regular scheduled operation on January 18, 1944, it has flown a grand total of 124 regular trips (62 round trips), carried 2,564,752 pounds of cargo, 2,152 passengers and covered approximately 270,000 miles.

Launched In 1941

The keel of the so-called "experimental" Mars, being operated by the Naval Air Transport Service between California and Pearl Harbor, was laid at the Glenn L. Martin Company plant in Baltimore in August, 1940. The ship made its maiden flight in July, 1942, across the Chesapeake, after official launching ceremonies in November, 1941.

Originally a patrol bomber, the Mars was converted into an air-cargo vessel late in 1942 at the instruction of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, which had found its armament arrangement "obsolete." No criticism was made of its weight-carrying performance.

The Mars made her first trip in Pacific service—on the present route—in January, 1944.

The Martin Company now is engaged in the production of twenty Mars flying boats for the Navy. These are larger than the experimental version. The first was launched March 6.

Aircraft Carrier Boxer To Be Commissioned

Portsmouth, Va., April 11 (AP)—The 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Boxer, which was launched at Newport News last December, will be commissioned Monday at the Norfolk Navy Yard.

Eighth Essex class flatop built at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, the Boxer will have a speed of more than 30 knots. She is 850 feet long and can carry more than 80 planes.

Capt. Donald F. Smith, of Timmonsville, S.C., who has logged 6,000 hours of flight time since he became a naval aviator in 1926, will assume command of the Boxer after reading his orders during the brief commissioning ceremonies.

Methodist Bishops Back Bretton Woods Parley

New York, April 11 (AP)—The Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church said today the Bretton Woods monetary conference was an initial venture in international economic co-operation and "we must make a beginning if the economic chaos that has repeatedly followed war is to be prevented."

The council, through its secretary, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, of New York, said in a statement on the Bretton Woods proposals:

"The United Nations monetary and financial conference reached agreement on the stabilization of currency and the provision of capital loans for economic development. In such highly technical fields, we are dependent upon expert knowledge.

"We, ourselves, do not profess this knowledge. But common consent concerning economic measures must be achieved if war is to be avoided. We must find a way.

"Delegates from 44 nations assembled at Bretton Woods, N.H., reached a common decision. The proposals were adopted unanimously. The United States delegation was bipartisan."

Military Promotions Confirmed By Senate

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Promotions of three air force commanders to the temporary rank of lieutenant general were confirmed by the Senate today.

The new three-star generals are:

Hoyt S. Vandenberg, of Milwaukee, commander of the 9th Air Force in France.

John K. Cannon, of Salt Lake City, commander of the 12th Air Force in the Mediterranean Area.

Harold Lee George, of Somerville, Mass., commander of the Air Transport Command.

The Senate also confirmed the promotions of 23 officers to the temporary rank of major general, and 55 as brigadiers.

One of the new major generals is Lewis Andrew Pick, of Lynchburg, Va., commanding general of the advance section of the service of supplies in the India-Burma theater. The Ledo road, which Pick's men built, is known to the GI's as "Pick's Pike."

Flying Fortress Crash In Mississippi Kills 14

Jackson, Miss., April 11 (AP). Fourteen men were killed in a collision of two B-17 Flying Fortresses from the Jackson army air base at 12.07 A.M. today about 5 miles north of the air base, Col. William H. Garrison, commanding officer, announced.

They were members of the 203d Army Air Force base unit of the 2d Air Force on detached service from headquarters at Colorado Springs, Col. Both planes were completely demolished and the seven men aboard each instantly killed.

Cause of the collision is unknown, Colonel Garrison said.

Poteat Made Chief Aide To Head Of Red Cross

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Appointment of Douglas Poteat as executive vice chairman of the American Red Cross was announced tonight by Chairman Basil O'Connor.

Poteat, a native of Philadelphia, until recently was deputy commissioner of the Pacific Ocean areas for the Red Cross. Last spring, as a Government representative, he and Stanton Griffis negotiated a plan to halt shipments of ball bearings from Sweden to Germany.

DURING THE PAST FOUR DAYS A TOTAL OF 63 GERMAN AIRDROMES HAVE BEEN

HOPELESSLY OUTNUMBERED FOR MONTHS BY THE ALLIES AND NOW VIRTUALLY GROUNDED FOR LACK OF OIL, THE ENEMY AIR FORCE WAS GIVEN ITS WORST BLOW OF THE WAR YESTERDAY WHEN AMERICAN FLIERS DESTROYED 397 OF ITS PLANES AND DAMAGED COUNTLESS OTHERS.

IN THE LAST FOUR DAYS 61 GERMAN AIR FIELDS HAVE BEEN BOMBED AND STRAFED AND AT LEAST 765 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED.

SETTING UP SEVERAL NEW RECORDS, THE AMERICANS YESTERDAY KNOCKED OUT 336 GERMAN AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND AND SHOT DOWN 61 IN ATTACKS ON 26 OR MORE ENEMY FIELDS. THE COST TO THE U.S.EIGHTH AND NINTH AIR FORCES WAS 25 HEAVY BOMBERS AND 15 FIGHTERS.

THE AIR ASSAULT RAGED ON LATE YESTERDAY AND LAST NIGHT WITH UNDIMINISHED FURY. BRITISH HEAVY BOMBERS ATTACKED RAILWAY YARDS AT LEIPZIG AND AT PLAUEN, SOME 90 MILES TO THE SOUTH. MOSQUITO BOMBERS AGAIN HIT BERLIN.

THIRTY-FIVE OF THE GERMAN PLANES DOWNED IN YESTERDAY'S AERIAL COMBAT WERE JET-PROPELLED FIGHTERS--THE LARGEST BAG FOR A SINGLE DAY. BOMBERS DUMPED 3,600 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON SEVEN JET PLANE BASES GUARDING THE BERLIN AREA.

FIGHTER PILOTS ACCOUNTED FOR THE BULK OF THE ENEMY TOLL; BOMBER GUNNERS KNOCKED DOWN 17.

RUSSIAN SAPPERS AND TOMMYGUNNERS, ADVANCING IN THE FAMILIAR PATTERN OF STREET FIGHTING, BLASTED THE ENEMY FROM MACHINE GUN NESTS AND ARTILLERY POSITIONS WITH GRENADES AND DIRECT FIRE AND FOUGHT BLOODY HAND TO HAND BATTLES WITH SMALL ARMS AND BAYONETS AND KNIVES FOR POSSESSION OF THE CAPITAL'S LAST BUILDINGS.

AS THE BATTLE ROARED TOWARD A CLIMAX, WITH DRAMATIC SCENES OF FLIGHT, FEAR AND FURY GRIPPING THE NAZIS, THE BERLIN NEWSPAPER ALLGEMIENE ZEITUNG MADE THE GRIM OBSERVATION THAT THE CONFLICT IN VIENNA WAS "DECIDING THE FATE OF GERMANY."

IMPORTANCE WAS ATTACHED TO THE AUSTRIAN AND CZECHOSLOVAK CAMPAIGNS BY BOTH THE GERMANS AND THE RUSSIANS.

THE BERLIN COMMENTATOR ALFRED VON OLBERG SAID RUSSIAN OPERATIONS WEST OF VIENNA TOWARD ST.POELTEN, LINZ AND MUNICH WERE "PREPARATORY TO FURTHER FAR-REACHING ATTACKS," AND MOSCOW'S ILYA EHRENBURG DECLARED THAT THE LIBERATION OF AUSTRIA AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA WOULD UTTERLY DESTROY THE NAZI PLAN FOR AN "INNER FORTRESS" IN THE MOUNTAINS OF SOUTHERN

BERLIN ACKNOWLEDGED THE FALL OF THE EAST PRUSSIAN CAPITAL OF KOENIGSBERG TWO DAYS AFTER THE FORTRESS GAVE UP AND 134,000 ENEMY TROOPS WERE KILLED OR CAPTURED. BERLIN BLAMED THE COLLAPSE ON THE "COWARDICE OF THE FORTRESS COMMANDER, GEN.LASCH," WHO SURRENDERED.

WEST OF KOENIGSBERG, MARSHAL ALEXANDER M.VASILEVSKY'S THIRD WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY RAPIDLY WAS OVERRUNNING THE LAST RESISTANCE ON THE SAMLAND PENINSULA AND WAS DRIVING ON THE ESCAPE PORT OF PILLAU, 24 MILES WEST OF KOENIGSBERG.

WITH THOUSANDS OF RUSSIAN TROOPS RELEASED FROM EAST PRUSSIA FOR THE COMING BERLIN BATTLE, ENEMY BROADCASTS SAID THAT SOVIET ASSAULT FORCES, IN AN ALL-OUT ATTACK TO REDUCE THE LOWER SILESIAN CAPITAL OF BRESLAU, HAD STORMED INTO ST.BERNARD CEMETERY AND RICHTHOFEN SQUARE.

THE RUSSIANS WERE BATTLING FOR A QUICK CLEAN-UP OF BRESLAU TO RELEASE MORE DIVISIONS FOR THE IMPENDING BERLIN STRUGGLE. AN OFFICIAL BERLIN MILITARY SPOKESMAN AGAIN WARNED THAT "HUGE RUSSIAN CONCENTRATIONS HAVE BEEN OBSERVED" ALONG THE ENTIRE FRONT INSIDE GERMANY FROM SILESIA TO STETTIN, BALTIC PORT.

"THESE FORMATIONS DOUBTLESSLY ARE PREPARING THE IMPENDING OFFENSIVE," THE SPOKESMAN SAID. FROM MOSCOW CAME A VENGEFUL ECHO. ILYA EHRENBURG WROTE: "THE DAY IS APPROACHING WHEN WE WILL MEET WITH OUR FRIENDS; WE COME TO THIS APPOINTMENT PROUD AND JOYFUL."

LONDON, APRIL 11-(AP)-LIBERATED BALKAN NATIONS ARE TO BE GIVEN GREATER CONTROL OVER DISTRIBUTION OF RELIEF SUPPLIES AMONG THEIR OWN PEOPLES, TWO OFFICIALS OF THEUNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ADMINISTRATION ANNOUNCED TODAY.

SENIOR DEPUTY DIRECTOR GENERAL R.G.JACKSON AND DEPUTY DIRECTOR GENERAL ROY HENDRICKSEN, JUST RETURNED FROM THE BALKANS, ALSO ASSERTED THAT ALTHOUGH WAR AND MILITARY NEEDS HAVE FIRST CALL ON SUPPLY AND SHIPPING, A "FAIR BALANCE MUST BE STRUCK AND PROVISION MUST BE MADE FOR ESSENTIAL CIVILIAN SUPPLIES FOR LIBERATED AREAS."

APR 12 1945

HENDRICKSEN TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT UNRRA HAD BEEN "BATTLING FOR A YEAR NOW" TO GET MORE SUPPLIES FOR UNRRA.

"THERE ARE SUBSTANTIAL SHORTAGES OF FOODSTUFFS IN HEAVILY POPULATED AREAS," THE OFFICIALS SAID IN A PREPARED STATEMENT. "THE MOST ACUTE SHORTAGES LIE WITHIN THE PROTEIN GROUPS--EVAOPRATED AND DRIED MILK, CHEESE, MEAT AND DRIED EGGS. EVERYWHERE CLOTH, EVEN RAW FIBERS FOR MANUFACTURING CLOTH, IS EXCEEDINGLY SCARCE."

THE GREATEST NEED, THEY SAID, WAS BETTER TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES, ESPECIALLY TRUCKS.

JACKSON AND HENDRICKSEN SAID THE UNRRA-GREEK AGREEMENT THAT BECAME EFFECTIVE APRIL 1 PROVIDED THAT THE GREEK GOVERNMENT WOULD DISTRIBUTE UNRRA SUPPLIES ON "A FAIR AND EQUITABLE BASIS." IN REPLY TO A QUESTION WHETHER THERE WOULD BE ANY CHECK ON THIS DISTRIBUTION, HENDRICKSEN SAID "OBSERVERS" WOULD BE SENT IN BY UNRRA.

ALONG THE SOUTHERN END OF THE TRAP DOUGHBOYS OF THE EIGHTH TRAPPED AN ENTIRE REGIMENT OF 1,500 AT VALERT, 20 MILES NORTHWEST OF SIEGEN.

ALL EVIDENCE ADDS UP TO THE FACT THAT THE GERMANS INSIDE THE TRAP ARE DISORGANIZED AND DISHEARTENED DESPITE EFFORTS OF THEIR COMMANDERS TO PULL THEM TOGETHER FOR A BITTER LAST-DITCH STAND AGAINST THE AMERICANS CLOSING IN FROM THREE SIDES.

SEVENTH ARMY TROOPS ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE GERMAN FRONT WERE BATTLING IN BOMB-RAVAGED SCHWEINFURT AS THE GERMANS FOUGHT TO RETAIN THEIR HOLD ON THE VITAL BALL-BEARING MANUFACTURING CITY.

THE BATTLE FOR HEILBRONN RAGED WITH UNDIMISHED FURY.

THE FRENCH FRONTAL ADVANCE TOWARD STUTTGART STILL WAS STALLED BUT THEY PUSHED SOUTH FROM KARLSRUHE AND COUNTERED A GERMAN THREAT TO PEEL BACK THE ALLIED RIGHT FLANK ON THE RHINE.

OTHER FRENCH UNITS HAD REACHED A POINT FIVE MILES NORTH OF THE WORLD FAMOUS SPA, BADEN BADEN, IN AN ADVANCE WHICH OVERRAN A DOZEN VILLAGES.

THE AMERICAN TENTH ARMORED DIVISION WAS FORCED TO PULL OUT OF CRAILSHEIM ON THE SOUTHERN BLANK OF THE SEVENTH ARMY FRONT UNDER PRESSURE OF A GERMAN COUNTERATTACK BY SS TROOPS. THE AMERICANS BROUGHT WITH THEM 2,000 GERMAN PRISONERS TAKEN SINCE LAST FRIDAY WHEN ELEMENTS OF THE TENTH ROLLED INTO THE TOWN WHICH IS ONLY 95 MILES FRO MUNICH.

THE EXTENT OF THE RETREAT WAS CLOAKED IN SECURITY SILENCE.

BLACK WIDOWS LAST NIGHT DESTROYED THREE JUNKERS-52 TRANSPORTS OVER THE EAST END OF THE RUHR POCKET, WHERE THE GERMANS WERE TRYING TO SALVAGE SOME KEY PERSONNEL FROM THE TRAP. FIELD MARSHAL WALTHER VON MODEL, COMMANDER OF THE TRAPPED GERMAN 15TH AND FIFTH PANZER ARMIES, WAS REPORTED STILL IN THE TRAP YESTERDAY. SUPREME HEADQUARTERS SAID 54,395 GERMANS SURRENDERED APRIL 8-9.

SIMPSON'S NINTH AND LT. GEN. COURTNEY H. HODGES' FIRST ARMIES LUNGED FORWARD NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE HARZ MOUNTAINS IN THE GREATEST GAINS YESTERDAY. THEY PULLED UP ABREAST OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON'S THIRD ARMY. ALL THREE AND THE UNREPORTED AMERICAN 15TH ARMY ARE IN OVERALL COMMAND OF GEN.OMAR BRADLEY, WHOSE GENERALSHIP IN NORTH AFRICA, NORMANDY AND GERMANY HAS PLACED HIM AMONG THE TOP DRAWER ALLIED COMMANDERS.

THE 84TH (RAIL SPLITTERS) DIVISION CAPTURED HANNOVER, INDUSTRIAL CITY WHERE A DOZEN RAILROADS AND MAIN HIGHWAYS MEET, AND WAS WELL ON ITS WAY ON THE FLAT NORTH GERMAN PLAIN TOWARD BERLIN.

THE FIFTH ARMORED DIVISION CUT THE SUPERHIGHWAY TO BRUNSWICK AND HANNOVER AND VEERED SOUTHEAST IN ECHELON WITH THE SECOND ARMORED (HELL ON WHEELS) DIVISION WHICH DROVE THROUGH OTHFRESEN, 16 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BRUNSWICK (201,306.)

THE 30TH (OLD HICKORY) DIVISION RAN THROUGH THE VILLAGE OF VECHELADE TO WITHIN FIVE MILES OF BRUNSWICK AND THERE WAS NO SIGN OF ANY SLOWING DOWN. THE 83RD DIVISION ENTERED GOSLAR, IN THE NORTHERN EDGE OF THE HARZ MOUNTAINS 20 MILES DUE SOUTH OF BRUNSWICK.

THE BRITISH GOUGED AHEAD FROM THEIR HOYA BRIDGEHEAD TO THE ALLER RIVER ITSELF IN MOUNTING MENACE TO HAMBURG (1,682,220), 50 MILES AWAY AT LAST REPORTS.

TO THE SOUTH, THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION REACHED SCHWARNSTEDT, 13 MILES NORTH OF HANNOVER, AND CUT THE HAMBURG-HANNOVER SUPHERHIGHWAY. THE SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISION, MORE THAN HALF WAY FROM THE RHINE TO BERLIN, CLEARED FUHRBURG, TEN MILES WEST OF CELLE, AND SWARMED TO WITHIN THREE MILES OF CELLE.

THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY WAS FANNING OUT ON BOTH SIDES OF THE EMS RIVER CLOSE TO THE NORTH SEA AND ON THE APPROACHES TO EMDEN (27,000). OTHER CANADIAN TROOPS LINKED WITH AIRBORNE UNITS DROPPED LAST WEEKEND AND WERE STEADILY MOPPING UP THE NORTHERN END OF HOLLAND.

ONE ARMORED CANADIAN ARMORED FORCE STABBING NORTH OF COEVORDEN REACHED WESTERBORK AND MOVED TO WITHIN 12 MILES OF THE DUTCH CITY OF GRONINGEN (120,000).

THE BRITISH ENCOUNTERED ONLY SLIGHT OPPOSITION AS THEIR TANKS AND

30.24-24699

INFANTRY ROLLED NORTH OF HANNOVER TOWARD HAMBURG. A POINT 60 MILES DUE SOUTH OF THE CITY WAS REACHED.

INDICATIONS WERE THAT THE GERMANS WOULD BE UNABLE TO OFFER REALLY FORMIDABLE RESISTANCE ANYWHERE WEST OF THE ELBE. THE 11TH ARMORED AND SIXTH AIRBORNE DIVISIONS GAINED UP TO TEN MILES ON A 15-MILE FRONT SOUTH OF BREMEN AND HAMBURG. THE TANK MEN ENCOUNTERED SOME UNITS OF SAILORS FROM HAMBURG IN A FIGHT AT AHLDEN, ON THE ALLER RIVER 59 MILES FROM HAMBURG.

ON THE BRITISH LEFT FLANK, THE ADVANCE WAS SLOWER BUT STEADY. HERE GERMAN TROOPS WERE RESISTING RESOLUTELY.

THE CANADIANS CLEARED THE LINE FROM DEVENTER TO COERVORDEN. THE GUARDS ARMORED DIVISION BRIDGED THE HASE RIVER SOUTH OF HASSELUNE, AND ADVANCED TO WITHIN TWO MILES OF LONINGEN, JUNCTION OF SIX MAJOR ROADS.

THE 43RD DIVISION PUSHED SIX MILES FORWARD AND THE 52ND LOWLANDERS CAPTURED BRAMASCHE, TEN MILES NORTH OF OSNABRUECK, AND REACHED POSITIONS FOUR MILES NORTHEAST OF UEFFELN.

THE "DESERT RATS"--THE SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION--CAPTURED DREYE AND LEESTE, BOTH FOUR MILES SOUTH OF BREMEN, AND WILDESHAUSEN ON THE MAIN BREMEN-LINGEN ROAD. THEY SEIZED HARPSTEDT, THREE MILES TO TH EAST, THREATENING ONE OF THE ENEMY'S MAIN ESCAPE ROUTES TO BREMEN.

PERHAPS SIGNIFICANT IN THE GENERALLY LOOSENING RESISTANCE IN THE NORTH AS THE GERMANS WITHDREW SOUTHWEST OF BREMEN, THE "DESERT RATS" ENCOUNTERED ELITE SS TROOPS IN ONE VILLAGE NEAR BREMEN AND THESE WERE MUCH LESS EAGER TO FIGHT THAN PREVIOUS SS TROOPS WHICH HAVE BEEN MET.

THE BRITISH CAGED UPWARDS OF 2,000 PRISONERS TO SWELL THEIR TOTAL EAST OF THE RHINE TO 32,000.

THE CANADIAN FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION SWUNG EAST FROM THE EMS RIVER 25 MILES SOUTH OF EMDEN AND ADVANCED SEVEN MILES TO THE BORGEN FOREST ON THE MAIN HIGHWAY NORTHEASTWARD TO WERLTE, 30 MILES SOUTHWEST OF OLDENBURG. OTHER TROOPS DRIVING UP FROM THE SOUTH REACHED WRLTE, SIX MILES FROM THE EMS AND CLOSE TO BRITISH SOLDIERS.

THE CANADIAN SECOND DIVISION ADVANED TO WITHIN A HALF MILE OF OMMEN, DUE EAST OF THE ZUIDER ZEE CITY OF ZWOLLE. RESISTANCE THERE WAS LIGHT AND SCATTERED.

THERE WERE STRONG INDICATIONS THE GERMANS WERE DIGGING IN WEST OF THE ISSEL RIVER FOR A STUBBORN FIGHT.

IN WESTERN HOLLAND, THERE ARE ESTIMATED TO BE FROM 80,000 TO 90,000 GERMANS. ANOTHER 110,000 TO 120,000 ARE STRUNG OUT FROM NORTHERN HOLLAND THROUGH NORTHWEST GERMANY. THE FINAL SHOWDOWN IS EXPECTED NORTH OF THE LINE OLDENBURG-EMDEN.

THE CANADIAN THIRD DIVISION CAPTURED DEVENTER, A FLOURISHING TRADE CENTER SINCE THE MIDDLE AGES. IRON FOUNDARIES AND OTHER FACTORIE ARE THERE; IT WAS THE MAIN ISSEL RIVER CROSSING FOR TRAINLOADS OF GERMA V-BOMBS TO THE LAUNCHING PLATFORMS BETWEEN ROTTERDAM AND THE HAGUE.

THE GERMANS RESISTED STUBBORNLY UNTIL DARK LAST NIGHT, THEN SUDDENLY WITHDREW ACROSS THE RIVER. THE SCOTTISH ROYAL WINNIPEG RIFLES, THE REGINA RIFLES AND QUEENS OWN RIFLES SHARED IN THE COMPLETE OCCUPATION OF THE CITY.

DRIVING EAST FROM CAPTURED HANNOVER--THE GREATEST GERMAN CITY YET TO FALL--THE AMERICANS ADVANCED TO WITHIN FIVE MILES OF BRUNSWICK, LINING UP THE THREE U.S. ARMIES SHOULDER TO SHOULDER IN A SURGE WITHIN 110 MILES OF BERLIN.

GERMAN RESISTANCE WAS SO LIGHT THAT THE AMERICAN ARMORED SPEARHEADS ROLLED EASTWARD AS MUCH AS 40 MILES IN 24 HOURS YESTERDAY. EVEN INFANTRY UNITS COVERED DISTANCES OF 25 MILES OR MORE, PROBABLY TRAVELLING BY TRUCKS DOWN OPEN ROADS INTO THE HEART OF GERMANY.

THE FIRST ARMY WAS DRIVING TOWARD THE RUSSIAN LINES SOUTH OF THE HARZ MOUNTAINS IN AN OPEN CORRIDOR ON THE THURINGIAN PLAIN. ITS THIRD ARMORED DIVISION MOVED CLOSEST TO THE ELBE, 52 MILES AWAY, AND TO THE RUSSIANS.

OTHER FIRST ARMY TANKS PUSHED 31 MILES IN A DAY INTO KLINGEN AND BEYOND TO A POSITION 57 MILES FROM LEIPZIG.

THE THIRD ARMY WAS NEAREST THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF COBURG, IN NORTHERN BAVARIA, WHERE A DUCAL GRANDSON OF QUEEN VICTORIA PERMITTED THE NAZI PARTY TO CONVENE AS EARLY AS 1922, WHEN HITLER WAS VIRTUALLY AN OUTLAW.

ERFURT, ONE OF GERMANY'S MAIN SALT PRODUCING CENTERS, WAS UNDER THIRD ARMY SHELLFIRE, THE ENEMY SAID. MARTIN LUTHER LIVED THERE AS A FRIAR IN AN AUGUSTINIAN MONASTERY, RECENTLY USED AS AN ORPHANAGE.

THE SEVENTH ARMY HURLED ITS ARMOR AND MECHANIZED CAVALRY OUT IN FRONT AGAIN AND WAS WITHIN SIX MILES OF COBURG. THE GERMANS WERE FIGHTING STIFFLY IN A TIGHT ARC AROUND SCHWEINFURT AND INSIDE HEILBRONN. THE FRENCH REPORTED A CROSSING OF THE ENS RIVER AND ESTABLISHMENT OF A FIVE MILE BRIDGEHEAD. TWENTY TOWNS FELL TO THE POILUS.

THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY WAS BUILDING UP FOR THE FINAL ASSAULT ON BURNING BREMEN IN A SIEGE ARC LESS THAN FOUR MILES FROM THE GREAT PORT AND NAVAL BASE.

THE NINTH AND FIRST ARMIES WERE WITHIN 110 MILES OF THE OUTSKIRTS OF BERLIN, AND THE THIRD WAS NOT MORE THAN 120 MILES. THE NINTH WAS LESS THAN 60 MILES FROM LEIPZIG, WHERE A LINKUP WITH THE RUSSIANS APPEARED POSSIBLE. THE THIRD WAS ONLY 48 MILES FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

THE ALLOUT OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST, WHICH HAD BEEN SLOWED MOMENTARILY TO ENABLE SUPPLIES TO CATCH UP WITH THE RACING SPEARHEADS, HAD SHIFTED INTO HIGH GEAR AGAIN.

A59

TANK UNITS OF THE NINTH ARMY SWEPT 28 MILES PAST HANNOVER INTO THE APPROACHES TO IMPERILLED BRUNSWICK, WHICH IS 105 MILES FROM BERLIN. THEY ALSO OVERRAN SALZGITTER, SITE OF THE GOERING STEEL WORKS, 10 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BRUNSWICK.

FIRST ARMY TROOPS ENTERED NORDHAUSEN, ON THE SOUTHERN SLOPES OF THE HARZ MOUNTAINS 55 MILES SOUTH OF BRUNSWICK, AND ALSO REACHED TO WITHIN 110 MILES OF BERLIN WITH THE CAPTURE OF LOCALITIES NEAR AULEBEN. ONLY 57 MILES FROM LEIPZIG.

FARTHER SOUTH THIRD ARMY TROOPS WERE PRESSING ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF ERFURT AND COBURG AND WERE LESS THAN 50 MILES FROM THE CZECHOSLOVAKIAN FRONTIER.

IN THE NORTH BRITISH TANKS AND INFANTRY ROLLED NORTH OF HANNOVER TO POINTS WITHIN 60 MILES OF THE GREAT GERMAN PORT OF HAMBURG, A DISPATCH FROM FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS SAID.

AT THE SAME TIME OTHER BRITISH ARMOR CUT AROUND WEST OF BREMEN TO WITHIN 30 MILES OF A COMPLETE CUTOFF TO THE HELGOLAND BIGHT. INFANTRY UNITS SLASHED 10 TO 12 MILES NORTHEAST FROM THE HOYA BRIDGEHEAD OVER THE WESER IN A DRIVE DOWN THE LAST 50 MILES TO HAMBURG.

PILOTS FLYING OVER BRUNSWICK, IN THE PATH OF THE SWIFT MOVING AMERICANS, REPORTED THAT AS EARLY AS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON THEY BEGAN TO SEE WHITE FLAGS HUNG OUT FROM HOUSES IN THE TOWN.

ASIDE FROM SOME ENEMY TRAFFIC INTO THE THURINGIAN PLAIN AHEAD OF THE THIRD ARMY, NO GERMAN TROOP MOVEMENT TO MEET THE ALLIED VALANCHE HAD BEEN REPORTED.

AS THE ALLIED ARMIES DROVE FOR THE GERMAN NORTH SEA PORTS GEN. EISENHOWER TOLD THEIR HAPLESS RESIDENTS THAT THE WEHRMACHT'S RESISTAN IN THE WEST HAD COLLAPSED AND URGED THEM TO COMBAT FANATICAL NAZI DESTRUCTIONISTS.

HIS WARNING, TRANSMITTED IN BOTH ENGLISH AND GERMAN OVER ALLIED RADIOS, SAID: "ALLIED ARMIES ARE NOW THREATENING YOUR TOWNS. GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THE WEST HAS COLLAPSED.

"IN THESE LAST WEEKS OF THE WAR THE FUTURE OF YOUR TOWNS IS IN THE GRAVEST DANGER FROM FANATICS WHO MAY MAKE A LAST MINUTE ATTEMPT TO MAKE THESE PORTS UNUSABLE. THE POWER OF THE MEN BEHIND THESE FANATICS IS CRUMBLING. IT WILL BE BROKEN WITH THE ARRIVAL OF THE ALLIED ARMIES THEN YOUR PORTS WILL BE USED AT ONCE."

EISENHOWER URGED THE PORT CITY DWELLERS TO PREVENT THE NAZIS FROM SEIZING THE LAST FOOD AND FUEL STOCKS IN THE CITIES. AS SOON AS THE PORTS ARE AVAILABLE TO THE ALLIES, HE ADDED, THERE WILL BE IMMEDIATE EMPLOYMENT FOR DOCK WORKERS, CRANE DRIVERS, HARBOR PILOTS AN OTHERS.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT ROBERT C. WILSON AT FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS REPORTED THAT FIGHTING ON THE APPROACHES TO BREMEN HAD SLOWED AS MONTGOMERY GATHERED STRENGTH FOR THE FINAL ASSAULT.

A PROBING THRUST BY THE BRITISH SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION CAPTURED DREHYE, WITHIN FOUR MILES OF THE OUTSKIRTS OF BREMEN. WILDESHAUSEN, ON THE MAIN BREMEN-LINGEN ROAD TO THE SOUTHWEST, ALSO FELL TO THE DESERT RATS.

IT WOULD BE A CORPS OF STALWARTS, THE BROADCAST SAID, WHO WOULD BE EXPECTED TO "ATTACK AND DESTROY ADVANCED ENEMY TANK SPEARHEADS AND CARRY OUT DEMOLITIONS." BUT SMALL ARMS AND BICYCLES WERE THE ONLY EQUIPMENT MENTIONED FOR ISSUE TO THE CORPS OTHER THAN BOOTS AND MESS OUTFITS.

EACH RURAL DISTRICT WAS ASKED TO SUPPLY THE NAMES OF FOUR OR FIVE VOLUNTEERS, THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID.

ANOTHER ARMORED COLUMN SMASHED SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF CLINGEN TO BILZINGSLEBEN AGAINST SCATTERED OPPOSITION FROM NAZI TANKS, DUG-IN INFANTRY AND ANTI-TANK GUNS. INFANTRY MOVED UP BEHIND THE ARMOR, WIPING OUT BY-PASSED POCKETS OF RESISTANCE.

THE DAY'S ADVANCES CUT THE DISTANCE BETWEEN HODGES' MEN AND MARSHAL IVAN S.KONIEV'S FIRST UKRAINIAN ARMY TO ABOUT 120 MILES. FROM PRESENT POSITIONS IT IS LIKELY THAT THEY WILL MEET SOMEWHERE ALONG THE ELBE RIVER, SEVERING THE WAIST OF THE REICH AND BRINGING THE HISTORIC MARCHES FROM THE EAST AND THE WEST TO A SMASHING CLIMAX.

"WHEN WILL WE MEET THE RUSSIANS?" IS THE FAVORITE TOPIC UP FRONT. DOUGHBOYS AND OFFICERS ARE LAYING BETS ON WHEN THE MEETING WILL TAKE PLACE. AT THE PRESENT RATE OF ADVANCE IT IS NOT LIKELY THE JUNCTUR WILL BE MADE BEFORE ANOTHER SIX OR SEVEN DAYS.

IN THE RUHR TRAP, MEANWHILE, THE GERMAN COMMANDER HAS DECREED THAT ANY GERMAN SOLDIER WHO ABSENTS HIMSELF FROM HIS UNIT FOR MORE THAN 24 HOURS IS TO BE SHOT IMMEDIATELY UPON APPREHENSION.

THIS MOVE TO KEEP TROOPS IN THE LINE IS FAILING, BECAUSE MORE AND MORE UNITS ARE MARCHING OUT TO SURRENDER TO THE AMERICANS. ONE ENTIRE COMPANY MARCHED OUT UNDER A WHITE FLAG ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE TRAP AND SURRENDERED, AND IN THE SOUTH MEN OF THE EIGHTH INFANTRY DIVISION BOTTLED UP A REGIMENT OF 1,500 MEN AT VALBERT, 20 MILES NORTHWEST OF SIEGEN, BEFORE THE GERMANS KNEW WHAT WAS HAPPENING.

THE EIGHTH DIVISION HAS TAKEN MORE THAN 11,000 PRISONERS FROM THE RUHR TRAP, INCLUDING ENTIRE UNITS WHICH QUIT WITHOUT A STRUGGLE. ONE PRISONERS SAID THERE WAS INCREASING SABOTAGE WITHIN THE POCKET.

ALL EVIDENCE ADDS UP TO THIS: THAT THE GERMANS INSIDE THE TRAP ARE DISORGANIZED AND DISHEARTENED, DESPITE THE EFFORTS OF THEIR COMMANDERS TO PULL THEM TOGETHER FOR A BITTER LAST STAND.

IN THE EARLY DAYS OF THE CAMPAIGN AND IN FACT UNTIL RECENTLY, THE RATIO OF GERMAN OFFICERS TO ENLISTED MEN CAPTURED WAS ONE TO 100. NOW IT IS ONE TO 15 OR 20 ENLISTED MEN.

"THE ANSWER TO THIS," SAID A FIRST ARMY OFFICER, "IS THAT THE OFFICERS ARE HAVING TO STAY UP FORWARD WITH THEIR TROOPS TO SEE THEY DON'T SURRENDER OR QUIT FIGHTING. IF THEY DON'T STAY WITH THE TROOPS, THEN THE TROOPS WON'T FIGHT."

UNLIKE THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH, THE GERMAN ARMY OFFICER RARELY STAYS FORWARD WITH HIS TROOPS. HE LEAVES THE TACTICAL DIRECTION OF PLATOONS AND COMPANIES TO NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

WITH THE 80TH INFANTRY DIVISION OUTSIDE ERFURT, APRIL 11-(AP)-THE FIRST AMERICANS ENTERING ERFURT TODAY WERE LED BY LT.COL.JOHN P. WOODS OF LOUISVILLE,KY., PAUL JACOBS OF AKRON, OHIO (EDS: RANK NOT GIVEN) AND MAJ.CHARLES F.GAKING OF AKRON, OHIO.

CAPT.HOWARD CLARK OF NUTLEY,N.J., SAID HIS OUTFIT DESTROYED 23 TANKS AND KNOCKED OUT 18 PLANES IN TAKING THE ERFURT AIRPORT IN THE NORTHERN PART OF THE CITY.

THE 80TH INFANTRY DIVISION, COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.HORACE L. MCBRIDE OF ELGIN, NEB., SHOVED OFF AT DAYBREAK FROM NEAR THE GOTHA ARE REACHING THE VICINITY OF ERFURT BEFORE NOON.

ERFURT, WHERE MARTIN LUTHER LIVED AS A FRIAR, HAS BEEN ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL CENTERS OF GERMAN CULTURE FOR MORE THAN 1,200 YEARS. A BISHOPRIC WAS FOUNDED THERE IN 741 BY ST.BONIFACE. THE UNIVERSITY WAS FOUNDED IN 1378.

ERFURT WAS A POPULAR TOURIST CENTER IN PEACE TIME WITH WORLD FAMOUS GARDENS AND MANY CHURCHES.

IN THE FIRST FIVE HOURS OF THE DRIVE ON ERFURT INFANTRYMEN TOOK MORE THAN 600 PRISONERS. THE PRISONERS SAID THE COMMANDER AT ERFURT HAD DECIDED TO SURRENDER BUT THAT BEFORE HE COULD DO SO UNIDENTIFIED SS OFFICERS OF FIELD GRADE RANK ARRIVED WITH AN ORDER THAT THE CITY BE DEFENDED.

IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND PLANNED TO DISPERSE ITS OFFICES FROM BERLIN TO ERFURT, WEIMAR AS WELL AS GOTHA BUT NEVER HAD A CHANCE TO USE THE ACCOMMODATIONS.

OTHER UNITS PARTICIPATING IN THE ENCIRCLEMENT OF ERFURT WERE LED BY LT.COL.HENRY B.FISHER OF ST.PETERSBURG, FLA., AND COL.NORMANDOA COSTELLO OF FRANKLIN, MASS.

MUEHLHAUSEN, GERMANY, APRIL 11-(AP)-THE WAR WAS OVER TODAY FOR 285 MEMBERS OF THE GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTRY, WHOSE HOPES FOR A HAVEN OUTSIDE BOMBED BERLIN WERE DASHED BY THE SWIFT ADVANCE OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S U.S.THIRD ARMY ARMORED COLUMNS.

WHEN THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION ROLLED INTO THIS PICTURESQUE CITY, ONE OF THE OLDEST IN THURINGIA, IT FOUND THE FOREIGN MINISTRY STAFF COWERING IN APARTMENTS, BASEMENTS, GARAG

ONE OF THE OLDEST IN THURINGIA, IT FOUND THE FOREIGN MINISTRY STAFF COWERING IN APARTMENTS, BASEMENTS, GARAGES AND HOMES OF FRIENDS.

FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM RIBBENTROP AND OTHER TOP FIGURES IN HIS DEPARTMENT WERE NOT HERE. APPARENTLY THEY HAVE FLED ELSEWHERE.

TWO DEPARTMENTS OF THE FOREIGN MINISTRY WERE TRANSFERRED TO MUEHLHAUSEN ABOUT A MONTH AGO. THE OFFICIALS CAPTURED HERE HANDLED SUCH MATTERS AS SALARIES, EXCHANGE OF NATIONALS WITH OTHER COUNTRIES, PERSONNEL AND PRESS COMMUNICATIONS. SEVERAL HAD SPENT MANY YEARS IN WASHINGTON.

THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION ALSO SEIZED NUMEROUS MEMBERS OF THE GERMAN RAILROAD MINISTRY AT SCHERBA, 10 MILES SOUTH OF MUEHLHAUSEN, AND THE PHOTOGRAPHIC DEPARTMENT OF THE TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY AT LANGENSALZA, FIVE MILES SOUTHEAST.

THE FOREIGN MINISTRY STAFF MEMBERS WERE PLACED UNDER HOUSE DETENTION UNTIL THEY COULD BE MOVED.

THEY SAID BERLIN WAS AT LEAST 75 PER CENT DESTROYED AND MOST GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS WERE GONE. THEY BELIEVED THAT THE SS (ELITE GUARD) AND GESTAPO STILL MAINTAINED AN IRON RULE OVER CITIZENS IN THE RUINED CITY.

TREMBLING AS HE SPOKE, ONE STAFF MEMBER SAID: "MOST OF US FEEL THE WAR IS LOST, BUT UNTIL NOW WE DID NOT DARE TALK ABOUT IT FOR FEAR OF WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN TO US."

IN A CUB PLANE OVER GERMANY, APRIL 11-(AP)-FIVE YEARS OF WAR HAVE WROUGHT SOME AWFUL DEVASTATION IN GERMANY, BUT DESPITE DESTRUCTION FROM ALLIED BOMBS AND SHELLS THERE ARE LARGE AREAS OF THE REICH WITH HARDLY A MARK TO SHOW THAT A MIGHTY CONFLICT IS RAGING.

FLYING OVER CENTRAL GERMANY ONE IS IMPRESSED BY HOW LITTLE OF THIS COUNTRY HAS BEEN DESTROYED OR DAMAGED. BOMBERS CONCENTRATED ON INDUSTRIAL AREAS, RAILWAY YARDS, BRIDGES AND MILITARY TARGETS TO CARVE OUT RUINS IN THE REICH, BUT THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF VILLAGES AND THOUSANDS OF SQUARE MILES FREE FROM DAMAGE.

I TRAVELLED ACROSS A LARGE SECTION OF GERMANY TODAY IN A LOW-FLYING CUB PLANE PILOTED BY TECH.SGT.LEON RUBIN OF RATON, N.M. THE LITTLE SHIP WAS NAMED "KERBY'S DAISY L.," AND WAS SPONSORED BY STUDENTS OF KERBY SCHOOL, GROSSE POINT, MICH.

CLIMBING ABOVE THE SPRUCE-COVERED HILLS, RUBIN TURNED THE LITTLE PLANE TOWARD THE FRONT. ON THE HIGHWAYS BELOW WERE STREAMS OF TRAFFIC--CONVOYS CARRYING GASOLINE, FOOD AND AMMUNITION FORWARD, AND FLEETS OF EMPTY TRUCKS RETURNING FOR NEW LOADS.

LOOKING DOWN FROM THE HEIGHTS WE COULD SEE THE PATTERN OF ALLIED BOMBINGS. WHEREVER THERE WAS A RAILWAY YARD THE EARTH WAS GOUGED BY BOMBS. WHOLE TRAINS WERE TURNED TURTLE AND TRACKS WERE TWISTED IN GROTESQUE PATTERNS. IN FACTORY AREAS, BUILDINGS WERE GUTTED AND DEBRIS WAS PILED HIGH.

CASSELL WAS A SHAMBLES. ALLIED BOMBERS WENT AFTER THIS TARGET WITH A VENGEANCE, HITTING NOT ONLY AT INDUSTRIES BUT AT ENEMY POSITIONS IN THE PATH OF THE AMERICAN ADVANCE.

THE FARMLANDS HAD A PRECISE WELL-TENDED LOOK. FARMERS WERE IN THEIR FIELDS WITH HORSES AND OXEN DOING THEIR SPRING PLOWING. FLOCKS OF SHEEP GRAZED IN GREEN FIELDS AND FRUIT ORCHARDS WERE IN BLOOM.

WE FLEW OVER MANY SMALL VILLAGES WHICH LOOKED AS THOUGH THEY WERE ENTIRELY UNTOUCHED BY THE WAR. THERE WAS NOT A SHELL POCK ON THEM AND THE VILLAGERS WALKED THE STREETS AS THOUGH THERE WAS NOTHING UNUSUAL HAPPENING IN THEIR COUNTRY. IN MANY VILLAGES THERE WAS NOT A SIGN OF A JEEP OR A TRUCK, THE TRADEMARKS OF OCCUPATION.

WITH THE U.S.3RD ARMY EN ROUTE TO WEIMAR APRIL 11-(AP)-REPORTS OF A SUPER-CONCENTRATION CAMP SITUATED NEAR WEIMAR, BIRTHPLACE OF THE SHORT-LIVED 1919 GERMAN REPUBLIC, REACHED U.S.MILITARY GOVERNMENT AUTHORITIES TODAY AS LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S TANKS DROVE TOWARD THE CITY.

LIBERATED FOREIGN WORKERS DRIFTING BACK ESTIMATED THAT 500,000 WERE IMPRISONED THERE.

ROME, APRIL 11--(AP)--CAPT. OSCAR RAU, JR., POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS AT A U. S. 15TH AIR FORCE FIGHTER BASE TODAY FOR HIS HEROIC ACTION IN SHOOTING DOWN FOUR GERMAN FIGHTERS AND TWICE SAVING THE LIFES OF HIS FELLOW PILOTS.

THAT ATTACKED EIGHT ENEMY FIGHTERS WHILE RAU WAS IN A MUSTANG FORMATION RETURNING FROM A MISSION TO VIENNA APRIL 5, 1944, WHICH ATTACKED EIGHT ENEMY FIGHTERS.

AFTER KNOCKING DOWN HIS FIRST VICTIM RAU SAW THREE NAZI PLANES CLOSING IN BEHIND THE HARDPRESSED AMERICAN FLIGHT LEADER. HE WENT TO THE LEADER'S RESCUE, SHOT DOWN ONE ENEMY PLANE AND CAUSED THE TWO OTHERS TO BREAK [illegible] AWAY.
